

$78,000

in the mail

"Take the MAYBE off the headline," said St. Johns City Manager Randy Humphrey.

He was referring to a Jan. 30 article on the front page of the Clinton County News that said Auto Owners insurance company had been ordered by Circuit Court Judge Randy Tahvonen to pay the city of St. Johns $78,772 for the pre-judgment interest dating back to the Grubaugh vs. City of St. Johns lawsuit.

There was some question at the time the article was written whether or not Auto Owners would fight Judge Tahvonen's ruling. However, last week, Humphrey received word that the insurance company was going to pay the $78,772. This could mean St. Johns taxpayers would be saved 1 1/2 mills this summer.

Fowler needs girls' track coach

Fowler High School is seeking a girls' high school track coach to begin coaching this spring. Fowler High School Principal Jim Andros said they are seeking applications from anyone with track experience. Fowler would like a certified teacher, but that is not a requirement. Persons interested in being the girls' track coach at Fowler High may contact Andros or Steve Spicer, the athletic director, at 593-2250.

Contract renewed

St. Johns Board of Education has offered Donald Burns, school superintendent, a new two-year contract effective July 1, and a salary increase of $3,000 retroactive to July 1, 1979. This will bring the superintendent's salary up to $37,000. He had not received an increase for two years.

Pafford to speak

John Pafford, 10th Congressional District Republican candidate, will speak at the Thursday, Feb. 28, meeting of the Clinton County Republican Party. Pafford, a faculty member at Northwood Institute, Midland, is scheduled to speak around 9 p.m. in the commissioner's room of the county courthouse.

Beauty and grace

The Interlochen Arts Academy dance ensemble will present classical ballet and modern dance in a special program at 7:30 p.m., Friday, March 7 on stage at St. Johns High School Auditorium. The 17-member dance troupe will also give lecture demonstrations at two county schools.

Ballet, modern dance coming

Clinton County

The precision of classical ballet and the free-form beauty of modern dance will come to Clinton County in March both in an evening performance open to the public and two lecture and demonstration programs for students. To be presented here as part of the Performing Arts Fest are a 17 member dance ensemble from Interlochen Arts Academy.

The troupe, sponsored by Community Resource Volunteers and the St. Johns Community Education program is being sent throughout the state on a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts.

Members of the dance ensemble will perform at St. Johns High School auditorium, Friday, March 7 at 7:30. Tickets are available both as a family pass for $12 which includes the Interlochen Dance Troupe; the Central Michigan University Jazz Ensemble and the Happendance Professional Dance Group, or as single event tickets for $2.

First manager sought for DeWitt Township

By Sue Kiley
Staff Writer

DeWitt Twp.

About six months ago, DeWitt Charter Township officials set aside $9,500 for the hiring of a township manager. Those plans laid dormant until Monday night when a citizen questioned when the position would be created.

John Lindbloom, a citizen whose name appeared on a petition signed by nearly 100 township residents last year in favor of hiring a professional manager, questioned the board on what steps were being taken to hire someone.

"It's about time we started looking for someone," Jim Soule, trustee said. "In fact, we should have a manager picked by June."

A real concern of the township officials is that the new manager be trained before the 1980 election. This is the first time all seven offices will be up for election. And it is conceivable all the posts could have new members.

"We have to have some type of continuity," said Eileen Corr, treasurer. "If there were seven new people sitting in these chairs, I'd hate to think what would happen to this township."

Alta Catherine Reed, township supervisor voiced strong opposition to the idea of a manager concept. She suggested putting the idea on the ballot in the May 20 election. She also noted the township has been approached with other kinds of petitions that no one has done anything about.

"It would be too late to put it on the ballot," Mrs. Corr said. "We have to start setting up time frames."

Nancy Cheney, former township treasurer argued the need for a manager. Also a member of the salary advisory committee, Mrs. Cheney related it had been at least five years ago that the idea of a manager concept was suggested.

"The township is large enough now that it needs a business manager," she said.

Mrs. Reed continued with her opposition by saying a manager would create another layer of unneeded government.

"Besides that," she said, "a manager would need his own office and a secretary."

Several of the board members asserted there was a real need for someone who was professionally trained in public administration and it was no criticism directed to the people already working in the township.

"I shudder to think what would happen if the whole board were replaced," Mrs. Cheney said. "The township is just more than three people can handle."

During a recess, Supervisor Reed told the press she would not run for supervisor if a manager was hired.

FOR SPECIAL EDUCATION

1 mill on April ballot

By Sharon Randall
Staff Writer

Clinton County

Voters here will be asked to approve a one mill special education millage in April proposed by the Clinton County Intermediate School Board (CCISD).

Action to go for a special education millage was taken at a special meeting of the board Thursday, Feb. 21, in an attempt to lower escalating costs due to inflation and mandated programs.

At present, 1.5 mills is levied by the CCISD for special education but state mandated programs and decline in state support have taken expenses far beyond the funds it raises. Each local district, Bath, DeWitt, Fowler, Ovid-Elsie, Pewamo-Westphalia and St. Johns, has been forced to pick up the extra costs out of their general fund based on the special education services they use.

Local districts are being promised total relief from special education costs for a three-year period providing that Section 56 of the State Aid Bill survives at 100 percent of the current State Equalized Valuation per student.

Section 56 offers extra funds to intermediate districts for special education that local districts do not qualify for independently. One mill would bring an extra $148,298 in state aid into Clinton County. County-wide the extra mill will raise about $387,000.

Paul Tower, CCISD director of special education, told the Bath Board of Education Monday, Feb. 25, that the one mill will enable the county to bring high cost tuition programs back from Lansing at nearly a 66 percent savings. "We have to make this move," Tower said. "We can't afford not to. Local districts are paying through the nose."

The move will necessitate some kind of small facility, probably a modular unit similar to the Walter Kyes school. It will be located on CCISD property on US-27. Tower said a parent advisory group is working on suggestions for the building.

The Intermediate District's plans also include a county owned transportation system which will save as much as $60,000 of the $341,000 now being spent annually on leased special education busing.

Tower also referred to escalating costs and a population of more severely ill students who are coming out of institutions and demanding more extensive care. Many of these students are in foster placement care but are still eligible for special education.

The number of special education students is not declining as total school populations are," Tower said. "Student population across the state is down 56,000 but special education student population remains the same."

County board to send delegates to capitol

By Sue Kiley

Clinton County

Two Clinton County Commissioners will be heading to Washington March 2 for the 1980 National Association of Counties Legislative Conference. Approval for the trip was given at the regular Tuesday morning meeting of the commissioners.

Board Chairman Roger Overway and Richard Hawks have already been setting up meetings with Michigan Congressmen and Senators to discuss problems relating to the county.

One of the major issues to be discussed will be the Federal Revenue Sharing program. This issue is very important to the county as it is a major share of the budget.

Some of the other items to be discussed will be the I-69 project which is scheduled through the southern half of the county; the need for federal funds to construct a new jail; grant money for the Bath sewer system; and funds for sewer construction in Watertown Township.

Because so many of the issues are directly affecting Bath Township, Thomas Woodruff, supervisor is being sent to Washington with Overway and Hawks, by his board.

This is the first time in several years that members of the Clinton County board have gone to the national convention. The trip was approved unanimously.

Water major focus of St Johns Commission

By Patrice Hornak

St. Johns

Finding water for residential use and recycling water for industrial use occupied a good portion of Monday's St. Johns City Commission meeting.

The city decided to hire Walter Meinert, a water consultant from Grand Rapids, to do an initial study and tests to determine the extent of a possible gravel drift well located near the Wheel Inn property.

The city was told by local well driller Roger Oberlitter of the prospects for a gravel drift well which would provide good supply of water for residential use.

Fluoride offered

Sodium fluoride treatments for the prevention of tooth decay will be offered to Clinton County students this summer, according to the Mid-Michigan District Health Department. Enrollment in the treatment of the program is open for pre-schools aged 3-5, second, fifth and eighth graders. Enrollment is open until March 7.

Sodium fluoride applications can prevent 40 percent of new tooth decay in children, according to the health department. The fee for the treatments is $5 per child. The four treatments will be scheduled within a period of eight to 12 days. There will be no refunds. Contact the Mid-Michigan District Health Department at 224-7772.

Gas thieves stealing more as prices rise in county

Clinton County Mrs. Jens Stampski, 1044 W. Cutler Rd., reported the breaking and entering of her home where a gold watch, stick pin, color television, and radio were taken from her home on Feb. 18. Clinton County sheriff's deputies indicate the property was valued at $600.

Since the price of gas has been climbing so has the number of gas thieves been increasing. Police reports say there were three instances of gas larcenies in the county during the past week.

Kenneth Nickols, 7021 St. Clair Rd., St. Johns reported his gas barrel was broken into where 150 gallons were taken valued at $173. Nickols also has three-10 gallon cans of gas and 25 gallons of gas taken which was valued at $41.

Barney Weber, Fowler High School reported two days later two subjects were arrested for stealing gas from the buses. Chris Smith, 6270 W. Grand River, reported 50 to 60 gallons of gas taken from his residence.

Michael Brunton, Eagle reported a quantity of power tools and wire from a building site. About $775 worth of materials were taken on Feb. 20.

A total of 33 persons were lodged in the Clinton County Jail during the past week. Sheriff's deputies handled 79 complaints.

Travel, adventure films resume March 6 with France program

St. Johns The current series of travel and adventure films, sponsored by St. Johns Rotary and Business and Professional Women, resumes March 6 with a second-half opening by Robert Ditta presenting his colorful travelogue and narrative on the "Byways of France."

The film, fourth in a series of six, will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Clinton Theater and persons without season passes may purchase tickets at the door.

Ditta has traveled extensively throughout Europe, but this time focuses in on the country of France, its people and their customs. His commentary complements the panorama of France that flicks across the screen in scenes from the capitol of Paris to the peaks of the Alps.

The remaining programs in the series are scheduled for April 24 and May 8. The former will be a presentation by Steve Gonser entitled "Israel - Country of Contrast," and the final segment will be "Welcome to Ireland" as produced by Bill Kennedy.

All proceeds of the travelogue series are used by the sponsoring organizations community projects.

Four persons arraigned

St. Johns Four persons were arraigned before Judge Randy L. Tavhonen in Circuit Court Monday, Feb. 25.

Church renovation to be aided by auction

St. Johns
Members of the St. Johns Episcopal Church have found a way to help others as well as help their church restoration fund—they're going to sponsor an auction this Saturday, March 1, at Smith Hall.

The interior of this landmark church needed restoration badly. To raise funds to pay for the restoration, the church will hold a public auction.

The auction will get underway at 11 a.m.

Some of the unusual and valuable items to be auctioned Saturday include an antique cannonball bed and $10,000 worth of brand new sports clothing for men, women and children. The clothing was donated by a Lansing country club pro shop.

According to Robert Ball, one of the planners of the auction, there will be color television sets, an electric range, hair dryers, radios, food blender, refrigerator, and bedroom outfits at the sale. A large amount of clothing has also been donated.

Surely to be one of the main attractions at the auction will be the sale of original leaded stained glass windows from the church. About 13 windows were removed when memorial windows were installed. The lead stained glass windows will go on sale Saturday.

Persons wishing to help the church with the restoration project may contact Father Robert Coval at 224-2885. Any items for the auction will be gratefully appreciated.

Persons wishing to donate to the auction may also contact Mr. and Mrs. William Morris at 224-2052; Mr. and Mrs. John Pouch at 224-4340; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ball of Laingsburg at 651-5144; Abshagen Real Estate at 682-4169 in Maple Rapids; or Chamberlain Building Supplies in Ovid at 834-2300.

Auction is Saturday

Working on the St. Johns Episcopal Church auction this Saturday, March 1, will be (from left) Judy Coball of St. Johns, Marian Ball of Laingsburg and Sue Chamberlain of Ovid. Some of the items to be auctioned are the bound editions of the National Geographic magazine from 1939-1945, a bean sorter, a cane bottom chair donated by Mark Roberts furniture store and $10,000 worth of sports apparel donated by a Lansing country club pro shop. Consulting the compass

Which way do we go? Members of St. Johns Boy Scout Troop 81 consult written coordinates and their compass to find the first event they were to compete in during Saturday's Klondike Derby held out on a Chadwick Road farm. (Photo by Patrice Hornak)

About 70 Boy Scouts competed in the annual Klondike Derby Saturday, amidst the mud and slush.

The purpose of the Klondike Derby is to test the Scouts' winter survival skills.

This year the warm weather tested their muddy survival skills. Boys competed in snowshoe, building, wild animal trapping, what to do when lost, emergency shelters, fire building and hypothermal frostbite. Using a map and a compass also proved important, as the boys had to follow coordinates from skill station to skill station.

Winning the derby was Troop 516 from East Olive PTO. Second place went to Ovid VFW Post 585 and third place was won by Troop 67 from the Bath American Legion.

Area bands successful in festivals

By Patrice Hornak
Editor
Fowler

Clinton County bands and orchestras fared very well in the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association District 5 band and orchestra festivals held last Saturday. Three Clinton County high schools hosted district band festivals, namely St. Johns, Fowler and Pewamo-Westphalia. At each site, 15 musical groups performed from 8 a.m. until 4:30 in the afternoon.

The annual festivals give high school bands and orchestras an opportunity to compare their skills with bands of similar size. Bands were graded by four judges from various parts of the state upon tone, intonation, rhythm, technique, interpretation, general spirit, selection and stage deportment.

The highest rating a band or orchestra can receive is a 1. A 5 is the lowest score.

In Clinton County, those bands receiving a 1 were: Fowler High School Band under the direction of David Casey; Pewamo-Westphalia High School Concert Band under the direction of Frank Ehrhardt; Ovid-Elsie Concert Band under the direction of Roger Weyersberg; St. Johns Ninth Grade Band under the direction of Walter Cole; St. Johns Concert Band under the direction of John Speck; St. Johns Symphonic Band under the direction of Cole; Bath Concert Band under the direction of David Kressler; and DeWitt High Symphonic Band under the direction of Jeffrey Kressler.

Those bands receiving a 1 now advance to the state finals April 26 in the Grand Rapids area. A site has not been announced.

Receiving a 2 rating were the St. Johns Orchestra under the direction of William Tennant and the Fulton High Band under the direction of Donald Proko.

Each band or orchestra performed a 25-minute program consisting of a required number selected from 35-40 songs, a piece of traditional band music, and a selected number.

The musical group is taken to a separate room, given a piece of music to study and then seven minutes later it must perform that piece. The director can instruct the group on how to play the piece, but the group cannot practice the selection before playing it.

What is the value of festival competition? "To inspire kids to better themselves," said Casey, Fowler's director of music.

At Fowler High School, 40 percent of the student body is enrolled in the band program, according to Casey. Festival time is a "very important time of the year in Fowler," he said.

