Construction starts at hospital site

Construction is underway on a two story physicians' office adjacent to Clinton Memorial Hospital that is to provide 16,000 square feet of office space for medical and dental suites.

The new office building is being built by private developers, Clinton Partners, on land being leased from the hospital. The hospital plans to lease about 4,500 square feet of the new building to accommodate some administrative offices and for the pharmacy and cardiopulmonary departments.

Clinton Memorial's administrator, Paul McNamara said the building will provide office space for present medical staff and "for the recruitment of additional physicians."

The facility is to be connected to the second floor of the south wing of the hospital.

raise dollars

In this year's MS Read-athon program, 166 students from Clinton County participated. These students read a total of 2237 books and raised $2,091.45 for multiple sclerosis. Combined with the other 11,000 students involved in Michigan, a total of 170,000 was raised.

Greenwood reunion set

Classmates and teachers of the Greenwood School will hold a picnic reunion, Sunday, June 14 at the Sleepy Hollow Conservation Club on W. Mead Rd., one and a half miles west of US-27.

Special guests will be Geraldine Diller who is coming from Iowa and Bill Cox of St. Johns and their friends are also invited to attend.

The Greenwood school was closed about 12 years ago according to Gail Foerch, publicity chairman. He said the present school building was built in 1907.

Foerch said that "a lot of good people came out of there (the Greenwood School). Sunday will be spent visiting and reminiscing."

Except in Pewamo-Westphalia

Voters reject extra school millage

By SHARON RANDALL

If there's a pattern to voter feelings in Clinton County it's hard to determine in the results of Monday's school elections.

Pewamo-Westphalia passed a package for renewal and extra mills for operating but Ovid-Elsie was turned down on its proposal that lumped together both renewal and additional millage. Voters in Bath, Fowler and St. Johns passed renewal proposals by large numbers but refused requests for additional mills for operating.

Pewamo-Westphalia was most victorious, passing a package for 21.57 mills which includes a 18.5 mills renewal and 2.657 additional mills for operating.

"Of course we're happy," said Superintendent

Roy Thelen, "but very humble." He gave credit for the successful millage request to a citizens committee that campaigned for its passage.

"The committee really worked hard at passing the millage," he said. "This is going to make the year a lot easier."

Last year, voters at the Class C school twice rejected requests for extra millage.

Ovid-Elsie's Board of Education also chose a package, asking for a total of 23 mills which included a 20 mills renewal, plus three additional mills for additional operating and payment on the district's general fund deficit. Voters there, however, rejected the package, with 1,201 no votes to 990, yes.

Where voters had a choice, in St. Johns, Fowler and Bath, they said "no" to additional millage for operating, but passed renewal requests.

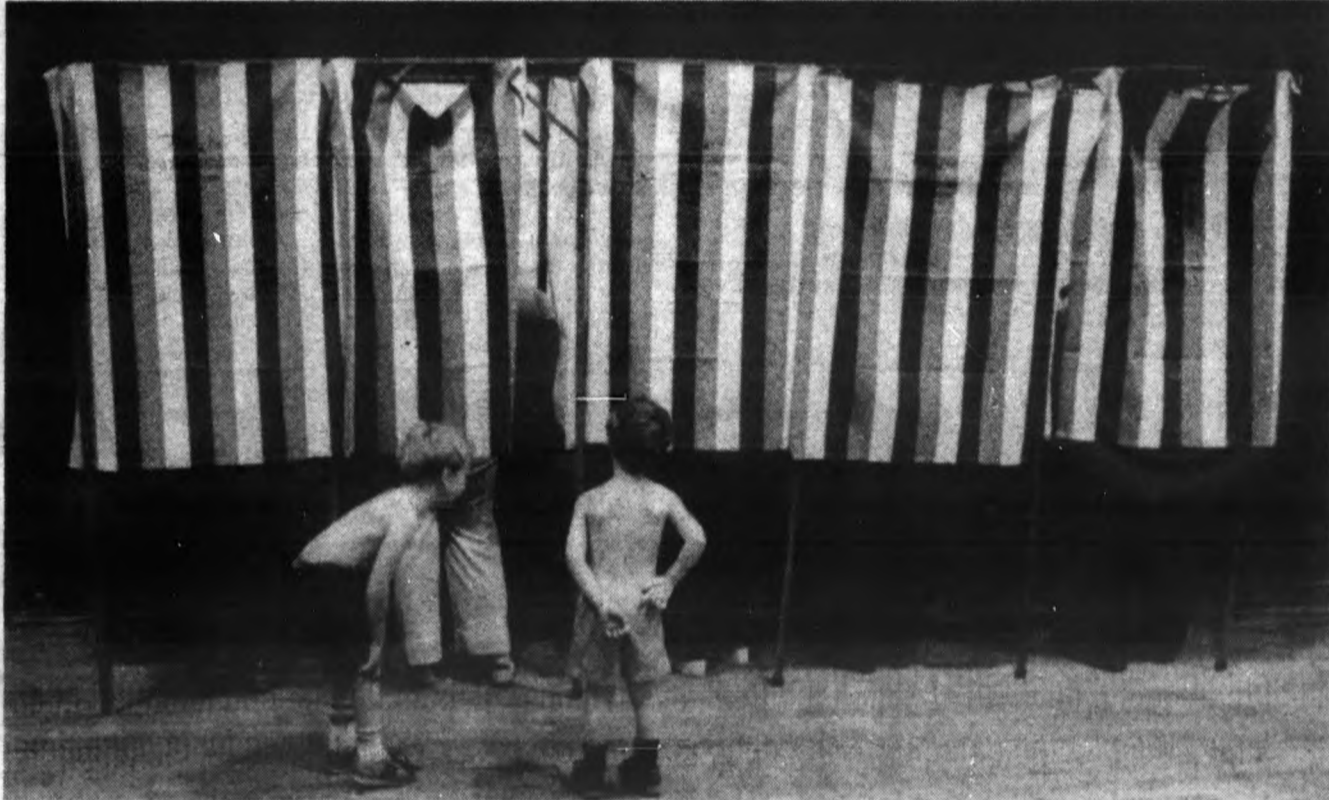

St. Johns overwhelmingly passed the renewal request for 18.25 mills with 2,554 affirmative votes to 765, no. A second proposal, for 3.5 additional mills for operating, lost by only 15 votes, 1,651 to 1,666. The third proposal in St. Johns, 2 mills additional to replace programs cut last year, was turned down, 1,876 to 1,433.

President Ron Huard said Tuesday that the Board of Education would determine at a Wednesday night meeting "where we'll go from here." Disappointed that "at least one of the requests for additional millage didn't pass," Huard said he was encouraged by the fact that the denial was so small in number. "Maybe this is indicative of an awareness by the people, that St. Johns schools do need additional millage," he said. "Personally, I feel that the extreme cuts that will have to be made (with just the renewal) will jeopardize the whole program," he said.

Huard praised the St. Johns citizens' committee saying it showed an "excellent display of cooperative concern." He said "They probably got the message across more effectively than members of the board, the administration, or school personnel, could have."

"They worked extremely hard and spent a great deal of time, effort and money," Huard indicated.

Co-chairman of the committee, Jenny McCampbell, said she hopes the board will ask for additional millage. "It would be a shame to have such drastic changes in our County school board races dominated by newcomers

Newcomers dominated county Board of Education elections, Monday, as voters rejected incumbents in Bath, DeWitt, Fowler, Ovid-Elsie and Pewamo-Westphalia.

