For Christmas

Retail sales 'fair'

Neither boon nor bust. The Christmas retail season was par for the course, with sales at about what they were last year or slightly higher, say St. Johns merchants both downtown and in the Southpoint Mall. "All things considered we had a good year," said Greg DeLoria, manager of Fishers Big Wheel. "To show any increase at all I think is good."

DeLoria said sales at his store were up 20 percent from 1984 during the weekend before Christmas.

"For the entire season it's probably seven or eight above," he said. He said several new competitors and cold weather affected sales at his store. Toys and cold weather clothing were big sellers this year, he said.

Bob Haddad Sr., owner of Haddad's in the Southpoint Mall, said he was satisfied with the giftstore's first Christmas sales season.

"We've been here only three months so we don't have anything to compare it to," he said.

Lori Vasquez, manager of Dancer's Fashions, said she had initially expected a slow selling season. She noted that interest rates were lower than last year for cars and other big money items.

"We thought people would have their money tied up in that," she said.

"It turned out pretty close to last year," she said. "It was not worse, which is what we expected."

Vasquez said hot items at her store this year were novelty items and cold weather wear, including Isotoner gloves.

"I had to reorder my Isotoners twice," she said.

DICK JOHNSON, manager of J.C. Penney's in downtown St. Johns, said sales were about the same as last year, with big sellers being sweaters and cold weather clothing.

"The after-Christmas trading has been brisk," he said. "You always have nightmares of piles (of returns). This year has not been anything like that. It's been kind of a pleasure making the exchanges, taking care of the Christmas gift that didn't fit or they didn't like."

Other downtown merchants were equally amicable about sales for the season. Kurt Becker, owner of Kurt Becker Appliance Center, reported a respectable season, with sales strong in video cassette recorders.

Allen Harr, owner of Harr Jewelry and president of the Downtown Merchants Association, said sales were "just a tad above last year."

"Nothing to sneeze at," he said.

GOOD SHOPPING — Christmas shoppers in downtown St. Johns were offered hot cider and donuts early last week, compliments of downtown merchants. Jim Crosby, pictured here with Mildred and Winchell Brown, manned the cider and donut cart along with his partner Bob Sabo (not pictured). When not passing out hot cider, Crosby and Sabo kept warm shoveling downtown sidewalks. Crosby also kept warm by challenging passersby in a heavy Irish brogue to accept the hot cider or at least "A Merry Christmas to ya then, Sir!"

Bang up year

Clinton County Arts Council on a roll

By RICH WERTZ
Editor

To say 1985 was a very good year for the arts in Clinton County may be the understatement of the year.

Membership in the Clinton County Arts Council shot from six to 160 in a little over a year, the Council asked for and received grant money for the first time, and a new Gallery and Gift Shop was opened that has become the hub around which revolves a flurry of artistic activity.

"The growth seems to be phenomenal," says Kay Pilmore, director of the Gallery and Giftshop. "The county seems to be coming alive to the arts. It's been very exciting."

Pilmore, whose enthusiasm for the arts is unbounded, was especially happy last week, having recently learned that the Arts Council was awarded a $1,283 grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts for the purpose of hosting the Edward Weiss Ensemble in Clinton County on April 23 and 24. The performing group will regale the county with a lavish multimedia production that will include music, dance, slide shows and light shows.

"ALL YOUR SENSES will be either assaulted or delightfully pleased," says Pilmore. "In no way will you walk away unaffected."

That is just the latest feather in the cap of an organization that a year and a half ago had a serious case of the doldrums. Membership had fallen off, the group lacked direction and the future looked bleak.

"We never dreamed we could even write a grant proposal," says Pilmore.

The journey of the organization from its inception, past the rocky places, to its success of the past year and a half was the result of a continuing effort — all volunteer — by people too numerous to list, says Pilmore. It began, she says, with the "Arts for All Ages" program coordinated by Bill Richards, director of the Community Resource Volunteers office in St. Johns. That program several years ago consisted of a network of art instructors who visited county schools with art demonstrations and exhibits.

"THAT WAS THE seed from the very beginning," says Pilmore.

On May 17, 1982 the Clinton County Arts Council was formed by a group of county residents who all had a common interest in the arts. Pilmore says the focus then was primarily on music and dramatic arts. The Council sponsored art shows, lectures, and entertainment events but met with only moderate success in attracting the notice of the public.

"Maybe we didn't know how to make enough noise," says Pilmore.

In any case by April, 1984, the Council was on the rocks and in danger of disbanding. Membership had slipped to six members. The Council, seeking a new direction, turned to Sally White, who was then the president of the DeWitt Arts Council. White, says Pilmore, was at first reluctant to become involved in the Clinton County Council because she favored a more broad-based, county-wide program than the Council had previously undertaken.

"When it was explained to her that the Council needed a new direction she agreed to become interim president," says Pilmore. "Sally's got a special kind of enthusiasm that convinced us that rather than work in our own little corner of the world we could work together and get something going in the whole county."

THE COUNCIL HELD a "revitalization" meeting in June, 1984, and began a renewed effort to promote the arts in the county. The focus was to be as inclusive and county-wide as possible.

"Now we are as inclusive as we can be," says Pilmore. "We are determined to include all the art forms that we can...One member said that darning can be an art form of it is done with beauty and with love. I love the kind of homey definition she put on it. I'm not implying that all the art in Clinton County is simplistic. We have some very sophisticated artists — only that it doesn't have to have the pseudo-sophistication and glitz...."

The Council is also dedicated to including as many areas of the county as possible in the activities of the organization. The Council is intentionally made up of representatives from all over the county, says Pilmore. Many of the activities of the

The eight-week class will meet from 7:30 until 9:30 p.m. in the hospital conference room. Cost for participants is $60 and pre-registration is required. For more information, contact the Education Department at 224-6881, ext. 283.

What's in store for 1986?

New Year's Day is the traditional time for people to take stock of where they are and what they hope to accomplish in the coming year. The Clinton County News asked several people who are all deeply involved in the community what they hoped for in 1986. Here's the response.