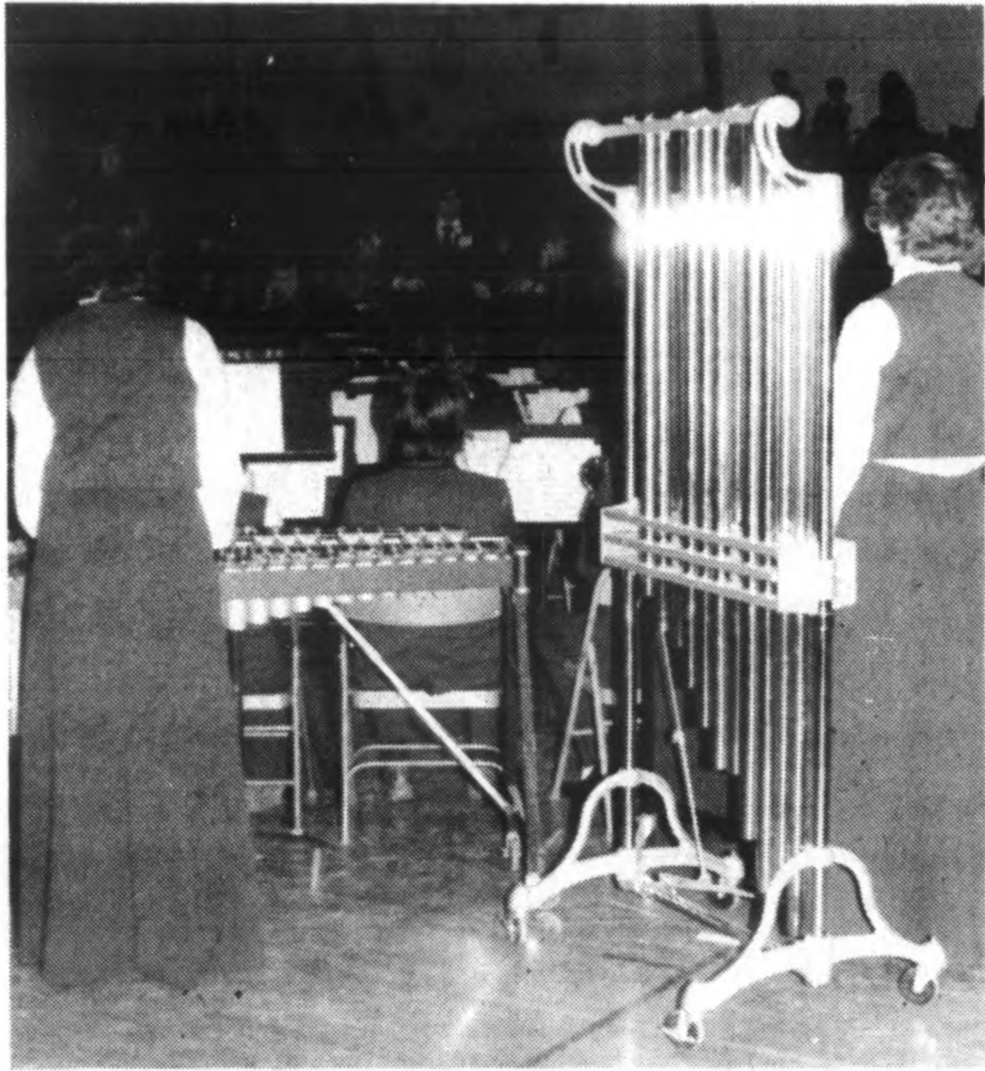

He said that the community is very supportive of the band program and a good rating in the festivals helps promote the program.

John Wise of Pennsylvania, an early balloonist, recognized the existence of the jet stream as early as 1842. In 1843 he told Congress that "there exists in the atmosphere a constant current of wind, moving from west to east."

Shared-time nurses understand why

By Sharon Randall
Staff Writer

Clinton County
"Why" is the big question instructor Linda Fowler asks her students in the Shared-Time Nurses Aide program operated at Clinton Memorial by the Intermediate School District.

As students go through 130 supervised clinical hours on the hospital floor and an equal number in the classroom, Mrs. Fowler tries to get them to see "why." If they understand why they do a certain task, they understand what they are doing," she maintains.

Mrs. Fowler's number one goal for students in the program is "professionalism". She strives toward instilling good attitudes and communication skills. "If my students can learn to get along with people and have a good attitude, the skills they need will come with practice," she said.

A great advantage of the program is to assure the student that this is the field they really want. "Believe me, they know by the end of the year," Ms. Fowler said. The class gives many students a boost in knowing what they want and they become more willing to work for it.

During the first semester, students spend three days in the classroom and two on the hospital floor. The schedule reverses for the second semester. Students are at the hospital 2 1/2 hours a day. Classroom study covers all the body systems, anatomy, physiology, hospital procedures. On the floor, work includes taking temperatures, blood pressure, changing beds, bed shampoos, patient feeding, urine testing, enemas, patient observation and a certain amount of charting. Students rotate through the different departments of the hospital, (dietary, x-ray, laundry, housekeeping, and central supply), learning first hand how each department contributes to patient care. "We give them the total health care picture," Ms. Fowler explained.

Linda Fowler is assisted by two Registered Nurses, Inge Grosz and Madeline Tomczyk. Rivard's Nursing Home is also utilized for patient care experience. Ms. Fowler has seven years of nursing experience behind her which she shares with her students. She also believes in keeping up her skills and spends summers working in different fields (industrial nursing, big city hospital nursing, home care nursing).

"What probably started me teaching is the frustration I felt seeing people come into hospital jobs with attitudes I felt were not good for nursing," she reflected. "I think attitudes about yourself and other people have to be learned at an early age and this program is the way to do it." Mrs. Fowler said she enjoys being able to teach theory and then see it applied to the hospital situation.

Students completing the program are varied according to Mrs. Fowler. Students range from special education pupils to those in the top 10 of their class. When the program is completed, students are ready to go right into a nurses aide job or go on to additional study in the health field.

Figures compiled since 1974 indicate that 50 percent of the students taking the class continue their education or are working in a health related job. It has one of the highest percentages of the vocational programs.

Comments from past students are very favorable. Young people wrote that they would not be doing so well in college (Northern Michigan, Lansing Community College, Butterworth) if they had not experienced the nurses aide program here. Many indicated that they are far ahead of other students. Former students now employed in hospital jobs feel their skills are superior to fellow workers. Students who did not go on in the field often cited poor pay at the entry level. No student felt the program was a waste of time or effort. Most indicated that they were a better person and had a better understanding of other people.

Nice and taut

There's a proper way to make a bed and Jodi Hehrer, left and Lynette Risley both of Ovid-Elsie High School have learned to do it right. These students are also adept at changing a bed with a patient in it.

Red Cross calls for help

One of life's joys is to feel needed and the Mid-Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross has an immediate need for hospital volunteers.

Red Cross hospital volunteers staff the information desks in nine hospitals throughout the tri-county area. They perform such duties as issuing visitor passes, handling inquiries about patients' conditions, delivering mail and flowers, and maintaining hospital records.

Volunteers are needed to fill three-hour shifts between 8:30 a.m. and 8:30 p.m. everyday.

People interested in providing these valuable services can contact Barbara Lantz, director of the Office of Volunteers, at (517) 484-7461.

State senator sets breakfast forums

The first in a series of district-wide legislative breakfast forums has been scheduled by State Senator Bob VanderLaan.

The informal breakfast will be held at the Lyons-Muir Community Club on Saturday, March 8, beginning at 9 a.m.

"These breakfasts will provide an opportunity for me to discuss current legislative issues on an informal basis and also learn first hand from the people of my district matters of concern to them," said Republican VanderLaan.

Tickets, to cover the cost of the breakfast, are $3. Reservations can be made by contacting Ralph Furman,

The first rayon factory in the country opened in Roanoke, VA., in 1971, and today the world's largest is in Front Royal, the National Geographic Society says.

Sheriff's Department lacks jacks

To the citizens of Clinton County:

I would like to bring to your attention a serious problem. As you probably know, the Police Department is asking for a new jail. They feel that the existing facility is inadequate. Well, that problem looks small compared to the one I'm about to discuss.

Jacks! That's right, jacks.

The Police Department has a shortage of jacks for their police cars. Think what this means good people. If they get a flat, they will have to call the State Police or some other department to help them out. The Clinton County Police will be laughed at. I believe we should first equip our police cars before building a new police jail.

I found out about the problem of the jack shortage quite by accident. While trying to fix a flat tire on my car, I broke my own jack. Knowing that the police are always willing to help out in time of need, I decided to walk the 100 yards to the Police Department to borrow a jack. That was when I first learned of the poor conditions of the police department.

Both police on duty that Wednesday night assured me that they did not have jacks available. Since police are always willing to help out whenever possible, and they are honest, I therefore concluded that the two police cars parked outside must have been free of jacks. The same goes for their own personal cars parked in the lot.

I searched for help elsewhere since I found none there.

Carter's salute to Olympians a political move

After having watched the Winter Olympics televised on ABC, and in particular the United States hockey team defeat the Soviet Union and go on to win the gold medal, we think it is ironic that President Carter telephone congratulations to the team during live coverage.

President Carter has insisted that the United States boycott the Summer Olympic games thereby denying other United States competitors the right to demonstrate their skills against the world and Soviet teams.

He has stated again and again that he has no time for politics at this supposedly critical time. He tells us that he cannot campaign actively while hostages are being held in Iran, and yet at the conclusion of both of the United States hockey teams victories over the Soviet Union and Finland, he had no qualms whatsoever about using the network time to, in effect, campaign.

If President Carter is so concerned about showing what a peace-loving man he is, why was he not present to welcome the athletes of visiting nations at the opening ceremony or to watch the hockey games? To wait until victory had been achieved is a low compliment indeed.

The decision made by President Carter to boycott the summer games is in fact not his to make. The decision to participate or not should be made by the Olympic Committee and the athletes themselves. Perhaps Coach Brooks expressed it best by saying that "we had proved that we have the best system—we can play with emotion."

What good does it do to stay at home and allow the Soviets to win at will in the summer—how will that further our national pride? Our athletes and our system are winners. Why should one man's decision dictate that they cannot prove this in Moscow this summer?

There is still time for dedicated American athletes to experience the same thrill which the hockey team achieved by showing itself to be the best in the world. The chant "USA, USA" will be hard to hear in the summer games if we are not there.

Cannot give Tony Kuntz enough praise

Letter to the Editor:

As a personal friend of Tony Kuntz, I cannot give him enough praise for all the good work, and good deeds, that he had accomplished for the community of St. Johns. Tony was a person who will be missed by many people in all walks of life.

He never shirked his duties in whatever undertaking, he accepted, whether they be family, church, civic and recently co-chairman of the Clinton Area Care Center.

(Thanks to Tony's many hours of work on the Care Center, Clinton County is one step closer to have the facility we have long waited for.)

Tony always had a smile and a good word for everyone he was in contact with.

Sincerely,

Senior Citizen Update

February is almost gone. We have had quite a mild winter as far as having very much snow.

As I sit here in my living room, I see ivies, plants with flowers, such as a beautiful azalea plant all in blossom, a violet just beginning to bloom, all kinds of other flowerless plants, and I enjoy them.

Most of us like to have a little bit of something growing, even a small pot of a green living plant.

Most of you will think this is what women want, but the truth is, men need this "green thumb" as well. I know several young men who have as many or more "plants" in their apartment than I do, my grandsons included. In fact, they even ask me for a "slip" or two to take home with them.

There is a need in all of us to create, or promote something to grow and prosper.

I talk to my plants and it isn't because I'm old and senile. They say a plant grows better when you give it love and care. My plants grow well so I guess a little talk never hurt them.

As soon as spring comes, you will see people of all ages outside. They are either raking lawns, trimming trees, pulling weeds, getting the garden ready or just planning where each petunia will be planted.

It's interesting just to know the need each of us has—something inside of us that loves a little bit of God's green earth.

Start looking at seed catalogues, flower bed arrangements and many kinds of shrubs. This will make spring arrive much sooner.

Plan on attending another dance March 14. It will be held at the high school cafeteria. The Steavens Orchestra will be on hand again featuring old-time round and square dances. Make up a party and attend. You will have a ball.

So...until next time.

Jet Set vs Tractor Set

By Richard L. Milliman

BEAUTY, SAID Shakespeare, is in the eye of the beholder.

Apparently color is, too. And so is value.

The recent Henry Ford II divorce hassle in Detroit was a true media event for the Detroit-area media, and they responded according to its import, assigning whole coverage teams to the event.

An interesting but insignificant sidelight caught my attention, as interesting but insignificant things often do, in Detroit Free Press coverage of the Ford divorce settlement.

The front page hard-news story described Cristina Ford's appearance in court thus: "Mrs. Ford, wearing a purple Yves St. Laurent suit, took the witness stand."

HOWEVER, a few pages back in the same edition, in the lead story in the Style Section, another writer caught the Cristina vision thus: "Cristina looked brighter in a plum-color patterned tweed suit with belted jacket and pleated skirt and a rose-color silk shirt."

What's the difference between the purple outfit on the front page and the plum-color outfit in the Style section? The eye of the beholder apparently.

My own personal fashion consultant had the answer:

The story in the Style section was written by a female staff writer; the front-page piece was written by a pair of male staff writers.

"No male news reporter is going to call a woman's outfit plum-color," she said. "They'd see purple, not plum." And I guess she's right.

THE FORD DIVORCE action was probably over-exposed in the media, as such events usually are. But when several million dollars are involved in a marital scrap, public interest is high. The worth of marriage also is at the core of the interest.

What is the value of a wife's role? That's an unending question. Ann Kaiser, editor of Farm Wife News magazine, in a recent appearance in Michigan, said the true dollars-and-cents value of a farm wife is more than $25,000 a year. As reported in The Farmers' Advance, Editor Kaiser claimed family services rendered by a typical farm wife would earn her $25,292 per year if performed for pay outside her own home. She checked off the following as major components of the yearly farm wife's "salary":

$7,020 FOR RAISING children; $6,188 for dishwashing, housekeeping and laundry services; $2,548 for cooking; $2,080 as secretary-bookkeeper; $2,080 as a hired hand; and $702 as veterinarian.

Other services adding to the final total would include nurse, gardener, interior decorator, chauffeur, maintenance worker, hostess, dietician, food buyer and several other smaller tasks.

Editor Kaiser also pointed out that "farm wives provide something that can't be measured by money—love. The rural homemaker is often the glue which holds the family together," which is an especially difficult role because of the disjointed schedule of farm work.

CONSIDERING THE worth of a farm wife at $25,292 per year in the same essay that talks of the Henry Ford - Cristina Ford divorce settlement may not be the most logical juxtaposition of thoughts.

However, when I ponder the jetsetting Fords with their money problems, I can't help but recall the Kaiser analysis of the value of a wife's role. Henry might agree with Kaiser's figures; I don't think Cristina would.

The Fords were married about 10 years before being separated. According to published reports, Ford offered his estranged wife a settlement of $5 million, which obviously was rejected as too low. The amount of the final settlement was not officially disclosed, but was unofficially reported in the area of $10 million.

If that is the correct figure, it would mean in the case of the Fords, a wife would be worth about $1 million a year, compared with the $25,000 value of the typical farm wife.

Which goes to show, I guess, that there's more money in building tractors than in driving them.