Leonard Puetz was returned to his seat on the St. Johns School Board as was Larry Martin in the Ovid-Elsie system, but in nine other slots, voters elected new members to sit on area school boards.

In Bath incumbent Sam Palmatier entered the race late as a write-in candidate. He previously had planned not to run. While 119 ballots were spoiled as voters neglected to make an X after writing in Palmatier's name, Sweet took the election with 516 votes to 214.

DeWitt's voters chose newcomers Thomas Kampinen with 223 votes and Kenneth Price with 175 votes over Clare Boughton, incumbent, who received 104 votes.

The Board of Education at Fowler will have three new members in July when Ruth Ann Feldpausch, John Rademacher and Alan Armbrustmacher take office. Feldpausch was unopposed for a two year post. She received 513 votes. Armbrustmacher was the top vote getter with 476 votes and Rademacher ran second with 434 votes. They will serve four year terms. Incumbent, Dorothy Bertram received 314 votes. She served one term on the board and was it's longest serving member.

Ovid-Elsie voters rejected incumbent Frank Rivest who serves as the president of the present board, in favor of Wanita Byrnes. Larry Martin, a second incumbent was re-elected. Martin received 1,256 votes, Byrnes, 1,227 and Rivest, 912. A fourth candidate, Robert Parker, drew 857 votes.

Pewamo-Westphalia will have two new members, Mary Ann Schmitt and Joan Thelen. They defeated Carl Pfaff for his spot on the board. Louis Pline, did not run.

Mrs. Schmitt received 457 votes, Mrs. Thelen, 372; Pfaff, 344. Also running were Eileen Smith who drew in 243 votes and Diane Hicks who received 162.

In St. Johns voters returned Leonard Puetz to his spot on the board with 1,057 votes. An area farmer, he has served one term. Opposing him were Joianne Tennant who received, 887 votes; Dan Redman, 587 votes, and Roy Ebert, 582 votes.

Many ballots spoiled

Monday's school elections were plagued with large numbers of spoiled ballots, especially in Bath and St. Johns.

In Bath, the problem centered around improper use of write-in votes and more than 100 ballots were spoiled, and therefore not counted.

To write-in a candidate the voter must mark the write-in choice with an X, not merely write the name on the ballot.

Nearly 250 ballots were spoiled in St. Johns when voters marked more than one candidate for the school board post and when they used a check mark, instead of an X, in indicating choices on both the candidates and the millage issues.

"To be valid, a vote on a paper ballot must be marked with an X inside the box. The two lines must cross," said Jane Swanchara, county clerk. She said that every precinct has instructions posted that the voter should read as he enters the voting area. "The voter must take some responsibility in being aware of the proper way to mark the ballot," she said.

Photographer, writer join newspaper staff

New staff members at the Clinton County News and the DeWitt Bath Review are David Olds and Nancy Zeiman. Olds has taken over photography and darkroom duties and Zeiman is assigned to general assignment reporting and lifestyles.

The staff of the Clinton County News and the DeWitt-Bath Review includes two new members who joined the editorial department in the past two months.

David Olds, who has had photographic experience with the Mt. Pleasant "Morning Sun" as well as "Michigan Magazine" and "The Lookout," replaces Bob Stern who went to the Towne Courier in East Lansing.

Nancy Zeiman, joined the local staff for 30 hours a week, keeping her part-time position on the sports desk at the Ingham County News. She replaces Jean Martin who will continue to do stringer work for the Clinton County News and the DeWitt-Bath Review.

Olds, who resides in Lansing, has many photographic awards to his credit including first places in news, sports and features in both the 1977 and 1978 United Press International Photo Contest. He has also placed in contests sponsored by Inland Daily Press Association and the Michigan Press Photographers Association.

He has done an extensive amount of freelance work, both editorial and commercial. His work has appeared in "Michigan History Magazine," "The Detroit News," "The Grand Rapids Press," "The Traverse City Record Eagle," and in papers through the Associated Press.

His work has appeared in shows at Lansing Art Gallery, Creative Arts Gallery, Mt. Pleasant, Blixt Gallery, Ann Arbor, 120 in the Shade, Lansing and at the Newport Art Gallery, Wales.

His photographic education includes a year's study in documentary photography at Newport College, Wales, as well as degrees and courses from Lansing Community College, Michigan State University and Arizona State University.

Along with his duties at the County News and the Review, Olds continues his freelance work and teaches two classes in Photo Journalism at Lansing Community College.

Miss Zeiman graduated from Michigan State University's journalism department last fall. Her specialties there included art history, United States history, economics, philosophy, chemistry, physics and English and American literature.

She began her journalism career as a sports writer for the Ingham County News in 1979, while still a student at MSU. A year later, school reporting and lifestyles were added to her assignments.

She has taken over responsibility of lifestyles for both the local papers, which includes weddings, engagements, anniversaries and social events.

Her major assignment, however, is coverage of the Bath and DeWitt boards of education and the Bath Township Board. She will also join other staff members in feature writing assignments.

Federal-Mogul denied assistance

Federal-Mogul Corp., of St. Johns was among plants recently denied assistance through the Labor Department's trade adjustment assistance program.

To be eligible, a firm must be able to show that its workers have been or may become unemployed or underemployed as a result of increased imports.

The Federal-Mogul request was submitted by UAW Local 925 in June of 1980 in an attempt to obtain cash trade readjustment allowances, training opportunities, and other assistance, for 160 workers laid off last summer.

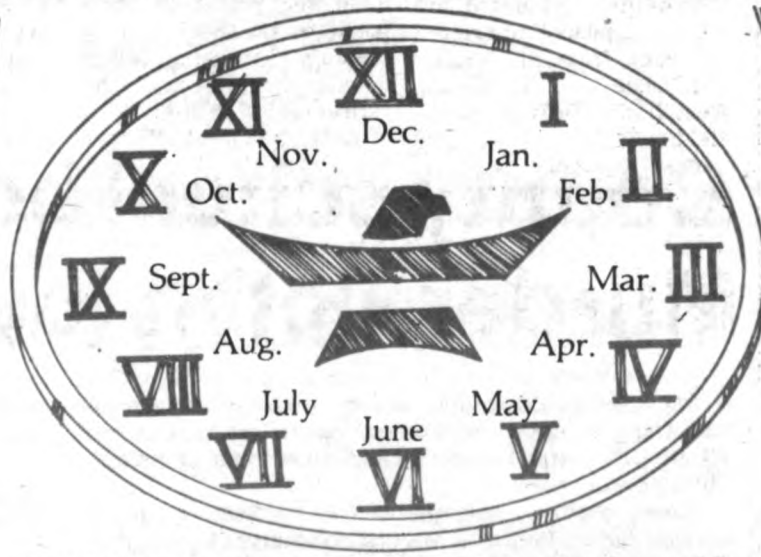

The company has only four men remaining on its lay-off lists, according to Al Bachman, personnel director, who said Federal-Mogul doesn't "expect another lay-off in the near future." The plant is operating at present with 585 employees.

The local Federal-Mogul plant manufactures bushings and washers.

A Labor Department survey of customers of the plant disclosed that "customers either did not import bushings and washers or reduced their purchases of imported bushings and washers during the period under investigation," said a news release from the United States Department of Labor.

Bath woman joins Intermediate board

Linda Klimenko of Bath was elected to a six year term on the Clinton County Intermediate School District Board at a special meeting, June 1. A second member is to be appointed within the next 30 days to fill a post for two years.

