Most millage increases defeated

Write-in candidate wins in SJ

Incumbent Board of Education members fared well with the voters in their respective school districts in the annual school election, Monday, June 9.

All were re-elected, including R. Lee Ormston of St. Johns who entered the race late as a write-in candidate. Newcomers were added in districts where incumbents chose not to run.

In St. Johns, Neil Barnhart, vice-president of the board tallied 1,280 votes and Ormston, 1,038, retaining their posts. Also on the ticket was newcomer Roy Ebert who received 970 votes and William P. Richards, who entered the race as a write-in candidate. Richards received 899 votes. He had been a board member here until 1978 when he was defeated by Paul Maples. Fred Meyer, a former board member who has been off the board since 1976 received 11 write-in votes.

Pewamo-Westphalia voters cast votes of approval for their current board president, Joseph Arens. Also elected was William Bohr, a newcomer. Defeated in the P-W race were Lawrence Smith, Dale Trierweiler and Joan Thelen.

Apartment developer offers cash or water well

If the City of St. Johns can find a major source of water, that's great. But, if it can't, a corporation which plans to build an apartment complex on the city's southeast side, has offered to build its own well.

Actually, the Oxford Group prefers to give the city $35,000 as a water capital contribution fee to be used to drill a municipal well. Ed Kleiman, senior vice president of the Oxford Group, made that offer to the St. Johns City Commission Monday night.

The city has been looking for a major water source for a new well for quite some time. Meanwhile, the state Department of Public Health has put a ban on construction in the city that would mean an additional strain on the city's water supply.

The Oxford Group which has proposed a 70-unit apartment complex as well as a 50-unit senior citizen complex behind the McDonald's Restaurant off US-27, is nearing the point of breaking ground. But, the water restriction by the Department of Public Health is holding them back.

Recession bites into local 'Big' 3 industrial work forces

By Patrice Hornak
Editor

St. Johns

Call it an economic slowdown. Call it a recession. Regardless of its title, the condition remains the same. To the three largest industries in St. Johns, this condition is making itself felt.

Two weeks ago Federal-Mogul, the city's largest industry, was forced to lay off 90 employees. Last week Sealed Power Corp., the second largest industry, had to put 35 people on temporary indefinite layoff. Combined, the effect of the recession has struck home to at least 125 workers in this area alone during the past two weeks.

Actually, Federal-Mogul and Saylor-Beall Corp., the city's third major industry, began feeling the effects of the economic slowdown shortly after the turn of the year. However, for Sealed Power Corp., the recession hit about a

Extension faces financial woes

By Sharon Randall
Staff Writer

Clinton County

Limited state and federal budgeting has put Michigan Extension Service programs in jeopardy causing a possible staff shortage in Clinton County of an agricultural agent and other extension personnel.

Friends and benefactors of extension programs must find ways to let legislators know what they are going to be losing and encourage at least a seven percent raise in appropriations, Clinton County's Extension Director George McQueen told a meeting of concerned citizens, Thursday, June 5.

a few years back. This also means there is less demand for piston rings.

As Dodd put it, "We're not losing our share of the market. They're just not making cars like they used to."

Layoffs have been based on seniority and Dodd said those employees with 13 years of experience or less have been put on indefinite layoff.

Sealed Power Corp., which has its beginnings in 1911, has 15 plants in the United States and two in Mexico. About two or three months ago the corporation closed its Canadian operation and moved available business to St. Johns. "But it didn't help us this much," Dodd said.

The only portion of the Sealed Power family which is doing well are the replacement parts division and the international operations, he said.

The corporation manufactures compression rings, oil rings, sealing rings, pistons, cylinder sleeves, valves, transmission oil filters, engine bearings and a host of other auto and truck parts.

Voters at all seven area school districts said no to tax proposals that included extra millage and no to propositions asking for permission to ignore the Headlee Amendment's reductions in the annual school elections, Monday, June 9.

Packages only asking for millage renewals passed at Pewamo-Westphalia, DeWitt, Ovid-Elsie and Fulton. Bath and Fulton voters passed packages slated for roof repair and maintenance.

All other proposals were turned down in the county, most of them emphatically.

St. Johns voters said no to a millage request for 20.7 mills for one year with 1,374 no votes to 1,034 yes votes. This package included a renewal of 17.75 mills and a 2.95 mills increase. Voters here also turned down the request to supersede the Headlee Amendment, 1,426, no; 941, yes.

Voter turnout in St. Johns was about 40 percent, of 6,000 registered voters, 2,400 cast ballots. As is normally the case, voters in the city precinct passed the millage proposals but were over-ridden by voters in the outlying areas of the school district. The school's request for operating passed in the city 583 to 500. The request to ignore Headlee passed in the city by six votes.

In Fowler the operating package asking for a 17 mills renewal combined with a 3 mills additional was turned down by voters, 380 to 182. Fowler also said no to the school's request to override the Headlee Amendment, 367 to 183.

Ovid-Elsie voters rallied to the district's request for a one year renewal of 20 mills with 655 yes votes to 441 no

Two killed in auto crash

Clinton County

Clinton County Sheriff's deputies are still investigating the fatal crash which took the lives of a Laingsburg man and woman early Tuesday morning. This brings the death toll in Clinton County to nine, as compared with three deaths last year at the same time.

A car driven by Eugene Anderson,

28, apparently went out of control while traveling at a high rate of speed on Shepardsville Road one-half mile south of Price. The vehicle went off the roadway and struck a tree.

Both the driver and passenger, Kristine Anne Dell, 29, were pronounced dead at the scene. The incident happened at 2:15 a.m.

Wheel Inn Mall stalled on the economic tracks

By Patrice Hornak
Editor

St. Johns

Construction has been "stalled" but not halted on the Wheel Inn Mall.

Developer Tedd White said because money has been tight and the bond market has been particularly tight, construction on the project has been stalled.

However, he said last week that Fishers Big Wheel will begin work on their department store this month and Schmitt's grocery store is scheduled to begin construction late this month or in July. Satellite stores will begin later this summer.

White said the steel is in for the mall to be located between US-27 and Scott Road in the city's southeast corner. He explained that Mall owner Juanita O'Leary of St. Johns has slowed down on spending until she gets a firm commitment on the bonds to build the mall.

In the meantime, prospective businesses to be located in the mall are being explored by Rassler and Associates, a Farmington Hills firm hired by the Wheel Inn Mall to do the satellite leasing.

About 250 businesses have been contacted or have contacted White, he said. Leases are expected to be signed beginning July 15.

Rassler and Associates have recommended that the mall be enlarged slightly to accommodate 44 stores instead of the 31 stores proposed.

"Rassler feels that we have allocated too much space for certain types of stores," White said, adding that the smaller tenant is the vogue.

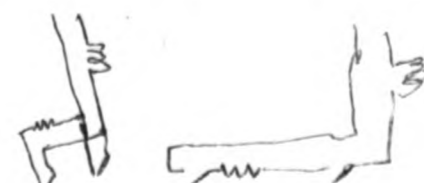

Under consideration presently are plans to add 11,000 square feet to the west end of the mall, increasing the gross leaseable area from 153,092 to 164,000 square feet. This, coupled with smaller sizes of stores, will allow the mall to accommodate more businesses.

The grand opening of the entire mall is expected to be moved back about seven months, according to White. Some of the stores will be open before the grand opening, but tentative plans for the gala occasion are set for next summer.

The pair was apprehended with 10 empty gas cans in two cars. They appeared before Judge Fred Lewis who sentenced them to five days each in the Clinton County jail. The duo also admitted to taking gas from Wolverton Corporation on May 29.

Special visit

Members of the Special Education Parent Advisory group and a representative from the State Department of Special Education participated in a visitation session last week. Left to right with students at Walter Kyes Trainable School are Bill VanDrosek, Beth Parker, Dr. Debbie Livingston-White (from the State Department), and Clarita George. In this classroom the learning emphasis is primarily on practical daily living skills. These children will be capable of semi-independent living at the end of their education here. Chief's car smashed while officer enroute to accident

St. Johns

While enroute to a personal injury accident an unmarked police car driven by Officer John Reinhart was struck by an unknown vehicle as he was crossing the intersection of Cass and Emmons St. on June 5 at 3:20 p.m.

The police vehicle had its lights activated and was traveling west on Cass when it was hit on the left side, spinning the vehicle around and striking a parked pickup

Marty J. Hulbert, 2912 E. Hyde, St. Johns later turned himself in at the Clinton County Sheriff's department. He was cited for leaving the scene of a property damage accident.

No one was injured in the mishap but the police car was totaled.