A view from Sturgis Street

By Tom Sherby

[Editor's Note: Tom Sherby is a supervisor and therapist at the Clinton Counseling Center at 300 E. Sturgis St., St. Johns. The purpose of this monthly column will be to look at some of the more frequent life problems that many of us have to deal with. Sherby will offer suggestions about what we can do about these problems and when and where to go for help, if help becomes necessary.]

The Art of Problem-Solving in Marriage

A key to maintaining a good marriage relationship is the ability of a couple to talk out their problems and differences. As most of us know, this is much easier said than done.

All too often when a couple sits down to try to talk out a problem, nothing seems to get resolved and both people are left feeling angry and frustrated. If there are enough unsuccessful efforts of this kind, one or both people may avoid trying to talk out new differences.

Little problems not dealt with can accumulate into bigger problems, leave more room for misunderstandings and angry feelings. I would like to suggest some guidelines to more effective marital communication and problem solving.

To begin with, pick a place and time that you are both comfortable with. I recommend that you have a regular time and place to talk. It is essential that whenever possible, you have quiet and privacy, especially when there is something of extra importance to talk about (there is no harm in arguing in front of your children occasionally—it gives them a more realistic picture of what marriage is all about).

Now, there are several ways of getting into an issue that will improve the chances of getting it resolved. First, stick to the issue at hand. Avoid the temptation to bring up other past and present problems.

Sometimes, if a person wants to "win" an argument, it becomes very tempting to bring up something unrelated to the problem at hand that will strengthen that person's chances of making a point. This usually results in the other person bringing up something else. Before you know it, the original issue is no longer being worked on. Both people end up feeling they have gotten nowhere and no one really "wins".

Secondly, avoid name-calling. Stick to the issue. Do not attack the person. Try to remember to start sentences with "I" instead of "you". Do not fall into the trap of sounding as though you are speaking for the other person. This may needlessly put your partner on the defensive.

Finally, try to really hear what the other partner is saying and how they are feeling. This can be most difficult to do, especially when you have strong feelings of your own on a particular problem. Give the other partner a chance to talk, especially if you tend to be the more talkative of the two. Remember, it takes some people longer to pull their thoughts together and be able to say what they are feeling.

Restrain yourself, if you must, and allow time for the other person to respond. In responding to one another, try to be clear, brief, and to the point. Too often our point is lost and our feelings on an issue get buried if we go on and on. Ask for feedback, if you are not sure if you have made your feelings clear. The English language can be tricky, and there are many words and phrases that have more than one meaning.

Not all issues in a marriage are resolvable. It is not always possible to reach a compromise. But, with a willingness to be sensitive to the other person's feelings and with a commitment to try to work out problems, most issues and differences can be hammered out.

Perhaps most important of all is to not let problems go by. Try to get on a problem within a few days. A major factor to the break-up of marriages is the tendency to not talk things out, to let little problems accumulate until they become big problems.

The willingness and ability to try to work out problems as they arise can go a long way toward keeping a marriage alive and healthy.

Remember, if you feel you need professional help with your marriage, call the Clinton County Counseling Center or consult the Yellow Pages under Marriage and Family Counselors.

Personality Profile

Ink White

'Nobody does it better'

By Sharon Randall
Staff Writer

St. Johns

As a small child, Enoch Thomas White couldn't say his first name so he called himself "Ink" and the name stuck, first as an attractive sounding contrast to his last name and then as an appropriate handle in his successful journalism career.

In the 1950's White's Clinton County Republican News was tied only with the Lapeer County Press for awards in overall excellence. The name Ink White was synonymous with good community journalism and he was solicited by the University of Michigan, his alma mater, to come teach a Saturday workshop which ran through most of the '50s.

A respected newspaper man and community leader, White was elected to the Michigan Constitutional Convention in 1961. He spent three years as the chairman of the public information committee. White's committee was responsible for the entire public relations effort in respect to the convention and what it produced. The job continued a year past the actual writing of the document when it was adopted.

Those were three busy years—speaking, writing, talking to people in communities across the state. The constitution itself barely squeaked by, passing by a majority of only seven or eight votes. "There's always something in a document of this kind that doesn't please someone," White said. He approved the final document, however, and looks back at this period of his life as time well spent. "It was a very interesting experience," he said.

Around this same time, he ran unsuccessfully as a Republican candidate for a regent post at the University of Michigan which he also regards as a valuable experience even though he was, in his words, "trounced".

It's no wonder that White's paper traded awards in excellence back and forth with the Lapeer County Press. That is where he got his start—working there as a high school student White learned under "hard task masters." The Myers family, who still own the paper, demanded good writing. "You had to write well," he said. It was a demand White would put on himself and the scores of young writers who learned under his tutelage.

After high school, White went to Asheville School in North Carolina where the academic requirements were very high and students received a concentrated dose of literary composition. He then enrolled at the University of Michigan, working eight hours a night at University Hospital. The summer after his junior year he went to the Gladwin County Record and stayed on to become editor and publisher.

White was at Gladwin 11 years, coming to St. Johns in 1945 when Schuyler Marshall sold him the Clinton County Republican News. "I came here," he said, "with the help of confident people who loaned me money."

Later, White himself loaned money to other young men who aspired to own their own newspaper. Newly elected Michigan Press Association president, Jim Sherman, started at the Clinton County Republican News under White and went off with $10,000 borrowed on White's insurance policy to buy the Oxford Leader in Oakland County.

White said his writing style lacks a "creative flare," which he recognizes in the columns of friends like Jim Fitzgerald. His talent shines through, however, in the form of long and thoughtful editorials. He also was a manager and a perfectionist.

In White's day, newspapers were printed in their own shop. Readers and advertisers were loyal to the local weekly and when it arrived in Clinton County without a doubt they all turned to the editorial page to see what Ink White had to say. Most of the hard news was contained on the front page in short brief stories.

They were bigger papers, in those days, full of grocery store and automobile ads and pages of correspondence which chronicled the social comings and goings of rural people.

"People liked to see their names in the paper and see them spelled right," White explained. "That was back in a time when a visitor from St. Johns to Bingham was a big event," he said. "Sunday dinners were something special for everyone. It was before skiing and snowmobiling."

Today people have more to do and are more sophisticated. Farms, as newspapers, have grown larger under single ownership and the people who do live in the country commute to work and entertainment.

"We had a high degree of loyalty as far as news sources and advertisers," White explained, "and we cultivated that to a great degree." "It broke our hearts to see something announced in the State Journal before our issue was out," he said. "To a certain extent we arranged news breaks, making sure we had them first," he remembers.

White sees county newspapers today becoming more entertainment conscious. "You write to entertain as much as you write to report news," he said.

In the early 60's publishers began looking at cheaper and better ways to print newspapers. The computer age entered journalism and White was one of the first weekly publishers to convert to offset or "cold type". He sold off the hot type equipment and the press and rearranged the inside of the Walker Street building retaining only enough of the old machinery to run a job shop.

Dale Stafford in Greenville already had an offset and White took the paper there for printing. He also dropped the "Republican" from the paper's name.

"I knew that I either had to invest in a new press and get a lot bigger or bow out of the business," White said. Since no one in his family (the Whites have three sons), was really interested in continuing the business, he sold the paper to Stafford and walked across the street to the Clinton National Bank to begin a new career.

"I honestly thought it would be relaxing," White laughed ruefully, "but all businesses are alike." The bank job, first as vice-president and then as president until 1974, was a good way for White to keep the acquaintances and friends he had made in the newspaper business.

He soon found out that changes were coming along in banking as they had in the newspaper business. "I jumped from the frying pan into the fire," he acknowledged. Computers were soon to change banking as they had changed printing. At Clinton National Bank, White discovered that his new career, as his old career, "was no eight hour day."

Today he calls both banking and journalism "a young man's game." "You can't live in the past," he said, "it's kind of fun to live there but..."

White and his wife Barbara have devoted much of their time to travel. They have made 14 overseas trips involving air, sea and land transportation to nearly every place but the Middle East and only briefly in Africa. Saying that while they certainly haven't stopped traveling, White is ready to hand it over to the young man also.

"There's nothing convenient about traveling anymore," he said. "The airlines handle people like cattle and travelers are getting less and less service for more and more dollars."

The Whites' favorite way to get acquainted in a country is to rent an automobile and drive through themselves. This they have done in much of Europe. "It's the pleasantest way," he said.

Although retired from participation in local business affairs, White continues to be president and a director for the Bostwick Foundry Co., a Lapeer manufacturer, and is president and director of the Point Nipigon Resort Association, a 50-member group of cottages who own a three-mile stretch of lower peninsula shoreline along the Straits of Mackinac. The Whites spend about four months a year at their Nipigon cottage.

Local civic responsibilities include membership on the board of Peckham Vocational Industries, a Lansing-based rehabilitation group serving the tri-county area.

Eisler, Myers exchange vows

Bonnie Rae Eisler became the bride of Mark L. G. Myers on Feb. 8 during a 5 p.m. double ring service performed by Father William Hankerd at St. Joseph Catholic Church.

The bride was escorted down the aisle by her father to an altar decorated with mums and gladioli. Organist was David Wiseman.

The bride and groom graduated from St. Johns High School in 1979 and 1977 respectively.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of white polyester organza over taffeta lining with an A-line skirt of tiers of lace to form a chapel train. The dress featured an empire waistline, a Queen Anne collar on a V-neckline and lace cuffs on the Bishop sleeves.

She wore a waltz length veil of Chantilly lace with a Camelot headpiece accented with pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations, white daisies, yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Michelle English. Bridesmaids were Marcia Geller, Roxanne Rogers and Robin Myers. Flower girl was Holly Myers.

The attendants wore polyester gowns of celery green with a cape effect at the neckline. They carried colonial bouquets of white carnations, yellow daisies and orange miniature carnations accented with baby's breath.

The bride's mother wore a floor length mauve gown of chiffon over taffeta. The groom's mother wore a two-toned brown knit floor length gown. Both wore corsages of orchids, daisies and baby's breath.

Best man was Grant Myers. Groomsman were

Albert Ott, John Watkins and Bill Strauss. Ushers were Bill Eisler and Jim Shafley.

A reception for the couple with 450 people attending was held at St. Joseph's Hall.

Host and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Nicky Knight.

Serving at the wedding were LaVonne Rogers Tricia Rogers, Melinda English and Karen Myers.

Special guests present were Mr. and Mrs. L.G. Myers, grandparents of the groom, Mrs. Helen Edwards, great-grandmother of the groom and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Eisler and daughter Kelly.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Eisler, 701 S. Clinton, and Ross Myers and Kay Myers all of St. Johns.

The couple took a wedding trip to Florida and are making their home at Lot 74, 609 N. Morton St., St. Johns.

Old house restoration series planned for March Sundays

St. Johns
Catering to old house lovers, the Clinton County Historical Society will sponsor a series of historic house restoration at the Paine-Gillam-Scott Museum during the four Sundays of March from 3 to 4 p.m.

Slides and speakers will offer tips and solutions for persons interested in fixing up an older home. The museum is located across from the County Courthouse.

Each fall the Historical Society sponsors a home tour showing visitors old houses in the St. Johns area and how families fit them into their individual lifestyles. "This series will show people how they can cope with their old house," Betty Moore, chairman of the 1980 Home Tour said. "The museum is an old house and it will be on the tour again this fall." Assisting with the restoration series will be Bob Walling and John Rumbaugh, who heads the on going restoration of the Victorian house museum.

Mrs. Moore said the series is designed for people who have questions about old houses and want to plan how to fix them up.

Each session centers around a slide presentation put out by the American Association for State and Local History, with support from the National Museum Act, administered by the Smithsonian Institution and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Charlie Huntington will start the series, March 2, with a presentation on "Reading a building," or determining the style of your old home and how to do the research necessary to determine what it looked like originally. Huntington has restored his St. Johns home to a colonial period and is considered a local expert.

Tom Hutton, local contractor and craftsman, will speak at the second session March 9, on "Overall planning for historic house restoration," or how to set up a plan for your restoration project.

Mark Barber and Jerry Witgen, who have been involved in many restoration projects in St. Johns will lead discussion at the March 16 meeting. The program will be on Victorian House Colors: Exterior. Witgen is an expert in reproducing the handwork in trim and porches that often have been removed on old houses.

March 23, the series program will be "Wallpaper and the Historic House." The museum owns an old wallpaper book dating back to the early 1900's which will be on display.

Also to be introduced during this series is a collection of "Old House Journals", an indexed guide to restoration know how. The museum owns copies back to 1973 and will make them available to those interested. The journals offer expert advice on everything an old house owner needs to know.

Information is available on how to stiffen sagging floors, sealing leaking windows and removing stains from masonry.

Articles cover running electrical wire, tips on stripping shutters, the anatomy of a staircase, repairing old chimneys and what not to remove from an old house.

Clinton Memorial has Founder's Day

St. Johns
The Clinton Memorial Hospital Board held its Founder's Day meeting Feb. 20. Chairperson, Wanda Humphrey, briefly reviewed its history since its inception in 1928.

Three new members, Jane Knight, Terry Warren and Eleanor LeFevre, were welcomed into the Auxiliary. Four honorary members Alice Henthorn, Cerelda Hicks, Evelyn Putnam and Mrs. Forrest Root, were also introduced.

The chairpersons gave the various committee reports:

Gift Shop: Esther Teidt reported that she and Lillian Teidt had been on a buying trip last week. She also said that they are looking forward to attending a gift show in March. Her committee logged 353 hours for the month of January.

Sewing Circle: Chairperson, Helen Fitzpatrick stated that her group had made 67 new articles and 27 items from selvage. She presented chairperson Humphrey with a check for $73 from the deposit on soft drink cans from the hospital soft drink machines.

Puppets: Vira Montague told the group that her committee made 80 puppets and put in 116 hours this month. They also took 21 puppets to emergency.

Tray Favors: Donna Carter told the Auxiliary members which groups from the community will be providing tray favors for the various holidays in March. She also asked the women to save Christmas cards to make book marks for tray favors.

TV Committee: Billie Pierson reported that the shelves for the old black and white TV sets must be removed from hospital storage. They will be put on sale on consignment at Paradise TV and at Kurt's Appliance. She also said that Parr's Drugs will provide about 20 more TV Guides per week since there is now a TV set for each bed.

Heart Ball: Karen Soffin presented Wanda Humphrey with a check from Ray Canfield. The check represents the Auxiliary proceeds from the photos. Canfield took at the Heart Ball. Mrs. Soffin told the group that the photos should be ready next week. She also reported that the Heart Ball netted $1,493.

New Projects: Melanie Humphrey told the women that the Follies committee had met with the Alma Hospital Auxiliary Follies. She said it would be a big project, but promises to be lots of fun. Mrs. Humphrey also announced that the 1980 style show would be held on Wednesday, May 7. She gave her committee notice of a meeting to be held next month to get plans rolling for the style show.

Paul McNamara, hospital administrator, congratulated the Auxiliary women on their anniversary and their contribution to the hospital. McNamara praised the group for its constantly rising standards and its diligence and innovative ideas in meeting its goals.

PEP kids camp out

By Laura Armonatrou

St. Johns
"I don't want to go home yet!" "Man, it would be neat to live here." "When can we come back?"

These comments were just a few made by 33 St. Johns youngsters while on a weekend camp-out this month at Eagle Village near Big Rapids.

