A CHRISTMAS TREE IS LIGHTED IN ST. JOHNS

Choirs from the Grove Bible Church and the First Congregational Church provided choral music Friday night during the formal Christmas tree lighting ceremony in downtown St. Johns. A hundred or more other people joined in singing several of the traditional Yule songs. Christmas decorations along Clinton Avenue also sparkled with light.

Christmas season is here!

The Christmas season has arrived in St. Johns!

The city's Christmas tree was formally lit last Friday night, and this Friday Santa Claus himself will come to town for the first of a series of fact-finding visits with youngsters of the community.

Members of the St. Johns High School Band will lead Santa up Clinton Avenue on a float Friday night at 7 p.m., and then Santa will distribute candy canes to children on the courthouse lawn. Santa Claus will be back late Saturday morning to have lunch with youngsters in the Municipal Building auditorium. The St. Johns Jaycees will sponsor the "Lunch with Santa," charging 35 cents for the lunch. Proceeds above expenses will be earmarked for the new tot lot playground on the north side of the city, a project being undertaken by the Jaycees.

YOUNGSTERS WILL also have an opportunity to have a color Polaroid picture taken with Santa Claus.

The lunch will last from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. The Jaycees will then provide escort for the children who want to attend a free movie at the Clinton Theater, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. The film, "And Now, Miguel," starring Guy Stockwell and Michael Ansara, will be shown at 1 and 3 p.m.

After a brief restocking trip to the North Pole, Santa Claus will return to the Municipal Building auditorium where he will set up his headquarters for individual talks with youngsters from 3 to 5 p.m. He'll pass out candy canes to each one.

Santa's demanding schedule will be repeated on Saturdays, Dec. 9 and 16, when he'll meet with the children for lunch and then again in the afternoon. The Chamber will sponsor other free movies. They will be "Birds Do It," a color film starring Soupy Sales on Dec. 9, and "Island of the Blue Dolphins," a color movie on Dec. 16.

MEANWHILE, the Jaycees are continuing their request for entries in their home Christmas decorating contest. Prizes of $25, $15, and $10 will be offered in each of religious and non-religious categories.

Paul Maples is chairman of the contest. Entry blanks are being distributed this week to Eberhards, Krogers, Clinton County News, Capital Savings, Clinton National Bank and Central National Bank. Entry deadline is Dec. 11.

A strong appeal for blood donors is being made throughout the St. Johns area this week as final plans are made for the visit next Thursday, Dec. 7, of the Red Cross Bloodmobile.

The bloodmobile will be set up from noon to 6 p.m. in the Congregational Church basement. The local bloodmobile committee is hoping to collect a record 300 pints of blood.

The current record of 243 pints was set last summer.

"Operation Early Christmas" is the theme being promoted for this visit of the bloodmobile. Mrs. Mary Crosby, general chairman of the bloodmobile committee, pointed out that the Regional Red Cross Blood Center is entering a big holiday period when blood supplies are usually in great demand, and she said there could be no better gift to the people of the region than a pint of blood.

THE CLINTON NATIONAL Bank and Trust Co. and Capital Savings and Loan will provide red carnations for all women who donate blood. Mrs. Crosby pointed out that this is part of a cooperative effort among the banking institutions; Central National Bank is donating space in its building for a Red Cross canteen for Army inductees.

A contest among Federal-Mogul, Sealed Power and Saylor-Beall employees will continue at this bloodmobile. The contest started with the July bloodmobile in an effort to see which manufacturing plant could boast blood donations equal to 20 per cent of their employees. None of them reached the 20 per cent figure in July despite all contributing substantially to the record 243 pints of blood.

Mrs. John Paradise, telethon chairman for the bloodmobile visit, said volunteer callers will telephone recorded blood donors next Tuesday evening, starting about 7 p.m. The callers will be Janet Matter, Joan Hopko, Virgene Henning and Sharon Stone. They'll be calling from the General Telephone Co. offices, contributed by St. Johns District Manager Bill Graef.

A SPECIAL EFFORT is being made to attract donors in the 18-21 age group and from the school employees group because of the need to have first-time donors. Youth under 21 years of age need parents' consent, but this can be in the form of a note from home.

Posters calling attention to the bloodmobile are being distributed by Mrs. Edward Jozkowski, publicity and advertising chairman.

Mrs. Leonard Puetz, volunteer workers chairman and the fourth member of the bloodmobile committee, said the response for volunteer workers at the bloodmobile has been overwhelming, "and regrettably we've had to turn down some people who would like to work."

Carnegie course 'preview' Monday

A special preview meeting of the Dale Carnegie course will be held in St. Johns on Monday, Phil Kline, representative of the Dale Carnegie course, announced this week. The preview meeting will be held in the St. Johns Municipal Building auditorium (upstairs) Monday, Dec. 4, starting at 7 p.m.

"The purpose of the meeting is to give the people of this community an opportunity to see for themselves just how the Dale Carnegie Course, through its unique teaching methods, is able to accomplish so much in a short period of time," Kline said. He stated that those who attend the preview meeting will be taught a basic memory lesson that will probably amaze them at the memory power they actually possess. Kline said that every-one attending "will have a very informative and enjoyable evening with no cost or obligation, whatsoever."

As a public service to the community, the Dale Carnegie Course is being offered in St. Johns under sponsorship of the Clinton County News.

Further information about the preview meeting or the course can be obtained by writing the Clinton County News or telephoning 224-2361.

P-W to vote Saturday on millage for '68-69

PEWAMO-WESTPHALIA—School district voters will go to the polls this Saturday in the Pewamo-Westphalia district to decide on an operational request of 10 mills to help operate the school system during the 1968-69 school year.

For all practical purposes, the current proposal is unrelated to three-mill issues which were defeated by voters in June and August. Those proposals would have provided millage for this school year.

Three mills of extra voted operating millage expires in December this year, so the school board emphasized that the 10-mill proposal being voted on Saturday would actually be an increase of only seven mills.

The millage would raise approximately $93,000 — based on the school district's $9,314,717 state equalized valuation — and even that is short of offsetting the projected deficit for the 1968-69 school year.

Supt. William Steinke expects receipts during the 1968-69 year to be in the neighborhood of $281,901, with disbursements running about $380,499. That would be a deficit of $98,598, even more than what the 10 mills would handle.

THE FORESEEABLE expenditures for next year compare to a reduced budget of $315,333 this school year. It reflects professional salary increases, the need for three additional teachers and three more classrooms, two additional buses and a 2 per cent increase for inflationary reasons on all subjects except the teacher salaries.

The election Saturday will be held at the high school building on Clintonia Road at Centerline Road, and the polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

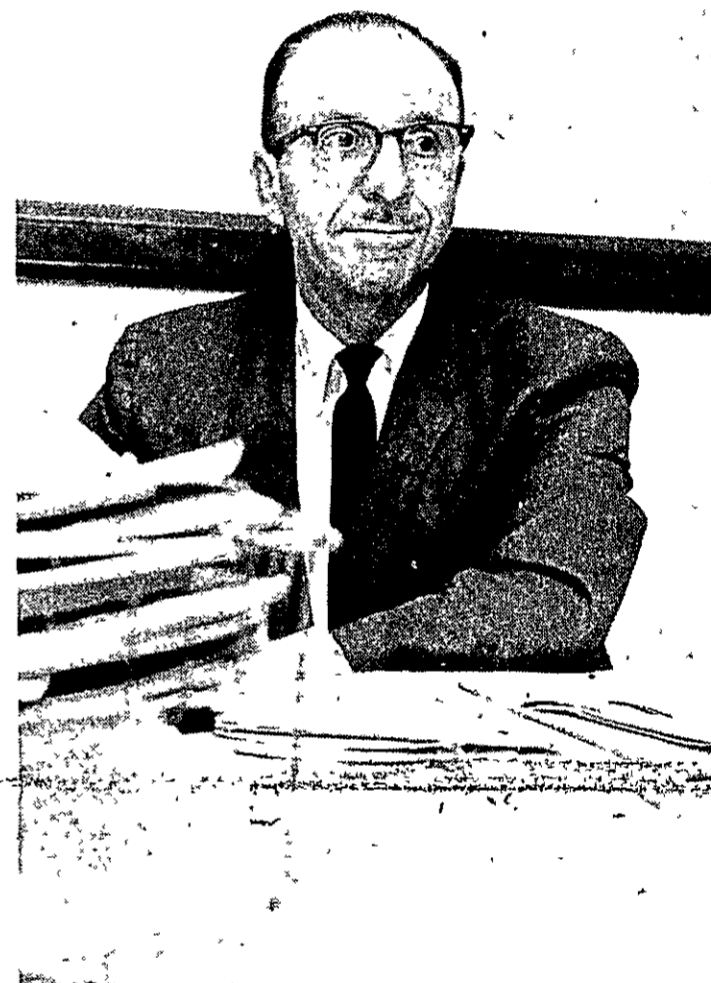

The Pewamo-Westphalia School District is facing an increase of about 70 students next year — well over a 10 per cent hike. The big part of the increase will result from the fact that St. Mary's School is dropping its first grade. Two extra rooms and two extra teachers will be needed by the public school district to handle that increase, increasing the first-grade size from two sections now to four sections next school year. Two sections of second grade will also be needed; this year there is only one second-grade section.

Total enrollment in the district this year is 642; it is expected to be more than 712 next year.

AS FAR AS CLASSROOM space is concerned, Steinke pointed out that "We're full now. We don't know yet how we'll get the extra rooms — maybe we'll have to use portables or rent some rooms somewhere — but we know we've got to have them. And we need three more teachers."

The school district's current and future problem has been outlined to a citizens committee, and so far they have helped the board by supporting the millage proposal and by setting up meetings with various groups so the problem can be outlined.

Monday night a public meeting was held at the high school, and Tuesday a meeting was scheduled at Matherton to explain the problems to people in the (See P-W SCHOOL, Page 3-A)

Judge Alba Wert

Judge Wert steps down after 14 years

St. Johns Municipal Judge Alba F. Wert retires from the bench today (Thursday) but when he leaves for Florida next week he'll leave behind some definite ideas on court procedures and on justice that may well set the pace for the court in the future.

Why is he retiring? "I just made up my mind I've had enough," he said Monday. "I've been in public office since 1942. It has not been without its rewards, though, but there have been sacrifices, too. I could have made a lot more law practice in the county at Ovid in 1935.

money, as far as making money is concerned, just practicing law rather than doing this. You just can't walk on everybody's toes without hurting somebody once in a while."

ROBERT WOOD, associate municipal judge, will fill Wert's boots for the time being. But Wert is concerned about the long-range office. "This job should take practically full time, and at $8,000 a year where are you going to find an attorney who is going to sacrifice his time for that kind of money?" The associate judge receives only $200 a month compensation.

Since returning from vacation last May the judge has made municipal court almost a full-time job. In the three years that (See JUDGE, Page 4-A) WHILE JUDGE WERT is retiring from 14 years as a judge, he's leaving a longer history in public life. In 1942 he went to work for the State Legislative Service Bureau, taking charge of research and indexing for the Legislature. He was also reading clerk in the House and Senate. "That was back before they had amplifiers," he recalls.

In 1949 Clinton County Prosecutor Clement Pung died, and at the end of the legislative session in June, Circuit Judge Paul Cash appointed Wert prosecutor. He served in that position through 1952, when he turned the reins over to Fred Lewis. He continued a private law practice for most of 1953 before being appointed justice of the peace that December.

Wert also served as circuit court commissioner for 14 years, starting shortly after opening his

THIS TIME LAST YEAR: 13

Mrs. Doyle Bancroft of 615 W. Sickles Street has a good view out the big glass windows on her back door at the construction of the new St. Johns High School. The Bancrofts' lot on Sickles is surrounded on three sides by land owned by the school district. The white figure on the glass is a paper acorn made by one of Mrs. Bancroft's daughters.

Construction boxed them in Bancrofts' 'isolation' over

The Doyle Bancroft family on West Sickles Street is enjoying a new-found freedom—the freedom to travel and to be visited. For the past two months the family has been all but isolated by construction work at the new high school in back of them and on Sickles Street in front of them.

Constant rain in recent weeks made a quagmire of the ground surrounding their lot.

But finally, about two weeks ago, they began to see the end of their isolation. Curb and gutter were completed on Sickles and the base for the street was dumped in and spread out to a point. Now the Bancrofts are able to drive to their driveway like other citizens.

