

Electric car to zoom into city Thursday

St. Johns

An electric car, as well as a presentation by a local energy consultant who recently returned from an international conference in Japan concerning the use of hydrogen as an alternative energy source, is sure to spark interest in free public Adult Energy Night slated for Thursday, July 10 in St. Johns.

Community Resource Volunteers (CRV) is coordinating the event which will be held from 6:30 to about 9:30 p.m. in the Capitol Savings and Loan parking lot and the adjacent Chef's Cafe dining room.

The first portion of the energy night will feature displays of several energy-related techniques. One of the highlights will be a Bradley GT electric car which can travel about 100 miles before it needs to be recharged.

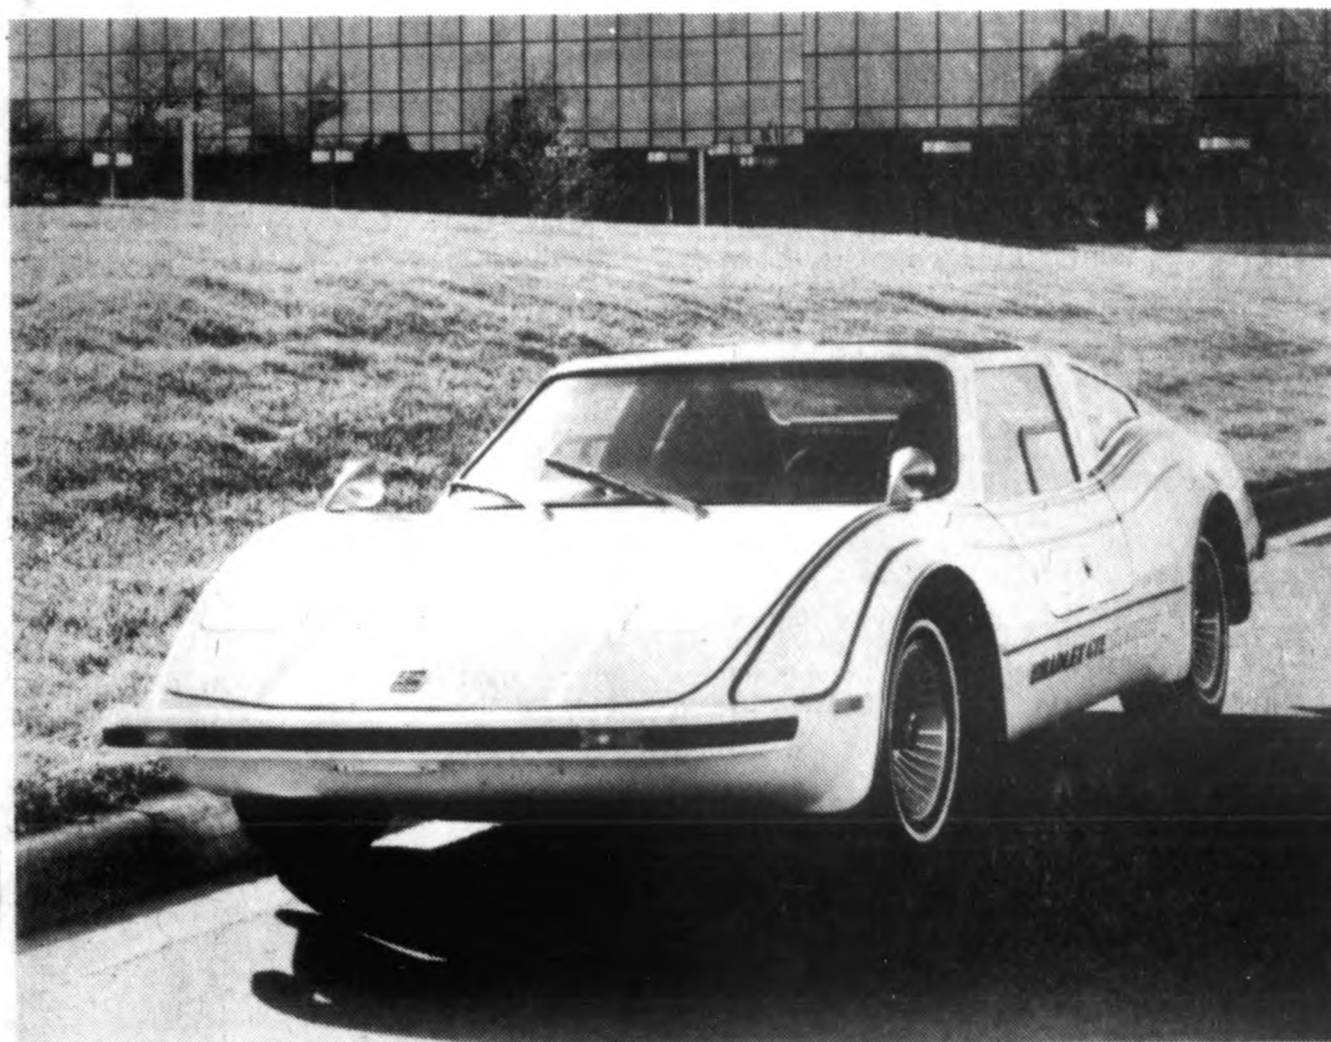

Another feature will be a propane gas-operated vehicle developed by John Beck for use at Uncle John's Cider Mill on US-27 and his surrounding orchards.

A solar hot water heater, a display on loan from Michigan State University explaining how to make gasohol, bicycle and energy simulator and a host of other displays will also be exhibited in the savings and loan parking lot.

