'Transition area' downtown

Planning board sends recommendation to city

By RICH WERTZ
Editor

A recommendation to establish a "transition zone" that would allow for the expansion of the central business district was presented to the St. Johns City Commission last night (Aug. 8).

The recommendation was adopted by the city planning commission on Aug. 4. City commissioners were expected to set a date for a public hearing on the proposal.

"We've poked, probed and prodded this thing for nine months," said James Moore, chairman of the planning commission. "I think we've got a pretty good handle on it."

City commissioners nine months ago asked the planning commission to recommend a way of allowing the business district to expand in an orderly manner that would avoid "spot zoning" — that is, rezoning of particular properties from residential to commercial.

A NUMBER of businesses had asked for rezoning of their properties to allow them to expand. In some cases, residents objected to the rezoning and pointed out that private homes in the rezoned areas would become non-conforming. This means, for instance, that a home destroyed by fire could not legally be rebuilt on the property.

'We've poked, probed and prodded this for nine months.'

The recommendation calls for the establishment of a transitional area in which high density residential land, with the approval of the planning commission, could be used for "residential purposes, professional offices, parking lots, service establishments, retail businesses, and public or semi-public facilities." However, only those residential areas that are immediately adjacent to areas zoned commercial or central business district could be used for commercial purposes.

THE TRANSITION area would be the area bordered by Railroad Street to the north; Oakland Street to the east; and State Street to the south. The west border would run along Ottawa Street from State Street to Higham Street but would jog over to Lansing Street from Higham back up to Railroad Street.

The recommendation included a number of requirements and conditions that will have to be met in order for business to get planning commission approval of land uses other than those specified in the zoning ordinance.

These include:
• Activities, display and storage of goods "shall be such as not to be obnoxious or offensive by reason of the emission of odors, fumes, dust, smoke, noise, vibration, glare of lights, nor any sort of physical obstruction of pedestrian or vehicular traffic."

• "Parking areas and access drives will meet the needs of the building and use."

• "Landscaping and screening shall be sufficient to screen the building or parking areas from adjacent residential property and provide safe compatible surroundings for neighboring uses."

• "Architectural design as a transition from one type of use to another (must be) compatible with the neighborhood."

• Residential areas approved for commercial use will retain residential regulations pertaining to signs.

City commissioners had also asked the planning commission for a recommendation regarding the request of business owner Al Marrah for rezoning of his property from residential to commercial. Since his property is included in the transition area and is adjacent to commercially zoned areas, the planning commission did not make a separate recommendation pertaining to that property.

Corrections

The article last week about the CRV community bus should have said the cost of tickets for school children are 50 cents each when a book of 12 tickets is purchased.

The "In The Service" item on page 2 should have been headlined "Keith Gifford." We apologize for the error.

Donald Albosta asks county voters to send him back to Congress

By RICH WERTZ
Editor

Donald Albosta, Democratic candidate for the 10th District seat in the U.S. House of Representatives, campaigned in St. Johns last Wednesday.

Albosta, who held the seat until he lost it in the last election to Republican William Schuette, visited the Wheel Inn restaurant on N. US-27; then moved downtown to visit the Grand Gathering restaurant and the Clinton County Senior Citizens Drop-in Center.

Albosta, accompanied by two aides, introduced himself to area residents and walked along Clinton Avenue shaking hands.

An Albosta aide, asked what he thought Albosta's chances are of winning Clinton County, traditionally a Republican stronghold, said he thought his candidate's chances are good.

"I think one of the differences is having Blanchard at the top of the ticket," he said.

He added that having a Republican president in the White House during a mid-term election usually works to the advantage of Democratic congressional candidates.

ALBOSTA said he had a firm commitment from Speaker of the House Jim Wright that he (Albosta) would be named to any House committees on which he could promote the interests of farmers in mid-Michigan.

During the last election, one of the issues was whether Albosta had voluntarily given up his seat on a key agriculture committee. Schuette said Albosta had vacated the seat; Albosta said his appointment to the committee was only temporary.