THE BANCROFTS haven't exactly liked the situation, but they were able to maintain smiles about it and to quip, "Things will get better; they couldn't be much worse."

The Bancroft home is located on the south side of Sickles Street just east of the south extension of Morton Street at the southeast edge of the city park. The new high school property surrounds their 80 by 180-foot plot on three sides, and when it is finished the school driveway will circle around the back of the house.

"I imagine we'll get used to the traffic going in," Mrs. Bancroft said the other day. "Of course, it will be mild compared to the traffic of the trucks and everything coming in now. And it will be only twice a day when it will be heavy—coming in the morning and going in the afternoon."

Living so close to the construction, the Bancrofts were probably the first to feel the effects of the new high school. This spring and summer there was a dust problem.

"I COULDN'T HANG out clothes, or they would be dirtier when I brought them in that they were when I took them out," Mrs. Bancroft said.

And the dust came in the house. "I couldn't keep up with it for a few weeks," she remembered.

Then came the rains, and the dust problem melted into a mud problem. Sickles Street was closed off in August, and the Bancrofts had to make other arrangements for parking their car. They came in from the north, and "at times it was pretty bad."

In fact, Mrs. Bancroft said, it was so bad that she would often take the children (Cheryl, 10, and Brenda, 6) to school in the morning and then spend the day at her father's to avoid coming back home through the mud.

The Bancrofts parked on the west side of the house, but they had to get through the mud which the construction trucks worked up throughout the day. Only once did they get stuck, and that was when she pulled the car farther ahead than normal to leave space for her husband to park a pickup behind her.

CONSTRUCTION workers

Mrs. Doyle Bancroft takes a look at Sickles Street which, though far from complete, is now passable after two months of construction that practically isolated them from the rest of the city.

were having the same problems with their cars, and they gladly pulled her out.

The Bancrofts have had no problems with the workers. "They've been nice and have stayed off our lot. They try to be considerate in that way," Mrs. Bancroft said.

Watching the construction of the new high school has been interesting. Mrs. Bancroft has taken a few pictures, and they have been saving and studying the series of "High School Close-up" articles in the Clinton County News to help them figure out what each part of the school is.

"At first it looked like a puzzle," she said. "We tried to figure out what was what, but we couldn't really tell."

The Bancroft girls are interested in the construction, too. "They would like to go out and see what's going on, but it has been too muddy." They and Mrs. Bancroft never have visited the site while the workers are there, but Mr. Bancroft has wandered over to look things over on a couple of noon hours.

THE BANCROFTS' five-room house has been their home for seven years.

Now that they're "un-isolated" again, the Bancrofts will be moving "upline" a little more freely. "We never really had much trouble getting out," Mrs. Bancroft remarked in retrospect, "but nobody else would attempt to get in, so we never had many visitors."

Swanson, regional director of the Post Office Department, has announced that the Chicago Board of United States Civil Service Examiners is accepting applications to fill substitute clerk or substitute carrier positions in all first- or second-class post offices and sectional centers in Michigan.
A written test is required, and eligibility on this one examination could qualify a person for employment consideration at any first or second-class post office and sectional center throughout the state.
Swanson also stated that persons already on Michigan post office clerk-carrier registers may now extend their eligibility to Michigan post office registers of re-compete in this examination for the purpose of improving their score. Eligibles will be certified to the office for which they indicate a willingness to accept employment in the order of their score regardless of their residence.

BLOODMOBILE PLANS UNFOLD

Discussing final plans for the bloodmobile visit to St. Johns next Thursday are three members of the bloodmobile committee, Chairman Mrs. Mary Crosby, Mrs. Jane Idzkowski and Mrs. Wilma (Corky) Paradise. The fourth member of the committee, Mrs. Nancy Puetz, was unable to be present for the picture. (Related story on Page 1-A).

A COLUMN DEVOTED TO INTRODUCING NEW ST. JOHNS RESIDENTS

JAMES W. EWING and his wife Mary and their 16 months old daughter Sunday, are new residents of St. Johns, having recently moved here from Kalamazoo. They are living at 609 N. Morton, Lot 25. Mr. Ewing is employed as foreman for Henkel & McCoy.

EUGENE HARR and his wife Linda, who were married Oct. 20, are now living at 111 S. Oakland Street. Mr. Harr, formerly of Fowler, is employed at Oldsmobile, and Mrs. Harr, the former Linda Smith of St. Johns, is employed as a secretary for State Farm.

RICHARD W. FENBY, wife Barbara and daughter Kimberly, age 11 months, have moved to 224 N. Clinton Ave. from their former home on Francis Road, rural St. Johns. The Fenbys have purchased and operate the Chris' Party Store. Mr. Fenby is also a dynamometer operator in Engineering Lab. at Olds

St. Johns property owners will get a reduction of at least two mills in their property taxes next year—if the income tax law stays in effect.

The city commission passed an ordinance last Tuesday night providing for a minimum of two mills reduction in personal and real estate taxes. It would be nullified, however, if the income tax proposal is defeated in referendum.

Petitions for a referendum were filed with the city clerk last week. The council may act on the question at its next meeting Dec. 5. If the referendum is formally called, the income tax ordinance would be set aside and could not possibly take effect until July 1, next year.

IN OTHER BUSINESS last week the commission appointed seven persons to various boards and commissions of the city.

Walter Pierce and Ken Munger were reappointed to three-year terms, expiring in November 1970, on the board of appeals. Doug Pardee was renamed to the board of review for a three-year term ending in November 1970.

St. Clair Pardee was reappointed to the planning commission for a similar three-year term. Reappointed to a five-year term on the library board was Anthony Kuntz; his will expire in November 1972. Tony Tiedt and Mayor Charles Colletta were renamed to one-year terms on the county board of supervisors.

No appointment was made to fill the term of William Barber on the planning commission. His term expires this year, but he did not wish to be reappointed. No action was taken to fill vacancies of municipal judge and member of the library board.

THE COMMISSION also approved a traffic order closing Railroad Street at US-27 because of the poor visibility at the intersection. The street itself will be open to traffic, but the entrance and exit from it will be closed.

The commission approved new mercury vapor street lighting on Park Street near the city park. It will provide about 2 1/2 times more light.

Action on what to do with a city-owned house in the 100 block of Spring Street was proposed by the commission. Eugene Burnham of 904 E. Cass Street and William Karber, who owns property on North US-27, complained of excessive water charges the last quarter. They were told by the commission that studies of the charges would be made.

Catholics to drop 2 grades

POWLER — Holy Trinity Catholic School in Fowler will drop two grades from their school offering beginning with the 1969-70 school year.

Members of the church parish voted Sunday to go that route rather than expand the school. Four hundred ninety-five of the 575 adult members voting favored dropping the two grades.

Carl Koenigsnecht, chairman of the parish school committee, was quoted as saying "It would probably be the second and third grades that would be dropped. First grade students already attend public schools. Beginning with the 1969-70 year, the school would handle only grades four through eight."

The election was held this year, Koenigsnecht said, to allow planning and construction time if an expansion was desired by parish members. Since it isn't, it will give public school officials several years to plan.

Two other courses of action were offered to the parish in the election Sunday. One was to expand the present school, maintaining seven grades to accommodate an enrollment expected to rise to 440 by 1972 (it is 375 now); that proposal received 40 votes. The other proposal was to maintain the present seven grades and limit enrollment, forcing transfer of some of the students to the public schools; 36 persons favored that course of action.

Koenigsnecht said the Holy Trinity Parish will apply tonight (Thursday) to the board of education for approval of dropping the two grades.

P-W school millage vote Dec. 2

"At our meetings with the public, the question almost always comes up about what will happen if the millage issue fails," Steinke commented last week. "I think as a general statement, we'd have to say it would mean that our educational program and staff would have to be cut."

"WE THINK WE HAVE a good basic educational program now," he went on. "We have tried to cut our class sizes in recent years. We have no fancy frills but there are some things we'd like but just don't have. We are accredited by the University of Michigan, and they have standards to meet, and I suppose that any cuts we might have to make would hurt our accreditation."

A defeat of the millage issue Saturday would likely also result in a reduction of state school aid for the 1968-69 school year—perhaps up to $30,000, Steinke explained that the state law requires school districts to levy at least 10 mills for operational purposes in order to get full state aid. If the proposed millage issue is defeated, the district would then have only 8.2 mills which are allocated. State aid would be cut back proportionately.

The projected deficit for next year doesn't even take into consideration this loss of state aid.

THE PROPOSED 10 mills would apply only to the operation of the school in 1968-69 and would not apply to the deficit which the school will operate under this year following the two rejections by voters last summer. That deficit—expected to be about $27,000 now—will have to be erased in some other manner.

The district got some increase in state aid this year, but it only offset a reduction in school allocated millage (a loss of $2,794 to the P-W district) and a reduction in personal property valuation of $247,590 (a loss of $2,773 to the district), leaving the district only about $500 ahead.

Plan dinner for area police

An area-wide police recognition luncheon will be held at the Lansing Civic Center at noon next Thursday, Dec. 7, and police from Clinton County are being asked to participate in the program.

Tax information meeting set

PEWAMO-WESTPHALIA—County and township property taxes, school taxes and state and federal income taxes will be discussed next Monday evening, Dec. 4, at the Pewamo-Westphalia High School building.

The meeting will start at 8 p.m. P-W School Board President Walter Kellen, Westphalia Township Supervisor Walter Thelen and income tax specialist Earl Haas will make presentations and be available to answer questions.

Police organizations in the tri-county area being asked to participate include the Clinton County Sheriff's Department, and police departments of DeWitt, St. Johns and DeWitt Township.

The purpose of the program, according to the Chamber of Commerce of Greater Lansing, is to promote the concept of law and order and to give recognition to law enforcement officers.

Police organizations in the tri-county area being asked to participate include the Clinton County Sheriff's Department, and police departments of DeWitt, St. Johns and DeWitt Township. Featured speaker will be Quinn Tamm, executive director of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, and the former assistant director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Special awards will be presented to outstanding police officers during the program.

Catholics to drop 2 grades

POWLER — Holy Trinity Catholic School in Fowler will drop two grades from their school offering beginning with the 1969-70 school year.

Members of the church parish voted Sunday to go that route rather than expand the school. Four hundred ninety-five of the 575 adult members voting favored dropping the two grades.

Carl Koenigsnecht, chairman of the parish school committee, was quoted as saying "It would probably be the second and third grades that would be dropped. First grade students already attend public schools. Beginning with the 1969-70 year, the school would handle only grades four through eight."

The election was held this year, Koenigsnecht said, to allow planning and construction time if an expansion was desired by parish members. Since it isn't, it will give public school officials several years to plan.

Two other courses of action were offered to the parish in the election Sunday. One was to expand the present school, maintaining seven grades to accommodate an enrollment expected to rise to 440 by 1972 (it is 375 now); that proposal received 40 votes. The other proposal was to maintain the present seven grades and limit enrollment, forcing transfer of some of the students to the public schools; 36 persons favored that course of action.

Koenigsnecht said the Holy Trinity Parish will apply tonight (Thursday) to the board of education for approval of dropping the two grades.

Judge Wert steps down

(Continued from Page 1-A) the court has been in existence it has been a busy place. There have been 3,833 criminal cases for state law violations, 4,002 criminal cases for city and village violations and about 1,500 civil judgments and garnishments.

Judge Wert is firm in his ideas about justice. "I've never pulled punches," he said. "I don't care who comes down here; I wouldn't do it. As long as I've been judge I've insisted that everybody be treated the same."

"You won't see one person come down for a red light and pay $5 and another pay $10 and another pay $15, unless there was an accident or another reason. Everybody paid the same. We have a table and we stick to it."

HE THINKS A STIFF fine is needed in today's world when a fine is warranted.

"I think from experience over a period of years that the tendency today is that if you just slap somebody on the wrist, especially these younger kids, the parents pay it and it doesn't mean a dog gone thing to them," the judge said. "It used to be that $5 or $10 was a lot of money to a high school kid; now it doesn't mean a thing. And they'll go right out and do it over again."

"In other words, it has been my theory that, as far as speeding or other traffic offenses is concerned, that you've got to hurt them in the pocketbook before it's going to do any correcting. That's been my experience and that's the way it has turned out."

Judge Wert enthusiastically backed the plan for mandatory jail sentences for youths convicted of minor in possession of beer offenses, and he thinks the jail term has had a beneficial effect.

