Board sends Galloway rezoning request back to planning commission

The Clinton County Board of Supervisors Monday returned to the planning and zoning commission a request by Al Galloway for rezoning of property along U.S.-27 north of St. Johns.

The action by the supervisors leaves unresolved the bid by Galloway to have his property redesignated from agricultural to commercial rating, a change which would allow him to continue the development of his used implement and parts business situated in the area under consideration.

The request by Galloway is the most recent in a series of rezoning efforts since he received a special use permit in 1965.

At that time county zoning officials recommended a number of restrictions along with the special use permit including specified fencing installations and a limit of eight units of machinery which could be parked on open display.

Galloway's current bid for rezoning comes in the wake of revocation of his special use permit on grounds that he violated provisions of the agreement.

At the Oct. meeting the planning and zoning commission denied Galloway's current request and during the course of discussion repeated references were made to the alleged violations.

Interests for both sides of the question were on hand to have their comments recorded and support of the change came mostly from business and government officials while opposition was registered by residential property owners in the area.

Monday's action by the supervisors throws the question back into the laps of planning and zoning commissioners and, to some extent, appears to be an effort by that deciding body to reach a decision which can be accepted by all concerned.

Part of the supervisors' recommendation in returning the question to the zoning commission included a reference to "further study" another public hearing.

Meanwhile, Galloway continued business as usual this week pending further action by county officials.

DeWitt Twp. voters reject 'home rule'

DeWitt Township voters lambasted a proposal for incorporation as a Home Rule City Monday by an overwhelming margin of 1,140 votes. The final tabulations in the defeat showed 1,189 ballots in opposition while 1,189 ballots in opposition while only 49 favored the proposal.

At press time the Clinton County News was unable to obtain totals for write-in candidates who would have been elected to rule the new city had the proposal passed.

The area involved in the proposed city encompassed approximately one-third of the heart of DeWitt Township where upwards of 3,000 residents were registered as voters. Judging from those figures and estimated 42 per cent turnout was recorded at the polls.

Another lady winner

Another lady winner. Janice Ballinger, R-6, St. Johns is last week's winner of The Clinton County News football contest. She missed on just four games and won herself $20.00. Rosemary Goebel, winner of our October '22 contest, correctly picked 14 winners instead of 12 as was reported.

Fact-finder sought

A state fact-finder is being sought by teachers in the Ovid-Elsie School District to assist in negotiation of a new contract with the board of education.

The most recent board offer was rejected Friday by a vote of 78 to 4, said Nick Lakari, chairman of the teacher negotiating committee.

FIRM GAMBLES $120,000 ON CLINTON OIL PROBE

Drilling begins at 7,000-foot well in Ovid Township

By RON KARLE
Editor

The McClure Oil Company is taking a $120,000 gamble that an extension of a 100 million barrel oil field is underground in Clinton County.

The firm, which is involved in last month's petroleum find in the Traverse City area, has contracted a Mount Pleasant drilling company to probe at least 7,000 feet in search of oil or petroleum.

A 127-foot derrick was set up last week by the North American Drilling Company and was in operation Thursday in Ovid Township near the intersection of M-21 and Watson Road.

Based on the studies of a Michigan State University geologist, Dr. James H. Fisher, McClure Oil Company of Alma, decided to come into Clinton County.

Fisher began working with McClure about a year ago and he was on the team that made the Traverse City find.

Fisher explained that in 1957 the 100 million barrel Albion-Scipio oil field was discovered and "it's characteristics are that it's very long and very narrow."

"I think a break runs through Clinton County," said Fisher. "We're gambling and the odds are heavy against it, say 1,000 to one."

"It's like buying a ticket on the Irish Sweepstakes," he added. "We think there's a chance."

"They will go at least 7,000 feet," said Fisher. "There's only one other well in Clinton County that's in that ballpark. That's in the northwestern part of the county and they've reached about 7,200 to 7,500 feet."

When asked what led him to believe in the possibility of oil in Clinton County, Fisher said:

"There's no use in telling every other petroleum company. Let's just say it's based primarily on sub-surface geology and well records from surrounding counties."

"I began to see a pattern and a picture began to jell and made a projection. It's like a jigsaw puzzle—we've got every thing but the center."

If the Clinton County project reaches Fisher's highest expectations, he predicted "it would mean the most tremendous surge you've ever had in Clinton County. Over there (in Albion) companies moved in from all over the United States."

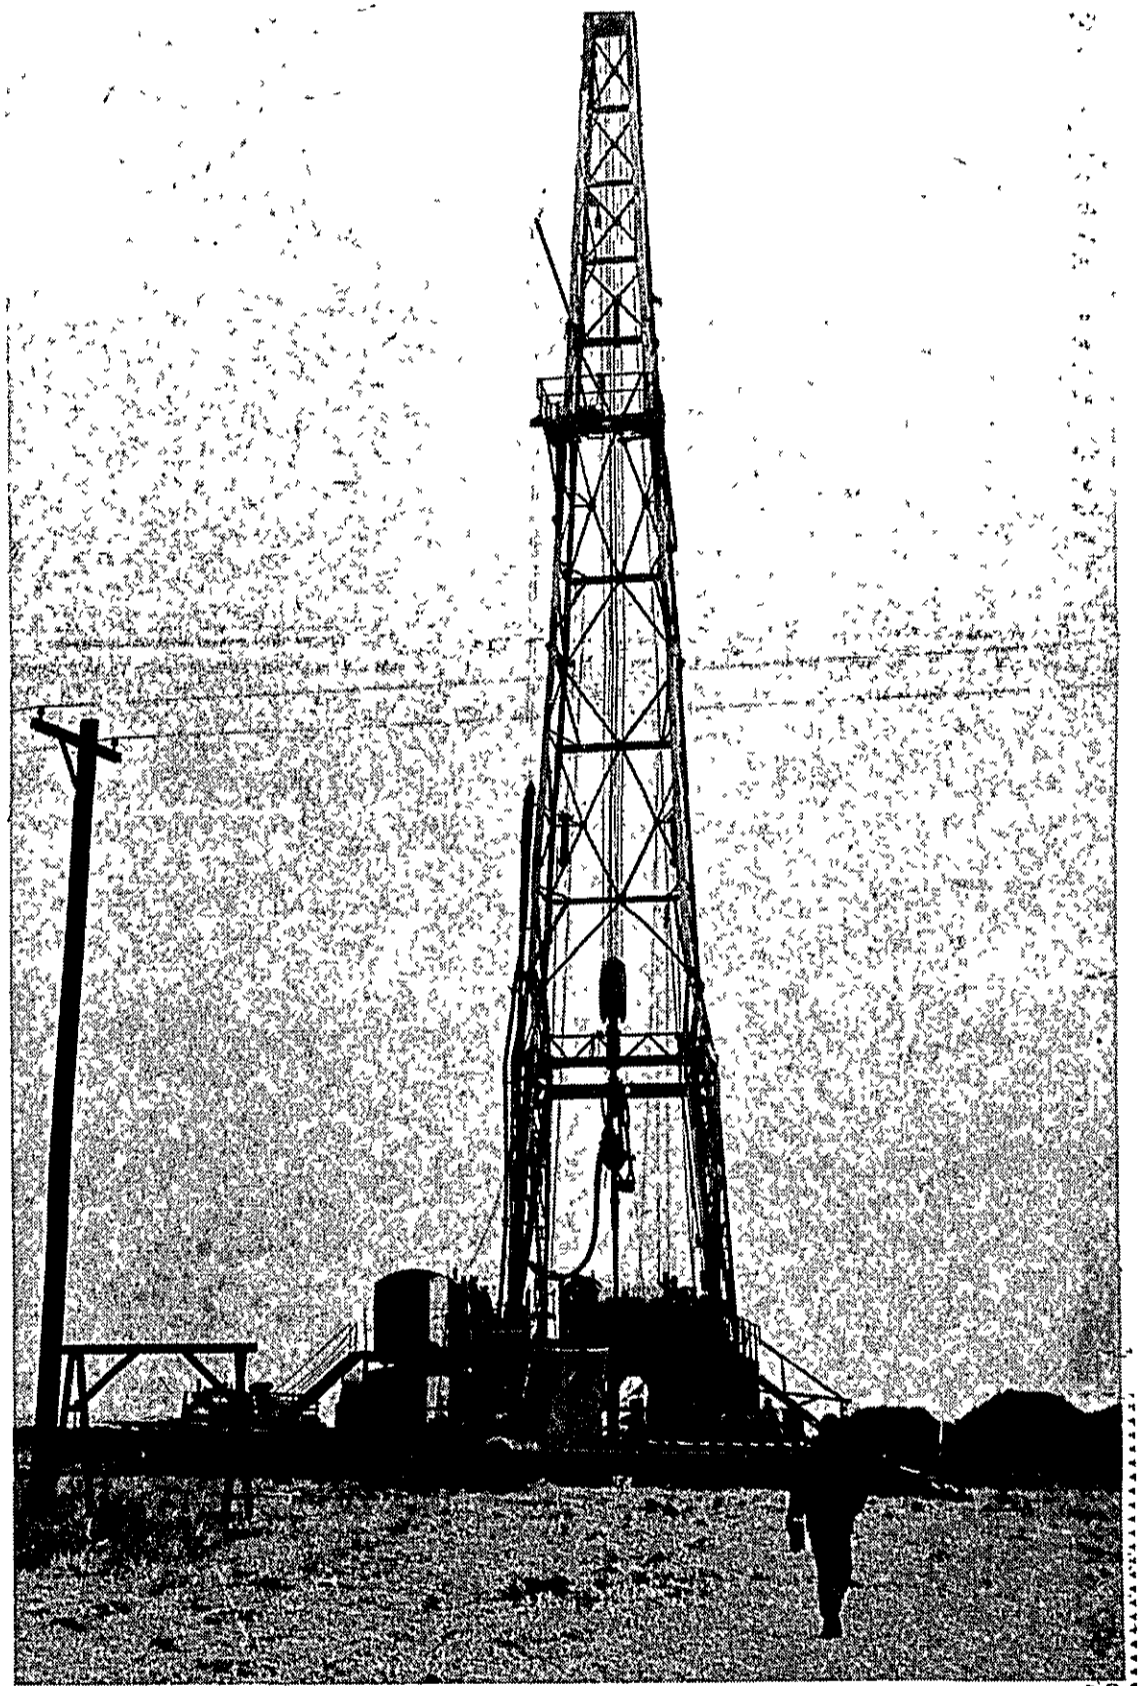

"Now it might just be a fracture—one lousy well," he added. "I've got my neck stuck out on this one. But even if it was just one lousy well, I'd be happy."