Then, about 7:30 p.m., Bill Escher from Escher-Foster Technology Associates, Inc. of St. Johns, will show the NOVA tape, a national film which centers on alternative energy sources for transportation.

Escher appears in the film as an expert on the possible use of hydrogen energy in powering planes and trains.

The film will be followed by a question and answer period.

Bradley GT Electric

This Bradley GT electric car will be on display from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Capitol Savings and Loan parking area and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday in front of Mark Roberts furniture store. Donald Couzens of St. Johns will be on hand to explain the car's operation and answer questions. The car is owned by the Governor's Energy Awareness Committee and its visit to St. Johns is sponsored by Community Resource Volunteers.

School boards to elect new officers

Clinton County

It's that time of the year again--when boards of education throughout the state meet to elect new officers and to establish regular meeting dates and times.

Three Clinton County boards of education will be meeting Monday, July 14, for their annual reorganizational meeting, two are meeting tonight, and one met Monday night.

Meeting Monday night was the DeWitt Board of Education. Evert Stevens was chosen president and Bobbie McConnell was named vice-president. Kenneth Stevens became treasurer and Clare Boughton remained as the board's secretary. Boughton was also appointed to serve as a liaison representative to the Michigan School Board Association.

Meetings remain the second Monday of the month at 7:30 p.m. in the high school library. Regular special meetings will be at 7:30 p.m. on the fourth Monday of the month at the administration building.

The board held off until its July 28 meeting to decide on board committee assignments.

Tonight both the St. Johns and Fowler boards will be electing new officers. Both meetings are slated for 8 p.m.

There won't be any new faces on the St. Johns board, as incumbents Neil Barnhart and Lee Ormston were re-elected June 9.

However, on the Fowler school board, two newcomers will be attending their first meeting as official board members. They are Patricia Snyder and George Martin. They are replacing Gerald Wieber and Floyd Messer who have devoted 14.5 and 8 years, respectively, to the Fowler Board of Education.

Electing new officers Monday will be boards of education in Bath, Ovid-Elsie and Pewamo-Westphalia.

Bath will be meeting at 7:30 p.m. for their reorganizational meeting and their regular monthly meeting will be held at 8 p.m. the Bath board will be meeting the second Monday of the month from now on, instead of the fourth Monday of the month.

All Bath board incumbents were re-elected in June, so there won't be any new additions to that board.

Pewamo-Westphalia and Ovid-Elsie will be meeting at 8 p.m. Monday. New to the O-E board will be Adine Lantis who is replacing four-year veteran Eugene Schoendorf who elected not to run for re-election. William Bohr will be filling the vacancy on the P-W board left by Thomas Droste who had served 12 years on the P-W board.

Kyes named DeWitt Twp superintendent

By Sue Kiley White
Staff Writer

DeWitt Twp.

Walter K. Kyes, Haslett, has been selected as the first superintendent of DeWitt Charter Township effective July 21 as announced Monday night at a special board meeting.

The hiring of a superintendent has caused much controversy in the township over the past few months, with much opposition coming from Supervisor Alta Catherine Reed. The post of supervisor will now become a parttime position, or a "figurehead" as Mrs. Reed says.

The creation of a superintendent came about on Feb. 25 by a six to one vote of the township board. Reasons for the move included: "The lack of professional guidance in areas of grantsmanship. Continuity in government in addition to the need for a professional administrator in budgeting."

According to the Superintendent Search Committee consisting of board members Jim Soule and Karen Williams and five citizens Byron Wright, Robert Gesler, Déan Battley, John Lindbloom and Nancy Cheney the hiring of a professional administrator has been recommended for the past five years by the salary advisory committee which is also made up of citizens.

Petitions were submitted in August of 1979 by a group of approximately 100 citizens requesting the board hire a superintendent. Later in the spring of this year 811 residents presented a petition to the board saying they wanted this issue placed on the May 20 ballot.

The committee has emphasized that the supervisor position remains one of importance. They have rejected the opinion that it becomes a figurehead. The supervisor will remain the chairman of the township board, which sets the policy for the operation of the township. He or she will remain an ex officio member of all board committees, will be expected to speak for the board and will have other duties prescribed by law.

The board has set the supervisor's salary at $2,000 from the present $18,860 Mrs. Reed is receiving. The board will transfer the $17,000 difference to the superintendent's salary which has been set at $23,000.

Local energy expert attends world hydrogen conference

By Patrice Hornak
Editor

St. Johns

Energy made from hydrogen. It sounds futuristic, but in reality it is already available.

Energy consultant to the Department of Energy, Bill Escher of St. Johns, recently returned from the 3rd World Hydrogen Energy Conference in Tokyo, Japan. It was at this conference that representatives of 25 nations gathered to discuss hydrogen energy.

Hydrogen can be produced many ways, including using nuclear and solar energy. Basically, the process resembles the simple water electrolysis experiment learned in chemistry class, said Escher. Two electrodes are put in water and power is added. The water, composed of hydrogen and oxygen, gives off these two gases in the form of bubbles.

Escher and Dick Foster who are the founders of Escher-Foster Technology, Inc. located near Andy's IGA, have done extensive research in the area of hydrogen energy. They contract their studies through the DOE and Escher was one of 10 Americans sponsored by the DOE at the hydrogen energy conference.

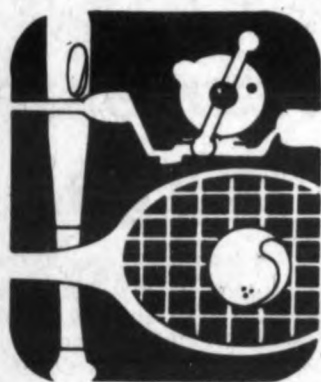

At the conference, Escher gave a paper on behalf of the DOE on hydrogen energy used for vehicle application in such modes of transportation as autos, trucks, buses and planes.