They had just spent the weekend cross-country skiing, tobogganing, sledding, hiking and touring an old-fashioned log cabin with no indoor plumbing or electricity.

The youngsters, all of them fourth and fifth graders from St. Johns' eight elementary schools, had spent

Grandparents twice in two days

Fowler
There are proud grandparents and then there are proud proud grandparents. Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Fedewa of M-21, Fowler are the latter.

Last week Wednesday, Feb. 20, their daughter Cheryl Arens gave birth to an 8-pound, 14-ounce girl, Dawn Michelle, at Carson City Hospital.

The following day, another daughter Debra Rehmann gave birth to a 9-pound, 2-ounce boy, Kenneth Stephen, at Carson City Hospital.

The two sisters were able to stay in the same room at the hospital and were released on the same day, Monday, Feb. 25.

Mrs. Arens and her husband, Gerald, live at 11064 W. 6th St., Fowler and they have another daughter, Kelly. Mrs. Rehmann and her husband, Richard, live on M-21, Fowler and have two other sons, Mike and Jeff.

Besides the Fedewas, other grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Linus Arens of Route 2, Fowler and Mr. and Mrs. John Rehmann of St. Johns.

six days together last summer as participants in a pilot program called Pioneers in Educational Programming, (PEP).

The PEP Camp members got together for a reunion on two different weekends this month.

The theme of the weekend campouts was "Winter Survival." Activities included camp crafts, such as fire building and outdoor cooking, movies and listening to winter survival stories read by staff members.

The youngsters involved in PEP were not there just for the fun and games, however. "Each weekend is defined with a special goal in mind," PEP staff member Terry Cornwell said.

Cornwell, a St. Johns elementary school counselor, said these goals were decided cooperatively by school counselors, juvenile officers, a community mental health therapist and various program specialists from the community.

PEP aims to teach youngsters to accept and understand their own physical, emotional and mental growth and that of others. They also learn how to make decisions. "We look at the camp as a vehicle for showing the youngster alternative ways to react to situations," Cornwell said.

We are putting the youngster in an environment that is positive and letting him see the benefits of positive behavior, he added.

Fred Olmstead, a Clinton County Probation officer, said the youngsters chosen to participate in PEP generally are having problems at school—academic problems or behavior problems.

"We usually look at three elements: the family, the schools and peers," he said. "If youngsters are having problems in two of those three areas, chances are they are going to need some support from outside sources."

Some of the youngsters, after being involved in PEP, return to their schools and become leaders in group counseling sessions.

"Kids learn from each other, using each other as models," Olmstead said. Cornwell said five young adults who assisted the staff as junior counselors also filled an important dimension as role models for the youngsters.

The junior counselors, Sharon Barnes, Gary Keilen, Beth Gavenda, Ross Pope and Karen Grost, all freshmen at St. Johns High School, led activities and acted as cabin counselors.

"The junior counselors played an important role in developing relationships with the youngsters and helped the youngsters to develop relationships with each other," Cornwell said.

PEP was staffed by members Krys O'Brien of the Community Resource Volunteers, Olmstead and Carol Ferlazzo of Clinton County Juvenile Court and Cornwell and "Bud" Delevan of St. Johns Public Schools.

The program, funded by a state grant, will continue this summer at Eagle Village.

Olmstead added that local businessmen and service groups have also contributed to PEP.

Musicales looks at musical theater

Joann Martis hosted members and guests of the St. Johns Morning Musicales at an evening meeting Thursday, Feb. 7. The program was in observance of the Parade of American Music, a February tradition of the National Federation of Music Clubs, to which the Musicales belongs.

Anne Holm, chairman of the evening, introduced Kay Pilmore who presented four members of the Pewamo-Westphalia Community Players, of which she is "director-in-residence."

She traced the history of American musical theater, noting composers Irving Berlin, George Gershwin, Cole Porter, Frank Loesser and Stephen Sondheim. She paid tribute to the famous collaborators, Lerner and Lowe, and the late Richard Rodgers who collaborated with Jerome Kern, Moss Hart and Oscar Hammerstein.

She also spoke of Strouse and Charnin, Hamlish and Kleban, Geld and Udell, and Schmidt and Jones, collaborating teams responsible for four newer musical shows.

Food stores in Moscow are experiencing a severe shortage of grain products and other basic foods, but an official report blamed corrupt shopkeepers and panic buying, not the U.S. grain embargo.

The report by undercover city government inspectors published in MOSKOY-SKAYA PRAVDA said shopkeepers were keeping food in back storerooms, presumably to be sold on the thriving black market at much higher prices.

It said that inspectors found 34 shops over a two-day period that claimed they had no flour or macaroni products. But when the storerooms were inspected, they were full of items with a total value of $230,000, the paper said.

Expecting parents need to plan for the little one.

Pack a punch in every lunch

By Sharon Randall
Staff Writer

St. Johns

At least half of the elementary children here carry their lunch school. Since prices for the t.v. dinner-style lunch served through the hot lunch program have risen twice this year (to 70 cents per day) about 15 percent more parents are sending kids with lunch from home.

With help from Clinton County's home economist, Chloe Padgett, and teachers and parents interested in good nutrition, the Clinton County News takes a look at the hows and whys of packing children a healthy lunch.

You can probably send a lunch for 35 to 40 cents plus the eight cents cost for milk. This amounts to $1 or more savings per week. A bologna sandwich runs around 23 cents; peanut butter and jelly, 20 cents, (this is figuring with whole wheat bread). Carrots can be packed for a nickel, so can most cereal bars and servings of homemade cookies. Most fruit runs around 10 cents. Soup for the thermos runs 11 to 17 cents per serving.

Talking to elementary school children last week, I found lunch boxes and bags packed with everything from the notorious peanut butter and jelly sandwich, chocolate pudding and twinkie lunch to a gourmet lunch of ham and cheese on pita (pocket bread) packed in a lunch box with fresh fruit salad and a little bag of popcorn.

Lunch room aides, teachers and parents agreed that a lunch packed to a child's individual appetite brings the most success. Parents who are trying to make sure that a child's lunch provides 1/3 of his daily intake of protein and vitamins can't count the peas included in the hot lunch unless they know their child ate them. It's the same for fruit and vegetables packed in a lunch box.

"I play the game," parent Barb Worrall of St. Johns said. "I prefer to pack their lunch because I know they will eat what I send."

Mrs. Worrall said she stays away from sweets in the lunches she packs for her children Mary and Mark. "With only 20 minutes to eat, I try not to give them too many 'empty' calories," she said. Barb freezes any meat sandwiches that she uses as a safety precaution and sends small packets of catsup instead of adding salad dressing or mayonnaise.

Both Mrs. Worrall and teacher-parent Corky Sternburgh said they don't feel a sandwich is necessary, especially for small eaters. Crackers and peanut butter or cheese are good substitutes and chunks of meat and cheese packed separately are good for nibbling with a roll and butter.

Mrs. Worrall utilizes little fat thermos jugs that hold about 1 cup for things like bean dip, yogurt, and fruit salad. Some of her recipes are included on this page. The bean dip is packed along with lots of crisp carrot sticks providing both a touch of protein and a good serving of vegetables. The fruit salad has a lemon pudding and orange juice base and can utilize whatever fruit you have on hand. Yogurt is a nice addition on the days that her children take juice in their thermos because it serves as a substitute for the milk serving.

She also stays away from potato chip products and sends little bags of popcorn flavored with a little butter flavored salt.

Sandwiches are more fun packed in pita or pocket bread. Mrs. Worrall cubes bologna or ham and shreds cheese for this special. Tossed together, they are then stuffed into the pocket. She leaves off any kind of dressing, sending a little packet of catsup with Mary who also said the sandwiches are good plain. Cream cheese is also a good filling for this bread, but should be packed with something to keep it cool.

Most mothers said it doesn't really take that long to pack a lunch. Mrs. Sternburgh utilizes her microwave oven for heating soup or spaghetti in daughter Jody's thermos. This can't be done if your thermos contains any metal. Pouring hot or boiling water into the thermos and letting it sit for several minutes before adding hot food helps them stay warmer until lunch time. Children themselves can pre-package popcorn, cereal bars and other snacks ahead of time and have them ready for the week. Utilizing frozen sandwiches is also a time saver in the morning.

From a bag or a box

Keep safety in mind

The keys to packing a safe brown bag lunch are: keep everything clean; and keep hot foods hot and cold food cold.

To keep spoilage organisms from growing, be sure that hands, utensils and countertops used to prepare food are clean. Vacuum bottles and other food containers should be washed with hot soapy water and rinsed with boiling water after each use.

Vacuum bottles can be used to keep foods like soups, stews and chili hot. If these foods are boiling hot when poured into vacuum bottles, they should remain hot enough to prevent spoilage if the food is eaten within four hours.

The best way to keep cold foods cold is to use a freezer gel device. This can be purchased or improvised by cleaning a plastic margarine tub, filling it with water and freezing it. Put in the lunch bag, it will keep foods cold until lunchtime.

Foods usually refrigerated but which keep well in lunches at room temperatures include summer sausage or salami, hard cheese (like colby, cheddar, Swiss, etc.) and pasteurized process cheeses. Hard-cooked eggs, unpeeled, may also be packed in lunches if their shells are not cracked. Fully cooked products like bologna and hot dogs also keep well.

Turkey, chicken, sliced roast beef, or pork sandwiches should be frozen overnight and allowed to thaw in the lunch box. For best results, add mayonnaise or salad dressings to these sandwiches before eating rather than before freezing. If put on ahead of time, these toppings will soak into the bread.

If there is a choice, pack lunches in lunch boxes rather than bags. Lunch boxes, especially insulated ones, are easier to keep clean and will keep foods cold better than bags. If using brown bags for carrying lunches, it is best to buy them specifically for carrying lunches and use them only once. Bags that are food stained or soiled will contain bacteria that can lead to food spoilage.

Following these tips will lessen the chances of food spoilage which can lead to food poisoning. Though food poisoning is rarely fatal, it can cause unpleasant symptoms like severe headache, diarrhea, vomiting, abdominal cramps and fever. Because these symptoms are similar to those of flu, food poisoning and flu can be mistaken for each other.

The important thing to remember is, why take chances? Prevent poisoning by following recommended preparation, packing and storage procedures when preparing brown bag lunches.

Vegetables taste better dipped

A handy addition to the lunch box is one of those little fat thermos jugs that hold about 1 cup. Barb Worrall uses them almost every day, chilling them first and then packing them with fruit salad, bean dip or yogurt.

Her bean dip is great for any kind of raw vegetable but her children prefer carrots, send lots, peeled, sliced and packed in plastic wrap. An assortment of vegetables is even better.

Barb's Bean Dip

- 6 oz. sharp cheese food
- 1 can condensed bean with bacon soup
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 2 tablespoons of sliced green onions
- 1/2 teas. of worcestershire sauce
- 1 teas. seasoned salt

Heat the soup and cheese until melted. Remove from heat and stir in rest of ingredients. This dip keeps well in the refrigerator. Makes three cups. Mrs. Worrall sends about a third cup for a serving.

Fresh Fruit Salad

Sauce: Make one small package of cooked lemon pudding, decreasing the milk by 1/2 cup. Cool, then stir in 1 cup of orange juice. This is enough for a large bowl of fruit.

Fruit: Chunks of apples, oranges, grapefruit, grapes, pineapple, peaches, pears, and bananas in any combination go well with this sauce. You can add coconut and raisins. This salad keeps at least two days in the refrigerator. Bananas are best added in the morning before you pack the thermos because they tend to darken.

They need the basic four

By Chloe A. Padgett
Extension Home Economist

At lunch time, a child needs a chat with a buddy, a giggle or two, and a bagful of premeditated nutrition.

With a little forethought, you can turn the old standbys into adventurous surprises. Tuck in pineapple cubes and sugar wafers and your second grader will hire a bodyguard while he eats his lunch. Good old cream cheese becomes a school child's delight when it's turned into fancy cream cheese sandwiches on raisin bread. Add celery sticks and chocolate pudding and your child may pick a daisy for you on the way home.

Lunchbox meal planning is a challenge—whether the lunch is for an adult or a child. Each lunch should contain one-third of the day's requirements for food. Plan your lunches so there is at least one serving from each of the Basic Four Food Groups.

BASIC FOUR

MEAT GROUP - two or more servings (one serving means 2 or 3 oz. of cooked lean meat, fish, poultry, 2 eggs).

EXAMPLES: If it's the sandwich filling, try cold meat and/or cheese; meat loaf; bacon and baked beans; cold chicken, ham or roast beef from last night's supper, bacon, lettuce and tomato (packed separately and assembled at lunch time); peanut butter and...honey, apple butter, jelly, mashed banana, raisins, shredded carrot, dill pickles.

If you've invested in some of the insulated containers for hot or cold dishes; think about macaroni salad, meat or egg salad, soup, stew, chili, spaghetti. Be sure your lunchers understand that these containers must be returned home each day.

BREAD-CEREAL GROUP-four or more servings. (One serving means one slice bread or one biscuit or 1 oz. ready-to-eat cereal, macaroni, rice, cornmeal, spaghetti, or grits.)

EXAMPLES: If sandwiches are a must, try rye or whole wheat for a change. Or enriched hot dog or hamburger buns. Or French bread, bagels, English muffins, raisin bread. Or enriched crackers in any shape or flavor.

VEGETABLE-FRUIT GROUP-four or more servings. This includes citrus fruits, tomatoes, dark green and dark yellow vegetables - frozen, canned or fresh. (One serving equals 1/2 cup).

EXAMPLE: All kinds of fresh vegetables do for relishes. Include pieces of cauliflower, cucumber, sliced turnip and rutabaga, cabbage wedges, and lettuce. Fruits can be pineapple spears, strawberries, apricots, nectarines, blueberries, as well as the familiar apples, oranges and bananas. And little surprises like bean, salad, cole slaw, sauerkraut, watermelon, pickles and mixed fruit salad are usually welcomed.

MILK-adults, two 8 oz. glasses, four or more glasses, the milk can be substituted with cottage cheese, other cheese or ice cream.

EXAMPLE: Think about milk puddings, commercial or homemade custards; all kinds of cheeses; cream soups.

Specials for busy parents

To save time, you can freeze sandwiches over a weekend, or in an evening. The sandwiches will keep up to 3 weeks. What you must remember is what cannot be frozen without loss of quality:

Hard-cooked egg whites (become tough); Jelly (soaks into the bread); Fresh vegetables and salad greens.

YOU CAN FREEZE: Cold roast meats; meat loaf; packaged luncheon meat (bologna is inexpensive and popular.) Braunschweiger and liverwurst are highest in iron. Chicken slices, boiled ham and variety loaves are tasty favorites; peanut butter, or peanut mixed with snipped dried fruit; packaged cheese spreads; flaked tuna or salmon; sliced cheeses or cheese spreads; any combination of the above.

Mustard, catsup, dairy sour cream, fruit juice or applesauce can be used to moisten meats before freezing and will enhance flavor.

Always spread all slices with butter or margarine to the edges to keep the filling from soaking through. To wrap, use a sandwich bag if you wish, but overwrap with moisture vaporproof wrap. Label each sandwich; store in a box to prevent crushing. Sandwiches will thaw in the lunchbox in 3 to 4 hours. You can wrap lettuce, coleslaw, radish slices, etc. separately and pack them with the lunch.

