Notes New date

CLINTON COUNTY A change in the meeting date for the Clinton County Arts Council from the fourth Thursday of each month to the third Thursday will take effect on Nov. 21. The meeting will be held at the DeWitt Conservatory of Music located at 115 N. Bridge Street, DeWitt beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Persons traveling from St. Johns will meet at the Gallery/Gift Shop at 7:00 p.m. to car pool to DeWitt. The Clinton County Arts Council is meeting in outlying communities of the county in order to make the organization more available to these areas.

FBI agent

ST. JOHNS FBI Agent Dennis Anderson will be the guest speaker at the Chamber of Commerce monthly luncheon Nov. 21 at noon at the First Congregational Church.

He will speak on the topic of "Airport Security."

The $5 luncheon will be catered by Elias Big Boy restaurant. Reservations should be made with the Chamber by Nov. 20.

Speaking of the Chamber, there is still time to get your reservation into the office for Mint Festival activities or events. Events must be approved by the Mint Festival Steering Committee by Dec. 15 in order to be included in the advertising brochure. Volunteers to serve on various committees are also needed.

Call 224-7248 to make reservations for the luncheon or for Mint Festival information.

Arts show

ST. JOHNS The annual St. Johns Jaycees Christmas Arts and Craft show will be held on Dec. 7 from 9 until 5 p.m. and Dec. 8 from noon until 5:00 p.m. at the Southpoint Mall in St. Johns.

More than 75 artists from around the state will display folk art, painting, baskets, needlework, stained glass, toys, woodworking, homemade candies and more.

Joy Roberson, designer of one of the national Christmas tree ornaments several years ago, will be a featured artist at the show. Civic groups such as local churches, Hazel I. Findlay Manor, Clinton Memorial Hospital auxiliary, Lioness and others will have booths for homemade treats, Christmas decorations and handmade crafts.

Coffee and lunch will be served at a concession stand.

Christmas

ST. JOHNS The city is gearing up for the Christmas season.

The City Commission approved free parking from Thanksgiving through Christmas, gave the Chamber of Commerce permission to use city electricity to light Clinton Avenue Christmas decorations and to hold a parade at 6:30 p.m. on Nov. 29.

The Commission also agreed to have Mayor John Arehart, or another city official, greet Santa Claus during the opening ceremony of the parade.

The Commission did interrupt its fledgling Christmas spirit long enough to quibble over one point. The Chamber had requested permission to turn the Christmas lights on at 3 p.m. The Commission thought 4 p.m. was soon enough. They discussed various compromises, such as having the Chamber call the city if they wanted permission to turn the lights on before 4 p.m.

But no one on the city administrative staff could guarantee they would be available on all such occasions and the lights turn-on was set for 4 p.m.

Farm assessment reform in the works

Farm land sold at auction would be included when the cash value of agricultural property is calculated, under a bill approved by the Michigan House of Representatives on Nov. 12.

If the bill becomes law, farmers could see the assessments on their land, and thus their property tax, decline.

The legislation is now awaiting assignment to a Senate committee for consideration, said Sen. Alan Cropsey last Thursday.

Under current law, assessors, boards of equalization and the State Tax Commission ignore forced or auction sales when determining the cash value of property, said Rep. Gary Randall in a Nov. 11 press release.

Randall also said that although auctions are a common way to buy and sell farm land, real estate sales often reflect sales of farm land to people who do not plan to use the land for farming. This has inflated farm lands beyond its true cash value, he said.

MANY FARMERS have complained in the past few years of what they say are exorbitant assessments on their farm property. Some have said that because many farm land sales are conducted through mortgage foreclosures or auctions, and because such sales are not included in calculating market prices, farm land is assessed at a greater rate than what it is actually worth for farming.

Farm land sold for commercial development, on the other hand, draws higher prices and is included in the calculation of market value.

Meanwhile the Michigan Tax Commission, at the request of the legislature, is studying how agricultural lands are assessed in the state. The study is partially aimed at determining if current assessment methods accurately reflect the true cash value of the land and at recommending alternative methods of determining cash value.

THE TAX COMMISSION was scheduled to make a preliminary report of that study by last Friday. The final report is due by Jan. 1.

Randall said U.S. Dept. of Agriculture statistics show that Michigan has the third highest agriculture property tax in the nation. "In fact," he said, "it is five times the national average and the amount levied per $100 market value is nearly four times the national average. We need to know why."

Randall also said the future of Michigan farming could be at stake in both including auction sales in farm land assessments and in studying the entire assessment system.

Clinton County Equalization Director Leon Thelen said it is too early in the legislative process to project what impact the proposed bill would have on county revenues.

City tax bills to increase

Homeowners in St. Johns can expect their 1986 tax bills to be slightly larger than this year, said City Assessor Diane Edwards.

Edwards said sales reports compiled from residential sales records at the Register of Deeds office show an increase in the sales prices for home sales inside the city limits.

"It does look like there may be a five to six percent increase in the assessment values," said Edwards.

A five percent increase in assessed value would translate into an increased tax bill of $1.38 per mill on a home with a market value of $55,000. Using the current total millage rate of 53.31 for homeowners inside the St. Johns city limits the increase would be $74.38. If the proposed increase in the school millage rate is approved Nov. 26 the increase would be $78.40.

However, various property tax credits available to some property owners could decrease the total tax bill.

Edward said assessments did not increase for the two or three years previous to the expected increase in 1986.

The expected increase will show up on tax bills for the 1986 tax year, not the 1985 bills that will go in the mail next month, she said.

The city tax bills for this year, Edwards said, will be sent out Dec. 15. The billing, usually mailed on Dec. 1, is being delayed until after the Nov. 26 school millage election.

Request denied

The St. Johns City Commission declined last Tuesday to establish a special tax district for a muffler shop expected to be built at 700 N. US-27 in St. Johns.

Jim Fedewa, DeWitt, requested the establishment of a commercial facilities district on the site, proposed as the location of a Maxi-Muffler store, said City Administrator Diane Edwards.

Had the establishment of the district been approved, the business would have been eligible for tax exemptions aimed at encouraging development of run down areas.

The districts may be established under state law for commercial or industrial areas that are "characterized by obsolete commercial property and a decline in commercial activity."

The law also requires that construction not be started prior to the establishment of the district.

Commissioners said that although certain types of businesses, such as a fast food restaurant, had failed in the area, others have been successful and that the area was not, therefore, obsolete.

"The area out there I realize is not in first class condition but the shops that are there are more conducive to this type of thing (a muffler business)...tool shops and so on," said Commissioner Raymond Parr.

"In this case, actual building construction has not taken place but approval for construction has been given prior to the request for the district," said Edwards in a memo to the Commission.

OLIVER — Anticipation is growing for the St. Johns High School production of "Oliver" this weekend — so much so that an extra show has been added. Here Terry Schwartzkof in the title role cavorts with Geraldine SanJuan, who plays Bet. Please turn to page 15A for more "Oliver" photos.

Box office smash

Extra 'Oliver' planned

When the curtain goes up on the opening night performance of "Oliver," this Friday it will be before a sell-out crowd.

So another show has been added. Monday, Nov. 25, at 7:30 p.m. is the time of the extra performance.

"There are very few tickets still available for the original show dates of Nov. 22, 23 and 24," said publicity director Bill Tennant. "Tickets for the Monday show will go on sale at the box office this Thursday. They can be reserved by calling 224-4950 or by stopping by the high school."

"Oliver" stars Terry Schwartzkof in the title role. He is supported by Mark Scott as Fagin and Josh Glew as the Artful Dodger, along with Trish Shoemaker as Nancy, Geraldine SanJuan as Bet, and Gerry Nichols as Bill Sykes.

THE CAST TOTALS 69 high school and elementary actors and actresses, with 25 student musicians in the pit orchestra.

Robert Koger, stage and technical director and business manager, is directing his eleventh musical for St. Johns High School. Vocal director, Donald Valentine, is working on his sixteenth consecutive musical at St. Johns, while Bill Tennant, in his seventeenth year of directing the pit orchestra, is the "seasoned veteran" of the troupe.

Barb Markman is working on her sixth musical at the St. Johns High School. She started as a student involved in several productions, later directed several shows, and is currently doing the costumes for "Oliver."

Other directors working on the show this year include Pat Powers, a student teacher from Central Michigan University, who is the assistant stage and technical director. George Sherlock is the lighting director and Sharon Speck is the rehearsal accompanist.

Show times for "Oliver" are Friday and Saturday, Nov. 22 and 23 at 8:00 p.m., Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p.m., and the newly added Nov. 25 date at 7:30 p.m.

Bill Patton is honored

November 21 was proclaimed "Bill Patton Day" in St. Johns by the City Commission last Tuesday.

The Commission designated the day to honor the Capital Federal Savings vice-president and branch manager for his dedication and service to the city and community.

A 21-year employee of Capital Federal, Patton was diagnosed as having cancer earlier this year.

"Bill Patton has set an example of leadership and service to his community and to his fellow man," reads the proclamation. "His energy, enthusiasm, expertise and warmth in everything he has done in the City of St. Johns have earned him the admiration and affection of everyone he has been associated with."

Patton has served as a board member, treasurer, secretary and president of a number of civic organizations, including the Chamber of Commerce, the Exchange Club, the United Way, the Child Abuse Council, the Senior Citizens Drop-in Center, and others.

Bill Patton

He has served as a deacon and has taught adult Sunday School at the First Baptist Church of St. Johns. He and his wife Mariam have three children and are members of the First Baptist Church.

A gathering in his honor will be held in the Community Room of Capital Federal Savings at 10:30 a.m. on Nov. 21.

Also on that day, he will be honored at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon at noon at the First Congregational Church in St. Johns.