He also chaired one of the sessions on "Vehicles and Hydrogen Combustion" and as secretary of the International Association of Hydrogen Energy, he attended a meeting of that board also.

A heart evolves in new Care Center logo

"An evolving heart" is how Ted Loomis describes his logo which was recently selected to represent the proposed Clinton Area Care Center, a care facility for the elderly to be built on Scott Road in St. Johns.

Loomis' design was recently picked from 17 entries in the logo contest. The Clinton Area Care Center board of directors made the final decision.

The designer, a former St. Johns resident, is the art director for Marketing Resource Group, Inc. in Lansing. Through his work, he develops and coordinates marketing programs for commercial and political accounts. He has extensive experience in graphic design and film, video and audio-visual production.

He said he chose to use Swiss graphics, particularly the evolving heart, because it "had some action to it."

His parents, Stan and Jeanne Loomis of St. Johns who are donors to the Clinton Area Care Center's fund drive, had suggested to him that he design a logo for the Care Center. For his efforts, he was rewarded with dinner for two at Someplace Else Restaurant in St. Johns.

Loomis is a 1968 graduate of Rodney B. Wilson High School. He resides in Lansing and has an exhibit entitled "Michigan 1975-1977" on display in the governor's office at the state capitol.

Fowler committee determined to pass August school millage

Fowler

A successful school millage campaign is the goal of a group of Fowler residents who met for the first time last week.

The assembly of about 75 people formed eight committees to work for the passage of Fowler's school millage proposals at the Aug. 11 school election.

Fowler is asking the voters to approve a 19-mill request which includes a 17-mill renewal on the first ballot and a 1.5-mill increase on a second ballot.

The administration has already outlined what cuts will be made if the millage proposals are not granted Aug. 11. A separate list of cuts was drawn up for Proposal 1 and Proposal 2.

The cuts realized from a loss of 1.5 mills would total $92,000 said Superintendent Gary Jackson.

If the 19-mill request is denied, an additional $183,000 from the budget would be cut. This would entail eliminating all athletics, marching band, one-third of the vocational education program, some needed roof work at the high school and other expenditures.

The Fowler millage campaign committees have agreed to meet again July 21 at 8 p.m. at the high school to report progress made. Anyone interested in working on any of the following committees or helping with the millage campaign should contact any of the committee chairpersons or call the Fowler High School office.

Committees established last week included:

—Finance committee or fund raising committee to raise money for the campaign. No public funds can be used to support the millage, so this committee will be charged with raising funds. The chairman is Carl Koenigs-knecht.

—Registration committee. This committee under the leadership of Helen Schaefer will be working to encourage Fowler residents to register for the Aug. 11 election. Monday, July 14, is the last day a person can register to vote in the Aug. 11 election.

—Student group. Neil Hufnagel is chairman of this committee which will be offering general help to the various other committees. His group is comprised of 18-year-olds and those still in school.

—Publicity committee. This group will be working on brochures explaining the need for additional millage. Melody Sowers is the chairman.

—Telephone committee. The day of the election, chairman Claude Feldpausch and his committee will be contacting registered voters and making them aware of the millage election.

—Transportation committee. Bill Schrauben's committee will be offering transportation to and from the polls on Aug. 11.

—Speaker engagement committee. Superintendent Jackson has agreed to speak to interested groups of Fowler school district residents. Virginia Martin and her committee will be making arrangements for Jackson to speak.

—Senior citizen information committee. This committee is charged with getting information to the Fowler-area senior citizens. George Martin is the chairman.

★ Kyes

On Jan. 1, 1981, Kyes salary will become $25,000 with his contract set through Dec. 31, 1980.

Over 50 applications were received from people across the nation after ads were placed in newspapers, the International Manager's Association, Michigan Township Newsletter, MSU, Ferris State College, Western Michigan University, Central Michigan University and Wayne State University.

The committee pared the applications down to 13 and then held personal interviews. The list was reduced to five with the applicants coming from Massachusetts, Nebraska, Ohio and Michigan. The field was narrowed down to three with Kyes finally being selected.

Kyes is an engineer and a "hometown boy" according to the committee's report. His uncle Ward Kyes was clerk of DeWitt Township for over 30 years.

Kyes, 43, is married and the father of four children. He graduated from James Couzens Agriculture School in Bath in 1955 and Michigan Technological University in Houghton in 1960.

He is the president of Stephens-Kyes and Associates, Inc. Formerly he owned his own engineering company and has been the township engineer for several years.

In January of 1970 Kyes was appointed superintendent of Meridian Charter Township. His duties included the administration of $3.5 million and the supervision of 75 people. He was also involved with union negotiation, legal work and personal administration according to his resume.

"I am a firm believer in the rights and the necessity of public involvement in government," said Kyes in his response to a township questionnaire. "The natural involvement before the Board is a concern to me. Not the involvement, but the need to see the total issues is presented and not bits and pieces that may be out of context and are intended to influence a vote. The reason this is a concern is that too often we only hear from special interest groups and not the silent majority."

English couple makes Living Center just like home

By Sharon Randall
Staff Writer

St. Johns

With Shepherd Pie and corned-beef fritters; with outings to town, special shows and trips up north for fishing, Mr and Mrs Ronald Salisbury make the Community Living Center home for its residents.

Right now there are 20 people living at the center but the population goes up and down with room enough for 31. Residents have ranged in age from 18 to 90 in the five years the Salisburys have been there. They come for different reasons but Ron Salisbury said that he and his wife Mary strive to "keep everything like a family."