Marvin Robertson

MARVIN ROBERTSON, Probate Court Judge: "I would have a New Year's Prayer in a sense...that in 1986 there would be no child abuse, no child neglect, no burned or battered or beaten children in the world. I would have a prayer that this would happen but we live in the real world and I think we're going to see more of it. And that people in the community would tune in more to the needs of the old and elderly."

Joann Martis

JEAN BARTHOLOMEW, Librarian at Bement Public Library: "We would like to reactivate our Friends of the Library...we would like to get into some long range planning, including the possibility of a larger facility...we would like to see more funding."

Jean Bartholomew

JOANN MARTIS, Director of the St. Johns Chamber of Commerce: "I hope to aid in the continued growth of the Chamber and the strength of the community. Projects that would benefit all. The Mint Festival — we want that to grow, but there are other things the Board will implement this year. For personal growth — more reading, to be a better listener and to serve other people."

Earl Gabriel

EARL GABRIEL, Superintendent of St. Johns Public Schools: "It would be my hope that all factions of the community, town and country, business and industry, young and elderly, friends and foes, could walk down the path of education, seeking in a positive and upbeat manner ways to help our students become intellectually strong to meet the challenges of the 21st Century."

Ask Bill Schuette

Soviet negotiations

Bill Schuette

While hopes and expectations understandably run high in the wake of the Geneva summit, we must take a longer historical view of any negotiations with the Soviet Union. To be sure, the summit in Geneva and the planned summits in Washington and Moscow are a good start. That we are talking is without doubt a positive development, but our natural optimism can sometimes lead us to disappointment if summits and negotiations do not yield immediate results.

America needs to be both accommodating and firm in negotiating with the Soviets, and we should not let our desire for peace compromise our ability to defend ourselves. Patient and prudent negotiations is the only safe course.

Any negotiations should be conducted with our long-term goals in mind. Overall, we should seek to lessen tension between the super-powers. What we seek is the reduction of the likelihood that nuclear weapons will be used. Mutual and verifiable reductions in nuclear weaponry in an evenhanded way is the best means of reducing this risk. In the long run, we must also seek to reduce "flash point" tensions in Afghanistan, Central America, South Africa and Southeast Asia.

We cannot allow the Soviets to limit or manipulate the subjects of the negotiations, whether at the table or in the world press. By linking arms control with human rights and Afghanistan with economic and cultural exchanges for example, we ensure that constructive negotiations occur which may lead in turn to real progress on these issues.

Any arms control agreement must be subject to verification. The issue of arms control treaty verification is a complex one, not only because our open society is more willing to accept on-site inspections than the Soviet Union, but because technology and miniaturization are fast stripping our ability to monitor developments affecting weapons systems. The key issue however, is this: verification is absolutely necessary if any agreement is to be valid and enforced.

To use a simple example, few of us would contract to buy a house which we could not see, and we should not agree to limit certain types of weapons if we cannot be sure that they are in fact being limited. Arms control treaty verification also ensures that all parties to a negotiation are acting in good faith.

Another key issue raised by the negotiations in Geneva has been future technologies. The Strategic Defense Initiative was discussed, but the broader issue was limiting scientific and technological development. On the issue of SDI, many people are not aware that the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty specifically states that future weapons systems can only be limited by amendment to the ABM treaty. In my view, limiting technology or fields of research is something that runs counter to the nature of scientific investigation and human progress. It is also exceedingly difficult to do. Not only is limiting technological development unwise, it is not required by the existing ABM treaty. Finally, it may not even be possible to contain SDI: the fact that is is defensive and not offensive has captured the public imagination.

Someone has said that Americans are optimists, imagining that they sit down to a new game with a fresh deck at every negotiation; while the Soviets tend to approach negotiations as a chess game (in this case a game that has run for forty years) that emphasizes the exciting and tedious end game. Balancing these two perspectives will not be easy, but we must commit ourselves to trying. We owe our best efforts and faith to our children and a hopefully watching world. Bill Schuette is the 10th District Representative to the United States House of Representatives.

In the House of Representatives South Africa

Gary Randall

Legislation that would require various state pensions to withdraw their assets from firms owned or operated in South Africa was approved recently by the Michigan House and I think the vote was a premature decision that could be costly.

While I am strongly opposed to apartheid and all forms of racial oppression, the legislation is not the proper avenue to address the issue.

The divestiture legislation is well intentioned but I worry about the effect it will have on retirees in this state. The economic consequences of this action could eventually be costly to state taxpayers.

I also think much more research should have been done on the issue before we made this move. Lawmakers should have waited until the administration's special commission on divestiture released its report.

On a 67-39 vote, lawmakers approved what calls for a phased withdrawal of assets of the State Employees and Public School Employees Retirement Funds from all investments held in firms owned by South African government or from American firms which operate there. The legislation would require that total divestiture be achieved within five years.

It is difficult to predict how this phased divestiture will ultimately affect the investment performance of the retirement funds. But many officials predict that there will be loss of investment income to retirement funds and the state will have to make up the revenue.

The general fund money used to make up the difference comes from the taxpayers of Michigan, who will have to foot the bill for this decision.

"I also have problems with state legislators making a foreign policy decision. This should be a matter for our federal lawmakers to consider and I think we're out of our jurisdiction."

Gary Randall is the 89th District Representative to the Michigan House of Representatives.

Veterinarian asks for awareness of cruelty to animals

To the Editor:

Cruelty to animals is always a crime. Recently a concerned individual brought a very affectionate stray black cat into the St. Johns Animal Clinic for medical attention. Apparently someone had poured hot paraffin over his back causing severe burns to 35 percent of his body. Dr. Malesky, aided by nurses Jody Wager and Julie Witt anesthetized the patient to remove the damaging material.

After extensive medical treatment of the un-protected area, I am proud to inform everyone that Al (short for Al-E-Cat) is doing remarkably well. Dr. Malesky feels that it may be too early to know the extent of permanent damage to Al's skin. Until Al is fully recovered his needs will be tended by the nurses at the St. Johns Animal Clinic.