Safety of kids, future jobs, concern idled bus drivers

By RICH WERTZ
Editor

Laid-off St. Johns school bus drivers still have food on their tables but they are worried about their future jobs and retirement and about the safety of the children they once drove to school, said three drivers interviewed last week.

St. Johns Bus Drivers Association President Bruce Irish said he fears the union will be broken if the Nov. 26 millage does not pass and drivers are not recalled to work.

"I wouldn't say the drivers are starving to death," Irish said. "I don't think the drivers know how it's going to hurt them yet. I don't think it's really hit them that they're unemployed."

Irish, who's wife, Gladys, is one of two drivers still working, said drivers still have paychecks coming from when they were working. After that, he said, the drivers are eligible for unemployment benefits of 55 to 65 percent of their former pay. In his own case, Irish is eligible for 26 weeks of unemployment at 55 percent of his wage — about $135 per week. But he does not know if that figure is solid.

"I FARM," he said. "I don't know — if I sell a load of beans how is that going to affect it?"

"My husband can still support me but our lifestyle is going to change," said Karol Richards, who has been driving school buses for 20 years. "No frills."

If the millage does not pass, Richards said, the extended unemployment will mean she will have to delay drawing on her retirement benefit for an extra five years.

But, Richards said, after driving two generations of St. Johns students to school, her first concern is with them.

"I am really concerned about not so much my personal situation," she said. "I know what it's like to drive in sub-zero blizzards and I'm concerned about the children who are walking and being driven by older brothers and sisters."

Marilyn Goldman, a 19-year driver, echoed that thought. Bus drivers take an interest in the children on their buses, she said. She said they are practiced at keeping order on their buses in a manner that makes the children want to behave appropriately and arrive at school ready to learn.

"WE DON'T JUST get on the bus and drive," she said.

Look at the facts, not special interests

To the Editor:

Don't cut an elementary teacher because it means a bigger class size for my child — cut Junior High. Don't cut a Junior High teacher, my child is in industrial arts and really likes it — cut an elementary teacher. Don't cut advanced typing, my daughter graduates next year and wants to get a job as a secretary — cut Junior High. Don't cut basketball, my son plays — cut music. Don't cut band, my child loves it — cut volleyball. Don't cut wrestling — cut debate. And the list goes on and on and on. No matter what the Board does is wrong. And no matter what they do is right. Depending on who you talk to of course.

The facts:

1. Much of the increase will be received back when one does one's income tax. One person, for example, said the 3½ mills meant a $115 increase. However, $77 of it will come off his income tax so it really only costs $38 more a year.

2. Senior citizens — entire cost of additional millage is received under Homestead Property Tax Credit.

3. Farmland is eligible for exemption under P.A. 116.

4. School employees got raises, but so did others such as Federal Mogul, etc.

5. Did the School Board threaten or did they tell the voters there would have to be accountability and consequences if the millage does not pass? If you got pulled over by an officer of the law while speeding and he said, "Okay, I'll give you a warning, slow down," what is your response? "Don't threaten me" and proceed to squeal your tires and proceed at 80 mph down the freeway? If you son rolls in at 2:30 a.m. from a date instead of at midnight like he was supposed to, is it his fault he can't use the care next weekend to go on another date or is it yours? Did the Board cause the cuts or did the voters? A very small percentage of people actually "bother" to vote in School Board elections. Were you one of the small percentage? If you didn't, then why harass the board members — you had the chance to vote for someone else and didn't.

6. Of 18 school districts in the area, St. Johns is at the bottom in operating millage. Even if passed, 11 of the 18 will still be higher. Bottom: 29.75; Top: 39.60. As the good preacher said in church a few Sundays ago, "St. Johns is not a poor community."

Of course rumors run wild at millage time. In my former hometown it was the gospel to some that the superintendent was using the school business car with

'Poor choices are made with our money'

To the Editor:

We would like to respond to the many editorials and responses made over the busing and millage situation. It seems a shame that the children need to suffer over this issue. We've heard from students that when discontinued busing was announced, parents were put down with such comments as "you can thank them for the way they voted". We should not make comments to children against their parents.

Also we can't understand the comments about harm caused children who ride buses. I rode the bus for many years. I can only remember once getting stuck in a ditch and thought it was quite exciting.

Sure, language is sometimes bad and dirty stories are told, but children can hear that on the playground. Are we going to ban recess also? If children are taught right and wrong at home it will not effect them.

Also we'd like to respond to Mr. Gabriel's comments stating teachers raises issued were "no different than the process used at GM, Federal Mogul, or other union businesses." This is certainly not an accurate statement. Other union businesses are controlled by the free enterprise system, the school district is not.

Also, to make the comment, "St. Johns teachers salaries tend to be on the low side compared to salaries

Remember children

To the Editor:

I would just like to say a few words to the person that thinks our buses are a bad influence on our children.

First of all I want to say thanks to St. Johns for our buses. Our buses run over more country miles than any other school district in this part of the state. We have a great safety record. When the snow gets two feet deep this winter I will feel much better knowing our kids are on a warm bus, rather than in a car pool driven by older brothers and sisters, who just don't have the experience on bad roads.

As far as kids picking up bad habits from riding the bus, that's a crock! Just take a good look at your TV set.

I think the school board is fighting dirty to get our votes, but lets face the facts. We all know that it costs more every year to run our homes.

So why do we all think the school doesn't need more money too? It's just too bad that parents, teachers, and the school board can't give a little.

So when you vote on Nov. 26 remember that our children are the future leaders of our great state.

Rosemary and Larry Thelen

school gas on weekends. Of course they didn't bother to drive by the administrative offices to see it parked there all weekend.

How many people went down and protested in Lansing in 1983 against the rise in the state income tax? In a recent issue of the U.S. News was this statement involving the military: "Prolonging 22 major weapon purchases last year drove up their cost by three billion dollars purely because of inefficient production rates." I wonder how many of the same millage protesters write their Congressman on issues like these.

I wonder how much we're going to spend on our kids for Christmas presents on items they really don't need, but think nothing of denying a child his debate or her volleyball or their music or a chance to participate in a play.

We think nothing of spending money for a college football game or a Tiger baseball game or a $20 bill or more for dinner and drinks or a pack a day at a dollar a day but will be damned if we will vote yes to give a kid a ride to school on a bus.

On the other side of the coin, the administration has a responsibility to be responsive to the community and individual parents in helping to solve problems that need to be solved. Just because it doesn't seem important to one outside the system — namely a parent.

Teachers ought to be teaching and held accountable for their actions. It also means responsibility. Just because the contract says one can leave at a certain time doesn't mean one ought not stay a while extra to see a parent who cannot make it by contract time, for example.

We need to try and solve things that need to be and can be solved while facing up to the fact that the school system like ourselves and the rest of society is not and never will be perfect. Or to put it another way: "We concentrate on the problems that make up such a minuscule moment of our existence — We make the little black spots of our lives too important, and the ability to live and love and laugh and create seem overshadowed by them."

J.E. Butterworth

paid in southeastern Michigan and many other larger cities" seems absurd. We are a small city with smaller cost of living than larger cities. As a dental assistant, if I took a job in a southeastern large city, I also would earn a higher wage. No one forces us to stay where we are so I guess if teachers are discontent with their wages maybe the southeastern cities are calling you!

And, Mr. Gabriel, we've been told you have a residence in Detroit and rent in St. Johns. We wonder if you consider your small amount of taxes paid to the school district your fair share considering your wages? Why since you work here don't you live here? We also feel as many others have indicated the busing cuts are a form of blackmail for a yes vote. We will stand firm!

A comment was made by Mr. Whitford to the effect that if we laid off an administrator, after we paid unemployment wages we wouldn't gain much. So, we ask, will we really save money after losing state aid for busing and paying unemployment compensation to busing employees? We are concerned taxpayers and feel poor choices are being made with our money.

Blaming Earl Gabriel is called 'chintzey'

To the Editor:
I've sat back and listened to all the controversy about the upcoming millage vote and finally decided that maybe it's time to hear from a senior citizen.
When my husband was transferred to St. Johns from Greenville 32 years ago we were very pleased to find a school system that had for years received North Central accreditation. This means that students graduating from St. Johns will readily be accepted at practically any college of their choice. This superior rating has steadfastly been maintained until the present time. The taxpayers have been willing to accept their share of the responsibility to pay for this high standard of education by paying the taxes to support it.
Now it is our turn to let our children and grandchildren know that we're not going to let them down either. We'll do our share.
I've heard talk that "our taxes are so high; we can't afford anymore." I'm still proud to live in the United States with all of our privileges, luxuries and opportunities. The people living in other countries pay a lot more taxes than we do and they certainly don't have the opportunities.