Officer Reinhart was enroute to an accident at the corner of State and Morton Streets where cars driven by Alana L. George, 7099 W. Colony Rd., St. Johns and Gregory R. Betz, Lowe Rd., collided at about 3:19 p.m. June 5.

George and passengers Jenesse George and Carol Sasung were injured and taken to Clinton Memorial Hospital for treatment. George was cited for failing to stop at a stop sign.

Police also report Perrin Palmer Elementary School, 611 N. Lansing, was broken into and ransacked the evening of June 6.

Five persons were arrested for liquor violations, one for drunk driving, and two for reckless driving.

Parent committee tours special ed rooms

Clinton County

The Special Education Parent Advisory Committee participated in a yearly visitation of county programs last week, meeting requirement of the Michigan school code.

Special Education planner Marianne Higgins explained that while the visitation takes place yearly this is the first time the Parents Committee has been involved.

"It was a chance for our parents to visit a cross-section of both county and local Special Education programs and to have a chance to talk with our representative from the State Department," Ms. Higgins said.

The annual visitation is usually made by superintendents and principals from the local schools.

The tour included special education programs run by the Clinton County Intermediate School and by the local school districts. The committee saw programs at Walter Kyes, the Severely Mentally Impaired classroom at Olive Center School; the Fowler Emotionally Impaired; two at Riley Elementary, a Learning Resource Room and an Emotionally Impaired room.

Correction

Clinton County

In last week's Clinton County News a typographical error caused some questions in a story on the Clinton County Intermediate School's transportation program.

The story should have said that last year's special transportation costs were $341,000 when the entire service was contracted with a private company, Special Transportation.

While final figures will not be available until June 30, this year's cost looks like it will be about $246,000, according to Paul Tower, assistant superintendent of special education. This drop was possible by using local district buses and a van and two station wagons purchased this year by the intermediate and contracting only part of the services through Special Transportation.

Next year the intermediate has budgeted $171,986 for transportation which will be operated wholly by the local districts and the intermediate district, a savings of $169,014 over last year's cost of contracting out the entire service.

Many county positions to be decided in August

Clinton County

In most townships in Clinton County, there will be at least one position on the township board to be elected this fall, but most likely that position will be decided in the August primary election.

Last Tuesday at 4 p.m. was the final filing date for township and county elected positions. Following is a list of the races to be contested. Where there are several persons of the same party running for one seat, the person who receives the most number of votes in the August primary will win the seat. If there is opposition between a Democrat and a Republican, the November election will provide the winner.

Bath Township: Although Clerk June Burnett chose not to run for re-election because of health reasons, local residents took out petitions for her. As of Monday she had still chosen not to run again. Those seeking the clerk post are Shirley Kerckaert, Carol Buono and Kathleen McQueen, all Democrats.

Those seeking the four trustee seats are Democratic incumbents Paul Shaheen, Elon Pardee, and Robert Sober and former trustee Daniel Carleton. Republicans seeking those trustee seats are Chuck Gutzki and Robert Casler.

Bengal Township: Republicans Charles Hazle, Alice Hicks, Mary Rademacher and Louis Schneider are seeking the treasurer's job now held by Donald Harper. Incumbents Donald Irrer and Robert Murton as well as newcomer Lester Miller are seeking the two trustee seats. All are Republicans.

Bingham Township: Republicans Robert Kissane and Harold Latchaw are running for constable.

Dallas Township: David Pohl and John Rademacher, both Republicans, are seeking the supervisor post. Rademacher currently trustee on the Dallas Township board.

DeWitt Township: Jack Kzeski and Leonard Pung, both Democrats, are seeking the supervisor's post; incumbent John Hart and Greg Whitlock are running for clerk; and incumbent Eileen Corr and present township supervisor Catherine Reed are seeking the treasurer's post. All are Republicans.

Twelve persons originally sought the four trustee positions, however as of Monday morning three persons had withdrawn their names. Kzeski had taken out petitions for both the supervisor and trustee seat and later chose the supervisor position. Bruce Angell, II, took out petitions for both county commissioner and trustee and later opted for the county board seat.

Roger Pline, longtime trustee had taken out a position for the spot and later withdrew his name.

Those seeking the trustee positions are incumbents Karen Williams and Jim Soule; along with Tom Maier, Michael Verlinde, Charles Mann, Ernest Kraus, Douglas Hammond, Sharan Garrage and Byron Wright.

Wright and Garrage are the only two Democrats in the DeWitt Township lineup.

Duplain Township: Democrat Gertrude June Chapko and Republican incumbent Doris Moore are seeking the treasurer's seat.

Eagle Township: No contests.

Essex Township: Charlotte Anderson and Donna Mae Smith, both Republicans, are seeking the treasurer's post.

Greenbush Township: Two Republicans, Gordon Waggoner and Thomas Abbott, are running for the constable seat.

Lebanon Township: No contests.

likely will not be replaced. Some lay-offs may also be necessary, McQueen said, and the remaining agents will need to work in more than one county in many cases.

The home economists in the extension programs were cut about seven years ago. At that time the position here became a part-time 60 percent job. A loss of 30 people state-wide is again going to "stretch extension personnel," McQueen said.

Another problem facing the program is the rate of pay raises over the past four years. "Raises have been below inflation figures," McQueen explained, "and salaries do not compete with industry or even other positions in state and federal government." This has caused a drop in the quality of personnel, McQueen said. "In the past four years 45 staff members have been lost to other businesses and industries as they went on to higher paying jobs," he said.

Run through Michigan State University the Agricultural Experiment Station and the Cooperative Extension programs have taken cuts along with other educational programs across the state. State Representative Alan Cropsey said education has taken the highest brunt of the state budget cuts. He also said that Michigan is in the worst economic status of any of the 50 states. "Welfare costs are going out of sight," he said.

Cropsey and Francis Thelen, part-time Clinton County farmer and an active 4-H leader, told members of the audience how to go about letting members of the appropriations committee and legislators know of their concerns for the extension and experimental station programs.

"We need to move on them with a grassroots lobby," Thelen said. He encouraged users of the extension programs to let legislators know of the benefits they receive. "If they can see how this is going to affect the little guy on the bottom, it may help us," he said.

Thelen has been calling members of the appropriations committee, "talking to them as a 4-H leader and I felt they listened," he said.

Representative Cropsey said that most legislators pay attention to handwritten letters. "I always read a handwritten letter," he said, "especially if it is well thought out." He advised letter writers to "just tell it clearly like it is," and give personal examples of what extension has done for their own farm, family, or children. "Agriculture is the third largest industry in the state," Cropsey said, "you have to point that out." Thelen also suggested using such facts as, "For every dollar spent in agricultural research, we can show $4. back in product and for every $1 spent in the 4-H area we get an additional $8 in volunteer services."

Cropsey said though the budget has been passed by the Senate, "a lot won't happen in the house on the budget bill until after the August primary and then maybe not even until after the November election." However he added that "your representatives are going to be listening more in the next five months than they will be after the election."

Alan Cropsey

Cropsey seeks re-election

DeWitt

State Representative Alan Cropsey (R-DeWitt) announced last week that he will seek re-election to his seat in the Michigan House of Representatives.

In making the announcement, Cropsey said, "I have enjoyed my first term in the legislature, and I have learned much about the people of the 88th District and about the legislative process. There are many very important issues still unresolved, and I would like to have an opportunity to carry on for another two years. I hope the people of the 88th District will see fit to return me to the legislature for the 1981-82 term."

Cropsey criticized the Democratic legislature for not trying to upgrade the business climate in Michigan. "The Democrats control a large majority of the seats of the legislature, but they have not passed a legislative package that would bring any hope to the bleak business picture."

One of the youngest members of the House, the angular Cropsey has been a bright and articulate spokesman for fiscal responsibility since first being elected in 1978.

Cropsey, an attorney and high school math teacher, said he first decided to run for office "to put a stop to the proliferation of big government." He added that he will continue to fight for limited government.

"The more time I serve, the more I am convinced that our large, bureaucratic government is a detriment to the people," Cropsey said. "We should be curbing the power of our unelected bureaucracy and giving the people a tax break."

Aside from serving on the House Republican Grain Task Force, Cropsey serves as vice-chairman of the House Civil Rights Committee.

tee. He is also a member of the Constitutional Revisions and Women's Rights, Education and Judiciary Committees.

Job placement on horizon for young people with grant

By Sharon Randall
Staff Writer

St. Johns

The Clinton County Intermediate School District (CCISD) and Community Resource Volunteers (CRV) are sharing in one-third of a $200,000 CETA grant from the Michigan Department of Labor, Bureau of Employment and Training written in collaboration with other work-education councils and intermediate school districts in Gratiot and Isabella counties. Clinton's share will be about $66,000.

