500 cram into I-69 public hearing

By Sue Kiley
Staff Writer

Bath Twp.

When it comes to the proposed I-69 project, it looks like it's down to a question between muck and birds or people and business. As of Thursday night's public hearing, one would guess the humans were in the losing corner.

Over 500 people showed up at Bath High for the hearing. There were the very young and the very old in attendance. The parking lot was parked beyond capacity and cars were lined up to Clark Road on both sides. However, that didn't stop the citizens from piling into the cafeteria, standing when there were no more chairs.

Jack Morgan, manager of the public involvement section of the Michigan Department of Transportation began the hearing by introducing the project and the department's preferred routes.

I-69 starts at Indianapolis, Indiana and proceeds northerly across the Michigan state line to Marshall.

Originally, it terminated at I-94 near Marshall. However, in 1968, the Federal Highway Act authorized the construction of an additional 1500 miles to improve the efficiency and service of the then 41,000 miles of interstate highways.

Presently there are three sections of I-69 which are supposed to be completed. The first segment runs from Charlotte to I-96 in Lansing. The second segment stretches from I-96 (Grand River Avenue) interchange to US-27. The third segment of I-69 deals with the US-27 freeway for approximately 1.5 miles to an interchange site between Clark and Stoll Roads.

In March of 1974, a public hearing was held to discuss a number of alternative alignments. Shortly after this hearing, the Department of Transportation approved an alignment passing north of Park Lake, dipping to the south of Temporary I-69.

However, due to the adverse affect on the wetlands in the area, the Department of Transportation in 1979 chose a route to the south of Park Lake instead of its original proposal.

Bath Township favors the original 1W route which passes north of Park Lake. The highway department favors 2W which passes south of Park Lake.

Route 1W displaces 27 residential units, zero commercial units, 575 acres and costs $32,412,000. Route 2W displaces 49 residential units, one commercial unit, 711 acres of land and costs $36,457,000.

The highway department contends the 1W Route is not feasible because it takes 47 acres from Priggooris Park and has more wetlands in its path.

According to the highway department, 2W represents a compromise. They selected 2W because it avoids public recreation (Priggooris Park), the township of Bath and some wetlands.

Morgan told the group that no final decision has been made. Please turn to Page 19

Apartment plans become popular

By Patrice Hornak
Editor

St. Johns

Three apartment complex proposals totaling 206 units have been submitted to the St. Johns City Commission within the last year. Several others were submitted the previous year.

Apartment housing in St. Johns isn't plentiful but that may change in a matter of years if present plans for apartment complexes come to fruition.

Probably one of the more serious projects involves a 100-unit complex to be built immediately east of Hampshire Drive, behind McDonald's, Burger King and other business lining US-27.

Of the 100 units, 50 would be two-story townhouses and 50 would be senior citizen housing units.

According to Ed Kleinman of Oxford Development Co. of Lansing, construction could get underway this summer. He said financial arrangements are yet to be completed.

The property has already been rezoned from R-1 residential to R-3 high density residential. Tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the city commission chambers, a variance request will be the subject of a special hearing. The same variance request will then go to the city planning commission tomorrow night.

There are actually two special requests being made. Developers want to build a three-story senior citizen apartment complex, but the height of that three-story structure would exceed the present zoning ordinances by three feet. For this reason, a special use permit must be obtained.

Secondly, developers wish to allow 28 parking spaces for the senior citizen units. Present zoning laws dictate each unit must be given one parking space. A new company was formed for the purpose of building a 94-unit apartment complex just south of the Oxford Development Co. project.

Robert Blastic, a member of the newly formed Orchard Apartments of Laingsburg, said his company is "on hold" with regard to building their complex. Economic conditions were given as the reason.

Blastic said his company still plans to go through with the construction of the complex, but he said they probably won't be using conventional economics to fund the project. Please turn to Page 2

Another show

Approximately 2,500 people saw the St. Johns High School performance of the "Wizard of Oz" last weekend, but some people had to be turned away at the door because the high school auditorium was filled to capacity. The cast and crew of the "Wizard of Oz" will present a command performance this Saturday, Feb. 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Tickets will be $1 at the door for all seats. Sure to figure into the evening's entertainment will be the talent of Todd Scott as the Tin Woodsman and Carol Huguélet as Dorothy. (Photo by Ben Manning)

Seniors speak out on the draft

By Patrice Hornak
Editor

Clinton County

In President Jimmy Carter's State of the Union Address several weeks ago, he said he is considering the restoration of the military draft.

If a draft were reinstated, probably some of the first persons to be enlisted would be those students in the 1980 senior class in high schools across this nation.

Possibly men would be drafted. Possibly women would be drafted.

What do today's seniors think about the draft?

What do they think about women being drafted? About fighting?

Do they feel a deep sense of patriotism?

These are some of the questions posed to two senior classes in Clinton County, namely John Oberlin's government class at Ovid-Elsie High School and John Wilcox's government class at St. Johns High School.

Though both classes comprised a cross section of students in each school, the ideas expressed by the Ovid-Elsie students were not the same ideas expressed by the St. Johns students.

Ovid-Elsie students, for the most part, would not be opposed to being drafted. Many looked upon the thought of going to war as a real possibility. If the draft were reinstated and they were drafted, they would go, though they would prefer there be no war and therefore no need for a draft.

O-E students talked about giving up two years of their lives and then coming back to resume where they had taken off. They didn't mention the possibility of being killed.

St. Johns students, generally, did not have a patriotic sense of duty. They made a differentiation between a fringe war and an all-out war between the Soviet Union and the United States, giving no justification to the draft if the U.S. gets involved in a fringe war, but saying their minds would change if it were an "us vs. them" situation.

Ovid-Elsie students felt the present enlistment system was not attracting a high quality of individuals, whereas St. Johns students had the attitude that those who want to enlist should enlist and the armed forces will train them.

Would the males want the females to be drafted? Both groups said that if it was okay for the men, it was okay for the women to be drafted. Both didn't want women fighting however.

Interestingly, the females at Ovid-Elsie were more willing to be drafted than the females at St. Johns.

Both interviews allowed students to direct their own thought and topics of conversation about the draft. Specific questions about patriotism, women in the draft, and willingness to be drafted were standard, however.

The following are comments of the senior students. Responses are divided by school system.

Ovid-Elsie

"I wouldn't mind being drafted," said Pat Mead. He felt both men and women should register for the draft, but only men should be fighting.

"That would bring on a whole new kind of fighting," he joked when thinking about men and women fighting side by side.

"I'd go but I wouldn't want to," said Sue Warren. She qualified her statement by saying, "I definitely don't like to fight."

"I would go but..." said Mike Hudecek. He said he plans to attend Please turn to Page 5

Cultural series initiated in SJ

St. Johns

"A first for St. Johns," is how William Tennant, high school orchestra director described a new Cultural Concert Series announced for the St. Johns community. Calling it "a longtime dream that has finally happened," he said the series will present three outstanding programs by three outstanding and well known cultural groups.

Coming to St. Johns are the Western Michigan University Symphony Orchestra, Thursday, Feb. 7; the Interlochen Arts Academy Dance Ensemble, Friday, March 7; and the Central Michigan University Jazz Ensemble, Thursday, April 3. All of the programs start at 7:30 p.m. and will be in Pocus Auditorium at St. Johns High School.

"The three groups were selected to present a varied series, one that would give the community a fine opportunity to experience three distinct art forms," explained Tennant. "All three groups have an excellent reputation and will offer St. Johns a highly professional level experience."

Series passes are now on sale at each school in the St. Johns system and can be bought at the door on Thursday at the Western Michigan University concert. These passes will give the purchaser a chance to attend all three programs. A Family series pass is $12.00, adult series pass, $5.00 and youth pass, $3.00 for those 18 and under. Individual tickets to each concert will be sold at the door only, at $2.00 adult and $1.25 youth. Senior citizens can purchase an adult series pass or an adult individual ticket at half price.

"I sincerely hope that the community will support this venture," Tennant said. "It is something that can continue year after year if successful."

This program is a co-operative effort of the St. Johns Music Department, the Community Education Office, Community Resource Volunteers and the Michigan Council for the Arts.

GOVERNOR CRITICIZED

School budgets cut short

By Sharon Randall
Staff Writer

Clinton County

Clinton County Intermediate School District Superintendent Larry Schwartzkopf spoke out against Governor William Milliken's recent budget recommendations saying that taxpayers should be aware that state support for education is declining and local property taxes are being expected to cover a bigger share each year.

"My biggest concern is with the governor's priorities," Schwartzkopf said. "Actual increases from K-12 education in programs and services only amount to a 1.5 percent increase while social services are recommended for a 9.1 percent increase and mental health for a 7.5 percent increase."

"School districts are being hit with inflation just like everyone else," Schwartzkopf said listing increases in transportation, fringe benefits and supplies.

Schwartzkopf, who said that many educators are irritated and frustrated, explained that state figures show a $65.5 million increase in school aid support but that the figure is misleading because $41.8 million is money earmarked for the teacher retirement system.

"In actuality only $23.7 million more is going into K-12 education services," he said. He compares this increase with $46.5 million going into mental health and $250 million to social services.

What has Schwartzkopf and other educators worried is the decline in state responsibility to education. With State Equalized Valuation (SEV) shooting up (educators are projecting a 12 percent increase this year) the state budget is reflecting a trend toward leaving more and more of the needs of local school districts to the local property taxpayer.

"It's time for taxpayers and citizens to realize that the state is fudging on its responsibility to education," Schwartzkopf said. "Every year they are giving less to support education in this state and are expecting local taxpayers to make up the difference."

State support to education comes from two funds. Sixty percent of the state sales tax fund is earmarked for education and state officials must include it in the school aid dollars. This support to schools is increasing each year but the state's actual commitment to education is shown in the general fund dollars that are recommended each year and according to Schwartzkopf this commitment has declined the last two years. In 1980 the general fund budget provided $921 million in education funds. This was a drop from the 1979 budget of $928 million. This year budget recommendations allows only $885 million for education.

State wide figures show a 56,000 decline in students but Schwartzkopf says the student decline means little in dollars saved when spread out over the state. "A school may lose 50 students," he explained, "but that covers K-12 and you'll find you are losing only three or four students per class. That doesn't amount to a cost savings."

Schwartzkopf said it is time for educators and taxpayers to speak out and question education's priority in the state budget. "People are going to have to take the time to call their senators, legislators and the governor's office and get the message across in letters to the newspapers," he said.

"It has to come from the people," he explained. "Educators aren't listened to because they expect us to say this." Schwartzkopf said he is also a parent and has grave concerns for the trends reflected in the recent budget recommendations. "Unless the people start to speak out, we'll never get this reversed," he said. "Have we lost sight of education in our state?" he questioned. "I hope not."