I'd also like to say a word in defense of our school superintendent, Earl Gabriel. I think the people that are blaming him for everything that is going on are being rather chintzey. He's only been here two years and many of our millage problems have been going on for a long time. He has inherited these problems rather than causing them.
As senior citizens we know what it means to live on a fixed income that doesn't seem to keep pace with the economy but, nevertheless, we'll continue to vote "YES" when the schools need more millage to educate our children/grandchildren. The citizens of the past provided a good education for our children; can we do less for the children of the future?
Ruth Barclay
St. Johns

Earl Gabriel argues for unity

To the Editor:
I could not agree more with your readers that it is unfortunate that the children and their education has to be in the middle of millage elections. And so I would ask this community to rally around what is best for these children — for their total education. We need to put aside our petty grievances, our personal vilification of individuals, and work toward the common good of the St. Johns community and its educational system.
If there are staff members saying unkind things in the classrooms or around the community about parents; or if classroom discussion is side-tracked toward discussing our current election, I apologize to you on their behalf. But let me make it perfectly clear, we have admonished one and all to avoid such comments and discussion. It has never been our intent to take this issue to the parents through the classroom.
Nor was it my intent to suggest that we should be paying salaries equal to other high-cost-of-living areas of the state. It was my purpose to illustrate the impact those wages have on state-wide averages. Wages of all our employees are bargained through their respective unions, and thus reflect that process. What is an important comparison is that our teachers' salaries rank 18th out of 24 of the surrounding districts. We are required to bargain collectively as is done in industry even though we are in the "people business." This we have done and fair and equitable wages have been reached with all six of our employee groups.

the reality that we could not get a millage passed. When this community was asked to support one mill to improve our textbooks, replace our worn-out equipment and to install computers, it was defeated. That proposal came from a caring top-level administration and Board, who had the responsibility to let the public know that our educational system is in jeopardy.
Peer review of performance are interesting buzz-words, but they fall on deaf ears for a number of reasons too numerous to debate here. It is another issue to be addressed before millage elections, not during one. We have in place a strong system of staff evaluation and we are continuously working with the staff on personal development with dollars provided by the State for that specific purpose. Unfortunately too much time has to be allocated to budget-patching and millage elections, rather than improving the educational process.
Communication is a two way street: when someone speaks, someone has to listen; when someone writes, someone has to read. Too often people have selective hearing or reading. They hear only what they want to hear or see. They keep the volume down low, or pull in the blinders to maintain that selectivity.
As superintendent, I have been an advocate of the student and an advocate of strong communications. I have also been an advocate of obtaining public support for educational quality. Only when all else failed was it necessary to resort to the last vestige of funds available to save basic programs for kids — transportation and co-curricular programs.
The cold, heartless and uncaring people are not those who vote "yes" for the schools. Quite the contrary. No one believes more in the importance of a good basic education, or values a strong co-curricular program, or truly understands the need for a complete transportation system, than I and the Board do. But I also recognize that we can not be all things to all people without the full support — spiritual and financial — of all of you. Together we can make it happen, or together we can destroy that which we have come to take for granted.

I really do not believe that our school administration, school board, or community are uncaring. However, it is obvious there is a definite difference of opinion as to the solutions to our problems. Did it ever occur to anyone that it is because they do care about the future of our youth that the Board and administration have been willing to take such a strong although unpopular stand on issues and continue to fight for public support? The millage proposal is for more than one year, and was so designed so as to allow for some long-term solution and plans.
The public, not the administration, overwhelmingly rejected a guaranteed allocation of funds for busing last June and the needs of children can not be met without a strong faculty in the schools to teach them. Having them on picket lines is not a solution, or having schools closed closed while experiencing labor strife will not do one solitary thing to raise the educational level of children.
One only needs to closely follow our school board meetings to know that the school administrators continually propose to the Board many outstanding programs for implementation, only to be confronted with

I am a builder. I think positively. I believe in people. I believe in you. We need to unite together, to work toward a better understanding, to openly communicate in a frank, but friendly way, to deal with issues and not with personal animosities and a "get even" mentality. Bitterness and hate never built a nation or a school district, but love and hard work and understanding did. Let's be builders!

Special appreciation and thanks to all the people of Clinton County for your cooperation and support during my 21 years out of the past 28 years as your agricultural agent.
The Extension Service can be only as good as the support of the county people; for the volunteers donating their time, services and finances; for the County Commissioners providing secretarial staff, office facilities and other financial and public support; and for the county business community donating finances and special services for programs.

I will miss the close cooperation with county organizations, groups and governmental officials at all levels. Most of all I will miss working with and for the individuals and families of the county who ask for Extension assistance to resolve a concern or to improve their life in some way.
I will always remember the hundreds of retirement wishes received and the very fine open house. Best Wishes to all of you.

Who cares about children of St. Johns?

To the editor:
Who cares about the children in the St. Johns School District? In budget and policy decisions, the needs of the children must come first. Investment in children is an investment in the future of this country. Children must not be continuing victims of degenerative school and community politics. The loss of busing is the loss of an educational program, not just transportation to and from school. The loss to students of thousands of dollars in various scholarship aid, especially athletic scholarships would result in the waste of much human potential. The uncaring attitude on the part of many adults in the school administration, school board and community will do the most harm to the future generation of adults and taxpayers.
UNFORTUNATELY, the only short-term solution is to support the millage. Take out your anger and frustration on the appropriate school board members through recall and petition the board for a complete administrative reorganization in the school district. Fewer services for our children only makes the job for the high-level administrators easier.

The following is a list of long-term solutions:
1. A school transportation policy that will require the board to protect appropriate money to maintain the service of getting our children to and from school and to only use the bus fleet for other purposes as money permits (a policy containing that clause was rejected by the appropriate school administrators.)
• A school board that will put the needs of the children first, even at the risk of employee strikes.
• A school board that will hold top-level administrators accountable to high standards of performance and not let continuing poor performance totally destroy public support for the continuing operation of this school system.
• A staff of teachers that will work with the administration to establish a rigorous system of peer review that will weed out the small number of poorly performing teachers that seriously damage the reputation of all of the other good teachers in the district and destroy community support for improvement in teacher benefits.
• A staff of teachers that will work very hard at improving parent-teacher communications in a courteous, non-defensive professional and timely manner.
• An administrative staff that will learn to be flexible, creative and that communicates the whole truth to the whole school community throughout the entire school year, not just threatening information in crisis times that is often incomplete and contradictory and not sincere (i.e. communication in early September indicated that if the Sept. millage vote failed, buses would still run on US-27) and problem-solvers, rather than problem-creators and will have the ability to deal with parents with professional courtesy, and most importantly with compassion, rather than with excuses and false promises.

• A superintendent of schools that will put the needs of the students first in his budget recommendations;
• Change in State of Michigan laws that would protect this service for our children, but most importantly would protect their lives from the deliberate unsafe management policies of pupil transportation directors.
• A quality educational system is achieved by maintaining high standards of performance for all personnel and pupils of the school system;
• A community that recognizes that children are unique creations and have very diverse needs that requires a broad curriculum and needs adequate financial support to both maintain this curriculum and to recruit outstanding teachers (Fine Arts and athletics teach self-discipline and supply many of a child's psychological needs, giving that child a reason to stay in school and put forth more effort in his/her studies).
In summary, even though the current actions of the school board are unconscionable, the only short-term way to restore these cuts are to vote for the millage. Even though the property tax is the least desirable tax, a greater proportion of this school tax is recycled back into the community than any other tax we pay. Take out your frustrations on the people responsible for those cold, heartless and uncaring decisions, not on the children who are being hurt the most. Ask yourself before God, do I really love children enough to sacrifice some of my wants for their needs?

What did the Indians do at peace conferences? Well, our western Indians sat around and puffed on a peace pipe. But our east coast Indians had a different custom. They sat around and ate cranberries!

They prized the cranberry so highly they made it their symbol of peace. In fact, the high chief of the Delawares, whose main job was keeping peace among the sub-tribes of the region, was even called the Pakimintzen, which means "The Cranberry Eater."

The Indians also had other uses for cranberries. They used them as a source of red dye for their blankets. And they used cranberry juice in poultices to treat poison arrow wounds.

However, they called the little red berries sassamanesh. The Pilgrims changed the name to "crane-berries" — largely because the cranes loved to eat them — and the name was later simplified to "cranberries."

Until recent years, cranberries were sold fresh only, and were thought of almost entirely as a Thanksgiving and Christmas dish. But now that cranberry products are canned and frozen, they have grown into year-round favorites.

And they may come into greater use. One farmer co-operative which produces most of the world's cranberries, has more than 4000 recipes in its company files, including one for cranberry catsup and one — believe it or not — for cranberry perfume!

Incidentally, if you ever want to grade fresh cranberries, simply bounce them. The good, firm berries will bounce high. The soft, squashy ones will never make it. And that's my cue to remind you to buy your cranberries from Beck's... if you want "more bounce to the ounce!"

Santa's workshop

Theresa Silm

Santa's Workshop will be open to the public on Nov. 30.

That's right, thanks to the efforts of the Cooperative Extension Service 4-H Youth Program and the Clinton County Extension Homemakers you'll be able to visit Santa's Workshop at Rodney B. Wilson Junior High on the 30th from 10:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m.

Don't come just to watch though because Santa's elves will be expecting to teach you how to make some great holiday decorations and Christmas ornaments of your own. To find out exactly what's happening and what different things you could choose to make, contact the Extension Office for a copy of the workshop program.

The program is open to anyone who is interested and there is also a special Kid's Korner for youth between the ages of 6-12. Kid's Korner will have some special activities planned that are just right for kids. There will be plenty of things that they can make themselves and take home.

Each of the projects has a cost for materials but their is no instruction fee. The cost for each project is listed in the brochure and will be posted as you enter Santa's Workshop on Saturday.

Some of the special things offered will include lace net darning, bead ornaments, Care Bear ornaments, small pine cone wreaths, little lollipops and more.

Demonstrations are planned throughout the day and will include such topics as: advent wreaths, candy making, holiday nutritious treats, and quick meals for the holidays.

Instead of spending the Saturday after Thanksgiving fighting the crowds in stores, come and spend a relaxing day in Santa's Workshop learning some new skills and making some special holiday decorations with your own personal touch. Call 224-3288 for more information.

Theresa Silm is the 4-H Youth Agent for the Clinton County Cooperative Extension Service.

Hospital news

Roger Annis completes certification examination

Roger Annis, M.D., a member of Clinton Memorial Hospital's active medical staff, has successfully completed the American Board of Family Practice (ABFP) certifying examination.

Board certification signifies that the physician has met the high standards for quality established by the ABFP. Only those physicians who have completed a residency may apply through the American Board of Family Practice for certification.

The day-long examination covers most areas of medicine, including pediatrics, obstetrics, internal medicine, surgery, allergies, ear-nose-throat, and emergency medicine. Certification lasts for six years, at which time the physician must make application for reexamination, thereby ensuring that physicians seeking certification will maintain a high level of education and quality health care.