The thrust of the grant is to set up a county wide placement program coordinating all of the independent agencies that are currently involved in job placement of young people.

"The idea is for us to share programs and knowledge with each other," Jay Johnson, CCISD Shared-Time Vocational Program principal explained. "Gratiot and Isabella already have placement programs and they will be helping us set one up here," he said. Isabella County needs to set up a work-education council and CRV and the Gratiot work-education council will be assisting them.

A placement coordinator, Sally Fernandez has been hired through the grant and will develop and field test a program here. A recent Michigan State University graduate, Ms. Fernandez has served an internship with the Tri-County Manpower office. Johnson said a pilot placement program will probably take place next May and June with the Shared-Time students who come from the six county school districts. The following year the program will expand to cover all students in the county.

CRV Director Bill Richards said that as rural counties, Clinton, Gratiot and Isabella, share similar employment problems. They share the problem of "overlap" that happens when CETA and non-CETA programs are competing for placement in a limited industrial base. "There are only so many employers and a whole host of programs, in and out of school, who all need those same employers as training sites for clients," he explained.

A task force is being developed that will draw all these programs and employers together, Richards said. On the task force will be members from local industries and businesses, high schools, Shared-Time, Social Services, the CCISD, Clinton County Development Corporation.

Also to be developed is a tracking document or a student profile that will keep track of and list the student's job experiences, including work and job shadowing.

Richards said that CRV's Job Club will be reactivated and job shadowing will be greatly expanded. "We are going to try to bring together a lot of pieces that have been happening in the county and coordinate efforts."

St. Johns

State Representative Mark Siljander (R-Three Rivers) outlined his property tax proposal to the Clinton County Kiwanis Club members at a breakfast Thursday, June 5, at the Wheel Inn in St. Johns.

Siljander explained that his proposal would exempt the first 26 school operating mills of a taxpayer's bill. The state would then reimburse local districts for the lost revenue.

He added that the exemptions for homeowners would cut property taxes in half statewide, while providing relief for renters and senior citizens as well. Some of the lost revenue would be replaced by a one percent increase in the state's sales tax, but about $450 million would be cut from state revenues under the plan, Siljander said.

State Representative Alan Cropsey (R-DeWitt) threw his support behind the property tax reform proposal.

Cropsey, who announced last week that he will see re-election to the House of Representatives, called Rep. Siljander's proposed constitutional amendment "by far the most honest and sensible approach that has come forward."

Rep. Siljander also exposed loopholes in the Tisch plan which would allow the legislature to circumvent the intent of the proposal.

When questioned about the Tisch proposal, Siljander said that the legislature would have the final say on how much property taxes will be cut and whether the state or local units will shoulder the largest burden by the cut.

He said there's a "good chance" the legislature will saddle local governments with virtually the entire revenue deficit created by the passage of Tisch, forcing them to scramble to make up the lost revenue to keep their schools open and continue other services.

The Tisch proposal, an initiative referendum requiring more than 280,000 petition signatures to earn a place on the November ballot, instructs the legislature to set a statewide figure at which property is assessed. The figure is "not to exceed 25 percent of

County unemployed heading toward double digits

By Patrice Hornak
Editor

Clinton County

A year ago the unemployment rate in Clinton County was around 5 percent. Today that figure is edging toward the double digits.

Robert Sherer, Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) area analyst, reported that his latest figures (April, 1980) show the unemployment rate in Clinton County at 9.1 percent. This compares with 7.3 percent in March of 1980 and 5.1 percent in March of 1979.

Broken down into number of employees unemployed, he said the April 9.1 unemployment rate meant that about 2,500 persons were unemployed in the county. On the other hand, there are 25,525 residents of Clinton County still in the labor market.

A "depressed auto market" has been blamed for much of the unemployment in this county. Statewide, the jobless rate in April was 12.4 percent, an increase from 11.0 percent the previous month. In the United States, the unemployment rate was said to be 7 percent.

The highest jobless rate in the state was recorded in Flint where it has hit 17.4 percent. Among the major labor market areas, Grand Rapids and Kalamazoo have the lowest unemployment rates at 8.1 percent.

Figures released by the MESC last week showed a 9.9 unemployment rate in April in the four-county area of Clinton, Eaton, Ingham and Ionia counties. There were 23,400 people out of work.

When asked what he felt the summer would bring, in terms of employment increases or decreases, Sherer said he anticipates the job market to dip even deeper into a recession, due to a usually higher summer unemployment rate coupled with auto changeovers.

Optimistically, he said the bottom of this recession should be felt by the third quarter of 1980. "We should begin to see some improvement then," he said.

However, he said, much of that improvement is hinged upon consumer acceptance of the 1981 model cars. If consumers order new cars, the unemployment rate will drop. But, if consumers fail to show enthusiasm over the 1981 models, he said, "We still haven't seen the worst."

The third quarter runs from July to September. In the four-county area back in the last recession of early 1975, the jobless rate was 14 percent. Sherer said it is possible this area could see that 14 percent unemployment figure again this summer, but he doesn't expect the times to be worse than that.

Not wishing to make a prediction on July unemployment in Clinton County, Sherer just said it will probably be in double digits. "Though there's a good chance it would be at its highest level then."

★ Recession bites

"Even though we have this recession, we have a job to do, but on a much smaller scale," Dodd said last week. "We've just got to let the recession ride its course."

The first effects of the recession were felt the third week in 1980 at Saylor-Beall, said Jim Leon, vice president of the corporation.

Saylor-Beall manufactures air compressors for major oil companies, auto dealerships, industrial and manufacturing industries.

It was in January when "we started eating up the back log," Leon said. This means the incoming orders were slowing down and the ability to produce was outgaining the number of orders received.

Compared to a year ago, Saylor-Beall has 27 fewer employees. He said his firm is currently down to 53 employees in the factory.

The future of recalling those 27 employees lies with the mortgage and lending rates, according to Leon. "As the lending and mortgage rates decline, there will be greater incentive to invest," he said.

In a tight money situation, the number of new businesses or remodeled businesses requiring additional air compressors has dwindled. The construction industry, as well as the auto industry, have hinged on lending rates.

During this time of tight money, however, the inventories of air compressor distributors have slipped. The distributors, not having the money to order additional air compressors, nor able to pay the high interest rates to borrow money, have used up supplies of their inventories.

With the advent of lower interest rates, the buying and hiring could pick up. The effect of even the latest round of prime interest rate reductions to the lower teens won't be felt by Saylor-Beall for a while, though, he said.

Federal-Mogul's work force is down by 200, compared to employment figures of a year ago. This includes about 160 people in temporary indefinite layoff and 40 who have left through retirement and quitting.

Al Bachman, personnel director, said layoffs at his plant began about a month ago. Since then two cuts have been made, affecting about 140 persons both in the factory as well as in management.

Federal-Mogul manufactures bushings for the automotive, construction and agriculture industries. Sales in the automotive lines have been off for quite a while, he said, but only since the beginning of 1980 has Federal-Mogul felt the effects of cutbacks in the construction and agriculture lines.

All totaled, 382 workers at Federal-Mogul, Sealed Power and Saylor-Beall have lost their jobs during the past 18 months due to the recession. Most of those workers live in the county or northward.

Prospective members must complete 20 credit hours of college work with at least a 3.40 grade point average to be eligible. Membership is by invitation only.

Purpose of the fraternity is to promote academic friendship while stressing scholarship and leadership in a variety of activities.

New Members are: Ann Bower and Mark King, both of Bath; Julie Arnold, Lauretta Phillips, Carol Price and Joan Schafer, of DeWitt; LuAnn Smith of Fowler; and Suzanne Brenner and Marie Miller, both of St. Johns.

DeWitt library needs millage for state aid

By Patrice Hornak
Staff Writer

DeWitt

DeWitt Public Library will ask voters in DeWitt City and DeWitt Township for three-tenths of a mill in August so the library can qualify for state aid services and grants.

The library board met last Thursday and agreed to ask for the three-tenths of a mill for five years, turning down a proposal made last winter to levy a half mill for the library.

A representative from the State Library Services of the State Board of Education had recommended to the library board that a half mill levy should be put before voters. However, the DeWitt board moved against that recommendation with the sentiment that unemployment is high and additional taxation is not desired.

The proposed .3-mill request will appear on the Aug. 3 primary ballot in both DeWitt City and DeWitt Township. This will be the first such library millage request in that area.