By bringing Al's misfortune to everyone's attention, I hope that there will be a heightened awareness in the area of cruelty to animals and responsible pet care.

Rep. Bill Schuette attends bill signing

Michigan Congressman Bill Schuette attended the White House ceremony at which President Reagan signed the 1985 Farm Bill into law.

"I worked on the Farm Bill from the subcommittee level right to the floor of the House," Congressman Schuette said. "The signing ceremony was an opportunity for me to remind President Reagan that the job to help production agriculture in mid-Michigan has just begun."

The Farm Bill took nearly a year of intense negotiations and compromise among House and Senate leaders before reaching the President's desk. "Like any legislative product, this bill is not perfect," Congressman Schuette said. "But we won the battle for mid-Michigan sugar producers in keeping the 18-cent-per-pound loan rate, target prices have been frozen for almost three years and we provided a whole head buyout plan for dairy farmers."

Also signed at the ceremony was a bill to reorganize the troubled Farm Credit System.

"This law will help producers get the credit they need and help the FCS remain stable," Congressman Schuette said.

Remembering when

By RHONDA GAFFNEY

40 YEARS AGO

Clinton County was gripped by an ice storm which left 1/2 inch of ice covering everything and making holiday travel almost impossible. Temperatures were reported at 62 degrees below zero in Western Canada. Byron Danley, president of the Izaak Walton League, appealed to nature lovers to "save the birds — scatter seed."

County residents were looking forward to seeing a total eclipse of the sun, expected to occur on Jan. 24, 1925.

Phil Woigle of Pewamo had trapped a record 125 red fox since Nov. 1 with 106 of the fox being trapped in the first 29 days of November. The fox were trapped in Bengal, Riley and Westphalia Townships. The state paid $5 bounty on each fox, while the pelts themselves brought only $3.

The top news stories of 1945 according to the Clinton County Republican News were: the victories over Japan and Germany to end World War II, the development of the Atomic Bomb, and the death of Franklin Roosevelt.

Clover Clippings 4-H opportunities

Theresa Silm

The 4-H program offers lots of different opportunities for both members and leaders to take advantage of. As we begin 1986, I want to use my column today to outline a few of those that are current.

INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL — If you're interested in traveling to other countries or in hosting visitors from those countries in your home, the 4-H LABO program may be for you. Japanese youth between the ages of 12 and 19 will visit Michigan from July 22 to August 22, 1986. During that same period of time, a group of Michigan young people will have the chance to visit Japan and live with host families there. Application forms for both opportunities are available in the Extension Office.

FAIR BOOK COVER CONTEST — Budding artists will want to try their hand at designing the cover for the 1986 4-H Fair Book. The Fair Board is sponsoring a cover contest and all 4-H members are invited to participate. First prize is $5 and a chance to have your design used on the cover of this year's book. Entry deadline is Feb. 3.

DAIRY CALF — Young people who would like to be involved in the 4-H dairy project but do not have a dairy calf may be interested in an opportunity that the Michigan Jr. Holstein Association is providing. They will give one youth a high quality registered holstein heifer calf. Applications are in the Extension Office. The deadline is March 1st.

CAMP COUNSELORS — 4-H teens who enjoy camping and who like to work with younger members may want to consider being a camp counselor for one of two 4-H camps this year. Training will be provided for all those interested in applying and, once chosen, the counselors will work with adult staff to plan the camping programs. Applications are in the Extension Office. The deadline is Jan. 17.

SPARTAN SOFTWARE — Youth who have some skills working with computers and who enjoy a challenge may be interested in the 1986 4-H Spartan Software Program. Sixteen youth from throughout Michigan will be selected to participate in this program. Those selected will work directly with campus based staff at MSU to develop computer programs in suggested areas. Initial training will be provided. Finished programs will be judged and first, second, and third place winners will be selected. The winners will receive $500, $400 and $300 respectively and all who complete their programs will be awarded $200. Application forms are available in the Extension Office.

For additional information regarding these or any other 4-H programs contact the Cooperative Extension Service at 306 Elm Street in St. Johns or call 224-3288.

"It's in the Bag"
by Bob Beck

When kings of old sat down to a banquet, they may have feasted on the finest meats and wines and cheeses... but never on chocolate.

And that's my way of saying that if you like chocolate, you can sure be thankful you live in this day and age. Because, compared with so many foods that have been around since ancient times, chocolate is a fairly recent discovery.

In fact, the Old World didn't even know it existed until the Spanish explorer Cortez discovered the Aztec Indians enjoying a frothy beverage made from the cacao bean early in the sixteenth century. The Spaniards prized chocolate so highly that they managed to keep the secret of the cacao bean away from the rest of Europe for nearly a hundred years!

When word of this wondrous beverage did leak out, fashionable "chocolate houses" soon sprang up in the capitals of Europe. But chocolate was so costly that only royalty and the very wealthy were able to enjoy it.

