Drivers obey seat belt law

By DAVE HOLZMAN
Staff Writer

Motorists in Clinton County have generally been obeying Michigan's new seat belt law since a quick check of local police agencies show only six citations in the law's first 10 days of existence.

DeWitt Township Police recorded five of the six infractions including the county's first citation July 2. The law took effect July 1 and requires all front seat passengers to buckle up or else face a $10 fine. A motorist can not be pulled over solely for not wearing a seat belt.

The first ticket in the county went to an Okemos man on the second day of the new law when he was pulled over in mid-afternoon for operating a vehicle while intoxicated.

The next morning, a Laingsburg man was pulled over for speeding on Chandler Rd. in DeWitt Township and then was cited for disobeying the seat belt law. On July 4, a Lansing man was stopped on Clark Rd. in the township because of a loud muffler. A front seat passenger in that vehicle was then given a ticket for not wearing a seat belt.

The Clinton County Sheriff's Department wrote up Clinton Harry Wells of Grand Ledge after a tire exploded on his car and he crashed into a tree on Wright Rd. near Herbison. Later that day, DeWitt Township Police stopped a St. Johns male on U.S. 27 for speeding and issued him a ticket for non-compliance.

On July 10, an East Lansing woman — a passenger in the vehicle — was cited when the car was pulled over on U.S. 27.

Police in DeWitt, Bath, and St. Johns had not issued any tickets in the first 10 days. Information from other departments was unavailable.

Most officials said they were temporarily issuing verbal warnings to offenders. However, DeWitt Police Chief Wendell Myers says his force would ticket all offenders if there were any.

"We will issue tickets if we find them not strapped in," he warned.

New highway run opens for travelers

Motorists going from Clinton County into Eaton County will be welcomed by a shorter route and a new stretch of highway due to be opened Thursday.

A 7.7 mile stretch of U.S. 27 will open at the southern end of Clinton County, just North of Lansing, and will connect with I-96 on the West side of Lansing. In the future, that stretch of highway will become part of I-69 which extends into Indiana.

The highway extension cost $25.4 million to build. The federal government paid for 90 percent of the project while the state chipped in the remaining 10 percent. In addition, $4.7 million was spent to widen I-96 South of the new freeway and to upgrade bridges in anticipation of higher traffic volume.

A public ceremony to open the new freeway will take place Thursday, at 10:30 a.m. at the DeWitt Rd. interchange. Former DeWitt Mayor Raymond O. DeWitt will be the master of ceremonies. Other guests include State Transportation Director James Pitz; William Marshall, chairman of the State Transportation Commission; State Senator Alan Cropsey (R-DeWitt); David A. Merchant, Michigan Division Administrator of the Federal Highway Administration; Roger Overway, chairman of the Clinton County Board of Commissioners.

Woman is hurt in car accident

By DAVE HOLZMAN
Staff Writer

A St. Johns woman, with minor injuries from a car accident, was treated and released from Clinton Memorial Hospital Wednesday morning after she was broad-sided by a man pulling out of the Kentucky Fried Chicken on U.S. 27.

Ruth Burk, 28, of 408 S. Kibbee was driving her 1984 Buick southbound on U.S. 27 when Donald Schirmer, 32, of 501 N. Clinton tried to cross the highway and, according to St. Johns police officer Steve Lehman, who was on the scene, "he didn't even see her."

Burk was taken, by ambulance, to CMH where she was treated and released for minor cuts and bruises soon after. Lehman says Burk banged her head on the windshield and her knees crashed into the steering wheel.

"She was pretty lucky," he added. It is unknown if she was wearing a seat belt.

Both cars were towed away from the scene. Schirmer, who was driving a 1983 Jeep Scrambler, was ticketed for not yielding the right of way.

Increased care

June 24 marked the beginning of expanded nursing home service for Clinton County.

Due to increased demand for nursing beds, Clinton Area Care Center has applied for and received a new license for Hazel I. Findlay Country Manor. The Home for the Aged beds, for which there has been only limited demand, have been converted to intermediate care nursing beds.

The agency now has 108 State licensed and Medicaid Certified Nursing beds. This change will require expansion of the nursed aides and licensed nurse staff, and will further ensure continued employment for this group, as well as high level care for the elderly of this area.

Inmate charged with taking marijuana into Clinton jail

POLICE BRIEFS:

A Lansing man, who was previously sentenced to spend his weekends in the Clinton County Jail, has been arraigned in Clinton County District Court on possession of marijuana.

According to the county prosecutor's office, 25-year-old Leslie Jay Pumfrey was caught with a substance that looked like marijuana as he arrived at the jail July 5 as part of his weekly sentence. He has pled not guilty and was released on his personal recognizance. He awaits a pretrial July 19.

He was originally sentenced Jan. 7 to serve 90 days in the county jail — to be served on 45 consecutive weekends — for concealing and receiving stolen property. He was arrested again on April 18 for possessing stolen property (a Corvette valued at $10,000). He awaits trial on that charge.

Police were called to break up a fight between two semi-pro football teams in the parking lot at Bath High School after a Michigan Charities League Football game between the Bath Cardinals and the Great Lakes Raiders on July 6. Referees awarded a forfeit to the Bath Cardinals after two bench clearing brawls disrupted the game. Police from Bath Township, DeWitt Township, and Clinton County were called in. One officer, Sgt. Greg Ockerman of DeWitt Township, was struck during the incident but was not injured.

Dale Kennedy of Grand Ledge reported to Clinton County Police that a window enclosing an outside sauna at his home was broken for the second time in three weeks. The alleged incident took place July 4 and caused approximately $45 in damages. Police are still investigating.

Clinton County Police report two 2-Case Ingersoll garden tractors were taken from S&W Equipment in St. Johns, July 3. The tractors were valued at $3,182.

Council okays a retirement plan for its workers

By DAVE HOLZMAN
Staff Writer

All St. Johns full-time city employees will be offered a supplemental deferred compensation retirement package after the city commission approved a plan at its July 8 meeting.

Under the plan, all 48 full-time city employees can defer a portion of their current paychecks into an investment pool and have their money, plus any interest earned on the investment, paid back to them during retirement along with their city pension benefits.

The commission approved the plan by a 3-0 vote. Commissioners Thomas Wiseman and Benson Munger were absent from the meeting and did not vote.

"It's not unlike an IRA, except it's a grouplike product," said Clark Lawrence, a representative of the Hartford Insurance Company who explained the program to the commissioners. "You could start to build a very nice supplement to your retirement bill."

Clark said a person who donates $10-20 per payday would have approximately $400 dollars to invest per year.

Employees can contribute up to 25 percent of their pay or $7,500 a year under the plan. Any money donated to the deferred compensation plan can not be taxed by the federal government until it is reissued at a later date to the investor.

Despite the absence of two commissioners at the meeting, the plan received overwhelming support.

"I belong to one of these programs through the public school system," said Mayor John Arehart who is principal at Riley Elementary School and East Olive Elementary. "And I think it's great."

The program is flexible because it will also allow the investor, at any time, to increase or decrease the amount they put in the account as well as put a halt to the arrangement if they can provide financial hardship to the deferred compensation committee.