"If the well yielded 100 to 200 barrels, then we would drill other wells," he said.

"If it's a dry hole, then we'll just walk away from the area."

Dick Keelean, a driller for North American, said he expects

Beginning this Friday St. Johns Police Dept. has new number

224-6721

Effective Friday, Nov. 7, the St. Johns Police Department will increase its telephone service capacity and in turn will take on a new telephone number.

After that date residents calling the police department should dial 224-6721.

According to City Manager Harvey Weatherwax, the principal reason for the change in service is to provide a second line for receiving or sending phone calls when the regular line is in service.

Weatherwax explained that under the new system the department is being serviced by a rotating-truck line which automatically switches incoming calls to the second line when one is in use.

Committee okays proposal for local airport authority

A nine-member committee made up of Tri-County supervisors and Lansing councilmen last week voted unanimously in favor of a proposed legislative package which may form the basis for transfer of the state-owned Capital City Airport to a local authority.

Next the proposal will be placed before the boards of supervisors from the three counties—Clinton, Ingham and Eaton—plus the Lansing City Council.

If these four bodies endorse the plan, which is deemed vital for legislative approval, the package will then be sent on to the state lawmakers.

Included in the proposed plan is a provision by which voters in the three counties and Lansing could force a referendum on whether or not the four governmental units could come under the authority.

Clinton County Supervisors, Robert Montgomery, who is chairman of the airport authority committee, said he feels the referendum provision "was necessary to make the proposal acceptable" to the public and local officials.

If the plan becomes law, it would transfer Capital City Airport to a local authority run by two representatives from each of the three counties, three from Lansing, plus the state director of aeronautics.

The authority would have the power to levy up to one mill above the 15-mill limitation to support the aviation system.

Those supporting the plan have also stressed the possible development of satellite airports in the area to take some of the pressure off the Lansing facility in meeting the needs of the growing region.

By mutual agreement, the authority could assume responsibility for existing public-use fields, but could not take over any field without the owner's consent. All new public fields, however, would come under the authority.

Representatives of the four governments represented on the committee were generally optimistic about the plan's chances before their respective bodies.

"Clinton County undoubtedly will accept it," said Montgomery. Ray Burgess, Ingham County supervisors, said he expects "some opposition, but I think it

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO ORDINANCE NO. 25, THE CITY OF DEWITT ZONING ORDINANCE

DWELLING AREA REQUIREMENTS

Section 5(g). Change wording after the words "any attached garage" to read: except that two-family and multiple dwellings shall have a minimum average floor area of 650 square feet per dwelling unit and further provided that no dwelling unit shall be less than 550 square feet in area.

PLANNED UNIT DEVELOPMENTS

Section 7(f). It is the purpose of this section to encourage more imaginative and livable housing environments within the residential districts of the community by permitting a planned reduction or averaging, of individual lot area requirements for each zone district, provided that the overall density requirements for each zone shall be maintained. To these ends, the Planning Commission is hereby empowered to approve such planned development subject to the following conditions:

- (1) Such development shall only be permitted when a land-owner, or a group of owners acting jointly, can plan and develop a tract of land as an entity and thereby qualify for regulation of said tract as one complex land use rather than an aggregation of individual structures located on separate unrelated lots.
 - (2) The development shall be not less than 20 acres in area.
 - (3) Public sewer facilities shall be available or shall be provided as part of the side development.
 - (4) For each square foot of land gained through the reduction or averaging of lot sizes, at least an equivalent amount of land may be dedicated to the City of DeWitt or shall be set aside for the common use of the home or lot owners within the planned unit development under legal procedures which may also give the City a covenant or interest therein, so that there are assurances that the required open space shall remain open.
- The Planning Commission may hold a public hearing, or hearings, upon any such application after publication of notice of the time, place and subject of such hearing in a paper of general circulation in the City of DeWitt at least fifteen days prior to the date of said hearing.

SITE DEVELOPMENT OR PLOT PLAN REQUIRED

Section 7(e). The general and intensive use of the automobile requires careful study of the relationships between buildings, parking areas, driveways, streets, alleys, pedestrian walkways, traffic movements and visual obstructions or land uses or structures which generate or attract automobile or truck traffic or which require the accommodation of automobile or truck parking. To fully insure the safety, convenience and well-being of the citizens and of the intended occupants of a particular use and of adjacent uses, the Planning Commission is hereby empowered as an administrative body to review a site development plan of any use other than a one-family or two-family dwelling, prior to the issuance of a Building Permit.

For the purpose of such review the applicant shall submit three (3) copies of an ink drawing on translucent material or a print therefrom, drawn to scale, which shows the intended and/or existing location and dimensions of improvements or structures upon a parcel of property including buildings, driveways, parking areas, parking spaces, landscaping, landscaped area, sidewalks, signs, drainage facilities or similar physical alterations or improvements. Approval shall be subject to the following procedures and conditions:

- (1) The Planning Commission shall ascertain that the proposed development is arranged:
 - a. To provide convenient and safe automobile circulation and parking in relation to streets, pedestrian walkways and adjoining properties or parking areas.
 - b. To insure adequate visual sight distances.
 - c. To minimize conflicts of traffic movements on public streets and upon the property involved.
 - d. To insure the safety, convenience and well-being of adjoining property owners and other citizens.
 - (2) To these ends the Planning Commission is empowered hereby to designate entry ways and exits, the direction of traffic flow on off-street parking areas and drives, to limit the number of drives onto a public street, to designate their location of intersection with a public street and where feasible to require the use of existing drives on adjacent properties to decrease traffic conflicts on the public streets.
 - (3) Upon approval of said plan, the Chairman of the Planning Commission shall sign three copies thereof. One signed copy shall be returned to the applicant, one shall be made a part of the Planning Commission's files and one shall be forwarded to the Zoning Administrator for issuance of a Building Permit.
- Public hearing will be held on December 1, 1969, at 7:30 p.m. in the Municipal Building.

McCune Chapel setting for Kline-Faculak vows

Dr. Wallace Robertson united Miss Connie Faye Kline and Gary J. Faculak in a double ring wedding service on Oct. 25, at the McCune Chapel of People's Church in East Lansing.

The 7:30 p.m. candlelight service was performed at an altar set with three candles in fresh greens. The bride and groom lit the center candle together signifying the joining of two lives. Music during the service was played by Dr. Corliss Arnold.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman M. Kline of 13191 Watson Road, Bath, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Raymond Snider of 2232 Pembroke, Lansing.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown fashioned by herself. It featured an empire waist in a princess style, of peau de soie with long sleeves and a chapel length train. The neckline, wrists and front seams of the gown were trimmed in embroidered lace. Her elbow length veil was held by peau de soie petals fashioned in a forward crown with each petal edged in seed pearls. She carried a crescent cascade of white rosettes, stephanotis and ivy.

Mrs. Myrna Howse of Lansing served as matron of honor and Miss Jan Moore was bridesmaid. The attendants wore floor length gowns of pink crepe over taffeta, with avocado green bows accenting the front. Their head-dresses were clusters of matching pink petals with short veils, and they each carried "tuzzy-muzzy" bouquets of pink carnations and red rosettes.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Kline chose a beige double knit dress with beige and brown accessories and Mrs. Snider selected an aqua crepe chiffon dress with silver accessories of pink carnations and red rosettes.

Roger Faculak served as best man and Roger Leach was groomsmen. Dan Kline and Don Lockman seated the guests.

A reception for 85 members of the family and guests was

MRS. GARY FACULAK

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Glidden and Mrs. Eva Kline, grandparents of the bride and Mrs. Ione Ploughman grandmother of the groom were special guests. Each of the grandmothers was presented a corsage of pink carnations.

For travel the new Mrs. Faculak changed to a winter white princess styled coat - dress trimmed in leopard with black accessories. The couple honeymooned at Niagara Falls, and will make their first home at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds

Commission names Moore, Huard to planning posts

Ballenger to attend law and sex forum

State Rep. William S. Ballenger, R-Ovid, will take part in a symposium on "Sex and the Law" at Alma College this week.

This meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 5, at Dow Auditorium on the Alma campus.

Ballenger will participate as a member of an informal group of younger House members who have established a "Forum" series of discussions with college young people. The students, rather than the legislators, choose the topics to be covered in the free-form discussion. At the Alma meeting the lawmakers will discuss laws governing abortion, sex education, pornography, and homosexuality.

"We hope to be able to sketch in the present legal status of these various subjects, current proposals affecting these laws, and the prospects for change," says Ballenger.

"This is a difficult and complex business, but it must be an ongoing one since changing times demand continuous reappraisal."

The St. Johns Commission last week approved the appointments of two residents to fill vacancies on the city planning and zoning commissions.

Named to the group were Attorney James Moore and Rollin Huard, publisher of the Clinton County News.

In corresponding action, the commission accepted the resignation from the planning group of William Graef, manager of the St. Johns office of General Telephone. Graef has served with the planning body for ten years and Charles Coletta expressed the commission's appreciation for Graef's extended service.

"He spent many hours and was dedicated," Coletta told the commission before moving that appropriate recognition be extended. A public gesture of appreciation was approved by the commission.

Both appointees have had experience in the area of planning and zoning.