Albosta said he would, if elected, try to repeal many sections of the 1985 farm bill that he termed "unworkable."

He said current farm policy promotes the interests of large farm operations at the expense of smaller family farms. What is needed, he said, is legislation that "allows us to help ourselves."

FARM POLICY, he said, will not be the only issue he will address in his campaign.

"It is a priority, but in terms of importance, so are projects for senior citizens," he said.

Albosta said veteran's benefits, jobs, and education will also be issues in the campaign. Those areas of the budget have borne more than their fair share of the brunt of budget cutting efforts, he said.

He said he believes the defense budget could be cut without sacrificing the nation's security.

"I think the offensive systems are what I'd cut, the MX missile and the B-1 Bomber, which is already obsolete," he said.

He said the defense budget is still swollen by waste and questionable business practices and that money could be saved by responding to those problems.

"I don't believe they've done that yet," he said. Albosta also said the nation is wasting its resources on foreign aid.

"WHY ARE we increasing all this foreign aid," he asked, citing the $100 million "contra" aid package recently approved by congress.

He said the U.S. should provide humanitarian aid such as "education, sewers, housing" rather than military aid. "If they want to spend $100 million to do that, then I'll support them," he said.

He said he favors military action to protect Americans but that the U.S. should not use "a bunch of bandits" as proxies to fight our battles.

"That won't win us a battle," he said. "That'll make sure that we lose it." Albosta's visit to St. Johns followed a campaign visit by Schuette during the previous week. Schuette appeared here with U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng. Lyng endorsed Albosta for re-election, although both men said Schuette has some disagreements with the administration over farm policy.

School officials say portables unlikely by September 15

By RICH WERTZ
Editor

Two portable classrooms for Perrin-Palmer elementary school have yet to be delivered to the St. Johns school district and school officials say delivery by a Sept. 15 target date is unlikely.

A third portable classroom was expected to be in place and ready for use by Monday morning of this week, said Asst. Supt. Gordon Vandemark on Friday.

Some Perrin-Palmer students are attending classes in the adjacent Church of the Nazarene and in the school gym until the portables are in place.

The district had originally asked for delivery by Aug. 15 of the eight portables, intended to compensate for a classroom shortage created by the closing of Central School early this summer. The McFadden Corp., suppliers of the portables, were unable to deliver all of the portables by that date.

ALTHOUGH McFadden set a new target date of Sept. 15 for delivery of the last two portables, Vandemark and Superintendent Earl Gabriel both say they are doubtful that the target date will be met.

"I don't think I'd put much faith in the Sept. 15 date," said Gabriel at a Sept. 2 meeting of the school board.

The late delivery could mean that McFadden is liable for a monetary penalty but school board members and administrators agreed not to raise the issue until after delivery of the portables has been made.

"We can fight the penalty battle after our kids are in place," said board member Jeanette Adams.

Board member Neil Barnhart said the district should not hire a lawyer to analyze the district's contract with McFadden until the school board had first reviewed the contract. The expense of a lawyer might not be necessary, he said.

Gabriel said at board meeting in August that students, teachers and other school staff, and residents of the district had responded constructively and uncomplainingly to the situation.

"I think the administration has done an admirable job of placing those students despite the fact that we don't have those classrooms there," commented board President Gary Whitford on Sept. 2.

IN OTHER school district news:

• Board members on Sept. 2 directed school administrators to come up with a plan for providing school bus service to city school students who live three-fourths of a mile or more from their schools.

At that meeting Vandemark presented one plan for busing city school students. Vandemark estimated the cost of implementing the plan, which would have created two additional bus runs, at $18,000.

"I put in all the concerns we have heard from parents," said Vandemark. "This is the most you'd want to do. You may want to do less."

The plan met with resistance from board members, who said it swung too far in the opposite direction from not providing any bus service for city students.

"I don't want to be frivolous and start picking up students who live three blocks away," said Adams.