Nurse work spotlighted

Clinton Memorial Hospital held an "O.R. Day" recently, where the public was made aware of the various duties of operating room nurses.

Operating room nurses conduct pre-operative teaching with patients, serve as technicians while handling many medical instruments, and ensure sanitary conditions during and after surgery. In addition, operating room nurses may also serve as "recovery room" nurses, carefully watching over patients who have undergone surgery.

Clinton Memorial Hospital is served by a staff of five operating room nurses.

Clinton Memorial Hospital plans Radiologic Week

Clinton Memorial Hospital employs five full-time technologists, who perform a variety of exams including studies for fractures, abnormalities in tissues and organs, as well as mammography and ultrasound.

This past week marked "National Radiologic Technology Week", honoring those health care professionals employed as radiologic technologists, or "x-ray techs."

4-H Fair Board meets, elects new directors

The Clinton County 4-H Fair Association held its annual meeting on Nov. 11 at Smith Hall in St. Johns. Thirty-eight members were present at the meeting chaired by President Larry Phinney.

Each of the standing committees presented their annual reports and discussed the major improvements that were made at the fair in the previous year.

Following the reports of the other committees, the membership committee explained the role of the fair directors and introduced the eight candidates for the four terms being filled. The following were elected to serve: Ken Harris, Alice Hicks, Tracey Mohnke and Larry Sturgis.

President Phinney thanked each of the association members for their involvement and encouraged them to become active on one of the standing or special committees.

The directors met directly after the association meeting was adjourned and elected officers for 1986. They are: president, Larry Phinney; vice president, George Hazle, and treasurer, Donna Smith.

Bus drivers concerned

Both women agreed that applying for unemployment was unpleasant. Both felt that unemployment officials were less than sensitive.

"They don't make you feel real good about," said Richards. "It's a shock, really, to be in an unemployment line after 20 years."

Irish said the transportation cut "is not just about saving money."

He also said relations between school bus drivers and administrators have been strained.

The drivers, Irish said, felt a promise had been broken to them when the district began double bus runs in 1984. Irish said the drivers were promised that laid off drivers would be the first hired back but that the district subsequently hired other drivers without rehiring all of the laid-off drivers.

THE DRIVERS UNION last spring retained a labor consultant to represent them in their relations with the school district. A court case is pending between the bus drivers and the school district concerning an incident between a bus driver and an administrator.

"I think they'd like to break up our little union," Irish said.

St. Johns Superintendent of Schools Earl Gabriel said the intent of the busing cut was not to break up the union.

"The intent was to cut the budget where we could," he said. "We have stayed away from transportation over the past 10 years of silent cuts."

He also said his administration has a history of treating employees fairly.

"We try to go halfway with them when we can...past actions would indicate that we're not head hunting for any employee group or individual employee."

The bus drivers union has taken a public stand in support of the millage increase.

"This has caused so much tension and conflict," said Goldmam. "I guess that's the one thing that really bothers me."

Toughlove group is organized in Clinton County

By RICH WERTZ
Editor

Toughlove.

It may sound like the title of a love story starring Clint Eastwood but it is actually the name — and the philosophy — of an organization formed to help parents deal with wayward children.

Some people swear by it. Others give it only qualified support. One professional says it is "constructed to fail."

A recent television movie publicized the national organization; in Clinton County the force behind the formation of the group was one mother who tried and failed to control her son's behavior. Sharon — who in the tradition of Toughlove and other anonymous support groups asks that her last name not be used — says her son drank, smoked pot, skipped school and generally wrought havoc on the family's home life.

"I was ready for a straight jacket," she says, "blaming myself for what was going on."

SHE SAYS she "called all over" trying to find professional advice on how to deal with her son. She is not satisfied with the answers she was getting.

"They told us not to set rules or regulations if we wanted to keep our son at home," she says.

When one agency told her about a Toughlove organization in another county she decided it was worth a try.

"The first thing they asked me was 'would you put up with that from anyone else?'" she recalls.

Following the Toughlove method Sharon and her husband presented their son with two options.

"We gave him a choice," Sharon says. "He could live at home and live by the rules. Or he could leave."

THE RULES were neither complicated nor stringent, she says. He had to respect his parents and maintain passing grades in school. He could not come home drunk or high on other drugs. He had to feed and water his dogs every other week (His father would take of the dogs on alternate weeks.)

Or he could leave home. He chose to leave.

"His clothes were packed and he left," says Sharon.

He lived with friends at first, she says. Soon after he was expelled from school, he left town and within three months had been arrested for larceny. He is now out of town awaiting trial on that charge and will have to face the consequences without his parents intervening.

"He's old enough to make these choices on his own," she says. "It hurts but..."

HER SON, Sharon says, has not been abandoned. He has been provided with the name and telephone number of another Toughlove family. If he decides he wants to return home and live by the rules set by his parents that family will serve as an intermediary.

"Then you know he's sincere," Sharon says. "You always want to let your kid know you do love them no matter what their choices."

The point is not to attach blame, says Sharon. The point is that everyone should be responsible for their own actions.

"I'm not trying to say the kids are always wrong," she says. "Sometimes the parents are wrong. We don't have to put the blame anywhere. Whoever is causing the problem is going to be responsible for the consequences. The more you keep bailing them out, the more trouble they're going to get into."

BUT IT IS not easy, Sharon says, to step aside and let the consequences fall where they may when it is your child who is in trouble. A second major purpose of Toughlove is to provide group support for parents who decide to go the Toughlove route.

"We let parents know that they are not alone," Sharon says.

Loren Perry, director of counselors for St. Johns schools and a nationally certified family counselor, says that although he does have some concerns about the Toughlove method he does endorse it.

"You can't beat its effectiveness," he says. "The concept behind Toughlove from a counselor's point of view...is on target."

However, he says, he does have two concerns about the organization. He says that the leaders of the group should be careful not to let the needs of the parents for support obscure the essential purpose of the group, which is to change inappropriate behavior.

HE IS ALSO concerned that the Toughlove method may be used too soon or in the wrong situation. Toughlove leaders should be wary of thinking that because it work for them Toughlove is for everybody.

"It's not the solution for everybody," he says. "In many cases it is exactly what is recommended."

Perry says as a professional counselor he approaches bad behavior in the same way a doctor would approach a medical problem — "looking for the source of the conflict...and what we can do to effect a change."

If other methods do not work, he says, "it comes to the point where we say we've touched on these things and nothing has changed so we need to take a Toughlove stand."

The "medical" approach also applies to what parents go through, Perry says. Parents who have children with behavior problems undergo much the same sort of stress as parents who have children with severe medical problems.

Toughlove, he says, "helps parents give those messages in a straight, clear way. The old way was for people to say 'Get out of here, I've had it.'"

Richard Duranczyk, associate director of the Michigan Council on Crime and Delinquency, is a lawyer who deals with the juvenile justice system on a daily basis. The agency is a "citizen action group devoted to reform of the criminal and juvenile justice system" and to increasing citizen participation in the system. Privately funded, the agency receives financial support from the United Way.

Duranczyk is no fan of Toughlove.

"I have a reaction against it," he says. "The concept of holding one responsible for one's actions is great. But on the other hand these kids need support more than hard and fast rules."

Some people swear by it. Others give it only qualified support. One professional says it is 'constructed to fail.'

The Toughlove method, says Duranczyk, tends to obscure the role of the parents in creating the problem.

"The problem is that you usually have a 14, 15, or 16 year old who is messing up," he says. "Those kids did not become that way overnight. Most of those kids are the products of ineffective parenting at best, or neglect at worst. Not always, but I don't think we can hold the parents blameless."

Duranczyk also says the method is flawed in that it seeks to impose rules on youngsters at the very time in their lives when it is normal for young people to go through a period of rebellion. It is appropriate to impose rigid parental rules on very young children, he says, while adolescents should be included in the process of setting the rules.

"All of a sudden at 14 or 15 years old they have all these rules imposed upon them when they are at an age when any rules fly on the face of where they are coming from," he says. "The thing is constructed for failure, however much better it makes the parents feel."

In order to solve the problem, he says, parents will have to examine their own behavior as well as the behavior of their children.

"With Toughlove there seems to be the feeling they don't have to change their behavior," he says. "Only the kids have to change their behavior."

In Clinton County, the Toughlove group Sharon started is still small — currently three families are meeting once a week at the municipal building in Ovid. Parents who are interested in becoming part of the group may call her at 834-5332, from 6 to 10 p.m.

Dawn Harris

The first of the winter snow recently hit us. This sudden cold weather has been a sharp reminder of how cold it really gets in the wintertime.

If your house has really dropped in temperature then you should be thinking about weatherizing your home. Hopefully there is still a little time left for caulking and weatherstripping. On the next warm day make it a goal to fill in all of those air leaks around window and door frames. Another place you should check for air leaks is around electrical outlets and switches.

If your electrical outlets and/or switches are letting in the cold you'll probably notice it on windy days. There are commercially available foam gaskets made to fit behind the switch and outlet plates. They are nearly the same as an egg carton lid or the trays that meat and produce are packaged with. The styrofoam types are best for homemade infiltration gaskets.

Switch plates can be safely removed by taking out the two screws, one above and one below the switch. Duplex outlet plates have one screw between the two outlets. As long as you keep your screwdriver out of the receptacle openings there is no danger in removing and replacing the cover plates.

Using the plates as templates, draw the outline and necessary cutouts directly from the foam. A razor blade works well for the cutting. Cut the foam slightly smaller than the cover plate so that none of it will show around the edges.

Install one of your homemade cost-free gaskets under each of the switch plates and outlet covers on the outside walls of the house. Be careful and only tighten the screws as much as you need. Most cover plates are plastic and will break if the screws are over-tightened.