"We were having down there (in court) on Monday mornings as high as eight and 10 minor in possession cases," he recalled. "After we started putting this mandatory jail sentence in, it cut down, considerably. Their parents can't go up and pay that. They've got to sit it out themselves. That's personal. I think it's had its desired effect."

Judge Wert has always been a proponent of prompt justice, and his court calendar is as up-to-date as possible. "We don't get behind on civil cases," he said. "We set dates, and they either get in here or we dismiss them." In some instances he will allow adjournments when both sides are negotiating a settlement, but the adjourned trial is set far enough in advance that it doesn't hinder his schedule and organization of court procedures.

"Some mornings we call as many as 30 cases and either set trial, take judgment or dismiss them."

Criminal cases are a little different, and there is a backlog on those in municipal court. "We wouldn't be behind here if we could get the prosecutors in here." He pointed out that most prosecutors are spending time on private practice, too, and the situation is general all over the state.

"When I took over as prosecutor back in 1949 I had 39 cases on the docket," he remembered. "But after the June term was over I had the calendar clean, and we never had anything from then on except current cases. We tried them just as soon as they came up."

Judge Wert is a firm man, but he's not without humor himself, and he's quick to recognize humor and to remember it. He recalled one incident "where I saw Paul Cash almost fall off the bench in circuit court. That was humorous."

Wert was prosecutor at the time: A fellow was charged with a felony, pleaded not guilty, wanted a jury trial and was going to try it himself. Wert said the jury was selected and he then presented the people's case.

"The judge told this fellow he had a right to make an opening statement if he wanted to and to swear witnesses. This fellow got up and said, 'Your honor, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, I don't know what to say. Everything these witnesses have said here today is the truth.'"

JUDGE WERT WAS ASKED if there are many persons who prefer to handle their own defense in a criminal case, rather than hire an attorney. "Unfortunately yes, and very seldom do they stand a chance," he replied. "We've had some high school kids come in here with a jury, though, and get acquitted, strange as it may seem. They try their own case. Others come in and bollix their case up, and there isn't anything the judge can do."

Judge Wert isn't sold on the jury system of justice. "A lot of people don't agree with me and some judges don't agree with me, but I'll still say after 14 years on the bench that there's no justice in a jury." He said he knew a lot of innocent people were judged guilty and a lot of guilty people have been let off by sympathetic juries. But he said it balances out in the long run.

"They haven't found anything yet, they claim, that's better than the jury system."

He doesn't think the jury system will ever be replaced.

Judge Wert does feel the jury system is better under the municipal court set-up than in the justice of the peace court. "The judge does, by statutory enactment, have control of the law as far as the jury is concerned, the same as you would in a circuit case. In a justice court case the jury is the sole judge of both the law and the facts. As a JP I used to charge a jury as to what the law was, but I still had to tell them they were judge of the law and the facts."

... BUT IN MUNICIPAL court the judge tells them what the law is and that's the law; the jury is only the judge of the fact and applies the law as you give it. As far as the control of the law is concerned you do have more authority and more responsibility than you do in JP court. It's much better for the public."

Judge Wert is a native of Clinton County, having been born in Ovid Township and graduated from Laingsburg schools as a senior in 1927. That fall he enrolled in the Detroit College of Law and graduated in June 1931. He was admitted to the bar March 3, 1933, and opened up a practice in Ovid the day after Memorial Day in 1935.

In 1945 he brought his family to St. Johns. He moved his law practice here two years earlier and was over the Western Auto store until 1951 when he moved above Parr's Drug Store. When General Telephone Co. moved to its present building, Wert bought the old telephone office at 115 E. Walker and moved his office there.

He and Mrs Wert presently have an apartment above the office. They have two married sons, James of St. Johns and Richard of Ypsilanti.

HE HAS HELD NUMEROUS Masonic offices and is past master of Ovid Lodge 127, F & AM, past high priest of RAM Lodge No. 13 at Ovid, and past prelate of the St. Johns Commandery No. 24. He became a member of the Lions Club here shortly after its organization and served as its second president. He is active in the affairs of the First Congregational Church.

The enormity of the forest can make a single tree seem insignificant—unless one takes the time to stop and look more closely. At Osgood Funeral Home, the myriad of things which must be done for the bereaved family never causes us to overlook the fact that each individual detail—no matter how small—is important and deserves our fullest attention.

Fowler player wants to repeat as winner

Free throw award offered again

Fowler's Joe Koenigsnecht wants to repeat as the winner of the Clinton County News "Award for Proficiency in Free Throw Shooting."

He won the award last year by making 51 free throws out of 61 attempts—a sparkling percentage of .8360, improving on a mark like that will be hard, but Koenigsnecht wants to do it as insurance for winning the trophy again this year.

This is the second year the trophy will be awarded. It is a handsome traveling plaque, bearing a stand-out figure of a basketball player. It will be engraved with the name and school of the player who wins the contest.

All varsity basketball players at St. Johns, Bath, Fowler, DeWitt, Pewamo-Westphalia, Fulton, Ashley, Ovid-Elsie and Laingsburg high schools are eligible. To be considered for the prize, however, they must shoot at least 40 free throw attempts. Percentages will be figured to four decimal places in determining the winner.

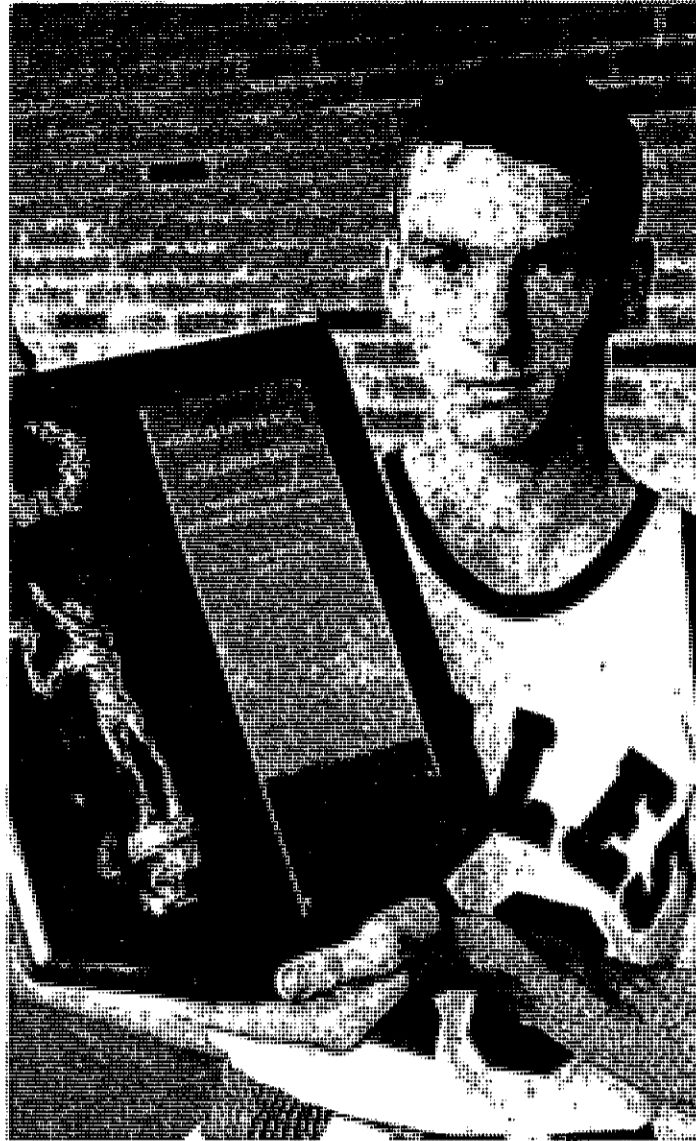

Besides having his name engraved on the traveling plaque, the winner will receive a smaller engraved trophy for him to keep.

The Clinton County News staff—longtime basketball fans for both news coverage purposes and for strictly enjoyment—has always recognized the importance of the free throw to the game of basketball. Free throws have won many basketball games, and missed free throws have lost many.

The young man who can step to the free throw line with several thousand eyes on him and consistently put the ball through the hoop 15 feet away is a valuable player not only as a scorer but as a morale builder. The Clinton County News seeks to honor the Clinton area high school player who can make the free throw more often than anyone else.

All regular season and Christmas tournament games will count. A story will be printed at about the half-way point in the season to keep readers abreast of the top free throw shooters at that point and how they are doing.

Joe Koenigsnecht of Fowler High School won the Clinton County News free throw shooting trophy last year and wants to win it back again this year.

Golden Gloves get new training quarters here

Golden Gloves in St. Johns are getting new training quarters! Arrangements have been made to rent the former Kitchenette building at the corner of Clinton Avenue and Railroad Street, and a training gymnasium will be set up there under the auspices of the local Golden Gloves committee. Work was to start Wednesday night.

The building will provide the Golden Gloves boxers with about three times the amount of room they had in their previous quarters above the fire hall. There will also be shower stalls available.

Ed Schmitt, a member of the Golden Gloves committee, said a permanent boxing ring will be installed and other equipment will be added as possible. It is hoped that expenses can be met by proceeds from the annual boxing exhibition here.

Trainer Wayne Beaufore of the Golden Gloves team issued a call to all Golden Gloves boxers to start training early next month in preparation for the Golden Gloves tournament in February. The new training quarters will be open from 7 to 10 p.m. every night through tournament time and possibly three nights a week after that.

Schmitt said the new training quarters will be supervised by adult members of the committee, and it is hoped a governing body can be set up among the youths involved in the use of the building.

Adults who want to do some training or just keep in shape are also encouraged to use the new quarters, Schmitt said.

Chances have danger signs written all over them, but still find millions of takers.

Bath loses opening game 79-61

Perry slid by Bath last Friday night as the Bees lost their basketball season opener 79-61. Rebounding seemed to be the one single element that hampered Bath, as they only retrieved 23 defensive rebounds to Perry's 38.

At the half Perry led 34-33 but by the third quarter they widened the gap 50 to 44. Perry then had a hot fourth quarter, scoring 29 points to Bath's 17.

The outstanding rebounder for Bath was Randy Tucker and high point men included Tucker, with 15 points, Mike Woodruff with 12, and Merlin Truman with 11. Greg Colby was the leading scorer for Perry, racking up 27 points.

Height lacking, Redwings to rely on speed, ability

Redwing Coach Bill Swears will be looking at another short season this year as he prepares his cagers for the opening against Ovid-Elsie this Friday at 7:00 P.M. The short is for his players, for the Redwings return again this year with a shortage of height. With only four men over six feet and two of these with no varsity experience, Swears is still very optimistic about the coming season.

THE REDWINGS have eight players returning from last year's squad, five lettermen in John Salemi, Don Palmer, Steve Gregory, Jon Berkhausen and Terry Maier. Berkhausen and Maier are juniors; the others seniors. Three other seniors, Jay Nobis, Bob Cochran and Mike McKay are returning, but they did not play enough last year to earn a letter.

Six JV players round out Swears' squad. They are juniors Craig Bartholomew, Mike Green, Dick Henderson, Dick Rehmann and sophomores Tim Durner and Dave Gaffney.

THE REDWING starting five for the Ovid-Elsie game will in all probability be the five returning lettermen. John Salemi (5-9) and Terry Maier (5-9) at the guards, Don Palmer (5-11) and Jon Berkhausen (6) at the forwards and Steve Gregory (6-1) at center. Salemi and Maier played a lot last year and will be filling in the places vacated by Gary Boyce and Randy Humphrey.

Palmer finished the season last year playing very well and if he can start the same place he left off, could be very helpful to the team. Berkhausen has grown an inch and put on 25 pounds which should be very helpful in his forward spot.

GREGORY WILL BE the tallest of the first five, but his ability to be of help to the team will depend upon the condition of a bad knee, which has been hindering him some in practice. If his knee improves he should give the Wings needed help in the pivot spot.

Swears has been very pleased with the progress of junior Dick Rehmann. Rehmann at 6-6 is the tallest man on the squad and if he continues to develop will make a big difference in the Redwing height problem. Sophomore Dave Gaffney (5-10) has been switched from forward to guard and his ability should give the squad more depth.

A WEEK AGO THE Redwings had a three-way scrimmage with St. Louis and Mt. Pleasant Sacred Heart. Swears said he was not happy with the results. "We made too many mistakes and did not look as good as I had hoped," Swears said. "And, without the height, our defense could be a little rough."

Outside of the West Central League, the Redwings play two non-conference games. These will be Ovid-Elsie which has four of their five starters back from last year. This gives the Marauders an excellent nucleus for the coming year. The other non-conference foe for the Redwings will be Chesaning, which is said to be loaded with talent and is favored to win their league.