While a resident of Jackson, MI, Moore served as a township attorney and spearheaded the re-writing of a new zoning ordinance. Since coming to St. Johns he has appeared before the city commission and planning body at various times on behalf of clients and his work has kept him abreast of local planning developments.

"I'm aware of some of the problems," Moore explained. "I think one of the most critical is the adoption of an entirely new ordinance."

In his comments the attorney cited last year's court ruling which rendered the then current city zoning ordinance invalid. Since that time zoning in the city has reverted to an earlier ordinance adopted in the mid-forties. "Win, lose or draw," Moore said, "the city needs a new zoning ordinance."

Huard, a resident of the city since July 1968, served for five years as vice-chairman of planning and zoning in Charles City, Iowa. During that time the five-man commission he was part of drafted a new city zoning ordinance and he was a member of an advisory committee which established a zoning ordinance for the county in which that city is located.

He has attended planning and zoning seminars at Iowa State University and University of Iowa as well as a number of planning meetings in various Iowa communities.

The appointments are effective immediately.

Standard rep at Rotary Club

The minerals depletion provision of the present tax law is no more a loophole than the $600 deduction allowed the individual taxpayer for himself and each dependent, an oil industry spokesman said Tuesday noon at Walker's Cafe.

The explanation was made before the St. Johns Rotary Club by W. J. Ragsdale, manager of the Traverse City marketing district of the Standard Oil Division of American Oil Co.

Both depletion and the personal deduction are authorized by Congress to meet specific needs, he said.

"Depletion encourages Americans to spend about $3.5 billion a year in searching for the new domestic oil reserves that our nation needs to insure a continuing and secure supply of low-cost energy," he explained.

Ragsdale also reported that expert testimony before a Senate subcommittee estimated that elimination of the present import control program, prorationing and minerals depletion could cost the economy nearly $7 billion.

The loss would be in taxes, royalties, wages, income and balance of payments, he said.

Ragsdale also noted the important contribution oil makes to the economy of Michigan. The industry provides jobs for 38,000 people in the state with an annual payroll of $88 million. Nearly $238 million of the state revenues—or about 16 per cent of the total came from taxes paid by oil companies.

Linda Drake named DAR Good Citizen

Linda Drake, daughter of Mr and Mrs Marvin Drake, R-1, Middleton, has been chosen DAR Good Citizen at Fulton High School.

Linda has been a member of the Senior Band for four years and has participated in girls' basketball, girls' track, and Glee Club. She is president of her Church Youth group and her main interests are sports and music.

Linda is in the top five of her class academically, and plans to attend Huntington College, Huntington, Ind. and plans to be a mathematics teacher.

Like the people population, the dog population of Clinton County is on the rise and, according to Ben Swanchara, county dog warden, of an estimated 7,000 canines in the county only a little more than half are properly licensed.

In addition, county supervisors were advised Monday, some kennel operators in the county have fallen into violations of minimum operating standards as well as other multiple-dog families taking advantage of kennel rates while not actually operating a kennel.

The dog-gone situation seemed almost to be getting out of hand so a recommendation that license fees for all dogs be $4 was moved and approved. In addition fines for violations of the license provisions were increased from $1 to $4.

As for the kennel question the supervisors accepted a resolution that all kennels be inspected before licenses are granted to ascertain that an actual kennel is in operation and that all licensees conform to standards. Kennel license fees are $7.50.

UNDER ZONING CONSIDERATION.

The Al Galloway property has again come under zoning considerations and this week county supervisors apparently extended the consideration period by returning Galloway's current rezoning bid to the planning and zoning commission. Galloway who has been operating a used implement and parts business on a special use permit has sought to have his land redesignated from agricultural to commercial. (See story page 1A)

178-acre subdivision set for DeWitt's West Side

A new subdivision consisting of 178 acres of land will be developed on the west side of DeWitt City, by Ted Powell and James Faucett, owners, with Robert LeFave, as manager. The new planned unit development will be called "Millbrook Meadows" and will utilize a "New England" theme as the motif.

A 7 acre parcel has been set aside for the development of a mill-pond in the south section. This will form a picturesque background or for construction of an old fashioned gristmill and covered bridge which will add to the New England atmosphere.

There will be 366 homesites available and a 15 acre section will be reserved for multi-family units. Winding roads with cul-de-sac turns will be utilized throughout the new home area.

A 20 acre city park will be located near the center with complete recreational facilities which will then be dedicated and deeded to the city of DeWitt, thus assuring property buyers that park facilities will remain an important asset of Millbrook Meadows.

All public utilities will be placed underground. There will be no poles or overhead wires in the entire subdivision. No commercial buildings will be allowed and restrictions on homes will be high. Blueprints will require approval by the developers.

Developers will also install a municipal water and sewer system will be directed toward the city owned sewage plant. All curb, and gutter, and sidewalks will also be installed.

At present five lots are being developed on W. Main Street in one section and the first building permit has been issued. Roads and utilities will be extended this winter to the duplex home area and single and duplex lots will be available for sale this spring.

Scott Bagley and Associates were architectural consultants on the development.

Powell, his wife Pat, and three children have been residents of Clinton Village No. 2, on Yorkleigh Drive in the past 12 years. He is employed in real estate and insurance and is presently trustee of DeWitt Township.

Robert LeFave, manager, his wife Elaine and three children make their home in Walnut Estates in DeWitt. He formerly served as manager of the Valley Farms branch of the Clinton National Bank.

Faucett lives in Grand Rapids with his wife Joyce and two children. He is employed as a real estate developer.

ST. JOHNS REDWINGS Stars of the Week

Lineman	Honorary Captain	Back

DAN RADEMACHER Defensive End	DAN STOCKWELL Guard	RON WAGGONER Fullback

Dan Rademacher, named Honorary Captain earlier in the season, has been picked as Lineman of the Week by Head Coach Jeff Smith. "He played a heck of a defensive game against Charlotte and recovered a fumble," Smith said of his senior defensive end. "He's really a come on," said Smith. "We're really going to miss him next year. He's a good one."

Dan Stockwell isn't a starter. He's on the kickoff team, the kick receiving team and the punt team. "The reason he's captain. . . I wish you could see him at practice, then you'd know why," said Head Coach Jeff Smith. "He's one of those guys that doesn't know anything less than 100 per cent all the time. One game, even though he's on our specialty teams, he was the second leading tackler."

Head Coach Jeff Smith said he was impressed by the work of Ron Waggoner against Charlotte last week. The senior fullback scored a touchdown and rushed for 103 yards—in the 19-0 conference victory which kept Redwing title hopes alive. "He did a nice job," said Smith.

Emergency service for hunters

Deer hunters in Michigan are reminded that the Departments of State Police and Natural Resources provide a free registration service for those nimrods who wish to be notified in event of emergencies in their homes. This service, which has been available annually, is for genuine emergencies only and is not to be expected by hunters or their families where regular communications facilities can be used without undue delay.

Hunters should tell their families the name of the State Police post or district Natural Resources Department office nearest to their camp where they will be registering.

An accurate location of the camp should be given to the State Police or Natural Resources Departments by the hunters. This registration information should be updated if the hunter changes camps during the season.

This emergency plan works two ways since it also enables the families of hunters to be notified by the authorities in event an emergency arises in the camps.

Should an emergency develop at home, families should notify the State Police or Natural Resources Department office where the hunter is registered. The message will then be delivered

33 hunting accidents

Thirty-three gunshot accidents—four of them fatal—during the first month of Michigan's 1969 hunting season brought renewed words of caution from the Department of Natural Resources.

Kenneth A. McCord, of the Law Enforcement Division, said a review of this year's accidents places special emphasis on these reminders: . . .

- Choose your hunting partner carefully.
- Turn away from him when loading or unloading your gun.
- Don't pull your gun toward you when crawling through a fence.
- Wear fluorescent orange.

Reports of the four fatal accidents showed that a squirrel hunter and a bear hunter were mistaken for game by their companions. Another was shot by his companion who was handling a gun carelessly. The fourth, a fox hunter, shot himself while crawling through a fence.

DNR isn't going to let 'Sleeping Bear' issue lie

Officials of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources are not about to let the "Sleeping Bear" issue lie.

They have pledged to come out fighting "harder than ever" in 1970 for legislation to establish the proposed Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore in Benzie and Leelanau counties after learning that congressional action on the measure has been shelved for the balance of this year.

The proposal was sidelined during the first session of the 91st Congress when the Federal Bureau of the Budget called a halt to land acquisition funding for national parks.

The "freeze" is part of the cold war being mounted in Washington, D. C., against inflationary federal spending.

This latest tabling of the Sleeping Bear plan prompted a high official for the Michigan DNR to warn: "We can't wait much longer."

A. Gene Gazlay, the DNR's Assistant Director, explained: "All of this uncertainty has caught everyone in the middle and time is running out to find which way to turn. People generally are hesitant to buy lands within the proposed lakeshore area because they don't know what is going to happen there. By the same token, landowners in the area can't sell their holdings at open-market prices."

As valuable time ticks away, there is also the threat that important tracts of land that should be saved as part of the proposed national lakeshore will be lost forever to private development and uses.

The Department of Natural Resources, itself, is in a growing quandary over the whole situation. Its leaders are anxious to know whether the Department will have to expand recreational facilities at D. H. Day and Benzie state parks within the proposed lakeshore area.

Gazlay stresses: "If this matter doesn't get settled very soon, we will have to go ahead on our own and meet our state responsibilities to establish national parks or recreation areas now being considered by Congress."

As a result, the DNR will redouble its efforts in 1970 to push for passage of Sleeping-Bear legislation, and it hopes to rally conservation forces throughout Michigan to join in the fight.

The DNR's push will center upon these three bills introduced by members of Michigan's congressional delegation—S. 1023 sponsored by Sen. Hart; H. R. 11829 sponsored by Rep. O'Hara; and H. R. 12230 sponsored by Rep. Vander Jagt.