Oxen pulled

Joe George of Route 2, Fowler, and his friend Al Hayhoe of Dimondale stopped by the Clinton County News office last Tuesday. They were on their way home after working 12 days in Frankenmuth, helping to put the new Zehnder Holz-Brucke (covered bridge) in place, using Hayhoe's team of oxen. (Photo by Patrice Hornak)

Fowler man helps move bridge

Frankenmuth
For nearly two weeks, Joe George of Fowler and his friend Alfred Hayhoe of Dimondale worked with Hayhoe's team of oxen as the oxen pulled a covered bridge over the Cass River in Frankenmuth.

The 239-foot replica of a 19th century covered bridge was in place over the Cass River on Jan. 29. George and his friend went to Frankenmuth on Jan. 17.

It was the first time both men had ever worked on a project like this, but on their way home they said they would gladly do it again—any time of the day or night.

The bridge is the dream of the Zehnder brothers, principal owners of the Zehnder Restaurant Corp. of Frankenmuth. The bridge will also have a practical use, to carry vehicles over the Cass River to additional parking facilities.

The bridge weighed 230 tons and was built on dry land by Arnold and Milton Graton.

It was pulled into place by Hayhoe's team of oxen and another oxen team. A system of block, capstan, come-alongs and pulleys enabled each oxen in a team to pull as much as 180 oxen could pull.

Michigan has only three covered bridges open for vehicular traffic.

Elderly woman killed in auto mishap

Bath Township

An elderly woman who failed to look for oncoming traffic before crossing Clark Road to get to her mailbox last Saturday, was struck by an automobile and killed. The woman, Nola K.

Tarrant, 79, of 5099 Clark Rd., Bath was killed in the accident about 2 p.m. Saturday. Bath Township police said this was the first fatal in Bath Township since July of 1977. The driver of the auto, Jeffrey Paul Hoffman, 19 of Box 452 M-75, Walloon Lake, was westbound on Clark Road. He swerved to avoid Mrs. Tarrant, said police reports. He was not charged in the incident. Sunday night an unknown subject threatened to blow up Spagnuolo's Party Store, after party store personnel wouldn't sell the subject a package of cigarettes. He said as he left the store that he would be back to blow up the store.

Accidents send 5 to hospital

Clinton County

Clinton County Sheriff's department deputies reported two separate injury accidents which sent five people to the hospital this past week.

A car driven by Vicki Lynn Helmka, Owosso was traveling eastbound on Round Lake Road when another vehicle traveling westbound crossed the centerline, causing the Helmka vehicle to leave the roadway on the south side of the road. The car traveled 300 feet before coming to a stop. Police reports indicate the car was airborne for 61 feet.

Helmka and three passengers were taken to Owosso Memorial Hospital for treatment. The accident happened on Feb. 2 at 12:15 a.m.

Patrick Allan Thelen, Perinton, told police officers he fell asleep at the wheel, running off an Essex Township road and striking a tree. The accident happened at 3:10 a.m. on Feb. 3.

The Ovid-Elsie High School, Colony Road, Elsie, had two fire extinguishers and about 30 gallons of gasoline stolen on Jan. 30 at 7:30 a.m. Four days later it was reported by a school official that a barbed wire fence was cut around the school bus area.

Michael T. Brunton, Grand Ledge, reported $370 worth of building materials were taken from his residence on Jan. 30 at 9 a.m. Somewhere Else Restaurant, St. Johns, had a 12 inch black and white television valued at $75 stolen on Feb. 2.

Robertson on TV panel

Lansing

Clinton County Probate Judge Marvin E. Robertson will appear on local television with a panel of experts to discuss the problem of in-family sexual abuse of children.

The program will be aired Saturday, Feb. 10 at 7:30 p.m. on WILX-TV Channel 10.

The program, entitled "The Baxters", dramatizes a situation where a family discovers sexual abuse of one of the children. Immediately after the dramatization, local experts will discuss the problem and what can be done about it.

"I am pleased to see the local media is portraying sensitive family social issues in a positive and tasteful manner", said Judge Robertson. "Hopefully, viewers can get an insight into the problem of sexual abuse and a sense of direction on where to go to get help for family members".

★ Apartments

That property has already been rezoned from R-1 to R-3. Orchard Apartments took over the project in October from Jim Prince of Lansing.

A rezoning request from Russell Johnson of St. Johns to have property located between Jeanne's Beans and the car wash on north Clinton Avenue has been referred to the city planning commission.

Johnson's request used terms apartments and condominiums interchangeably to describe his 12-unit complex. He said he is indecisive at this time about the type of complex it will be. Financing will play an important role in making that decision.

Johnson said he hopes to begin construction within the next six months.

During the past couple of years, a number of rezoning request from apartment developers have been submitted to the city commission.

Randy Briggs of St. Johns has obtained rezoning, variances and a special use permit to build 29 apartment units on Sturgis Street.

Briggs said he is still planning to go through with the project but financing must first be arranged.

At least two years ago Fedewa Builders obtained rezoning for property near the senior citizen apartments near Andy's IGA. That request was for a 50-unit senior citizen apartment project.

Several successful rezoning requests for property on the corner of Lansing and Gibbs Street and on Vauconsant Street were submitted three or four years ago. Those rezoning requests have expired, said City Clerk Richard Coletta.

Last year a request for rezoning property on N. Lansing Street to build apartments was tabled by the planning commission because the property in question was enrolled in the Farmland Preservation Act.

Coletta said a curve in the whole apartment development picture could be the city's water situation.

"The state health department would look very tough on increases in the water distribution system until we have more wells that work," he said.

The city found our last week that the new well being built in the city park is a dud. The water contains too much iron to be used for private consumer use. The commission will have to start over again in securing another well.

It is investigating a well site on the Clinton Area Care Center property on Scott Road, near the Wheel Inn Restaurant.

Harassing phone calls reported

DeWitt City

Five persons in DeWitt received harassing phone calls last Monday, Jan. 28 as reported by the DeWitt City Police Department.

DeWitt police said the five calls were placed between 10 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

in his 20's claimed to be Dr. Avery from the DeWitt Middle School when adults answered the phone, or claimed to be taking a sex education survey for the middle school if a young person answered the phone.

Students in DeWitt had the day off from school.

that paneling near the doors was torn loose, the door closing mechanism and door trim were also damaged.

Also during the past week, St. Johns police arrested two persons for writing bad checks. Several persons were cited for careless or reckless driving.

Burns to attend national meeting

Dr. Donald W. Burns, superintendent of St. Johns public schools, has been nominated through a national screening process for membership in the 39th annual Superintendents' Work Conference at Teachers College, Columbia University, July 7-July 18.

Membership in the conference is by invitation only. Attendance is limited to approximately 45 outstanding chief school officers from school systems throughout the United States. The conference will focus on the critical issues and problems in educational administration. School financing, school-community relations, discipline, negotiations, the decision-making process, the federal legislative outlook and other topics of immediate and long-range concern to the chief school officer will be the focal points of the addresses, discussions and activities which take place during the two weeks.

In addition, the nominees will have the opportunity both to hear eminent authorities in education, industry, government and other fields, and to exchange ideas derived from their experience. They will also have the opportunity to meet informally with members of the Teachers College faculty.

Parent group forms for special ed

Clinton County

A group of parents whose children receive special education services through the Clinton County Intermediate School District and other citizens in the county who are interested in special education have formed a group called Clinton County Citizens for Special Education (CCCSE).

Two major activities coming up for the group includes a parent training workshop and a question and answer program on the district's plans for special education.

The group will meet Tuesday, February 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the Intermediate Office on US-27 when Paul Towers, Special Education director will discuss and answer questions about future planning for special education in Clinton County. The constitution of the newly formed group is to be presented for approval and committees are to be established. CCCSE is open to all interested friends and parents of any students who receives special education services through the Intermediate School District.

Doug Parker, president of the CCCSE likened the group to a Parent-Teacher Organization that traditionally works for the betterment of a particular school. "Basically, we are trying to work with the Intermediate School District and be involved with planning of programs for our children," he said. The group intends to volunteer to help with things special education teachers and their children are doing. "We will raise funds for specific needs, like equipment or whatever is needed," he explained.

The CCCSE intends to be involved across the whole spectrum of special education and parents are eligible no matter how their child participates in the program. "The CCCSE is for anyone who receives a service," Parker said. "It may just be speech or it may be a combination of more extensive services."

A series of three workshops have been planned in cooperation with the Michigan Association of Citizens with Learning Disabilities and will acquaint participants with their rights and responsibilities as parents of special education children and the laws pertaining to them. The workshops will be held at the Intermediate District office from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on three consecutive Saturdays, February 16, February 23 and March 1. To enroll, call Nona Edsenga 669-3992 or Joyce Laing 482-1990.

Parker said the workshops will address two of the groups goals. They will help inform members about state and national laws concerning special education and will provide a list of persons and agencies that advise and aid parents in the solution to their problems concerning the laws.

Other purposes of the parent group are: To obtain a better understanding of the existing programs of the Intermediate District and take an active part in the planning of new services and facilities.

To give support to those parents with special education children.

To improve the general welfare of special education persons within the county and the programs offered to them.

To help the public develop a better understanding of the problems of special education.

Warstler new county planner

St. Johns Tom Warstler has migrated back to St. Johns from the Upper Peninsula. He assumed the duties of Clinton County Planner from John Rodd on Dec. 31, 1979. Rodd was planner after Dennis Dunnigan resigned last year to take a position in Eaton County as its planning director.

Warstler, a 1971 graduate of St. Johns High School served as assistant planner under Dunnigan from August of 1977 to March of 1978. He graduated from Aquinas College in 1975 and attended graduate school at Northern Michigan University from 1975 to 1977.

The planning and zoning departments merged together after Dunnigan's resignation and are collectively known as the Department of Developmental Control. Jack Nelson, former zoning administrator is the department director.

Warstler and the Clinton County Planning Commission met recently and have prioritized items which are of immediate importance in the county.

The new planner's first task is to complete the 701 Housing and Land Use element. This is used as a planning tool, as well as an incentive. By completing this, the county could be eligible to apply for additional planning monies which may include Community Block Grants.

Another priority item to be looked at and discussed is an overall Economic Development Program. Warstler indicated there might be the possibility of a regional development program.

Presently he is working on planning analysis of pending zoning cases.

As county planner, Warstler is a member of the Capitol Area Regional Transportation System (CARTS) Committee, and a housing task force for Tri-County Regional Planning. He will also be working with County Administrative Aide Jerry Ambrose on a county transportation committee which is under the leadership of Commissioner Earl Lancaster.

Warstler's salary is $13,600 and is expected to be increased to $14,500 after a six month probationary period. Before coming to St. Johns, the young man was housing planner in Houghton which serviced the western Upper Peninsula.

"It's nice to be back home," Warstler said. Tom, his wife Pasqua, and one-year-old daughter, Page reside at 812 W. Cass.

court costs on the charge of negligent homicide and felonious driving.

Terwilliger appeared before Judge Timothy Green in Clinton County Circuit Court Jan. 31.