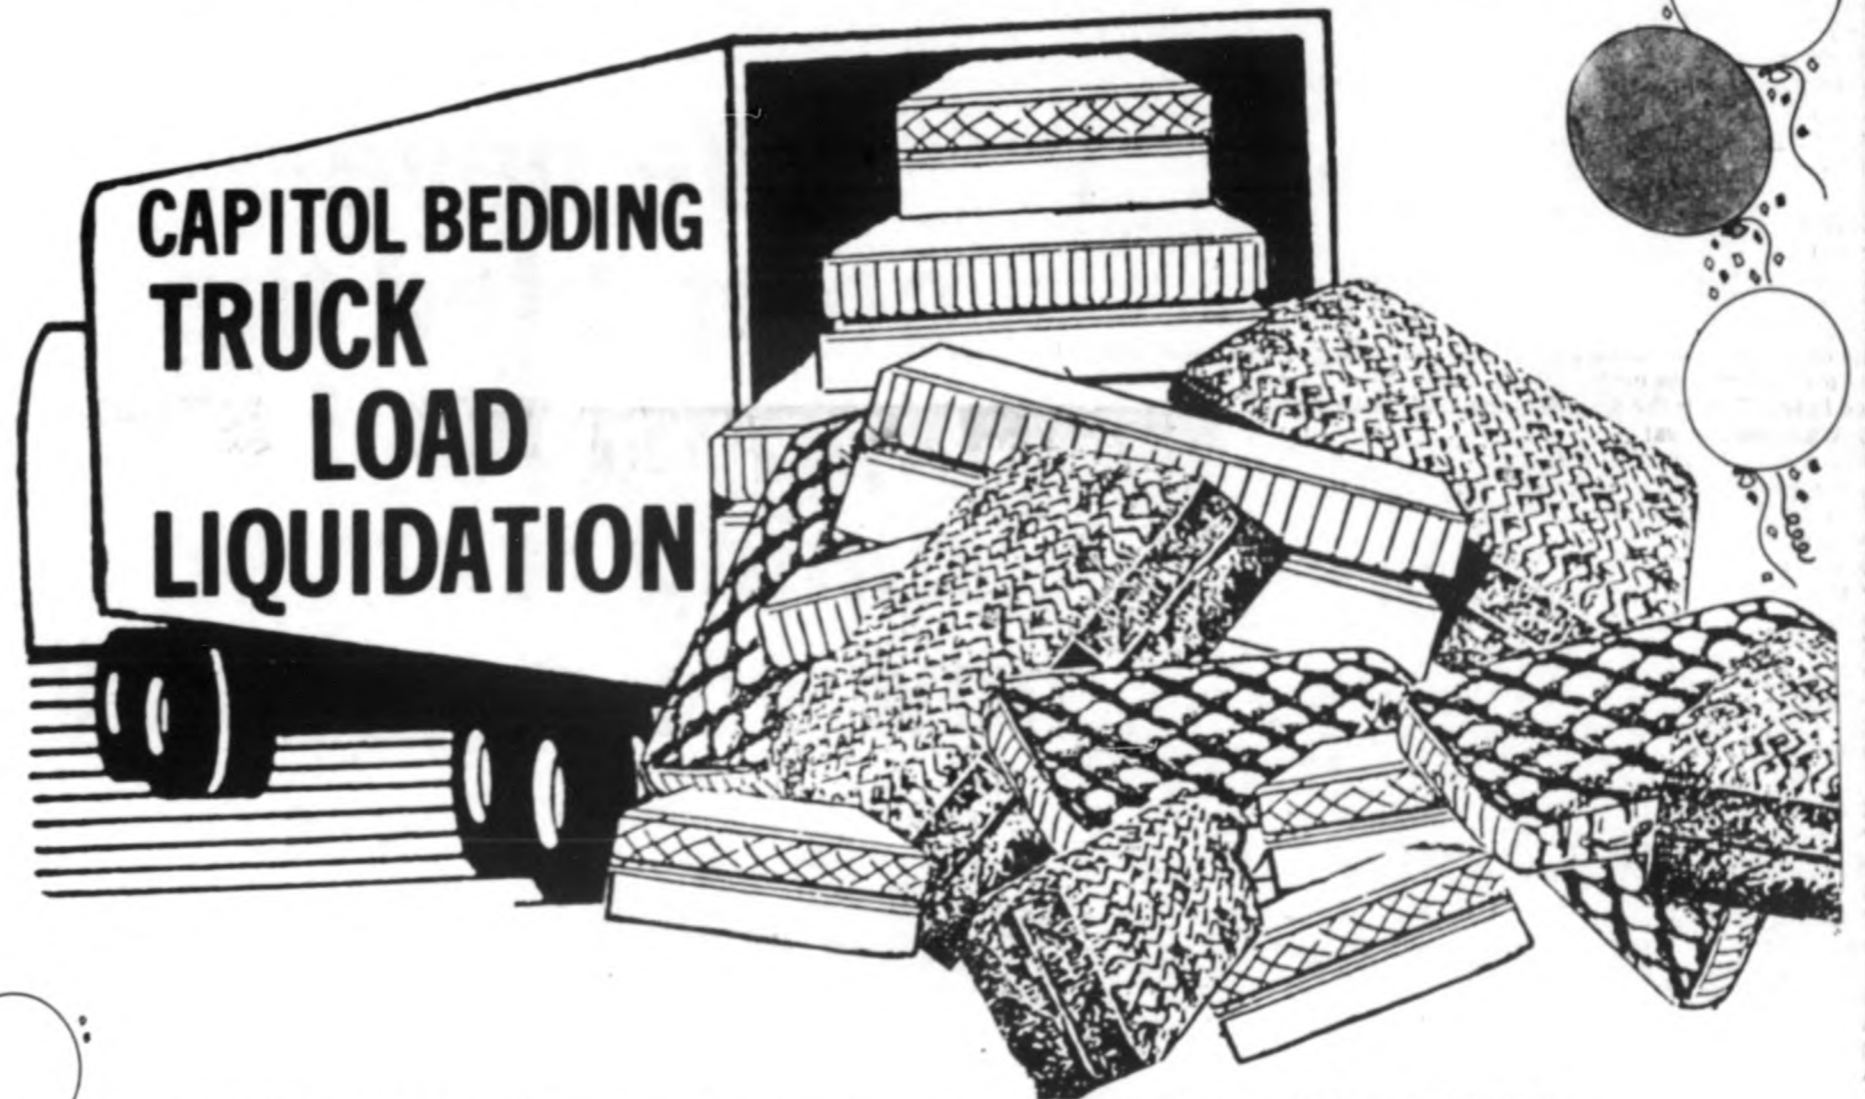

Chocolate candy was also available at a price. But it was coarsegrained, and it wasn't until 1876 that smooth, velvety milk chocolate was developed.

Incidentally, both chocolate and cocoa come from the cacao bean. The only basic difference is in the cocoa butter, which is pressed out of cocoa and collected for use in the manufacture of chocolate.