Meals are important and the Salisburys plan menus around sales and what's fresh and available. The meals vary as in a household. "It's a guessing game of what's for dinner," Mrs Salisbury said. "They try to guess from the smells coming up the stairs," she laughed, "and finally someone will go down to the kitchen to see."

The couple came to the center "already knowing it." They were friends with the previous directors and applied for the job through them. "We used to visit here," he explained, coming up on weekends to help plant the garden or share the car for special trips.

They were foster parents in the Lansing area and Mrs Salisbury explained that their role was only going "from babies to adults." She liked being a foster mother and enjoys the people in her care today. "You try not to get too attached," she said, "but it's very hard not to."

The couple is very much involved with their charges. "It takes a lot of time and patience," she said. "They all wake up in different moods and temperaments. Sometimes someone can be so charming one day and then blast you the next."

Mrs Salisbury herself has no parents and she relates to her charges who have no family. She also has empathy for those who are ignored by their families.

"But this is a home," Salisbury said. "There's not many rules and regulations, there's 10 acres to wander about on." Each resident has his own room and there's a television room and game room. "There's so many places to go," Salisbury said. "If they want to talk to someone they can, or they can go off and be alone."

Even outings are not mandatory. "If they don't want to go, they can stay here," he said.

There's a vegetable garden, strawberries and thubarb flowers, and a large shady lawn. They raise rabbits.

The warm, friendly couple come from England, 12 years ago, coaxed to try America by servicemen they had befriended. In September they are returning for their visit in celebration of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Salisbury is a member of St. Johns Rotary Club but he admits that he only gets to meetings once every few weeks because "something always crops up." Mrs Salisbury used to bowl for an extra activity but because of recent surgery she has had to stop. "So, I've taken up ceramics," she said, "and I thoroughly enjoy it." She goes once a week with her daughter and feels good about the things she's made for Ron as an anniversary gift. I thought, "ceramics just isn't my game," but once I saw it finished, I knew it was worth the work."

Mary also belongs to an English club and meets with other English women to talk and swap recipes. "Some still go home and we visit about that," she said. "We share where to get good English food." Twice a year, according to Ron, husbands are allowed to go and those are special meetings.

There's a box of toys in the livingroom of the Salisbury's apartment at the Living Center. They're for the couple's two grandchildren who come to visit. Their three children live near-by and "pop in often."

Directing the home is a full-time, round the clock job. The couple has every other week end off. "We're 11 days on and three days off," Salisbury explained, but sometimes they don't get to take off when a staff member is sick or special circumstances come up.

While the old brick building "has a lot of aches and pains," according to Salisbury, the couple works at keeping it up. "The CETA boys came and painted all the rooms," he said, "and a couple years ago we put carpet in all the bedrooms."

Each year they try to add a little bit more in improvements, just like home.

Howard Wickes comes home

By Sharon Randall
Staff Writer

St. Johns

It was a nostalgic gathering of old friends, last Thursday evening, as Howard Wickes came home to the house at 311 S. Clinton Ave. where he and his twin brother Gordon, were born Sept. 20, 1891.

Growing up in St. Johns in the 1890's and the first decade of 1900 the Wickes twins were bright, inquisitive "mischief makers," and the memories flew as he met with old comrades, Carmen Tranchell, Treva Merrill Smith, Hazel Bray, Florence Dexter, Bess and George Osgood and Dora and Percy Patterson. "We're kind of antiques, but that's all right, we just keep going," Wickes said.

At 88, Wickes has not yet shed the reputation he and his brother earned as youngsters here. They were among the crew who hung a teacher in effigy and hid the evidence in the Wickes barn. They strung farm implements up on the flag pole at Central High School as a Halloween prank. "We were devils," Wickes admitted and Carmen Tranchell asked "Where's the mischief?" as she arrived at Thursday's party. "The Wickes were always in it [mischief]" she affirmed.

The house on South Clinton Avenue was built in 1890 by Wickes' father, Frank, who was a foundryman associated with F. Mason and later John Spousta at the St. Johns Foundry Co. Today it is the home of JoAnn and Paul Martis Jr., who hosted the homecoming party.

The Martis family befriended Wickes after meeting him through his son, Richard, who stopped on a trip through St. Johns to see the house his grandfather built. Mrs Martis was happy to report that they hadn't changed the house very much and that the stained glass panels in the livingroom were still intact. As a child, Wickes loved to lie on the floor and let the colored light flood over him as the sun poured through that window.

In the attic the Martis family had found old pictures, letters, and a marriage certificate from the Wickes family and she passed them on to Richard and his father.

The gathering, Thursday, was prompted as a thank you to friends and local historians who helped Wickes trace his family tree which resulted in an entry in the 1980 History of Clinton County book to be published later this year.

The Wickes family came to Clinton County in about 1830 from the Rochester, N.Y. area.

They were Masonically inclined and some were members of the St. Johns Lodges and Eastern Star, Radiant Chapter 79. They had a grocery business in St. Johns in 1880 and an iron foundry in the early 1900's. Howard Wickes and his brother Gordon, educated at the University of Michigan were engineers, and in 1922 designed and constructed the first elevated steel tower water tank in St. Johns.

From 1880 to 1883, an uncle, C.P. Wickes, owned the home that today houses the Paine-Gillam-Scott Historical Museum and sold it to Dr. Gillam who remodeled it.