IN THE WEST Central League it seems to be Lakewood and Ionia in the favored position. Both have good height and experience to help in the run for the league crown. At Alma, Coach Peters is very optimistic with his chance and states that his team is loaded. This could give Alma a good chance at the title.

The darkhorse in the league seems to be Charlotte. With Rochester and Lightly as a nucleus, Charlotte could be the team to watch. Hastings has good possibilities with three lettermen back and height to go with it, while Grand Ledge was probably hurt the most by graduation last June. Last year the Comets were mostly seniors, thus it seems that it will be a rebuilding year in Grand Ledge.

For the Redwings, the chances are good if their young players continue to develop, and if the team can stay healthy. The Wings have some fine shooters, but it will all boil down to what they can do without the height on defense.

Fowler opener on Saturday

Car, bus and pedestrian traffic, though jammed together for a few minutes, does not produce any big problems at St. Johns High School.

High school vehicle traffic 'not a real problem here'

By MIKE GALVACH News Staff Writer

Is there a traffic problem around Rodney B. Wilson at noon or at 3:30 when school is released? When it rains is there traffic congestion? These and other possible traffic problems were answered during a recent interview with Dwayne Wirick, assistant principal at Rodney B. Wilson High School. An average of about 100 cars are in the parking lot each school day. On a fair-weather day it usually takes about 10 to 15 minutes to clear the school parking lot. When it rains, of course, there will be more traffic, because more students will drive when the weather is bad and more parents will come and pick up their children. But Wirick doesn't feel this is any problem at all.

"THE STUDENTS are good drivers and they rarely create any traffic problems," he said. "And even when the weather is foul our school just isn't large enough to cause any traffic congestion problem to speak of." There is more congestion after school around 3:30 than at noon. Also there is more of a problem in front of the school than in back, because just before 3:30 the buses all line up in front plus some in the back. "When the bell rings and the students pile out to go home things are hectic, but only for a moment, said Wirick. "The buses soon leave and in a short time everything is back to normal." At noon things are quite peaceful, for only those students showing a good reason to drive during this time are permitted to leave the parking lot.

By JOAN KRAMER P-W High

PEWAMO - WESTPHALIA — A short Thanksgiving vacation was welcomed by the P-W students on Wednesday. After the first long nine-weeks of school, there was much to be thankful for. The turkey given away by the cheerleaders was won by Jack Vance. They are working hard this year to send three varsity cheerleaders to USCA camp next summer.

Margie Kellen, a senior at P-W, has been chosen as P-W's DAR representative. She is the daughter of Mr and Mrs Leon Kellen of Westphalia.

The Pirates' first basketball game is on Dec. 5. This is a non-league game at Howard City. The first home game is on Dec. 8, with the Pirates hosting the Potteryville Vikings. The junior class is sponsoring a dance after the P-W vs Potteryville encounter. A group known as The Conspiracy will play. The doors will close at 10:30. The Future Homemakers of America totaled their earnings from their "trick or treating" for UNICEF and collected a grand total of $114.40. This is an all time record for this campaign. Last year $75 was collected for the United Nations International Children's Education Fund. They wish to thank everyone who donated to this worthy cause.

Forty-five seniors took part in the Michigan Competitive Scholarship Test on Nov. 11. Many seniors took the test at Rodney B. Wilson High School in St. Johns, with the remaining taking it at Michigan State.

2 county drivers 'get their deer'

At least two motorists "got their deer" in Clinton County during the past week when their cars struck and killed them. Storm R. McNall of 6002 W. Price Road hit a deer Nov. 21 on Price Road a half-mile west of Airport Road, and Sunday afternoon Charles F. Yahr, 44, of Eagle was driving a car on I-96 west of Grand River Avenue when a doe ran into the side of his auto.

Athletic teams honored

By CATHY ROBINSON Ovid-Elsie High

OVID-ELSIE—On Nov. 16, the Athletic Department honored the various teams of O-E at the fall sports banquet.

Gene Stouffer was the Master of Ceremonies. He talked about the sports happenings so far this year. After the dinner was completed, each player introduced his parents to the other people. Next Miss Benedict introduced the varsity and JV cheerleaders.

Mr Gelger, the cross country coach, talked about the year. He was presented a gift by the team captain. Then he gave out the inserts and letters.

Mr Hope, the head Junior varsity coach, stated, "We should be doctors instead of coaches" because of all the numerous injuries his team suffered this year. Despite their handicap they came out with a fine 6-2 record for the season.

Mr O'Donnell, head coach, gave out the awards to the senior members of the varsity squad. In conclusion he stated that the seniors would leave a big hole to be filled next year, but he insisted he would try.

After the program everyone went to the auditorium to watch films of the O-E vs Perry game. WHO WERE THE girls dressed up in red and white outfits Tuesday, Nov. 21? They were the new FHA members to be initiated that evening. Sandy Allen, president, opened the ceremony by the lighting of the candles. After the meeting the old members had stunts for the new FHAers to perform. The task used most frequently was pushing a peanut across the floor with their nose.

Games followed and all members participated. Refreshments were served at the end of the evening.

Diane Kunkel, Janet Strohota and Nancy Leland were in charge of games. Marlene Seconsky took care of refreshments. There were 17 new members added to the 55 old members.

2 bruised in 1 of 2 crashes

Only two weekend accidents were reported by the Clinton County Sheriff's Office, but minor injuries resulted from one of them.

That was a one-car accident on US-27 just south of Lansing Street at the north edge of St. Johns. A car driven by Christy L. Wierfel, 18, of Traverse City swerved to avoid a car pulling off Lansing and rolled over on the median.

Miss Wierfel and a passenger, SvDesh M. Duggal, 29, of East Lansing suffered bruises. The accident occurred about 5:40 p.m. Sunday.

A car and a pick-up truck pulling a wagon collided on M-21 at Krepps Road Saturday afternoon, but no one was hurt. The truck was driven by Glenn Barnhart, 67, of R-6, St. Johns, who was making a left turn onto south Krepps Road. The truck was struck in the left side by a car driven by James B. Isaac, 53, of Warfen, who had started to pass, not seeing Barnhart's turn signals.

Pre-holiday crashes hurt 1 slightly

Three pre-Thanksgiving accidents occurred in Clinton County last Wednesday, with one of them resulting in reported minor injuries to one of the drivers.

About 5:55 p.m., Mrs Leona Witgen of 3610 Westphalia Street Westphalia, was making a right turn onto Wacoosta Road from eastbound M-21 when her car was struck in the rear by one driven by Frederick E. Rowell, 60, of R-2, St. Johns.

Mrs Witgen complained of pains as a result of the accident. Rowell was ticketed by sheriff's officers for failure to have his vehicle under control.

The series of accidents last Wednesday started at 8:15 a.m. in Fowler when a school bus driven by Verona B. Pettit of 3205 Main Street, Fowler, and a car driven by Daniel F. Feldpausch of Fowler collided at the intersection of Maple and Ionia streets. The bus was going east on Ionia and Feldpausch was on Maple. No one was hurt.

About 3:05 p.m. three cars were involved in a chain-reaction rear-end collision on US-27 at Hyde Road. The No. 1 car was driven by Robert I. Crocker, 20, of Niles, who reported to sheriff's officers that he slowed so a vehicle ahead of him could make a left turn.

When he did, an auto driven by Carl E. Boals, 49, of Colon, hit the rear of his car, and then an auto driven by Alvin W. Woodrow, 26, of Alma hit the back of Boals' car. No one was hurt.

Vandals burn 2 cars along road

Two automobiles were set afire early Thanksgiving morning after their tires were slashed by vandals. The incidents occurred about 15 minutes apart along M-21 on either side of St. Johns.

About 12:15 a.m. last Thursday St. Johns firemen were dispatched to the first car fire on M-21 east of Chandler Road. A car owned by Quentin Clemic of Alpena and abandoned along the road earlier in the week was torched by the vandals after they had slashed the tires.

The fire trucks weren't even back in the fire barn before the second alarm came in at 12:30. In that case, the auto belonged to Merl McNadd of Pewamo, who left his car along M-21 just west of Francis Road while he worked in Lansing. The tires were slashed and the car set afire again.

Last week we said goodbye to Mr Vo Quang Tam, national 4-H leader of Viet Nam, as he left for the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. I'm sure those people who had the opportunity to talk with him were impressed by his willingness to learn all he could about our 4-H youth program and that he could share with his people when he returned. He expressed many ideas that he picked up in Michigan he would try to work into the 4-H program there. We certainly want to wish him the best of luck in his work.

Charlie's Gang 4-H Club will be sponsoring a roller skating party on Tuesday, Dec. 12, at the Ranch Roller Rink in St. Johns from 7 to 10 p.m. All 4-H members are invited to attend this skating party. The Nimble Fingers 4-H Club members have elected Sandy McQueen for their president during the winter program. Other officers include: Vice President Beth Ann Doyle; Secretary Julie Pung; Treasurer Cheryl Conley; Reporter Tom Moldenhauer; Recreational Leaders Carol Doyle and Lennie Kanaski.

The club packed and sent a Christmas box for Gary Neller and his platoon of 12 medics in Viet Nam. Gary is a former 4-H member from the St. Johns area. Teri McQueen will serve as chairman of the club's community service project. The officers will attend an officers training conference Dec. 18 in St. Johns.

The Prairie 4-H Club members have drawn names for their Christmas exchange. The members are busy working on their various projects.

The Knit 'N' Stitch 4-H Club members have elected the following officers: President Norma Jean Brya; Vice President Patricia Gower; Secretary Connie Couser; Treasurer Sharon Bappert; News Reporter Linda Hogen; and Recreation Leader Ruth Ann Brya. The mothers were guests at the meeting. The members chose their patterns and discussed the various fabrics that might be used in their projects.

The Jolly Knitters 4-H Club members have planned a gift exchange for their next meeting on Dec. 23. The members were assigned a special knitting stitch or problem to demonstrate at their January meeting. The club discussed a roller skating party in the near future. Congressman Charles E. Chamberlain (R-Mich. 6th District), a member of the U.S. delegation to the North Atlantic Assembly meeting in Brussels, has called on members of the alliance to stop Free World trade with North Viet Nam and to consider amending their laws to insure that ships under their registry do not carry goods to aid the Hanoi regime. Said Rep. Chamberlain: "Let us make no mistake about it; every NATO ship that puts cargo on the docks of North Viet Nam is helping the enemies of freedom."

completed yet this fall. The section of road being worked on is the mile south from Price Road to Green Road. There is considerable muck land in the area, and it is taking large quantities of sand and gravel to build up a proper base for the new road. Chandler Road from Alward to Round Lake road will also have the sand and gravel base completed soon, weather permitting, and the section of Parks Road between Wacousta and Forest Hill roads will also hopefully be done insofar as sand and gravel hauling in concerned. Colony Road west of Wright Road has had the sand and gravel base phase completed and it is scheduled for completion this next year, providing adjacent drainage problems are solved by then.

Considerable progress was made during the good weather this past week in grading many of the rougher local roads and filling bad holes with gravel. This morning two crews are out patching holes in black top roads. Given a few breaks weatherwise, our crews might just get these roads in passable condition yet before winter really sets in.

A little more progress was made, too, these past two weeks in getting rid of dead elms in the western section of the county. This winter a good deal more progress should be made with this project, but it is a slow job at best, for the total number of trees to be removed is a staggering figure. The commission crews will give priority in cutting trees for any property owner who will dispose of them himself once they are felled. This is for trees in the road right of way of course.

Federal financial help will be phased out

Future of special services team is spring decision

By LOWELL G. RINKER Editor

Next spring the St. Johns School Board likely will be asked to study the results of the first year of a pilot program for special services to students and then decide whether to spend some money to continue it for another year or more.

The program is a team approach to special services, involving an elementary counselor (Ralph Conine), a school social worker (George Janzen), school psychologist (Pat Clifford), school nurse (Mrs Gertrude Buehler), and a director of the whole program (John Furry).

This is the first year of the program, and as such it isn't costing the taxpayers of the district anything—at least directly. The federal government is paying the entire cost of the first year of the pilot program, and that amounts to $51,000.

The team approach to special services is set up on a three-year basis, but the district will have to apply to the federal government for its funds each year. But if the program is to continue as a permanent part of the educational offering of the school district, the district itself will have to take a prominent part in the cost factor.