Wings shutout Charlotte, 19-0; O-E next, but all eyes on Lakewood

By RON KARLE Editor

If anyone's got a pocketful of miracles, they're asked to send a couple along to Lakewood.

The last-place Vikings meet West Central Conference leaders Grand Ledge Friday and should the Comets fall, St. Johns would retain the league title.

The Redwings have concluded conference play with a 5-1-1 record while Grand Ledge goes into the Lakewood game 5-1.

St. Johns defeated both schools, Grand Ledge 14-7 and Lakewood 34-12.

Meanwhile, the Redwings, who dumped Charlotte 19-0 last week, have a little business of their own to attend to Friday when they host Ovid-Elsie.

The Marauders come into the game with a fresh from their second victory of the season, 12-6 over Olivet.

As Ralph Lynam, a long-time Redwing supporter always says, "When you come to this one, you can throw away the record."

At Charlotte last week, the Redwings methodically crushed their hosts as Jeff Silm opened the scoring in the second period dashing 26 yards.

He then added the extra point to put the Wings out in front 7-0. Moments later, quarterback Tim Durner hit Charlie Green on a 20-yard pass play for six more and St. Johns led 13-0 at the half.

Durner, who threw only four passes in the rain, completed two for 36 yards.

In the final period, Ron Waggoner, who led the team in rushing with 103 yards, scampered 38 yards for the final Redwing score.

"I was satisfied with the way we played," said Head Coach Jeff Smith. "The defense did a real fine job and we had good tackling this week."

Brian Ballinger led the defensive unit with 12 tackles.

In addition to his Stars of the Week—Durner, Waggoner and Danny Stockwell—Smith said he was especially pleased with the performances of Roy Pederson and Tom Rasdale.

"Pederson looked exceptionally good at defensive end," said Smith, "and Rasdale did a fine job at line backer."

The Wings, keeping their passing game to a minimum because of the inclement weather conditions, rushed for 234 yards for a total offensive effort of 270 yards while Charlotte rushed for 129 yards and picked up five more in the air, completing one pass in five attempts for a total of 134.

When asked for comment on the Ovid-Elsie game, Smith said, "I hope for the seniors' sake they close out their high school careers in respectable fashion."

Smith named to Free Press Grid Board

St. Johns Head Football Coach Jeff Smith has been named to the Detroit Free Press All-State Selection Board.

Smith is to contact coaches in Clinton, Gratiot and Iosco counties for possible selections to the newspaper's All-State high school football teams.

The St. Johns coach will attend a statewide meeting of coaches Nov. 12 in Grand Rapids to select the top high school gridgers in Michigan.

A lot of foul-weather fans broke out their umbrellas Friday but if you were from St. Johns the rain didn't seem so bad.

Pewamo-Westphalia downs St. Paul, 26-16

A pair of touchdowns by speedy Dan Weber paced Pewamo Westphalia to a 26-16 Central Michigan Athletic Conference football victory over Owosso St. Paul Saturday.

After a one-yard sneak by quarterback John Bengal gave the Pirates an early lead, Weber dashed eight yards for his first score with 40 seconds left in the first period to give P-W a 12-0 lead.

With little more than a minute and a half left remaining in the half, St. Paul put eight points on the board when Tim Dutcher passed eight yards to Dan Campbell for a touchdown and then passed to Pat Dwyer for two more.

But in the third quarter Weber scored his second of the night from five yards out to give P-W a 26-8 margin.

Then with less than four minutes left in the game, Rich McKewen fired a 23-yard scoring pass to Dutcher and Roy Thelen ran for a two-point conversion to make it 26-16.

St. Paul out-passed the visitors, 117 yards to 26 but the Blue Wave was held to minus three yards rushing for the night while the Pirates picked up 129 yards on the ground.

O-E fresh end season undefeated

Ovid-Elsie's freshman football team tripped East Lansing last week, 8-6, to finish the season undefeated in seven outings.

East Lansing, aided by an O-E fumble, drove in for six points in the second quarter, but the Marauders came back in the third period when halfback Jeff Grant dashed over from the three and quarterback Dan Egbert ran for a two-point conversion and the winning margin.

Leading the O-E defensive unit were Lynn Webster with 12 tackles and Tom Pontack with 11.

St. Joe's ends with victory

The St. Joseph School football team, coached by Roger DePaape, won their final game of the season against Brighton, 22-0.

Jim Lynch scored three touchdowns on runs of 20, 15, and four yards. The two point conversion was made by Marty Brewbaker and Fred San Miguel.

The team finished with four wins and one loss for their conference season.

It was a happy group of DeWitt Panthers Friday after defeating Fowler 54-0 to win the Central Michigan Athletic Conference crown.

DeWitt new CMAC champions; Fowler 8th Panther victim, 54-0

There was happiness in Mudville Friday night. But even the rain and the mud didn't matter because when it was all over, the scoreboard showed DeWitt was a champion. Coming off a narrow victory the week before against previously undefeated Potterville, the Panthers showed no mercy as they rolled over Fowler 54-0 to clinch the Central Michigan Athletic Conference title outright.

The victory was the eighth straight for Coach Gary Robert's Panthers and was their fifth shut-out of the season. DeWitt ended the CMAC campaign with a 7-0 record while Fowler was 1-6 in conference play and 1-7 on the season.

DeWitt seemed anxious to prove it was a championship team and stunned the Eagles by scoring three times in the opening period.

Kurt Kluge, playing fullback for the first time, scored twice and sophomore Ron Brown added another to put the Panthers up 18-0.

The Panthers wind up the season Friday when they host Morrice in a non-conference game.

In the third period, DeWitt picked up another on another touchdown from LaMacchia and Ron Brown scored twice more in the final quarter. Don Brown kicked another point after and LaMacchia passed to Lankford for another two-point conversion.

The Panthers wind up the season Friday when they host Morrice in a non-conference game.

Stockbridge falls

Bath defense plays offense in 2-0 victory

Bath's offense-minded defensive unit made the difference Friday as the Bees tripped Stockbridge, 2-0.

Late in the final period, the Bees were knocking on the door but lost a fumble on the Stockbridge one.

A moment later, however, the turnabout worked to Bath's advantage.

On the first play from scrimmage, the Bees' defensive unit smashed through and nailed Bob Myers in his end zone for a two-point safety with 5:23 left in the game.

Ironically, it was Myers who had recovered the Bath fumble one play earlier.

Both clubs were hampered by muddy playing conditions. Stockbridge lost scoring chances three times—fumbling twice, once on Bath's six-yard line and again on the Bees' 10.

In the third period Bath fumbled away a scoring opportunity at the five and lost the ball on downs at the six in the fourth quarter.

The victory left Bath with a 4-3 winning season—their first in the Ingham County League—and a 4-4 mark overall.

Marty Lankford and quarterback Joe, LaMacchia scored a pair in the second quarter while Ron Brown ran for a two-point conversion and Don Brown kicked another.

O-E JVs finish 7-1 for the year

Ovid-Elsie's Junior Varsity shutout Olivet 32-0 last week to finish the campaign with a 7-1 season record.

Fullback Glen Bensinger scored two first-half touchdowns and quarterback Charlie Miller snuck for another to give the Marauders an 18-0 lead at the half.

In the second half, Miller hit halfback Gordon Baker for a 65-yard scoring play and John Peters picked up another O-E score while Bill Feran kicked a pair of extra points to round out the scoring.

Leading the defense were Jeff Baker and Les Helnze with five tackles each.

'M' goes blue

The record of Duffy Daugherty-coached Michigan State football teams over archrival Michigan stands at 10-4-2 following State's 23-12 victory this year.

Ovid-Elsie's mudders splatter past Olivet

Apparently mud doesn't bother Don Mulder.

The Ovid-Elsie Senior fullback set up the first touchdown and scored the other Friday as the Marauders tripped Olivet 12-6 in a non-conference football game.

Mulder set up the first score on a 68-yard run in the second quarter and moments later quarterback Dave Long snuck over from six inches out.

But with 37 seconds left in the half, Rick Hydon tied it at 6-6 when he scored from the one to cap an eight-play, 21-yard drive.

In the final period, however, Mulder climaxed a 31-yard drive when he scored on a three-yard run to ice the game for the Marauders.

O-E is now 2-6 on the season and 0-6 in Mid-Michigan B. Conference play.

The Marauders conclude the season Friday with another non-conference battle at St. Johns.

Fulton Pirates thrashed by Carson City, 36-6

A steady driving rain made little difference to Carson City Friday as the Eagles thrashed Fulton, 36-6, in a Tri-Central Conference Football game.

Carson City struck for six points on the second play of the game when quarterback Dave Steele hit Sid Mosley for a 75-yard touchdown play.

Steele added six more when he plunged two yards for another Eagles touchdown.

Rod Wiles picked up a pair of Eagle touchdowns in the second quarter dashing 10 and three yards for the scores. A 16-yard dash by Tim Poffler concluded Carson City's scoring.

Steele hit Mike Behan and Doug Cufack for two-point conversions and Wiles ran for another.

The lone Pirate touchdown was scored by Bob Gray on a 25-yard sprint.

The defeat left Fulton 2-6 on the season and 1-5 in Tri-Central play.

General Telephone plans to spend more than $1 million in St. Johns district next year

General Telephone Company of Central Michigan plans to spend more than $1 million to improve and expand services in the St. Johns District, officials announced last week.

The $1,104,300 expenditure is part of General Telephone's $7.8 million expansion program planned for the Central Michigan service area, which in addition to the St. Johns district, includes Edmore, Alma, Grand Ledge, Mt. Pleasant and Owosso.

R. D. Trezise, central division manager, said the improvement and expansion program includes both local and long-distance service, and brings the company's four-year total expenditure in Central Michigan to more than $24 million.

In the last several months, said Trezise, General Telephone customers have placed long-distance calls at the rate of more than 3.5 million per month, up by more than a half-million per month compared to last year's average.

Local calls are now being placed at the rate of more than 2,300 each day, an increase of more than 100,000 per day over last year.