When Howard Wickes looks at his own personal history associated with St. Johns he sees the graduating class of 1909 and a popular Latin teacher, Winifred Daboll. "Winifred Daboll did the most for us," he recalls and all of his contemporaries agree. When the Wickes twins found they lacked the proper credits to be accepted at the University of Michigan, they enrolled at Michigan State. "When we told Miss Daboll about that she said, 'no,'" Wickes told. "She took us back down there and by gosh she got us in."

"At Ann Arbor she was rated as one of the best Latin Please turn to page 10

Teichert plays 2 big tournaments

By Tim Jeffery
Staff Writer

Kathy Teichert can normally be found someplace near a golf course.

Having recently returned from Tacoma, Wash., where she took part in the All-American Prep Classic, she spends much of her time working on the finer parts of her game.

Miss Teichert, a 1980 St. Johns graduate, was selected by the coaches committee board to represent Michigan in Tacoma.

Faced with a rather tough course, Kathy didn't fare quite as well as she would have liked. She explained that the course was very hilly, unlike the courses that she normally plays. She also noted that the greens were extremely fast, although the majority of them were flat.

Kathy played among 18 girls in her division, which was won by a resident of Washington. Miss Teichert pointed out that the weather was typical of Washington weather. The temperatures were quite cool and there was some rain each day.

On Monday, June 30, Kathy played in the Lansing Country Club's Pro-Am Golf Tournament that also went to benefit the Cancer Society. She was quite pleased with the way she played.

The tournament had approximately 250 amateur and 48-50 pros competing. Playing with Jane Renner of the LPGA, Kathy shot a four over par 76.

Hopefully the cancer benefit tournament was a sign of things to come as she takes her game to Michigan State University this fall.

Kathy explained that she had visited the campuses of Furman University in South Carolina and Florida State University. However she has accepted the scholarship to MSU, stating that the first year she thought that she might like to stay close to home.

Her reasons for choosing MSU also included a strong liking of MSU's coach and the school's course.

Miss Teichert stated that depending on how everything goes at MSU, she might still consider a school in the south in a couple of years. She added that it's not anything definite, just another possibility.

Kathy said she is really looking forward to competing in the Big Ten and having a chance to play on each school's golf course.

The area of Kathy's game that she'll work on most is her short irons. Having played in high school on the boys' team, Kathy explained that it really helped her driving and fairway woods play.

As the summer wears on, Kathy hopes to have her short game working as well as the other facets in which she excels. Then Kathy can give MSU four outstanding years of golf.

Telling it like it is

By Tim Jeffery

With the all-star break upon the baseball season, the Detroit Tigers seem to be playing much better baseball. Their recent nine game winning streak has changed the attitude of many fans. Here then is this week's question.

Can the Tigers make a run at winning their division? If so why or why not?

Steve Hiner of St. Johns: "Yes, I think they can make a run. Pitching is one thing they have to work out, but if it comes around they can do it. They've got a good bunch of young hitters and should be tough in years to come."

Jack Redmond of St. Johns: "Yeah they can make a run if they can keep up what they're doing now. They might catch the Yankees if they keep their heads together and don't get over confident."

John Boak of DeWitt: "Well since they won nine games in a row, I think they probably can make a run at first place. They've straightened up quite a bit, but it will take a lot of hard work."

Tom Nemcik of St. Johns: "Right now, offensively they are doing well. If the pitching holds out they can challenge. Guys like Heberner have to keep driving in runs. Sparky seems to be doing the best with what he has to work with. Before Sparky, I lost interest, but now he's brought back that interest. They really seem to be maturing."

Wayne Brooks of St. Johns: "No, they can't make a run. I think that they don't have enough pitching."

Susan Brooks of St. Johns: "The only time I was a fan was when they won the world series in 1968. I like winners. The Tigers get in a hot streak and everyone gets excited. They won't follow through."

Gwen Bannings of St. Johns: "Yeah, they can make a run because they have been doing great so far and they aren't that far behind."

Lannie Fisher of St. Johns: "It's possible but highly unlikely that they will make a run at first place. The Yankees are just too tough. I don't expect the Tigers to improve too much on their spot in the standings. Milwaukee and New York look strong and should finish ahead of Detroit."

Phil DeWitt visiting a brother in St. Johns: "If they keep playing like they have they can make a run. They already went through their slump, now maybe the other teams will go into a slump of their own. The Tigers' pitching is coming around and maybe they can put everything together."

Mark Lalone of St. Johns: I think they could make a run if they keep playing the way they are. Lou Whitaker is going to have to start hitting. The pitching is looking a lot better and more consistent. They can challenge the Yankees."

Snyder Oilers nipped in Lassie Tournament

Fowler

The Snyder Oilers, Fowler's women's fastpitch softball team came within one base hit of winning the Lansing Lassie Fastpitch Softball Tournament last weekend.

The Oilers started off by defeating North Canton Ohio on Friday by a score of 5-1. Kat Schmitt had a grand slam in the sixth inning to break a 1-1 deadlock. Jo Ellen McGinnitty was the winning pitcher.

In game two for the Oilers, they came away with a 6-5 victory over Determination 20. Amy Snyder laid down a squeeze bunt in the sixth inning to make a winner out of McGinnitty again. Jo Ann McKim picked up a save in relief of McGinnitty.

The Fowler team won its third straight, by defeating the Lansing Lassies 1-0. The game winning RBI was delivered by Schmitt. Once again McGinnitty picked up the win.

On Sunday the Lassies returned the favor as they nipped the Oilers by the same 1-0 score, in 11 innings. McGinnitty suffered the loss when the winning run scored on a sacrifice fly.

The fifth and final game of the tourney was for the championship. The Oilers and Lassies having split a pair of games met in the final.

McKim started for the Oilers, giving up four runs in the first two innings. However her team bounced back with a run making it 4-1.