All employees will be offered the package on a voluntary basis.

Youth corp jobs keep many area youths busy for summer

By DAVE HOLZMAN
Staff Writer

About 65 Clinton County youths are starting up their second week of hard labor in the 1985 Michigan Youth Corp Program.

The program, now in its third year, provides about 15,000 minimum wage jobs throughout the state for youths between the ages of 18 and 21. This year, approximately 150 youths applied for the 65, 40-hour-week jobs in Clinton County, according to Tom Griffin, coordinator of job training programs in the county.

Hopefully, with a little cooperation from the main youth corp office in Lansing, Griffin says about 25 additional jobs may be available for the summer.

"I've got people waiting to go to work," Griffin says. "Hopefully, we can put on another 25 people."

Griffin also reminds anyone interested in the program that the office will continue to accept applications for the remainder of the summer.

Currently, youth corp workers are busy on about 20 separate projects in the county. They include preparing most of the public schools in St. Johns, Ovid, Elsie, Fowler, Bath, DeWitt, Pewamo, and Westphalia for the upcoming school year.

Others are working in construction including 10 local corp members who are part of the building trades construction crew in conjunction with the county's summer youth employment program. Their work will consist of building a new storage facility for the Bath athletic department, two baseball diamonds at Pewamo-Westphalia High School, and cement construction at the Hazel Findlay Country Manor in St. Johns.

Others are doing clerical work at Clinton Memorial Hospital, Findlay Country Manor, the Clinton County Historical Society, and the Intermediate School District.

Overall, Griffin says, the program has been very successful in Clinton County the past two years and this year should be no exception.

"I'm pleased with the turnout. I can't complain," he says. "I think we were the only ones in the tri-county area with sufficient applications."

The program, in Clinton County, began July 8 and should run until Aug. 16. With some additional funding, Griffin says, the program could last all the way through September.

Officials to discuss inland lakes

Michigan State University's Institute of Water Research will conduct two conferences that will offer participants the opportunity to discuss lake management options and receive valuable experience in detecting water quality problems. The conferences will be held Aug. 2 and Sept. 7.

The program, in conjunction with the Natural Resources Department of Inland Lake Management Unit, will help residents who live near any of the state's 35,000 inland lakes avoid water management problems — most notably excessive weed and algae growth, unfamiliar odors, and low dissolved oxygen levels which can kill many fish.

Officials say it is important that nearby residents learn if these problems are caused by some known pollution source or if they originate from some unidentifiable source. They say accurate analyses of these problems are essential for proper lake management.

The forum will feature speakers and workshop leaders from Michigan State, the DNR, the University of Michigan's Great Lakes Research Division, and the Dow Gardens.

The workshop sessions will include lake measurements and sampling procedures, lake mapping and remote sensing, fish growth and habitats, riparian rights and legal issues, and computer assisted aquatic plant and animal identification.

Cost of the program is $10. For more information, contact Lois Wolfson, Institute of Water Research, 334 Natural Resources, Michigan State University, East Lansing, MI 48824; (517) 353-3742.

Fire

A gas leak in the carburetor of a pickup truck owned by a mechanic at Mazey's Sales and Service, 602 N. U.S. 27, apparently was the cause of a small fire that caused about $200 damage to the truck.

Howard Peoples was trying to start the 1957 Ford Pickup from the outside when the engine backfired and the electrical wires caught on fire. He put out most of the blaze himself except for a little fire under the car which was extinguished by the St. Johns volunteer fire department who had quickly rushed to the scene.

Peoples says most of the damage was limited to the electrical system, the carburetor and the intake valve. He estimates the damage at "a couple of hundred dollars."

40 years of rock collecting is the Bakers business

By MARILYN HESS
Bath Editor

Descending the stairs into Mike and Virginia Baker's rock shop is like venturing into a cave and discovering valuable treasure.

It is inconspicuous from the outside. The shop is in a building behind the Baker's Bath residence, and has only a small sign near the roadway proclaiming its presence.

But the shop represents more than 40 years of gem and rock collecting by Baker. His collection includes everything from a 150-pound chunk of amethyst to small zirconia chips ready to be mounted in jewelry. Some of the rocks have been painted, carved, or plated with gold. They come from South America, mid-Michigan, and everywhere in between.

Baker began collecting valuable rocks somewhat by accident. He was part owner in a lead and silver mine outside of Tucson, Arizona for three and a half years. He began saving the colorful rocks that he would find around and in the mine, but his collection soon grew too large to keep around the house.

So he began selling the rocks, and buying other valuable rocks to increase his inventory. His expertise increased as he became more involved in the lapidary business.

"I just taught myself," he says, "and other people showed me how."

When Baker married Virginia 15 years ago, he sent her to lapidary school, and Baker says she takes an active part in the shop. She sometimes paints the rocks or uses her silversmithing talent to make jewelry.

Baker's favorite rocks are the malachite and the asarite, because of their characteristically bright colors. The most valuable rocks he has in his collection now are the fire agate and the fire opal, both of which cost approximately $85 for a medium-size piece.

One of the features of Baker's shop is his "darkroom." Large and small rocks, plain in color and texture, are stacked on shelves in a room about the size of a closet. They are almost ugly until he turns out the lights and shines a blacklight on them.

Streaks and dots of neon orange, green, and blue appear in the rocks. Identical tins of pebbles turn into tins of blue, orange, and green stones. Baker says the fluorescence occurs naturally in the rocks.

His customers can only patronize the shop during the summer months, because the Bakers spend winters in Arizona. In addition to that yearly trek, the couple has been in all 48 states and travels a lot in Canada.

The Bakers often bought unusual rocks to sell while on their trips, but he says they don't buy much anymore. They have participated in rock shows at county fairs in Michigan, and showed their collection at Meridian Mall once. But he says that involved too much work, loading and unloading the gems and sometimes heavy rocks.

He remembers that on one buying trip to Washington D.C., he purchased more than $150 worth of precious stones to sell, and drove back to a motel. The car, with the rocks and all the Bakers' clothes still inside, was stolen. The insurance company eventually paid for the car, but they wouldn't reimburse Baker for the stones or the clothes.

New milking parlor on display

More than 2,000 people are expected to attend an open-house, July 30-31, at Green Meadow Farms near Elsie, to view the farms new ultra-modern computerized milking parlor and electricity generating plant.

Recognized as one of Michigan's showcase dairy farms, the 1,500-cow operation run by Duane, Velmar, Charles, and Merle Green, and their families, has been the site of an extensive modernization project for the past two years. The months of planning and construction will culminate with the grand opening celebration which includes tours of the new facility.

They will feature a computerized 32-stall polygon milking parlor and an electricity production system of two anaerobic manure digestion pits, two 150-horsepower engines and accompanying generators, and a 2.4 million-gallon above ground liquid-manure storage tank.

The milking parlor was designed by William Bickert, Michigan State University agricultural engineer, and built by DeLaval, Inc.

Water for cleaning the parlor, milk lines, and two 5,000-gallon bulk cooling tanks is made hot with the heat recovered from the milk. A flush system washes manure from the parlor floor.