Board members asked for a plan based on the three-fourths of a mile limit. They also asked that the plan accommodate students who live closer than the limit but who have to cross especially dangerous areas on the way to school.

• The high school swimming pool was expected to be ready for use this week but only if delivery of a valve was made on Tuesday as expected. The pool has been put of use pending delivery of the part. Vandemark said on Friday that he expected delivery of the valve today (Aug. 9).

The girls' swim team has practiced in the city swimming pool and at other area high schools while the high school pool has been out of commission.

• Negotiators for the school board and the bus drivers' union have been conferring by telephone regarding the drivers' contract, said Vandemark.

He said both sides will be ready to meet to within a "couple of weeks." The bus drivers are the only school employee group that do not have a

Just for the heck of it: Everything you wanted to know about skunks but were afraid to ask

There's an animal that's common in most neighborhoods throughout Michigan that is at the same time so unobtrusive — usually — that it can live undetected literally under a homeowner's nose.

It's nocturnal, so we normally don't see it. It makes its presence known only when it is disturbed by another animal or human or when its feeding in the lawn or garden creates a problem.

It's been dubbed "the most feared mammal on the North American continent," not because of its ferocity or size or strength, but because of what it carries under its tail. You guessed it: it's the skunk.

In Michigan, it's the striped skunk, though that name can be misleading. Striped skunks may have no white on them at all, the classic white cap and one or two full-length or partial white stripes, or some other variation on the black and white theme. One thing is certain: when they let loose their calling card, they can't be mistaken for anything else.

Skunks often come into conflict with humans when they choose to make their den under a house with a crawl space, a porch or deck, a mobile home, or a portable classroom.

The occupants of these structures may live on top of a skunk for some time without knowing it's there because the skunk itself doesn't stink — it has an animal odor just as a horse or dog does, but it doesn't smell like what it sprays.

When people find out that the animal is there is when something else gets under the structure or alarms the skunk out in the open and it defends itself.

Another problem with skunks is damage to the lawn as they dig for grubs and damage to the garden as they forage in the sweet corn, tomatoes, and cantaloupe.

Skunks have mittlike front paws with big claws for digging. With one or two swipes, they can open and push aside the sod and dig down two to three inches where the grubs are. A busy skunk can make a lawn look as if a mad golfer has been rampaging around the lawn making divots.

Damage in the garden is less distinctive. Woodchucks, raccoons, deer, and, in urban areas, rats will also feed in the garden at night. Tracks in garden soil or sightings of the intruders at work may be necessary to determine what animal is involved.

People who keep chickens or ducks may find out that skunks are fairly effective predators when their prey can not get away from them. A big skunk can handle an adult chicken or duck, though a goose is too much for it. Chicks and ducklings, of course, are easy prey.

Often we learn that a skunk is nearby in most traumatic fashion. The script goes something like this: the family is ready for bed and somebody lets the dog out one last time before everybody settles down for the night. After a few moments of furious barking, the dog scratches on the door to come in.

Realization dawns when somebody opens the door and smells skunk, but the hysterical dog is faster than the door opener's reflexes and he's inside and bolting to his favorite safe retreat — under the bed, behind the sofa, wherever — before anyone can stop him.

His coat is saturated with the smelly oil from the skunk, and he leaves liberal doses of it on rugs, upholstery, bedclothes, the clothing family members trying to head him off and get him outside, and

More than 3 million teens in U.S. smoke cigarettes

More than three million cigarette smokers in the United States today are teenagers. Recent statistics indicate that more teen girls than boys smoke, possibly because girls appear to be more susceptible to the social pressure to smoke.

Peer pressure is one reason teens start smoking. The teen years are the time when children begin to move away from their family and are influenced more by their friends. Studies tell us that most teenagers who smoke have friends who also smoke. Pressure to try smoking sometimes occurs when children are only 12 to 14 years.