High School Auditorium. Tickets for the show will be sold at the door. Ticket prices are $1 for all seats; there will be no reserved seating. During the past weekend the cast and crews of the production played to three sold-out and overflowing audiences of approximately 2,500 people. The energetic cast and crews kept the audience spellbound with their many stage gimmicks and fine acting performances. In fact, so many enjoyed the show the first time, that they repeated their experiences by coming to one or more additional shows after Friday night's performance.

The cast is headed by Mike VanRooyen as the Scarecrow, Gene Turcotte as the Lion, Todd Scott as the Tin Woodsman, Carol Huguelet as Dorothy, and a particular favorite of the audiences, Jane Miller as the Wicked Witch.

In addition to these strong performers, the cast is comprised of Robin Lawson as the Good Witch Glinda, Tim Weaver as the Wizard, Kit Connelly as Toto, Dean Hartenburg as the Guardian, LouAnn Shellito as the China Princess, Irenna Garapetyan, Gary Blasen, Michelle Rehmann, and Pat Magsig as the Flying Monkeys, Gae Cobb, Linda Speers, Steph Lawson, and Lisa Desprez as the opiate poppies, Bill LeVeck, Don Smith, and Mike Humenik as the Fighting Trees, Sue Federeau as Aunt Em, and Bryan Moore, Rose Shellito, Nancy Tingay, Laurie Page, and Kendra Paksi as the Munchkins.

The show is under the direction of R.L. Koger and student director Kris Tetens, with Miss Lean Smith doing the costume design and direction.

People are reminded to arrive for their seats early as the theatre holds only 700 people, with a standing room only capacity that can exceed a little more than 150 additional seats. After that time, it will be necessary to turn patrons away, due to space limitations and fire marshal regulations. The box office for the show will open at 6:30 p.m.

Third graders in St. Johns, as well as throughout the United States and Canada, use a map skills book distributed by the Weekly Reader series. In the book is a map of the US-27 and M-21 interchange. It was quite a surprise to Kara Scranton, daughter of Linda and Terry Scranton of 508 Baldwin St., to find her city and surrounding area in this widely used booklet. (Photo by Patrice Hornak)

Energy firm receives contract

St. Johns
Escher:Foster Technology Associates, Inc. (E:F), a St. Johns-based energy technology firm, has received a contract from the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) to study the use of hydrogen as a transportation fuel.

William J.D. Escher, president of the firm, stated that under this contract, E:F will carry out technical monitoring of several DOE contracted programs investigating engines, onboard fuel containment, and vehicle systems using hydrogen.

DOE's highway vehicle hydrogen fuels projects are being carried out as part of a more general Alternative Fuels Utilization Program (AFUP) under the direction of E. Eugene Ecklund of the DOE's Conservation and Solar Energy organization in Washington, D.C. The AFUP supports development of new transportation fuel options based on non-petroleum, domestically available resources.

Escher stated that the firm will also be investigating the implications of future hydrogen supply technologies, and will work to facilitate the exchange of information on hydrogen fuel between researchers and the automotive and fuels industries.

E:F has established both a national and international reputation in the hydrogen energy field, and is carrying out a number of related projects on alternative fuels for transportation systems. The new contract was awarded to the firm on the basis of a competitive, small business procurement action by the DOE.

★ Seniors and the draft college and two years of his life in the service are not in his plans right now. Why would he go? "It's our patriotic duty. We have to fight for our freedom and Russia does pose a threat to us. I wouldn't want to give up some of the freedoms I have right now," he said.

When asked about women having to take up arms, Theresa Batora said men can accept danger better than women. "That's their duty to protect us. That's the way it is," she said. If she were drafted, but did not have to fight she said she would go. "Maybe not willingly."

I would go willingly out of patriotic spirit, but it would set my plans back," said Ken Delaney. "If it came between my plans and not having a country, I would go," he said.

"It's crossed my mind that I'd go to Canada," said Lisa Stinson. "Blood and guts grosses me out," she said, but added that a Washington desk job in the armed forces would agree with her. "I don't want to die for anything. I value my life more than that," she said.

Delaney pointed out that the new draft should not allow students to get educational deferments. He felt the upper class people can afford to go to college and avoid the draft while the middle and lower class people don't always have that opinion.

One of the students in Oberlin's class is Finn Jensen, an exchange student from Denmark. He said in his country, everybody goes into the service for nine months when they are 18 years of age. He said they look forward to the nine months. He also added they they get paid $1,000 a month.

Jensen said they don't have to handle a gun. Rather, students can choose the division that interests them, providing there aren't too many students signed up for that division. He said he plans to work in radar or in a tank.

Students can sign up for longer stints, if they wish. After they are trained, they are on call should an emergency arise.

Oberlin asked his class this question: Is war just and moral? No one felt it was. "Under some circumstances" half the class felt war was necessary and all said they would fight if a war erupted between the United States and the Soviet Union.

St. Johns

Would it be alright with you if you were drafted?

"Yes," said Michelle Signs. But she said before all the Iran and Afghanistan turmoil, the answer would have been no.

"I feel the U.S. has a better means to win a war," said Mike Moore. "You don't need all those extra men in the draft," he said. His suggestion was to use lots of aircrafts and artillery except in the case of fighting the Soviet Union or a large country such as that. It's not the number of people fighting but the power that is important in his estimation.

"Yes," said Greg Wood, who said he would fight the Soviet Union for the control of the oil supply to the free world. He also urged stepped up alternative fuel research.

"Not for a fringe war," said Sandy Williams. "I'm not ready to use my blood to heat somebody's home," she said.

St. John males felt women should be drafted, but only half felt they should fight. Of the females in the class, most believed women shouldn't be drafted. Only one felt women should fight.

Peter Witteveen suggested there should be a mandatory service commitment for everyone.

Joan Pawlowski felt that if she were drafted, the easiest way out of it would be to get pregnant.

Students expressed a desire to "send in the whole force and wipe out" the enemy as suggested by Mike VanRooyen. They felt a dragging war of cat and mouse exemplified by the Vietnam war was not the way to fight.

Scholarship tryouts slated

St. Johns
Audition materials are ready for piano and voice students who wish to participate in the St. Johns Morning Musicales annual scholarship tryouts in April. They can be picked up from Mrs. Paul Martis, 311 S. Clinton Ave.

The annual $100 scholarship, started by the Morning Musicales in 1951, is to be used by the winner to attend a summer music camp or take additional private lessons.

Auditions will take place April 26 but the scholarship committee must know of the candidate's intention to compete by April 15.

St. Johns Morning Musicales is affiliated with National and State Federation of Music Clubs and has been active in promoting music with young people for many years in this area. Any student who attends a Clinton County high school is eligible for the competition.

Last year awards went to both an Elsie and a Fowler student. Mrs. Martis said that over the years the scholarship has gone to students who have become serious musicians. Included are local musician, Cayle Beagle; Ronda Woodbury Hambleton, piano teacher and organist; Carolyn Nickel, accomplished musician and Barbara Lake Goodnight who is working on her master's degree in the performing arts.

7 injured in crashes

DeWitt
Seven people were injured in three separate accidents on Dewitt Township roads during the past week.

Three teenagers were rushed to St. Lawrence Monday, Jan. 28 after their vehicle went out of control and rolled over into a ditch on State Road near Chandler Road around 2:45 p.m.

The driver of the vehicle was Steven Goeddeke, 17, of 15639 Chandler Rd. Passengers were Jill Goeddeke, 16, and Joseph Goeddeke, 15.

On Feb. 1 at 3:45 p.m., a vehicle driven by Dixie Lee Greenhoe of Randolph Street, Lansing, collided with a vehicle driven by Mary Marx of W. Willow Street, Lansing at the intersection of US-27 and Boichot Road.

A passenger in the Greenhoe vehicle, Cathy Mason, 22 of Dorrance Street, Lansing, was seriously injured and taken to Sparrow Hospital. The other two women sustained minor injuries.

Ms. Greenhoe was cited for failure to yield the right of way.

Sunday night, Feb. 3 a vehicle driven by Kenneth Pardee failed to negotiate a curve on Round Lake Road at Cutler Road and traveled out of control over 325 feet.

3rd graders practice grammar

By Sue Kiley Staff Writer

DeWitt
When it comes to good grammar, Carol Young's third graders practice a lot. Or at least they are trying harder to talk better.

For three weeks the youngsters practiced good grammar habits. Then for the next three weeks they kept a chart on how many times someone in the class said something incorrectly.

Not only were the good grammar techniques exercised in the classroom, but it was also to the playground, halls, and home.

"We tried to get them away from saying, 'me and my brother', brung, seen, ain't, gotta, and haven't got no," Mrs. Young explained. "For some learning to speak properly was more than a small task."

When someone said something wrong in the class it was supposed to be brought to the attention of the person privately. However, if there was one drawback to the whole exercise, it was the children ended tattling on each other, in some instances.

"The first week was almost a disaster," the teacher said with an almost embarrassed laugh. "We worked on improvement...and as you can see most of them did," she added pointing to her chart.

The language errors were affectionately named, "grammar goofs." The children were promised they would receive an award if they talked correctly during the coming weeks.

Of the 30 children in the class, four received excellent awards and seven received very good awards.

"Of course, you have to remember that some children are more outspoken than others," Mrs. Young said.

The idea for the grammar exercise originally came from Don Powell, principal of the David Scott School on Wilson Street. He wanted to include teachers in on the project too. Mrs. Young's class was the only one choosing to participate.

"We've done this kind of thing before," she said. "But not on an award system. I think this way it made the children more aware and gave them something tangible to work toward."

The children had their own ideas about speaking correctly and why it was a good example to follow.

It's not polite to say, 'I got,' Raynee Leitz said.

It's nicer to talk right," Kelli Ryan added. "I learned to say the right things," Joe Elhott said. "Even my mom noticed an improvement."

"You can learn from your mistakes," a little girl named Jenny shyly said. Denise quickly added, "You can get better and then teach others."

Clay Dowling summed up the whole situation like this, "Talking correctly is not real easy."

Draft women and watch for baby boom

By Patrice Hornak

Will women be drafted? President Carter has made his decision about having women register for the draft, but he's not telling anyone. Even if Congress dictates that women be drafted, I wonder what effect that will have on this nation.

For certain, there will be a baby boom.

Instead of moving to Canada or spending five years in jail for not wanting to serve in the armed forces, women have a relatively simple solution—get pregnant.

Getting pregnant without being married has a social stigma. Morally, it is wrong. But, when faced with a baby or the draft, is it inconceivable to think that these baby makers may be thought as heroines for bucking the system and getting away with it?

While their friends are serving in the armed forces in some capacity—possibly as a nurse, a researcher, a secretary, an officer, or whatever—the draft dodger would be able to stay home. And, home she will stay for the next 18 years until that baby leaves the nest.

That seems like justice. The draft dodger would have 18 years of service, while the recruit would have but a few.

Injustice would come in the realization that most draft dodging women will survive giving birth to a baby, while their enlisted counterparts may not be as fortunate. That is the price of war.

If there is any way possible, hopefully the United States will stay out of any world conflict. That's a hard shoe to fill when you consider that we are a world power—protector of other free nations on this earth.