The power-generating system, designed and built by Butler Livestock Systems, is comprised of two 180,000-gallon pits and two generator-turning engines. Cow manure is dumped or pumped into the pits where it degrades by a process called anaerobic digestion. Biogas (mostly methane) is produced and is used to fuel the engines. Half the 200 kilowatts of electricity produced each hour are used on the farm. The rest is sold to the utility company.

Cow bedding material and liquid fertilizer are by-products derived from the digested manure. The liquid is separated from the solids and pumped to the Butler Liqua-Stor storage tank. Twice each year, it's applied to crop fields through an irrigation system. The solid portion (undigested plant material) is used as bedding material in the free stall barns.

Visitors are also invited to see Greens' other farms. Maps will be available at the main farm just south of Elsie on Hollister Road. The open-house runs from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day with lunch served from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Cold fruit recipes for hot days

By MONA ELLARD
Home Economist

With the advent of warm weather, I look forward to eating fresh in-season fruits: melons, plums and peaches, berries and cherries. Yet, all year long in our grocery store we have been seeing more exotic types of fruits available. Curiosity and the desire to experiment with new foods has drawn many of you to try exotic fruits, whether it be the brown fuzzy kiwi to the smooth oval-shaped mango.

Today's column will help you to identify the varieties of fruits and provide simple ideas that use exotic fruit in creative and delicious ways.

Know your fruit

Unless you have tried a particular exotic fruit and liked it, as a consumer you aren't easily attracted to try other new fruits. This is why many fresh produce department managers encourage you to try a taste sample while shopping in their departments. Not only are managers providing samples but sample recipes as well. So let's clear up some of the identification mysteries associated with figs, mangoes, papayas, and kiwi fruit.

Figs are probably one of the world's oldest known fruits yet because they are not grown in Michigan, many people do not recognize them. Figs are small and oval with a green-yellow skin that will wrinkle slightly when fully ripe. The interior of a fig has a soft, light brown pulp. Most of us have tasted fig-filled cookies, but why not try the fig-filled dessert crepes. Mix diced fresh figs with chopped walnuts and a little honey to fill crepes. If desired, flamb'e with liqueur.

Kiwi fruit can be deceiving because under its fuzzy brown skin is the prettiest bright green pulp with edible black seeds. The pulp is soft, juicy, and has a tart citrus tang but remains mildly sweet. In the dead of winter, I use kiwi in my fruit salads. The bright green pulp is beautiful and the color is much appreciated at that time of year.

Mangoes have become quite commonplace in supermarkets yet consumers have just started to use them. They are oval or kidney shaped with a dull green skin with yellow and red areas.

Reverend Nose to be honored

DeWitt Community Church, of DeWitt, will be holding an installation service for Reverend Frederick C. Nose on Sunday, July 21, at 3 p.m. After the service there will be a reception in his honor in the Fellowship Hall.

Pastor Nose began his service at DeWitt Community Church on July 1. His wife, Janice, has a degree in Elementary Education and is a registered child care provider. They have three young children; Benjamin, Rebecca and Nathaniel. Pastor Nose's grandmother, Martha, is also part of their family.

Pastor Nose attended Bob Jones University, Central Baptist Theological Seminary of Minneapolis, and received his Master of Divinity Degree from Grand Rapids Baptist Seminary. He and his family have resided in Grand Rapids until the call came for Community Church. He is originally from Virginia.

Dr. N. A. Wiens, his former pastor, and Senator Alan Cropsey will participate in the installation.

The community and friends are cordially invited to share in this special occasion.

The skin is smooth to touch, but it is tough. The insides are a soft light yellow and have a slight tart yet sweet taste. If you are in the mood for something cold but tangy, try this mango sherbet recipe.

Mango Sherbet

2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
1 cup milk, heated to boiling
3 cups chopped mango (about two medium)
½ cup cold milk
½ cup sugar

In a five-cup blender, sprinkle unflavored gelatine over cold milk; let stand three to four minutes. Add hot milk and process at low speed until gelatine is completely dissolved, about two minutes. Add sugar and mango; process at high speed until blended.

Pour into large bowl and freeze one hour or until mixture is frozen about one-half inch around sides of bowl. With electric mixer or rotary beater, beat until smooth, about two minutes. Pour into two 4x10-inch freezer trays or 8-inch square pan; freeze until firm. Makes about one quart, about eight servings. About 120 calories per serving, 23 mg. vitamin C.

Thinning will help plants grow

Thinning is an important step in producing high quality vegetables and flowers, but it's a step that many gardeners neglect.

Lee Taylor, Extension horticulture specialist at Michigan State University, explains that thinning to the appropriate spacing between plants serves several purposes.

"First, thinning gives plants the room they need to grow without competing with one another," he points out. "Crowded plants don't get the moisture, soil nutrients and sunlight they need to grow and produce to their full potential."

Failure to thin plants properly may also increase the likelihood of certain plant diseases. Zinnias, for instance, are very susceptible to powdery mildew. Mildew and other fungus-caused disease develop best when the air around plants stays humid and plant foliage remains wet for long periods of time. The movement of air around crowded plants is poor, and such plants tend to dry slowly after rain, dew or irrigation. Failure to thin young zinnias, then, sets up conditions that promote disease development.

Crowded plants are also harder to treat for insect and disease problems, because sprays or dusts can't penetrate the dense foliage and coverage of plant surfaces is poor.

Gardeners often resist the idea of thinning because it seems wasteful to buy and plant the seeds and then yank up the perfectly good plants that result. Taylor suggests that thinned plants be transplanted or, in the case of small carrots, lettuce plants and other salad crops, eaten instead of discarded.

Another exotic fruit

Papaya is the fruit I sometimes confuse with mangoes, yet they appear different. A papaya is pear shaped, but twice as large as a pear. It has a green-yellow smooth skin which becomes more yellow during ripening. The papaya's pulp is golden yellow with edible pea-sized black seeds. It is a juicy fruit with a melon-like texture that has a distinctively sweet and mellow taste. Papaya can be used in combination with other fruits or alone, eaten fresh from the hand. Try this Lemon Papaya Mist.

Use of exotic fruits

Learn to take advantage of the variety of exotic fruits available in your supermarket. They're low in price when in season and can add a new flavor dimension to summer eating. Here are some suggestions for using exotic fruits to add zip to summer menus.

Add the specialty fruits to your favorite fruit salads, top with yogurt if you're counting calories or serve with a dollop of whipped cream or a scoop of ice cream for a quick and easy dessert.

Fruit can lower the calories in desserts. For an elegant but simple dessert idea, marinate the fruits with orange liqueur. Make an exotic shake using milk and ice cream — skip the chocolate syrup and other flavorings and use chunks of exotic fruits instead.

Fruits can be used for breakfast and as part of a main dish too. Add some excitement to breakfast by serving granola with a fresh exotic fruit salad. Or why not scoop melon halves to serve salads or cottage cheese. Chicken and tuna salads taste great in mango, papaya, or pineapple shells.

Two good books for young kids

By MARIE PAPCIAK
School Librarian

"Brown Bear, Brown Bear, What Do You See?" by Bill Martin Jr. Pictures by Eric Carle. Published by Holt, Rinehart, and Winston, N.Y., 1967, 1983. $10.95.