Family behavior is a major influence in a teen's decision to try cigarette smoking. In families where one or both parents smoke, a child is more likely to start smoking. It's interesting to note, also, that there is an even greater chance that the younger child will begin smoking if an older sibling smokes. It's possible that sibling behavior is more influential than parental.

Teens are also extremely vulnerable to cigarette advertisements. Generally these ads show young, attractive people doing fun and exciting things while smoking, implying that smoking cigarettes can lead to the good life.

What can we do to stem this increase of young people smoking? Children must be taught social skills and techniques for resisting, as well as learning the long-term health ramifications of smoking. At home, parents can forbid smoking by family members and guests. In schools, parents can cooperate by supporting PTA or other community organizations in promoting programs to help keep their children from smoking. Some parents have also informed school officials that they expect enforcement of "no smoking" rules.

everything else he touches. The pungent stuff is very irritating to the eyes and nasal passages, and if the dog received the spray directly in the face at short range, he may have suffered permanent eye damage.

Getting the skunk odor out of clothing and other portable fabrics — that is, things you can take outside to air — isn't that big a deal. After airing and perhaps being rained on or rinsed once or twice, clothes can be washed in a strong detergent without stinking up the whole house. For upholstery and rugs that have to stay in place, at least two skunk-neutralizing products are available commercially.

You'll usually find them among the grooming aids in horse and dog supply catalogs. Your local veterinarian or pet store operator may also have them or know where you can get them. In the meantime, acetic acid — in the form of vinegar or tomato juice — followed by a good scrubbing with a shampoo for oily hair should make your dog fit to live with again, though he still may smell a little skunky, especially when he gets wet.

After an encounter with a skunk, people often want to know how they can get rid of it, meaning exterminate it. Because skunks feed on nests of baby mice and rabbits, ground-nesting wasps and bees, and moles, getting rid of the skunks just because they're in the neighborhood might simply be trading one problem for another one.

Don't assume you have a skunk problem just because you get a whiff of a skunk odor in the yard. If it's gone the next morning, you may have smelled a great horned owl reeking of skunk. These large owls prey on skunks and don't seem to mind the odor.

When a skunk is under the house or somewhere else where it's likely to be provoked frequently, however, you do have to do something about it.

One thing that won't work is sealing up the entry to the den it has dug. Skunks are very powerful diggers. If you fill the entrance with dirt and cement blocks, the skunk will simply move over a couple of feet and dig a new entrance. The only solution is to catch the skunk in either a trap that kills instantly or in a live trap, and then kill it or release it some distance away. Then you need to install some L-shaped skirting to prevent some other skunk from moving in.

Backyard skunks are around all over. The amazing thing is not that they make their presence known in such a dramatic and unmistakable manner, but that they go undetected for so long.

Knowing that the skunk has probably been around for some time and that there are doubtless others in the vicinity can make you aware of the potential problems so you can prevent them, avoid an odoriferous conflict and continue to enjoy observing nature from your backdoor.

Fairness

Rich Wertz

Two weeks ago a front page story described a visit to St. Johns by U.S. Rep. William Schuette and U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng. This week a front page story describes a visit by Donald Albosta, who is challenging Schuette for the 10th District Congressional seat.

Perhaps it goes without saying that fair and balanced coverage is what this newspaper strives to provide. Even so, with an important general election only weeks away there can be no harm in emphasizing what it is we try to do — and perhaps touch on some of the difficulties of the same.

It is the policy of this newspaper to report all sides of any issue that arises in our community. Although newspapers are often perceived of as "opinion shapers," neither myself nor any of my colleagues on the staff of the company I work for spend any time worrying about shaping opinion. We do, on the other hand, spend a great deal of time worrying about getting both sides of a story.

In the case of an election, it is relatively simple to get both sides of the story — all that is needed is to cover the campaigns of both candidates. When William Schuette comes to town he gets coverage. When Donald Albosta comes to town he gets coverage.