The three-tenths of a mill will guarantee the library a share of state library aid funds, though the amount of those funds will not be known until the state budget is finalized. To receive state aid funds, a library must receive at least three-tenths of a mill of the State Equalized Valuation (SEV) from its district.

The DeWitt Public Library has not qualified for state aid in recent years. Its allocations from both the DeWitt City Council and the DeWitt Township Board, coupled with penal fines from Bath and Watertown townships and portions of Olive and Riley townships, have not equaled the three-tenths of a mill required for state aid grants.

Georgiana Griffin, secretary of the DeWitt Public Library Board of Trustees, said three-tenths of a mill will generate about $25,500 for the library. The State aid grant could be around $6,000.

During the last 15 months, from April of 1979 to June of 1980, the library received a total of $10,518 from DeWitt City and DeWitt Township, the legal area of the library, said Mrs. Griffin. Penal fines totaled $8,554 from the four townships also served by the library. That total included $2,819 from Watertown Township, $4,329 from Bath Township, $859 from half of Olive Township and $547 from half of Riley Township.

By qualifying for state aid, the library could also qualify for various services.

A portion of the state aid grant would go to the Capital Library Cooperative which supplies services one small library cannot afford to offer. Through the CLC, the DeWitt library would get a discount on books and supplies, receive the use of filmstrips and be hooked up to a "hot line" interlibrary loan system. Patrons of the DeWitt library could get a certain book within a week if the book were in the CLC system.

With the remaining state aid money, Mrs. Griffin said the library would be able to build up its book supply and hopefully extend hours at the branch library located adjacent to the DeWitt Township offices.

The "dollars of cents" of the three-tenths of a mill request will mean a levy of $10 for the owner of a $60,000 home with a SEV of $30,000.

"That's cheaper than a month of cable television," Mrs. Griffin said.

Senior Citizen Update

Grandchildren

Do you have grandchildren? If so you know what a blessing they are. Summer is here so that means that some of us will be lucky enough to have these grandchildren visit us.

They will be out of school and are looking for something different to do. When the parents suggest a visit to grandma and grandpa's, they are all for it. They know, of course, that grandparents spoil them or let them have their own way. They also know we will go a little out of our way to entertain them.

The small children know exactly where you keep the "toy box" and immediately drag all the toys out. It doesn't take very many visits or they don't have to be too old to know where the cookie jar is. I'll bet if you know they're coming, that cookie jar is filled with the kind of cookie they like. Right?

One of my 18-year-old grandsons is a little past the cookie stage, although he usually doesn't turn even cookies down. He said to me, "Grandma, you have the most interesting refrigerator". Here he is taking the lid off all the containers trying to find something that hits his taste buds and usually finds something to his liking.

Some of my grandchildren were really close to me when they were quite young. They recall having friends in and having a "taffy pull". It made a mess but they loved every minute of it—also making fudge or popcorn balls.

We often had eight or 10 youngsters in to play games at the dining room table. Games included war, monopoly, pig and many others. It's nice children have memories, isn't it?

All of us went bike riding and I even taught a couple of them to ride bikes. I used to sell Tupperware and had games to start the evening off. Many times my grandchildren would beg me to play "Tupperware". So I'd get out my book and play those kinds of games. It was all fun.

I have 11 grandchildren but most of them are grown. I still have one 10-year-old grandson, Ken, and I hope to have him with me for a time this summer. My neighbor had her 6-year-old grandson Jason visit her last weekend. I taught him how to look for and find four-leaf clovers. He had never heard of it before, so he was quite excited when he found five or six on his own. Even that can keep a child busy.

Actually it isn't hard to entertain a youngster. It's true some are more restless than others. All you need are books, some buttons to string, dominoes to stand up in a line, watching TV and a few others and they are happy.

Why am I writing like this? I guess I am lonesome for the times when I had a son and his family who lived just a few minutes away. Now they are all far away. Will they visit me this summer? God Bless them all.

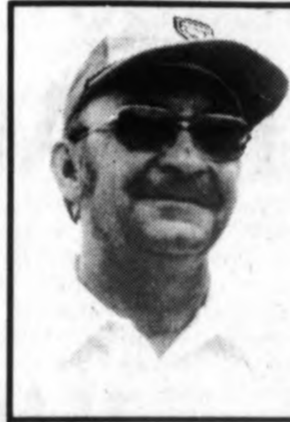

So.....until next time.

I remember Gordie too

By Richard L. Milliman

GORDIE HOWE has retired—finally—from the hockey wars, after establishing every hockey record worth holding, according to most sports analysts.

The amazing Mr. Howe spent 32 years as a hockey stalwart, finally packing it in at age 52.

As is their passion, sports writers, sports fans, sports personalities are all writing and speaking their versions of "I remember Gordie Howe," on the night he set some scoring goal, or some endurance record, or appeared in some all star game or some such occasion.

WELL, I REMEMBER Gordie Howe, too, but not for some athletic event. I think I saw Gordie Howe play hockey once, but I don't even remember him, or anything about the game. It was back in the early 1950s, when I attended my first and only Red Wing hockey game, and Gordie Howe must have been playing because he was with the Wings then. But I don't remember anything about the game, or who was in it, even the legendary Mr. Howe.

But I did meet Gordie Howe years later, in the early 1970s. He had retired the first time and held some sort of public relations job with the Detroit hockey club. It was at a state banquet of the Future Farmers of America on the Michigan State University campus, and Gordie Howe was the featured speaker.

HE GAVE a speech—a talk really, and not a speech. He told the young FFA members about his own farm; at the time, he had an interest in a beef ranch in the Jackson-Washtenaw county area, and Gordie told them about how it was, down on his version of the farm. That, of course, helped establish a bond with these young farmers.

But mostly, Gordie Howe talked about such things as values, and character, and ideals, and principles, and plans for living, and life. Nothing outstanding from a banquet speaker at a youth banquet, really; you sort of expect that sort of talk even from a speaker who is more hockey player than speaker.

Except for this: Gordie Howe related to those young people in a way few people could. They believed him. Gordie Howe cared about them, and about how they would turn out as adults—that was obvious.

HE HAD THOSE young people in the palm of his hand that evening, and in such a casual, offhand, informal, low-keyed manner that they really didn't know they were being inspired. But they were...and so was I.

I said hello to Gordie Howe after the banquet, and congratulated him on his talk. Again, nothing memorable occurred between us. But I remember Gordie Howe, too...not as an athlete, not as a hockey player, nor as a record holder, but as someone who, through his own personal example and then through his words, delivered a very worthwhile message to young people, and got it across to them in an impressive way.

Even at that time, a few years back, I was already a tough, cynical, hard-bitten newspaperman, who had been around the course a time or two, and I was difficult to impress. I still am.

But Gordie Howe impressed me then, and he still does, and that's how I remember Gordie Howe.

★ County elections

Olive Township: No contests.

Riley Township: No contests.

Victor Township: Two Republicans, Lawrence Kruger and incumbent Janet Malkin, are seeking the treasurer's post. Republican incumbents Arlo Stichter and Daniel Morris and newcomer Byron Prange are seeking the two trustee seats.

Watertown Township: Richard Ackerman and incumbent Syver Thingstad are running for the treasurer's post.

Westphalia Township: The clerk and treasurer's positions are being challenged. Michael Noeker and Roman Platte are running for clerk and Marie Hansens and Aloysius Smith are running for treasurer. All are Republicans. None are incumbents.

In last week's Clinton County News, there was an error in the county commission candidates. The story should have said Roger Overway, Republican from District 7 and chairman of the Clinton County Board of Commissioners, will be opposed by Democrat Harold McCastle.

Incumbent Democrat Max Calder from District 9 is being opposed by Republican John McNally. And in District 10, Republican Bill Gnodtke chose not to run for re-election. Two Republicans, Robert Steinman and Bruce Angel II, will seek that commission seat.

★ Apartment

Kleiman told the council his firm hopes to begin construction July 15 and have the facility open in April of 1981. By October of next year, he hopes to have full occupancy.

Financing and building permits still have to be finalized, he said, but he sounded hopeful that the project "would go".

His offer to donate $35,000 to the city to drill a well was made with the understanding that the Public Health Department would remove its restriction on building. The city and Kleiman will meet with the health officials to work out an agreement.

The city commission voted to approve the principle of Kleiman's offer.

Another portion of Kleiman's donation provided protection for his company. If the city can't find a major source of water by Jan. 1 of 1981, the Oxford Group would use the $35,000 to drill its own well and then give the well to the city.

"If you can't deliver us water, then let us drill a well," he offered to the commissioners, but again stressed that he preferred the city to build the well.