The 1970 program represents an average outlay of more than $84 for each of the 94,000 telephones in the central district, said Trezise. The division has a total capital investment of nearly $58 million in land, buildings and equipment.

General Telephone, which operates through four divisions in addition to its central division, has more than 415,000 telephones in service in 486 communities and operates in 61 of Michigan's 83 counties.

Suggestions for fall weed control offered by County Extension agent

Fall is a good time to control weeds in Michigan fields, says George McQueen, Clinton County Extension Agent.

Yellow rocket, which shows up each spring in many alfalfa fields, can be controlled in established stands by treatment in late fall after a killing frost. The use of MCPA at one-half pound active ingredient per acre will kill yellow rocket and other broad leaved annual weeds.

Simazine (Princep) at one and one quarter to 1 1/2 pounds of active ingredient per acre will control yellow rocket, broad leaved weeds and even chickweed, peppergrass and similar weeds if applied in the fall.

The agent warns farmers not to apply these chemicals on alfalfa stands less than one year old.

Fall is also a good time to control quackgrass. Using Daapon at 15 pounds active ingredient per acre in the fall and plowing down the growth seven to ten days after spraying, is one of the recommended practices, the agent explains.

He recommends the use of 30 to 40 gallons of water per acre for quackgrass control. Fall application of atrazine will control quackgrass on fields being planted to corn next spring.

The agricultural authority recommends farmers refer to MSU Extension Bulletin 434, "Weed Control in Field Crops," for full information on weed control with herbicides.

The publication is written by William F. Meggitt, weed specialist in the Department of Crop and Soil Science at Michigan State University, and is available from the county extension office and the Bulletin Office, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Mich. 48823.

Solid state read-out panel above windshield keeps operator in touch with machine functions.

New combine helps keep farmer in touch

The cab on a modern combine is a great boon to the operator. It provides him with air conditioned protection from dust and the elements, a comfortable seat and enough peace and quiet to hear his favorite radio program while harvesting a crop of grain, corn or beans.

But the cab can also be an isolation booth in which the farmer is cut off from the sights, sounds, vibrations and even smells that once warned him to stop and make some adjustment in his mobile harvesting factory. In addition, many of the "factory's" moving parts (like belts, pulleys, drive chains), which once were visible, have been shielded from sight for safety and smarter styling.

Using space age electronics, International Harvester farm equipment engineers have ended the combine operator's isolation and re-established his lines of communication with the inner workings of his machine.

From 12 strategic points inside the combine, sensors transmit electronic signals constantly to a central solid state analyzer or "black box". These incoming signals describe the actual conditions of operation throughout the machine.

In the "black box", this information is compared with pre-selected values, representing normal operation, to determine whether the various combine systems are working properly. If they are, a green light glows on a panel directly above the cab's windshield. If not, one of a series of red lights, corresponding to the location of impending malfunction, comes on, and a warning wand falls across the windshield. The operator can then take necessary corrective action to avoid costly downtime, improve productive efficiency and work capacity of his combine and extend its useful life through timely preventive maintenance.

Snowmobiles are new 4-H project, says agent

Snowmobiling is now an official 4-H project. "It's an exciting new project that combines recreation with learning about safety and small engines," says John Aylsworth, extension 4-H youth agent.

"With about 75,000 licensed snowmobiles in Michigan, young people are learning that snowmobiles offer new adventures for wintertime sports," he adds.

The project is expected, to develop skills in handling and maintaining a snowmobile, appreciation for the necessity of laws governing snowmobiling, interest and enthusiasm for the out-of-doors in winter, and understanding of interrelationships of people working together.

Through this 4-H project, youths will become familiar with the snowmobile. They will learn about maintenance and repairs, safe operating procedures, the Code of Ethics for Snowmobilers, and the proper dress for snowmobiling. They will also plan and lay out snowmobile trails and learn to load and transport the snowmobile safely.

The snowmobile 4-H project makes an excellent family project, adds Aylsworth. One 4-H club already has about ten members interested in the project.

Teaching materials and more information are available from the Clinton County Extension Office, located at 1003 South Oakland, St. Johns, Michigan.

On nuts and inflation

Wife: "Guess who's sponsoring a contest to find exceptional hickory nuts?"

Husband: "Let's see, a branch of the government maybe? You know the U.S. House of Representatives recently approved legislation which would give an immediate pay increase to postal workers and establish machinery for giving annual pay increases to all federal employees. With today's inflation, that's nuts!"

No silly," she said, "The announcement I got said entrants must send a sample of at least 25 nuts from a single tree to the Horticulture Department of the college. We can enter as many as we wish."

"No problem there," he said, "Did you know the vote was 281 to 81 against killing the inflationary bill and 311 to 51 on sending it to the Senate. You see, the majority of both parties are ignoring the current battle against inflation. Entries for your contest will be easy to find." She said, "You're jumping to extremes. The best nuts will win prizes of only $5, $10 and $15. Furthermore the contest ends in a few weeks."

Husband, "That's hardly true, this bill if passed will raise spending by $1.5 billion for this fiscal year and eventually add $4.3 billion a year to Federal expenses. That's not peanuts!"

Wife: "Oh you're such a bore. For this contest voting on the nuts will include judging among many things, the crackability of their shells and their general acceptability of most other things that are expected of them."

"That's right, dear," he said, "and apparently many of the lawmakers haven't been listening to the folks back home, or if they have, they are brazenly ignoring the message. Earlier this year, they voted themselves a healthy 41 per cent pay boost. With this kind of a cushion against the rising cost of living, it may be difficult for the average Congressman to put himself in the position of the typical taxpayer and consumer. Furthermore President Nixon has indicated that if Congress adopts this inflationary legislation, he will veto it. But unless Congress hears from the country, President and taxpayers may lose a key battle in the war against inflation."

Stop messing around.

A smokeless, odorless gas incinerator gets rid of all burnable trash indoors.

Stop that endless struggle of getting rid of paper cups, cartons, bones, old magazines and garbage. Get rid of all your burnable trash with a modern gas incinerator. Conveniently placed in your basement, garage or utility room, a gas incinerator frees you from that daily dash to the outdoor trash can, the problem of accumulated garbage and complaints about odor and smoke. The gas incinerator consumes all burnable items indoors, without smoke — without odor — and it costs just pennies a day.

LAKE LANSING: the story of a dying lake

ASSIGNMENT 10

FRIDAY 7:00 P.M.
SUNDAY 12:30 P.M.

Uh... watch your step there

Everyone knows about the incendiary tendencies of Mrs. O'Leary's cow as a result of the great Chicago fire.

Few, however, know that bovines are four-legged bombs.

To be more precise—and as delicate as possible—a certain by-product of the dairy industry produces no less than four gases, at least one of which is highly explosive.

Now, most persons might find this to be an esoteric—perhaps almost non-existent—problem.

Not so, says W. J. Fletcher of the National Safety Council's Farm department.

Gases from manure pits, Fletcher says, have caused both human and animal deaths.

In fact, an explosion caused by one of these gases—methane—is known to have literally lifted a dairy barn from its foundations.

Fletcher—who was born and raised in farm country—says that in the good old days the only safety precaution necessary with manure was to watch your step.

Urban sprawl and a labor shortage, Fletcher says, have changed all that.

Today's farmer, he says, relies more and more on confinement feeding—that is, you keep the cows in the barn—and the pit storage of manure.

The manure, he explains, drops through slots in the barn floor directly into storage pits below.

Disposal is not required for several months, which helps to drastically cut labor costs.

All this would seem like progress, particularly to anyone who has ever had to shovel manure with a pitch fork.

Unfortunately, however, potentially hazardous gases—primarily ammonia, carbon dioxide, methane and hydrogen sulphide—can, and frequently do, build up to dangerous concentrations.

Some of these gases, particularly hydrogen sulphide, are poisonous, and, among other things, Fletcher advises persons working in or around manure pits to use self-contained air breathing apparatus—the same SCUBA equipment as used by underwater sports enthusiasts.

The situation might seem humorous, Fletcher says, but when you consider the hazards of each of the major gases involved you begin to realize the situation isn't particularly funny:

Ammonia, lighter than air, is highly irritating and absorbed readily in water but is easily removed by ventilation.

Carbon dioxide, heavier than air, is not detectable by smell, but a tankful of it will suffocate a person if he stays in the area, passing out before he knows what's wrong.

Methane also causes suffocation but usually rises and escapes a building even without ventilation. It is explosive and can cause considerable damage if ignited.

Hydrogen sulphide has a rotten egg smell and is poisonous. As little as 500 parts per million will restrict breathing and may make artificial respiration necessary.

Levels as high as 800 parts per million of hydrogen sulphide have been measured at slat level over a manure pit. It is heavier than air and almost always present over a manure pit.

Fletcher says any closed space may be gas-suspect—silos, pits, septic tanks, even well pits—and warns that agitation of pit contents will release large quantities of gas.

All tanks, Fletcher cautions, should be treated as though they contain explosive gas. That is, no matches or other open flames should be permitted.

The NSC agricultural engineer makes the following specific recommendations for manure pit work:

—Never work alone.

—Use a lifeline and make sure there is power enough to lift a victim clear of the tank.

—If you must go inside a tank, ventilate the tank before entering it and during the work.

—Test for combustible gases and oxygen level with a miner's lamp or other testing device, not with an open flame.

—Use (as mentioned above) self-contained air breathing apparatus (SCUBA) if in doubt.

—Let's see, if Mrs. O'Leary's cow and a lantern could burn down almost all of Chicago, then...

JOHN AYLSWORTH

Extension award to Aylsworth

John R. Aylsworth, extension 4-H youth agent for Clinton County, was presented the Distinguished Service Award by the Michigan Association of County Club Agents last week at the annual Extension Conference at Michigan State University.

Cited for his "tremendous effort and enthusiasm in 4-H youth programs," Aylsworth has been a strong supporter of National 4-H Center activities.