Women can aid the military. We may not be geared for combat, but we can help. If men can help, then women can help.

As in any society, some people are better geared for some jobs and others are more capable in other jobs. That's why we all aren't journalists.

It will be interesting to see how this issue of women in the draft is decided in Congress.

WINTER BLUES

What are winter blues? Are you one of those who do have winter blues? Everyone seems to be talking about it.

It's true when you look outside, the leaves are gone from the trees, the flowers are gone, the grass is dead and it could present quite a bleak look to some.

On the other hand, look at the beauty of the snow as it drifts down covering each tree and bush and even each small twig. The utility companies look at things differently, but even the snow or ice on the wires presents a beautiful picture.

All of us hate to see an ice storm come. It brings disaster to so many people, but it's like a fairyland picture.

If you have trouble getting out when there is snow, then you can easily get winter blues. What about those who have prayed for snow for skiing, snowmobiling, ice skating, tobogganing and all the rest? They sure are happy.

The only conclusion you can come to is that it's all in your frame of mind, your way of life and your likes and dislikes.

What can you do to cure winter blues? Each of us has something that is special just for us. Some people call it talents, but the way I do things I'm one who doesn't rate talents.

Do you sew, crochet, knit, make ceramics hook rugs, work with tools, do carpenter work, play the piano or organ or some other instrument?

Are you good at baking, cooking, decorating, upholstering, painting, papering, cleaning the house or something else?

You see, there is something you can do. Do you like to entertain, play cards, play games, eat out or go to the movies?

Any one of these things or something else will take you out of the Winter Blues.

Do you have the Winter Blues? Well, just work on it.

Everyone is invited Feb. 8 from 8 to 11 p.m. to a dance at the K of C Hall. Stevens Band will play with Sam Sherwood calling the square dances. Light refreshments will be furnished; $1.50 admission for each person with all proceeds going to the Senior Citizen Drop-in Center. Have a fun-filled evening.

So.....until next time.

Another side to tax limitation

By Richard L. Milliman

WHAT REALLY happens when a government puts a lid on tax revenues?

Not all good things, according to the results of just such an experiment in the city of Saco, Maine.

In Saco, the voters decided last year to put a limitation on local property tax revenue at $3 million, compared with $3.6 million in 1978, according to the Associated Press. The vote also permitted a 2 percent per year inflation factor—which isn't much, in today's inflationary climate.

Taxes were limited all right, but so were services. Shortly after the limitation was adopted by the voters, city and school officials (who work out of the same financial pie in Saco) started cutting their budgets.

HERE WERE some of the results, as listed in the AP news report:

—The police department lost 4 members of a 28-person department; Serious crime in the city jumped 25 percent and vandalism shot up 44 percent.

—The crime increase was blamed only partly on police cuts; sharing the responsibility were cuts in school programs and in parks-recreation programs.

—Local elementary schools, with 1650 students, lost 17 teachers; the local high school (semi-public, semi-private) lost 11 of 39 instructors.

—Schools dropped physical education and inter-school sports for lower grades, cut art lessons, reduced course offerings; the size of many classes rose from 20 or 22 students to more than 30 students.

—Scores of public employees were dismissed, the city council had almost a complete turnover of members, and public debate was bitter.

THE CITY had to borrow money to meet some payrolls; the city also defaulted on a $2.1 million tax anticipation loan, which was not directly blamed on the tax limit by most of those involved, but instead came from mismanagement and past problems.

"By clamping the tax cap on, it brought all the underlying problems—mismanagement and lack of revenue—to the surface more quickly," said one observer.

Commented a school strong school supporter: "There are parents who will look us in the eye and say, 'I voted for the tax cap,' and look you in the other eye and say, 'You're hurting my child.'"

The only way to remove the tax ceiling in Saco is through another referendum. Although the news story doesn't say, I'd guess there's a move afoot to call for another vote.

THE EXPERIENCE in Saco points up the only true way to cut taxes, and that's by reducing services. There's no other magic formula, no matter what political candidates or office holders might indicate.

Cutting services always hurts somebody; it's not a popular thing to do.

As tax limitations are argued during this election year, it might be well to keep in mind the sad experience of the people in Saco, Maine.

Cutting taxes is only half the story—the good half. The other side—reducing government services—brings the pain.

EVER WONDER where your federal taxes go? According to a recent study by the magazine, U.S. News and World Report, a family of four with an income of $20,000 would support the federal government in approximately this fashion:

The defense department would get $606, while social security would receive $1,016. Education would be in for $62, the space program would get $23, welfare payments would take $70, military pensions would cost $60, and $346 is just for interest on the national debt.

The department of energy would receive $45, while $38 would go for food stamps, the FBI would get $4 and the national park service $2.

The cheapest national service receiving tax dollars under this listing would be the White House at 21 cents.

SAYS RETIRED DRIVER

Being a bus driver is a big job

Ernest Baker, retired St. Johns school bus driver brought this poem in to the Clinton County News saying that transporting school children is a big job. Baker drove bus in the St. Johns district for 18 years. His first bus was the last red, white and blue bus owned by the school.

With winter's ice and snow approaching at last, Baker said he hopes parents and citizens keep in mind the efforts of the school bus driver because weather hazards compound the responsibilities of the job.

THE SCHOOL BUS DRIVER

Those big yellow busses roll down the road, never missing a school day hauling their load.

There are responsible drivers doing their part, let me brief you—on bus driving right from the start.

Now this isn't hearsay, I've been on the scene, if you try to keep order you are downright mean.

The riders think they should yell and boo, and tell you repeatedly it's nothing to you.

The roads are not good, the sun is a glare, in return for a smile you get an empty stare.

Johnny is crying and Sue's lost a glove, and Milton the bully gives each one a shove.

This child doesn't feel well, that one has a crutch, first-aid to be given there are nosebleeds and such.

The motor is missing, not running quite right, in the back of the bus they have started a fight.

Report them to their parents, you're nuts if you do, their child is a good child, what's wrong with you.

That one little boy is on the wrong bus, you give comfort and cheer when he starts to fuss.

A child from the bus stop runs into the street, thank God he's not hurt, you are trembling and weak.

There's a car stalled ahead, you can't make a right turn, people running your flashers, they just never learn.

And then there's the breakdown though the bus may be new, light flares and keep order till help comes to you.

Each different experience is a kind of a test, to keep you alert and doing your best.