Sneak some goodness into sweet snacks

If you pack your child a sweet, try to make it a healthy sweet. Use peanut butter, honey, nuts and cereal to make cookies or bars. Try applesauce or carrot cookies. Add raisins and wheat germ to old favorites like oatmeal cookies and you will be sneaking in some extra goodness.

Try these two bar cookies that go together quickly and pack well in the lunch bag.

Chat 'N' Chew Bars

Crisp bars created by baking oats and nuts in bubbling brown sugar and honey...

- 4 cups quick or old fashioned oatmeal
- 1 1/2 cups chopped peanuts, walnuts or pecans
- 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 3/4 cup margarine, melted
- 1/2 cup honey
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1 tsp. salt

Combine all ingredients; mix well. Press firmly into well-greased 15 1/2 x 10 1/2 inch jelly roll pan. Bake in preheated very hot oven (450 degrees) about 10 to 12 minutes or until golden brown. (Mixture will be golden brown and bubbly.) Cool thoroughly. Cut into bars.

Skillet Snacks

- 1/4 cup each honey and margarine
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1/4 cup wheat germ
- 2 cups miniature marshmallows
- 2 cups crisp rice cereal
- 1 cup chopped nuts

In skillet combine honey, butter, marshmallows and salt; cook and stir over low heat until marshmallows are melted (You can do this in the microwave). Remove from heat and stir in cereal, wheat germ and nuts. Turn out into greased 9 inch square pan and press down with fingers. Let stand until firm. Cut into 16 squares.

What wheat germ?

Try these peanut butter go togethers

Peanut butter is a staple in most homes with young children. A few additions can make those sandwiches more imaginative and nutritious. Try:

raisins mixed with fruit juice
Peanut Butter and grated raw carrots
Peanut Butter topped with applesauce
Peanut Butter topped with crumbled cooked bacon plus honey

Peanut Butter and banana slices
Peanut Butter and cream cheese blended, plus 2 T. orange juice or honey

Pride, Marauders win

By Mark Haney
Sports Writer

Ovid
Pride, at least in the world of scholastic athletics, is one thing that is difficult to measure.

But it wasn't hard, this past week, to tell that the Ovid-Elsie high basketball team had more than its share of pride as the marauders bounded back from a demoralizing loss to Corunna Feb. 16 to first top non-league rival Midland Bullock Creek 65-63, then power past

Mid-michigan B Conference rival St. Johns, 77-67.

Even though the Marauders had little to gain league-wise, they managed to muster up enough pride to take both games, an important step towards the upcoming Class B districts.

"I think St. Johns was the same when we played at their place," Marauder Coach Bob Foreback said. "I think both teams played with a lot of intensity but they had a little more then. But here, our crowd helped us."

It didn't hurt the Marauders as Ovid-Elsie rolled to a quick 12-6 lead within four minutes of the first period and stretched the lead to 22-10 by the end of the quarter.

The lead fell to just 10 points at 31-21 in the second quarter but a surge by the Marauders in the last two minutes made the margin 39-21 at intermission.

The Ovid-Elsie rush to the lead was powered by all things, a press, which stymied St. Johns' quick guards.

"I just didn't want to play the type of game they played over at their place," Foreback said. "They brought the ball up the floor and held it and goofed around with it. I didn't want that."

Surprisingly, while St. Johns' defense worked hard to contain forwards Mark

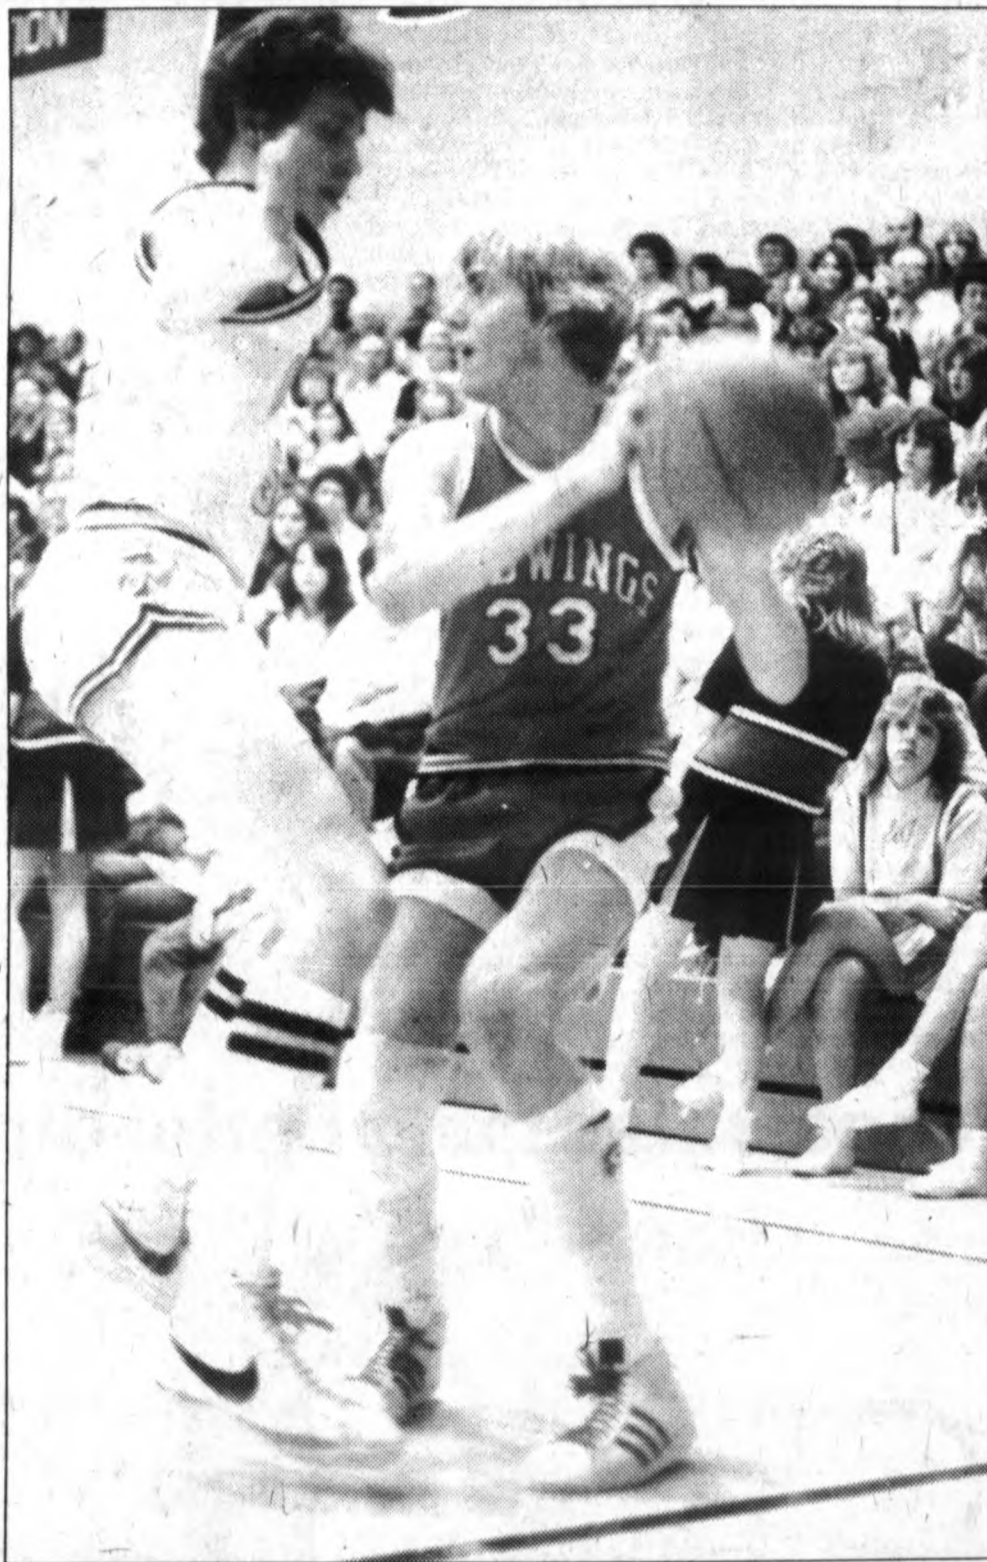

Carter and Dan Fabus of Ovid-Elsie, diminutive guard Mark Hose, the replacement for the injured Mike Hudecek, popped for 12 first-half points, most on long outside shots. The Marauders padded the lead in the second half, rolling up a 60-37 cushion by the end of the third quarter.

Then St. Johns went to a press and quickly trimmed the lead to 62-47 on a steal and a bucket by junior guard Bruce Fedewa. In all, Fedewa and sophomore guard Jeff Casler scored 12 and 15 points, respectively, in the final stanza.

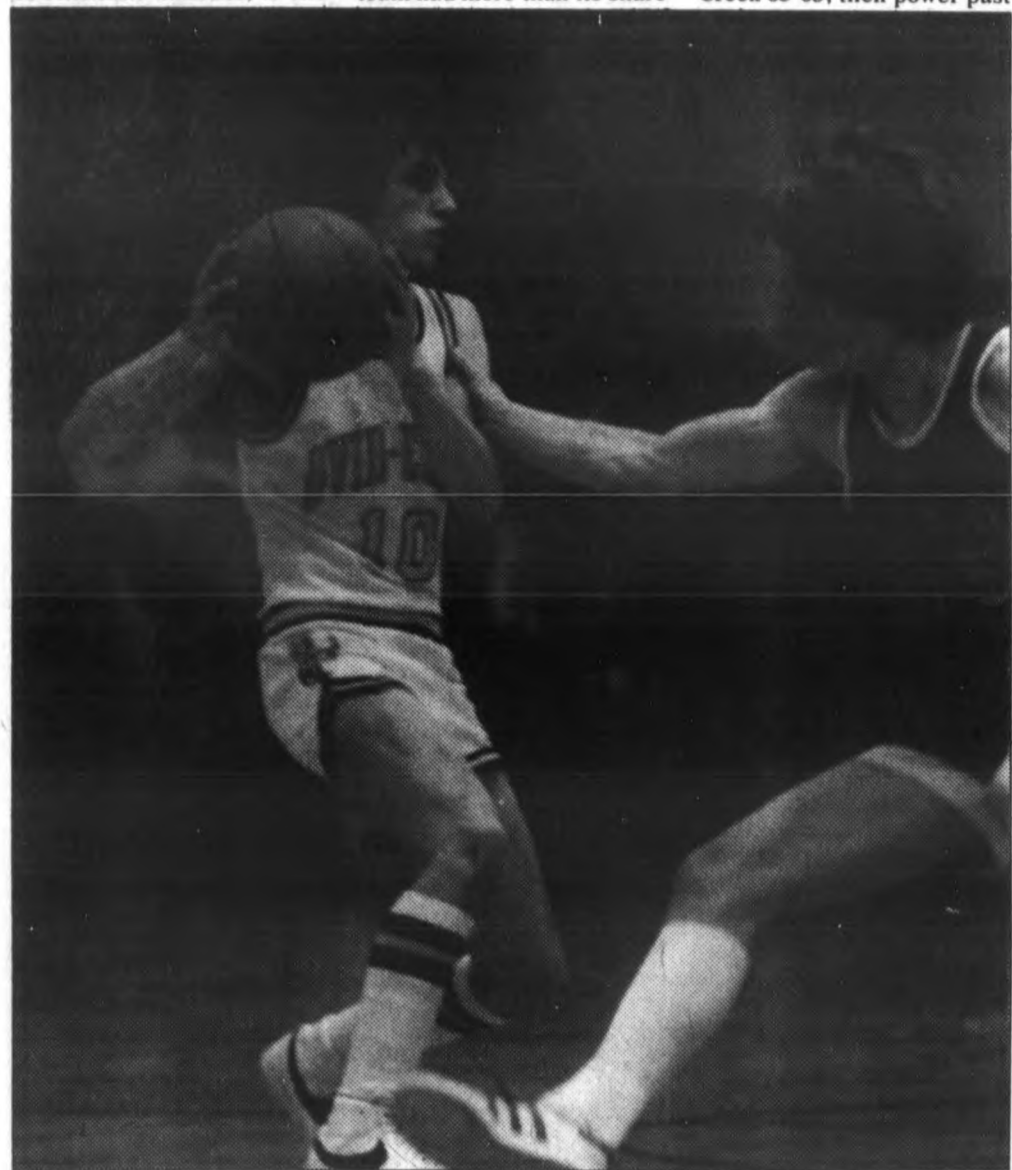

A last period surge gained the Marauders the win Tuesday as they finally overtook Bullock Creek with 5:30 left in the game. Though Ovid-Elsie established a four-point lead at one stretch, Bullock Creek cut the margin to one with 35 seconds left. But neither team could score in the time left.

While sophomore center Carl Teelander paced the Marauders with a 17-point five-rebound game, Bullock Creek got 22 points from guard Roger Marquardt. "He is super," Foreback said.

The Marauder junior varsity fell to Bullock Creek 54-52 on a last-second shot, despite a 19-point game by forward Scott Hudecek.

St. Johns forward Doug Sleep (33) had to get around Ovid-Elsie center Jerry Horn Friday before he made his way to the bucket during the game at Ovid-Elsie. Sleep, who scored 10 points, and the Redwings lost 77-67. (Photo by Mark Haney)

Trapped?

On The Mark

by Mark Haney

AN OPEN LETTER TO A FRIEND:

Dear J.P.:

I tell you, it must be the air. There is something about it, this time of year and what it does to a person. And I think you know what I mean.

Here we are, after, what is it, 13 weeks of high school basketball, after games on Tuesdays and Fridays with a glaring consistency and one would think we'd be ready to throw in the towel. I mean, after all, just how much basketball can a body stand?

Instead, like a junky, we just need more and more. And the ultimate fix, the state tournament, is on the horizon.

This isn't to say there haven't been times when I have dreaded those Friday nights and the workload they entail. Or there are times when I would just as soon spend the night out on the town or at home watching the tube.

But I only feel that way until I get to the game. Then the aura of it all, the excitement, the basketball fever hits and I won't be torn away until that last buzzer sounds and the final shot is made.

Fortunately for my nerves and my own sanity, I don't get involved with a particular team anymore. I am not so ready to stand up and scream about officiating or bemoan the loss by a favorite team. I have come to understand this game as it is. And I think the game is great.

But what of the tournaments?

Well, if I am going to get caught cheering for anyone, this is the time. For, invariably, one team or another goes the farthest, or is into a regional against some team from far away and a little allegiance to the home schools starts to show.

And I doubt this March will be any different. Even with three of the schools we cover - DeWitt, Bath and Pewamo-Westphalia—in the same district with the likes of Olivet and Lansing Catholic Central, it will be monumental if one area team doesn't go pretty far. And, of course, if they do, guess who will be there too, doing his job and enjoying every minute of it?