The Oxford Group has completed some water tests near the corner of Swegles Street and Townsend Road. They believe a well dug near that property could provide 100 gallons per minute, between 50 to 75 gallons per minute will be required by the apartment complexes, he estimated.

The whole $35,000 contribution, however, hinges upon the Oxford Group beginning construction. "If we put a shovel in the ground, we'll put up a check," he said.

true cash value after Dec 30, 1980. The present level is 50 percent.

Siljander explained that many Tisch supporters assume that the legislature will enact the maximum allowable 25 percent level, reducing the state budget by about $2.5 billion, and creating large funding shortages for many state programs.

"The legislature's only limitation would be to not allow the assessment level to exceed 25 percent," Siljander noted. "If the legislature sets the assessment level at one percent of true cash value, for example, how will local governments and schools receive funding? The state would have to spread a paltry $80 million around Michigan to match local revenues collected from property taxes."

"I can guarantee you that before the legislature eliminates the mental health budget, and before we close down Michigan State University, you will see the burden placed on local communities to come up with ways to fund their schools and their other services," Siljander said.

If the legislature does, in fact, set the assessment level near zero, Siljander predicted that local income taxes would rise across Michigan about eight percent on the average, and as high as 15 percent in highly industrial areas to replace revenue lost through corporate tax breaks.

★ Millage

votes. They turned down, however, the 1/2 mill package needed to repair the high school roof, 663 to 433.

Pewamo-Westphalia also passed their school's request for a renewal package for one year, granting permission to levy 18.5 mills. They said no, however, to a proposal for 2.5 mills additional and no to the request asking permission not to roll back taxes according to the Headlee Amendment. These last proposals were turned down better than two to one, a school spokesman said. Total votes in P-W were 1,660.

Fulton voters were the most permissive. They said yes, 409 to 185, to a renewal of 19.52 mills for operation and yes, 366 to 226, for a 2.5 mills request for high school repair. They refused permission to ignore the Headlee amendment rollback, 299, no to 290, yes.

Bath Community Schools suffered a close loss, 362 to 317, for their operating package which included a 20 mills renewal, 3 mills extra and permission to supersede the Headlee Amendment.

The district passed, 346 to 329 a two-year request for a one-mill request for two years to do maintenance and restoration work on the middle school roof.

DeWitt voters approved the five-year package for 12.5 mills, 532 to 227, but turned down the request to levy all their millage without regard to the Headlee Amendment, 407 to 346.

★ School board candidates

Incumbent Robert McConnell tallied the most votes in the DeWitt district, drawing in 311. Taking the other board seat there was newcomer Dick Smeage with 304 votes. Donna Gartside received 299 votes, David Williams, 252 and Clayton Parker, 241.

At Ovid-Elsie Louis Terpstra the incumbent tallied 632 votes. Elected with him was Adine Lantis with 434 votes. Other candidates were Lorraine Buchele who received 421 votes, Michael Everts, 298 votes and William Sloat 288 votes.

Bath incumbents were running unopposed. Re-elected were Dale Dailey, Pam Gnodtke and Jack Bower who was recently appointed to fill the term of Norman Brown who resigned.

Phillip Hyde was re-elected to the Fulton School Board with 364 votes. Serving with him will be newcomer James P. Wright who received 279 votes. Candidates Gerold Skaryd received 250 votes; Terrence Miller, 175 and Nicki Holloway, 84.

With no incumbents on the ballot, Fowler voters chose Patricia Snyder with 405 votes and George Martin with 363 votes. Clement Thelen tallied 209 and Randal Simmon, 119.

New board members take over at the July re-organizational meetings. At this time officers will be elected for the coming year.

Personality Profile

Brent Couzens: world traveler

By Sharon Randall
Staff Writer

St. Johns

Brent Couzens has aspirations to become a world traveler. That's on top of his desire to be a geologist which may also take him traveling. Fourteen-year-old Brent got the traveling bug this year when his grandparents, Mr and Mrs Bruce Waggoner of Dexter invited him on a trip to China.

First was the excitement and work of planning. He started getting ahead on his school work at Rodney B. Wilson Junior High in January so he would be caught up before the 25 day trip in May.

Then the excitement of the trip itself, 11 days in China, the rest of the time in other oriental countries, Bangkok, Thailand, Singapore, Hong Kong, Tokyo, and Japan. Flying round-trip they took off and landed 32 times.

Back home in St. Johns for the past two weeks, the eighth grader says, "I want to go all sorts of places now." The aftermath of this wonderful trip is a barrage of memories, 350 slides sorted down from 648, a daily log and some special souvenirs. He has the addresses of Chinese students to correspond with and a new and insatiable desire to see more of the world.

It was his first time "really" out of the country, "if you don't count Mexico and Canada." He thinks the wanderlust is in his blood because before second grade he and his parents, Mr and Mrs Don Couzens had moved seven times. The Waggoners, his maternal grandparents, are also seasoned travelers. "It's their favorite thing," Brent said.

For an American adult to visit China is unique enough. Very few young people have the opportunity. A picture of China through the eyes of a bright American 14-year old? His biggest impression was the Great Wall but he saw first hand something that worried him. "The farmers are taking out bricks to build houses," he said. The bricks are becoming a part of "little brick shacks" stacked up without mortar and roofed with hay (or tile if they have a little extra money). They farm right up to the wall, Brent said. "They don't waste any land, not with a billion people to feed." The animals just live out front of the homes in little pens.

It's a country without cars. "The only people who have cars are a few who work for the government," Brent said. "But they ride bicycles and have bicycle jams instead of traffic jams."

At holiday times, the government provides army trucks and the people climb in and are carted off to special tourist sights.

"There's very little machinery," Brent found, "and what there is is very old." To work up a field in China takes millions of people and wooden hoes, he said, or sometimes water buffaloes and wooden plows.

In the four cities they visited, Brent and his grandparents talked to many students. They found that China has a lot of educated young people who don't have jobs and just wander around the city. "If the government doesn't have a job for them they wander around until they're sent out to work on a farm," Brent said. The students had a lot of questions for Americans. "They wanted to know what our houses were like and how we got to China," Brent said. "They asked how our government worked and wondered about our colleges. They couldn't understand why we would have to pay to go to school and they couldn't understand when my grandfather tried to tell them about scholarships."

"What is Christmas?" they asked and wondered why it is such a big holiday. They also asked about American families and farms and about cars and Detroit.

At a junior high school in Kuang Chou (Canton) Brent learned that Chinese students start learning English in third grade. He observed that they didn't have a lot of equipment but they did have "books and everything." The students sat at tables on stools without backs and classrooms averaged 50 pupils. "They had microscopes and dissecting kits but mostly they used found materials for study like onions and things like that to cut up," he said. A school of 2,500 students had 130 teachers and 60 other staff members. Their school day was the same as ours but they started out the day with 10 minutes of exercises in the square. Junior High students were offered 14 different subjects which included math, geology, history, fine arts, music, English, French, Russian, Japanese and physical education.

Brent found the Chinese people "extremely friendly," and they must have had a similar view of this eager St. Johns boy. Besides his 35mm camera that he took for his slides, he had a Polaroid camera to take pictures of the people and share with them. "They almost snatched them open," he said of their excitement. Where ever they went the people "followed us and looked at us," Brent said. "They wanted to see what we were buying."

The food was a little hard for Brent to enjoy although his grandparents said he tried everything and he himself admitted that a "1,000 year old egg" wasn't too bad. Actually it was only a 40 year old egg that had been soaked in acid. The vegetables and the fresh fruit "weren't too bad," Brent said, but the rice was sticky and the way they fixed poultry (chopping it all up, head, feet and everything) was hard for him to take.

Is he glad to be home? Well, after 11 days in China the Holiday Inn in Hong Kong with a hamburger and good beds looked pretty good. "I was glad to get there," he said.

Looking for a job? Start here

By Patrice Hornak
Editor

Clinton County

You're a high school student. You would like to find a summer job but there just doesn't seem to be any openings.

What do you do? Don't despair. According to the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC), there will be about 131,000 unemployed youths this summer in the state. That's an unemployment rate of 25.1 percent.

Instead of getting depressed about the tight job market, be challenged. If there isn't a job for you, create one.

Students should be inventive when trying to earn money this summer. They should become resourceful in marketing their talents, as well as creative in developing their talents.

Students who wish to do summer-jobs should know how to sell their talents. One of the best ways is to place a classified ad in your local newspaper.

During the month of June the Clinton County News and the DeWitt/Bath Review will be running free classified ads for young people aged 15 to 22. Students should call the County News and Review business office at 224-2361 between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. to place the free classified ad.