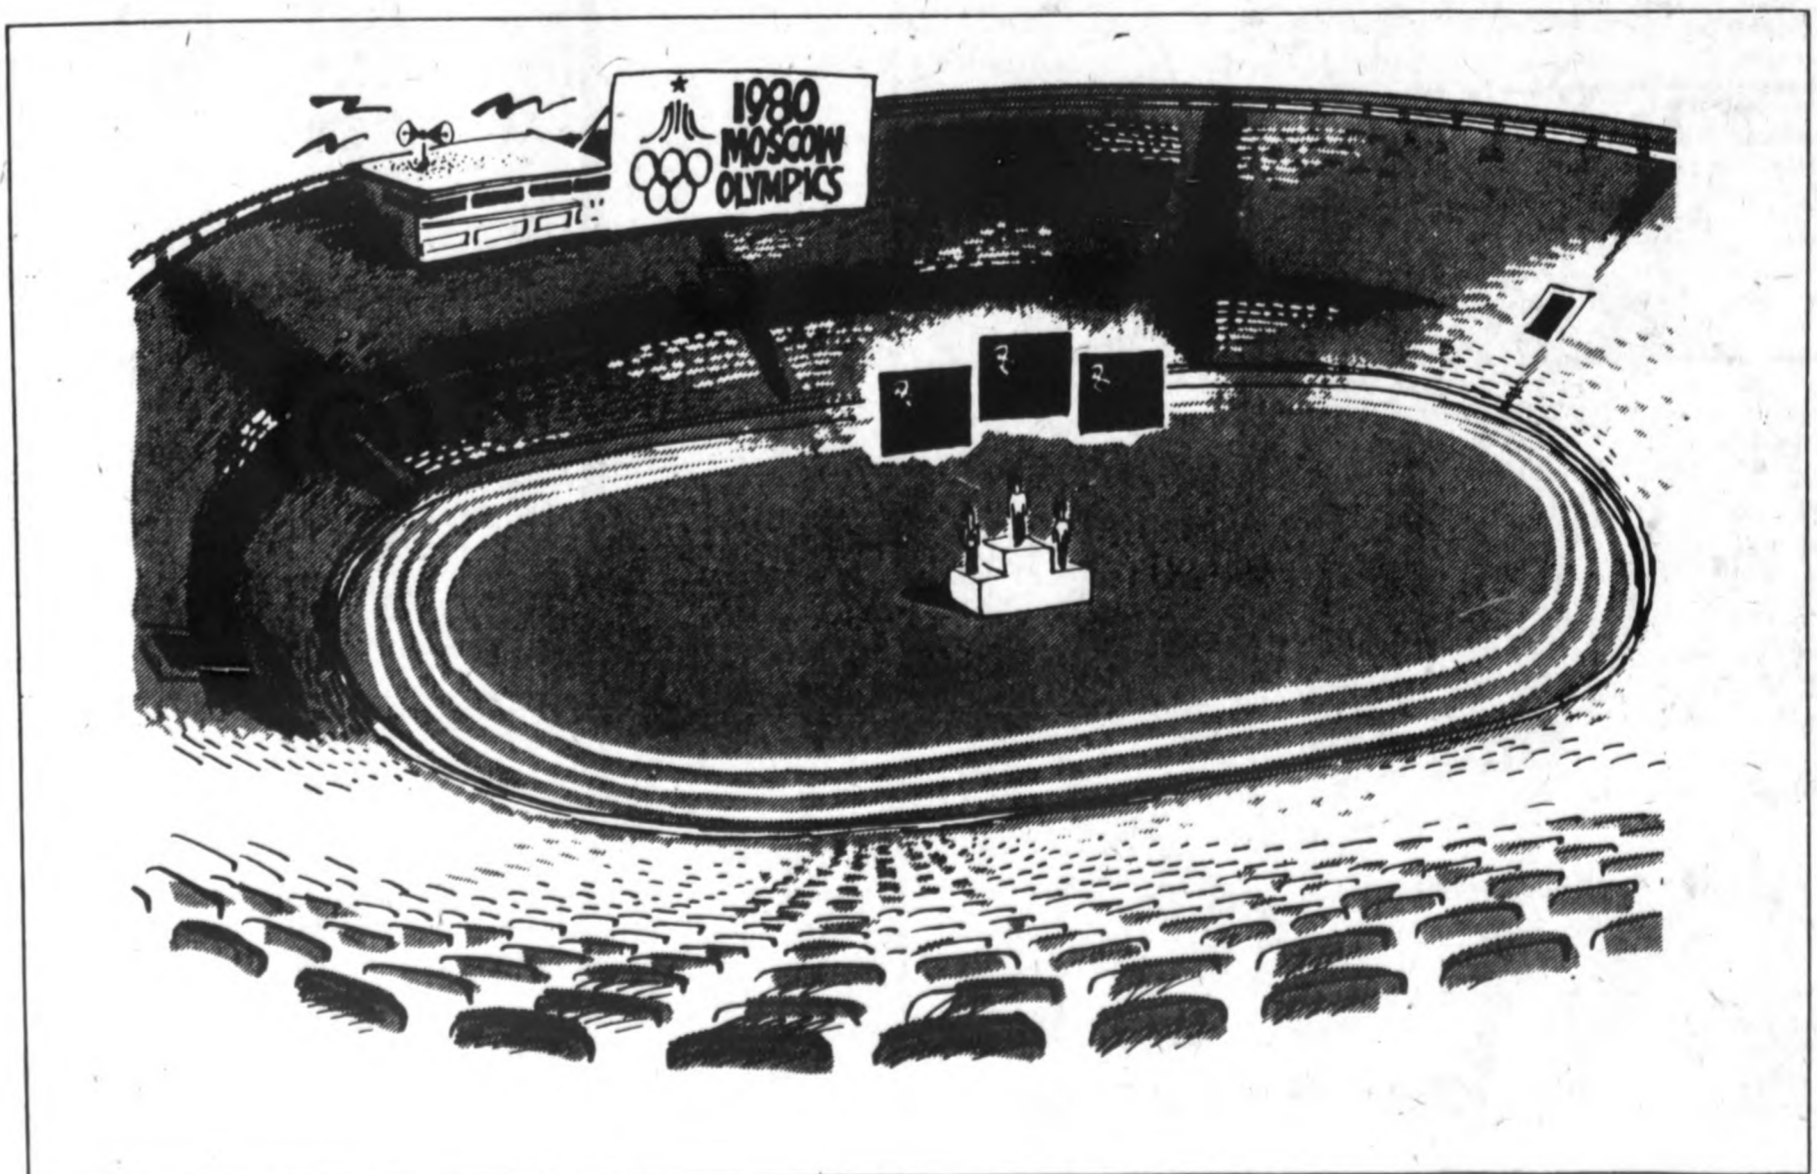

But each run is finished after a while, I've made it again you think with a smile.

A thankless job that is A Work of Art, for along with all else you must use your heart.

You've brought your bus in, but you are not through, you wondered who cleaned them.

You guessed it, we do.

—Lilla Belle Gillentine

Personality Profile

She's seen Maple Rapids grow

By Sharon Randall
Staff Writer

Maple Rapids

Marjorie Rumsey of Maple Rapids became village treasurer 17 or 18 years ago in much the same way people are still getting elected to small town offices, she was talked into it. It was 1962 or 1963 and that year all the offices changed. Her friend, Helen Howe, was running for the clerk's position and Marjorie was coaxed into the treasurer's job. The responsibility, as in any village office, was large and the pay, $300 a year, was small, but Marjorie was a local businesswoman and she felt she should do her share.

She and her husband, Raymond, ran Marge's Restaurant in Maple Rapids, taking it over in 1957. He died in 1963 and Marjorie had a heart attack in 1964 so she gave up the business but remained village treasurer, keeping her contact with people of the community. With village elections next month, Marjorie will be stepping down.

When she hands over the village financial records to the new treasurer, Marjorie will have the satisfaction of knowing that she's spent 18 years helping the village grow. While population has remained around 700, new homes are springing up and the little town has been involved in many improvement projects including new mercury lights, sewers and streets. New wells have been dug and water mains replaced and extended. Michigan Consolidated gas lines have come through the village. A new park sports baseball and softball diamonds and north of town is another park area. The most recent big project of course is the new bridge over the river.

According to Marjorie, Maple Rapids has just about everything its residents might need. She lists them off, counting on her fingers, "a grocery store and trading post, dentists, a doctor, of course, a very nice drugstore, a laundromat, three churches, and a nice library." There's a tavern with a restaurant, gas stations and a car wash. Clinton Bank and Trust brings their county service unit into town twice a week.

The near-by Rainbow Lake subdivision brings people into town. Many newcomers to the city area are city people according to Marjorie.

She says that Maple Rapids was originally a community of retired farmers. She herself came to the little town in 1917, moving there with her mother after her father died. "Mostly everyone knows everyone else," she says, although recently she has found many names coming through the tax rolls that she doesn't know. "Many of the people we knew are gone now," she says.

A widow with two small daughters, Marjorie married Raymond Rumsey in 1932. He had a daughter and together they had four more children. Today she has 19 grandchildren whose pictures fill her home. She is also a great-grandmother, five times. There will be plenty for Marjorie to do without the treasurer's job. She is multi-talented and loves all kinds of craft projects. She crochets, embroiders, paints on fabric, needlepoints and latch hooks. "I read a lot," she said, "and my grandchildren help fill up my time." She babysits for her family and also plans to do some extended visiting with her children after she retires.

"The treasurer job ties one down for the summer months," she explained. July and August are collection months and the treasurer is obligated to be on hand full time. People bring taxes to her home or send them by mail. Reflecting on the financial difficulties facing the population, Marjorie says there has been a trend of hardship showing up in delinquent taxes the last three years. "It's hard for a lot of people right now," she said.

Her treasurer's office consists of a neat little desk in her living room and a cart filled with account books. The village has 12 separate accounts right now, all required by law. Marjorie said the village has a lawyer, Bob Wood of St. Johns and an auditor comes in once a year. "That's a big help," she explained. "Sometimes I shudder at the thoughts of how much money has gone through my hands," she said.

Now, in 1980 it's time for someone else to be coaxed into the village office of treasurer and it's time for Marjorie Rumsey to retire, take care of her health, her plants, her shaggy old dog and spend time with her family.

Creativity, a gift from the family

Chloe A. Padgett
Extension Home Economist

Creativity is like a spark living in each of us when we are born, a spark that needs the nurturing circle of the family to burst into flame.

"To be creative, each of us must have someone who cares about us and who is willing to go along with our idiosyncrasies," says Gordon Riethmiller, former president of Olivet College and member of the Michigan State Board of Education. "Parents can put out creative fires by saying 'no' all the time and not valuing a child's ideas and creations," Riethmiller says. "Creative people must have support from someone."

Riethmiller suggests we might better do nothing than do something that quenches the spark of creativity in a child, because that spark cannot be created. It exists and must be nurtured.

Creativity is refinement of all the senses. It involves seeing more, hearing more, being more conscious of taste and smells. It means taking every opportunity to develop individual abilities.

Most people think of creativity as skills in the arts, music or dance.

While talent in the arts is definitely evidence of creativity, creativity is much more than that. Creativity is the ability to recognize and solve a problem. Creativity turns scrambled eggs into a souffle, scraps of cloth into a radiant quilt, a plain round pumpkin into a jack-o-lantern, bitter cranberries into a piquant sauce. Creativity turned a hollow log into a canoe and harnesses a stream to turn a wheel.

Families play a significant role in the creative development of their members, and families reap the rewards. Creativity is the strength that helps families get through hard times. Families help members deal with crisis by offering support and aid.

The first requirement for creativity is healthy self-esteem. Encouragement and appreciation from parents and other children in the family foster the kind of feeling about one's self that a child needs to have enough confidence to explore the world.

And it is through exploring the world that a child gathers the raw material for new ideas. Talking about what each family member sees while riding, hunting for leaves or nuts, exploring historical spots nearby, walking through the woods and listening for the sounds of birds or animals, all help to develop a child's consciousness of the world. And that consciousness is a storehouse of creative material for use in all aspects of a child's life.

Time alone to think and consider is another important part of nurturing creativity. Each member of the family needs quiet—a room, a corner, a chair—to allow time and silence in which to let ideas take root and grow and sometimes to flower.

Thus, the structure of the family can provide the environment in which the spark of creativity can grow into a flame. When family members are aware of their importance in the nurturance of creativity for other members of the family, respect for their individual gifts will grow. That healthy self-esteem completes the nurturing circle of the family. And this is where creativity grows.

Watch basis experts tell grain farmers

By Mark F. Hansen

GRAIN OUTLOOK

The grain trade has yet to recover, if it ever will fully, from the embargo imposed by the Carter Administration.

In the meantime, the best strategy for grain producers is to pay attention to their production management records, keep track of grain trade news, but more importantly, watch the basis.

Dr. George K. Dike, MSU Cooperative Extension Service agricultural economist, says the basis has narrowed some from the abrupt widening (deterioration) when the Chicago Board of Trade opened Jan. 9.

Note the current relationship between cash and nearby futures quotes and relate this to the same relationship that existed one, two and three years earlier.

As of this writing, (Jan. 24) the basis in Central Michigan narrowed (improved) but the gain is not yet showing the kind of cash market confidence seen in other recent years.

Soybeans seem to have been least affected by the embargo, but now face competition from the Brazilian crop which is nearing maturity. Some reports say Brazil's 1980 crop could exceed the poor 1979 crop by 35 percent. Even if the crop size were assured, it is not known what policy the Brazilian government will follow in determining what volume of beans will be exported and what aid or incentives and in what form offered to producers and processors. These decisions will ripple through the market system.

Dr. Don Mitchell, MSU agricultural economist, says the administration is committed to the pre-embargo $2.40 per bushel U.S. farm price for corn. He thinks this could be 20 to 30 cents above where the market would have settled as the result of:

(a) the higher production estimates of the Jan. 15 reports; and

(b) the suggestion of several observers that the pre-embargo early January cash and futures prices were higher than warranted by the fundamentals.

The January production estimate increased the supply side of the balance sheet by an amount about one-third as large as the quantity withdrawn from the Soviet bound shipments. At the turn of the year, a basis wider than that of late December showed the cash market, at least, sensed that comfortable supplies reduced the need to bid aggressively for inventories.

These price depressing aspects of the fundamentals coupled with the level of the administration price commitment spell high cost to the U.S. government. Higher loan rates mean higher trigger and release levels. Incentives to qualified farmers to participate in the three-year reserve have been sweetened some but may have to be more attractive. Furthermore, notes Mitchell, the issue of diversion of set-aside programs for 1980 is yet a possibility.

In the above setting, Mitchell makes two points about the effectiveness and the consequences of the embargo. The first point is that Russia will:

(a) capture some replacement feed grain from leakages in the world system; every producing nation is not going to stick by the U.S.; and (b) Russia will slow down or defer its commitment to increase meat production for diet improvement.

The second point deals with the consequences. It suggests that by trying to maintain corn prices today, we are trading good prices for something not quite so desirable in the future. Eventually, our export potential will be reduced because other nations will organize their grain supply needs so they need not depend as heavily on the United States.

'Wing cagers win two, stun Corunna

By Mark Haney
Sports Writer

St. Johns

It is amazing what a loss at home to Chesaning can do to a basketball team. For after the 79-69 loss in St. Johns to Chesaning Jan. 25, St. Johns has taken off, ripping DeWitt 82-77 in a non-league game Tuesday then toppling Mid-Michigan B Conference leader Corunna 63-61 in overtime Friday. And while the DeWitt victory came at home, the Redwings of Bob Tissot had to beat Corunna on the road.