And that poses a particular dilemma, a Catch-22 situation I am sure you know of. The farther a team goes, the more work it means. And while there is a part of me that would just as soon not have a game to cover on those Saturdays in March, there also is a part that longs to be involved in of this thing called "March Madness."

So you can bet your bottom dollar, I'll be there. And I may just spend my time biting my tongue. Because we both know there is no cheering in the press box.

St. Johns
If only the first, second and third quarters were like the fourth, then maybe results would be different for the St. Johns High basketball team.

For three games in a row now, the Redwings of Bob Tissot have made great comebacks in the fourth quarter, but in each circumstance they have fallen short of victory, losing to Ovid-Elsie Friday 77-67 after losses to Ionia (Feb. 22) and Mason (Feb. 19).

"It is the same thing again," Tissot said after Friday's loss to the Mid-Michigan B Conference rival Marauders dropped the Redwings 5-5 in the league and 7-10 overall. "These kids don't quit. They just don't quit. But, on the other hand, it takes us a while to decide we want to play."

Friday the Redwings used one of Ovid-Elsie's tactics to gain some respect in the final score.

Ovid-Elsie used a full court press to negate the St. Johns attack for three quarters, eventually rolling up a 60-37 lead at the end of the third period.

But then St. Johns went to the press and, behind a 12-point last quarter scoring effort of junior guard Bruce Fedewa and a similar 15-point effort by sophomore guard Jeff Casler cut the lead to 10 points with 42 seconds left.

"You are taking a lot of chances (using the press)," Tissot said. "Anytime you take a lot of chances you are going to get caught sometimes."

Tissot did blame the Redwings lack of intensity for the hole they found themselves in.

"As hard as we worked defensively in the last quarter," he said, "if we had worked half as hard on our half-court defense as much, it would have been even more successful."

But it wasn't, as Ovid-Elsie amassed an early lead. "It was like we couldn't get anything to fire us up," Tissot said of the early slump. "to get us to go."

The Redwings can close the regular season on a high note Friday, however, when they play host to Class B strongboy Mount Pleasant.

"I think they will be more physical," Tissot said, "and I think they will go after us more." The Redwings lost their first-round game at Mount Pleasant 76-62.

Fulton splits two-game set

By Mark Haney

Fulton
Turnabouts was fair play this past week for the Fulton High basketball team.

The Pirates of Kim Lathwell, after losing to non-league foe St. Charles 83-71 Tuesday, came back Friday to rip Central Michigan Athletic Conference rival Bellevue 87-68.

Both games were on the road for Fulton which closes out its regular season by playing host to CMAC rival Portland St. Patrick Friday. And the Pirates head into that game with a 12-6 overall record and a 8-5 league mark.

The reserves gave Fulton some punch Friday as six players hit in double figures. Two of those players, Wayne Bond and Joel Miller, came off the bench early in the second quarter when starters Mark Skaryd and Scott Winsor got three fouls.

Both games were on the road for Fulton which closes out its regular season by playing host to CMAC rival Portland St. Patrick Friday. And the Pirates head into that game with a 12-6 overall record and a 8-5 league mark.

Pirates ahead 40-34 at intermission.

From that point on, Fulton used its 53 percent shooting coupled with a 33-31 rebounding advantage to outscore Bellevue in each remaining quarter.

Fulton did suffer at the hands of the officials, getting called for 27 fouls and losing Skaryd and Bond to the whistle.

"We were pressing," Fulton High Coach Kim Lathwell said. "And we had some dumb fouls, although the officiating was definitely in their favor."

Miller, Fulton's tallest player at 6-foot-3, also had to do battle with Bellevue's three-man front consisting of 6-foot-3 Scott Campbell, 6-foot-3 Lyle Schook and 6-foot-4 Tim McEwan. And they hit for 10, 12 and 17 points, respectively.

Despite the win and some outstanding scoring balance, Lathwell said all was not well.

"I think the guys let down in some areas," he said, "and I wasn't happy with their passing and while we did well at one end of the floor (offensively) we didn't concentrate as much at the other end, since they did score 68 points."

The show was on the other foot Tuesday as St. Charles steamrolled the Pirates. "They just handled us," Lathwell said, "and we couldn't handle them."

Fulton scraped through the first quarter and was down 16-12 when the period ended. But St. Charles took off on a 21-point second quarter tear and was never headed the rest of the way.

"They were hot (53 percent shooting)," Lathwell said. "They never shot 50 percent on the nights we scouted them. They got the big guys, so we had to send everybody to the boards and then they saw they could beat us deep and they did."

That is how St. Charles turned a 39-22 rebounding advantage into 53 percent shooting.

'March Madness' nears

By Mark Haney
Sports Writer

In 126 high schools across the length and breadth of the state of Michigan a special kind of madness is about to strike.

They call it "March Madness" but its official title is the Michigan High School Athletic Association Boys' Basketball Tournament.

It means a whole new season for all the teams involved as each takes aim at the finals, set for March 22 at the University of Michigan's Crisler Arena.

Clinton County schools will broken up five ways, with the Class A district at Owosso, the Class B district at Corunna, the Class C districts at Lansing Catholic Central and Ithaca and the Class D district at Fowler.

CLASS A
St. Johns was the team everyone wanted to get and Owosso was the team no one wanted at the Class A districts at Owosso.

Flint Carman, for one, got St. Johns for a Tuesday, 7:30 p.m. game. And Swartz Creek drew Owosso for a 7 p.m. game Monday.

"Everybody was afraid of Owosso," St. Johns Coach Bob Tissot said.

"Everybody we talked to didn't want to draw them."

"I think that is because Owosso has played everybody in the tournament except us and Bridgeport and has either gone into overtime with them or played a very close ball-game."

Owosso, however, is just 3-15.

Bridgeport, with an 11-7 record, and Flushing, at 11-7, are slated the district favorites.

The winner, however, draws the winner of the Clarkston district at the regional at Flint Central.

A head-on collision is planned early for Ovid-Elsie and Corunna which tangle in the first-round game of this Class B district at Corunna.

Ovid-Elsie and Corunna split their games in the Mid-Michigan B Conference season with Corunna winning the last encounter at Corunna.

"It really doesn't matter to me," Ovid-Elsie Coach Bob Foreback said of the draw. "I really don't believe there is an advantage or disadvantage to the draw to me."

The only drawback could be the pressure.

"Actually there is not too much bad about it," Foreback said of the tournament. "It is the second season and the kids will be sky-high, they will be ready to play and they shouldn't need much motivating."

"Maybe the pressure situation will be hard to handle, but I just see it as a whole new second season."

The winner of the Corunna-Ovid-Elsie game heads into the semifinal as a prohibitive favorite.

CLASS C at LCC

This tournament will start with a big bang as unbeaten Central Michigan Athletic Conference champion Olivet (18-0) bangs right into Capitol Circuit runner-up Lansing Catholic Central Monday night in the first-round opener.

The winner is a clear favorite to take it all. But they will have to face the winner of the Pewamo-Westphalia-Haslett game in Please turn to page 16.

Grapplers make 'C' finals

The season isn't over yet for three Fulton High wrestlers as Jeff Price, Tim Price and Rick Robbe all head off for this weekend's Class C state finals at Watervliet High.

Tim Price, at 132 pounds, was the lone champion taking Rick Terry of Carson City-Crystal in the finals.

Robbe took a second when he lost to Rick Bullard of Shepherd 12-4 in the 145-pound finals. And Jeff Price took third at 105 pounds.

"Our district was a lot tougher than the other district there," Fulton Coach Jayke Pell said.

"I thought we wrestled pretty well," he added.

"Things came out about the way I had hoped they would for us."

At the state meet, Jeff Price will have it toughest, since he will have to wrestle more matches to gain the finals.

Tim Price and Robbe, however, need just two wins each to gain at least a second place.

CLASS A
St. Johns High wasn't so fortunate at the Class A regional at Rochester Adams.

Ken Harris lost two straight matches, one by decision and one by pin, and was eliminated from the tournament. Greg Wood, at 167-pounds, lost his first and third matches by pins, gaining an 11-6 win in round two.

"Ken didn't wrestle very well at all," St. Johns Coach Greg Wolf said. "For one thing, he was over weight and had to lose it before his match and that drains you."

GIRLS' GYMNASTICS
St. Johns at Ionia Invitational, 7 p.m.

Gymnasts take second

St. Johns

Even for a rebuilding year, this season has proven to be a success for the St. Johns High boys' gymnastics team.

Friday the Redwings closed the book on the Mid-Michigan Gymnastics League regular season by topping Harper Wood Notre Dame 110.71-91.43 and beating Ionia 110.71-102.62 at St. Johns High.

The two wins leave the Redwings with a 7-3 record and in second place, behind champion East Lansing, as the league heads into the league meet, March 6 at Southfield Lathrup.

"We expect to take second place there," St. Johns Coach John Furry said. "We are going to go down there with that in mind."

Before the Redwings can put the league meet on their mind, they have to take care of Clarenceville Friday, a team they beat 106-104 earlier in the season.

"I think we are very even up," Furry said.

Girls triumph too

St. Johns

The St. Johns High girls gymnastics team made the best of Senior Night and Parents' Night Feb. 18 by topping visiting Lansing Harry Hill 83.5-49.0.

The Redwings of Sue Cerny grabbed all of the places that count, the top three in each event.

Darlene Cerny and Dawn Bakita split wins with Cerny taking the vaulting with an 8.1 score and tying teammate Cindy Steavens for first on the uneven parallel bars.

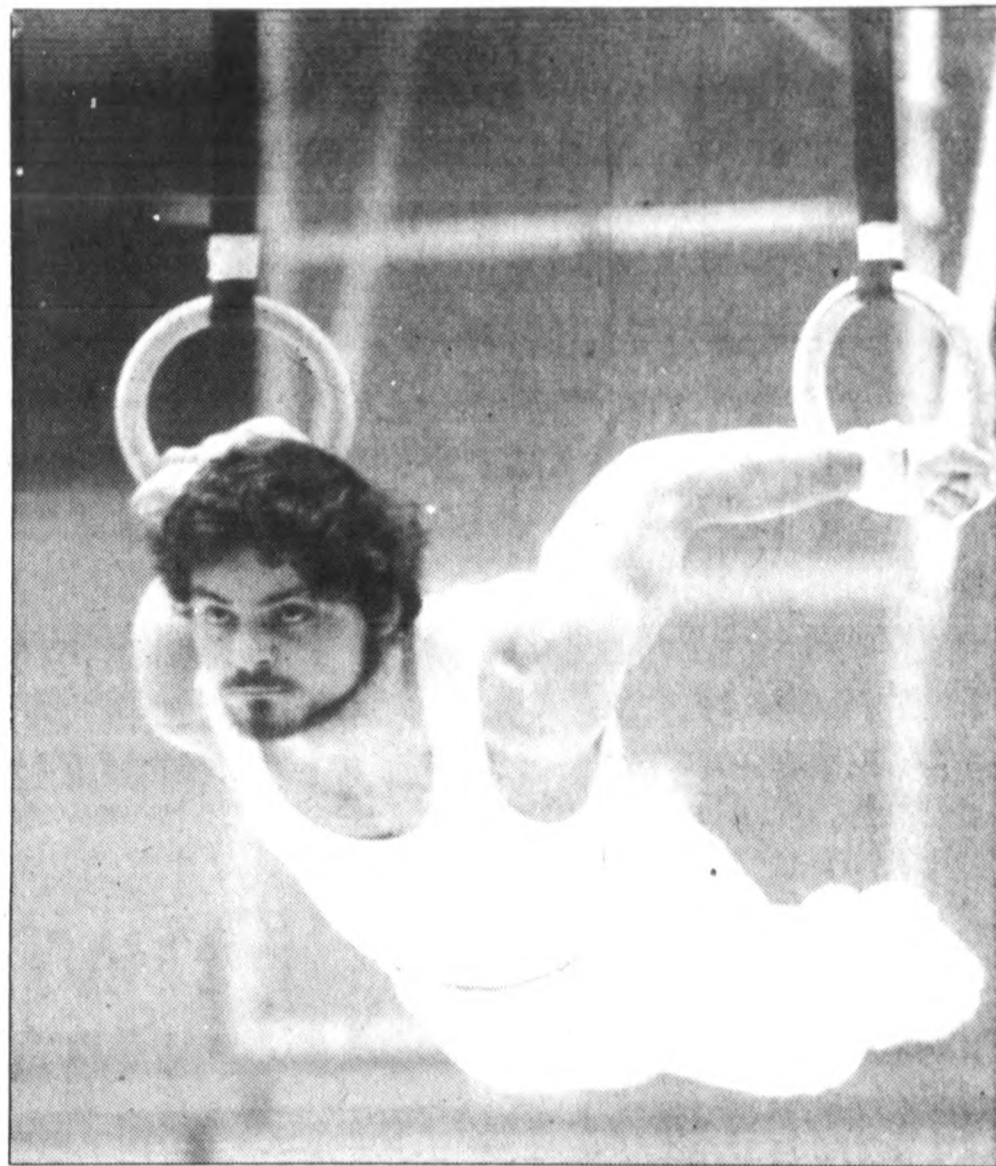

Bakita, meanwhile, won the floor exercise with a 7.25, and took the balance beam competition. Bakita also took second in the vaulting and was third behind teammate Sharon Law on the parallel bars.

Law also took third on the beam, behind Cerny.

Michelle Rehmman finished third in vaulting while Tammy Gladstone and Chris Dedyne finished second and third, respectively, in floor exercise.

The Redwings close out the season Tuesday at the Ionia Invitational. The regionals, at Freeland, follow on Saturday.

BEST C.A.F.E.

Ford has the best Corporate Average Fuel Economy of any major U.S. car maker. C.A.F.E. is the government's measure of auto companies' progress in gas mileage each year. It is an average using the EPA rating system and projected 1980 total model year car sales mix as submitted to the U.S. government in December, 1979.

Only Ford among the major U.S. companies ranks first on this basis.

Remember, C.A.F.E. is an average, so consult EPA ratings for individual car's mileage.

Showdown finale next for Pirates

By Mark Haney
Sports Writer

Pewamo
The big one, the season finale, is this Friday for the Pewamo-Westphalia High basketball team.

But this is no ordinary curtain call, for the Pirates take on long-time bitter rival Fowler in a game at Pewamo-Westphalia.

And while each team is seeking that big win needed to carry it into the districts in style, the game has added importance to the Pirates. A loss coupled with a win by Fulton over Portland St. Patrick would mean sharing second in the Central Michigan Athletic Conference with Fulton. A win means second belongs to Pewamo-Westphalia.

"If we want to take second place, we have to win it," Pirate Coach John Ellis said after his Pirates topped Portland St. Patrick 68-48 Friday in a CMAC contest.

"I just think it is going to be one of those tough games," he added. "I am just glad it is here. And I think we will have to play better than we did if we want to beat them."

Ellis referred to Pewamo-Westphalia's 33 percent shooting in Friday's game and the 27 personal fouls called on the Pirates.

And though the Pirates outrebounced St. Patrick 45-38, they did it without senior center John Bauer.

"I was a little concerned about that," Ellis said, "especially since those kids (Mike) Wieber and (Ken) Kramer had been doing so well on the boards."