All classified ads will appear under a special "Summer Youth Employment" heading near the "Jobs Wanted" portion of the classified ad section.

Ads should include the type of summer job desired as well as a phone number for interested employers to call. A limit of 30 words will be placed on each classified.

Creativity in the way the ad is worded may lure the employer, so students should try their skills at designing an advertisement that attracts customers or employers.

Young people can also be creative in coming up with ways to earn money. Besides the old stand-bys such as babysitting, grass mowing and house cleaning, there are a number of other ways young people can earn spending money—both enjoyable ways and back-breaking ways.

Students can start their own summer businesses if they have the initiative and capital to get started.

Someone who enjoys baking could bake fresh bread at a profit and offer it locally to her neighbors or after church services, if the pastor approves.

A whiz under the hood of a car could begin a small oil change business. Those who take pride in their wheels might offer a special deal on a car wash, inside vacuum job and a wax.

For the musically minded and talented students, a summer band or guitar group could prove stimulating as well as profitable. Providing members of the band stay together, this type of summer job could also provide year-round spending money.

Those with green thumbs might hire out their talents and strong backs to work on a farm or do an elderly person's gardening chores. The more industrious and adventurous student might plant a garden, harvest it and sell the vegetables for a profit.

Another way to earn money might be to travel to a pick-your-own strawberry farm and pick berries to sell to neighbors. A profit and loss margin would have to be established and the students would also have to study the competitive market—found in local grocery stores.

For the person who is handy with a hammer and saw or has a special flare for crafts, he or she might set goals and make several pieces of woodworking or craft items. When the annual Historical Society Home Tour rolls around, they would sell their summer projects for a profit.

There is a wealth of business knowledge to be learned from a summer job. If the student has to develop a business as well as wisely learn to spend his profits, much can be gained intellectually from a summer job.

American is the land of opportunity. In a tight job market, that premise still holds true.

St Johns students win design award

Lansing

Two students from St. Johns High School were winners in the 1980 High School Architectural Design Competition recently held at Lansing Community College.

Thomas Vitous, overall first place winner, was awarded a trophy and a $100 bond. Doug Bensinger took tenth place in the competition, which had 65 entrants, and was awarded a special drafting award. The students' drafting instructor is Terry Adams of St. Johns High School.

The event was sponsored by the Lansing Community College Architectural Engineering program and was open to all Mid-Michigan drafting students. The two-day competition totaled 12 working hours.

Competing students were assigned the same design project and judging was done by local architectural professionals. Awards were based on practicality and creativity of design; drafting technique; lettering and line quality; accuracy of solution of problem; and completeness of project.

Trophies, designed by LCC Architectural Technology Instructor James Perkins, are being presented to winners in the first three places and their high schools, and a plaque for permanent record will be hung at the LCC drafting lab.

CHIROPRACTIC EDUCATION REQUIREMENTS

Q: I have been told that Chiropractors only go to school six months and some get their license from correspondence courses. Is this true?

A: Licensing requirements for Chiropractors are very specific and strictly enforced in all of the fifty states. A minimum of two years pre-professional training in a College or University is followed by a comprehensive four year standard curriculum at a Board approved Chiropractic College.

Courses in these Colleges include Anatomy, Physiology, Chemistry, Diagnosis, Public Health, Spinal Correction, Chiropractic Philosophy and many others. Over 4,000 classroom hours coupled with two years of intensive clinical training make the Chiropractor a very well trained and competent member of the health delivery system.

Q: Is jogging good for your spine?

A: Anything that increases the movement of your spine is good for you. Man was designed to be mobile and bending, twisting, running, walking, all contribute to that mobility. Much sickness comes from the fact that too few of us use our bodies the way they were intended to be used.

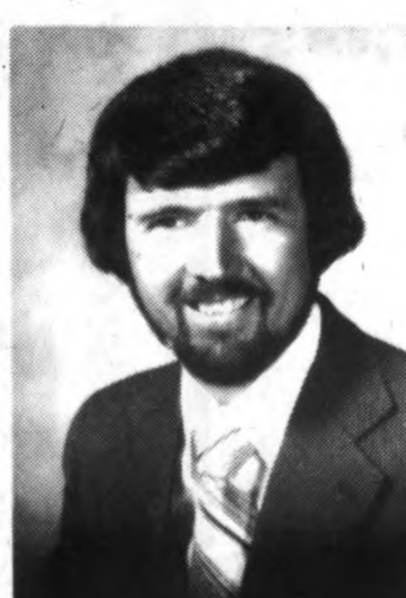

In jogging, good shoes, a relatively soft surface, and a gradual build-up program are essential. I strongly recommend a Chiropractic spinal examination and correction of any problems that may be found before you launch into any program of physical activity. Spinal damage could be aggravated by exercise if not properly corrected.

Fowler bows out of softball regionals

By Jeff Salisbury
Staff Writer

The Fowler Eagles softball season finally drew to a close Monday night as they were defeated by the Morenci Bulldogs, 5-3 in Class D regional finals action at Sand Creek, near Adrian.

Fowler gave up three runs in the third inning on two safeties an infield single on an error and a walk, which loaded the bases and paved the way for a double by Morenci's Terry Emmons.

Merenic opened the inning with a double and Fowler looked like they still might get through it all without much damage when they got the next batter out on an infield hit, plus caught the other runner at third.

Then with two down, two straight singles and the error loaded the bases before losing pitcher Jane Goerge walked in the first run of the game. Emmon's double made it 3-0 and Fowler had to play a futile game of catch-up.

Fowler got a run back in the fifth after Morenci had scored single runs in the fourth and fifth themselves upping the score to 5-0. Betsy Weber singled, then second and advanced to third on Sandy Thelen's sacrifice. Connie Feldpausch was out on a fielder's choice and Weber scored from third.

In the sixth, Fowler's Kat Schmitt tripled and came home on Mae Farley's single. In the bottom of the seventh, the Eagles got one more chance as the home team but came up short. Sandy Thelen walked and so did Connie Feldpausch. Jane Goerge then singled before Diana Klein was out on a hard liner to second.

The Eagles finish the year with a fine 15-4 mark and reign for the second straight year as District D champs. It also marks the second straight year they have lost in the Regional finals.

"Last year we lost to the eventual state champs (Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard)," said Coach Betsy Weber, "and something tells me we just lost to the state champs again this year."

Morenci beat Ann Arbor to reach the finals, by a score of 6-4 in a game postponed from last Saturday because of rain. Saturday's game had been called in the third inning with the score knotted at 3-3.

Fowler had beaten Galian earlier that day by a score of 11-12 behind the two-hit pitching of Jane Goerge. Jane fanned one and walked five plus collected two hits to aid her cause. Kat Schmitt led the hitting in that game with two singles, a triple and two RBIs in the five inning contest called because of the 10-run rule.

Mae Farley added two hits and three RBIs while Goerge was having little trouble retiring batters.

Fowler had only five hits in the Morenci game, one each by Goerge, Farley and Weber, plus two by Schmitt. Despite the loss of Weber, Thelen and Schmitt, Coach Smith feels she has a good nucleus returning for next season.

Smith announced the balloting and subsequent awards which were given out at Friday's awards banquet. The Most Improved Player honor went to freshman Becky Kohagen, who plays firstbase. The Coaches Award, which exemplifies the player(s) who shows the most spirit, enthusiasm, determination and good attitude that the other players can look up to, was awarded jointly to co-recipients Betsy Weber and Sandy Thelen. Finally, the Valuable Player award was also given to two players: Kat Schmitt and Jane Goerge. Schmitt finished the year with a .575 batting average and Goerge wound-up with an 11-3 season pitching record. Congratulations on a fine season are in order for every member of the team.

The Redwing softball program in its second year of existence at St. Johns High School has compiled an impressive 53-15-1 overall two-year record. The varsity took third place in the league last year and this year shared the conference crown with Chesaning and Corunna. Each had identical 7-3 league records. The varsity is coached by Jan Szymczak.

Under the helm of Paul Sternburgh, the jayvee team went 13-1-1 this season and took the conference title for the second year in a row. Their conference record was 9-0-1.

The Most Valuable Player award for the St. Johns High School baseball team went to Rod Rojas, the Redwing pitcher, and Tim Madsen was named the Most Improved Player.

The coach's inspiration award was awarded to Dave Sehlke and the 101 Percent Award was earned by Garrett Hayes.

At the track banquet May 30, Kelly Peck received the Most Valuable Player award for the girls' track team and Jeff Howe received the Most Valuable Player for the boys' team.