"OVER THE THREE YEARS WE HAVE to phase out the program from federal monies," Director Furry said, "which means the school district itself would have to furnish money to go ahead. If it doesn't, then after the federal funds are gone the program is kaput."

As with any program, the first year is the most expensive. The $51,000 grant which the school district received last summer for this program is paying not only for the salaries of the team members but also for the mobile classroom unit which the team uses for its office and for other equipment and supplies necessary. Furry estimates between $7,000 and $8,000 is invested in equipment.

Most of the members of the team are only employed part-time for this particular program. The elementary guidance counselor is the only full-time position.

Future years for the program—if there are to be future years—won't cost so much, but after the third year the cost would be borne entirely by the school district. And it could be an expanded program by then, too. Although it is too early yet to tell whether the team approach will be entirely satisfactory and worth while, some "better ideas" are already turning up.

"We've already realized a weakness in our program by not having included a part-time substitute teacher," Furry said. "She could be utilized as an assistant to the teachers and go around to various rooms and help the teacher with problems, such as a slow child or a gifted child. She could be there to help the teacher provide more individual attention."

THE PROGRAM'S FACILITIES RIGHT now are sufficient to add team members, and this would most surely have to be done if the program is expanded to include other schools; right now the team approach program is only for Central School elementary grades and East Essex School.

"Our long-range plans are to expand the program in the number of people involved and other services and other schools in the district. This is going to take money, and the more we expand into other schools, the more money is going to be needed for personnel to service these schools."

Despite the early hour of the program, Furry feels there is a "very definite need" for this team approach to special services. "The day is going to come, whether in one or two years, when there will be an elementary guidance program in each of the elementary schools—regardless of whether the team approach is used or not. This is more or less setting the stage, showing people there is a need here."

It is too early yet to make any firm commitments about the future of the program. "What is going to have to be done is to evaluate the program toward the end of the year," Furry said. "This will have to take the form of simply asking the people of the district involved, 'Has this been beneficial to you?' If it has, this will be one indication they want it."

EXPLAINING THE PROGRAM to the residents of the district is one thing Furry and his staff have been busy doing. Furry and Conine have been to PTA meetings at Central School twice; Furry presented a program on the aims of the special program, and Conine answered questions about it from the PTA on another occasion. Furry also met once with the East Essex parents group and was scheduled to go back Oct. 26, but snow cancelled that meeting.

Some of these points are being stressed in contacts with parents:

"We're not just in the business, so to speak, of working with problem children, and we don't want to give that impression to anybody. We feel that we have the services that will be just as beneficial to the 'normal child'—the one who isn't displaying any anti-social behavior and who is achieving but maybe could be achieving more and getting more out of his education. We feel we have an opportunity to help them just as well as the child who is experiencing growing pains."

"One of the sad things in education today is that we have almost gone overboard in our attempts to do something for the underprivileged child, the mentally retarded child, the handicapped child, and we have lost sight of the gifted child. He doesn't get the individual attention he needs because he can do the work that is demanded of him."

"There is more to education than just doing the work that is demanded of him; we have an obligation to develop the child—if we believe in the philosophy we expound that we want to educate the child to the fullest possible extent of his capability. That means every child—the one who is gifted as well as the one who is having difficulty."

"THIS IS PART OF THE DESIGN of the program. We don't know how much we are going to be able to work with the gifted child or be called on . . ."

"Here is a point: As a team we are not forcing ourselves on anybody; we want to be asked to help. After all the teacher is the most important person in the classroom situation, and if we don't get called upon to help them or they don't feel they need any help, we're not going to go in."

But members of the team do get called in "Sometimes a particular social event takes place which might engender a lot of discussion," Furry said, "such as the topic how to get along with people. I think an elementary guidance counselor has an excellent opportunity to just discuss this topic."

"It's surprising how many kids want to. Things like this bother a child. A child who goes into a classroom and isn't well liked by his fellow students . . . well, this is going to seriously affect the child's growth."

"AND KIDS OF THIS AGE CAN BE awfully mean to each other and not really be consciously knowing how mean they are and how it's affecting them. Topics like this are excellent, and the elementary guidance counselor can go into the classroom and maybe discuss a unit on how to get along with people."

"The teacher, in the meantime, can observe and watch the reaction of the children in this different situation. By so doing, she is bound to get little more insight into her children through this observing."

By the same token, such discussion might develop some good images of the child in himself. "A child who has a good image of himself has a good feeling of his own personal worth," Furry pointed out. "He has confidence in himself; he is going to succeed."

"The child, conversely, who has a poor image of himself, or a negative self-concept, is the guy who will continually say 'I can't do this' and won't do it."

Furry feels the team approach to finding out such problems the children have might be the best approach. That's why the district applied for the federal grant to develop the team approach; it is a pilot program, because there has never been one quite like it.

By next spring enough experiences and enough information may be known about this type of approach that a decision can be made concerning the future of the team approach to special services. According to Furry, the teachers at the two schools involved are accepting the program well, and the parents of children involved seem to be taking an interest.

"Let's talk dry cleaning"

by Dana Antes

Velveteen and corduroy are being used rather extensively for both dress and leisure clothes—and with good reason. Both give long wear, are dry-cleanable, and offer plenty of warmth on cold days and evenings.

Velveteen is generally an all-cotton pile fabric in which the weft threads form the pile. The pile is somewhat lower than in silk and regulation velvets. Corduroy is an all-cotton velvet with the pile appearing in vertical ridges.

As a rule, velveteen and corduroy are as susceptible to pile removal during cleaning as silk velvets, and they require special cleaning care and finishing techniques. We advise you to examine the labels on garments made of these materials before buying them to make sure they have been treated to prevent shrinkage. As with velvets, the pile threads of velveteen and corduroy often become badly crushed and/or matted during wear and must be straightened and smoothed out when cleaned.

We've built our business on service, and our service takes many forms: Prompt pickup and delivery; quick service when you need it; reliability and dependability; and special care to treat every article you send us—silks, velvets, corduroys and all synthetic fabrics—with the newest and safest scientific methods.

Here's a woman's view—and plans—for that deer hunting trophy

By HELEN MEACH Extension Home Economist

How many successful deer hunters have you seen this week? Or have you joined the "counting deer on the cars" game as you drive the highway?

However you play the mighty deer slayer game, surely you'll agree that gone are the days when venison was regarded as a staple meat item.

Today venison is shot for a hunter's trophy primarily or for some biological reason such as to keep the herd balanced with the food supply. It becomes human food only after it has been displayed a year and bragged on till no one will listen any longer. It gets shot and then reshot a hundred times over a cup of coffee. When the carcass no longer draws a crowd it's turned over to the "little woman." The next time it makes an appearance it's supposed to be a juicy, brown, tender roast or a toothsome, thick sizzling steak.

NO "LITTLE WOMAN" in her right mind would invest in venison for meat alone. First the cost would make it prohibitive

Mr and Mrs Steven Abell are parents of a son born at Carson City hospital Friday morning, Nov. 24, weighing 8 pounds and 1 ounce. He has been named Steven.

Jane Ann was born Nov. 21 at St. Lawrence hospital at Lansing to Mr and Mrs William Thelen. She weighed 7 pounds and 1 ounce. The grandparents are Mr and Mrs Louis Thelen of Pewamo and Mr and Mrs Robert Platte of Westphalia. Jane Ann has one sister, Mary Jo.

Mr and Mrs Tony Thelen entertained with a Thanksgiving dinner for the following: Father James Thelen and Sister Donna Jean, both of Muskegon; Mr and Mrs Louis Thelen and daughters, Bonnie and Susan; Mr and Mrs Phillip Kramer and family; Mr and Mrs David Hansas and family of Westphalia and William Thelen and daughter, Mary Jo.

Mr and Mrs Harry Hattis spent Thanksgiving Day with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr and Mrs Harry Hattis Jr. and family of Portland.

—camp vacation, food, hunting clothes, guns, shells, snowmobile, miles of travel, etc.

Nor would most women accept such an amateur butchering job on any other meat selection—hairy, dried out blood, stained meat shot full of holes. But, girls, it's worth the effort to salvage what you can, for it's possible to build some mighty satisfying and tasty meals around deer meat.

If a deer were to be shot just for the purpose of providing meat, it would have a minimum of shot damage, it would be thoroughly bled and cleaned out promptly before any meat might become contaminated. The animal would be skinned and wrapped in muslin. It would then be hung to cool and age in a constant temperature—no repeated freezing and thawing. Then it would be reduced into its various cuts to be cooked, frozen or canned. VENISON TASTES like venison—not like beef or pork or mutton. With the exception of the removal of as much of the fat on venison as possible, it can be cooked in the same manner as

Yesteryears theme for Yule conclave

The Women's Missionary Circle of the First Baptist Church will hold its annual Christmas conclave on Dec. 5 around the theme of "An Old Fashioned Christmas". Decorations for this elegant affair will be in red and green with the emphasis on Christmas of yesteryear.

"Old Fashioned Goodies," better than what grandma made, will be brought by the ladies.

All the adults of the church are invited to this occasion, which will be highlighted by a musical program featuring Chuck Ohman and his golden trumpet, accompanied by his sister, Ruth Ohman Lehman, at the piano.

Chuck Ohman appeared with his musical brothers in New York with the Billy Graham Crusade and also at the New York World's Fair. For five years he was on the coast-to-coast program "Youth on the March," directed by the late Percy Crawford. Next year he will tour Viet Nam with Overseas Crusades.

beef. Venison fat hardens even at temperatures normal in your mouth. For this reason most of it is stripped from the lean meat, and fat for cooking is supplemented by addition of butter, oil, oleo or pork fat. Pork and venison are good cook-mates either when roasted together or ground and mixed together for meat balls, loaf or sausage.

Most often, the hunter lucky enough to shoot a deer has only the stew meat and ground meat for his eating pleasure after all the other members of the hunting party each gets his roast or steaks.

And rather than eat all the ground meat in meat balls, meat loaf or spaghetti sauce, many hunters make sausage.

mixed with the venison. A spice blend to use for a total of 25 pounds of meat might be 6-8 ounces salt, 3 teaspoons pepper, 3 teaspoons mace, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon cloves, 2 teaspoons allspice and garlic to suit taste. Such a mixture might be stuffed into casings and frozen or packed in bulk into freezer containers. It should be used within 3 months to insure non-rancid fat and full flavor from the spices.

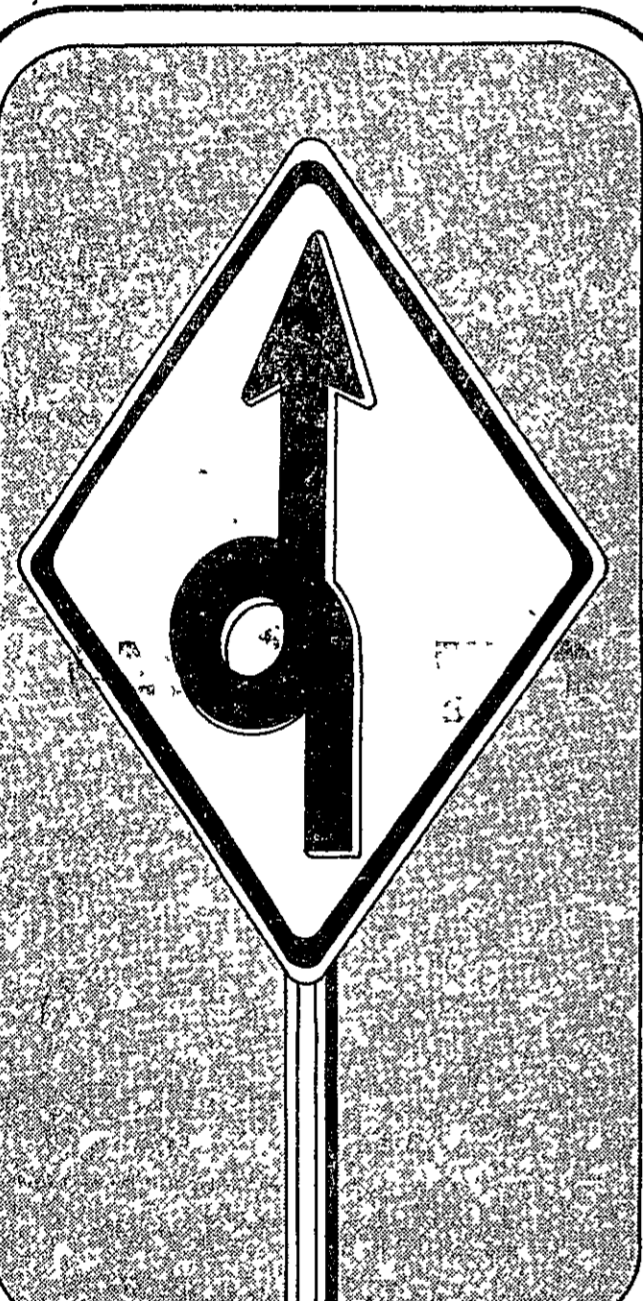

For further information, there is a 10 cent venison bulletin available in Michigan from your county Extension office. Write Helen B. Meach, Courthouse Annex, 1003 S. Oakland, St. Johns, Mich. 48879.