"I think it (the win Tuesday) started to put some things together," Tissot said. "Maybe we will go out Friday and stink (against Alma), I don't know. But we finally put together two good games in a row and we also beat two teams that defeated us earlier in the year."

The big difference between the two meetings with Corunna (the Cavaliers won the first game, 79-57), Tissot said, was keeping Corunna within reach early. "We started pretty well but it stayed a nip-and-tuck game all the way," he said. The Redwings has a 13-12 lead at the end of the first quarter, but Corunna emerged with a 29-24 edge at halftime. But St. Johns, 6-7 overall and 5-4 in the league, cut it to one point in the third quarter and tied the game at 55-all when regulation time ran out.

Corunna scored first in overtime but junior forward Doug Sleep, on a pass from junior guard Bruce Fedewa, got a basket for St. Johns. When Corunna scored again it was St. Johns sophomore guard Jeff Casler's jumper that retied the score.

Corunna then missed its shot and Sleep was fouled by Cavalier senior forward Phil Annese and the Redwing made one of two free throws. After Corunna failed to score, Fedewa was fouled and he made both free throws. Redwing senior forward Bob Sutherland's foul allowed Corunna to come back within a point of St. Johns. Fedewa was fouled again, however, and made the last of his seven points. On the ensuing long pass by Corunna, Redwing junior center Ed Hallenbeck wound up with the ball as St. Johns let time expire.

"It was a good effort all the way around," Tissot said. "because we got key performances out of some key people at the right times."

Sutherland had one of those key performances. He scored 13 points and grabbed 16 rebounds. Sleep scored 14 points with nine rebounds. Casler, too, hit double figures with 13 points.

Annese, however, scored a game-high 20 for Corunna. The Redwings did keep Corunna's 6-foot-5 center Jeff Rowley bottled up. "We kept the big guy away from the boards," Tissot said, even though Corunna held a 53-47 rebounding edge, "and we did that fairly well."

The Redwings jumped out to an early lead against DeWitt, upping the margin to 40-29 at halftime. DeWitt's last quarter surge, however, wasn't enough.

St. Johns did get 21 points in the game from Sleep while Casler scored 22. DeWitt, however, got 20 points from center Mark Mohre and 14 from forward Devin Leonard.

St. Johns' junior varsity defeated Corunna 57-52 but lost to DeWitt 39-37 despite Steve Gonzales' eight points and Dennis Sleep's 12.

After the Alma game, St. Johns visits Mason Tuesday.

Marauders return to lead

By Mark Haney
Sports Writer

Ovid

This week the Ovid-Elsie High basketball team played like champions, which is where the Marauders may be at the end of the season.

For their 80-63 win over Alma Friday, coupled with St. Johns' 63-61 overtime defeat of Mid-Michigan B Conference leader Corunna, left the Marauders in a three-way tie for the Mid-Michigan B lead along with Corunna and Ionia, a 61-56 winner over Chesaning Friday.

"We are in the same position we have been in before," Marauder Coach Bob Foreback said, "depending of course on what else happens in the league. I think some teams are going to win but we are in the same position as before."

"It doesn't appear we can afford to lose another game the rest of the way."

Coupled with their 61-57 win over Pewamo-Westphalia Tuesday, Ovid-Elsie raised its overall record to 8-5 to go with the 5-2 league mark.

Friday the Marauders had little trouble taking Alma, as they used constant pressure to take a 19-6 first period lead that ballooned to a 38-17 margin at intermission.

"That (the press) is what we have been fighting all year," Alma Coach Phil Odium said. "Anybody who has pressed us has given us fits."

I think what has happened to us right now is a confidence thing," he added. "We just don't have anybody who can even dribble the ball up the floor."

The problem didn't right itself in the second half, but the Panthers went to a different style of play and eventually trimmed the margin to 14 points early in the fourth quarter.

"We just told the kids we have to go for the seals and not to play conservative on offense," Odium said.

And the surge threw a scare in the Marauders.

"I had taken (junior guard) Mark Carter out," Foreback said. "I didn't realize they had it so close. So I put Carter back in and he made a shot and put us back up by 16."

Eventually Carter accounted for a game-high 21 points while sophomore center Carl Teelander scored 14. Alma got 17 points from senior forward Dan Timmins.

Ovid-Elsie used more players Tuesday and new formula worked as they avenged an earlier 69-52 loss to Pewamo-Westphalia. It took a basket and two free throws with 16 seconds left by senior point guard Mark Hose and two more free throws by Fabus with eight seconds left to net Ovid-Elsie the win.

Hose eventually led the Marauders in the sec-saw battle with 16 points. "Both teams played well, shot really well," Foreback said. "There were not a lot of turnovers. It was just a well played ballgame by both teams."

Ovid-Elsie hit on 49 percent of its shots while Pewamo-Westphalia was good 48 percent of the time.

The Ovid-Elsie junior varsity stunned unbeaten Pewamo-Westphalia 51-50 then topped Alma Friday 54-50.

On The Mark

by Mark Haney

Now I present some not-so-noble notions neglected as not newsy by nifty newspapers.

In the wake of being named head football coach at Michigan State, Frank "Muddy" Waters has been labeled everything from too old to unable.

He deserves at least a chance to prove himself. For in his years as head coach at both Hillsdale College and at Saginaw Valley State, he proved to be a hard-working, good-natured man. He was a person who demanded much from those who served under him and much of himself. But he also was a person easy to communicate with. On more than one occasion, he was a willing subject for this reporter's interviews.

Some have questioned his coaching record, saying it was gained in the small college level. But one should remember that the game of football is nearly universal. In fact, it may be more of a true coaching test to be successful on a small college level where blue chip talent is hard to find and harder yet to keep.

Other MSU alumni and fans have questioned his ability to recruit. I think Waters' past record speaks for itself. Despite battling most of the big-name schools around the midwest, he managed to come up with talented athletes like: Bruce McLenna (formerly of the Detroit Lions), Howard Mudd (formerly of the San Francisco 49'ers), Warren Spragg (formerly of the Los Angeles Rams) and Chester Marcol (currently with the Green Bay Packers) just in his years at Hillsdale. Then too, he also recruited eventual All-Americans like linebacker John Roberts, safety Archie Robinson, runningback Nate Clark and tackle Mark Law among others.

And he came up with such people at times when other schools like Central Michigan University, Western Michigan University and the like went without.

Muddy also is a man who truly loves Michigan State. He was happy that Frank Waters III, better known as Murky, played at MSU. But he was upset when no scholarships were available for sons Bill and John, who then played under their dad at Saginaw Valley State.

And the job at MSU is one Muddy has always wanted. And now that he has it, one can bet, unlike the previous coach, he won't leave in a hurry.

If only the alumni and fans, instead of forcing him out after a year, give him a chance to show his stuff.

SIZE ISN'T EVERYTHING

The one universal yardstick for measuring basketball teams is the yardstick. Height means might. But not to a pair of Clinton County schools.

Both Pewamo-Westphalia and Fulton have done well despite any starter over the 6-foot-2 mark. Yet each has managed, through hustle and defense, to fashion some impressive winning streaks and good records.

The only drawback is the league they played in, the Central Michigan Athletic Conference. For there they have had to battle Olivet, the number two team in the Class C rankings.

Despite such a handicap, each has proven to be respectable. And respected.

SWIM, SWAM, SWUM?

Coaches often say that everything goes in cycles. And if that is true, the cycle has hit a curb in swimming. It seems that swimming programs—by that I mean boys' high school swimming—are down this year in numbers or in talent.

It would not be surprising for a school or two to be on the bottom of the talent cycle. But it is rather coincidental that nearly all the schools around Lansing should be affected at once.

There may be a boost coming, however. For if the Olympics go on this summer, the televised accounts of American swimming success could turn things around. Things like that tend to bring people out.

Kaminski battles 'itchy feet'

By Mark Haney
And
J.P. DiMaggio

A good glimpse of home, and the sight of some of those old hometown fans gave Ed Kaminski itchy feet. No, the former Ovid-Elsie High basketball standout wasn't suffering from athlete's foot. But when he saw all those hometown people cheering him on at a recent game at Central Michigan University, "Big Ed" toyed with the idea of transferring from Kent State University, where he is in his freshman year with the Golden Flashes. "It (transferring) has been on my mind more than once," Kaminski said. "If I did, it would be someplace closer to home, someplace Michigan. Someplace like here (CMU)." The former Marauder, however, is only seeing transferring as a possibility. It isn't being considered seriously. Kaminski, however, blames his roaming eyes on his own impatience. "Kent is all right," he said. "I mean the people are nice and rooting for you and everything. But I am an impatient freshman. That is the problem. I am impatient about my playing time." He isn't getting a lot of time either, playing behind seniors Trent Grooms and Harvey Daniels, the top two centers on the squad, and sophomore Bob Fowler. At last count he was averaging only 6.2 minutes per game and had started just once. He was averaging 1.6 points per contest. "He has played quite a bit considering who we have in the middle," Kent State coach Ed Douma said. Against CMU, a game Kent State lost 73-71 on a last-second scoop shot by CMU guard Melvin McLaughlin, Kaminski played 7 1/4 minutes, had two points, three rebounds and made two turnovers. And he played in front of quite a few hometown fans. "Ed had a nice cheering action out there today," Douma said. "He didn't do a lot, certainly not as much as he hoped to. He will be back next year, a little stronger, a little quicker and a little smarter. He will help us." Kaminski, too, sees a future at Kent State if he stays. "Things look good as far as next year goes," he said. "Harvey and Trent are graduating and Fowler will be a junior." But will he stay? Ovid-Elsie Coach Bob Foreback indicated he will. "He seems to like it there," Foreback said. "The two games I saw he played about nine minutes. He seemed to enjoy it. He seems to be into the team concept of things because when I talked to him, all he mentioned was how all were hoping to make the (Mid-American Conference) Playoffs." "What has upset the Kent State scene this year is the fact that the Golden Flashes had to forfeit six victories when it was discovered that forward-guard Doug Lane was academically ineligible. That changed the Golden Flashes from a 10-5 team to a 4-11 team. "The forfeits have actually helped our playing as a team," Kaminski said. "Besides, we might get Lane back yet this year." Transfer or not, Kaminski is trying to improve his game. "I am working on my dribbling, strength and rebounding. Trent has helped me a lot. He is one the league's best, if not the best, in rebounding. He has gained 20 pounds since last year by working on the Nautilus. I'm 205 pounds now and have been working on it too. I hope to get to 230. "He is playing against better competition now and he has to learn to be stronger, move his feet better and be quicker," Douma said. "His shot inside, well, he has to learn to go up stronger with his shot inside." Again, Kaminski said the difference between college and high school, at least in basketball, is strength. "The difference between high school and here are the players here are heavier, taller and stronger," he said. "I could pretty much do what I wanted to under the boards in high school. Here, I can't."