The Lassies upped their lead to 5-1 with a run in the sixth.

The Oilers came up for their last crack trailing 5-2, determined not to die easily. They scored two runs and had runners at second and third with only one out, but couldn't get that clutch base hit. The base runners were stranded and the Lassies were 5-4 winners.

In 35 innings of work McGinnitty allowed only two runs.

The Oilers resume action on Friday Night with a doubleheader at Wyoming against the Wyoming Royals. Then they return to Lansing for two more games with the Lansing Lassies.

The next home games are Sunday, when the Oilers play a pair against Kalamazoo Janitorial Service. Game time is 2 p.m.

Several area youths are attending Dr. Tucker's Basketball Camp this week at Lansing Everett High School. The camp usually has a few outstanding pro ball players there to help instruct the youths. Magic Johnson is expected to be one of the pros. The camp is a tremendous experience for the participants and one they will never forget.

The Oakland Athletics have fallen on hard times as of late. Manager Billy Martin can't stand to lose. His A's have played better than anyone expected thus far, but it appears as though their bubble has burst. The team has some fine young talent and Martin manages to get the most out of it. But what will happen if they find themselves 20 games under .500 by August? Martin may not want to stick it out in Oakland.

The biggest joke of the whole season thus far is to see Bucky Dent starting in the all star game. I really thought that Robin Yount might get enough votes to beat Dent out. Please, Mr. Commissioner, get the voting out of the fans' hands.

It's the all-star break in the baseball season, and somewhat surprisingly, the Tigers have crept up into contention. This whole thing seemed like it wasn't possible back on June 1. But baseball seasons have a funny way of suddenly changing face.

There seems to be no doubt that Detroit can score enough runs to challenge New York. The whole thing will surely come down to pitching.

Jack Morris has won six straight games while not pitching all that well. He should be better during the second half of the year, and looks like a good bet to win 21 or 22 ball games.

Milt Wilcox has been outstanding, but he probably can't be expected to pitch much better. If Wilcox comes close to repeating his first half performance, Sparky Anderson will be pleased.

Dan Petry has looked brilliant at times. A heavy work load will be placed on his shoulders in the upcoming months though: Petry should get about 16 more starts, of which eight wins are necessary.

A fourth and fifth starter must prevail as doubleheaders and fewer off days appear on the schedule. As of now it looks as though Anderson is hoping Dave Rozema and rookie Bruce Robbins can fill these roles. Dan Schatzeder and Pat Underwood are also possibilities. It doesn't matter which two pitchers fill these spots, only that Anderson gets a pair that he can rely on.

The schedule seems to look good for the Tigers. They play well at home, as evidenced by the American League's best home record thus far. The majority of their remaining contests are at friendly Tiger Stadium.

Seven of the Tigers' final ten games are against the Yankees. Wouldn't it be nice to see Detroit within two or three games as they go into the last week of September.

Grady's football career spans NFL to Bath

By Tim Jeffery
Staff Writer

Bath

Bath High School's football coach has traveled with the National Football League, the Canadian Football League and the World Football League.

Gary Grady

The road from the NFL to Bath High School for Gary Grady has been a long, but interesting trek.

Grady played his college ball at Eastern Michigan University where he lettered as a defensive back. He graduated from EMU in 1969 and decided to give pro ball a shot.

The Miami Dolphins, who were a member of the old AFL at the time, gave Grady a look as a free agent. He appeared in all of the Dolphins' pre-season games.

As the training camp drew to a close the final cuts had to be made. It came down to the three final cuts and Miami decided to place Grady on their taxi squad.

Taxi squads are no longer in existence, but at the time they were used so that a team could keep available extra players in case of injuries to their regulars.

As the season wore on, the Dolphins activated the former EMU standout. He got to appear in two ball games during the regular season.

Grady stated, "The biggest thrill was just to walk out onto the field and realize where I was."

One of the games in which he appeared was against the Chicago Bears. It was in this game that he had his most favorite memories. Being a rookie, Grady found himself placed on the special teams.

While performing on the special teams, he twice made a tackle on Gale Sayers, as Sayers returned punts. This wasn't a bad accomplishment considering that Sayers was one of the greatest running backs of all time.

George Wilson was in his final year as Miami's coach so Grady never got a chance to play under Don Shula. He stayed on at Miami for only one year, before accepting a job as a grad assistant for Eastern Michigan's football team.

He remained at EMU for only one year before accepting a teaching and coaching job at Anchor Bay High School in New Baltimore. However, the urge to play was still with him so he packed his bags once again.

After one year at Anchor Bay it was on to Canada. "Toronto was the first city that I came across which had a team," Grady said. He talked with the Toronto Argonauts' team officials, explaining his credentials.

The Argonauts gave Grady a chance and he made the most of it. He made the squad and played in all of the regular season games. However one of the Canadian League's rules cut his career short in Canada.

It is a league rule that each team can only have 12 American players on its roster. The Argonauts made a coaching change at the end of the season. The new coach decided to make changes in the American players on his roster and Grady was released.

Grady explained that the CFL was not a bed of roses by any means as several players received only $50-$100 per game. All of the practices were held at night in order to let the players hold down another job.

Upon returning to Michigan, Grady took a teaching and coaching job in St. Johns. He coached the freshman football team.

Then the World Football League started up and the Detroit Wheels franchise became Grady's next stop. However, he didn't remain there long.

He played in a few games with the Wheels explaining that the Wheels promised people money and didn't deliver. So he left that situation before it turned to total chaos.

Plymouth Salem High School gave Grady a job as the assistant football coach for their varsity team. He held onto that position for two seasons, before moving on to Waverly.