Let's make that deer serve two purposes—a trophy and some good quality eating meat.

CANDLE IN the NIGHT

There is something about a candle . . . something about a flame . . . something about fire itself . . . that has fascinated man throughout the centuries. Despite the fact that you can translate fire, these days, into a known chemical formula, it is still a mystery, a wonder, and sometimes a fear.

It is an elemental thing that this little girl is studying as she watches the candle flicker. And, like so many of the elemental things—like Nature itself, and like Faith, for that matter—it is awesome.

Faith, too, is a mystery and a wonder. Yet the only fear that Faith engenders is the fear, deep within one's heart, that it might be lost.

So that this essential ingredient of life does not elude you and does not diminish during misfortune, make it a habit of attending the church of your choice regularly. Here you will be given spiritual strength and inspiration and kindle the mystery of love and joy within your heart.

High school close-up—Part VI

New auditorium will feature many improvements over old

If there is one area of the new St. Johns High School that, more than any other, is designed for use by the whole community, it would probably have to be the auditorium.

This large area will be located on the north side of the building pretty much in the center of the north frontage. The foyer will be the main entrance to the school for the public, and for students disembarking from buses.

While the auditorium seating capacity will be about the same as the present school auditorium is, the state will be roughly four times larger. This will make it much easier for the concert bands to present their concerts from the stage (they can hardly fit on the present one), and it will allow the school and outside organizations to bring in outside dramatic groups that previously weren't able to work on the small stage here.

THE STAGE ITSELF will be about 80 feet wide (double the present stage) and about 38 feet deep (again double). For most stage productions, however, such width won't be necessary, and in that case the curtains can be drawn to make an area visible from the audience of about 55 feet across the front and 28 feet across the back. For band performances and musicals the whole stage would be used.

In addition to the main stage, the apron in front of the curtain will provide two small "scene" stages, which can be utilized for one scene of a play while the main stage is being reset. It will also prove an excellent set-up for combined band and choir numbers.

The back wall of the stage will be smooth and painted. An image machine (projector) can be used to project images on the wall to help enhance the activity that is going on stage at any particular time.

Large doorways will make moving of scenery and equipment much easier than it is now. One large doorway will lead off the stage from the right into a corridor of the high school. Another one—12 feet wide by 12 feet high—leads into a big workroom back of the stage.

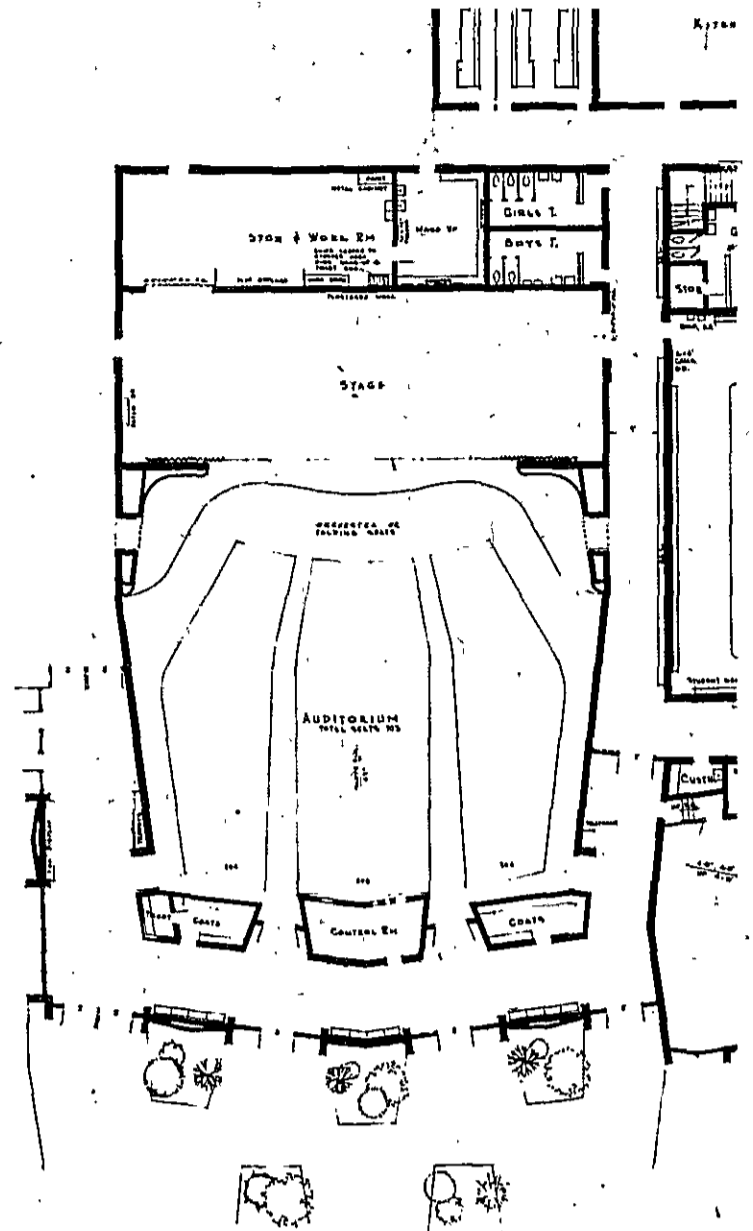

THE STAGE CALLS for wagon-type scenery, which can be moved on wheels, so there will be ample space in the workroom for storage of scenery—enough in storage for one complete play while another might be on stage. The stage lighting transformer will also be in the workroom, eliminating the annoying click and clunk that now can be heard in the audience when lights are switched. At present the transformer is on the stage.

The workroom will have cabinets, sinks, storage for flats and tools. All work on scenery and costumes for plays can be done in the workroom. There will be additional storage room for properties above the make-up room.

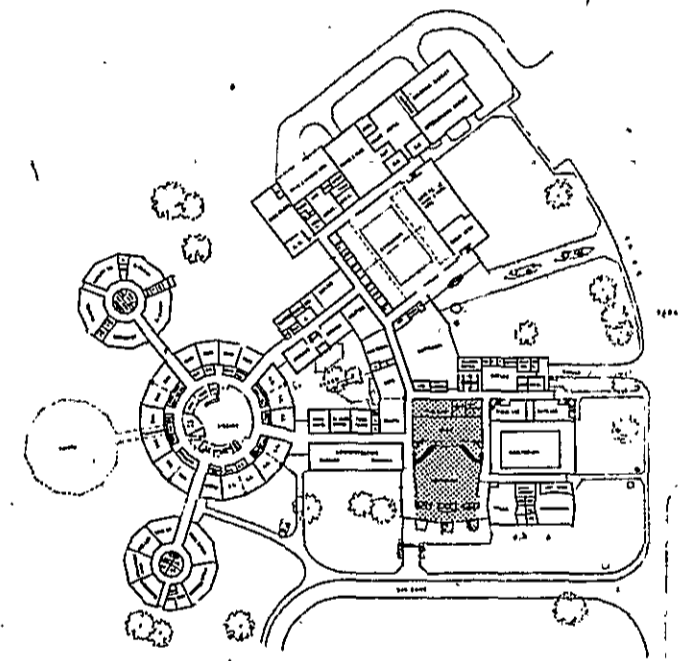

That make-up room will open off the workroom, and it too, is behind the stage. It will be completely lined with mirrors and cabinets to allow easy make-up capability.

Doors lead out of the workroom and the make-up room into outer corridors.

Lighting for the auditorium will be a big improvement over the present facilities. Above the seating area will be two rows of lights (compared to one row in the present auditorium), one of which will throw light onto the aprons of the stage and the other of which will light the front of the stage. A crawl space catwalk will provide access to the lights; in the present high-ceilinged auditorium, lights must be changed and maneuvered in advance by climbing a ladder.

This is a detailed close-up of the auditorium, stage, storage and workroom, and make-up room at the new St. Johns High School now under construction. The stage itself is about four times as large as the stage in the present high school.

Shaded area locates the auditorium in the new St. Johns High School building now under construction.

ABOVE THE STAGE itself will be three rows of lights; they will include wide spots, pin spots and image lamps.

On one side of the stage will be a patchboard where different lighting patterns can be set up. Final control of the lighting will come from a "projection booth" type of room located at the rear of the auditorium and slightly above the seating.

The control board in the booth will provide for five different lighting set-ups at the same time. These are set up in advance, and when it is time for a certain lighting pattern, all the operator has to do is pull a switch and the lights automatically set themselves.

The controller in the booth can maintain communication with the stage by a telephone hook-up.

The ticket booth for the auditorium will be located in the control room area. Coatrooms are located to either side of the control booth.

The auditorium will seat 714 persons—about the same as the present auditorium, but it will be deeper. School officials and the architects decided to stay with the present seating capacity to avoid other designing problems and to keep the cost down. They pointed out that rarely would a local theater production draw a full-house for every night it ran, and it would be a waste to provide more seating than could be filled.

IF MORE SEATING would be provided, it would logically be enough more to handle the entire student body of the high school for assemblies. But the present arrangement of having two sessions for assemblies has worked out well, and the school plans to continue it. Half the student body attends one performance of an assembly and the other half the second performance.

The location of the auditorium in the high school complex will make it easy for the area to be closed off so that only the auditorium area is used. Gates will be located in the corridors on either side of the auditorium to keep visitors out of the other parts of the school.

Farm families have higher food costs too

Everyone knows that "down on the farm" eating is superb. But not everyone realizes that it may also be the most expensive item in the family living budget—perhaps claiming nearly twenty-five cents of every dollar spent.

Truth is that steadily rising food costs sock farm families as well as their city-dwelling neighbors. In fact, the rise of food expense between '65 and '66 was 5.8 per cent for one group of farm families—slightly higher than the Consumer Price Index increase. These are findings of a recent study of the family living expenses of over 100 Michigan farm families. The study by Mrs. Barbara Ferrar, Extension home management specialist, utilized Michigan State University's TelFarm record-keeping system.

Income of these families of $4,351, it appears that some farmers were forced to tap savings or divert to family use money intended for future replacement of machinery or improvements. Mrs. Ferrar believes, however, that much of the apparent discrepancy between income and expenditures would disappear if a realistic means of computing farm income could be found.

Variation in the allocation of family living expenditures seemed to depend on such factors as size of income and family, age of husband, wife, and oldest child at home, as well as education of husband and wife, and the number of years married.

HOUSING, WHICH took nearly 20 per cent of the income of these families, was shown to be the next most costly item. But, housing costs didn't increase as fast as food costs for the '61 to '66 period—$1,007 to $1,250, compared to $1,129 to $1,531 for food.

The study showed average total expenditures for farm family living to be $6,551, including house purchase or remodeling. Considering an average family

TOTAL FAMILY expenditures were found to increase with age of husband, wife and oldest child at home, wife's education, number of years married, and family income and size. Only the outlay for housing and personal insurance increased with the husband's education.

Most of the farm families studied were from the commercial agricultural areas of the southern half of the Lower Peninsula. Details are available in the Ag. Economics Report 75, "Farm Family Living Today."

Outstanding Young Farmer sought by Jaycees here

A program designed to bring about a better understanding of the problems and achievements of the farmers in Clinton County was announced this week by the St. Johns Jaycees.

A survey of farmers between the ages of 21 and 35 will be climaxed with the naming of the county's Outstanding Young Farmer of 1967-68.

"Agriculture is America's oldest and biggest industry," according to John Aylsworth, chairman of the OYF committee, "and as a consequence of the acumen and efficiency of the men engaged in this industry, ours is the best fed, best-clothed nation in the world. It is our hope that the OYF program will result in a better understanding and appreciation of the role the farmer plays in our daily lives." Candidates will be interviewed by Jaycee committee members who will assist the candidates in completing the information forms. Reports compiled by the Jaycees on the basis of their interviews will be given to a special judging committee composed of agricultural leaders in the county. They will select Clinton County's Outstanding Young Farmer. The judging is on the basis of career progress, conservation practices and community service.