A 1966 graduate of Ohio State University, he has been 4-H youth agent for Clinton, Gratiot and Shiawassee counties since 1966.

Meach honored for work

Mrs. Helen Meach, Clinton County News columnist, was among three home economists cited last week by the Co-operative Extension Service for outstanding work.

In addition to Mrs. Meach of Chesaning, Mrs. Jean Leach of Reed City and Kathy Bufton of Detroit, were presented distinguished service awards by the Michigan Association of Extension Home Economists at the Extension Service's annual conference at Michigan State University.

Mrs. Meach was honored for her pioneer teaching nutrition to low income families in Shiawassee County.

She was one of the first home economists in the state to begin training of local non-professional women to teach nutrition to homemakers as part of extension's expanding family living education program.

Mrs. Meach also serves Clinton and Gratiot counties, teaching all home economics topics to a wide variety of groups. She has been an extension home economist since 1961, serving in Hillsdale County before moving to her present assignment.

Farm Bureau prepares for annual state meeting

Plans are underway for the Michigan Farm Bureau's 50th Anniversary celebration, one of the highlights of the state Annual Meeting to be held at Michigan State University Nov. 10-12.

Gov. Milliken will address the opening session, Nov. 10 and State Sen. N. Lorraine Beebe, R-Deerborn, will be the featured speaker at the Women's noon luncheon that same day.

Rounding out the three-day session will be the crowning of Michigan Farm Bureau's 1970 queen.

Meanwhile, Young Farmer contestants are already preparing their Discussion Meet subject, "Will Farm Bureau Survive the Next 50 Years?" says Dave Cook, Young Farmer Director.

There will also be election of members of the Board of Directors. Odd numbered districts will elect directors for two-year terms. Also to be elected for a two-year term will be one director-at-large and one director representing Farm Bureau Women.

The Michigan Farm Bureau Women will elect a chairman and vice chairman. One director to represent the Young Farmers will be elected for a one-year term.

Most important aspect of any State Annual Meeting, the presentation of Resolutions will be made in a special session Nov. 10. President Smith will also address the session.

The Policy Development Committee (Resolutions) will be in special session the first day of the Annual Meeting following the Commodity conferences.

Any Michigan Farm Bureau member is welcome to appear before the committee on any issue.

The Young Farmers' banquet will be held Monday evening, Nov. 10 at 6:30 in Kellogg Center and the voting delegates will again be in session Tuesday and Wednesday.

Chuck Burkett, Chairman of the 1969 Staff Committee for the Annual Meeting, will issue further details of the meeting in the November issue of Farm News.

Nixon is honorary National 4-H chairman

President Nixon has accepted an invitation to serve as Honorary Chairman of the National 4-H Service Committee.

In a letter to the National Committee's President Chris L. Christensen, Nixon said, "It gives me the greatest of pleasure to say that I consider it a distinct privilege to accept your invitation. I will be delighted to associate myself with the Committee's highly praiseworthy and highly effective programs, which are contributing so much to the development of responsible citizenship among America's young people."

Acknowledging the president's decision, Christensen pledged the National 4-H Service Committee's continued support of extension programs which strengthen the informal educational opportunities of youth everywhere. He pointed to increased 4-H programming being carried on in the inner-city and with private sector in assisting the publicly supported 4-H educational program.

The National 4-H Service Committee, a non-profit, educational corporation headquartered in Chicago, has supported the 4-H program for 48 years, Christensen said. Currently some 58 corporations, foundations and individuals financially support the Committee's work, he noted.

State Crop Report

By MICHIGAN CROP REPORTING SERVICE

CROP COMMENTS FOR WEEK ENDING Oct. 25

Freezes, showers and snow slowed harvest of fall crops. Some freeze damage to potatoes was noted but the extent of the damage could not be determined. With 3 days considered suitable for field activity, some progress was noted.

The corn crop is generally mature and with hard freezes experienced in almost all of the producing areas, harvest will be able to progress as long as fields are dry enough to allow the use of harvesting equipment.

The corn for grain harvest has reached the one-fifth mark which is slightly behind normal. Some areas in the southern portion of the Lower Peninsula report that lodging of the crop is becoming a real problem and may contribute to a higher than normal harvesting loss.

Freeze damage in the central Lower Peninsula was reported to have affected several hundred acres of potatoes. Progress of harvest was slight during the week and is nearly one week behind the schedule of the past two years.

At 40 per cent complete, harvest of soybeans is following the pattern of the late harvest of 1967 and was over one week later than the 1968 harvest.

Sugar beet digging also lagged during the week. With about 30 per cent of the crop dug, this year's harvest is now one of the later ones in recent years and progress is 10 days behind 1968 and one week behind normal.

Cows were being moved into winter shelter in the Upper Peninsula and in some areas of the Lower Peninsula. Younger stock were being left on pasture even though below normal to normal supplies of forage were available. Christmas tree harvest remained active and movement to market was increasing.

Apple harvest ran from 60 to 90 per cent complete with the largest amounts remaining to be harvested in the west central Lower Peninsula. Progress was hampered by a shortage of pickers as well as the inclement weather. A few areas reported a large drop caused by high winds. The drop could become a general problem for growers who have unharvested apples.

Cabbage and cauliflower were about the only remaining vegetables being harvested as the freezes killed the less hardy crops.

The situation might seem humorous, Fletcher says, but when you consider the hazards of each of the major gases involved you begin to realize the situation isn't particularly funny:

Ammonia, lighter than air, is highly irritating and absorbed readily in water but is easily removed by ventilation.

Carbon dioxide, heavier than air, is not detectable by smell, but a tankful of it will suffocate a person if he stays in the area, passing out before he knows what's wrong.

Holsteins in area classified

Holstein-Friesian Association of America has announced that a program is to be held in this area during November. The service evaluates the body conformation of Registered Holsteins.

A total of 113 herds are enrolled in the Western Michigan program. Of these, 24 will be taking part for the first time.

Called Descriptive Type Classification, more than 4,500 herds in all parts of the country are regularly taking part in the program. The service is made available every 16 months.

Participation broke all previous records during 1968. Dairymen enrolled receive detailed information on the physical structure of all Registered Holsteins of producing age. Association classifiers provide the service on the farm.

High year after year production is affected by the physical characteristics of the dairy cow. Greater longevity means fewer herd replacements. Dairymen place emphasis on functional body conformation as a means to developing a more profitable herd.

Classification is a major herd improvement service sponsored by the Holstein Association. Descriptive Type Classification provides complete conformation evaluation for Registered Holsteins.

Low proportion

The percentage of unemployment insurance benefit recipients in relation to the number of people in the nation so covered, fell to 2.1 per cent during fiscal year 1969. This is the lowest recorded rate since World War II.

Torino. High Style.

Nothing in its field can match it for looks or luxury.

The elegant Torino Brougham is rich in looks, lavish in appointments. Compare it to other intermediates. You won't find its equal anywhere—not in appearance and certainly not in price. It has a longer wheelbase for a smoother ride.

A wider track for better road holding. Hideaway Headlamps, concealed windshield wipers, 302 CID V-8 are just a few of the standard features. Take your choice of 2- or 4-door hardtops. Either one is worth a visit just to see how beautiful it is.

Torino Brougham 2-Door Hardtop

Torino. High Performance.

New SportsRoof styling... six great V-8's.

Torino GT gives you the ride, the handling, even its own aerodynamic SportsRoof styling that adds to your go. And you can go all the way up to the 429 Cobra Jet Ram-Air V-8 with a living, breathing, through-the-hood shaker. Then add our new Laser Stripes, high-back buckets, 4-speed Hurst Shifter... you get the idea. Park the GT if you want to collect a crowd, and take them on a cruise if you want to dazzle them.

Torino GT SportsRoof

Torino. Low Price.

Lowest priced hardtop in its class.

This is the beauty that caught the competition napping. You won't find a lower priced intermediate hardtop anywhere in the country. Yet it offers you many features you'll find only on the more expensive Torino models. Longer wheelbase. Wider track. Curved side glass. Concealed windshield wipers. Fiberglass belted tires, and more. PLAY AWAY FROM TRAFFIC
WINNER, AAA TRAFFIC SAFETY POSTER CONTEST

The concert is over. The artist takes a bow. Or, perhaps the curtain rings down on a smash hit. And hands slap, smack, pat, or tap. Hands do other things besides applaud. Some write on blackboards, others perform miracles of surgery—some type, some sew, some plant. Hands drive trucks, make music or diaper a baby. There are crippled hands and wrinkled hands, soft ones and smooth; hands flung up as a shield; others stretched in supplication. In God's Church are praying hands. These hands translate compassion into action. They find homes for the homeless and food for the hungry. They teach, as well as preach, and bring hope to hearts long lonely. They, literally, become the hands of God. Today, as never before, mankind needs the assurance and comfort of God's love. Won't you help your church reach out? Offer your heart and your helping hands.

Pygmalion set for St. Johns

Having trouble finding the perfect mate? Do what Pygmalion did, carve your dream from ivory.

Pygmalion was a Cyrus king and sculptor. He found so much fault with the female sex he decided to live the life of a bachelor. As the legend goes, he carved a maiden from ivory so fair she seemed to alive.

He fell madly in love with her and at the festival of Venus asked that he be given a woman as beautiful as his beloved statue. When he returned home, Venus had granted his wish, the lovely statue now lived!

Pygmalion's legend in modern form will live again on the St. Johns High School auditorium stage as the school's first all-school play.

as Pickering; and Doug Nickelson as Freddy.

Fulton to present 'If a Man Answers'

FULTON HIGH SCHOOL NEWS
By Jackie Feighner

Friday, Nov. 7, will be the big night for the junior play, "If a Man Answers." It will be presented to the public at 8 p.m. at the Middleton elementary gym.

"Despite problems the students are working hard and I have been very encouraged with the results of the last few rehearsals," stated Mrs. Pfeiffelmann, director, who will be assisted by Rita Halsted.