O-E swimmers fall

Ovid
Coach Thad Maciuszek found out two things this past week: 1) just how strong the Corunna High swim team is and 2) just how thin his team is. The Marauders dropped a pair of meets, falling to Chesaning Thursday, 97-75 then getting bombed Thursday by Corunna, the Mid-Michigan B Conference leader, 120-51. "They are absolutely awesome," Maciuszek said of Corunna. Senior Todd Bowdary ws the lone Marauder winner in the Corunna meet. He topped both the 50-yard and 100-yard freestyles. He won the 50-yard race in his best time this season, :24.0. Tuesday, with a slower time, he set the pool record at Chesaning by winning the 50-yard freestyle in :24.2, seven-tenths of a second faster than the old mark. And Bowdary just missed the record in the 100-yard freestyle by two-tenths of a second, winning in :54.4. That day the Marauders had other winners. Sophomore Steve Maynard won the 100-yard backstroke while freshman Steve Gardner took the 200-yard and 500-yard freestyles despite a nagging shoulder injury. "He is a tough kid," Maciuszek said. "He'll keep going." Freshman Mary Jean Latz gave Maciuszek a pleasant surprise too, taking seconds in both the 200-yard individual medley and in the 100-yard butterfly while lowering her times considerably. "We just don't have enough people," Maciuszek said of his 13-person team. "I am down to one diver now, my other diver pulled all the muscles in his side and will be out for the season. It is discouraging." And it doesn't look any better for next year even though the Sting Rays swim club is doing well. That won't help him this week when the Marauders meet the league's second place team, St. Johns, Thursday.

'Wings swallow Alma

St. Johns

It looks as though it is just Corunna and St. Johns for the Mid-Michigan B Conference swimming title this year. Tuesday the Redwings of Jim Makaruskas topped the only other possible contender, Alma, 100-72 in St. Johns. "It is just going to be a two-team race this year, or so it seems," Makaruskas said. The Redwings, now 4-2 overall and 2-1 in the Mid-Michigan B, had two three-event winners. Steve Baxter won the 200-yard and 500-yard freestyles then joined Brian Ziegler, Pat Fitzpatrick and Joe Rewerts on the winning 400-yard freestyle relay team. But he missed on a head-to-head showdown with Alma's Chris Edison, one of the league's other top freestylers. That's because Makaruskas moved Baxter into the longer events while Alma moved Edison into the shorter events. So Edison won both the 50-yard and 100-yard freestyles instead.

Ben Manring also helped in three St. Johns wins by taking the 100-yard individual medley just ahead of teammate Rick Mee then topping the 100-yard butterfly, just ahead of teammate Scott Ward. He then joined Ward, Mee and Marty Zuker on the winning 200-yard medley relay team. Ward also managed a win in the 100-yard backstroke. The real surprise, however, came in diving where Calvin Winsor scored a season-high 206 points to win. Teammate Jeff Richards then edged out Alma's Mike McCurry for second. "Calvin maybe doesn't have the greatest form around," Makaruskas said, "but he does have all the dives and he does them all pretty well." Two other Redwings managed their best times in the season in support roles, Pete Witteveen in the individual medley and the backstroke, Dave Johnston in the butterfly and the breaststroke. The Redwings are off until Thursday when they head for Ovid-Elsie.

Area volley teams test league waters

By Mark Haney

The Ovid-Elsie High volleyball team tested the Mid-Michigan B Conference waters this past week and found them teeming with sharks. Like most of the rest of the teams in the country, the Marauders are now into league play. But it cost them three straight losses as first Ionia defeated them 0-15, 15-9, 15-2 Jan. 28, then Alma got them Wednesday 16-14, 15-0 then Chesaning ripped them 15-4, 12-15, 15-13 Monday. "We are just so young," Marauder coach Stan Pasch said. The Ovid-Elsie junior varsity fell to Chesaning 15-8, 10-15, 15-12. PEWAMO-WESTPHALIA Despite an improved Bellevue team, Central Michigan Athletic Conference win number three wasn't too difficult for the Pewamo-Westphalia High volleyball team Thursday. Coach Carol Bogard's Pirates gained a 15-10, 15-12 win by riding on 85 percent serving. Michelle Rademacher and Donna Heckman led the Pirates with eight points each on their serves. Judy Spitzley came up with 11 spikes while Therese Simon and Patti Spencer had 10 each. The Pewamo-Westphalia junior varsity rolled to a 15-3, 15-12 win by making good on 32 of their 37 serves. Patti Smith was good on 14-of-14 for 14 points. Amy Thelen served up five more. FULTON The second-year volleyball program at Laingsburg was no match for Fulton High Thursday as the Pirates took a 15-1, 15-11 win, their sixth in seven straight matches and their second in the Central Michigan Athletic Conference. The Pirates, now under the tutelage of Martha Wayland, got eight points in the match off the serves of Sandy Price. The junior varsity from Fulton took Laingsburg 15-1, 15-4 as Becky Anderson served all Fulton's points in game two. Donna Kay had 10 other points on her serves. ST. JOHNS The Redwings of Beth Swears suffered their first Mid-Michigan B Conference loss of the season in their opening match. The St. Johns volleyball team fell to Chesaning 16-14, 15-10 Jan. 28. The freshman team, meanwhile, got a 15-10 Jan. 28. The freshman team, meanwhile, got a 15-10, 15-12 win over Lake Odessa-Lakewood from the 'A' team thanks to Lisa Mazzolini's 10 points. The 'B' team, however, fell 17-15, 12-15, 15-11 though Caren Rojas served up 18 points.

Youngsters' Losses end Pirate streak fill team

St. Johns

The seventh year of boys' gymnastics at St. Johns High quite likely won't be as good as the sixth year was.

For Coach John Furry lost 14 veterans from last year's team to graduation.

On this year's squad he has but four seniors and two juniors. The rest is made up of 13 sophomores and seven freshmen.

"What we are experiencing this year," Furry said, "is that all these kids except the juniors and seniors have no experience."

So far this winter, the Redwings have amassed a 3-4 overall record, with a 3-2 mark in the Mid-Michigan Gymnastics League. They have defeated Ionia, Harper Woods, Notre Dame and Grand Blanc, but have lost to East Lansing, defending state champion Ann Arbor Pioneer, North Farmington and Southfield Lathrup.

"We have gotten pretty well beaten," Furry said. "And that is the problem when you lose 14 seasoned veterans. We aren't scoring as well as before."

The Redwings did finish second Saturday at their own third-annual St. Johns Invitational, right behind league nemesis East Lansing. They were a place better than Clarenceville in the six-team field. "They are very strong this year," Furry said of East Lansing. They were a place better than Clarenceville in the six-team field.

"They are very strong this year," Furry said of East Lansing. "They definitely are the favorite to win the league."

But St. Johns got a second from senior Calvin Rice in the vault while Bruce Szarka was third in the still rings. Sophomore Spencer Beaufore was third in the all-around.

Five other sophomores also have proven strong. Rice's younger brother, Graham has proven himself on the parallel bars as has Curtis Simon. Dave Purchase has been strong in the high horizontal bar while Dave Ebert has done well on the pommel horse. Randy Long has performed well in both the floor exercise and in vaulting.

"Our strong events are the floor exercise, vaulting and the parallel bars," Furry said. "We still have a ways to go in the other events. We still are doing pretty well in scoring."

The Redwings pay East Lansing a visit Wednesday, and Saturday are at Southfield Lathrup. Both are league meets.

Pewamo

Twice in the space of four days the Pewamo-Westphalia High basketball team was within reach of an upset. Yet each time the magical win escaped as the Pirates lost to Ovid-Elsie Tuesday 61-57 then fell to Central Michigan Athletic Conference leader Olivet 66-64.

The Pirates, now 9-5 overall and 5-4 in the CMAC, watched as a Mike Pohl jump shot went through the net after the buzzer sounded Friday. And the loss overturned some good Pewamo-Westphalia efforts.

For instance, the Pirates hit at a 47 percent rate and committed just six turnovers in the entire game. And they managed to rebound a taller Olivet squad 32-22.

"I thought we could beat them," Pirate Coach John Ellis said. "They will be in our district later and we still think we can beat them there. If we play as well as we did, we can do it."

Despite the sparkling offensive statistics, it was good old fashioned defense that kept the Pirates in the game.

"I think the key to beating them is to keep (forward Randy) Morrison from getting anything inside," Ellis said, "and to keep him shooting outside. And you have to keep their other people from getting shots inside."

The tactic worked for Pewamo-Westphalia until the fourth quarter when Olivet won the game with a 17-point effort.

Morrison eventually led Olivet with a game-high 34 points but the Pirates got 20 points and nine rebounds from senior center John Bauer. Pohl, with 15 points, and senior guard Stan Piggott each had 10 assists. Ellis pointed to Tuesday's loss as a key.

"I would rather to have won that game," he said. "I think the team would have been really ready for Friday."

But a hot streak by Ovid-Elsie guard Mark Hose did in the Pirates. Hose, with a game-high 16 points, hit a bucket to put Ovid-Elsie ahead and upped senior forward Dan Fabus canned pair from the charity stripe with eight seconds left to ice the win.

"Both teams played well, shot really well," Ovid-Elsie Coach Bob Foreback said. "There were not a lot of turnovers. It was just a well played ballgame."

Pewamo-Westphalia, with junior forward Brian Pfaff hitting for 12 points, hit at a 48 percent rate while Ovid-Elsie made 49 percent of its shots.

"Ovid-Elsie has improved," Ellis said, since the Pirates took a 69-52 win earlier in the season. "They have improved more than anyone we have played. But I was satisfied with how our kids played."

The Pewamo-Westphalia junior varsity suffered its first loss of the season to Ovid-Elsie 52-50 even though Jeff Nurnberg hit for 19 points. Ted Droste matched Nurnberg's output in Friday's 64-47 win by the Pirates over Olivet's reserves.

The Pirates visit Fulton Friday.

Fowler manages to split set

By Mark Haney Sports Writer

Fowler

Just when they needed it, the Fowler High basketball team got a win.

The Eagles, after losing to non-conference foe Mount Pleasant Sacred Heart Tuesday 78-69, took Central Michigan Athletic Conference rival Bellevue 89-55 Friday.

"Hev, right now we have to have something," Fowler

Coach Charlie Trierweiler said after the loss to Sacred Heart. "A couple of victories here would help immensely. But the kids are still in decent spirits anyway."

Friday the Eagles, 4-8 overall and 3-6 in the CMAC, soared to a 24-4 lead in the first quarter then outscored Bellevue 29-13 in the third quarter.

"I think we pretty well controlled the boards on them," Trierweiler said of the first quarter rally. "and we got some fast breaks going. But they made just two of 17 shots while we hit eight of 24. So defensively we kind of controlled them."

The Eagles also grabbed a 54-32 rebounding edge.

But none of the recent losses by Fowler have been because of a lack of scoring by senior guard Doug Koenigsnecht. Against Sacred Heart he scored a game-high 24 points with five assists then came back with a 16-point, six-assists game against Bellevue.