The winner will be announced at the Jaycee OYF banquet on Tuesday, Feb. 13, in St. Johns.

The county winner will enter the state contest in March.

The OYF committee consists of John Aylsworth, Shayne Smith, Jack Bertoldi, Tom Peacock, John Briganti, Pat Kitts, and Bob Yager.

If anyone knows of an outstanding young farmer in the County under 36 years of age and would like to nominate him, they should contact the Extension office with his name, age and address.

Buying all feed profitable only for large herds

Buying forage and grain feed needs for a dairy operation can be profitable when combined with first rate management and high milk production, says C.R. Hoglund, Michigan State University agricultural economist.

But, most dairymen will need upwards of 160 cows for satisfactory returns if they buy all of their feed, the scientist concludes after a recent study of 40-, 80-, 160-, and 240-cow farms. This is partly because large scale dairymen often have better bargaining power when buying feeds.

This question of whether to purchase more feed or buy land as herd size continues to increase depends upon a number of factors. Low grain prices, coupled with high land prices and taxes and the difficulty of buying land near the farmstead, have led many farmers to buy a part or all of their forage needs, and part of their grain needs.

Hoglund's study showed that milk sales of no more than 12,000 pounds resulted in rather low labor income for the 40-cow dairy farm even with good yields and all feed grown on the farm. Even if the dairymen were averaging 14,000 pounds per cow, buying all the feed for 40-cow operations would be a poor alternative, he says.

"FOR MOST DAIRYMEN with a family operation of 30 to 50 cows, it would usually be profitable to produce most of the feed needs but also necessary to have high milk sales per cow if returns were to be reasonably good," he said.

According to Hoglund, both the 160- and 240-cow dry-lot operations become relatively profitable with milk sales of 14,000 pounds per cow. He states that for most dairymen, the purchase of all feed would usually not be profitable except for herds of more than 160 cows and then only when the buyer was able to get feed at considerable reductions over the normal market prices.

Keeping records can increase dairying profits

Dairy farmers can increase their profits through the use of production records, advises F. Earl Haas, county Extension agricultural agent.

Michigan Dairy Herd Improvement Assn., sends a supervisor to dairy farms to compile records which will help the farmer to cull out low producers which will increase in net income, feed grain according to production to save money, and select cows whose calves will be good herd replacements.

Three dairy record keeping plans are offered.

THE SUPERVISED DHIA plan provides data on production and feed which is electronically calculated to give production to date, monthly and year-to-date herd totals, total and average feed cost, and income over feed cost.

Monthly and yearly reports are given for milk yield of each cow and for butterfat tests under the owner-sampler plan. Records give feeding, culling, and management information.

The tri-monthly plan is to provide butterfat and milk weights every third month. Each cow is ranked according to her estimated 305-day mature equivalent production. Other information includes average age and culling level.

The supervised DHIA plan averages 60 cents per cow per month, based on a monthly herd fee of $7.75 plus 40 cents per cow. The owner-sampler plan costs 40 cents per cow on the average, and the tri-monthly plan costs 15 cents per cow per month based on a quarterly fee of $4.50 per herd plus 25 cents per cow.

The program is supervised by Michigan State University. Full information can be obtained from the Clinton County Extension office, 1008 S. Oakland, St. Johns.

Fall best time to spread lime

Capitalize on surplus fall time and seasonal conditions by applying lime now, says E. C. Doll, Extension soil scientist at Michigan State University.

Applying lime this fall gives it a chance to react with the soil and be ready for plant use next year. However, very acid soils, where alfalfa or other legumes are to be seeded, should be limed about one year before seeding, according to Doll.

Lime can be applied to sod crops which will be plowed and seeded to row crops next spring. Or, it can be plowed down in the fall.

Cornfields can be limed after picking or chopping. By working the lime into the soil, it will react in time to seed high-lime crops the next spring or summer.

According to Doll, about two-thirds of Michigan's cropland needs occasional liming for maximum crop yields and most efficient fertilizer use. The amount and kind of lime needed are determined through a soil test. Consult your agricultural agent for more information.

Hog farmers cautioned to avoid higher production

W. M. SMITH County ASC Manager

Hog farmers have been cautioned to guard against increased production next year. Under-Secretary of Agriculture John A. Schmittler passed along the word of caution when he and other USDA officials met recently in Washington, D.C., with a group of hog farmers from across the country.

The under-secretary reviewed the history of pork supplies and hog prices over the past few years, and pointed out that one old rule seems to hold even with the new and highly skilled hog producers: Lower corn prices still encourage producers to breed more sows—perhaps too many—for next year's pork supply.

The record 4.7-billion-bushel corn crop this year and substantially lower prices are tempting producers toward a substantial increase in hog production next year. Steps have been taken through the acreage diversion program to increase feed grain prices for next year, but this will not necessarily temper the potential for expanding livestock expansion this year, I hope all hog growers will consider what a further production expansion now would mean in returns next year.

With a large prospective supply of other meats, even a 5 per cent increase in farrowing next spring would result in substantially lower hog prices in late 1968 and early 1969. Prices could fall to 1963-64 levels if producers plan poorly now for next year's profits.

So the prices you will get for your hogs next year rest on the decisions you and your fellow producers make. A wise man once warned that those who do not learn from the mistakes of the past are doomed to repeat them. Will history repeat itself in the pork industry? Or will you continue to move forward by keeping supplies in line with demand?

Youth back from dairy conference

Robert Harte, 18, of R-4, St. Johns, has returned from the 13th annual 4-H Dairy Conference in Chicago Nov. 19-22.

Highlighting the three-day conference were visits to the International Live Stock Show, a horse show and rodeo, clinics in herd management, marketing and dairy careers. Delegates also attended banquets and went sight-seeing.

Harte, son of Mr and Mrs Neil R. Harte, was selected to attend the conference on the basis of individual accomplishments in 4-H dairy projects and leadership. His trip to the 4-H Dairy Conference was provided by the Michigan Milk Producers Assn.

He was accompanied by Jerry Brown, Extension agent from Saginaw County. Some 200 young dairymen and their leaders from 25 states attended the 1967 conference. The event annually provides young people with recognition, inspiration and educational opportunities. From the opening banquet to the closing luncheon, the delegates were encouraged to seek their futures in the dairy industry, building upon their experience.

Erosion problem in today's agriculture

By RICHARD DRULLINGER U.S. Soil Conservation Service

Gullied fields, streams filled with sediment, suffocating fish, and declining crop yields could be the result of the intensified agriculture on Michigan farms, except for one fact—today's farmer is practicing soil and water conservation.

He knows he cannot stay in business long if topsoil is being carried away by wind or water.

The progressive farmer today has a multitude of materials and techniques to choose from to keep wind and water from taking his soil. A conservation cropping system combines crops in the best sequence with the needed cultural and mechanical practices to keep the soil in place and productive on each field.

Cultural practices that reduce erosion include plow-planting, management of crop residues, proper fertilization and liming (which produces more plant cover and residues), cover crops, or increased amounts of meadow crops in the rotation. Temporary strips of small grain or permanent rows of trees or shrubs are used where wind erosion is a problem.

MECHANICAL practices such as contouring, strip-cropping, or terracing are becoming even more important as cultivation increases on sloping land. Sod waterways, erosion control structures, and proper drainage practices also reduce soil and water losses.

On non-cropland areas, vegetation of trees or grasses provides soil protection. On special problem areas such as borrow pits, ditchbanks, roadbanks, and construction sites, adapted grass seedlings may be mulched with straw or various manufactured products that provide protection while the grass is getting established. In very erosive situations, sodding or even reshaping the area and using structures of concrete or other materials may be the answer.

The landowner of today has all these methods of erosion control to choose from. Helping him choose and apply the ones that will be most beneficial and productive for his particular situation is one of the prime jobs of the Soil Conservation Service employees who provide assistance through the Clinton County Soil Conservation District.

LLOYD B. CAMPBELL, work unit conservationist assisting the Clinton County Soil Conservation District, reports that some of the major erosion control practices applied by landowners in the district this year are tile drainage, contour strip-cropping, wind strip-cropping, field brome or rye grass winter cover crops, plow planting, and tree planting.

Millions of dairy cows are asking for help

Millions of dairy cows are asking for help. The dairyman who responds will see profits increase while helping to protect his industry from overstepping dairy substitutes. Those who do not will soon feel the squeeze of economic pressure and lose their place in the market.

The cow relies on the leukocyte, or the white blood cells as a means of communication. These cells, which remain constantly in the cow's body, multiply rapidly when infection or irritation exists. The cow's udder harbors an adequate regiment of these leukocytes. When an udder infection occurs, the leukocyte count of milk increases and reaches an abnormal level. It is impossible to determine if a cow is infected unless tests are performed to identify it. And there are certain measures which can be taken to prevent its occurrence.

ABNORMAL MILK does not always present health hazard, but it may have poor keeping qualities and off-flavors, and it may interfere with production of cultured dairy products.

What causes abnormal milk? Dairy scientists divide the causes into three categories: infection, irritation, and physiological changes in the cow's body. Good sanitation helps overcome these high leukocyte counts related to infection. Careless or improper milking practices can irritate the udder. Milking practice routines are more important in affecting the leukocyte count than the condition of milking equipment. Other causes such as mechanical injury also lead to high leukocyte counts. As a cow grows older, the average level of leukocytes in her milk seems to increase. Even the time the test is made has an effect on the cell count.

When building concrete poultry house floor

The life of a concrete poultry house floor depends on the quality of its construction. This in turn depends on five basic factors: subgrade preparation, cement content, slab thickness, surface finishing, and curing.

In existing houses, all litter and loose material should be removed. The subgrade should be thoroughly compacted to prevent settlement and dampened before the fresh concrete is placed on it. Dampening prevents absorption of water from the concrete mix.

When ordering concrete, be sure to specify 5.5 to 6 bags of air entraining cement per cubic yard. It needs at least that much. Air entrained concrete lasts longer and resists the damaging effects of time and temperature changes.

A 4-inch-thick slab will do the job. It will support a tractor or truck if necessary and, of course, the chickens. The concrete should be wet-cured to ensure easy cleaning.

Curing is all-important. Concrete needs moisture to cure properly. Water can be applied directly, or the fresh concrete can be covered with wet sand, burlap, or straw. Or a moisture-retaining barrier such as water-proof paper or plastic film can be used. Or you can seal the moisture in with a sprayed-on chemical compound. The idea is to keep the hardening concrete as moist as possible. The curing process must be continued from three to five days—never let concrete dry-out while it is hardening.

The use life of a concrete floor—any floor—depends on the care taken to install it right.

Speaking at a Michigan Agricultural Pesticide Conference Nov. 1-2 at The Kellogg Center for Continuing Education, Dr Hoffman reported that there are well over 400 brands of pesticides on the market today, and some 2,000 different brand names.

"BECAUSE OF this variety, pesticides are difficult to classify and must be bought with a specific job in mind and from a knowledgeable dealer," he noted.

Dr Hoffman said one of the oldest methods of classifying pesticides is by the way in which the insect comes in contact with it. But you can also classify pesticides by methods of application or formulation, chemical origin, speciality of use, toxicity (both to humans and insects) and systemic effects, he added.

He reminded that to be effective, pesticides must interfere with the life processes of the insect. Because insects are small, the lethal dose also is relatively small and can be tolerated by humans.

BUT JUST AS SOON as the lethal dose is increased, either by accident or by direction, humans can be seriously affected. "When used according to instructions, the hazards of acute exposures to pesticides will be largely eliminated," he said.

The threadbare sock

The greatest business in the world is the U.S. government. The voters of the United States hire managers for this business—the President and members of Congress. They and officials appointed by them in the cabinet, bureaus, boards and commissions regulate and control virtually all industry and activity financed and operated by the private citizen and taxpayer, and yet they have no financial stake in what they regulate.

Many of the official managers are conscientious and competent, but the variety of complex matters they are charged with overseeing is often beyond their comprehension. Worse yet, some of the official regulators and managers directing the affairs of an industry have little or no practical experience or knowledge of that industry.

Over the years, the managers of the people's government have mortgaged the people's property with the greatest debt in the world's history and are forcing their employers (the taxpayers) to carry ever more burdensome and destructive tax obligations. Adding insult to injury, they do not hesitate to tell their employers (the taxpayers) how to run their properties.