The play cast includes: Sue Wood, Marshall Coleman, Ron Ryan, Lynda Markison, Laurie Van Sickle, Cindy Helms, Dan Zamarron, Joy Mahler, Bev Zimmerman, Karen Upham, Reuben Lopez, Alan Henny, Linnea Underwood, Linda Smalley, Judy Taylor, and Jackie Feighner.

"It's really fun," said female-lead Sue Wood, when asked how she liked doing the play. Male-lead Ron Ryan added, "It's a lot of fun—and hard work, but it will be worth it if the people like it."

Mix-Alls Unequaled: versatility, features, experience

Mix-Alls are unequaled! Compare the model that fits your livestock operation -- 115MX (120-bu.) or 65MX (82-bu.) -- with any competitive unit. Check every feature.

Exclusive variable-speed swinging auger feeder adjusts exactly to grinding conditions and tractor power. Gehl's 66 hammers cut ingredients uniformly, without fines, to assure thorough blending. Here's proof of unequalled grinding: with a larger screen mesh size, Mix-Alls grind and mix more uniformly than competitive units with a smaller screen mesh. Saves tractor power... increases capacity.

Over 35,000 farmers own Gehl Mix-Alls -- more than any other make.

The pool

With the opening this week of the St. Johns High School swimming pool, area residents have a new recreational facility at their disposal. While others may be one of few communities of comparable size to have the luxury of a swimming pool, its existence is indeed a tribute to progressive planning and an example of effective expenditures of public funds.

Not only the existence of the pool should be gratifying, but the administration of the facility by school authorities is a refreshing detour from traditional procedures. Frequently, from necessity or design, publicly financed facilities come into limited use by pool schedules released by school officials indicate their intent to allow public desires to be their guide. Such administration of tax supported facilities of this nature should be the rule rather than the exception.

School Superintendent Earl Lancaster has been quoted as saying, 'We'll do whatever the demand is for,' and this comment is suggestive that school district residents will receive their money's worth. Many years are required to justify expenses on facilities of limited use, but what might appear as a luxury quickly takes on practical dimensions through broad and frequent application.

The opening of the swimming pool is an effective complement to the growth of the school district and the community. It is but one more aspect of the high school in which we can all take pride.

An effective job

Clinton County residents, like other citizens across the country, have little tendency to enjoy tax increases, however, recent action by the Michigan State Tax Commission is reassuring that our taxes are within equitable proportions.

Following an appeal by the Clinton County Equalization Committee, the State Tax Commission conducted an exhaustive study of county tax levies and their findings disclosed only "infinitesimal" differences in some areas of comparison.

As a result of this study the commissioners supported the County Board of Supervisors' approval of property assessments and while these assessments may reflect increases, the decision should be one of encouragement to residents.

The action by the state commission not only affirms equitable taxation but it also indicates that an effective job is being done by the Clinton County Equalization Committee. The county committee has withstood the test of scrutiny by the state and to have their efforts and decisions supported by the latter group is a credit to Director Lorenz 'Tony' Tiedt.

NEWTON FALLS, Ohio, HERALD: "I get tired of hearing what a rich nation we are when right in our own community we have areas without sanitary sewers, impassable streets, struggling schools, no water, great cities decaying and on the verge of bankruptcy, many fellow citizens struggling on a hand-to-mouth existence and some not even that well off. Citizens are not tax stingy. It's simply that prime tax money goes to Washington where bureaucracies have money to burn while local needs go from bad to worse."

ANDALUSIA, Ala., STAR-NEWS: "To our way of thinking, dissent can be limited in scope so that the great majority of students, hungering for higher learning, will not be deprived of their rights so that a minority can exercise the privilege to revolt. The backlash from violence among collegians has struck at the heart of Americans. If university presidents and the professors can't hear the alarm, the U.S. Congress soon will."

HUNTINGTON, Ind., HERALD - PRESS: "Figures drawn from an annual Census Bureau report on federal, state and local employees show Americans hired 26,000 additional policemen in 1968, which was a violent year of assassinations, riots and rising crime."

WINDOM, Minn., CITIZEN and REPORTER: "It's not the guns that are killing people. It's the person behind the weapon. If a person wants to kill his wife or whoever he wants, he certainly isn't going to be stymied because of the gun registration law. . . . MICHIGAN MIRROR

A little credit

By ELMER E. WHI TE

It might amaze most Michigan residents to know that the state highway department does quite a bit of tree planting and landscaping.

For example, the department has just started an $8.25 million project to plant shade trees, flowering trees and shrubbery along 304 miles of Michigan's interstate freeways in the next four years.

The project is financed with 90 per cent federal funds and 10 per cent state funds. Actual work on the newest project is not scheduled to begin until next spring.

Landscaping is considered an important safety factor on the sprawling interstate system. Highway planners place trees along the road to break up the monotony of a long drive along the divided highways. They also put curves in highways where they aren't needed in an attempt to keep drivers from growing drowsy. The result is a

From the state house

By DICK ALLEN 88th District Representative

Is it possible for a white child to be economically and culturally deprived? Are most people in the small towns and on the farms in Mid-Michigan extremely "conservative"?

Both these questions are related to a recent suit brought against the State Board of Education by Representative Swallow. It is on behalf of a seven-year-old girl living in rural northern Michigan.

The girl, a Caucasian, lives with her two-year-old brother and her father, a disabled veteran. Their home is a model trailer which has no running water. Her mother has deserted the family.

The suit is on behalf of the girl but relates to the failure of the Mio-AuSable school district to qualify for State Aid for Culturally and Economically Deprived Students.

THIS IS AN EXTREMELY poor area and they rate high in many of the qualifications for this special category of school aid. They are high in substandard housing, infant deaths, people per physician, and families below $2,000 annual income.

They did not get much aid last year because their population density was too low. Then the following definition recently promulgated by the "liberal" State Board of Education wiped them out.

"Underprivileged children means students enrolled in a public school who are American Indian, Negro, or members of Spanish-speaking groups . . . or migrant Caucasians engaged in transient agricultural employment . . . who suffer deprivation because they are denied the cultural advantages available to the rest of the community."

In other words, if you are white you cannot be deprived unless you are the child of a migrant laborer!

RECENTLY I VOTED against a State Bond Issue for improved housing limited to urban areas. A friend said, "I suppose you have to vote conservative with all those mossbacks that live out in your area." The dictionary defines liberalism as a political philosophy based on progress, the essential goodness of man, and the autonomy of the individual and protection of political and civil liberties.

By that definition, I am a liberal and I believe most of the people in the 88th district are too. Certainly there are grievous and severe problems in our country that cry out for a solution. And as for a belief in progress, what group in our society has been quicker to adopt new methods than farmers, the very group many consider the least "liberal"?

Why are people in small towns and rural areas, and those of us who represent them, considered to be conservative? Because the supposedly "liberal" causes of the last forty years have been aimed at different problems or different areas or different people. But we believe in progress, the essential goodness of man and the autonomy of the individual. Just give us a chance to prove it!

Until then, good luck to Representative Swallow, the Mio-AuSable school district, and that deprived white girl.

road which the driver "drives" on, instead of merely aiming the car straight ahead for several hours. The hoped for result is safer driving for everyone.

MOTORCYCLE DANGERS It's more dangerous to have an accident while driving a motorcycle than while driving a car.

That fact, which is understood by all, is born out again in Michigan statistics for last year. Where the death rate for

STRICTLY FRESH

Life may be just a bowl of cherries, but why did someone have to ladle us the pits?

Good news: The boss says the firm is going to make money this year, despite the staff's best efforts.

all motor vehicles is just under five deaths for every 100 million vehicle miles driven, the rate for motorcycles is 40 deaths per 100 million miles.

Based on deaths per 10,000 vehicles registered over the last five years, the average mortality rate for motorcycles is 11.3 while deaths for all vehicles is 5.4.

Safety officials say the reason for this is very simple. "When you have an accident on a motorcycle, there isn't anything there to protect you," explained one expert. "In a car you've got the car body itself and you can have a pretty bad wreck and not get hurt."

"But when you're traveling 50 miles an hour on a motorcycle and hit something, you're in bad trouble because you're going to hit the pavement, a pole or something at that speed with your body," he said. "And your odds aren't very good in a situation like that."

'IF IT FITZ . . .'

Speeches bug me

By JIM FITZGERALD

Would you believe I paid $100 to hear Gov. Ronald Reagan speak—and then walked out before he opened his mouth?

Neither would I. So let the truth be told: I was present on an editor's discount, which is better than that given clergymen. But everyone else at the banquet, which covered a whole basketball court with no room to dribble, paid 100 bucks for a $5 dinner. The idea was to raise money to help Michigan Republican legislators get re-elected. And if I'd keep my big mouth shut, a lot of influential people might think I'm a rich Republican, thus refuting the often-heard rumor that I'm a poor Communist.

(Actually, I'm a prohibitionist. I drink, but I want to bring back bootlegging so George Raft won't have to make those degrading TV commercials. That's no kind of work for a self-respecting crook.)

However, the price of the meal really doesn't matter. Free or $1,000, I probably would have left before the speech anyway. And this is nothing against Reagan. True, he was a pretty bad actor. The only movie I liked him in was Kings Row, when he got chopped in half. And also true, he is not my idea of what a governor should be in the 20th century—or even the 18th. I keep having this nightmare where he is elected president and appoints John Wayne secretary of defense.

But still, I should have stayed and listened to Reagan. It was bad manners to leave. But I have this phobia or illness or something. I can't stand speeches. They give me a severe case of the twitches, a rash, and nausea. The only cure is escape. Why is that, Doctor?

You might think this is a serious affliction for a newspaperman to have. There's no question that my profession sometimes requires that I listen to a speech. But not as often as you might think. Most newspapermen today supply the press with printed copies of their remarks before they make them. This allows the reporters to read along with the speaker, usually moving their lips. And their stories the next day always contain such illuminating paragraphs as: "Departing from his prepared text, Senator Smith coughed."