"Doug is playing pretty well for us," Trierweiler said. "Now if we can just get some consistency out of some of our other players we'll do all right."

Consistent defense was what the Eagles needed Tuesday.

"I think we played a decent game again," Trierweiler said. "There were some lapses defensively in there when they (Sacred Heart) got going."

One was in the first quarter when Mount Pleasant took a quick 21-10 lead.

"They have a helluva ballclub," Trierweiler said. "How they are only 7-6 I don't know."

Guard Jim Kostrezewa led Sacred Heart with 20 points.

Fowler has been getting better and better games from its trio of centers--senior Tim Luttig, senior Cliff Hengesbach and junior Stan Simon. Against Bellevue they accounted for 19 points while Hengesbach grabbed 14 rebounds and Luttig 10. Against Sacred Heart Hengesbach hit for eight points with eight rebounds before exiting the game with an injured ankle.

"I think we are starting to come around," Trierweiler said. "It kind of comes at a good time with tournaments coming up."

The Fowler junior varsity ripped Bellevue 70-46 as Dave Koenigsnecht scored 18 points. Jeff Pugh hit for 17 and Greg Armbrustmacher scored 16. Fowler takes on Potterville, second in the CMAC, Friday at Fowler.

Fulton maintains winning streak

By Mark Haney Sports Writer

Fulton

The winning streak extends to six games now for the Fulton High basketball team, which sports a 9-3 overall record and is 6-3 in the Central Michigan Athletic Conference.

The Pirates won their seventh game in eight starts Friday by taking Laingsburg 71-65. In a non-league game Tuesday, Fulton topped Ithaca 73-57.

An eighth-straight win won't be as easy since the Pirates of Kim Lathwell played at Olivet, the CMAC leader, Tuesday.

"They are tough to beat," Lathwell said. "They are a good ballclub."

Friday's win was no cakewalk for Fulton, even though the Pirates amassed a 39-25 lead by intermission. For Laingsburg parlayed some 60 percent shooting in the fourth quarter for 26 points and trimmed down a 15-point Fulton cushion.

"They just started snapping the ball in from all over," Lathwell said. "And we had some letups. I don't know what to say, we just let up. They were hotter than hot and we went ice cold."

Digging into his bag of strategies, however, Lathwell came up with a delay offense that cooled down Laingsburg and netted Fulton the win.

"They had the momentum at that point," Lathwell said, "and they had to foul us to get the ball."

It was Fulton that did most of the fouling as the Pirates were called for 28, losing senior forward Larry Fisk to fouls.

In the first half Fisk, senior guard Jim Slavik and sophomore forward Wayne Bond had accumulated three each.

"We just had too many fouls," Lathwell said. "They were calling them tight but they were calling them right. The officials called a good game. It is just that Laingsburg is not that smooth and we got into their style of play."

Against Laingsburg, Slavik led the way with 20 points and seven assists while junior center Scott Winsor hit for 12 points to go with his

Girl gymnasts ride streak

St. Johns The girls' gymnastics team from St. Johns High is riding a very hot streak. The Redwings have won their last three meets, taking Okemos 74.4-67.1 Jan. 24, edging Grand Ledge 82.95-79.55 Jan. 28 then toppling Pery 83.2-57.95 Thursday.

CMAC meet next for Fulton

Fulton The Pirates are off until the league meet Saturday. The Fulton High wrestling team will be sending its battle-tested unit Saturday to the Central Michigan Athletic Conference meet at Bellevue.

The Pirates of Jayke Pell lost a dual meet Tuesday with Montabella 45-27, a non-league affair.

The Pirates lost seven of the 13 weight classes but the prices were right. Jeff Price won at 105 pounds, Chris Price won at 126 pounds and Tim Price won at 132 pounds.

Mason outwrestles 'Wings

St. Johns The injury-racked St. Johns wrestling really didn't need to meet anyone Thursday.

Yet the Redwings of Chuck Wolf tangled with powerhouse Mason and came away from the meet a 50-15 loser. It didn't upset Wolf.

"We wrestled pretty well," he said, "especially for the calibre of team we were up against."

At present, Wolf has two wrestlers, Reuben Martinez (jaw) and Jeff Brown (pinched nerve, broken ribs), out for the season while four others are struggling with pain. Greg Wood, at 167 pounds, is bothered by his shoulder, 112-pound Jerry Peters has an ankle injury while 126-pound Garret Hayes has yet to return from a knee and ankle injury.

Yet the Redwings still were able to win four weights in the meet with the state's number-two ranked Class B team.

Wood decided Tom Pitman, 155-pound Ken Harris decided Spencer Kinney, Kurt Hayes pinned Frank Ingalls of Mason at 132 pounds and Tim Rehmann decided Rod Clark at 185 pounds.

Wolf did say he didn't think Peters would lose. But

Marauders aren't aiming high

Corunna will battle it out. But Alma's tough too. The Marauders finished 13th at last Saturday's 18-team Williamston Invitational and lost a dual meet with Grand Ledge 37-23 Wednesday.

At the invitational, won by the second-ranked team in Class B, Mason, the Marauders amassed 26 points but came away with only one place finished, 198-pound Rich Ackels.

"I don't plan on finishing near the top," Maidlow said. "We have a young team and some wrestlers are injured."

He isn't about to be pinned down on who will win either. "It is hard to say who is going to win that," he said. "If St. Johns isn't healthy, then maybe Cheshaning or

"It was a really tough tournament," Maidlow said. "I think nine of the teams in there were rated in the state in their classes. And there were a lot of undefeated wrestlers there."

In the dual meet with Grand Ledge, two Marauders had to default matches. A back injury forced 105-pound Steve Orweller to the sideline before he finished with Grand Ledge's Brian Twitchell. An injured rib hurt 155-pound Kevin Wilson enough that he quit in his match with Brad McAllister.

The Marauders will tune up for the league meet with a double-dual meet at Midland Bullock Creek Thursday.

1. That he is the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan and makes and files this complaint under, by virtue of and pursuant to the provisions of Act No. 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as amended, and Act No. 380 of P.A. 1965, as amended.

★ I-69 public hearing made yet. The additional Route IE was preferred in 1974, but is not now considered a viable alternate. It costs $46 million to construct. The Route 3E which the highway department now prefers, runs a great length of I-69 and the land is more developed. The alternative costs $46.7.

Members of the Fish and Wildlife Division of the Department of Natural Resources and Barbara Taylor from the Environmental Protection Agency in Chicago stated they preferred Route 2W. Taylor however, admitted that none of the routes were acceptable.

Wayne Schmitt, from the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, was the only member of the audience to speak in support of Route 2W.

Roger Overway, chairman of the Clinton County Board of Commissioners, read a letter which was sent to state and federal officials which supports Bath Township. The context of the letter appeared in last week's DeWitt/Bath Review and the Clinton County News.

Citizen Dave Peters questioned, "Who really wants any of these alternatives anyway. There should be a referendum."

William Uak, representing Citizens Concerned for the I-69 connection, stated vehemently he and members of his committee were opposed to the highway being constructed with the 2W route. As he spoke, over 50 people stood showing unity and support for his statements.

"Why displace more people than wildlife," he questioned. A petition with 300 names collected in seven days was also presented to highway department officials. The petition asks that new information be given and consideration of another route.

David Wright, another citizen stated that with the price of gas, and the possibility of rationing, why is there a need for a new highway at all?

Bill Gnodtke, county commissioner and a resident of DeWitt Township began his presentation with, "I don't live in Charlotte, East Lansing, Okemos, or Washington, D.C. I live on Clark Road." He added, "I'm frustrated, confused and a little bit angry."

He said Bath Township tried to plan its community in an organized, orderly way after a decision was made in 1974 to build the highway to the north of Park Lake.

"Where is the local control?" he asked. For the people of the township it has been a traumatic experience, according to Gnodtke.

"I question the credibility of the process," he said. "It is indeed an exercise in futility."

Gnodtke said the highway department has, in fact, made a decision. At a Capitol Area Regional Transportation Systems meeting, the Route IW was defeated by seven yes, eight no, margin. Two of the people voting no, were members of the highway department.

"What it comes down to is, what was good enough in 1974 is not good enough now."

He noted that everyone was getting upset over the displacement of Sand Hill Cranes. He continued by saying there is only one pair of cranes nesting in the Grass and Perch Lake areas of Bath.

Then he commented that all of the residents use Priggoors Park daily, which drew a lot of laughing from the audience, because the land is even too hard for police vehicles to patrol.

"Nine acres of wetlands is not worth getting excited about in Bath Township," he said. He concluded, "This is not the first time the inhabitants of Clinton County have been run over by the cement buildings of Lansing and Washington."

Bath Township Trustee Paul Shaheen said accountability is not being met. "You can't justify your position," he said.

Tom Woodruff, Bath Township supervisor told the highway department that since 1974 when the alternate was chosen, thousands of dollars had been spent on developing a master plan for the township and millions of dollars have been spent on a sewer system.

"We don't have hundreds of businesses to give up," he said. "We only have a few."

He also said the highway department had not contacted police or fire departments to see what impact the construction of the highway would have on response times, in emergency situations.

"Bath Township will no longer continue being a playground for you city folks," Woodruff said. "We are going to fight you even if it means taking this case to the courts." At the conclusion of his statement he drew a round of applause from the audience.

Wheel Inn Mall progressing

St. Johns

By March 1, steel should begin protruding out of the ground at the Wheel Inn Mall site between Scott Road, Sturgis Street and US-27, on the city's southeast side. That's the word from developer, Tedd White. He said construction is a little behind schedule, but the two major stores, Schmidt's supermarket and Fisher's Big Wheel department store, will probably open in spring. Many of the other 29 stores will be opening at the end of summer and all are expected to be open by Christmas. White said he is now actively leasing out the center, though he could not release any names of the proposed tenants, excepting the two major stores which announced their plans to be in the mall last year. The type of stores to be located in the mall were released, however. Following is a tentative floor plan of the mall, showing where the different types of stores will be located. The corresponding numbers in the layout refer to the type of store listed below.

Tight budget may or may not affect libraries

St. Johns

Governor William G. Milliken's bare-bones budget proposal may or may not have an effect on area libraries. "It's very nebulous," said Bement Public Library librarian Jean Mary Bartholomew. She explained that proposed cuts in the state budget affecting the libraries are aimed at the state library only. However, she said every library in Michigan can use the services of the state library. Some possible services which may get cut from the state library budget could be services to the handicapped such as talking books and legal consults who aid the library. The genealogy division may also see some reductions. The interloan which is used by a significant number of area residents may be caught up in the budget squeeze. Mrs. Bartholomew said these are all possibilities, however, not decisions. Bement Public Library gets .289720 cents per capita in state aid. Because the library headquartered in St. Johns serves a little over 14,000 people, it gets about $4,060 in state aid. The library services residents in Bengal, Bingham and Greenbush townships, half of Olive Township, and the city of St. Johns. The library has an open door policy, requiring no library card when a book is checked out. No fees are collected either, except on reserve books. Anyone can register to use the library.