CCISD board members are elected by panel of men and women appointed by the local school districts, one each from St. Johns, Ovid-Elsie, Pewamo-Westphalia, DeWitt, Bath and Fowler.

Mrs. Klimenko became the only candidate for two posts, earlier this month, when two other nominees, Judy Kissane and Richard Vitek, withdrew. CCISD Superintendent Larry Schwartzkopf said the withdrawal of the two nominees left a vacancy on the board which is to be filled by appointment within 30 days.

Mrs. Klimenko and the appointee will take their positions on the board at the July 15 meeting, filling vacancies left by the retirement of Walter Kyes of Bath and Gerald Wieber of Fowler. Kyes has served on the board for 34 years and Wieber for eight.

Mrs. Klimenko, is a former Lansing school teacher. She and her husband, Leonard, and their two children have lived in Bath for 13 years. She has also worked as a bookkeeper in her husband's business.

During the last regular monthly meeting of the CCISD board, staff member, Tom Griffin reported on participation and enrollment in the intermediate district's Youth Employment and Training Programs.

Griffin advised the board that in spite of cuts in CETA funding, summer programs, slated to begin June 15, appeared to be safe.

Upcoming activities will include programs in building trades, auto mechanics, and food services as well as work experience programs and employability skills training, he said.

According to Griffin, the building trades participants will tackle projects on the intermediate grounds, in the St. Johns City Park, and in the St. Johns Schools.

"It looks like the kids will get some good training out of this," said Griffin.

Jay Johnson, principal of the shared-time program reported on the progress of several projects. He indicated that building trades had a buyer for the house in Westphalia and that the Taft Road house was nearing completion.

Twenty places in the 1981-82 food services program are still available, but Johnson said that he believed that they might be picked up by St. Johns.

Several other programs were reportedly over-enrolled, but Johnson also said there were still a few openings in the Pewamo-Westphalia building trades program for next fall.

Johnson spoke on the food service students' annual trip to Frankenmuth, June 1. Each year, according to Johnson, the students pool all of the tips they have earned during the school year for the outing.

Paul Tower, assistant superintendent of special education, reported on the progress being made in returning severely multiply impaired students to the county from Beekman Center in Lansing where they attend as tuition students.

Tower indicated that he had recently met with the parents of the returning students and that the parents seemed to have all of their questions answered. Parents, he said, were especially concerned about the shorter school day planned for the summer months.

Tower also explained some of the cuts dictated by the state aid bill. These involved classroom aids for many programs and many services to non-handicapped children. The state would no longer reimburse the intermediate district for these services, he said.

"We do have quite a deficit looming, and all programs have to share in it," Tower concluded.

Murder victim found in County

Police have a several leads but no suspects in the strangulation-slaying of Denise Loretta Bandfield who was abducted from her Ville Montee' apartment on Wednesday, June 3, according to East Lansing Police Chief Robert Foster.

Foster said investigators have received a great number of tips, and task force of about eight East Lansing police officers with help from Clinton County Sheriff's Department and the Michigan State Police are evaluating and prioritizing the information.

Police are also still puzzling over the motive and some details in the kidnap-murder of the 23-year-old woman who worked for an Okemos law firm and is described as a religious person who was well-liked by friends and co-workers.

Bandfield was abducted from her Ville Montee' apartment at 201 Rampart Way just off Abbott Road at about 12:30 a.m. Wednesday. Her partially-clothed body was found at about 9:20 a.m. that morning on the fourth-hole fairway at the Chardell Golf course, 4646 Howe Rd. in Bath, about eight miles north of Abbott Road.

An autopsy report indicated that Bandfield had been beaten about the face and chest and strangled. The report also showed that she had not been sexually molested.

Police would not comment directly on several mysterious aspects of the case or on a motive for the slaying.

Investigators can only speculate on why there were apparently no signs of struggle or forceable entry into the ground-floor apartment, whether the glass sliding doors were locked or not and whether the kidnap-murder was random or whether the victim knew her assailant, Foster said.

Police said witnesses reported seeing Bandfield taken forceably from her apartment and into the vehicle.

Police responded to the call within three minutes, Foster said. At about 1:55 a.m. police received a call from Bandfield's husband David, 25, who reported that his wife was not at home. Bandfield was working late

Clinton nurses settle on 1 year contract

By SUE KILEY WHITE

An agreement was reached by the Clinton Memorial Hospital Nurses Organization and administration on a one-year contract Monday, June 8 just one day before the nurses were scheduled to strike.

Bargaining sessions were held with state and federal mediators with the agreement being reached Monday at 11:05 p.m. The contract was ratified by the nurses organization on Tuesday.

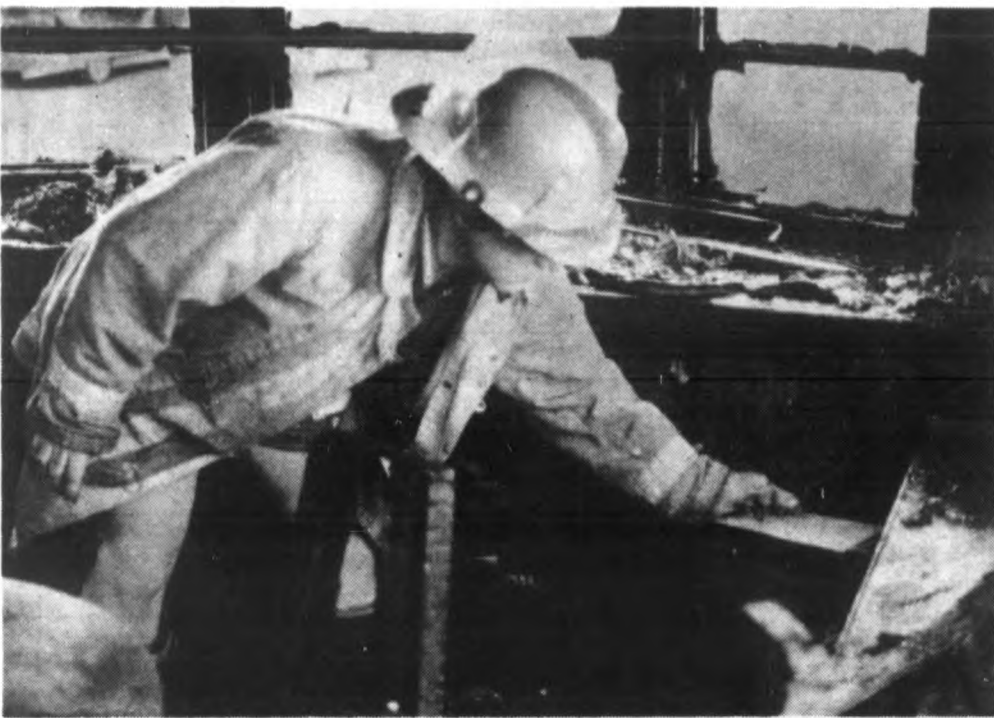

"We are pleased to have a tentative agreement with the nurses," said Paul McNamara, hospital administrator who was unsure Wednesday morning if the nurses had ratified the contract. McNamara had noted there was no disruption of service at the hospital while negotiations were being conducted.

Wages were listed as the biggest point of contention by the nurses who felt their salaries were not on a comparative basis with other nurses in the area. The contract gives the nurses a nine percent increase for those at base starting salary and goes to a 14 percent increase for long term head nurses.