But when Pewamo-Westphalia vaulted to a quick 11-0 lead in the first quarter, Ellis' fears were allayed. The Pirates eventually grabbed a 22-6 advantage by the end of the period and had a 36-20 lead at intermission.

Perry Thelen filled in for Bauer while senior reserve forward Dan Thelen picked up the scoring slack with a 10-point, seven-rebound performance. The Pirates' best was the 17-point, five steal game of junior guard Mike Pohl.

Now, however, the Pirates must get by a recovering Fowler team that had a five-game win streak snapped by CMAC leader Olivet Friday.

The Pirates junior varsity lost to Portland St. Patrick 76-72 despite Jeff Behlen's 23 points.

Olivet trims Fowler

By Mark Haney
Sports Writer

Fowler
Two strings of Fowler's—a winning streak of five games and a superior shooting skein of seven games—came roaring to halt Friday when the Eagles ran into another winning streak, namely the 17-game variety of Olivet.

The loss, despite a 59-50 non-league win over Carson City-Crystal Tuesday, start as the Eagles dropped to a 6-7 in the Central Michigan Athletic Conference and to 9-9 overall.

"We've just reverted right back to our old style of play again," Eagle Coach Charlie Trierweiler said.

A first-period disaster did the most damage, as Fowler scored but 10 points thanks to 17 percent shooting and 10 turnovers. Olivet, playing without injured star Randy Morrison, took a clean 10-point lead.

"It was just about all over but the shouting right then," Trierweiler said.

With the exception of a 14-10 advantage in the last quarter, the Eagles were outscored in each period as Olivet took a 40-24 halftime lead and a 56-38 third quarter lead.

Fowler didn't have any of those problems Tuesday as they racked up Carson City-Crystal. The Eagles hit at a 47 percent clip and outrebounced the visitors 27-17.

Friday's loss puts a lot of pressure on the Eagles to end the season right with a win over long-time rival and red hot CMAC runner-up Pewamo-Westphalia.

"And that is over there. Their kids shoot well on that court," Trierweiler said. "They shoot well anyway, but they are doubly dangerous on that court."

The Fowler junior varsity, paced by Greg Armbrustmacher, took Carson City-Crystal Tuesday 70-59, then topped Olivet, 59-50.

'Wings swim past dual rivals

St. Johns Swimming right along, the St. Johns High swim team cruised past visiting Mason this past week 102-70, then trimmed Mid-Michigan B Conference rival Alma 100-69 Thursday in Alma.

The Redwings dominated each meet, grabbing eight of 11 possible firsts against Mason along with five seconds and six thirds. The Alma win came via five wins, seven of 11 seconds and eight thirds.

Against Mason the Redwings and Coach Jim Makaruskas got wins in the 100-yard and 200-yard freestyles from Steve Baxter while Ben Manning won the 200-yard individual medley and the 100-yard butterfly. Rick Mee took the 100-yard backstroke in a personal-best time of 1:02.9.

Calvin Winsor won the diving.

Baxter, who set a school record in the 100-yard freestyle with a time of :51.0, breaking the mark Kirk Goins set last year, joined Joe Rewerts, Manning and Mike Dietz on the winning 400-yard freestyle relay team. Mee teamed with Dave Johnson, Jim Bertoldi and Pat Fitzpatrick on the victorious 200-yard medley relay team.

Makaruskas also pointed to the supporting efforts of Fitzpatrick, who was second in the 50-yard freestyle; Bertoldi, who was second in the 500-yard freestyle; and Scott Ward, who took second in the 100-yard backstroke.

In the Alma meet, Manning replaced Fitzpatrick as the Redwings won the medley relay, then he won the 50-yard freestyle.

Bertoldi topped the field in the 100-yard butterfly. Mee took the 100-yard breaststroke and Ward won the 100-yard backstroke.

Baxter, however, ran into Alma's Chris Edison in both the 100-yard and 200-yard freestyles, finishing second twice. Edison set an Alma school record with his time of :50.3 in the 100-yard race.

Alma's 400-yard freestyle relay also topped St. Johns with a time of 3:36.977 while the team of Fitzpatrick, Rewerts, Bertoldi and Baxter turned in time of 3:37.000.

Dietz and Johnson had in personal-best times in the 500-yard freestyle and 100-yard breaststroke, respectively, while finishing second.

The Redwings play host to Ovid-Elsie Thursday, then close the dual meet season Tuesday with a trip to Holt.

Win eludes Marauders

Ovid Take away Todd Bowdary and you take quite a bit away from the Ovid-Elsie swim team.

A member of the "itis" family, bronchitis to be exact, took Bowdary from the swim team this past week, thereby assisting Chesaning in its 48-35 win Thursday.

"It could have been even closer if Todd had been there," Marauder Coach Thad Maciuszek said.

Maciuszek said Bowdary may be lost for the season, or rather what is left, depending on what the doctors say.

Subsequent moves to strengthen a Marauder lineup weakened by Bowdary's loss caused other problems.

"What really hurt us,"

Maciuszek said, "was I had to move (Steve) Gardner to the 100-yard freestyle so we wouldn't get blown out. And he took second but that meant he couldn't swim the 500 and they went one-two on us there."

Gardner did take one of the five first places Ovid-Elsie came up with when he won the 200-yard freestyle.

Brian Clock grabbed two others by finishing first in the 50-yard freestyle and in the 500-yard breaststroke. Morrey Roberts cracked the top in the 100-yard butterfly while Steve Maynard won the 100-yard backstroke.

The Marauders also grabbed six of eleven possible seconds and three of eight possible thirds.

★ Districts

the semifinals and Pirate Coach John Ellis hopes on his team.

"We'll have to beat Haslett before we worry about anyone else," he said.

He was hoping to draw into the bottom half of the bracket where DeWitt (12-5), Bath (7-12) and Maple Valley (7-12) play.

"I had wanted to get into the side with a bye then play either Maple Valley or ath," Ellis said, "but I am glad to see Olivet and LCC draw each other and one of them will get knocked off early."

CLASS C—Ithaca

Breckenridge with its 12-2 record is the favorite to win at least the top half of this district with St. Louis a favorite to meet them in the finals.

But Fulton, who plays the winner of the Breckenridge-Merrill game Wednesday, hopes to be in the finals too. And you know what that means.

"I really want to be opposite Breckenridge in the other bracket," Fulton Coach Kim Lathwell said. "But if you are going to play, you have to play them sometime. At least we only need to win two games instead of three to win it."

There is an added plus. "I get to see Breckenridge and my kids get to see Breckenridge Monday and I think that is an advantage."

CLASS D

Saranac should be the favorite here at Fowler, especially since they have 6-foot-8 Ben Tower and needs to win just one game, against the winner of the Fowler-Potterville game

Tuesday, to make the finals.

Fowler, at least, will have the advantage of playing on its home floor and will be facing a known commodity in Potterville, a fellow Central Michigan Athletic Conference team.

The other semifinal will feature Lansing Christian against Portland St. Patrick.

Volley squads aim for districts

By Mark Haney sports Writer

Overshadowed perhaps by the oncoming boys' basketball districts, the girls' volleyball districts get underway Saturday at 64 high schools around the state.

Two area schools—Ovid-Elsie and Fulton—will be hosting the districts. Ovid-Elsie, owner of the eight-team Class B district, has an added plus. It hosts its own winner in the Class B regional the following weekend. Both will be all-day affairs each Saturday.

Fulton, meanwhile, hosts Class C schools all day Saturday.

Pewamo-Westphalia, winner of the Central Michigan Athletic Conference title in the league meet last Saturday at Fulton, will not be one of those teams.

The Pirates are heading off to Fowlerville where they will meet teams like Lansing Catholic Central, Perry, (who the Pirates meet at 10 a.m.), Laingsburg, Bath, Haslett, Williamston, Fowlerville and DeWitt.

Fowler will be off to Mount Pleasant Sacret Heart for the Class D district. St. Johns draws into the Class A district at Lansing Sexton playing Grand Ledge in the fourth match. The district begins at 10 a.m.

be an upset-minded Central Michigan Athletic Conference volleyball tournament. For after league co-leader Pewamo-Westphalia topped Laingsburg 15-3, 15-4, lowly Fowler upended second-place Fulton. Pewamo-Westphalia then topped Fowler 15-3, 15-2 to make the finals.

There the Pirates of Carol Bogard expected to meet co-leader and top seed Potterville. But Olivet, which defeated Bellevue in the first round, upset Potterville to make the finals.

There, Olivet fell to Pewamo-Westphalia 15-12, 15-13.

"I guess they (the Pirates) wanted it bad enough and they went out and got it," Bogard said of the CMAAC title.

The Pirates were paced by the serving of Dorothy Thelen and Ann Schmitt with 20 points and 16 points, respectively in the tournament. Judy Spitzley added to her 15 service points with 17 spikes while Therese Simon had eight spikes to go with her 12 points. Donna Heckman and Sue Klien set up the spikers.

"It was a team effort I felt," Bogard said, "and we were happy we were fortunate enough to get some breaks along the way."

Just so Fulton wouldn't feel left out, Pewamo-Westphalia dumped it, 15-8, 15-9 Thursday.

Thelen and Sue Heckman each served up seven points of the win.

The Pewamo-Westphalia junior varsity, meanwhile, took Fulton 15-6, 16-18, 15-7 with some 90 percent service efficiency. Amy Thelen served up nine points.

FULTON

For Martha Wayland and the Fulton High volleyball team, now is the time to put the team morale pieces back together.

"In the tournament it just blew up," Wayland said. "It just divided the team up and that hurt us." Fulton lost in the first round of the Central Michigan Athletic Conference tournament at Fulton to Fowler.

"A lot of it I think was the change in coaches," she added. Wayland took over midway in the season when Coach Margaret Nunemaker had unexpected back surgery.

"Being a first-year coach and coming in and not having even seen the team in practice, it was hard," Wayland said.

The district Saturday at Fulton may be a reprieve.

"Mostly I am going to try to get the team together as a whole," Wayland said, "and that is my main goal."

ST. JOHNS

The Mid-Michigan B Conference title slipped away from the St. Johns High volleyball team Feb. 18 as the Redwings lost to eventual champion Corunna, 15-6, 13-15, 15-8. The Redwings salvaged the week with a 12-15, 15-13, 16-14 victory over Alma that left St. Johns at 12-4 overall and 5-3 in the league.

Kim Koeckner led the Redwings in the win over Alma by serving up 13 points, including a service ace, while Lori Kus added 11 points along with two aces. Kus also had 21 good spikes while Denise Thelen was the top setter with 20.

Kus had 11 spikes against Corunna and Janis Karber came back with nine. Denise Henning had 17 sets.

The St. Johns junior varsity took Corunna 15-12; 13-15, 15-11 behind Michelle O'Connor's 11 points. The reserves then topped previously unbeaten Alma 16-14, 3-15, 15-10 behind June Pearson's seven points. The reserves are 10-3 overall and 6-2 in the league.

Dairy workshops feature Charles Green

By Diane Otton
Assistant 4-H Program

DAIRY WORKSHOP RAISING CALVES

The Dairy Developmental Committee has arranged several workshops in the area of dairy. The first of these workshops is scheduled for March 4 at Smith Hall at 7:30 p.m.

The program will be raising calves and the speaker will be Charles Green of Green Meadows Farm in Elsie. Charlie will be sharing his success in raising calves, discussing the importance of colostrum, and keeping calf mortality down.

Charlie is the third generation of Greens to be involved with their expansive dairy farm. Milking 1,400 cows easily keeps Duane, Velmar, Merle and Charlie plus 35 other full-time and part-time employees busy.

4-H is nothing new to this recent MSU graduate. Charlie moved up through the ranks of 4-H at the youth fair, Dairy Days and State Fair as well as the Madison, Wis.

show. Now back on the farm, Charlie's main responsibilities include taking care of the calves until they are two months of age, keeping the records on the breeding stock and reproductive health.

His talk at the workshop will be centered on raising calves. Greens don't have a 2 percent mortality rate by accident. It's Charlie's management skills that bring about these kind of results. Charlies feels that management and timing at the moment a calf is born is important.

He also will be discussing prevention of chronic problems, dealing with pneumonia and scours as well as housing, disease prevention and feeding. In short, Charlie will be talking of caring for a calf from birth to Fair time in the first year.

This workshop is open to all dairy 4-H'ers and leaders as well as parents and non-4-H dairy businessmen. Refreshments will be served. For more information contact the Cooperative Extension office at 224-3288.

Veterinarians sponsor milking workshop

Fowler

Clinton area veterinarians and Epkey Equipment of Fowler will sponsor a dairy workshop on milking procedures and stray voltage on Wednesday, March 5 at 8 p.m. in the Folwer Holy Trinity School basement.

The workshop is open to the public. There is no registration fee.

Sponsoring the workshop will be the Clinton Veterinary Service of St. Johns, Howe Veterinary Service of St. Johns, Ovid-Elsie Animal Clinic, Portland-Fowler Veterinary Service, St. Johns Animal Clinic, William's Veterinary Service of Ithaca and Epkey Equipment of Fowler which sells Surge milking equipment.

At the workshop, Westphalia electrician John Lehman and Luke Lallmar will speak on stray voltage. A representative from Babson Brothers of Illinois will speak on milking procedures. A representative from Beecham Laboratories, a drug company, will talk about dry cow treatment. Refreshments will be served.

4-H Chatter

By Theresa K. Dow
Extension 4-H Agent

Clinton County residents

will have the opportunity to attend a 4-H foods and nutrition workshop, March 14-15 at Kettunen

Center, the 4-H leader training facility near Tustin. The program will begin with registration from 4-6 p.m. Friday and concluding at 1 p.m. on Saturday.

The two-day workshop is designed for 4-H adult and teen leaders with an interest in foods and nutrition.

The workshop will include seminars on using microwave ovens, drying foods, dairy foods and shopping information. In addition, the participants will have the opportunity to share recipes for nutritious snacks.

The program is designed to help leaders and non-leaders and all are welcome to attend. The foods and nutrition workshop gives leaders the opportunity to share teaching techniques and strategies. This workshop is made possible through a grant provided by Thumb National Bank and Trust Co. of Pigeon.

The cost of participants for this Friday and Saturday workshop is only $6. This includes meals, lodging and registration. To register, call Kathy in the Extension office by Feb. 29.

Caffee to Mediterranean

Marine Corps Lance Cpl. Thomas H. Caffee, son of Howard D. and Nancy Caffee of 11800 Eden Trail, Eagle, departed for a deployment to the Mediterranean. He is a member of Headquarters, 34th Marine Amphibious Unit (34th MAU), based at Camp Lejeune, N.C. While deployed, his unit will be embarked aboard the amphibious assault ship USS Saipan.

During the cruise, the 34th MAU will be conducting training exercises with the U.S. 6th Fleet and units of allied nations. Port visits are scheduled in various Mediterranean ports.

A 1978 graduate of Grand Ledge High School, Caffee joined the Marine Corps in June 1978.

St. Johns

Once a year at the St. Johns High School, area Boy Scouters gather to recognize and give honor to those whose efforts and contributions have made Scouting a highly worthwhile and rewarding program during the previous year.