Carol's column

By Carol Butler
Home Economist

My name won't be new to many of you but my job is, so let me introduce myself. Hello, my name is Carol Butler and beginning June 1, I became the Extension Home Economist for Clinton County.

I began working with the Family Living Programs in January on a voluntary basis. In February I moved into the Assistant Home Economist position.

As a family member and educator, I highly endorse the overall mission of Extension Family Living to provide education which assists families in identifying needs, making decisions, and utilizing resources to improve the quality of living in families and communities.

The areas which Family Living Programs are designed around are: family and government; foods and nutrition; health; housing; human development; resource management inflation. As home economist, I anticipate working with adult leaders in extension groups, young families, senior citizens, limited resource families, local clubs and community agencies.

A few of the programs to look for in the future are:

June 24 - Pressure Canning Gauge Testing - Smith Hall.

July 8, 15, 22 - "Holding the Harvest" Instruction on safe and efficient methods to freeze, can and make jams and preserves.

August 13 - Family Fun Day - 4-H Fair - 1-7 p.m.

October 6-9 - Volunteer Training-Vitality and Vittles

November 4 - Sewing Fun

In addition to these things I'll continue the Family Living newsletter, radio, and bi-weekly news columns.

If I can be of assistance to you in the future or if you would like more information about extension please stop in or call.

As a 60 percent appointment, my office hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mon., Tues., and Thurs.

Check your canner

The Cooperative Extension Service is sponsoring a pressure canner gauge testing clinic Tuesday, June 24.

It will be held at Smith Hall from 8:30 a.m. - 11 a.m.

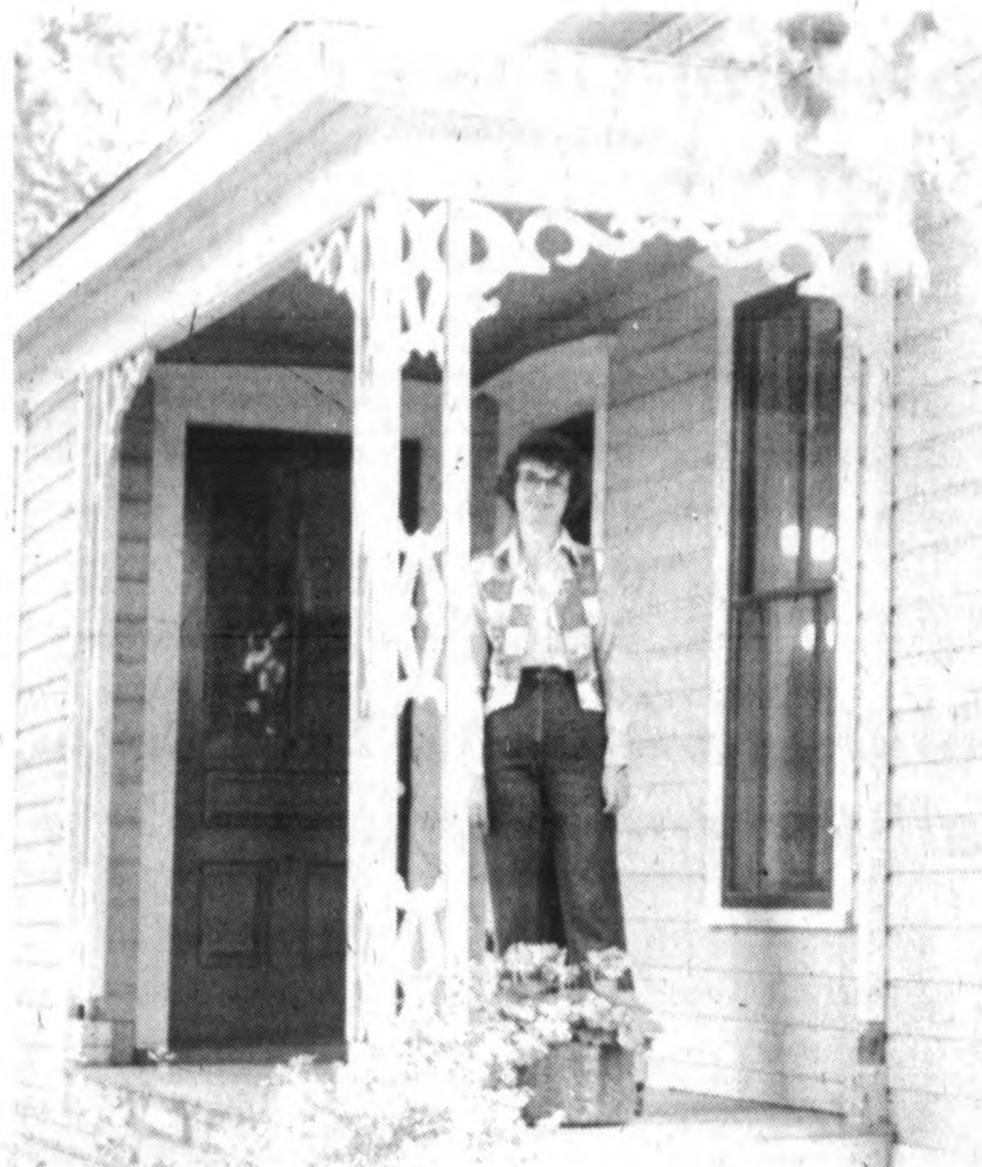

Participants should bring their canner lids with the gauge attached. Only dial gauge and slide core weighted gauge need be checked. Gauges may be left at the Extension Office prior to the clinic but will be tested on June 24.

There is no charge for this service.

If you have any questions about the clinic or any aspects of food preservation, contact the Cooperative Extension Service Office at 224-3288.

Built in 1847 by the son of DeWitt's founder, David Scott, this Greek Revival farm home was toured Saturday by participants of the Clinton County Historical Commission's "Old House Renaissance." Kathy Soderberg of Charlotte, left, Diane Woodruff of Lansing, Fay Hendry of Okemos and Geneva Wiskemann of the Historical Commission leave the home, owned by the Norman Robinson family.

Visiting the past

By fall or early spring, Marilyn and Eugene Coin will be making the old cottage at right their home. Under renovation, the home sits on two acres of land that rolls down to the river. Tourers got a first hand look at the work involved in an extensive renovation project of this kind. Mrs. Coin welcomed participants from one of the home's five porches.

Old house seminar brings visitors to DeWitt

DeWitt

The Clinton County Historical Commission's "Old House Renaissance" brought a lot of people to DeWitt who had never been here before," according to Geneva K. Wiskemann, chairman of the seminar.

"It was a rich day," Mrs. Wiskemann said of the workshop on old houses. Participants and expert speakers came from around the state for the learning sessions on how to renovate, restore and revitalize old homes. A tour was also taken of two historic DeWitt homes, the restored Greek Revival farm home of Norman and Mary Robinson and the Italianate cottage that Eugene and Marilyn Coin have under renovation.

The seminar was made possible by a mini-grant (less than $2,000) from the Michigan Council for the Humanities, a first for this county according to Mrs. Wiskemann. She said the grant enabled the Historical Commission to offer participants "more handouts and giveaways" and to attract some "top notch" speakers.

Displays were arranged by the Urban Planning and Landscape Department from Michigan State University, Bundy Furniture, and the Historical Commission. Mrs. Wiskemann said the entire session was taped with plans of publishing it at a later date.

The Robinson home on Schavey Road was built in 1847 by David Scott's son, Charles and his wife Julia. The clapboard siding has been added, but the unusual treatment of the corinthian columns are probably original, expressing a "countryman's way," of making them. The house stands on what was once the Charles Scott farm just outside of the city of DeWitt. It was owned by the Scott family for quite a few generations. Local historian Ken Coin, who has done much research on old homes in the area said that the Scott home was built with "remarkable quality." Charles Scott was also the owner of the Clinton House, a big hotel in downtown DeWitt.

The Robinson family has lived in the home for about 14 years and have geared their decorating and remodeling to the style and period of the house.

Also on tour was a small cottage on West Main Street being renovated by Coin's parents. Built in the mid-1880's, the little house served for many generations as the summer/retirement home of the Pate and Lietzke

He was instrumental in helping to establish the East Lansing Older Peoples Program, now funded by the City of East Lansing. His wife, Teddy, has been the program's director since its funding in 1972.

He also served as co-chairman of the transportation committee of the East Lansing Older Peoples Program and helped establish a half-fare taxi program for the handicapped and those persons over 60 in East Lansing.

Old Woman in the Shoe FUN AT FOWLER

The Old Woman in the Shoe had so many things to do last week during the Fowler elementary annual art carnival.