"The employer has been made aware that the nursing staff is no longer content to accept inferior wages and working conditions," commented a CMHNO spokesman. "The nurses in subsequent agreements demand parity with nurses in the area. The employer has also been advised that he must give serious consideration to a responsible relationship with the nurses."

The nurses organization also commented they must take this stand, "not only for themselves but for the patients for the kind of nursing care that will sustain itself at this hospital so we can eliminate the high turnover and strive toward a higher level of patient care."

St. Johns fireman, Craig Knight goes through the debris looking for causes in a fire that swept through a trailer home at Searles Trailer Park. The blaze, which firemen fought for nearly an hour and a half, was called an "electrical fire" by Assistant Chief Richard Cornwell.

Trailer home destroyed

An electrical fire swept through a trailer home at Searles Trailer Park on Parks Road, St. Johns last week doing severe damage. Firemen were called to the blaze at the home of

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gravlyn, in time to save a pet dog, but according to Assistant Chief Richard Cornwell, the kitchen area was completely destroyed. The rest of the trailer suffered heat and smoke damage, the fireman said. Firemen fought the blaze for an hour and 18 minutes. The family was not at home.

Celebration planned

"School Days" will be the theme of a celebration at Sleepy Hollow State Park, June 21 at 1 p.m. The Dennison School will be open, picnic tables will be brought up to the school yard and the area will be mowed so that old time school picnic "games" can be played for a reunion celebration.

Woman charged in arson

A resident at the Clinton County Community Living Center has been charged with two counts of arson in a fire at the center on Tuesday, June 2, district court officials said.

Mary Lou Henning was charged with arson of a dwelling and arson of real property. A preliminary examination has been scheduled for Thursday, June 18.

Terry Spooner, owner of the center, reported the fire and the St. Johns Fire Department and Clinton County Sheriffs Department were dispatched at 5:35 a.m.

A window casing in the dining room was set on fire intentionally, the sheriff's report stated.

The window casing was completely burned and there was smoke damage to the center causing minor damage, fire officials said.

The sheriffs department also is investigating a boating accident which in on Lake Victoria in Victor Township on Sunday afternoon, June 7. Two persons were injured in the accident.

An 18-foot, 205 horse power, speedboat driven by Rick Koester of Laingsburg ran over a 14-foot fiberglass boat driven by Dale Kirby also of Laingsburg, sheriff officials reported. Kirby's boat immediately sank. Koester and his four passengers then rescued Kirby and his daughter, Janet and son, John, and brought them to shore, officials said.

Students help Care Center

Rodney B. Wilson eighth graders donated the proceeds of a special dance to the Clinton Area Care Center this week.

Students Brian O'Connor and Lisa Manke, representing Roy Ebert's science classes, presented $112 to Don Roesner, a representative of the care center board.

The dance is an annual Junior High project for a senior citizen charity. Ebert said the initial thrust of the project is to instigate a contact between students and senior citizens. Former fund raisers provided money for foster care homes in the area and the Senior Drop-in Center.

Roesner said the "sizeable gift" would help the Care Center operate and take care of itself. "This shows a special interest on your part," he told the students. "It is true that young people do care about our elderly."

The Care Center, now under construction is being built through a federal loan but will be operated as a non-profit corporation with a board of directors and a board of trustees.

Dirty returnables cause clean-up problems

By NANCY ZEIMEN

Returnable bottles and cans used as ash trays or those containing liquid have created sanitation problems for stores throughout Michigan since the state's mandatory deposit law was enacted in 1978, said the Michigan Food Dealers Association. That may change if a bill introduced by Rep. Gary Randall (R-Mt. Pleasant) passes.

Area grocers Ross Barber, co-manager of the St. Johns Kroger store, and Kelvin Fizzell, manager of the DeWitt Shop-Rite, both said bottles returned to their stores containing left over pop or beer, cigarette butts, insects and general dirt have caused sanitation problems.

"It requires a lot of policing of areas where the bottles are brought in and where they are stored until the distributor picks them up," said Fizzell. "We are mopping those floors two and three times a day."

Bottles not returned quickly also are a problem to grocers.

"Some people bring them back in garbage bags and the smell just about knocks you over," said Barber.

Kroger has increased its inspection of stores from once per month to every two weeks to keep ahead of potential sanitation problems and Shop-Rite uses a pest control service twice each month to prevent rodent problems.

According to the Michigan Department of Agriculture, pest control services cost Michigan grocers -- and their customers -- in 1980 $2.7 million more than in 1978.

Under current state law, grocers have to redeem all cans and bottles for products sold in their store regardless of the condition in which they are returned. Michigan grocers will have the right to refuse to accept unsanitary bottles and cans under Randall's bill now in the Michigan House Consumers Committee. A senate version of the bill, S.B. 62, was introduced by Sen. Stephen Monsma (D-Grand Rapids) and approved by the Senate Consumer Affairs Committee.

Under H.B. 4687, grocers could refuse to accept a container possessing insects, rodents or other animal substances or filthy materials which could create a health or safety hazard.

"Like anybody else, nobody wants to handle other people's garbage," said Fizzell. "It's not uncommon for people to bring in garbage bags full of unsanitary bottles. It would be much nicer for people to wash the bottles out before bringing them in."

Barber said if the bottles and cans were drained it would be a big help. In order to keep public relations good, Barber said Kroger would probably continue to take unsanitary bottles and cans even if the proposed bill was passed.

"It would be a judgement call," said Barber. "We would take them unless they had live mice in them. There's no sense in us refusing them."

Charles Chandler, executive director of the Michigan Food Dealers Association, said the importance of the bill is it will allow grocers to post a sign saying state law permits them to reject extremely unsanitary bottles and cans.

"If the bill passes, grocers won't refuse dirty returnables except under extreme circumstances" Chandler said. "The grocer is, after all, dependent upon the goodwill of the customer in order to survive."

Both Fizzell and Barber said cooperation from the consumer returning clean, dry cans and bottles would help prevent sanitation problems.

"When we get cooperation," said Fizzell, "we appreciate it."

CRU plans 'summer fun in '81'

There's summer fun in '81 for St. Johns area children through the Community Resource Volunteers program.

"Happenings" include Art in the Park, a bike safety rodeo and bike hikes. A successful computer study, which includes game programming fun for youngsters and an introductory study for adults, will be repeated this summer. Heading it is Randy Willett. He said classes will be set up by age and experience groups so children who took the class last year can advance.

A canoe safety and paddling clinic will be held at Sleepy Hollow Park.

New this year are "Trips and Tours" to be coordinated by Diane Lehnen, home from her first year at Olivet College. Children can sign up for trips to Impressions Five Museum (They're downtown Lansing, now), Abrams Planetarium and the MSU Museum, an outdoor play, "Androcles and the Lion," and the Chippewa Nature Center and Museum at Midland. Director Bill Richards said Diane is "enthused and creative and excited about the trips project."

"There's so many neat places to go to in this area of Michigan," she said. "Kids need some special experiences in the summer and the places we've picked will be fun as well as educational."

She said CRV is also interested in getting ideas from children and parents about what they would like to do. All day bike hikes are being discussed, as well as star watching, fishing, wildlife hikes and map making. "We want to know what the kids want to do," she said.

Diane, who is studying music at Olivet, spent last summer in the Upper Peninsula working for the US Forest Service with the Youth Conservation Corps. She has been involved with the Congregational Youth Group.

Most of the CRV activities are geared to children in grades third and above, Richards said. "If younger children want to be involved, we ask parents to come and stay with them and share the experience," he indicated.