However, when there is no advance copy to ease my escape, and I am duty-bound to report the lousy speech, I manage to survive by playing a little game. I try to make notes on what the man says before he says it. For instance, if Ronald Reagan says "I have no objection to college students speaking their minds," I know his next word is going to be "but." Or if President Nixon says "The 1954 Supreme Court decision outlawing segregation in our schools must be enforced," I know his next words will be, "However, we must move slowly." And so on. Everytime I'm right, I reward myself by taking a long look at the prettiest waitress in the place, usually a waitress. When I'm wrong, my punishment is having to eat one of the cold green peas which I've hidden under my napkin.

This game doesn't prevent the twitching, rash and nausea, but it keeps me from thinking about it and scratching in public. Onward and Upward.

A hammered horse

By RON KARLE, Editor

He came up to the office the other day and you could tell there was more on his mind than the usual hammers and nails.

That's what Ken Lashaway and I usually talk about, him being vocational director over at the high school and all.

Anyway, it turns out that old Ken is a hunter, too.

"Yup," he was saying, "Went hunting last weekend."

"Oh," I returned wondering how he was going to tie all this in with hammers and nails.

"Got me three Canadian geese, a partridge and a horse."

Well, I'm no hunter, but even I had never heard of open season on horses. I'd heard of farmers painting the word "Cow" on some of their choice stock, but I'd never heard of a hunter mistaking a horse for anything else but a horse.

Much to his credit, however, Ken didn't shoot the horse.

He hit it with his car.

"A hundred and sixty-seven dollars worth of damage," he admitted.

By now I was wondering what ever happened to that nice guy who just used to tell me about hammers and nails.

"My boy Kenney was asleep in the back seat and my nephew Mike was sleeping against the door in the front seat when he hit," said Ken. "Kenney rolled right off the seat onto the floor and asked what happened."

"Mike told him we hit a horse and Kenney just said 'Oh, and went back to sleep.'

All this happened somewhere in Isabella County and Ken being the conscientious type wanted to report "the accident" to the police.

The operator told him it was a toll call and that it would cost him 30 cents.

"I told her I only had 15 cents in change and that I wanted to report an accident, so the police said ok."

"Then I told him that I had just hit a horse and he said 'You hit a what?'"

"How'd you get the geese," I asked, "Sneak up and hit them over the head with a tire iron?"

"Yeah," he laughed, "and the partridge flew into the trunk and broke its neck."

Actually he shot the birds, one of them over water.

It's hard to picture a grown man wearing his hat, and watch and glasses and carrying a wallet swimming after a dead bird.

But he did.

In fact, he was more proud of that than anything.

And I suppose when he gets a new hood for the car, a front end alignment and that dent bumped out of the fender, he'll be right back out there again.

I've never been able to understand hunters and am suspect of people who fool around with hammers and nails and things like that.

And that's ok, I suppose. But a horse?

Make lemonade

By RON HUARD

The boss has a philosophy he frequently gives voice to whenever the tone of a conference takes on a defeated air.

"Whenever you end up with a handful of lemons," he says, "make lemonade."

Now I suppose there are some who would readily pipe up with the decree that they don't like lemonade, but then there will always be a minority who merely grumble their way through life giving everyone else the general impression they can't wait to be locked alone in their box.

Lemonade, or various recipes for it, perhaps isn't always the most inviting beverage to consider but the message behind the observation is one which has been a subscription of mine for some time.

I long ago learned that ninety per cent of my complaining was sheer stupidity and about eight per cent was over matters out of my control. That leaves only two per cent of these cares which fall into my realm of influence and in most cases here I lack the physical or mental tools to affect any change.

There are many, many persons who are blessed with the capacities for change and they pursue their goals successfully. I guess these are the leaders.

On the other hand there are countless numbers who can't fulfill their intents or, which is truly, the sad part, can't accept their limitations.

Somewhere in between these extremes there are those who stumble into the rut where high walls of negativity won't allow visions of merit in anything except constant complaining.

We talk of co-existence of governments as if it were something which should occur by about three fifteen tomorrow afternoon, yet we'll despise a neighbor; decry an idea or snicker at efforts to accomplish a previously untried suggestion.

How can we expect nations to co-exist when we have a devil of a time accepting one-another?

I've been told by those in the know that complaining is an inherent element of human nature and examples tend to bear this out.

Take the driver who has someone cut into his lane immediately ahead. He turns red in the face and recites a litany of curse words that nearly melts the safety glass of his auto but within minutes is likely to change lanes himself providing the occasion to continue the litany. Before long there is safety glass sagging all over the place and this causes complaints from another source.

A worker complains that the guy before him didn't use any imagination to develop an idea so he in turn displays his imagination by passing the job along for someone else to worry about.

Then there was this chick who, many years ago, bit into an apple and immediately was informed that she was gonna get kicked out of the orchard. Word has it that a frown wrinkled her brow but it was quickly displaced by a smile and she looked up to the sky and chirped; "Maybe so, but I'll be eating apple pie!"

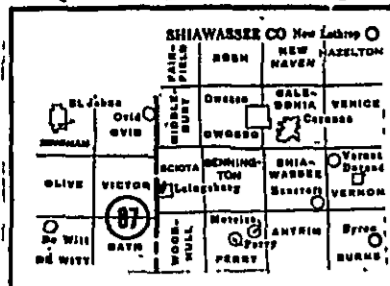

I suppose there are those who don't like apple pie, either.

View from the 87th

By WILLIAM S. BALLENGER
State Representative

While issuing a call for major and meaningful reform of education in Michigan, Governor William G. Milliken has posed what is beyond doubt the most basic question underlying any attempt to assess the schools of our state:

Is our educational system truly related to the society it serves?

Some pertinent statistics may answer this question more eloquently than any amount of subjective theorizing. According to recent Michigan Department of Education figures, three out of four 9th grade students will enter the labor market on or before high school graduation; yet only one out of six such secondary-school students is being prepared for employment through enrollment in a vocational program.

IN OTHER WORDS, no more than 17 per cent of pupils in grades 9 through 12 are currently receiving the type of education that as many as 75 per cent would appear to need. This would indicate that vocational-technical training is presently available to less than a fourth of the students who will seek employment without college training.

As alarming as this discrepancy may be, these figures alone fail to tell the full story. A 12th grade student receiving one or two hour-long vocational classes is hardly being adequately prepared to enter today's labor market; the time actually spent in vocational training must be considered as well. In June of 1969, after conducting an extensive study of all aspects of education in Michigan, a "task force" from the Michigan Association of Professors of Educational Administration (MAPEA) estimated both the need for and existing level of vocational training in Michigan in terms of "equated" full-time vocational students. (For example, if three students each spend a third of their school time in vocational programs, they represent the equivalent of one full-time vocational student.) Measured in this manner, Michigan currently provides vocational-technical training for the equivalent of 15,000 full-time students.

YET BY CONSERVATIVELY asserting that 67 per cent of grade 9-12 students belong in vocational programs, the MAPEA task force found that Michigan should be providing vocational-technical training for the equivalent of 131,395 full-time students, rather than a mere 15,000. The need, therefore, is not four but nearly nine times as great as is currently being met!

Even this startling conclusion fails to paint the total picture of our overwhelming failure to meet the educational needs of a large majority of our young people. No mention has yet been made of the 14 per cent of students who are enrolled in non-public schools and for whom meaningful vocational training is practically non-existent at present. Moreover—whether for lack of equipment, lack of truly qualified instructors, or perhaps lack of interest on the part of the academic-oriented educators and officials who determine the priorities in education today—the hard fact is that a great deal of the supposed vocational or "industrial arts" training offered in public schools today has little, if any, real relevance to the modern labor market.

IS OUR EDUCATIONAL system truly related to the society it serves? For most young people in Clinton County who will be seeking employment without college training, for somewhere between two-thirds and three-fourths of our current secondary-school student population, the answer has to be a most emphatic "No!"

In short, if our educational system is to be truly related to the society it serves, a drastic shift in emphasis is indicated. Our schools must tailor their programs to the needs and aspirations of the students. And for at least two-thirds of the young people enrolled in Michigan's secondary schools at present, this means vocational-technical training.

THE RESPONSIBILITY for education's most momentous failure rests, not with the students, but with the school system—and therefore with the state government that has the responsibility for providing and maintaining that system. In Michigan, state government has fallen far behind both local effort and federal aid in meeting that responsibility. Only three states spend more local funds for vocational education than Michigan, and only five receive larger amounts of federal aid for this purpose. Yet fully 22 states provided greater amount of state aid for vocational education than Michigan!

EVEN IF STATE government were to provide the needed funds, it would be a sheer impossibility to increase vocational programs, in Michigan nine times over, as the MAPEA "Task Force" report indicates is the true level of need, at any time within the immediate future. Even if the needed investment in equipment and space could be made immediately, only a fraction of the required number of competent vocational teachers are available. We cannot offer vocational-technical training to the equivalent of 131,395 full-time pupils overnight; but raising the present level of 15,000 "equated" vocational students to about 50,000 for the next school year would be a reasonable goal—if an all-out commitment were made and made immediately!

Every year, jobs for the unskilled become fewer, while the demand for trained persons is heightened. In the business world, new devices have greatly lessened the need for clerical help but have created a strong demand for men trained to service such devices. In industry, manufacturing processes are becoming ever more automatic and are sometimes programmed in their entirety by computers. Even in our homes and our daily lives, we are depending more and more upon various labor-saving machines, while men capable of maintaining and repairing those machines become ever more scarce. (No one who reads this will need to be reminded just how rare good automobile mechanics have become). In the last analysis, the labor force of our nation is still subjected to the same laws of supply and demand that govern most facets of our economy.

Our school system will be truly related to the society it serves only when students are taught what they really need to know in that society, including the skills most salable in today's job market. The price of offering meaningful vocational programs to some two-thirds of Michigan's secondary-school students will be high. But we will pay a far higher price, in welfare and even correctional-institution costs, if education's most momentous failure is countenanced and continued.