It's a story, it's a carnival

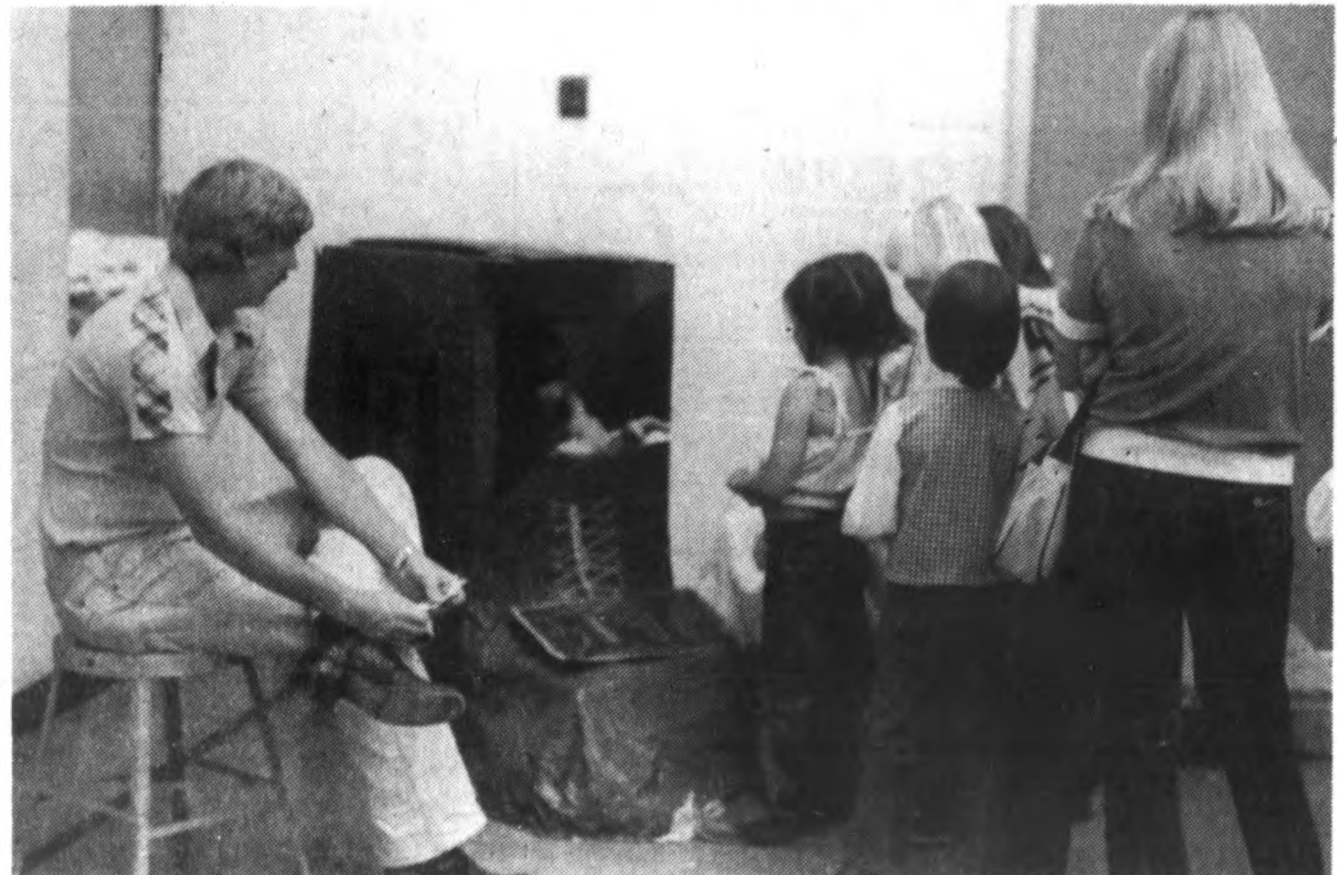

Fowler

There was fun for everyone at the Waldron Elementary annual art carnival Tuesday, June 3. Fifth grade art students at Waldron sponsored the carnival for Kindergarten through fourth graders at their school. They had games, prizes and refreshments, furnished with the assistance of their parents, the Parent-Teacher Organization and their art teacher, Katherine DeBusschere. Students divided into groups and made a booth depicting some storybook tale. The booths each featured a game for the elementary students to play. Each elementary student was given $25 in play money.

They were able to play all the 21 booths as well as purchase some refreshments and enter the raffle. Each game cost $1 to play, and the food and raffle tickets were likewise priced. Prizes were also awarded for the best booth and the best costumes worn by the fifth graders. The Old Woman Who Lived in the Shoe booth designed by Mary Feldpausch, Teresa Hall, Julie McNamara and Terri Smith took first prize. Their game consisted of the "Old Woman" sitting in a paper-maché shoe and she asked questions of the students. If a student answered the question given him correctly, he won some money. Taking second prize in the booth competition was the

Bugs Bunny booth designed by Kelly Snyder, Amy McCausey and Amy Thelen. The Wizard of Oz booth entered by Denise Schmitz, Debbie Sillman, Jonathan Spitzley and Rex Thelen took third; the Holly Hobby booth entered by Nancy Braun and Jerrie Thelen took fourth; and the team of Mike Armbrustmacher, Jill Simon, Kurt Simon and Jay Bancroft won fifth prize for their Dan Frontier Killed the Cat booth. Best costume prizes for fifth graders who dressed in outfits to correspond to their booths were won by the Tin Woodsman, Jonathan Spitzley, first prize; the Old Woman in the Shoe, Julie McNamara, second; Rumpelstiltskin, Shelly Piggott third; Jimmy the Cricket, Jim Andros, fourth; Captain Hook, Paula Wirth, fifth; and the Coyote, Doug Farr, sixth. The raffle was won by Kindergartener Tim Andros and the cake raffle for parents and staff members who helped supply refreshments was won by Janet Armbrustmacher, an aide at the elementary. Additionally the 10 top money winners in each regular classroom received an educational prize. Those prizes were distributed the following day. After it was all over, Mrs DeBusschere said, "It was a lot of fun." She said she appreciated all the students' work that went into the carnival, especially noting that the fifth graders had only two weeks to prepare for the carnival.

BIBLE SCHOOL AND SWIMMING

What's in a summer?

The best thing about the last day of school is thinking ahead to what summer is bringing. Bible school, swimming and camping were big items in vacation fun as Teresa Merrill Elementary school students looked ahead to the next three months.

Third grader Terry Hart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hart of Baker Street put Vacation Bible School at the top of his list but swimming ran a close second. His very favorite thing to do is go roller skating. "My dad says it's closed (roller skating)," he said forlornly, "but it's still open." He called roller skating "one of my hobbies," along with building models. Terry is also looking forward to a family move this summer to a new house where he'll have a bigger bedroom. David Briggs, the first grade son of Mr. and Mrs. Ranny Briggs of West Park Street is going to spend time this summer with grandparents. "We're going up north to visit my one grandpa and then we're going to Arkansas to visit my other grandpa," he announced. He also wants summer to be "hotter" than it was Friday. Teddy Bedell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Bedell of Cass Street put his second grade imagination to work and decided that he'd like to go to Bible School, roller skating and maybe camping. He has a pool at home so lots of swimming is on his summer schedule. Christine Berkousen, fourth grade daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Berkousen of Traver Street doesn't have a pool at home but her grandmother Emma Berkousen has and Christine said she "stays there all summer." Christine gives up her fun at grandma's only when "we go places as a family." She will tear herself away from that pool for a trip to Maryland and church camp, Bible School and Girl Scout camp. Jennifer Woodward has trips up north on her summer schedule where she likes to swim at Ostego Lake. The fourth grade daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Woodward, Jennifer sadly reported a family move to DeWitt and said she'll go to school and swim on the swim team there next year. Sarah Newman first grade daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jon Newman of Walker Street knows for sure what she thinks is summer fun. "Car races," she announced. "It's noisy but I've done it for three years." Summer also means camping and maybe the horse races. "Then I'll stay home and play." At home Sarah will play with her sister and "we'll push each other in the pool." Kelly Mack, a second grader, likes to roller skate and that's first on her summer schedule. She'll also go to Bible School to "learn about Jesus." Kelly is the daughter of Mrs. Dolores Mack, Baker Street. She said she likes to go to Cedar Point and up north. Matt Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Clark, East Walker Street is the camper of the group. His job is gathering the firewood and he likes to go in the woods. This year's family trip is slated for Canada. "We wanted to go to Isle Royal but it cost too much," he said.