□ A big brown bear is asked "Brown Bear, Brown Bear, What do you see?" "I see a redbird looking at me." And then on the next page is a picture of a redbird. And the redbird is asked the same question. The redbird responds with seeing a yellow duck. The next page shows a picture of a yellow duck and so forth. Animals like a blue horse, a happy frog, and a purple cat all parade across the pages of this happy, cheerful book. Written by Bill Martin Jr., who gave us the Instant Readers series, this popular book is simple to understand, but has many meanings the reader can draw on.

Martin is an outstanding writer in the field of education and devotes his entire life to the joy of reading, teaching this, and lecturing on reading to teachers. Eric Carle, the illustrator, is one of America's leading illustrators of children's books. His well-known "The Hungry Caterpillar" is very popular among children and teachers. And now his new book "The Grouchy Ladybug" seems to be reaching the same heights as his other books. His large animals are collages of bright colors. Children love them!

Recommended for ages 4-8.

"Misty and Me" by Barbara Girion. Published by Scholastic Inc., N.Y., 1979. $1.95 paperback.

□ Kim Bowman had just started sixth grade when one night at dinner, her mother announced to the family that she would be working as an assistant personnel manager for a large company in town. Willie, Kim's 6-year-old brother, doesn't like the idea. He counts on his mother to be at home to attend to his needs. Kim wasn't impressed with the idea either, until she realized that "helping out" meant Kim taking care of Willie after school and even getting dinner started on occasion. Kim's dad was really the only family member excited about mom's new job.

Kim decides that since she's not too young to assume responsibility of Willie the Whiner, she could take care of a puppy, something she has begged for, for the last couple of years. So Kim takes the matter by the hand and gets her puppy (Misty) only to have to keep it hidden at old Mrs. Mac's house. Kim finds that taking care of a newborn pup is a big responsibility, financially and emotionally.

Barbara Girion, the author, has given the reader an appealing story with humor and a fascinating plot. Girion is a former teacher who has been active in theater work and has developed scripts and education programs for both adults and children. Another favorite among young readers is her book "The Chicken Bone Wish."

Recommended for ages 9-13.

City under budget in '84; Council OK's new figures

By MARILYN HESS
Editor

The DeWitt City Council easily passed the city's 1985-86 budget, with no opposition from the public and a minimum of discussion by the council.

The total general fund budget for next year is set at $845,689. Last year, $751,897 was budgeted for use in the general fund. But Clerk Marge Lotre says the estimated expenditures for last year were $722,419, meaning the city spent less money than it had budgeted in 1984-85.

"We've always been conservative in budgeting," Lotre says.

The largest chunk of money in the general fund budget goes to the police department. It will receive $211,306 for 1985-86.

The next largest expenditure from the general operating fund is for the city hall and grounds, which Lotre says includes utilities, workmen's compensation payments, and the rent for the proposed city hall building. That account is set at $165,161 for next year.

The category with the lowest expenditure from the general fund next year is elections. Only $880 is slated for use next year, says Lotre, because it is not an election year. In comparison, $3,174 was budgeted for elections last year.

Although the budget shows the city will have to dig into its fund balance to make ends meet, Lotre says it doesn't mean that money will actually be used. Last year, she says, the budget showed the city would need $70,000 from the fund balance, but that money wasn't needed after all. In fact, this year's surplus will add to the balance.

Bath will split legal cost

Bath trustees gave their okay July 1 for the township to contribute its share of the legal cost in action against the county prosecutor in a disagreement over the payment of police officers' witness fees.

Bath is joining with DeWitt Township to seek a declaratory judgment as to whether or not the township police officers should receive witness fees for their appearances in court.

Prosecutor Jon Newman says since the officers are paid by the township, they are considered on duty during court appearances, and are therefore not eligible for the witness fee according to the statute.

But township officials say if the officer is not on the schedule at the time a court appearance is required, he is not on duty and is only paid by the township because it is required by the FOP contract.

Bath Supervisor Richard Brook says he expects the attorney for both townships, Richard Robinson, to obtain a court date within a month.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board of trustees approved the hiring of a new parks and recreation director. Michael Gray, who lives in East Lansing, will begin his duties this week. Clerk Kathy McQueen says he will keep regular office hours on Tuesday morning and Thursday afternoon.

The trustees also gave the go-ahead for the paving of the south cemetery drive, and the 20 feet by 40 feet parking lot behind the police department.

FOOD IDEAS for all seasons

CONVENIENT CANNED SALMON

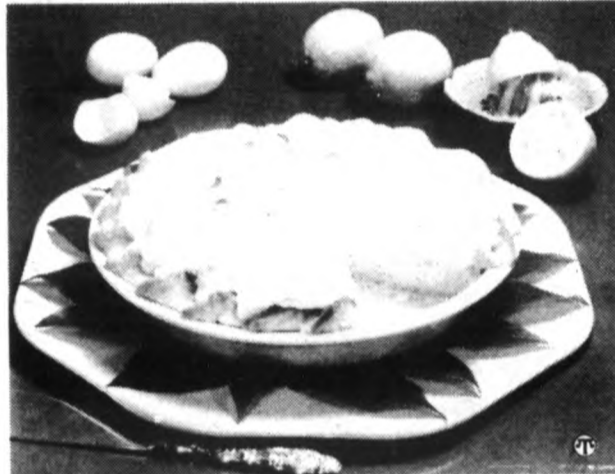

Salmon and Vegetable Stir-Fry is a quick, delicious entree that's easy to prepare with canned salmon from Alaska. Cherry tomatoes, chunks of salmon and asparagus or broccoli make this a colorful dish with lively flavor.

Versatile canned salmon can be creatively added to souffles, casseroles and hearty main dish sandwiches. Easy to have on hand, canned salmon is a nutritious addition to meals.

SALMON AND VEGETABLE STIR-FRY

- 1 can (7-1/2 or 7-3/4 oz.) salmon
 - 1 cup fresh or frozen, thawed asparagus, cut into 1-inch pieces*
 - 1/2 cup green pepper, cut into 3/4-inch squares
 - 1/4 cup each sliced mushrooms and water chestnuts
 - 1 clove garlic, minced
 - 1 tablespoon oil
 - 3/4 cup chicken broth
 - 1 tablespoon cornstarch
 - 6 cherry tomatoes, halved
 - Hot cooked rice
- Drain salmon, reserving liquid; break into large chunks. Stir-fry asparagus, green pepper, mushrooms, water chestnuts and garlic in oil 1 minute. Combine reserved salmon liquid and chicken broth; gradually blend into cornstarch. Stir broth mixture into vegetables; cook and stir until thickened. Gently stir in salmon; cover and simmer 3 minutes or until thoroughly heated. Stir in tomatoes. Serve over rice. Makes 3 or 4 servings.
- *One cup fresh or frozen, thawed broccoli can be substituted.

With lemons in good supply twelve months of the year, Lemon Meringue Pie is no longer a seasonal dessert. The recipe for Lemon Meringue Pie first appeared on the corn starch box in the early 1900's. This is an updated version, made without the need for a double boiler.