If you have a dimmer switch for lights it may be the type that creates heat in the process. Do not use any kind of gasket under the plate of this kind of switch. No heat should be created at any other kind of switch or outlet. If you do notice heat at other switches or outlets there may be a problem with the wiring.

Your cost-free infiltration gaskets will help keep out the cold for a good many years.

Aurand — Walker

Reside in Lansing

The Shrine of the Little Flower in Royal Oak was the setting for the Oct. 12 marriage of Angela Maria Walker and Gregory Dale Aurand.

Vows were exchanged by the couple during an afternoon ceremony officiated by Father Prus. The bride is the daughter of Alan and Yolanda Walker of Royal Oak. The groom's parents are Dale and Faye Aurand of St. Johns.

For her wedding the bride wore her mother's wedding gown of dupioni silk fashioned with alexcon lace, featuring a fitted bodice with a chapel length train. She wore a halo headpiece fashioned with alexcon lace, satin rosettes on white satin ribbon with a finger-tip veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis with ivy.

Monica Walker, sister of the bride, from Royal Oak was maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Mary Walker, sister of the bride from Royal Oak, Rebecca Holms and Susan Bauer, friends of the bride from Royal Oak, and Linda Duguay, sister of the groom from Ann Arbor.

Serving as best man was Mark Tourek, friend of the groom from Grand Rapids.

Groomsmen were Rick Johnson, friend of the groom from St. Louis, Mo., Michael Taylor from Lansing and Paul Duguay from Ann Arbor, both brothers-in-law of the groom, and Marshall Walker from Royal Oak, brother of the bride.

Angela and Gregory Aurand

Serving also as ushers were Paul Duguay and Marshall Walker.

Deborah Taylor, sister of the groom served as reader for the wedding.

An evening reception was held at the Glen Oaks Country Club, Farmington Hills.

The couple resides in Lansing following a honeymoon in northern Michigan.

The Wohlscheids

45th Anniversary

Isidore and Geneva Wohlscheid of Pewamo will celebrate their 45th Wedding Anniversary on Dec. 1, with a Mass of Thanksgiving at 1:00 p.m. at St. Joseph Church, Pewamo.

An open house hosted by the couple's children will follow in the St. Joseph gym. Friends, neighbors and relatives are invited to join the Wohlscheids in this celebration. The couple requests no gifts.

Adventists conduct annual fund campaign

The St. Johns Seventh-day Adventist Church will conduct its annual World Service Appeal from now until Christmas. This appeal is made each year by church members who will solicit door to door and at various businesses in Clinton County.

Contributions by county residents will go for the Adventist work in three basic areas: community services (which includes local disaster relief), health education, and education. One hundred percent of the funds collected will go to these areas of public concern.

Many underprivileged and handicapped children have benefited by these funds at the various summer camps in Michigan. Cooking schools, health education and five-day plans to stop smoking have given hundreds of people new ways to take better care of themselves.

The St. Johns Seventh-day Adventists urge residents to be generous when called upon by a volunteer. Each volunteer will carry a report for 1984 work around the world and will be wearing identification. As Christmas approaches, the church will organize caroling bands to bring the songs of Christmas to neighborhoods.

For more information, contact the St. Johns Seventh-day Adventist Church, 1400 S. Oakland Street, St. Johns, 224-7779.

In St. Johns

Parking rules are changed

Homeowners on the 200 block of E. Walker Street in St. Johns should get some relief from traffic congestion in front of their homes, following action by the St. Johns City Commission last Tuesday.

The Commission, at the request of two homeowners on the street, approved limiting parking to two hours on the east half of the north side of the 200 block of East Walker. Loyd Campbell and Ron Huard complained that without the restriction employees of downtown business parked all day in front of their homes.

The south side of the street was already limited to two hour parking.

In another parking change, the Commission approved the establishment of fifteen minute parking spaces on the north side of E. Walker from Spring street to the driveway of the former fire hall. Also on the north side of that block, three new two-hour spaces were added in the middle of the block. On the south side of the street five new two-hour spaces were approved.

The new parking spaces were made possible when the Fire Department moved to its new location on State Street.

NOTICE TO GENERAL TELEPHONE OF MICHIGAN CUSTOMERS

NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY TO SUBMIT COMMENTS

General Telephone Company of Michigan (General) has asked the Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC) for authority to establish an extended time period to implement the Detariffing of Customer Premises Equipment (CPE). On August 27, 1985 the MPSC issued an Order in Case No. U-8220 which established the procedure to be followed by independent telephone companies in Michigan, including General, in detariffing embedded CPE. The Order authorized any company to petition the MPSC for an extension of time to recover its embedded CPE investment in order to minimize any incremental increase in intrastate revenue requirement resulting from the implementation of this Order.

General seeks to extend the amortization period for its embedded CPE investment from December 31, 1987 to March 31, 1989 if such extension is necessary to recover embedded investment.

The matter has been docketed by the MPSC as Case No. U-8220 and you may comment on this by sending a letter to the MPSC expressing your concerns and ideas. A member of the MPSC Staff will then contact you to discuss the various alternatives available to you to pursue this matter. Send your comments to the Michigan Public Service Commission at 6545 Mercantile Way, Lansing, Michigan 48910, and reference Case No. U-8220 — General Telephone Company. Your comments must be received by the Commission before November 29, 1985.

Area students learn safety

Sixty-five students from St. Johns and Westphalia area schools were among the 2,100 safety patrolers who participated in the 28th annual Central Michigan University-AAA Michigan Safety Patrol Rally Day held recently in Mt. Pleasant.

"In the course of a school year, these patrolers spend nearly 300 hours each protecting their fellow students and we hold the rally yearly to show them how much we appreciate their efforts," said Robert Cullen, AAA Michigan Safety and Traffic manager.

The patrolers and their chaperones were guests of CMU at the Chippewa's football game with Miami of Ohio. They were also entertained by CMU cheerleaders and AAA staff at a pep rally held at Dan Rose Fieldhouse prior to the game.

Rep. Randall schedules Fowler breakfast meet

State Representative Gary Randall and local officials have planned a Dutch treat breakfast meeting for Nov. 20, at the East End Bar and Restaurant, located on M-21 in Fowler.

"Area residents interested in attending this Dutch treat breakfast are encouraged to come," said

Randall. "Items of state and local interest will be discussed, such as legislation dealing with governmental liability and immunity, medical malpractice, and recent attempts by the legislature to provide a more equitable means of assisting farmland and real property."

Big Brothers/Sisters plan Christmas party

Clinton County Big Brothers/Big Sisters will hold a Christmas Party on Dec. 14 from 1 until 4 p.m. at the First Congregational Church in St. Johns.

All matched Bigs and Littles are asked to attend together. The agency will provide all those who are presently unmatched with a Big for the day so that everyone will have someone to share the day with. Those attending whose Big is unable to come on this date may ask a parent or other adult friend to accompany them.

Clinton County Big Brothers/Sisters have added another telephone line to help in receiving calls. The new number is 224-6419.

The Fowler fans stood and cheered their team and Coach Steve Spicer walked across the field to shake hands with Battle Creek St. Philip's coach, Mike Hume.

It was a classy end to an exciting football season for the Eagles.

They lost 13-7 to the Fighting Tigers last Friday in the regional round of the State Class D football playoffs at Sexton's Memorial Field in Lansing. But, they remain "winners" in the hearts of Fowler fans and in the eyes of their coaching staff.

"The kids played good, especially in the second half," Spicer said. "We shed a few tears after the game. They had worked hard all year — it was just our turn to lose, I guess."

It was a hard fought game from start to finish with the defense for both teams making big plays when they needed to.

FOWLER RECEIVED the opening kick, but lost the ball on a fumble on the second play from scrimmage.

That pretty much set the tone for the first half, as Fowler never really got on track offensively — at least not to the extent that they usually have this season.

The Eagles held St. Philip on their first possession of the game; then were forced to punt themselves.

For the next five minutes and twenty-eight seconds, St. Philip controlled the ball and the game. They drove from their own 31 yard line to score the first points of the game, with most yardage coming on short gains by running backs Devin Sherrod and Mike Reece.

"Sherrod was very quick," Spicer said. "He'd bounce off tackles and go on for one or two more yards."

Fowler wasted no time in scoring when they got the ball back on the ensuing punt.

Matt Braun returned the ball to the Fowler 27 on the kick off and Curtis Feldpausch almost broke for a touchdown, running the ball 55 yards to the Battle Creek 18 on the first play from scrimmage. That ended the first quarter.

A PITCH OUT from Dean Koenigsnecht to Braun, and incomplete pass to Dave Miller, gave the Eagles a fourth and six situation. In what was called a "brilliant" coaching call, Koenigsnecht hit Lavern Feldpausch on a tight end screen pass to put Fowler on the board with six points.

A flag on the extra point attempt forced Kevin Schmitt to kick over — which he did to tie the score at 7-7.

Another time consuming Battle Creek drive ended in a touchdown with 4:10 left in the half. An "early whistle" during the drive gave a loose ball back to St. Philip which could have made a difference in the outcome of the game.

The extra point by the Tigers was no good, making the score 13-7.

Second half action saw the Fowler offense come to life while the defense contained the running of Sherrod and Reece to a greater degree than in the first half.

Jerry Wohlfert consistently punted the ball deep into Battle Creek territory whenever the Eagles did turn the ball over, putting the Tiger offense at a definite disadvantage.

A FIFTEEN YARD PASS from Koenigsnecht to Braun along with strong running by Miller, Feldpausch and Thelen brought the ball down to the St. Philip 12 yard line at the end of the third quarter in a sustained drive that began on the Fowler 16.