OTHER TIMES it is not as easy. Many news stories involve one or two "official" sources of information, usually government officials of one sort or another. Obviously it is the responsibility of any newspaper to report the information gleaned from officialdom.

But for every official source of news there is an unlimited number of unofficial sources. Reporters generally develop a number of such sources of information: a farm reporter, for instance, will contact various agriculture departments for official information but will also contact farmers to get the views of those most immediately affected by farm policy.

To a large degree the success of a news story depends on how well represented are those unofficial sources — and the success of a journalist depends on the extent to which he or she can cultivate such sources.

But we have to face it. Many times it is the only official side of an issue that gets reported. The official story is the most readily available — all that is required is to make the appropriate phone calls. The unofficial side of the story requires much more legwork. Sometimes a story arises for which the reporter does not have unofficial sources of information.

FOR INSTANCE, a few weeks ago, this newspaper ran a story about chemical spraying along county roadsides. I remember a feeling of uneasiness when the paper went to press — the article did an adequate job of quoting informed official sources of information but did not include the views of a single resident with roadside property. It was not an oversight — had there been an unlimited amount of time I might have actually knocked on a door at random in an attempt to get "person-on-the-roadside" opinions. As one reader later pointed out, it would have strengthened the story.

The saving grace here is that it is the readers, not the reporter nor the officials quoted in a particular news story, who have the last word. The roadside spraying story was followed by more letters to the editor than were stimulated by any topic since the school recall election — all of them expressing a very unofficial but very adamant objection to the spraying. In short, we try to be fair but we are sometimes more successful than at other times. When we fall short of the mark — we want you to tell us. We don't want to shape your opinion. We want your opinion to give shape to our coverage.

"It's in the Bag"

by: Bob Beck

Vinegar is as old as wine; its name - vin aigre - means sour wine. Just as grape juice left to stand by itself is likely to be transformed into wine by the action of the wild yeasts that are always present in the air. What made wine turn into vinegar remained a mystery until Pasteur's studies of fermentation in the 1850's.

No one really knows when vinegar first came into use, but it was probably an accidental discovery. The Romans and Greeks had a variety of vinegars made from grapes, figs, dates, betony and squill. They used it often in cooking and even more in preserving.

CIDER VINEGAR is made from fermented apple juice and is probably the most versatile. DISTILLED VINEGAR is used mainly for pickling and canning. MALT VINEGAR is made from barley and is used in salad dressings. WINE VINEGAR is made from red or white wine and is also especially good in salad dressings. Finally, HERB VINEGAR adds a subtle flavor to sauces, meats, fish, eggs and salads.

Vinegar is not often thought of as a principal ingredient in cooking. Yet there are many dishes in which vinegar - red, white or flavored - plays an important role.

Food buying

Dawn Harris

The bountiful supply of fresh, homegrown fruits and vegetables makes September one of the best months for food shopping.

Poultry and egg prices are already stabilizing now that the heat and drought have moderated in the southeastern United States.

Shoppers are already finding plenty of bargains at the meat counter in the form of beef. Beef production is being maintained by the liquidation of beef cows. The beef supply is being reduced and eventually supplies will bottom out to the point that prices will increase. Exactly when that will occur is uncertain, but many analysts are guessing it will be sometime in late 1986 or early 1987. One thing for sure: lower food costs will help poultry producers more than beef producers. Pork prices have strengthened in recent weeks.

September is the month for Michigan purple plums. The plum crop is down both nationally and in the state, but they still will be readily available throughout most of the month. Both Michigan varieties have blue-black skins and green-yellow flesh. They offer one big advantage over other plums on the market now: Michigan plums come off the pit easily when ripe. They are also very sweet.

Michigan has a 38 percent larger pear crop than that of a year earlier. Look for Bartlett pears through Sept., with the winter Bosc pear on the market through the end of the year.

You'll also find Michigan blueberries, peaches, cantaloupe, apples and grapes readily available most of this month. One surprise in store for shoppers at some farm markets are fresh raspberries. That's right, raspberries in Sept. The Heritage variety fruits in Sept. when properly managed.