Lemon Meringue Pie

- | | |
|--------------------------------|---------------------------------|
| 1 cup sugar | 1/4 cup lemon juice |
| 3 tablespoons Argo corn starch | 1 tablespoon corn oil margarine |
| 1 1/2 cups cold water | 1 baked (9-inch) pastry shell |
| 3 egg yolks, slightly beaten | 3 egg whites |
| Grated rind of 1 lemon | 1/3 cup sugar |

In 2-quart saucepan, stir together 1 cup sugar and corn starch. Gradually stir in water until smooth. Stir in egg yolks. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Remove from heat. Stir in lemon rind, lemon juice and margarine. Cool slightly (no longer than 1 hour). Turn into pastry shell. In small bowl with mixer at high speed, beat egg whites until foamy. Add 1/3 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, beating well after each addition. Continue beating until stiff peaks form. Spread some meringue around edge of filling first touching crust all around, then fill in center. Bake in 350°F oven 15 to 20 minutes. Cool at room temperature away from drafts. Makes 8 servings.

News for TEA LOVERS

SPORTS TIME SIPPERS

Warm weather sports can energize you, keep you fit and provide hours of fun. They can also give you a big thirst that calls for something special. The next time you take a break between swings and serves, break away from the usual soft drinks and serve up refreshing Strawberry Smoothie or Crimson Tea Cooler.

Strawberry Smoothie is an easy-to-make combination of Lipton® Lemon Flavored Iced Tea Mix Sweetened with NutraSweet®, plain yogurt and strawberries that mixes up creamy, rich and frothy in a blender. Crimson Tea Cooler is a colorful blend of iced tea, cranberry juice cocktail and fresh fruit that stirs up tall and cold in an ice-filled pitcher.

Lemon flavored iced tea mix with NutraSweet is a terrific refresher on its own, too. With just four calories per 8 ounce serving, the iced tea mix, sweetened with NutraSweet instead of sugar or saccharin, delivers that great tea taste you've come to expect. It will help keep you in shape to play your best game, whatever your favorite sport.

STRAWBERRY SMOOTHIE

- 1/3 cup Lipton Lemon Flavored Iced Tea Mix Sweetened with NutraSweet
- 1 pint (16 oz.) plain yogurt
- 1 cup sliced strawberries

1 cup ice cubes (about 6 to 8)

In 5-cup blender, combine all ingredients except ice cubes; process at high speed until blended. Add ice cubes, one at a time; process at high speed until blended. Garnish, if desired, with whole strawberries. Makes about 4 servings.

CRIMSON TEA COOLER

- 1/4 cup Lipton Lemon Flavored Iced Tea Mix Sweetened with NutraSweet
- 3 cups cranberry juice cocktail, chilled
- 1 cup water
- 1 medium orange, sliced
- 1 medium apple, cut into wedges

In large pitcher, combine all ingredients. Serve with ice. Garnish, if desired, with fresh mint leaves. Makes about 4 servings.

Ever-Popular Peanut Butter Featured In Kid-Pleasing Snack

If after-school snacks become predictable and unexciting, then plan to serve a guaranteed kid-pleaser—Peanutty Jumbos. This easy-to-make, frosted treat features a peanut butter-graham cracker filling surrounded by a tender, flaky biscuit. Served with a glass of milk, Peanutty Jumbos make a great change-of-pace snack for active youngsters.

PEANUTTY JUMBOS

- 3/4 cup powdered sugar
- 1/2 cup graham cracker crumbs
- 1/4 cup peanut butter
- 2 tablespoons margarine or butter, melted
- 1 tablespoon milk
- 2 (10-oz.) cans Hungry Jack refrigerated flaky biscuits

FROSTING

- 1 cup powdered sugar
- 4 teaspoons peanut butter
- 4 teaspoons margarine or butter, softened
- 3 to 4 teaspoons milk
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped peanuts

Heat oven to 375°F. Lightly grease 2 cookie sheets. In small bowl, combine powdered sugar, graham cracker crumbs, peanut butter, margarine and milk; blend well. Separate dough into 20 biscuits. On prepared cookie sheets, press or roll 10 biscuits to 4-inch circles. Gently pat 1 rounded tablespoonful of graham cracker mixture over center of each circle. Press or roll remaining 10 biscuits to 4-inch circles. Place each over filling. Press edges with fork to seal.

Bake at 375°F. for 11 to 18 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from cookie sheets; cool. In small bowl, blend all frosting ingredients except peanuts until smooth. Spread over rolls; sprinkle with peanuts. 10 rolls.

Betty Crocker's Festive Fruit Salad

Fruit salad can go formal with a luscious old-fashioned dressing, to make an ideal dinner party dessert.

This very special 24-Hour Salad is just one of the popular and easy-to-prepare dishes featured in "Betty Crocker's All-Time Favorites" from Golden Press, for $6.95 and available at most bookstores.

Over the year, nearly 25,000 recipes have been developed and perfected in the Betty Crocker kitchens. (Golden Press offers 14 more Betty Crocker cookbooks for every taste, every need and every occasion.) The recipes included in this book are the favorites—the ones that people keep asking for, over and over, again and again.

Featured are delicious, nutritious main dishes; sparkling fruit and vegetable salads; side dishes to brighten any table; warm-from-the-oven breads and bakings; desserts to satisfy the soul and full color photographs throughout, including how-to's.

24-Hour Salad Old-fashioned Fruit Dressing (below)

- 1 can (17 ounces) pitted light or dark sweet cherries, drained
- 2 cans (15 1/2 ounces each) pineapple chunks, drained and cut in half (reserve 2 tablespoons syrup)
- 3 oranges, pared, sectioned and cut up
- 1 cup miniature marshmallows

Twenty-four Hour Salad can be an around the clock favorite.

Prepare Old-fashioned Fruit Dressing. Combine fruits and marshmallows. Pour the dressing over the ingredients and toss. Cover and chill 12 to 24 hours.

Serve in a salad bowl or in lettuce cups. If you like, garnish with orange sections and maraschino cherries. 8 to 10 servings.

Old-fashioned Fruit Dressing

- 2 eggs, beaten
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 2 tablespoons pineapple syrup (from the canned pineapple)
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- Dash of salt
- 1/4 cup chilled whipping cream

Combine all ingredients except the whipping cream in a small saucepan. Heat just to boiling, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and cool. In a chilled bowl, beat the cream until stiff. Fold in the egg mixture.

Shaking The Salt Habit

LOW-SODIUM CHICKEN DIVAN

If you're one of the four out of ten Americans trying to lower your intake of salt and sodium, you're familiar with the frustrations of trying to make appetizing low-sodium meals. Many of our favorite foods are high in sodium and most frozen or canned prepared main dishes have between 800 to 1400 milligrams sodium per eight ounce or one cup serving. But with a little experimenting and the help of low-sodium flavorings like Seasoned NoSalt salt alternative, good tasting versions of traditional favorites such as Chicken Divan are possible.