Miller punched the ball up two yards for the Eagles, but three straight pass plays to the end zone were broken up by a determined Battle Creek secondary.

Battle Creek took over on downs only to cough up the ball on their second play from scrimmage on their own 15 yard line.

It seemed to be the break Fowler needed.

Short yardage runs by Miller and Feldpausch took the ball to the Tiger nine where Koenigsnecht was thrown for a loss on on fourth down. Battle Creek took over again.

The Fowler defense allowed only one St. Philip first down for the remainder of the game, while the offense made a gallant effort to score. With time running out on the clock, the Eagles took over one last time.

Koenigsnecht threw a 16 yard pass to Matt Braun at the Battle Creek 44. Then, with just 1:20 left to play, an interception gave the ball to the Tigers who sat on it to end the game.

THERE WILL BE NO trip to the Silver Dome for the Eagles this year, but don't count them out for 1986.

When asked what his plans were for the next few months, Spicer said "Rest."

"The boys are involved in basketball this winter and track in the spring. We'll stay away from football until next June," he said. "We try not to interfere with the other sports. And, they need time to just be 'kids' for awhile too."

If past performance is any indication, it seems to be a program that works well.

1,107 points

Eiseler sets record

One thousand, one hundred, seventeen points.

That's the new St. Johns girls basketball scoring record set by Brenda Eiseler last week in the Redwings 68-39 victory over Corunna. The win also gave St. Johns the MMB conference title with a 16-1, 9-0 record for the year.

Eiseler broke all-stater Sue Pearsall's 1,101 record shortly after the contest began. Ironically, Pearsall had established her record in a game with Corunna also.

Leading all scorers was Eiseler with 18 points, eight rebounds and five steals. Cheryl Rademacher was one behind her with 17 baskets and five assists.

Kerry Porter added 13 points, Mary Murphy had 10 to go with her six steals and seven assists, and Karen Simon had nine points and four steals. Debbie Bensinger completed Redwing scoring with one point.

St. Johns shot an even 50 percent from the field and 51.6 percent from the free throw line.

The lady Redwings close out their regular season tonight in a game at home versus Alma. They begin their district play this Thursday at Owosso High School, taking on Flint Southwestern, 2-15.

"We've had a chance to scout Southwestern and Flushing," said Coach Beth Swears. "They play a lot of Flint area schools."

Should the Redwings win on Thursday, they will play again on Saturday at 3:30 against Flushing (11-8) who received a bye in the opening round.

"We just have to be prepared," Swears said, "and play the best we can."

O-E set for districts

The Ovid-Elsie girls basketball team closes out their regular season in a game at home tonight with Fulton. The Mauaders were winners in two contests last week, defeating Alma 57-32 and Cheshaning by a one point margin, 50-49.

"I think the girls played one of their best games on Tuesday against Alma," said Coach Mary Hudacek. "We shot about 51 percent and used some girls who haven't seen much action this year. They played as good a defense as the starters."

Shelby Terpstra led all scorers with her 13 points.

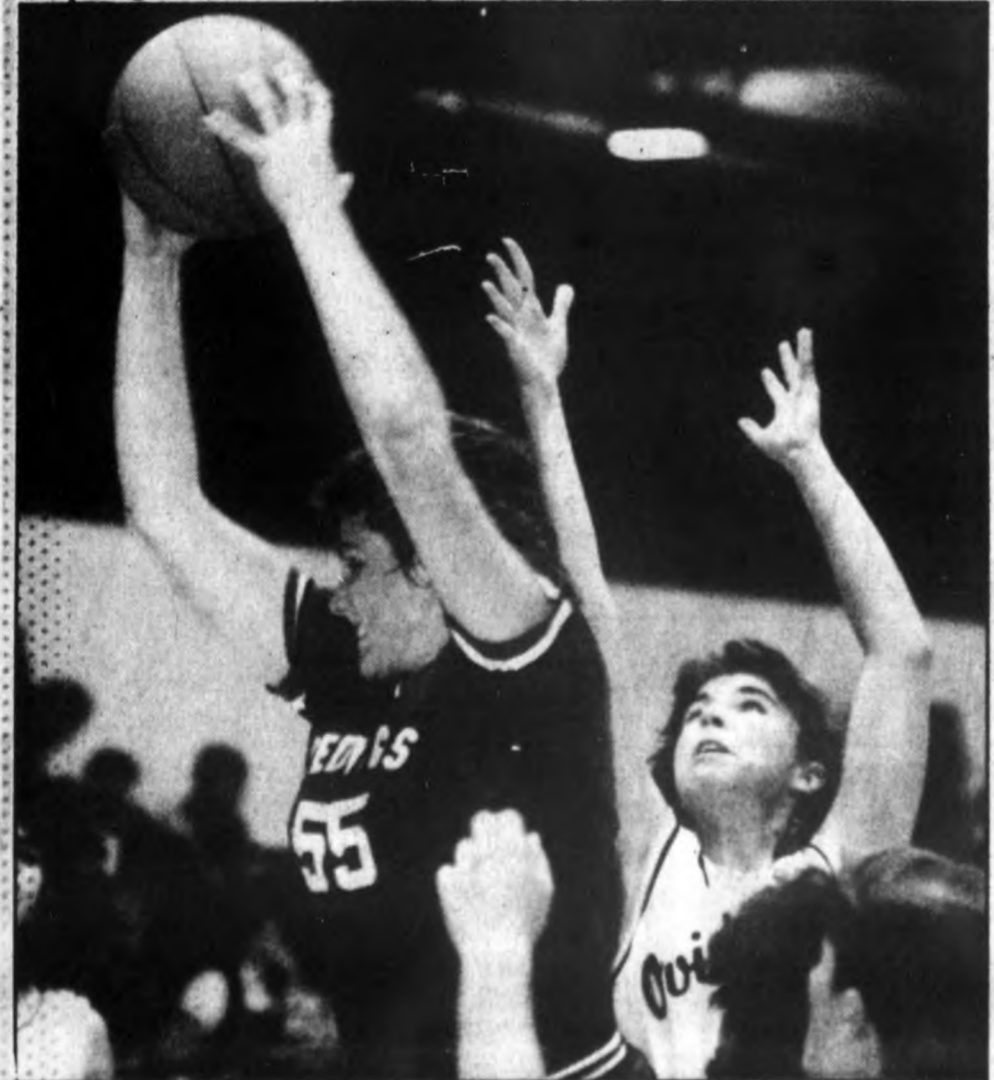

The close Friday night match with Cheshaning came down to free throws — missed ones.

The Mauaders led through much of the final quarter. Cheshaning pulled to within one point with just seven seconds on the clock when Chris Dick was fouled and went to the line to shoot. She missed, and Ovid-Elsie took the ball and ran out the clock to take the victory.

The Mauaders host their own Class B district. They play Durand Thursday night in opening round action. They will play again on Saturday, assuming they win, against Saginaw Swan Valley at 1:00 p.m.

"Durand is pretty good," said Hudacek. "They're on top of their league. The kids are excited about playing. Some of them have never played in Districts before."

CCN All-area football team features stellar players

By RHONDA GAFFNEY
Sports Editor

There is no "Refrigerator" on this roster — just talented young athletes who have played football on a variety of Clinton County teams this season and played it with a degree of excellence to give them the name, "All-Area".

Coaches from the five area schools which the Clinton County News covers on a regular basis were asked to submit names of players from their teams who they felt were among the best they had played against this year. An All-Area team was compiled from those suggestions.

The CCN presents this team to its readers with a note of thanks to the players and coaching staffs of all the schools involved.

THE QUARTERBACK POSITION goes without dispute to Dean Koenigsnecht of Fowler. The statistics speak for themselves: 300 yards rushing on 46 carries, 142 yards completed passing, nine touchdowns. Dean also is a punt return man on special teams, running eleven back at an average of 18.1 yards per return.

The remainder of the offensive backfield for this mythical team lines up with Pewamo-Westphalia's Dennis Theis flanked by Don Price from Fulton and Paul Travis from St. Johns.

Theis carried the ball often, and well, for P-W, averaging 53 yards a carry for a season total of 1,021. Price, often called Fulton's "workhorse", had 930 season yards on 166 carries and Travis gained 805 yards on 101 carries good for almost eight yards a carry.

EVERY GOOD BACKFIELD should have a strong line to do the blocking.

The man responsible for getting the snap to the quarterback, and taking all kinds of abuse following it, is the center — in this case, Mike Schafer from St. Johns. Schafer was named to the second team all-league in the Mid-Michigan B conference and received the 101 Percent Award from his Redwing teammates.

Offensive guard spots are filled by a Redwing and a Marauder — Jeff Maurer and Rob Pohl. A first team all-league choice, Pohl "did things people hadn't seen done in years at Ovid-Elsie" according to his coach. At 6' 1", 210 pounds, Maurer opened more than a few holes for his running backs at St. Johns.

Dave Thelen from Fowler and Steve Winson of Fulton are picks for offensive tackle. A first team all-league tackle in his junior year, Thelen was chosen "the best" offensive blocker on his team. Standing 6' and weighing 190 pounds, Winson was an "awesome" figure to opponents.

For a quarterback, it's useful to have a reliable end to throw the ball to — Brent Irtter's 374 yards and 28 receptions and Bill Schneider's grabs make them both suitable targets at the end position.

IT HAS BEEN SAID that the "best offense is a good defense." Defensive linemen are responsible for a large share of the workload in stopping the offense from scoring. Mike Koyné, lineman from Ovid-Elsie, played exceptionally well throughout the season. He had 73 tackles on the year, nine of those for losses.

A quartet of big ballplayers fill the balance of the defensive line: Ron Johnson of Fulton, Steve Walker from Ovid-Elsie, Troy Thelen from Pewamo-Westphalia, and Dave Miller from Fowler.