Whoever you prefer, the next time you shop Beck's for that cup of cocoa or hot chocolate... or that chocolate candy or ice cream or whatever... remember that even King Arthur never had it so good!

Heart attacks

Dawn Harris

Most of us heard or read about people who suffered heart attacks while shoveling snow or participating in other strenuous winter activities. These people often had no history of heart problems. There are many factors that may cause heart attacks to suddenly occur. A few of these factors include age, general health and past exercise patterns.

With age, bodily systems tend to decline — some more than others. One of these is the cardiovascular system; the heart and blood vessels. A person's cardiovascular system reaches its peak at age 30 and declines as a person grows older. For example, the heart may be working 100 percent of its capacity at age 30, but it declines to 68 percent by age 75.

The fibrous tissues that replace heart muscle cells do not have the same function as that of muscle tissue. People who aren't active don't always realize that, as they grow older, they don't have the muscle capacity they once had.

Your overall health must also be taken into consideration prior to shoveling snow. Problems with obesity, alcohol consumption, stress, poor eating habits and smoking can all be contributing to a hidden health problem. Regular check-ups should be a priority if you are planning on doing any strenuous activity. A third major consideration is your previous level of exercise. Many victims of "snowfall heart attack" go from a routine of virtual inactivity to overactivity and can be too much for the heart to handle.

Keeping active year round is one of the best ways to keep your heart working properly. One suggested exercise routine is daily walking at a brisk, regular pace. Walking is a universal exercise that nearly everyone can do. Just be sure to dress appropriately for the weather, if walking outside.

A final thought for people planning to shovel snow or do other winter outdoor work is to dress warmly and work slowly so that breathing comes easier. Many people tend to hold their breath while shoveling snow. Holding your breath may seem to give you more power as you shovel snow, but it puts more stress on the heart because it keeps oxygen from the heart.

By keeping these thoughts in mind and taking good care of your heart it will take better care of you in the years to come.

Family life

Looking back

Mona Ellard

It's that time of year when popular magazines and large newspapers give us their rendition of "1985-Year in Review." There are photographs of international and national disasters, births and death announcements, notable wins and losses, and events that have shaped our world. As we reflect back on these happenings, we can't help but remember what the year 1985 has meant to our own family as well.

As a kid we grew up with yardsticks. In today's column we'll take a look at what has happened in the marketplace in 1985 and how you've been affected.

Inflation

Inflation was the common cause for the woes of the 1970s and early 1980s — but have you noticed how the word inflation has been dropped from our everyday vocabulary? That's not surprising. It is currently estimated that the inflation rate of 1985 will be just around 3.5 percent as measured by the Consumer Price Index. This is the smallest annual increase since 1967. What good news!

On the other hand, what happened to our earnings? The third quarter employment and earning figures are in from the Bureau of Labor Statistics. According to these numbers, our weekly earnings were up 3.8 percent above last year's. And the medium weekly wage was $520. How do you compare? If you compare inflation increase and earning increase, consumers have a little more buying power than a year ago.

Now my husband, who enjoys working with statistics, would like me to follow through with some more — but I say, "Enough is enough." Let's take a look instead of what Americans bought in 1985.

Small appliances

The hottest selling items in 1985 have been home security and health care products. Air purifiers, ultrasonic humidifiers, oil-filled portable heaters, gas grills, hand vacuum cleaners, and irons have also been popular.

I can't help but feel that so many irons wouldn't have been purchased if the trends in fashions hadn't re-introduced the 100 percent cotton fabric that needs heavy pressing.

Kitchen appliances that sold very well included cordless electric and can openers, toasters and food processors. Hot air popcorn popper sales were up this year, possibly linked to higher sales of VCRs (movies and popcorn at home?).

New car sales

Did you know that in 1985 almost one-third of new car purchasers paid cash, even with prices of an average new car approaching $11,000? (A little statistic, must keep harmony in the family). But we also saw some creative car financing from the big three automobile companies.

In the early 1980s, we were introduced to "balloon financing" for housing, but this year the Ford Motor Credit Company, the credit arm of Ford, has started balloon note auto financing. Called the "Final Payment Option Plan," it is advertised as a way to combine the advantages of leasing with the advantages of buying.

As in leasing, the customer has a smaller down payment and monthly payments. Unlike leasing, the owner can deduct the interest charges if they itemize deductions on their federal income taxes. Under the program, the customer contracts to pay a monthly note for 48 months. The payment is set according to the estimated value of the car after four year's use. At the end of the four years, if the car is in normal condition, the customer can return the vehicle to the dealer with no further obligation or they can pay off the lump sum due, or refinance the remaining balance into monthly payments. The car is titled in the consumer's name during the initial contract period.

While this is still in the test stage, it is another attempt at different types of auto financing.

Consumers of the future

What can we expect in 1986? The rumors of home banking and home shopping services have been echoing through 1985, but it has taken longer than expected to become popular due to the slow down in personal computer sales and the expense of providing the service. However, some new developments continue to occur.

1985 was a good year county arts

Council are "outreach" programs aimed at spreading art instructors and exhibitors all over the county and providing opportunities for artists from the various areas to perform before more audiences.

FOR EXAMPLE, Pilmore says, the Pewamo-Westphalia Concert Band recently performed at the "Arts of Christmas" program in St. Johns. Previously, she says, that band had been rarely heard from outside of its immediate area.

In another example of the Council's "outreach" efforts, a project is planned for May in which county school districts will take turns exhibiting at the Gallery and Gift Shop. Each week two different school districts will host displays, including both visual and performing arts at various skill levels.

"It could be anything from simple paper sculptures to sophisticated sculpture done in high school," says Pilmore.

The Gallery and Gift Shop is itself one of the keys to the success of the Council this year.

"That has really been the focus that has brought the Council into visibility in the county," says Pilmore.

THE GALLERY OPENED in September after John Tury, a DeWitt potter, agreed to donate the use of the building at the corner of US-27 and N. Clinton Avenue in St. Johns in exchange for having his pottery sold there.