Dates established so far are:

...Art in the Park, June 16 and 18 and June 23, 24 and 25 from 1 to 3 p.m. at the pavilion.

ASK YOUR PHARMACIST

Q. I've just discovered that my youngest daughter has head lice. I'm embarrassed to go to the doctor. Is there something that I can get to get rid of the lice without a prescription?

A. First of all, there is no reason to be embarrassed. Head lice can happen to anyone, clean or dirty, rich or poor. The most important thing to remember is to treat the condition as quickly as possible to prevent spreading the infestation to others.

The best way to do this is to visit your doctor who can prescribe a more effective specific remedy once a definite diagnosis has been made. However, if you still would rather not see a physician there are several products available without a prescription, which are effective in eliminating headlice. These include RID® and A-200®. All personal items, clothing, combs, etc. should be washed or dry-cleaned. In addition, an insecticide spray is available to spray on blankets, upholstery, etc.

Q. I realize that all of the sunscreens are now required to carry a sun protection factor on their labels but what do they really mean?

A. Sun protection factors or SPFs were developed to give the consumer an idea about how much protection was possible from a particular product. The lower numbers, 2-to 4, provide minimal protection, while the higher numbers, 15-20 block out nearly all of the sun's rays. In theory, if you could stay in the sun for 15 minutes without burning and you used a sunscreen with a SPF of 4, you would be able to stay out for 60 minutes (4 x 15). However, like the mileage estimates for new cars, these factors were developed in a laboratory and should be used for comparison only.

Granger landfill added to solid waste plan

By SUE KILEY WHITE

The Clinton County Solid Waste Committee voted last Wednesday to place the Granger Landfill site in Watertown Township and the highly contested proposed 90-acre expansion in its solid waste plan which is expected to be completed next year.

Seven members of the committee voted in favor of placing the landfill in the plan while three voted against, two members were absent and Jerry Granger, owner and operator of Granger's Landfill also a member of the committee abstained. Several people in the audience representing the People's Action League (PAL) spoke out against the landfill and expansion and presented a 120-page document as testimony supporting their convictions.

Duane Ellis, a civil engineer and resident of the landfill area, commented on the concerns and conclusions of the PAL.

"We have a problem right now and it's documented by the DNR (Department of Natural Resources)," he said. "We'll only have more problems with the discharge of heavy metals, exotic chemicals and toxic wastes if the expansion is allowed."

Ellis contends surface water runoff is being discharged into the Openlander Drain which flows into the Looking Glass River. He also expressed concern of contaminants getting into shallow wells in the area.

"There's no monitoring of ground water right now," he said. "We want the county to evaluate the landfill and what's in it. Things could be much worse than we already know."

He added, "We don't want the landfill expansion."

Ken Thompson, another resident, charged that Michigan no controls are being placed on landfills.

"It's impossible to enlarge this site and design it to protect us against these unknown chemical that are being dumped there," he said.

Gordon Duffy, also resident showed the committee documentation of specific problems and fractions which were cited against Granger's Watertown Township landfill over the past several years.

"There continues to be a problem with leachate on blowing papers, he said. "The DNR is aware of these problems, but they still continue."

De Montgomery, of the DNR ground water quality division, explained that the department is doing the normal monitoring program which is done for any landfill in the state.

"You have some valid concerns," said Mrs. Montgomery. "This expansion is seriously being considered."

Members of the Clinton County Solid Waste Committee include: four members of the solid waste industry, Granger, Robert Herrguth, David Harte and Larry Randolph; one member of county government, Robert VanDreisen; one city official, Randy Humphrey, St. Johns city manager who recently resigned; a township representative, Vaughn Montgomery; one regional government official, Virginia Zeeb; two representatives of environmental interests, Tom Smith, Michigan United Conservation Clubs and Stanley Baird and citizens, Paul Baerman, Harvey Darling and Doug Weir.

The members of the committee were appointed by the Clinton County Board of Commissioners. However, the makeup of the committee did not allow for much flexibility according to Tom Warstler, county planner.

"You had to have a certain number of people from each group," said Warstler. "The law states you have to have four people from the solid waste industry...in this county you're pretty limited on who to pick."

Warstler noted the committee has become increasingly active in recent months.

"The solid waste plan has to be completed by July 1, 1982," he said. "That means this committee has to be done by January to allow enough time for public hearings."

The landfill expansion issue will be before the Clinton County Board of Commissioners on June 17 at 7 p.m. at Rodney B. Wilson Junior High School.

Our Opinion

Outside waste not welcome here

Is Clinton County going to become known as the tri-county's dumping grounds?

This question is being asked around the county following a request by Jerry Granger, a Lansing developer to add a 90-acre expansion to his Watertown Township landfill site on Grand River Avenue and his proposal to buy land on Coleman Road in DeWitt Township to establish yet another landfill.

What makes Clinton County such a desirable area for other people's trash?

Presently, Clinton County has two landfills, both owned by Granger. If the deal with the City of Lansing goes through, a third landfill will be established in DeWitt Township.

We feel three landfills in one county is too many. We would even go as far to say two landfills are too much, especially, since Clinton County only contributes 12 percent of the refuse being hauled into the Watertown Township site.

The Watertown Township landfill, with the proposed expansion, has a 20-year estimated capacity. However, if only Clinton County used this landfill it could last 200 years.

"Landfills go beyond political boundaries," indicated Tom Warstler, county planner. "I guess two reasons why Clinton County is desirable for landfills is its proximity to a large municipality and the availability of large tracts of land."

We question the use of Clinton County property for the waste and problems of other municipalities. Why should our residents be afraid that toxic wastes are being disposed of in their backyards when Clinton County has few, if any businesses generating measurable amounts of toxic substances?

Each county should be responsible for its own wastes. Industries who generate these toxic materials should be required to take care of it in the county in which they pay taxes and create jobs. They should be required to dispose of the wastes...on their own land, in their own county.

Hopefully, Clinton County officials will recognize these questions and listen to what the people are saying. We don't want other people's garbage in our backyards.

Senior Citizens Update

I recently read an article stating that 23 percent of our population packs up and moves on to new jobs and new lives, unaware of what they have lost.

What is missing is the closeness of family relations. The more we move the more we lose contact with grandparents and grandchildren, nephews and nieces, aunts, uncles, and cousins who all at once live far away.

Old fashioned letter writing has almost disappeared because of our TV oriented age. We regret losing our close contact but it gradually fades.

When have you last heard from an aunt in California, a grandson in Florida? A few scratched notes on a Christmas card, or perhaps a birth announcement, a graduation, marriage or death notice, have become the only written correspondence.

According to a recent survey by the U.S. Post office, less than six percent of the 105 billion pieces of mail delivered yearly is personal letters. The remainder 94 percent is business, junk or promotional mail.

It is said that the extended family unit here in the United States is practically an endangered species in terms of closeness and communication, and, according to Milton Farberman, a Pennsylvania sociologist, unless something is done about it, these families will soon exist in name only.

Many families take time out to write letters and keep in close contact with relatives, but more, I'm afraid, do not.

It is suggested that not only do we improve our own correspondence, but that we start a newsletter of some

"Jaws" watching for fishing pole thief

To the editor:

To the persons who stole our grandson's fishing gear from our pond: there are those who steal candy from babies, then there are those who take fishing equipment from an 11-year-old boy. Did you have to take the fishing worms he so carefully dug up, too?

We're the retired grandparents of this boy who is living with us, and is from a less-than-ideal background. We're trying to provide a wholesome atmosphere, not the least of which, is to foster his fishing interest.