Grady coached the Waverly junior varsity team before accepting the job at Bath.

The Bath team won six and lost three last season, but was hurt by a key injury to the quarterback. Last year's Bath JV team was undefeated and should provide Grady with some excellent talent.

Having absorbed his share of coaching philosophies, Grady is close to putting everything together in his attempt to win big at Bath.

Stop-smoking clinics show high rate of success

St. Johns

The stop-smoking clinics held in St. Johns during January and May had a combined success rate of 85.7 percent, a recent study showed.

The clinics, offered by the Substance Abuse Control office of the Mid-Michigan District Health Department, each consisted of 12 sessions covering a period of 30 days.

Sessions were held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., using a group approach with a group leader and usually a speaker.

In the January clinic, eight persons began the clinic and seven completed it, with a success rate (30 days without smoking) of 87.5 percent. Of those seven who completed the clinic, five reported they still were not smoking 133 days after the clinic ended.

This was a success rate of 71.4 percent, said Sarah Gorman, the project's consultant.

The two persons who went back to smoking waited 30 and 60 days, respectively before resuming smoking.

Clinics were also held in Alma and Greenville. Of those who could be reached for the follow-up study, almost half felt it harder to stay off than expected. Some reported the desire for a follow-up clinic would be helpful. All said that the clinics helped.

Taking into consideration all of the clinic attendees in St. Johns, Alma and Greenville, 79.4 percent (27 of 34) persons who attended the clinics did not smoke for the length of the clinic or 30 days.

"Yes, it can be done. The success thus far can be attributed first and foremost to the participants in the clinic for the courage to try, and the support they gave the others. The smoking committee and volunteers who assisted and gave of their time were helpful," said Ms. Gorman.

teachers in the state or even the nation," Miss Tranchell said.

The Wickes twins graduated in 1914 with degrees in civil engineering. Howard is secretary of his engineering class and a member of the President's Club at U of M. He attends reunions at Ann Arbor and visits St. Johns when he is in the state.

While students at Michigan, Wickes and his brother spent summer vacations working for Louis Green, Clinton County Drain Commissioner. They made surveys and maps for proposed drainage work.

Five or six years ago

Wickes became interested in constructing his family tree.

"Gordon and I were very careless about keeping records of our own family," he said. "There was some mystery about the Wickes family because we didn't recall about a lot of them."

That prompted a visit to the courthouse, and contact with members of the Clinton County Historical Society and its genealogy enthusiasts. A query in the society's newsletter, "The Clinton Independent" brought several replies. A letter from Wilma Cole asked if he was one of "the Wickes twins?" Her father was Louis Green.

George Osgood sent information about C.P. Wickes who lived with his wife, Palmyra, and adopted daughter, Eva May, in the home that became the historical museum here. Goldie Moore wrote suggestions on finding records for relatives who were members of the Masons and Eastern Star.

Wickes wanted to know about the Polly Jenne family from the Maple Rapids area. She was an aunt of his and he remembered visiting a log house there and seeing his first peacock and guinea hens when he was eight years old. Found for him was Anna Gault, his first cousin and her children who live on the family farm. Thursday, she brought pictures to show him and reported that the log house was gone, replaced long ago by a brick home.

Howard Wickes has traveled far from St. Johns. Business and pleasure have taken him around the world. Today he makes his home in Incline Village, Nevada and winters in LaQuinta, Calif.

A part of his heart remains here in St. Johns, however, and as he kissed his friends farewell he promised to visit again in four years.

Gregory learns survival tactics

Air Force Academy, Colo.

Staying alive in rugged mountain country under emergency conditions can be an ordeal but it can be done if you know how.

Cadet Gary Gregory, son of Mr and Mrs Gerald Gregory of 6387 Sleight Rd., Bath, along with some 65 other teenage members of Civil Air Patrol (CAP) learned how in a rigorous survival course in the Colorado Mountains.

The course began June 16 and ended June 21. The cadets were chosen on the basis of their progress and in CAP's cadet program and their proven leadership qualities.

They also had to be in top physical condition because the course was the same surviving training that is given to Air Force Academy cadets and was supervised by academy instructors.

The CAP cadets spent part of the week in wilderness area, practicing what they learned. This involved learning how to live off the land, studying cross-country navigation and communication, preparing food and learning how to improvise from materials at hand. Food preparation included how to smoke beef and make jerky and dining on rabbits and dandelions.

This course is only one of a number of specialized activities which CAP offers each year to cadet members. Cadet Gregory is a member of CAP's Lansing Cadet Squadron 15-1. He has been affiliated with the non-profit benevolent organization since October of 1977.

CAP is a volunteer civilian auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force and is noted for its search and rescue missions, its emergency and disaster relief activities and for its aerospace education and youth programs.

Gregory's CAP meets at the Civil Air Patrol quonset on the Michigan State University campus next WKAR, every Tuesday evening from 7 to 9:30 p.m. New members are invited to attend.

DeWitt girl studies in Jamaican village

Woburn Lawn, Jamaica

Martha Novak, an Alma College sophomore from DeWitt, was one of 26 Alma students who took part in a three-week Human Development Project during the college's May spring term in the small, rural village of Woburn Lawn, Jamaica. Nestled in the rugged Blue Mountains 26 miles northeast of Kingston, Woburn Lawn has been the site of a three-year development enrichment project initiated by the Institute of Cultural Affairs (ICA), an intra-global research and demonstration group concerned with the human factor in world development. The purpose of Alma's participation in the ICA project at Woburn Lawn was to provide interested students an opportunity to utilize a cross-cultural poverty experience for learning purposes. Among the goals of the program were to sensitize students to cultural differences; to increase their awareness of the social, economic and political problems of third world nations; and to assist students in their consideration of careers in such fields as public and social service, international relations, and the helping professions. Students from Alma worked with community members and the ICA staff on construction projects. In addition, most of the students arranged independent study projects through Alma faculty in their specific areas of interest. A biology major, Miss Novak did an independent study on "Role of Women." She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Novak Jr., 12241 Forest Hill Rd., DeWitt. She is a 1978 graduate of Grand Ledge High School.