Currently, says Pilmore, 78 different artists representing nearly all of Clinton County are displaying their work at the Gallery and Giftshop. The facility, like all the other activities of the Arts Council, is run by a completely volunteer staff. Pilmore credits Heien Johnson, whom she dubs the unofficial "Director of Staffing" with keeping the facility staffed with volunteers.

Pilmore says the Council plans to continue expanding and creating new programs. Artist in residence programs, guest writers, more grants...the opportunities are endless, she says, for encouraging "the spark that can come from creating our own forms of beauty."

"We have so many ideas," she says. "When we get together the room is ablaze with ideas. I think the hard part will be to keep from expanding too fast."

Agricultural news Farming stress

Marilyn Loudenslager

Farm stress stirs up many images — racing to town to buy spare parts (and finding they have to be ordered)...listening to the radio and hearing the market drop daily (and your bin stands filled with last year's crop)...rushing to get the hay baled before a storm...watching a hail storm wipe out a year's labor...working late into the night on bone-jarring equipment...getting more and more frustrated, irritated and tired of the whole mess. Still you dare not let on as you meet again with the loan officer.

Farm families experience pressure, conflict and uncertainty especially during harvesting and planting. As feelings of frustration and helplessness build up, they can lead to intense family problems involving your spouse, children, parents and other relatives. If left unresolved, these feelings can lead to costly accidents and deaths.

HOW STRESSFUL IS FARMING?

Farming has become one of the most stressful and dangerous occupations. The National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health recently examined 130 occupations and found laborers and farm owners had the highest rate of deaths due to stress-related conditions like heat and artery disease, hypertension, ulcers and nervous disorders. Farming is also dangerous. According to the National Safety Council, agriculture and mining are the two most hazardous occupations in the country. In 1981, 54 accidental deaths occurred per 100,000 agricultural workers, compared with a national average of 12 deaths per 100,000 workers for all industries. A recent survey of 2,000 Kentucky farmers found that each year one of every eight farm families experiences an accident requiring medical attention. Yet farmers are the most underinsured group of workers around, especially with regard to health and disability insurance.

Contributing to the stress level of the occupation are changes that have taken place. Farming has undergone rapid change from being largely a physical occupation to one that requires more and more mental input. Farmers have become managers of large sums of money, and they are continually pressured by technological advances in machinery, and production and management advances regarding livestock and crops.

WHAT IS STRESS?

Everyone takes in energy (strength) from the sun, air and food. When people remain relaxed and balanced as they go about their daily tasks, this energy flows in and out of their bodies in a healthy, harmonious way. But when they tie themselves up in knots, breathe with short breaths, and tense their stomachs, shoulders or necks, they experience stress. So, stress is energy in a blocked or chaotic state.

If you adjust to the stressful event, you move on into the relaxation response in which blood pressure goes down to a normal, healthy rate. While occasional operation under stress in an emergency situation does little if any harm, it is dangerous for you to keep yourself under heavy strain over lengthy periods of time or to experience too many stressful events at one time. Just like a boiler that bursts under too much pressure, your body breaks down and your health suffers.

You always have two choices — the stress response or the relaxation process. If, at the first warning signs of stress, you just take a moment to relax and breathe deeply, you will find that you have more energy, can concentrate better, and can actually get more done in less time. How to do that will be explained in next week's article.

Fowler Bowl's youth league ends season with banquet

By RHONDA GAFFNEY
Sports Editor

Forty young bowlers from the Clinton County area put on bowling shoes and learned all about strikes, spares and splits through a youth bowling league they participated in sponsored by the Fowler Bowl in Fowler.

"Basically the idea was to get kids involved in bowling, get some knowledge of the fundamentals of bowling, learn etiquette and sportsmanship," said Tim Smith the coordinator and instructor of the 14-week league.

Monday and Wednesday leagues were formed with the youth bowling in teams comprised of three bowlers per team. Points were awarded for each game bowled and won, with two games being bowled by each team on their respective afternoons.

"I felt it went well for our first time trying something of this nature," Smith said. "The kids learned a lot. The first five or six weeks we did quite a bit of instruction. Each of the youth involved learned to keep score, and they all seemed to really enjoy the program."

SMITH WAS ASSISTED in the instruction by Brenda Koenigsnecht, the assistant manager and owner of the Fowler Bowl.

"A lot of kids and adults find that league bowling can become tiring after awhile," Smith commented. "No one dropped out of the league, but we did have a few alternates who became more or less regulars by sub-ing for different teams."

The Fowler Bowl provided a pizza-end-of-the-year party for all the bowlers. The high teams for each league were honored and high individual bowlers were given recognition.

The Monday afternoon league high team was the Steamrollers: Tim Andros, Craig Smith, and Jody McKean who ended the season with a 21-7 record. Wednesday afternoon honors went to the St. Peter Lutheran School team of Jason Lounds, Brad Hayes and Brent Gaffney who had a record of 20½-6½. Brian Miller ended the season with the high individual average, 115.

SHIRTS AND PATCHES were given to each of the youth who participated and special awards were given to the high teams and to Miller for high average.

Other bowlers recognized for individual high games were Jason Lounds, 184; Jason Smith, 146; John Schneider, 164; Bart Dickens, 143; Julie McNamara, 120; and Cami Pendell, 120.

Because the league set-up was so well received, Smith and Koenigsnecht are planning on having a spring league at the Fowler Bowl. "We will probably run a shorter league schedule in the spring," the director noted. "It looks like we may try an eight-week league beginning in March or April."

Judging from the amount of enthusiasm of the youth involved, the spring league should be as successful as the one just completed.

HIGH SEASON AVERAGE — Brian Miller finished as the youth bowler with the top season average, 115, in the recently completed Youth Bowling League sponsored by the Fowler Bowl in Fowler. Tim Smith, pictured with Miller, was assisted by assistant manager/owner of the Fowler Bowl, Brenda Koenigsnecht, in the formation and running of the league.