It's difficult to explain him there are people of your low caliber in the world. It will certainly undermine the confidence he has acquired.

The next time you cast that fishing line, we hope you meet up with "Jaws" — you deserve each other.

kind that would go to all family members, with everyone contributing. Some large families even elect a so-called editor who gathers the news and sends it out to the others.

Another way is to have a "round robin" letter with each family adding to what has been written before.

It is important to know how Johnny is doing in school, or how well Jeff performed at the track meet, or that Dad is having ear trouble.

To really keep close to someone, the little details of family life are important to share.

Think about this. Are you in this communication gap? It doesn't take that much time to write a letter, it's just starting it that we don't seem to like.

So.....until next time.

Personality Profile

Walt Kyes - dedicated to the handicapped

By SUE KILEY WHITE

For 34 years Walt Kyes has known what the the third Monday of every month would bring...an Intermediate School Board meeting. However, June 15 will mark Walt's retirement and so ends the term of one dedicated man.

Kyes was elected to the first Intermediate Board back in August of 1947 following a mandate by the state to establish a school board of this type.

"The board was created so that property could be transferred from one district to another," said the spritely old man. "It was getting nearly impossible to get property back then because of political ties to the land."

In the early years of the board the main order of business was organizing and enlarging the school district, which in other words meant consolidation. It wasn't until after another law was passed that the Intermediate Board took on the job of trying to help the handicapped.

"After we raised a small mileage, we had more money than we knew what to do with," he said. "In the 1950's that's when we had rooms in all the high schools for the handicapped."

Another first for the district through the help of the Intermediate Board was the hiring of remedial reading teachers.

"In the early days some of the schools didn't want to admit that they had handicapped children," said Kyes. "This made things more complicated."

Because of his efforts for trying to help special children, the first school for the handicapped in the county was named after him.

"Usually, something's named for you after you die," said Kyes with a laugh.

On a more serious note the father of three children and the grandfather of 13 commented he felt good about being able to help others.

"Perhaps my efforts in trying to help the handicapped have been rewarded," he said.

Kyes noted the handicapped programs began to grow in the 1960's and 1970's with better facilities and special transportation for the handicapped. In the beginning however, the state funded a majority of the programs. Today, Kyes is seeing a reversal in this trend.

"Now we are seeing more of our handicapped children coming back to this county to learn rather than going to the Beekman Center or Walnut School," he said. "We've even put an addition onto the Walter Kyes School."

Kyes said now that the children are back in Clinton County, the parents should have a feeling of being able to contribute to their child's education.

"I really feel it was a proper move," he said. "It will not only be better for the children, but the costs for the county should be less also."

Born Oct. 8, 1906 in DeWitt Township, Kyes attended the Love School, which was a one-room school house and both DeWitt and Bath High Schools.

He worked on the home farm, as he called it for 23 years, was a teacher in the Hartland School District for four years, operated the Bath Hillcrest Poultry Farm and Hatchery for 24 years and then retired from the Michigan State Department of Highways at the age of 70.

Kyes chose not to run for the Intermediate Board primarily because after serving another six year term he would be 81-years-old.

"Perhaps, I'm becoming part of the handicap," he said with a grin. "I don't hear as good as I used to and sometimes I miss some of the fundamental issues. I guess I just feel fortunate to serve for as long as I have."

Kyes also has the distinction of being one of the oldest, if not the oldest board member in the state.

"In 34 years I've only missed two meetings," he said. "One time I got stuck in an April snowstorm and the other time I had the flu."

The longtime resident of Clinton County says he's had his "nose in just about everything" over the past 74 years.

He has been a football coach, scout master, summer recreation director, school bus driver, member of the local school board, on the township board of review, a scouter, a fire chief, on the Bath Township Planning Commission and secretary and president of the Alert Fireman's Association.

"I'm perfectly happy to live right here," he commented. "I've had enough to keep me busy over the years."

Walt and his wife, the former Alice Webster live on a 185 acre farm in Bath Township. It was the home of Alice's parents.

Kyes has a lot of good things to say about the one room school house which he attended many years ago.

"It was a great learning process," he said. "You learned from the older ones and you helped with the younger ones. This kind of learning might be outdated by today's standards though."

Due to the economy Kyes feels all kinds of education is going to suffer in the next few years. He commented that maybe school districts will return to teaching the basics.

"I guess you could say I learned from everybody," he said. "I can only hope that some of it rubs off on somebody else."

DeWitt hits roadblock in regional

By TIM JEFFERY

"It just wasn't meant to be", were the words Frank Deak used to describe what happened to his DeWitt Baseball Team in Saturday's regional game at Grandville Calvin Christain.

Deak saw his Panthers fall behind 4-0 in the first inning, then battle back to claim a 5-4 lead, but finally lose 6-5 in extra innings.

He watched a 12-12 Montague ball club piece together a couple of 'seeing-eye' hits in the drastic first inning and then in the seventh, saw Brad Irely bounce one through the middle to send it into the eighth tied at 5-5.

Indeed, it wasn't meant to be for the Panthers. They missed out in the first, leaving the bases loaded when a run or two could've set the game's tone.

They missed out in the top of the eighth as well. Kevin Slider had a base hit, but was thrown out stealing, and as fate would have it, was nowhere to be found when Tom Deak smashed a two-out double off the fence in right-center.

Deak was left stranded, the eighth man left on by DeWitt and Lyle Russell, won it for himself in the bottom of inning number eight.

Scott Kinney came on to work the extra stanza, in relief of starter Doug Noch. Kinney walked the leadoff man, Ken Dubois and after a sacrifice bunt, Russell delivered a base hit to score the run.

The hit, capped a busy afternoon for Russell. He pitched eight innings, allowing eight hits while recording the same number of strikeouts. He also had three runs batted in and two hits.

Russell's first hit came with two outs in the opening inning. After Ron Dubois and his brother Ken had each singled in runs, Russell ripped a two-base hit to drive in two more.

Slider and Tom Deak both drew free passes in the second infing and Slider eventually scored on a fielder's choice off the bat of Tim Deak, making it 4-1.

The score remained the same until DeWitt erupted for a pair after two were out, in the top of the fourth. Tom Deak singled and stole second, then his brother Tim walked. Both moved up a base on a passed ball and scored when Kinney came through with a clutch single. DeWitt finally evened the score in the fifth when Mark White singled, moved over to second on a sacrifice by Noch and scored on a triple by Slider.

Freshman Tom Deak, enjoying the best game of his varsity career, doubled to set up the go-ahead run for DeWitt in the sixth. A wild pitch allowed him to take third and Kinney laid down a squeeze bunt to score him.

Noch set down Montague again in the sixth and appeared to be heading for a win, but C. J. Mikkelsen opened the seventh with a double and gave his team new life when he scored on the big two-out single by Irely.

The hit totals were even at eight apiece for the contest. Montague committed the game's only error.

Tom Deak finished thday with a single, two doubles and a walk, while Slider went two for three. Russell was Montague's only player with more than one hit.

Coach Deak was not disappointed with his team's performance, just the lack of getting a break. "It wasn't that we played poorly. We hit alot of balls hard, but they were right at people," he said.

Morley-Stanwood won the regional by beating Montague, later in the day.

DeWitt closed out its season with a 26-7 record.

Telling it like it is

By TIM JEFFERY

Friday evening at the Joe Louis Arena, Larry Holmes puts his heavyweight boxing crown on the line against former champ Leon Spinks. Holmes has had little difficulty in defending his title in the past and once again is a heavy favorite.