HOLD THE PRESSES On May 11, 1854, Ottmar Mergenthaler was born in the tiny hamlet of Hachel, Germany. Originally a watchmaker, Mergenthaler quickly developed an interest in machinery. In 1884 he revolutionized the printing industry with his typesetting machines, which allowed printers to set whole lines rather than a letter at a time.

Synopsis of proceedings of Clinton County Board of Commissioners held June 9, 1980 in Special Session.

Motion carried to hire William LeFevre for Director of Administrative Services. Chairman introduced Mr. LeFevre. Mr. LeFevre stated he is originally from St. Johns. He received his Bachelor's and Master's Degrees from Central Michigan University. He will begin working in Clinton County on June 16. Chairman stated the main purpose of the meeting is to decide what to do about the jail situation. At the July meeting of the Corrections Commission it is going to be recommended that Clinton County be limited to a 72-hour lock up facility. They will probably require a minimum of 60 square feet per person upstairs. There is a problem with the detoxification area, that sometimes this can be waived by taking people who are intoxicated or chemically impaired elsewhere. Department of Corrections does not have a second recommendation or an alternative to renovate the facility. Sheriff Huffnagel stated that no matter what steps we take with the existing structure, it will still be reduced to a 19-bed capacity and we will have to transport prisoners. Chairman stated this could change the facility from a 33-bed to a 19-bed facility. Dorm capacity will go from 6 to 3 persons. Long term persons should be shipped elsewhere. This would be a temporary measure. Motion carried that we have an architect work with the Corrections Department to see what it will take to make the present building comply as a 19-bed facility. If it is within reason we shall go to the Department of Corrections in July with a plan. Chairman will go to the Department of Corrections in July and plead their case. Chairman asked the entire Board to attend the meeting on June 23 with Architect Fred Wigen and the Physical Resources Committee. He also feels we should be prepared with approved plans if Federal Funds should become available. Motion carried to adjourn.

Getting support hard for divorcee

This is the second in a series of articles on child support. Child support is the right of a child to be financially maintained by a parent who no longer has custody of the child. However, sometimes that child is denied that right when the non-custodial parent fails to make his or her child support payments to the Friend of the Court.

By Patrice Hornak
Editor

Clinton County

Kathy has two children. She has been divorced for about a year. Her former husband is behind in his child support payments—to the tune of about $2,000.

Making ends meet in necessary times is hard enough, but when you're trying to raise two children on an income barely large enough for one person, those two ends seem to get farther and farther apart.

Kathy (a fictitious name) is just one of an estimated 18 percent of divorced or separated women who have been awarded child support by the Circuit Court, but who rarely receives that support.

That figure came from a Market Opinion Research survey taken in Michigan in 1978. Of the women awarded child support, one third said they received support on a regular basis, 25 percent said they never were able to receive support, 18 percent said they rarely received support and 21 percent said support was collected sometimes.

These may sound like depressing figures, but they reflect some of the problems incurred when a couple separates or divorces and there are minor children involved.

Overall, the Michigan average in child support collections is about 65 percent, said a 1979 study on the Friend of the Court by the Michigan Women's Commission.

Nationwide, Michigan is known for its greater success in collecting child support payments.

In Clinton County, the statistics are even higher. Richard Dressler from the Clinton County prosecuting attorney's office, said in 1979 Clinton County came in number one in terms of collections per Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) cases, compared to other counties around the state.

Unfortunately, Kathy can't use the statistics to her betterment. She is busy holding down a $6,000-a-year full-time job, caring for her two children, and working hard to balance her budget. She's not on ADC and doesn't want to be.

Arrearages, or the accumulation of child support payments, also falls back into the Circuit Court's lap.

Once the non-custodial parent fails consistently to pay child support, the Friend of the Court sends a letter by ordinary mail demanding payment.

If the non-custodial parent doesn't respond within 10 days after the letter was mailed, the Friend of the Court may petition the court to issue an order to show cause. This order demands the parent who hasn't paid the child support to appear in court and explain why he or she shouldn't be held in contempt of court.

If the non-custodial parent still fails to respond to the Friend of the Court's requests, then an order for the arrest of that parent may be issued. However, it must be noted that the mailing of an order to show cause as well as the order for the arrest are options of the Friend of the Court.

For Kathy, the collection of child support is even more complex. Her husband has moved out of the state and thus the child support orders must go through several departments in several states.

Dressler remarked that URESA cases (Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act cases which involve out-of-state parents) are more difficult to act upon. Likewise, the success rate in collecting child support from an out-of-state parent is much lower than the county's success rate when both parents are residing in the county or at least in the state.

In the meantime, Kathy is living out of her deep freezer and stretching dollars. It's a meager existence, to say the least.

Supposedly, her ex-husband is not working in the other state, and thus he cannot send any child support. Kathy believes he's working someplace, but she has no way to prove it. The Friend of the Court has been notified he doesn't have a job so they can't garnishee his wages.

As the Women's Commission study pointed out, "The responsibility for child support is not a simple one to resolve. Realistically, divorce wreaks financial difficulty on separating parents."