February 7 marked the Annual District Scouter Recognition Banquet put on by the Chippewa District of the Chief Okemos Council, Boy Scouts of America. About 75 people attended.

Highlights of the evening were the presentation of the Scouter of the Year to Mary Ann Harrison of DeWitt and District Awards of Merit to Marvin Scott of Pack 516, East Olive PTO and Joseph Wright of Pack 258, Portland Veteran of Foreign Wars.

These awards have no specific requirements, but rather are those which signify a special dedication and character developed through years of involvement.

Top Cub Scout Pack of the Year went to Pack 516 of the East Olive PTO. This was based upon member growth, boys' advancement, National Summertime Pack award and continuance of an excellent program.

Scout Troop of the Year went to Troop 77 of the DeWitt Lions Club and was based on similar requirements plus achieving the National Camping Award. Leaders of these units were John Voisinnet and Rudy Dioszegi, respectively.

Other honors included Scouters Training Award Keys to Alton Boyle, scoutmaster and John Voisinnet, cubmaster of Pack 516, East Olive PTO.

Commissioners Scout Training Keys were presented to Mary Ann Harrison and Dale Knepper of the District Committee. Dale Knepper also received the Arrowhead Honor.

Edith Cooksey of Pack 516 received the Den Leader Coach Award. Lyle Clark of the Commissioners staff received a 30-year Veteran Pin. Clara Scott received the Scout Training Award and an appreciation certificate for organizing the banquet and other special activities. Marge Magsig received an appreciation certificate for her dedicated service to all district units.

The best bottom line is at Heinold's finish line.

The bottom line—profit—is the name of the game for hog producers. More profit per hog is why U.S. producers sent nearly 5 1/2 million hogs in 1979 to the finish line at Heinold Hog Market. Heinold's convenient, efficient marketing system, combined with 60 packer bids for Heinold hogs everyday, adds up to a bigger hog check for all weights and types of hogs. Keep your bottom line profitable—before you sell any hogs, get Heinold's bid.

I WISH to thank Fr. Schmitt, my family, friends, relatives and neighbors for the prayers, food, flowers, cards and visits during my stay at the hospital and since my return home. Your thoughtfulness will always be remembered.

I WOULD like to thank my family and friends for the cards, flowers and kind thoughts during my recent stay at St. Lawrence Hospital and during my recuperation at home. Thank you again.

I WOULD like to thank Dr. Stephenson, surgeons, nurses and staff at Ingham Medical Center for their care and concern during my recent surgery. Also a very sincere thank you to friends, neighbors, relatives for their cards, visits, flowers and prayers while in the hospital and at home.

WE WISH to thank all who did so much to help us bear the loss of our Husband and Father, with food, flowers, contributions, cards and words of sympathy. We thank Pastor Bob Prange and Chaplain Geo Frost for their kind words and prayers, the Knights Templar Commandery for their assistance, the Ladies of the Eastern Star for the luncheon, the Masonic Lodges for the use of their hall. We thank Doctors, Grost, Stephenson and Sales, the Nurses, Aides, and Technicians at Clinton Memorial Hospital. All who helped to ease his last hours. The Family of Gordon Hodge

THANK YOU to family, friends and neighbors for the many acts of kindness following the death of our brother. In sincere appreciation, the family of Harry (Tiny) Reamer.

IN MEMORY of my wife, Violet Paksi who passed away Feb. 26, 1979. One year has passed and gone since one I loved so well was taken from our home on earth, with Jesus Christ to dwell. The flowers we place upon her grave may wither and decay, but the love for her who sleeps beneath shall never fade away. In my heart your memory lingers, always tender, fond and true, there's not a day, dear wife, I do not think of you.

Memoriam

IN MEMORY of our mother, Violet Paksi who passed away Feb. 26, 1979.

We cannot say, and we will not say That she is dead—she is just away! With a cherry smile, and a wave of the hand She has wandered into an unknown land, And left us dreaming how very fair It needs must be, since she lingers there. And you-O you, who the wildest yearn For the old time step and glad return, Think of her faring on, as dear In the love of There as the love of Here; Think of her still as the same. We say; She is not dead—she is just away!

From her Sons, Daughters and their families. 9-1-p-30

Sea Lions post swimming results

By Don Keim St. Johns

In three successive weekends, the St. Johns Sea Lions Swim Club took on teams from Traverse City and Saginaw Township (Jan. 31), Mount Pleasant (Feb. 9) and from the Saginaw YMCA-YWCA (Feb. 16). The three meets, including a victory over the Saginaw YMCA-YWCA team, helped the Sea Lions tune up for the upcoming state and novice swim meets.

The St. Johns Sea Lions closed out the 1979-80 swimming season with a victory over the swim team from Lansing. Now it is time for the Sea Lions to get ready for the Novice Meet Girls, Sat. March 1, 10 am at DeWitt, boys Sun. March 2, 10 am at St. Johns. State Meet coming up in the next couple weeks.

Those who join the clinic will begin Monday, March 3 and meet every Monday, Wednesday and Friday for four weeks. Cost of the clinic is $30.

★ First manager

"That would only make the supervisor a figurehead and that's not my intent of being here," said Mrs. Reed.

It was later decided to name the manager as a superintendent because he would have to be a resident of the township within 90 days. A manager could live anywhere.

The superintendent would become the chief executive officer subject to the control of the board which would still be a representation of the people. This would drastically reduce the duties of the supervisor.

Roger Pline, longtime township trustee voted in favor of the superintendent concept for several reasons. First, he said any business which is operating at over one-half million dollars needed to have someone with some financial expertise.

"You have to have some stability," Pline said. "You couldn't run a corporation without some kind of manager and you can't expect to run the township without one either."

Mrs. Corr noted during the past couple of years the township has gone through two clerks and is looking for a third and has lost three treasurers.

"You need someone who is going to be able to train these people on the job and know what is going on all the time," she said. "Right now a secretary who has been there for a while might be showing the clerk how things are done."

Attorney Richard Robinson added superintendents and managers were becoming more and more in numbers. It was noted Meridian, Delta and Lansing Townships all have managers.

A resolution was established creating the position of a township superintendent and establishing a committee to study the matter consisting of board members Soule, Jack Kzeski, and Karen Williams and four citizens. Everyone voted in favor of move except Supervisor Reed.

★ Ballet

Friday afternoon members of the dance troupe will perform for students in a session for fifth graders in St. Johns and at the Bath Middle School.

Included in the tour program are several dances in the English Folk Song Suite, choreographed by Su Grossman. Academy dance division chairman, to the music of Ralph Vaughan Williams. Child's Play—a day in the life of a child—is choreographed by Helen Earl, IAA ballet teacher, to the music of Carl Orff and Grenild Keetmann.

Also on the program are several dances choreographed by the guest dance teacher Karen Irvin, former head of the dance department of Corner School of Applied Arts in Seattle. Earlier this year, Kaleria Fedicheva, former prima ballerina with the Kirov Ballet in Leningrad, worked with the ballet students as guest instructor. Miss Fedicheva is presently director of the Fedicheva Ballet Company on Long Island, N.Y.

The high school-age dancers come from all over the county to study at the Academy, part of Interlochen Center for the Arts. Located near Traverse City, the center also includes the Academy's summer counterpart, the National Music Camp. The Academy is a college-preparatory boarding high school with equal emphasis on academics and the performing, visual and literary arts.

Snow tires are a good investment, a performance study by the National Safety Council indicates. Compared to standard automobile tires, snow tires provided better traction on both ice and snow and better stopping ability on snow. Stopping ability on ice, however, was about the same for snow tires and standard tires, with snow tires proving to be one percent less effective.

"You'd be a winner with snow tires in everything, with a slight loss on ice," says Howard Doss, Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service Safety Specialist. "Under almost all conditions on ice and snow-covered roads, a snow tire will outperform a regular tire."

Snow tires proved to be 51 percent more effective than regular tires in providing traction on snow, and 28 percent more effective on ice.

The same relationship seems to hold true when comparing radial snow tires with regular radial tires. In general, a radial tire will out-perform a Bias-ply tire, however, traction depends on the proper tread. Snow tires or radial snow tires are designed with a tread that will give the best traction in snow.

According to the National Safety Council, automobile tires with reinforced tire chains wrapped around them were more than 200 percent more effective than tires without chains. On ice, traction with chains was 630 percent better.

Reinforced tire chains were also found more effective for stopping on ice and snow. The use of tire chains is recommended only under emergency conditions, however, because of their aggressive traction on the road's surface.

★ Water

St. Johns commissioners have been under pressure by the state to find other sources of water for residential use. A well dug recently in the city park proved to be a dud, so commissioners have to start from scratch to find another well.

Meinert, realizing the city's extreme need for an additional well, said he hopes to have the initial reports completed in 30 days. Cost of the initial study is about $1,000.

Commissioners also are investigating a proposal to recycle water from the city's new wastewater treatment plant for use by the industries in the city.

representative said the city may qualify for an 85-15 percent grant. Hubbell, Roth and Clark and Engineering Design, Inc. of St. Johns will submit formal proposals with cost estimates at the March 10 city commission meeting.

Also at Monday's meeting: —townships receiving fire protection from the St. Johns Fire Department will be notified of an 8 percent increase in the annual fire contracts. Last year the townships saw a 7.5 percent increase in their fire protection contracts with the city. City Clerk Richard Coletta said in the last three years, the cost of operating the fire department has gone up 11.15 percent.

—commissioners were told of a mix-up in the commuter bus stop plans announced by a representative of the State Highway Department at the last commission meeting. The representative told commissioners the bus stop would be at St. Johns Lutheran Church. However, the Lutheran Church had not been notified of the highway department's plans.

Fowler

What would creatures living on the planet Pluto look like? What's the name of a critter from Jupiter? Ask sixth grade students in Rose Rennells' science class at Waldron Elementary in Fowler. They've created their own versions of outer space creatures.

Students have been studying a unit on astronomy. As one of their projects, they were instructed to make an outer space creature that would adapt to one of the planets.

Besides making a creature from scraps, they had to rationalize why the creature was made the way it was. For instance, creatures on Pluto, a cold planet, would need fur, or yarn or some warm material. Creatures on Saturn would have to be lightweight due to the atmosphere.

Each student chose a name for his/her creature and wrote a story on what the creature does for a living, based upon information the student learned about the planets.

There were three classes that participated in this exercise in creativity. One of the winners of the top creature award was Kevin Steen. His "Zacadoo" from Pluto placed first in his class.

Steen made his Zacadoo from a Nestle Quik can covered with paper. Because the creature was from Pluto, he covered it with cotton fiber to keep it warm. Zacadoo had a finger pop nose and spool legs.

His classmate, Lonnie Duttenhaver, created "Fred" from the Moon. Fred had a wine bottle base, but Duttenhaver chose paper that "looked like craters" and a head that "looked like a meteor" to complete Fred's physique.

Brian Ruhl made "Dodka" from Saturn. Dodka's body was of styrofoam balls to make it light.

Diane Thelen made "Bow-woogig" from Pluto. This dog-like critter was made of clay, but was covered with yarn to keep it warm.

Brenda Kohagen created "Vanessa" of Jupiter from a salad dressing bottle because she thought the shape of the bottle adapted well for her creature.

Settlement nears on sewer hassle

DeWitt Twp.

If everything goes according to plan, a chapter in DeWitt Township's history will be finished. The battle between King Arthur's Mobile Home Park and the DeWitt Township board might be ended if Ted Powell, owner of the court and the township, can agree on the terms for sewer hookup.

The battle between the board and Powell has been continuing over the past five years with Powell refusing to hook up to the township's sewer system and the township taking him to court over the matter.

Board officials went into a short executive session to discuss the details of the agreement, towards the end of their Monday night meeting. A draft of the agreement has been submitted to Powell and his lawyer for review and is subject to their approval.

Township attorney, Richard Robinson, outlined some of the conditions in the agreement for members of the audience attending the meeting.

The mobile home park would pay the township the cost of one direct tap fee at $1,650 and 394 indirect tap fees at $325 each for a total of $129,700. Upon agreement of the terms, Powell would pay a determined cash amount immediately and then another $9,406 in October. The balance would be paid on quarterly installments over 15 years at six percent interest.

According to Robinson, 19 sites could be connected immediately and would begin to pay monthly.

The township in the agreement would provide a forced water main and a lift station. The lift station is currently being used as a backup for the present township system which is being upgraded. Time factors on how long it will take to get the entire park on the township sewer system is unknown.

The township will maintain the lift station and the lagoons will be abandoned. In all other respects, the mobile home park will be treated like any other customer. Pending litigation will be dismissed.

In other action taken at the Monday night meeting, the board directed Robinson to start legal action against the Airport Authority for an unpaid building permit. Robinson indicated to the board that he has tried to work out amicable solutions to the problem with the airport to no avail.

"We agree that the law is unclear on whether they need to get a permit," Robinson said. "We suggested a compromise to the Authority and they rejected it."

The township building inspector was invited to inspect the building and the attorney instructed him to take this opportunity offered. In addition, the Authority did submit plans for review with the township and they were found to be okay.

The building permit fee for the airport construction is estimated between $7,500 and $10,000.

The township had two choices Monday night. One was to take court action to obtain the building permit fee and the other was to forgo the claimed rights of the township.

"The issue is wide open," Robinson said, "especially because it is a legal rather than factual issue." He added, "If we are successful, the Airport Authority would probably appeal and if we lose, we would probably appeal."

Eileen Corr, treasurer questioned whether the township should amend the ordinances to accommodate the airport and other agencies who consider themselves exempt from having to obtain building permits, as opposed to going through another legal battle.

The vote was four yes and one no to fight for the building permit. Roger Pine, trustee cast the only dissenting vote.

Parents night set for March 6

Elsie

The annual eighth grade Parents' Night will be held at Ovid-Elsie High School, Thursday, March 6. The program will begin at 8 p.m. in the library.

All parents of Ovid and Elsie eighth grade students are urged to attend.

The school guidance counselors sponsor the program, an orientation for parents of next fall's freshmen class, concerning the high school program.

Information will be given about high school policies, attendance, course offerings, guidance services, and extracurricular activities. Information will be presented by Blaine C. Lentz, principal; William Case, assistant prinicipal; Mrs. Zay Reynolds, director of guidance and counselor; Russell Pope, counselor, and Donald Thayer, counselor.

During a coffee hour, the administrators, counselors and various teachers will be available to answer individual questions. Representatives of the various high school departments and subject areas will be present.

The counselors will also be meeting with the eighth graders of the Elsie and Ovid Junior High Schools, Monday, March 3. At this time course offering booklets will be distributed and discussed. Individual enrollment is scheduled for March 4 through March 28 at each junior high school.

Koenigsknecht running campaign

St. Johns

The Clinton County chief assistant prosecutor has been named campaign chairman for Clinton County Probate Judge Marvin E. Robertson who is seeking another term as probate judge.

Richard Koenigsknecht will set campaign policy and procedures as well as coordinate various committees throughout the county. He will also serve as official spokesman for the campaign, and when circumstances direct, he will represent Robertson during various campaign functions.

Koenigsknecht joined the Clinton County prosecuting attorney's staff in 1975. He is a graduate of Fowler High School and Michigan State University. He earned his law degree from the University of Michigan Law School.