Why shouldn't our public employees have their efficiency and spending checked by independent agencies? There will be no relief for the taxpayer if the tax spenders are left to check on themselves. This is something to consider before we face a $300 billion annual budget. The alternative is to awake one day and find that our hired managers have not only made off with our savings but also the threadbare sock in which we had them hidden.

Be a proud American

The National Observer pointed out in a recent article that we should quit apologizing for America being America, "So it is affluent, so not everyone participates equally (why should they, man being what he is?), so the 'quality' of American life does not please those who would like to dictate 'quality'. But what other nation's system would you substitute for it?"

The United States in the past 20 years has written the most remarkable record of any great power in the history of the world, and it continues to write it today in Viet Nam. Repeatedly, we have used our overwhelming military force to defend the territory, the rights, the lives and the human dignity of people living in other nations...who were not in a position to defend themselves against the brutality and oppression of expansionist communism.

We have poured American blood and treasure into Europe and into Asia to rebuild the nations we defeated in World War II and to hold the lines of freedom and national self-determination against aggression. American forces continue to fight for principle—the U.S. has no interest in gaining either wealth or territory from another country.

When the balance sheet of the history books is finally drawn, U.S. citizens of the future will have reason to be proud of their nation's record. This should be remembered amidst the raucous rantings of America's detractors.

There's more noise than substance from young hoods

If you do something bad, everybody always knows about it. But, you could go to church every Sunday of your life, take home stray kittens and help old ladies across the street forever and never find yourself a celebrity.

The younger generation and most particularly the older teen-age section of it are in this position. The lunatic fringe, the so-called "hippies," the LSD trippers and the troublemakers get all the publicity. Every adult should remember that this minority of the younger generation is not indicative of the ambition, intelligence or solid accomplishment of the vast majority of young people.

As a publisher, Mr Don Robinson of The American Press observes it might help if publications, "...would tell more about some of the outstanding achievements of young people and stop encouraging the mentally unbalanced by giving them all the limelight."

Many publications, including the Clinton County News, already do, Mr Robinson. Our emphasis is on the constructive activities of Clinton area youth, and the total of numbers of column inches devoted each week to these constructive activities is far greater—with far more emphasis in headlines—than the amount of space given to trouble-makers.

November's second severe snowstorm all but buttoned up most of Clinton county Tuesday, Nov. 29. Schools closed, stores and shops were late in opening or never opened, traffic crawled over main thoroughfares and snow plows waged a relentless battle against the storm. An estimated six to seven inches of snow had fallen by early Tuesday afternoon.

Clinton County's Community Chest contribution totals soared to new heights this week, but everything is still $7,000 short of the goal of $26,500.

St. Johns' Christmas tree on the courthouse lawn was officially lit Friday night, and the flashing colored lights at the base of the tree painted a changing picture that made many St. Johns citizens stop and take notice.

Latest returns this week from all parts of Clinton County indicated Clinton is nearing its goal in the war fund drive for $8,000, and that reports from several precincts yet unheard from or which have not completed their campaigns may send the county total over the quota.

Basketball returns to St. Johns Friday night when the high school team opens the season entertaining Portland High School here. Legislators put off action on vital open housing bill

BY ELMER E. WHITE Michigan Press Assn.

Legislators left for home last week without facing up to the question they are called upon to deal with: an open housing law. In doing so, they succeeded in getting relief from the heat of this issue for a while. It is doubtful they think the issue will evaporate.

The politician's problem is a practical one. He feels pressure from two factions, diametrically opposed. Church leaders, labor leaders and business leaders tell him that this proposition is moral, fair and necessary. The bill itself is modest in its requirement. It simply says that when property is offered on the open market, its sale cannot be refused on a basis of race, color or creed. The same principle already exists in other markets, in retailing, in hotel accommodations, and in restaurants.

But the politician also hears from the prejudiced people in his constituency. There seems to be a high percentage of these, especially in the ethnic groups. The hard fact is that when it comes to civil rights, leaders in churches, labor and business are not followed with enthusiasm; if at all, by many of those within their groups.

MORE PHONY ISSUES have been dragged into the open housing question than appeared on any proposition in years. Many people who are prejudiced apparently prefer to pretend they are not, and oppose the bill because of some abstract idea only remotely related to the open housing idea.

One legislator defined what might be the problem faced by many. He said, "I've got to decide on this vote whether to be a Christian or a politician." The people will suffer or benefit according to their wisdom in this matter. If they bring about a fair, logical decision, they can realize whatever gains involved. If the people permit prejudice to prevail, they pay another price. This is the case in a democratic form of government with every issue which is decided.

The open housing question will face legislators when they return from their recess in mid-December. How they face up to this problem will be a mark on their own records and that of the people they represent. The issue will not go away; it must be dealt with.

A PARTNERSHIP between Michigan and Belize, better known as British Honduras, was formed early in 1966 amid high expectations and little fanfare.

Called "Partners of the Alliance," the program is similar to many already formed between citizens of various states and their counterparts in 15 Latin American countries. All are run by private citizens who volunteer to help under-developed nations progress socially, economically, and culturally.

Michigan's Partnership program is one of the few in which a single state cooperates with an entire country's citizens.

Independence will be granted to Belize by Great Britain whenever the emerging nation chooses. There is determination among the majority of Belizeans to make the day of decision soon.

THE NATION is small, approximately 175 miles long and 50 miles wide, with a population of about 110,000. The people are of many races, strongly Christian, highly literate. All speak English and about three-fourths of the population speak Spanish as well.

Major problems face the young nation: secondary education, sanitation, poor economic conditions, lack of industries, and low agricultural production.

But the country enjoys an ideal climate, fertile soil, ample resources and a stable two-party system of government patterned after that of the United States. Its Prime Minister, George Price, is an educated leader devoted to his country and its development as a strong, democratic nation.

RESULTS OF THE Partnership are already apparent. Under the chairmanship of former Congressman Alvin Bentley of Owosso, the Michigan-Belize program was organized into 10 committees, each responsible for a different area of development. Each Michigan committee has a counterpart in Belize. The Michigan committee on public health, for example, communicates directly with the Belizean committee on public health.

This system has worked well in the short time the Partnership has existed, but much more needs to be done in the areas of agriculture, education, public health, business development and other important fields.

A membership drive is underway in Michigan to develop higher interest in the project and stimulate greater citizen participation. A small part of Belize's gratitude and respect for this state was reflected in the naming of three Belizean cities: Mount Pleasant, San Luis and San Ignacio. The Michigan flag is flown in Belize's Central Park, further demonstration of that country's appreciation.

NEWTON, MISS., RECORD: "How vital is it that all of our people be trained, prepared and equipped for responsible citizenship at the everyday working level. From early childhood we should all be taught the real meaning of our... form of government... that the blessings of liberty and the privileges of citizenship carry with them corresponding responsibilities and obligations, and above all that, without vigilance, caution, awareness and devotion, our cherished rights may be lost forever."

SAN MANUEL, ARIZ., MINER: "Last year, LBJ said an unbalanced budget helped the economy. This year, he says a tax increase is necessary because the budget is unbalanced. Welcome to the New Math."

Another Moon Shot

RAMBLIN' with Rink

By LOWELL G. RINKER

Take the news photographer for instance. Here is a fellow whose problems never seem to end and who makes his photographic mistakes in front of the world.

Let me give you an example or two. In the first place, the photographer is almost always (so it seems to us photographers, anyway) the center of attention at any meeting which he attends for the purpose of taking a candid picture. The photographer must, it seems, always walk down a long aisle to near the speaker's platform. All eyes follow him.

IF A PERSON turns his eyes away and back to the speaker, the photographer draws attention again by raising his camera to focus, noisily cocking the shutter and heisting his flash gun high in preparation for the picture.

As the audience waits breathlessly for the flash of light that means history has been recorded, there is only a dull, lifeless click and an almost inaudible groan from the cameraman. He has forgotten to plug in his electronic flash apparatus.

He could probably shoot the picture by available light created by his own red face, but he quickly and nervously, plugs the flash in, cocks the shutter, points the flash, takes the picture and slinks back up the aisle that has grown longer since he came down it.

All this while trying to be unobtrusive.

FOR THE UNHARDENED veteran, the next most difficult assignment to get through is to have the meeting you're covering held up for a moment while you get a picture of an award presentation. This is much better if the chairman of the meeting suggests it and announces it but, since photographers always like to get "just one more", it is rather embarrassing to have to ask that the events be held up just so you can get a picture. But this is part of the photographer's service to his paper's readers, so he grins sheepishly and slinks back to his seat.

There is also the case where the filmmaker on the press camera will jam, making it impossible to change the film or use the camera again until you get it back to the darkroom. This is usually in the middle, not at the end of the assignment.

Another case in point against the photographer is the assign-

Fallout protection survey half complete

Michigan's mail survey of fallout protection in homes in 72 cities is nearing the halfway mark, with more than 691,000 questionnaires having been returned to the U.S. Census Bureau, Col. Fredrick E. Davids, state police and state civil defense director, reported.

In addition, 908,947 homes have been visited by Census Bureau enumerators in other areas. This part of the survey is completed, with a 99.8 per cent coverage.

The mail returns represent 45.9 per cent of the 1.5 million questionnaires sent to the occupants of one, two and three family dwellings in the state's cities having 10,000 or more population.

THE CONFIDENTIAL survey, in which Michigan and federal civil defense officials and the Census Bureau are cooperating, began Oct. 19 by mail in the cities and by interviewers in other areas. The cost is being paid by the federal government. Civil defense officials reemphasize that the fallout protection survey gives individuals and families another good opportunity to learn how to protect themselves in any nuclear radiation emergency.

The survey will have two direct benefits: One, cooperating householders will be confidentially advised of the protection their homes afford and how it may be improved; two, the availability of protection for people in their homes will importantly assist in the planning of community shelters.

Persons who have not yet filled out their questionnaires should complete and mail them in the envelope provided to the Census Bureau at Jeffersonville, Ind., where they are being processed by computer.

Eight new novels were received this past week at Bement Public Library. D.E. Stevenson's fans will be glad to know she has again produced on schedule. SARAH MORRIS REMEMBERS is Miss Stevenson's 43rd novel. The fact that the plot seems familiar, or that you seem to have met some of the characters before is no drawback to a true Stevenson fan. Reading a new Stevenson book is like going to the old hometown for a visit.....

D.E. Stevenson is the niece of Robert Lewis Stevenson. She lives in Dumfriesshire in Moffat, Scotland, and her legal name is Mrs Dorothy Emily Peplow. Her works have sold over a million copies in the United States, and recently Boston University named a room in their library in her honor.

Other new books of fiction include THE PYRAMID by William

Golding (author of the popular LORD OF THE FLIES); WHERE EAGLES DARE by Allistair MacLean (author of THE GUNS OF NAVARONE); THE VALE OF LAUGHTER by Peter DeVries (author of THE BLOOD OF THE LAMB); EDGE OF GLASS by Catherine Gaskin (author of CORPORATION WIFE); I, ROBERTA by Elizabeth Gray Vining (author of WINDOWS FOR THE CROWN PRINCE); and JANUS ISLAND by Sloan Wilson (author of THE MAN IN THE GRAY FLANNEL SUIT).

AN ADULT Christmas story is the humorous story by Morton Fineman, CHRISTMAS IS EVERYWHERE INCLUDING ASIA MINOR. Toby Barish is a little Jewish boy who very much wants a Christmas tree. His mother explains carefully that Jewish people just don't have Christmas trees, but this doesn't change Toby's mind or lessen his desire. The story may be enjoyed by some children, with adult guidance preferably. Mr Fineman has written for the Saturday Evening Post, but this is his first novel and it is a short one.

CHRISTMAS STORIES for children will be the order of the day on Saturday mornings during December. The place is the Children's Library and the time is 10:30 to 11:30. It is necessary to limit the attendance to school-age children.

Olive Grange to host Pomona

Olive Grange will entertain Clinton County Pomona Grange this Saturday, Dec. 2. Fifth Degree will meet at 11 a.m. Potluck lunch will be served at noon. Olive Grange will furnish the hot dishes, coffee and rolls. The speaker for the afternoon will be Clare Tinker, formerly with the State Conservation Department. "Shapes of The Future" will be his topic.

The Junior Grange will present a Christmas program, and Earl Darnell will give a reading.

Any friends of the Grange are invited to attend the dinner and program in the afternoon.