Do you think Spinks can give Holmes some trouble or possibly even pull off an upset and win the fight?

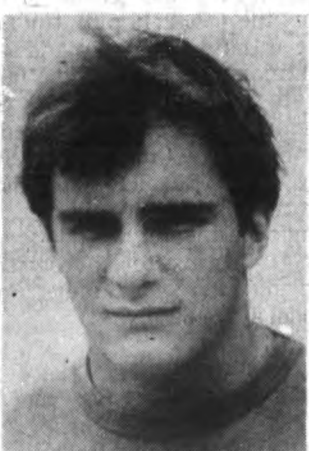

Joe Neveau

Dave Mageli

Larry Simmon

Cal Winsor

Joe Neveau of DeWitt: No. Spinks is doped up too bad. I don't think he'll give Holmes a bit of trouble.

Alan Harr of St. Johns: I don't think so. Spinks reached his peak when he beat Ali. He's on his way down now.

Dave Mageli of Elsie: No. That Spinks is just uncoordinated and slow. If Holmes still has the same kind've talent he's shown before, he won't have any trouble.

Cal Winsor of St. Johns: I think Holmes will take care of Spinks. I wouldn't say he won't have any problems, but Holmes will do it and I don't think it will go the distance.

Larry Simmon of Lansing: Yes I do. He's a sleeper. He's up and down. He has his strong days and his bad days. It'll depend alot on his personal life.

Keith Weber of Fowler: I don't think Spinks has a chance. Holmes is just a good fighter.

One Man's Views

By Tim Jeffery

Looking at the all-league list for the Capital Circuit, one must wonder how DeWitt failed to land an infilder on the first team. The Panthers were easily the best team in the league and should've been properly compensated. Of course, there are always going to be people upset with the all-league picks and I'll express more on the subject next week....It's a shame Waverly High School elected to stay within the school district, instead of hiring Gary Grady for the head football coaching job, but then Joe Gonzales, the St. Johns mentor, kiddingly breathed a sigh of relief. Waverly and St. Johns meet in the second game of the 1981 season and Gonzales would've been facing a coach who knew his entire Redwing offense, had Grady been hired. Grady coached at St. Johns prior to taking the Bath job.

With so few teaching positions open, schools needing new coaches are often forced to stay within the district, which makes it tough on Grady and others in his position. It's obvious, a guy who spent time in the NFL, CFL and WFL (World Football League) can help a high school program, but Grady still waits.

Mark Mohre, DeWitt's standout center during the past two basketball seasons, will play ball at Albion College. Another fine player from the area, Dave Valkanoff of Okemos, will also attend Albion....Do you realize who the most valuable player in the American League has been thus far? How about Dave Winfield, the Yankees multi-million dollar man. He's done everything that could possibly be expected of him. But, see what happens now that he's in the Big Apple. Winfield did the same things year after year in San Diego, but never got the recognition he'll get now.

Larry Holmes better not take Leon Spinks too lightly Friday night. When Spinks comes to fight, he can handle anybody. He seems to be taking this fight quite seriously and should be in excellent shape. I like Holmes to win in a decision, bqt it'll be much closer than the champ would like

CMAC honors baseball elite

The Central Michigan Athletic Conference baseball title went to Fowler, but it was Pewamo-Westphalia and Laingsburg dominating the first team all-conference selections which were recently released.

Both the Pirates and Wolfpack landed three players apiece, while Fowler and Bellevue each had two.

Catcher Mike Pohl, infilder Brian Stump and outfielder Guy Walter, all seniors, represent P-W on the honor squad.

Tom Weber, as an infilder and Lloyd Feldpausch as an outfielder, were the Fowler first team selections. Feldpausch was denied a berth on last year's CMAC first-team, despite being named to the Class D all-state team, however coaches around the loop in 1981 couldn't overlook Feldpausch's potent bat.

Infilder Mike Putnam, outfielder Steve Wickham and pitcher Doug Hurst, make up the trio of Laingsburg players landing first team accolades.

Pitcher Brian Wine and designated hitter Lynn Denton, both of Bellevue and Eric Binkowski, an infilder from Olivet, round out the team.

Three Fowler players were tabbed as second-teamers. They were Ron Simon, a pitcher, Doug Cook, an infilder and Steve Schneider, also an infilder.

Outfielder Dave Smith of P-W was a second-team selection as well.

Rojas and Slamka tabbed

MMB lists all-conference choices

Rod Rojas and Kurt Slamka represent St. Johns on the recently released Mid Michigan B All-Conference Baseball Team.

Chesaning, the conference champions, Ionia, the runners-up in the standings and Corunna, the basement team with a 2-6 mark, all landed three players on the first team. St. Johns had the two and Alma was represented by one.

Rojas was selected as a first team pitcher, repeating the honor he won last year as a sophomore. In conference play during the 1981 season, the Redwing left hander worked 28 innings, compiling a 2-2 record, with a fine 2.20 earned run average. He also struck out 47 batters in his 28 innings.

Slamka, a senior catcher, enjoyed a good year with the bat, as indicated by a .318 mark in the conference. He also impressed coaches with his defensive skills behind home plate.

Infielders Bobby Kukulis and Rick Gross, and designated hitter Jeff Wesley, made up the trio of Chesaning players chosen. Kukulis hit .339 and Gross hit .318 and both are juniors which means Chesaning should have a strong nucleus of players to build around next year.

Corunna landed infielders Terry Stanton and Steve Fredricks and outfielder Scott Schooley.

Ionia's players chosen were Vaughn Mayle, a pitcher, Chris Swinehart, an infilder and Tab Waterman, an outfielder.

Alma's Dave Catlin, a .579 hitter in the conference, completes the squad.

Eight players were chosen on the second-team. They were Bob Stephenson, Jim Dart and Jeff Watson of Alma, Ron Streeter and Tom Harris of Chesaning, Chuck Church and Phil Church of Corunna and Grep Patrick of Ionia.

Explore all methods before preserving foods at home

By CAROL BUTLER
Extension Home Economist

Many families are trying to stretch their food dollars by preserving vegetables and fruits from home gardens, pick-your-own farms, roadside stands and farm markets. But which food preservation method — canning, freezing or drying — best suits each family's needs?

A study conducted recently at Texas A and M University may help families decide. The researchers pressure canned, froze and dried carrots, zucchini and summer squash, following procedures recommended by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. They measured the amount of energy used by each preservation method and the amounts of vitamins retained in the processed foods.

Canning uses a surface burner operating for a couple of hours to turn our seven quarts of food that can be stored on a shelf for months. Therefore, canning used the least energy.

Using an electric oven for dehydration required about five times more electricity than canning did. Drying foods in a commercially available dehydrator used 1.6 to 2.1 times more electricity than canning to produce a shelf-stable product.

Most electric dehydrators draw between 600 and 1,000 watts of electricity. Compared to canning times, drying times are long — about 10 hours for vegetables and up to 48 hours for juicy fruits.

Keeping vegetables in the freezer for three months used 1.8 to 2.3 times more electricity than canning, and keeping vegetables frozen for six months used 3.1 to 3.9 times more electricity than canning. Twelve months of freezer storage required 5.6 to 7.1 times as much energy as canning.

As long as a product is kept frozen, the energy cost continues to mount. Keep your freezer full. With a half-empty freezer, the energy cost per pound of food doubles.