Ron Johnson played some outstanding ball from his defensive tackle position. He had 68 tackles on the year with 24 of those for minus yardage. He also had one pass interception and recovered four fumbles. For his efforts, Johnson was named first team all-league this year.

A total of 80 tackles, 10 for losses, and four fumble recoveries made life miserable for any back trying to run against Steve Walker. Troy Thelen was the second leading tackler for the P-W Pirates, and Dave Miller's 30 tackles was only one less than Fowler's leader, another Dave, Thelen.

DEFENSIVE LINEBACKERS are Dave Fowler of Ovid-Elsie who has 294 career tackles for the Marauders; Jerry Wohlert from Fowler with 37 tackles, one interception and one fumble recovery; and the leading tackler for Pewamo-Westphalia, Terry Evans.

A "Foreback" Bobby from O-E, fills one defensive back position. He intercepted 11 passes during the year and was named to the MMB first team all-league as a junior.

Number 30, Matt Braun from Fowler, fills the other defensive back hole. He has also been known to catch passes thrown by QB Koenigsnecht from time to time.

David Stephens, a stand-out at defensive safety for Fulton, is used in that role on this line-up. He was busy making 71 tackles, intercepting ten passes and recovering one fumble during the course of the year. Stephens was also named to the all-league team for the CMAC.

A VITAL PART of any truly good football team is its kicker. Kevin Schmitt could have been mentioned earlier as either offensive end or defensive linebacker for Fowler. However, his consistency in putting the ball deep on kick offs and extra point success, 18 of 22, make him more valuable to this area team in the position of kicker.

There is no team, no "team unity", "team goal", "team effort" without a coach. Head Coach for the Fowler Eagles, Steve Spicer, has had many complimentary things written and said about his ability to coach and lead his players — for a good reason — he does it so well and with such consistency. "Spud" is spoken highly of by his coaching colleagues in every area school — we name him Coach of the All-Area Team.

Our congratulations to all the players for all the schools, whether mentioned in this article or not. Each contributed in his own unique way to his team. And the key word remains the same — Team.

New A.D. named at DeWitt High School

By MARILYN HESS
DeWitt Editor

Greg Wieman

If all goes well, DeWitt High School will have a new athletic director before competition in the winter sports begins.

Greg Wieman, a teacher and coach from Hillsdale Community Schools, has been chosen as DeWitt's new assistant principal/athletic director. If the Hillsdale Board of Education approves his departure at their meeting tonight, Wieman should be clear to start in DeWitt on Monday, Dec. 2.

Wieman, who is originally from Whitehall, says he applied for the position because he wanted to move from teaching into administration. He says DeWitt has "a very excellent system — both in academics and athletics."

He's looking forward to dealing with both aspects in his new position. Wieman taught economics, government, and psychology at Hillsdale, and coached varsity tennis and basketball.

He was named High School Teacher of the Year for the 1983-84 school year, and was nominated Class B

Tennis Coach of the Year.

High School Principal Fred Goers says Wieman was chosen over the other 32 applicants for Ron Mead's position because of his athletic experience, and because "he'll fit in with the school and the community, and reflect the same type of values."

"Also, there was an observation that we'll be able to work well together," he says.

Parents who attended the school board meeting Nov. 11 when Wieman was officially hired were encouraged that he has had some experience with Students Against Drunk Driving. Wieman was to be Hillsdale's S.A.D.D. advisor for this year. Parents had expressed concern at the meeting about the growing alcohol problem at the high school, especially among athletes.

Wieman, who is 31, says he had a lot of good experiences in his tenure at Hillsdale, and says he believes he improved the programs he was involved in.

What's he got in store for DeWitt? "I'm going to need to assess the needs before I make any changes," he says.

Wieman has a wife, Kris, and two children. Jill is two years old, and Grant is five months old.

P-W gridders gear up for 1986

Eleven returning starters and sixteen juniors in all, should make the Pewamo-Westphalia Pirates a team to be reckoned with in the Central Michigan Athletic Conference next year.

"I'd swear that we were a better club this year than our record indicates," Coach Kurt Mabie said of P-W's 3-2, 5-4 ending record.

No one would question the fact that P-W plays a tough schedule. They opened this year with a non-league game against Lansing Catholic Central, currently in the state football play-offs, and gave conference foe, Fowler, all they wanted and more in their game midway through the year.

"Overall we were pleased with our season," Mabie said. "These kids have good heads on their shoulders. They came back to win this year when they were down."

The Pirates will miss senior running back, Dennis Theis. His 1,021 total yards was just three short of the school record. Bill Schneider, "a speedster", and Troy Thelen, second leading P-W tackler, will also leave some empty space to fill next year.

Quarterback Dave Stump will be returning, as will the leading tackler for the Pirates, junior linebacker, Terry Evans.

"We're losing one side of the line," Mabie remarked, "but have the other side coming back."

"The kids are eager to start weight training," the coach said. "We'll be lifting three times a week through Aug. 12, 1986."

When do they begin? "We start after deer season" — Coach Mabie has his priorities in order.

All-league chosen in CMAC and MMB

Area teams made a fine showing in the balloting for the Central Michigan Athletic Conference All-League team honors conducted last week. Coaches from teams within the conference cast their votes annually for individuals they feel deserve special recognition.

Schools represented in the conference are: Fulton, Pewamo-Westphalia, Fowler, Laingsburg, Potterville and Portland St. Pat.

Six players from county schools were selected to the Offensive Line: Bill Schneider and Marty Smith from Pewamo-Westphalia, Dave Stephens and Steve Winsor from Fulton, and Kevin Schmitt and Dave Thelen from Fowler.

Rounding out the offensive line from other schools were: Kirk Wurm from Laingsburg, Shawn Hubbard and Stevano Dileria from Potterville and Mark Smith from St. Pat. Receiving Honorable Mention were Eric and Ed Wurm and Steve Dick.

Three well known names are noted on the list for Offensive Running Backs: Don Price from Fulton, Dennis Theis from P-W and Dean Koenigsnecht from Fowler. Other backs were: Greg Hutchin from Laingsburg, Steve Lichter from Potterville and Mike Lehman from Portland St. Pat.

Area schools dominated the defensive line-up with Dale Keilen from Pewamo-Westphalia, Ron Johnson from Fulton, and Dave Thelen and Dave Miller from Fowler elected to the Defensive Line. Honorable Mention went to: Bill Silvernail from P-W, Matt Smith from St. Pat and Mark Fizzell and Phil Braschaw from Laingsburg.

Defensive linebackers receiving votes were: Kevin Schmitt and Jerry Wohlert from Fowler, Glenn King from Laingsburg, Tod Walden from Fulton, and Jerry Evans and Troy Thelen from Pewamo-Westphalia.

Mike Cress from Laingsburg, Brent Miller from Potterville and Mike Lehman from Portland St. Pat were noted as Honorable Mention for Defensive Linebacker.

In the Defensive backfield Dean Koenigsnecht from Fowler, Doug Schmitt from Pewamo-Westphalia, Steve Lichter from Potterville, Dave Stephens from Fulton and John Pratt from Laingsburg received honors. Honorable Mention in this category went to: Dominic Brown from Laingsburg, John Graben from Potterville, Bob Vashaw from St. Pat and Matt Braun from Fowler.

Koenigsnecht from Fowler was named Captain for the Offensive Team, while Glenn King from Laingsburg was selected as Defensive Captain.

Conference coaches decided to give Honorable Mention recognition to special players who they felt had contributed in an extra way to their team.

These players were: Mike Guthrie, Don Price and Matt Kissane from Fulton; Shawn Hubbard, John Graben and Brent Miller from Potterville; Darrell Heckman, Dick Thelen and Andy Schneider from Pewamo-Westphalia; Jim Goodman, John Willemine and Don Gunderman from St. Pat; Rex Thelen, Brian Schueller and Bruce Schmitt from Fowler; Jim Shaw, Scott Torra and Drey Churches from Laingsburg.

The Mid-Michigan B All-Conference team does not boast an abundance of Redwings or Marauders.

"Chesaning dominated the voting," St. Johns coach Bart Kjolhede said of that schools nine first-place selections. "I guess that's to be expected. You always feel you have quality players though too, who could have been first team as easily as second."

Ovid-Elsie coach, Dennis Baratono was pleased with three Marauder candidates placing on the first team — Bobby Foreback at defensive back, Rob Pohl at offensive left guard, and Dave Fowler at the defensive linebacker position.

"If Pohl had played on a team that saw a lot of wins, he would have been recognized outside the league," Baratono said. He had high praise for Foreback, "the finest back I've ever coached", and Fowler who had 294 tackles during his O-E career.

Ovid-Elsie placed two gridders, Mike Koyné at nose guard and Steve Walker at left tackle, on the second team all-league. "They were as good as any we played against this year," Baratono added.

Although no Redwings have a first team berth, there are some outstanding players on the second team.

Brent Irer set a school record with his 28 receptions for 374 yards at the tight end position. He and Paul Travis, tailback, "could have played for anybody," said Coach Kjolhede. Travis had 805 rushing yards on the year.

The centers, lining up against each other, are Mike Schafer at offensive center and Ric Myszak at the noseguard position. "Schafer got the 101 Percent Award at the end of the season," said Kjolhede. Myszak was second for St. Johns in the quarterback sack department and blocked several kicks as well.

Rounding out the selection for St. Johns was Ken Jewison, a junior defensive back, whose 36 tackles and 36 assists were a bright spot in the Redwing season. A complete listing for First Team follows:

Theis volleys for Ferris

Ferris State College sophomore Patty Theis, of Pewamo-Westphalia, was named the Great Lakes Conference "Player of the Week" for leading the Bulldogs to their fourth straight GLIAC volleyball championship.