CHICKEN DIVAN (Makes 4 Servings)

- 4 ounces Swiss cheese, shredded
- 2 teaspoons flour
- 1/2 teaspoon Seasoned NoSalt salt alternative
- Dash ground nutmeg
- 1/3 cup dry white wine
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon brandy (optional)
- 2 packages (10 ounces each) broccoli spears, thawed and cooked (fresh broccoli may also be used)
- 2 cups shredded or sliced cooked chicken

Preheat oven to 325°F. Toss Swiss cheese with flour, Seasoned NoSalt and nutmeg. In a small saucepan, bring wine to a boil. Reduce heat and gradually add cheese. Stir over low heat until mixture is thickened. Stir in lemon juice and brandy. In 9-inch pie plate or 9-inch baking pan, arrange broccoli; top with chicken. Spoon cheese mixture over all. If desired, sprinkle with paprika. Bake 15 minutes.

Officials debate more tax breaks

Gov. James Blanchard's tax fairness plan has drawn the ire of the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce.

The plan, which would rollback the state income tax to its 1983 level of 4.6 percent next January, reduce property taxes for homeowners and provide a one time only tax amnesty program for tax cheats, has upset the state chamber. Local chambers of commerce have not yet taken an official stance on this matter.

Upsetting the state chamber most is the portion of the plan which proposes to increase state taxes on financial institutions and insurance companies.

"We oppose this as bad public policy and will continue to fight unnecessary tax increases on financial and insurance businesses," says State Chamber of Commerce President James Barrett. "We believe the legislature's main priority should be the earliest possible rollback of the state income tax to 4.6 percent."

"Revenue projections show that an adequate surplus will be available to do this on January 1, 1986, without increasing any business taxes," he said defending part of the plan.

Blanchard's tax fairness plan has passed the State House relatively undamaged even though it received a considerable amount of debate by opponents and skeptics. Senate approval on the issue is still needed and it is doubtful that will occur until the fall as the Senate prepares to adjourn for its summer recess.

Under the plan, the state income tax would be reduced to 4.6 percent a year ahead of schedule. Currently, the tax is supposed to drop in July 1987. Blanchard, with a crucial vote by the legislature, increased the income tax to a peak of 6.1 percent when he first took office in 1983.

The plan would also reduce property taxes by approximately $500 a year for the average homeowner.

The tax amnesty program, which has raised several million dollars in other states, would allow taxpayers who have neglected paying all or part of their taxes a one-time chance to redeem themselves without facing a penalty.

'The ultimate thrill'

Kjohhede wants Redwings at the top

By JON RISING
Sports Writer

Bart Kjohhede has been to the top of the mountain in Kansas prep football — the championship game — and he's eager to scale those same heights in Michigan.

The new head coach at St. Johns High School says any team's goal has to be "playing the Birmingham Brother Rices and the big schools in the state.

"That's the ultimate thrill (in football) - it has been for me down here. I still remember the state championship game we lost in the rain and I feel bad. But, I remember the semifinal game we won and that makes it all worthwhile."

Is Kjohhede a dreamer? After all, he's inheriting a team that has very few seniors and is facing what many would consider a rebuilding year.

Maybe so, but his dreams have come true before.

The 33-year-old coach faced the same circumstances when he took over the head coaching job in Wellsville, Kansas in 1981. The team had lost 24 players to graduation, yet made the state playoffs. The Eagles were eliminated 14-13 in the second round by the eventual state champions.

"There weren't a lot of seniors," he said. "But the players we had wouldn't give up. They wouldn't say die."

Having an all-state quarterback and middle linebacker certainly didn't hurt. But it is important to note that Kjohhede says he is not afraid to use a good quarterback if he has one.

"I like to run a power offense with options and dives and I like to throw if I have a young man who can throw the ball," Kjohhede said.

Like many successful coaches, Kjohhede says he is not interested being fancy — just effective.

"I like power football — a good, strong, conservative game plan. But we can do different things out of it. What I am trying to say is that I'm not very deceptive. We just say we're going to work hard at what we do, and you do the best you can to beat it," he said.

Despite the conservative philosophy, Kjohhede likes to put points on the scoreboard fast.

"I'm an impatient man. I guess that's one of my weaknesses. I told the kids that the other night. I said, 'I don't like taking 15-18 plays to score a touchdown. I like taking two or three plays,'" he said.

The Central Michigan University graduate had his first meeting with the team July 9 and is returning from Kansas to settle into his job July 23. Conditioning practices begin August 12.

Conditioning is one of the main thrusts of Kjohhede's coaching.

"I'm thinking about becoming a specialist in weightlifting," he said. "I've been to clinics at the University of Nebraska and it's known for its programs.

"I especially like free weights. The main exercises we use are squats, bench press, incline press, the power clean, and the dead lift.

"You can't just lift three or four months a year, either. I think you have to do it 12 months a year."

So with all Kjohhede's expertise and success why would he want to come back to his native Michigan?

"We're family-oriented (the Kjohhedes have family in Mt. Pleasant.) We went to Kansas with the understanding that we would be going back to Michigan.

"And, it's 97 degrees down here today," he said via telephone from Wellsville. "That's a big reason."

Sports Briefs

Men's and Women's softball

Two evenly-matched teams squared off in adult softball last week, but the resulting scores did not indicate equality.

The Wheel Inn scored seven runs in the first two innings to breeze past St. Johns Ford 9-1 in women's action.

The Wheel Inn charge was led by Sherri Lotre's three hits and two runs. Collette Mulford, Lori Webster, and Wendy Kelly all chipped in with two hits for the winners.

Kelly was the winning pitcher, scattering eight hits.

Ford was led by two-hit performances from Patti Fowler, Theresa Nemcik, and coach Sue Hambleton.

The Wheel Inn and Merton's occupy first place in the competitive division, and will play each other this Thursday night at the City Park.

In men's action, two undefeated teams tussled and the Knob Hill Tavern came out on top.

Knob Hill, paced by Bill Straus' four hits, defeated St. Johns Merchants 24-11.

Bill Eisler and Mike Eastlick added a pair of hits each for Knob Hill.

Pertler gets coaching post

St. Johns native Randy Pertler was named head coach for varsity basketball at Lansing Catholic Central last week.

Pertler, 25, played his prep basketball for St. Johns and his college career was at Alma.

Creed held the lead briefly, the Al Kukla of Owosso moved in front of traffic and maintained his advantage until the checkered. Marty Babbitt of Lansing was 2nd, followed by Creed, Fred Marowelli of Lansing and Denison.

Heavyrope has dual purpose

Using an idea as old as the jump rope, a Grand Rapids man has come up with a new invention for physical fitness that will increase both endurance and strength.

The Heavyrope, invented by Mike Mattox, is actually a rubberized jump rope that is filled with 2-6 pounds of sand depending on what the buyer's needs are.

The Heavyrope is marketed exclusively in Clinton County by the Sports Section in St. John's.

Doug Japinga, owner of the Sports Section, has met with Mattox on a couple of occasions and is well-versed in the benefits of using the Heavyrope.

"It builds strength and cardiovascular (heart) endurance at the same time," Japinga said.

"A simple jump rope will build cardiovascular endurance, but it does very little strength building. On the other hand, weightlifting builds strength, but very little cardiovascular endurance is developing."