Almost every kind of vegetable grown commercially in Michigan will be available this month, but look especially for the cole vegetables. Michigan growers are increasing their production of broccoli, cauliflower, specialty cabbages and such. This will be the last month to get locally grown salad vegetables at summertime prices.

Marion and Glenden Morley

The Morleys Celebrate Golden Anniversary

Marion and Glenden Morley, 1204 S. Oakland Street, St. Johns, will have been married 50 years on Sept. 19, 1936.

An open air buffet was held in celebration of the event on Aug. 9. Family members from Sault Ste. Marie, Detroit, North Carolina, and Arizona were able to participate in the celebration with Marion and Glenden. Congratulations to a fine couple, and a wonderful mother and father.

Words cannot express our sincere appreciation for the many acts of kindness given to us during the recent loss of our loved one.

The beautiful flowers, plants, food, cards, gifts of money and the many phone calls showing your concern was very comforting to our hearts.

A special thanks to Rev. Jaquette for his comforting words, also to the ladies from the Perrinton United Methodist Church for the food they prepared for us, and to the Dodge Funeral Home for their kindness and thoughtfulness.

May God bless each and every one of you.

Financial focus Retirement funds

By Chuck Dicken

One of the major concerns of many retired people is outliving their income. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, 30.2 million people depend to some degree on Social Security which is neither adequate nor intended to be the sole source of retirement income. Another 7.9 million look to private company pension plans and personal savings as their only other additional income. Often the income from these isn't adequate to offer much more than a poverty existence. In order to meet the rising cost of living, these retirees frequently must begin regular withdrawals from their principal. They begin to fear all their retirement funds and savings will soon be gone.

Although there are no guaranteed solutions to this problem, there are ways to manage retirement income so, with prudent planning, funds won't be depleted during your lifetime. For example, consider a male who retires at age 65, takes his company retirement benefits in a lump sum settlement and, within the 60 days required, deposits them into an IRA rollover. There's no tax on his retirement funds at this time, and they continue to grow, tax deferred, until the man reaches 70½ when he must begin withdrawals. At that time our retiree has several options designed to provide income for the rest of his life. One option is to annuitize.

Many major insurance companies offer annuities with a variety of options. One option is regular monthly payments for the life of the annuitant or for a period of 10 years, whichever is longer. For example, if at the annuity starting date the annuitant is age 70 and deposits $100,000, one major insurance company promises to pay $1,067 each month for life. These payments vary among insurance companies, but they're all calculated on the amount of money invested, the age of the annuitant, and the guarantees of the insurance company. If the annuitant should die before 10 years, his beneficiary continues to receive this payment for the remainder of that period.

The negative features of such a contract are the return is generally lower than that on other investments. It never increases, and at the end of the period any money which is left becomes the property of the insurance company. There's nothing left for your heirs or estate. However, by using the annuity, you can't outlive the income. This is a feature many retired people desire.

Another approach to lessen the risk of prematurely depleting an IRA is to have your funds professionally managed through mutual funds. Let's consider a male, age 70, with $100,000 in an IRA rollover account who begins mandatory withdrawals. There are several ways to figure his life expectancy. One option is to use only his life expectancy. Another is to combine his life expectancy with that of a surviving spouse. Each year the life expectancy of the retiree or the retiree and his spouse is recalculated and a portion of the account is withdrawn. This insures the account is never totally depleted. The retiree has the option of taking withdrawals monthly, quarterly, or semi-annually. In this example, since the funds are being managed, the value of the account fluctuates depending on investment results. Since most mutual funds companies manage a family of funds with various investment objectives and risks, the retiree has the option to select one or more of these funds as an investment. He also has the right to transfer assets from one fund to another within the group when, and if, his investment objectives change.

These are only two examples of how retirement funds can be prudently managed. If you're planning for retirement in the near future, you owe it to yourself and your family to investigate options. It can make the difference in the security of your retirement years.