Chief Okemos gun show is scheduled

The Chief Okemos Sportsman Club will sponsor its ninth annual Antique Gun Show Sunday, Jan. 5, at 4533 Gunnell Road, Dimondale. The event is conducted by the muzzleloader division of COSC with food and refreshment available and a $1 admission fee at the door.

John Grant, gunsmith and project chairman of the show, says it (show) increases in popularity each year. Several reasons account for this, as Roy "Pa" Keeler's antique collection. Items that include dueling pistols, security lock systems, swords and knives preceding the American Revolution and colonial periods. Period costumes, civil war paraphernalia of many varieties will be on display, Grant observes.

The dramatic interest in muzzleloader type of firearms, which COSC has a large group, has resulted in the establishment of a deer hunting season in Michigan, notes Roy Keeler, a keen student of black powder activities. Incidentally, no gun powder may be sold or glassware be displayed at this gun show, Grant warns. This is definitely not a flea market type of show. Jean Wank, club sharpshooter explains, but an educational and enjoyable event open to all who wish to attend, she adds.

Wank and Claudia Anderson, club treasurer, were winners of the "PID Award" given annually to club members for outstanding service to COSC. For further information write: Chief Okemos Sportsman Club, P.O. Box 375, Dimondale, MI 48821.

Good season for state waterfowl

Waterfowl hunters will be able to take advantage of Michigan's unique late Canada goose season in southern Michigan which begins Jan. 1 and runs through Feb. 16, 1986. Both the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service hope the late season and large hunting area will help control locally-reared giant Canada geese.

The local goose population in the special hunting zone was estimated to be 36,000 birds just before this past fall's regular hunting season started. It appears the population has more than doubled in the last five years.

The hunt area will be the same as last year and includes parts of 24 counties. They are: Barry, Eaton, Ingham, Livingston, Oakland, Kalamazoo, Calhoun, Jackson, Washtenaw, Wayne, St. Joseph, Branch, Cass, VanBuren, Allegan, Kent, Ionia, Shiawassee, Genesee, Lapeer, Macomb, Monroe, Lenawee, and Hillsdale.

The boundaries of the Southern Michigan Goose Management Area, the hunt area, are shown in the State's 1985-86 waterfowl hunting guide, available at license outlets; most DNR offices; and the DNR Information Services, 7th floor, Mason Building, Box 30028, Lansing. Hunters are reminded that the daily bag limit is two Canadas.

"Many winter geese are found on private lands," says Jerry Martz, Waterfowl Specialist with the DNR Wildlife Division. He cautions hunters to obtain permission from landowners before setting up their hunt. Hunters should check with local conservation officers and wildlife biologists at the DNR District Offices at Pontiac Lake (313-666-1500), Jackson (517-784-3188), and Plainwell (616-685-6851) if they have questions about public access, hunting closures, or local hunting conditions.

The Department is also seeking hunter cooperation in collecting biological samples needed to identify the proportion of locally-reared giant Canadas harvested. Interested hunters should contact wildlife biologists at the DNR District Offices in Pontiac Lake, Jackson, and Plainwell who will supply them with instructions and materials.

WKAR carries MSU

WKAR-TV, Channel 23, will broadcast the Michigan State University women's basketball game live this Sunday, Jan. 5, at 2:00 p.m. The Spartans are showcased as they take on the Indiana Hoosiers in the game played at Jenison Fieldhouse.

Coach Karen Langeland's Spartans are once again a fast-paced team, led by three players among the Top Ten career MSU scorers, Julie Polakowski, Kris Emerson and Kelly Belanger. MSU also features St. Johns native, Sue Pearsall.

The Hoosiers beat the Spartans twice last year on their way to a 16 and 12 season. They are paced by 6'2" Kama Abram, who averaged 23.7 points in the Big Ten last year.

Negotiations are also underway for a live broadcast of the MSU men's basketball game with Ohio State this Thursday, Jan. 2, at 8:00 p.m.

Ice fishing

Dick Bradley

In just a short time now I'll be enjoying one of my very favorite times of the year. No — I don't mean Christmas, although that's nice too; I mean ice fishing.

Ice fishing is a sport that allows for tremendous creativity where equipment and technique is concerned. The next time you're out, just look at the variety of equipment and notice the different methods of using it.

In the few days that remain before we have safe ice and we want to be out on it, we can organize for good fishing. We can fasten on new lines and lures where they're needed and rig up a special surprise or two that we'd probably never get around to once the season has started.

Let's begin with lines. There are many theories about the best line test to use ice fishing, but most fishermen agree that whatever the strength, the lines should be replaced at least every other season. Even a stronger test line becomes brittle after a time and is inclined to have weak spots from fish teeth and from sawing on the edges of ice holes.

A rule of thumb for selecting the proper strength of new line is to go as light as you can, practically. The more limber the rod, for instance, and the more the reel capacity, the lighter the line. A stiffer rod or one without a reel, should be rigged with a heavier line.

Ideally, of course, fishermen may have several rods, each rigged differently for different conditions. But a light line almost always results in more strikes. When the barometer is high or the ice gets too thick to allow the passage of much light, or when for some other reason the metabolism of the fish has been slowed down more than usual, it may take a light line to get any strikes.

Rods with good lines may also need new teardrop attractor lures as well. The hooks may be dull or broken or the paint may be chipped away to a point where they have lost their efficiency. Again, where a fisherman has several rods, he might want to tie on a variety of colors to start with. But keep in mind that these teardrops are attractors and so colors that can be seen further are usually better.

I'd try a chartruse, an orange, a white, a silver and a gold, not necessarily in that order. There are advocates of black, purple and dark green too, but I haven't found those colors to be that efficient. I would have one very small lure (perhaps with a No. 12 hook) on my lightest line and rod combination, that had mallibou feathers on it as well. Feathers can be excellent attractors.

One more thing I would do with my most lightly outfitted rod, would be to equip it with a spring bobber and no sinker at all.

Now, with rods equipped with good lines and lures, lets plan a couple of "extras" that can add to the fun and productivity of an ice fishing season. Let's build a mini-tip-up for perch or trout and let's equip our oldest rod with attractors instead of hooks.