Vitamins A and C, the key nutrients in vegetables and fruits, were found to be well retained in both canned and frozen vegetables. However, about 40 percent of the vitamin C in the canned vegetables was in the liquid portion, which is often discarded rather than eaten.

Nearly all vitamin C was lost during drying. This finding led the A and M researchers to conclude that "a vegetable should not be dehydrated if it is expected to supply ascorbic acid (vitamin C) in the diet, since most of the vitamin is lost during the dehydration process."

Though vitamin A survived the drying process, nearly half of the vitamin A in dehydrated vegetables was lost after six months of storage. In contrast, frozen and canned vegetables retained vitamin A well during storage.

So, how do canning, freezing and drying compare?

Canning is the most energy-efficient food preservation method and offers good vitamin retention. Freezing also offers good nutrient retention, but the energy cost is high.

Only drying has little to recommend it. Drying uses more energy than canning to produce a shelf-stable product, and vitamin losses are high. Before settling on a food preservation method, consider the equipment needed, the amount of time you have and suit the preservation method to the product. Tomatoes, fruits and berries — with the exception of strawberries — make good canned products. Broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cauliflower and edible podded peas are best frozen. Other vegetables may be successfully frozen or canned.

Finally, be sure to take you family's food preferences into account.

Area school bus drivers advance to state contest

Two Clinton County school bus drivers will compete against 29 other drivers in the fourth annual Michigan Championship School Bus Rodeo, Saturday, June 13 in Lansing.

Sandy Conklin of Elsie, a driver in the Ovid-Elsie School District and Pat Warner of DeWitt, a driver for St. Johns Schools, were among the top finishers in a series of 13 regional rodeos held throughout the state.

The rodeos are conducted jointly by the Automobile Club of Michigan and the Michigan Association for Pupil Transportation. They test a driver's ability in handling different situations along a prescribed course. Drivers are also given a written test of school bus rules and regulations, and they are judged on a physical and verbal inspection of a standard bus.

Mrs. Conklin, took first place in the regional rodeo held in St. Johns in May. She has been driving a bus for nine years. She was a runner-up in last year's regional rodeo.

Trophies will be awarded to the top three drivers in the state contest at a 12:30 p.m. luncheon following the competition at Lansing's Harry Hill High School, 5815 Wise Rd. The state champion will advance to the national finals in Boston, July 20 and 21.

Chamber notes

By Jody Smith

Industrial Hostage Act? Is this what Michigan needs? Not according to the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce. The Industrial Hostage Act, House Bill Number 4330, is now out of committee and under consideration by the House of Representatives and if it is passed things in Michigan could change radically.

A common complaint about Michigan is that its economy is based on industry and yet business and industry are at a disadvantage due to insurance and tax regulations. The State Chamber says House Bill 4330 will make things that much worse and in testifying before the House Labor Committee it opposed the bill in strong language.

The bill is opposed as being harmful to small business, restrictive to employers and a hindrance to Michigan's efforts to attract new business, develop new jobs and help its ailing economy.

What exactly is the impact of H.B. 4330? Very simply, it applies to all Michigan businesses employing 100 people who have been in business for five years and would demand that before an employer could close, relocate or reduce operations he or she would have to give a one year's notice to all employees organizations, the Department of Labor and the local municipality. Ninety days after giving notice the employer would need to submit an economic impact statement to these same agencies. Failure to do this could result in civil action. Employers who do not comply would provide a lump sum as severance payment to each employee with one year's service. This amount must equal the average wage multiplied by the number of years of employment.

Employers would also be forced to provide employees with 12 months of paid health insurance and up to two weeks of leave time to find a new job.

If you were an employer thinking of moving to a new state - would such a Bill make Michigan attractive?

It is to the credit of Rep. Perry Bullard - D. of Ann Arbor - that he can see that employees who are caught in this situation need relief. It also underlines the fact that the entire state is affected by the plan closings and that available jobs are necessary for a healthy state economy.

The Michigan State Chamber sees this Bill as making employers responsible for economic conditions beyond their control and also puts them at a competitive disadvantage with similar ongoing businesses. After all, how would a consumer feel about making a major purchase from a company that would be leaving within a year?

The State Chamber says the Bill deals with the effects of the problems in our state and would restrict plant openings and potential investors to be wary of Michigan in the future.

Whether you are for this Bill or against it, take the time to contact your legislator and Governor Milliken and let them know the stand you take on this issue. It will affect everyone in this state one way or another.

(Jody Smith, manager of the St. Johns Chamber of Commerce, writes this weekly column about what is happening in the business and community sectors of St. Johns.)

Police "went into high gear" after receiving the calls, Foster said, and began checking the residence, nearby fields and the parking lot, but turned up no evidence at that time. Later that night, a Lansing police helicopter was called in to search the area. Bandfield's body was found later that morning by golf course employees.

Thinking ahead

With this year's crop of strawberries ripening on the vine and picking to start June 15, area fruit farmers are still thinking ahead to next year. George Wizner of the Round Lake Fruit Farm on Round Lake Road plants next year's crop of "Red Chief" strawberries with helpers, Kathy Killiman, left and Brandy Foster.

Strawberries start the "pick-your-own" circuit at Michigan's many fruit farms. A handy guide to these farms and roadside markets, "Country Carousel" is available from State Senator Richard Allen at his office: P.O. Box 30036, State Capitol, Lansing, Mi. 48909.

Parent training designed to prevent substance abuse by young people

An eight week parent-family training project which attempts to teach parents how to stop substance abuse by their children before it starts, gets underway in St. Johns next week.

The classes, being offered through the County Substance Abuse Center, are underwritten by a state grant. Tom Dietiker of the Substance Abuse Center's staff is in charge of the project which is attempting to reach county residents.

Dietiker calls his program S.T.R.A.T.E., short for "Systems to Reach and Teach Everyone about Substance Abuse Prevention." The first series starts Tuesday, June 16 at Teresa Merrill Community Education building, in St. Johns at 7 p.m. Classes meet once a week for eight weeks and are two hours long. Other sessions will eventually be held at other locations around the county.

Dietiker said parenting skills learned in the program can be applied to all kinds of situations and stressed that parents of younger children are encouraged to attend. "We hope to reach the parents of younger children," he explained. "These skills are more effective the earlier you start using them. They are skills that a family builds together over a period of time."

Participants will be exposed to information and techniques in parenting that include listening skills, interpreting what your child is saying, responding to your child's questions, resolving conflicts within the family and learning how to look ahead and make plans to handle problems before they happen. Dietiker said the use of rules and family meetings will also be discussed and participants will have a chance to role play and "practice ways of dealing with their kids."

He said parents will be shown ways to speak to their children and be more sure about what they are saying.

"We will discuss ways to set up rules so they have more of a chance of succeeding as rules," he explained. Discipline is also on the program list and it will be discussed in general and explored for meaning.

"Our goal is to help people raise their kids to be responsible self-sustaining and happy people who can make decisions about hard issues like substance abuse," he said.

"Parents have a greater influence on their kids than anyone else," Dietiker said, "But just because they have this tremendous influence, that doesn't necessarily make them responsible for what their children do."

We are going to explore what children learn while watching these very important people in their lives. We are going to look at the messages kids get."

The sessions will cover a general look at society's values and the parent's ideas and views and substance use, like nicotine, caffeine and prescription medicines.

Dietiker, who recently joined the Substance Abuse Center staff, recently completed graduate work. He has worked in Saginaw County for both the public health and the community mental health departments.

Parents can learn more about the class beginning June 16 by calling the Clinton County Substance Abuse Center, 224-6228.