Japinga says research by the Heavyrope marketers indicates that the product increases cardiovascular endurance twice as fast as any other aerobic exercise.

Further, they claim that their product yields

90% usable strength compared to weightlifting's 60%.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Ralph Sampson, and Walter Payton are among the professional athletes who have used the Heavyrope since it came on the market about one year ago.

Abdul-Jabbar was so impressed with the product that his sports promotional company bought the rights to the product and his picture appears on the Heavyrope's carton.

Many major universities now have the Heavyrope, which retails for about $29.

Racing five thrill appreciative fans

Under threat of a thunderstorm the Late Model 4th of July Feature was run nearly to perfection with crowd thrilling action during every lap. The crowd's holiday spirit was enhanced by the driving skills of Bob Kingen, Roger Wing, Ken Love, bob Flinn, and Denny Anderson as the top 5 jockeyed for position all during the 50 laps. Frank Sedar thrilled the crowd along with the rest, but lost a weight during the feature and could not pass the weight regulation.

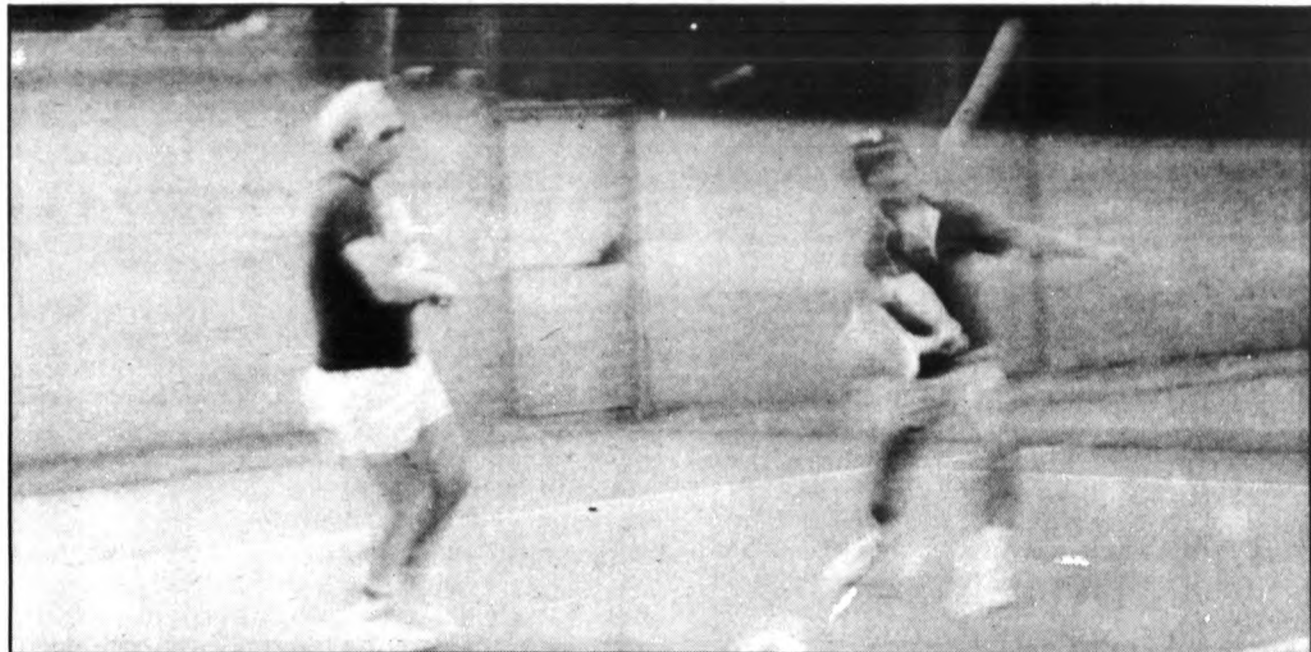

As the Late Model trophies were being presented, the weather conditions threatened to worsen, so the Pro Stock feature was postponed until July 20.

Pro Stock action that was completed included four heats won by Jeff Von Bonn, Larry Lavery, Stan Rohn, and Bill Simpson. Rick Stout won the Fast Car Dash, and Von Bonn and Lavery won the Consie and the B-Feature respectively. Jeff Reist had fast time.

For the Late Model preliminaries Kingen had fast time with a 17-07, but Eric Chant led the field during the entire Fast Car Dash. Heats were won by Sedar, Flinn, and Anderson.

The Late Model B-Feature was a hotly contested race since the top 5 were able to run in the feature that guaranteed $150 to start. Bob Hardin took the checkered flag, so he, Alan Taft, Dennis Walker, John Skvarenina, and Mike Fenske make the feature. Loren Hendricks was credited with the win.

Tony Campbell won the boy's Junior Fan Club Award and chose to ride with Bob Neiman. The girl's award went to Jenny Botterm who rode with her dad, Jon.

'Greens' color vacation

By DICK BRADLEY
Outdoors Writer

I just returned from a delightful week of fishing in Canada. The fishing was adequate but the real delight came largely from the unique family that was owner and operator of the camp where we stayed. They were special.

Let me call them the Greens since their real family name doesn't matter here and since their surroundings are the many shades of green that make up summer in the north. For convenient reference, I'll call Mr. Green, Jim; his wife, Ruth; and their children, Johnny and Kay. Johnny is 6 years old, and Kay is 9. And let me say that the rest of my impressions of this delightful family are as honest as a week's worth of casual observations can make them.

Other than the nearby Canadian National Railroad, the Greens have no convenient contact with "the city" as we know it. Over 35 miles or rugged wilderness separate them from the closest town, and that has limited facilities. And so the Greens make do for themselves and have developed a lifestyle that might be the envy of many of us.

What is that lifestyle?

Jim and Ruth make their living from the fishermen that come in the fall, spring and summer, after pike, walleye, and trout. Then, during bear and moose seasons, it's the hunters who come to stay with them. And in the winter months it's a trapline that provides the family's income. Everything seems to be a partnership with each family member, depending on the others for the things they can do.

In the week I was there, I noticed, for instance, that it took nearly two days to just mow the neat yards around the buildings of the old lumber camp that serves as the Green's home and lodging for their guests. Ruth would mow, while Jim split wood or worked on the maintenance of boats and motors. Jim would mow while Ruth washed and hung the laundry or cleaned in the buildings.

I learned too, that during the school year, Ruth tutored and taught the children, sending the results of their studies in to the governing educational agency for approval and promotion. I noticed that when the children were called to meals or to help with small tasks, they rushed to do as they were asked, without whining or needing to be asked a second time.

"It's like stepping back in history a hundred years," said one of my fishing companions about the Greens. "But it's not really, for they have a television and gasoline for their use in generating electricity."

Still, that television seemed more the source of a healthy contact with the world than the compelling magnet that many of us seem to find it to be. Watching it is what the Greens do together as a family when it might be better for a youngster to be inside than exposed to the possible presence of a marauding bear in the back yard. And during daylight hours the swingset, the bicycles, and the fishing poles seemed more attractive to the children than the TV.