Theis dominated the recent conference tournament at Lake Superior State College with 43 kills and 44 blocked shots in the three Bulldog victories. She was a major factor in Ferris' come from behind win over Grand Valley in the finals as she led the Bulldogs with 19 kills, a .350 percentage and 21 blocks.

A middle hitter, Theis broke four school records en route to earning her third GLIAC "Player of the Week" honor this season. Her 12 block assists against Grand Valley broke the school record for a single match, and she also holds season marks with 442 kills, 103 block assists and 98 block solos.

Clinton County News 224-2361

Group to boost reading books

Clinton County now has its own group of book boosters, following the first meeting last Tuesday of the Clinton Reading Council.

The organization, open to educators and parents, will promote reading and effective teaching of reading, in the county. It is affiliated with the International Reading Association and the Michigan Reading Association.

At the first official meeting of the council following its organization, members heard Merri Warren, an assistant professor at Aquinas College, speak on the subject "Creative Ways to use Children's Literature."

"I'm kind of excited about getting kids to think and enjoy school," said Warren during an interview.

Warren, who holds degrees in education and reading instruction, said starting a council locally will help teachers apply new skills in the classroom. A local council, she said, can promote reading more effectively than an occasional lecture by an outside expert because the council will provide a continuing effort.

Warren also said the use of children's literature in the classroom helps build good self-images for children and makes learning something they want to do.

It is the first new council formed in Michigan in two years, bringing the total in Michigan to 43.

Membership for the year is $5 and includes four speakers and newsletters. For further membership information contact Jane Knight, 224-7830, or Margaret Zink, 224 6251, in the St. Johns area; Jan Prybis, 337-2408, in the DeWitt-Bath area; or Cheryl Gruenberg, 834-5454, in the Ovid-Elsie area.

SCHOLAR — Merri Warren, assistant professor at Aquinas College, was the guest speaker at the first meeting of the Clinton Reading Council last Tuesday.

Arts Council to hold workshops

The Clinton County Arts Council will sponsor a series of holiday workshops throughout November and December to provide area residents with an opportunity to learn both folk and modern holiday crafts. All workshops will be held at the Gallery/Gift Shop located at the corner of US-27 and North Clinton Ave. in St. Johns.

NOV. 18 — 6:30 p.m. Mirror etching and sun catchers, Sue Snyder and Clara Algate instructors, $3 for both projects.

NOV. 20 — 7:00 p.m. Pine cone wreath, Kate Mullen instructor, $10.

NOV. 21 — 6:30 p.m. Mini wall basket, Bea Frechen instructor, $6.

NOV. 23 — 1:00 p.m. Folded star ornament, Kate Mullen instructor.

NOV. 25 — 7:00 p.m. Candle wicking lavender sachet, Alice Smith instructor, $3.50.

NOV. 26 — 7:00 p.m. Scents of Christmas — three projects including a large cinnamon bundle, pomander ball and dried fruit nosegay, Pasqua Warstler instructor, $5.50 for all three projects.

DEC. 4 — 7:00 p.m. Folk art block houses, set of seven back side spells "welcome", Nancy Derosia instructor, $10.

DEC. 5 — 7:00 p.m. Wicker bells, set of three, Alice Smith instructor, $5.

DEC. 10 — 6:30 p.m. Christmas ornament workshop includes three projects — Thistle Mouse, Thistle Tree, Quilted Christmas Ball, Kaye Pilmore instructor.

DEC. 11 — 6:30 p.m. Mirror etching and sun catchers, Sue Snyder and Clara Algate instructors, $3 for both projects.

DEC. 18 — 7:30 p.m. Australian Locker Hooking, wall sampler, Jean Huston instructor, $10.

Materials are included in the fees, but small tools are needed in some classes. All workshops will run two to three hours with completion of each project assured. Registration may be made by phoning the Gallery at 224-2957 on Wednesday through Sunday, from 1:00 until 6:00 p.m. and Friday until 9:00 through December, or by calling Pasqua Warstler at 224-8857.

Class size is limited. Early registration is advised.

Florence Horn of Elsie will demonstrate water color technique and Jim Horn, fly tying, on Nov. 23 at the Gallery.

Grandparents to visit Fulton

Grandparents Day will be held at Fulton Middle School on Nov. 19 and 22.

On Tuesday, Nov. 19, grandparents of children in grades 1-3 may attend classes and join their grandchildren for lunch. Cost of lunch is $1.40.

Grandparents of kindergarten students will also meet on this date.

Grandparents with grandchildren in grades 4-7 will attend classes on Friday, Nov. 22. Lunch will be served at a cost of $1.40.

Those grandparents planning on attending the lunches are asked to make reservations by calling 236-7234.

GOP reports meeting

Speaker for the Nov. 7 meeting of the Clinton County Republicans was Bonnie Wickerham, register of deeds for Clinton County.

Jack Frasier reported for the spring of 1986. Schuette Fundraiser in Midland last week. James Baker was speaker at the event which attracted 880 Republicans.

Wickerham has worked in the Register of Deeds office for 16 years, serving as Register for nine and one half years. The Register of Deeds is the official recording officer for the county as established in 1837. All real estate records as well as financing statements on personal property are filed in her office.

Besides talking about the duties of her office, Wickerham shared with her audience some of her personal philosophy.

"You get out of anything what you put into it," Wickerham said.

Wickerham has served on the legislative committee for the Michigan Register of Deeds Association, the United County Officers Association and the Register of Deeds Association for the State of Michigan.

During the business portion of the meeting, Richard Koenigsnecht, Chairman of the Lincoln Day Dinner, reported that his committee is making plans for the event planned

Agricultural news Moldy feed

Marilyn Loudenslager

Warm, damp weather conditions this fall have been perfect for the growth of molds on unharvested corn. These molds can produce mycotoxins, which can cause livestock illness.

"Animals can develop a disease called mycotoxicosis from contaminated feed, so producers need to realize that this is a potential problem," says J.W. Thomas, extension livestock specialist at Michigan State University.

The presence of mold does not mean that feed contains mycotoxins, so the farmer can't tell whether a feed is contaminated just by looking at it, Thomas says. Chemical analysis of feed is the only way to be sure that feed does or does not contain mycotoxins. The presence of certain mold toxins can be detected by inspecting grain under a black light (ultraviolet light), however.

Some animal behavior may indicate mycotoxins are developing in the feed, however.

Feed refusal by animals is the most common symptom of mycotoxicosis, Thomas says. Never force livestock to eat feed they have refused, because it may contain harmful toxins. Decreased production or performance can also indicate animals are suffering from mycotoxicosis.

If grain is suspected of being contaminated with mycotoxins, feed proteins of the feed to one or two cull animals. If these animals show signs of poor appetite and performance, then the feed should not be given to other animals until the feed has been analyzed for mycotoxins by a laboratory.

County Extension agents or local veterinarians can teach producers how to take feed samples and where to have them analyzed. Several state and private laboratories, including the Animal Health Diagnostic laboratory at MSU, can test feed for the presence of most mycotoxins, Thomas says.

Computers help farm recording

The Clinton County Cooperative Extension Service has at its disposal several recordkeeping systems that could prove valuable to farmers.

Suppose you go to a meeting and have a speaker tell you that based on county averages for the last five years you should have made so much money this year with hogs, broke even with beef and made so much money if you fed sheep. Suppose you did not make that much money. Why not?

If you can't go back in your records and pinpoint some areas for improvement, your recordkeeping system may not be serving its purpose.

All too often records are kept for income tax purposes only. As long as these records are being kept, farmers may be advised to go a step further and have on hand information that gives a month to month progress report on how the farm operation is doing. One system that the Extension Service offers which gives farmers a monthly progress report on their farm (financial and basic information on livestock) is called the Tel-Farm Recordkeeping System. This system is on a computer at MSU and gives fast and accurate information on cash flow.

A second recordkeeping package available through the CES office is the Swine Recordkeeping Project. This system gives statistics on the reproductive efficiency, death loss problems, feed efficiencies and market price received on the farm. This allows the farmer to pinpoint strong and weak points in the farm operation.

For more detailed information on either system, contact the Clinton County Extension Office, 306 Elm Street, St. Johns, 224-3288 or 669-3663, ext. 229.

State history show opens

"From Territory to Statehood: Michigan, 1805-1837" is a new exhibit opening at the Michigan Historical Museum in Lansing on Nov. 26.

The exhibit, the second in a series of three Sesquicentennial exhibits, will trace the political, religious, social and educational development of the territorial period (1805-1837). An opening reception is scheduled from 4 until 6 p.m. The exhibit will run through June 7, 1986, at the Museum located at 208 N. Capitol Ave., Lansing, Mich.

Further information may be obtained by calling 517-373-1979.

What to do if feed is contaminated with mycotoxins depends on the amount and type of toxin present. Usually the only course is to eliminate that particular feed from the ration. Thomas advises producers to discard highly contaminated feed, while less toxic feed can be fed to ruminants in small amounts. Do not give contaminated feed to monogastric animals, such as pigs, because they can't "digest" the toxins as well as ruminants.

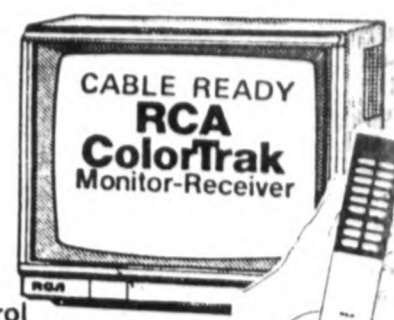

Farmers should monitor animal health closely when mixing in a portion of contaminated feed, but research shows that cows in good health that are fed a balanced ration are less likely to be affected by ingesting small quantities of mycotoxins, Thomas says.

Marilyn Loudenslager is the Agricultural Agent for the Clinton County Cooperative Service.