The mini-tip-up should be equipped with no more than four pound test line and set with a hair trigger that won't scare twelve inch trout or jumbo perch. While carefully fishing with one hand pole, the mini-tip-up allows you to more efficiently fish a second line a few yards away.

The attractors that I suggested be attached to your oldest rod, might be old hookless crawler harnesses, suspended from a perch rig. By simply raising it a couple of feet and letting the contraption flutter back down, you give the impression of a feeding school of shiners to any nearby fish.

Plan a few creative flares to your ice fishing tactics this winter and add fun and fish to your outings.

Gibson was one homer short of the '30-30 club'

No Detroit Tiger baseball player has ever hit 30 home runs and stolen 30 bases in the same season. However, outfielder Kirk Gibson came close in each of the past two seasons. In 1984, Gibson hit 27 home runs and stole 29 bases. Then, in 1985, Gibby narrowly missed the elusive "30-30" club, stealing 30 bases and hitting 29 homers.

The last major league players to join the 30-30 club were Dale Murphy of the Atlanta Braves and Andre Dawson of the Montreal Expos, both of whom turned the trick in 1983.

Guard Isiah Thomas of the Detroit Pistons was named the Sporting News rookie of the year in 1981-82 basketball season, and became only the fourth rookie voted to start in a National Basketball League all-star game.

Ty Cobb, the hall-of-fame Detroit Tiger outfielder, is the team's all-time leader in a number of categories, including at-bats, runs, hits, doubles, triples, extra-base hits, total bases, runs batted in, batting and stolen bases.

Cobb is still the American League's all-time stolen base and hit leader.

In a high school cross country dual meet, seven runners participate in a meet for each team, with the five runners with the best times scoring points for their squad. The sixth and seventh runners work to displace the other team's runners.

The first runner across the finish line gets one point, the second gets two points, the third gets three, etc. The team with the lowest score wins the meet.

If a football player runs out of bounds, then comes back in bounds and catches a pass, the pass is ruled illegal, and it's counted as an incomplete pass.

The only exception to this rule is when the receiver is deliberately knocked out of bounds by a defensive player.

State coaches are honored

Each year schools in the Michigan High School Athletic Association and its Representative Council designate recipients of the Charles E. Forsythe Award. This award is given to individuals who have made outstanding contributions in terms of service to the interscholastic athletic program in Michigan.

This year, William Robinson of Detroit and Irving Soderlund of Norway will receive their awards at halftime of the Class A Final Boys Basketball Tournament game at Crisler Arena, Ann Arbor, on March 22, 1986.

Robinson is remembered as the coach at Pershing High School which won the State Championships in 1967 and 1970, coach of the U.S. Olympic basketball team in 1975, and is a member of the Michigan High School Coaches Hall of Fame and the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame.

Soderlund has been connected with Norway High School since 1954 where he has served as coach, teacher, Principal, Athletic Director, and has been Superintendent there since 1970. He has been a member of the Michigan High School Athletic Ass. Upper Peninsula Athletic Committee for 21 years and on the MHSAA Representative Council for 12 years.

Robinson and Soderlund will also be honored at the High School Coaches Banquet held on March 22.

Right now, thousands of Michigan children are suffering from child abuse. And many social agencies help these children by easing their physical and mental pain after they are hurt.

That's necessary. But even more necessary is stopping child abuse before it occurs.

That's where the Children's Trust Fund comes in.

We are an independent, non-profit organization established in 1982 to fund local community programs across the state — programs that work to get at the roots of child abuse and help prevent it.

Examples of programs we help support include:

- Educational programs that teach children how to protect themselves from child abuse.
- Counseling centers that help parents and others with children in their care to understand and adapt to children's needs.

- Latchkey programs that provide safe supervision for children after school.

We must continue to expand this work, but as an independent, non-profit organization we rely only on voluntary contributions.

And we need help.

Special legislation allows the Children's Trust Fund to collect donations through the Michigan State Income Tax Return. You may donate part or all of your tax refund by simply filling in the amount you wish to contribute on the CTF line of your tax return.

It's that easy. And with your support, we can fight harder to prevent child abuse. The Children's Trust Fund needs your contribution this year. Please give.

Special donations should be made payable to:

Rodd's ministry is close to home

By MARILYN HESS
DeWitt Editor

When Clarence Rodd of DeWitt recovered from a burst aorta close to his heart several years ago, he told doctors they had just witnessed a miracle.

Rodd is the type of person that always has his eyes open for miracles, and is always ready to see God working in his life.

He was a pastor for 40 years, but says his ministry has changed now from serving the public to serving his "beloved companion."

His wife, Helen, is an invalid and needs round-the-clock care in her bed. But by the way Rodd looks at her, one would think she was a blushing 17-year-old girl. He kisses her tenderly, and his eyes shine when he looks at her or speaks to her.

prayers and the prayers of the people they left behind at the various churches they served is "the only thing that keeps us going."

"If it weren't for prayer, I feel neither one of us would be here today," he says, "I have to rely on Him."

Helen is able to sing with her husband simple songs like "Jesus Loves Me." Her eyes, too, sparkle with love for her God and love for her husband as she sings and reaches out a hand to touch his face tenderly.

Sometimes, the couple still attend church together. If Helen is doing well and there is someone to help load her in a specially-equipped van, Clarence will drive them to church. "There's always someone kind to help when we get to the other end," he says.

Even if she can't accompany him, Rodd says someone from the Catholic Community of St. Jude comes by on Sunday so he can attend church.

Although they are members of St. Jude, Rodd visits many different churches, to give his testimony and play the piano, accordion, or harmonica. He was a minister in the American Baptist denomination.

He was so effective as a pastor in Michigan and Ohio, he led two of his churches to win awards for evangelism and general work, before his health problems forced him to resign.

"I regret that I'm not able to do more, but it's impossible and I have to live with it," he says. "God has blessed us and used us through the years."