"I never want to go back to the city," Ruth answered my inquiry. Already I had found out that Jim, a former factory executive, was "completely happy" with the life that he and his family were pursuing. And this had not been a casual or whimsical lifestyle that they were discussing. Twelve years of living "in the bush" had not dimmed Jim's or Ruth's smiles or doused the fires of love that burned brightly in their family unit.

During my week of fishing in Canada, I never heard a harsh word between the Greens, and my week was all the more enriched for having been exposed to this 20th century pioneer family.

Program to aid young students

By MARILYN HESS
Editor

The DeWitt Board of Education approved July 1 the restructuring of the school district's kindergarten program to include at least one developmental or "young fives" section.

The decision came after almost an hour of debate among board members and parents of prospective students in the developmental class.

Last month, the DeWitt board postponed the question, but the Bath school board voted to institute the program in their schools.

Thirty-nine children, most of whom were spotted during kindergarten roundup as being possibly too developmentally young for a traditional class, were given the Gesell Developmental Assessment in June.

Of those, 33 were found to have a developmental age of four to 4½, which makes them eligible for developmental kindergarten. One was recommended for preschool, and five others were recommended for traditional kindergarten.

The number of traditional and developmental sections that will be offered next year has not been determined. Elementary Principal Don Powell recommended in a June 26 letter to Supt. Stephen Garrett that three traditional and two developmental kindergarten classes be formed.

In this arrangement, the developmental classes would have 16-18 students, and the traditional classes would have 26-28 students. According to the teachers' contract, 28 is the maximum number allowed in a kindergarten class. But Powell, Garrett, and board members all say that is too many students in the traditional classes.

To add a fourth traditional kindergarten class, making that enrollment 21 students each, would be the ideal solution. But if the 3 mill request fails in August, Garrett says the system would not be in a position to add another section.

However, if there were four traditional classes and one developmental, many parents might be forced to keep their youngster home for another year instead of having them participate in a school program. In that case, the school system would lose state aid, which is based on the number of students enrolled.

The board told Garrett that the quality in the traditional kindergarten should not be sacrificed for the sake of the developmental program.

"If we're going to do d.k., we're going to do it right," says board secretary Carol Haag.

This concern prompted the board to pass an amendment to the original motion approving the developmental program, which states that as the administration proceeds to institute the program for next year, they take into consideration the traditional kindergarten and the class size.

New tips on home canning

The first publication on home canning was issued by the U.S. Department of Agriculture in 1909. We've come a long way since then, thanks to continuing research.

When we use up-to-date home canning recommendations, we can be confident that our products will be safe to eat. Many home canners, however, are using old instructions with outdated methods. A good example is oven canning, which is no longer considered to be a safe canning method.

Family Focus

By Dawn Harris
Extension Home Economist

Likewise, old instructions for water bath processing low acid foods—vegetables, meat, fish, poultry—are not safe. To destroy the bacteria that cause botulism poisoning, these low acid foods must be processed in a pressure canner.

Recent research has led to changes in USDA canning recommendations just within the past year or two. For example, the recommended processing time for applesauce has been lengthened, and recommendations for canning strained squash and pumpkin were dropped because of safety concerns.

Tomato canning recommendations have undergone much change in recent years. Until researchers can determine adequate processing times, the raw pack method is no longer recommended and processing times for the hot pack method have been lengthened.

Because home canning recommendations continue to change, it is crucial to have current instructions. Check the date on the references you are using. The "Ball Blue Book" was last revised in 1984. Look for a 1983 copyright on the latest "Kerr Home Canning and Freezing Book."

You may want to request Extension bulletin number E1555, "Home Canning" Fruits, Vegetables, Pickles, Jams and Jellies" from the country Extension Office. There is a 50 cent charge for this bulletin. An investment in up-to-date canning references can cut food spoilage and prevent food poisoning.

DeWitt schools name officials

Thomas Kamppinen was re-elected as president at the DeWitt Board of Education's organizational meeting July 1.

Other officers for the coming year are: David Harfst, vice president (second term), Carol Haag, secretary, and William Schaar, treasurer.

For the first time in at least five years, a change was made in the board's meeting time. Although the meetings will still be on the second Monday of each month, they will begin at 7:00 p.m. instead of 7:30.

James Osborn and David Harfst will serve on the board policy/personnel committee, William Schaar and newcomer Ron Johnson will serve on the finance/facilities committee, and Glenn Tarrant and Carol Haag will serve on the curriculum/athletics committee.

After organizing, the board unanimously approved a scoliosis testing program to be administered in grades five through nine beginning next year. Health teachers Debbie Hancock and Bob Elliott told the board screening would be done initially with the help of medical professionals until they, and possibly nurses who would help out, felt comfortable with what they were doing.

Elliott emphasized that the program is to spot possible cases of scoliosis, which is curvature of the spine, and not to diagnose the problem. The parents of students who show signs of scoliosis will receive a letter recommending that they take the student to the family doctor for confirmation.

Cost of the program will include paper and postage for the letters, and $180 for a videotape.

MSU lab makes sick animals ok

When an unknown disease sweeps through your animal operation, the Animal Health Diagnostic Laboratory at Michigan State University can help.

"Livestock and poultry operators can often stop the spread of a disease quickly and minimize animal losses if they can determine the problem and start animal treatment right away," says L.D. Schwartz, a veterinarian and poultry health specialist at the MSU Animal Health Diagnostic Laboratory.

"Through an animal necropsy and complete lab work-up, we can provide farmers with an immediate and accurate disease diagnosis and prescribe the proper treatment," he says.

When animals appear sick, producers can tell the diagnostic lab to discuss the problem. Sometimes a diagnosis can be made without any further investigation, Dr. Schwartz says.

If the problem is more serious, growers need to bring at least one dead and one seriously sick animal into the lab for a diagnostic work-up. With smaller animals such as poultry, it is better to bring in several animals typical of the problem, Dr. Schwartz says.

Before any lab work gets started, the diagnosticians ask the producer some general questions about management of the livestock operation and more specific questions about the symptoms of the disease. Animal operators are generally keen observers and can help direct the consultant toward a quick diagnosis, Dr. Schwartz says. A probable cause of the disease -- such as the introduction of a sick animal into a herd or flock or feeding irregularities -- can also usually be determined so the problem can be avoided in the future.

A necropsy is them performed, giving the diagnostician a good idea of what caused the animal's sickness or death. At this time, medication can be prescribed to treat the other sick animals and prevent the spread of the disease. Various management tools and approaches may also be suggested to keep the problem from popping up again, Schwartz says.

Samples are taken from the animal for analysis in four labs to confirm the initial diagnosis. Tissue and blood analyses are performed, and sample are checked for viruses and other microorganisms that may have contributed to the animal's illness.

The MSU diagnostic laboratory also sends teams of experts to visit operations to investigate less tangible problems, such as a sudden drop in production. These teams generally consist of experts in animal disease, nutrition and management practices. After observing the operation, the team production problem and increase farm efficiency, Dr. Schwartz says.

Former Ukranian refugee Maria Schultz, who is now a U.S. citizen, compared the freedoms Americans take for granted with the way people live in communist countries.