Program helps area businesses SCORE with management advice

At least eight local business people have taken advantage of SCORE since the program began in St. Johns several months ago, says Joann Martis, director of the St. Johns Area Chamber of Commerce.

SCORE is short for Service Corps of Retired Executives. The program, conducted by appointment the last Thursday of each month at the St. Johns Area Chamber of Commerce office, matches retired executive Harold Soffin with local business owners looking for advice or counseling about their operations.

Soffin is one of a number of SCORE "circuit riders" who visit towns and cities in the Lansing area. At one time the SCORE program was available only through the Lansing Area Chamber of Commerce.

"By having him come here we're reaping the rewards from all this experience," says Martis. The sessions are all one-on-one, confidential, community, and free. For St. Johns Area Chamber of available to anyone in the an appointment, call the Commerce at 224-7248.

GM and railroads team up to help emergency haylift

General Motors and Grand Trunk Western Railroad (GTW), with voluntary assistance from many of their employees, are participating in the emergency haylift to assist drought-plagued farmers in western counties of Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

A special haylift train, using piggyback trailers on flatcars, left from Lansing on Sept. 8 for the first-leg of the 535-mile move, going to Chicago where the hay was forwarded to Iron Mountain by a connecting carrier.

The U.S. Dept. of Agriculture estimates that 15,000 bales of hay will be donated to the emergency program by farmers. Farmers in Iron, Dickinson, and Gogebic counties lost most of their scheduled first harvest of hay in May and the second cutting has been only marginally better.

Family life Allergies

Mona Ellard

When our son was just a little over four months old, he became very ill. It started with a small case of crankiness, then watery eyes, followed by a colicky stomach distention that kept the three of us up night after night, then diarrhea that lasted nearly a month. The two doctors, one a family practitioner and the other a pediatrician who treated him first, put him on a soybean formula, then later decided he couldn't tolerate even that.

Finally, out of sheer desperation, we contacted an allergist. You see my husband and I just were not convinced that our baby was having problems that were food related. However, we soon became true believers and I hope today's column will help you understand the nature of food allergies.

What is an allergy?

If you are allergic to something, it means you are overly sensitive to some substance. All substances are made up of chemicals. Substances that might cause an allergy can be chemicals in the air, on the ground, in your clothing, in food, or elsewhere. If food, these substances are usually proteins. If the substance gets under the skin or into the bloodstream, a sensitive person's body can react in a way that is not healthy for them.

Your body's defense system, which handles substances like this, is called the immune system. This system is made up of the tonsils, thyroid, lymph glands, spleen, white blood cells, and other groups of cells located throughout the body. These cells protect against unwanted chemicals.

One of the immune system responses is to release chemicals such as histamine. For reasons that are not fully understood, too much chemical can be released. This can cause a runny nose, itching, a rash, wheezing, shortness of breath, or other symptoms that we associate with an allergy. Whenever the body reacts excessively to a substance, it is possible that the person is allergic to that substance.

Why are some people allergic to certain substances and other people are not? Heredity plays a role, since allergies often run in families. Most allergies begin in childhood, although there are people who do not have allergic reactions until they are adults. Some infants appear to be allergic to certain things, but the symptoms disappear as the child gets older.

How much of the substance a person is exposed to can also be a factor. Very small amounts can be a problem for one person while another person can tolerate much more of the same chemical. Why these differences occur is not known.

About 17 percent of all people in the United States have some type of allergy. The most common type of allergy is hay fever, which is caused by inhaling pollens, dust, mold, animal hair, paint fumes, and other substances. About 7 percent of the people have hay fever. The next most common type of allergic reaction is asthma. About 4 percent have asthma. It is also often caused by inhaling a substance. About 6 percent of those who have allergies react to such things as bee stings, drugs, and food. The following information will deal specifically with allergies related to substances in food.

What is a food allergy?

The term "food allergy" is not clearly defined by many people. Other terms, which are often used to mean the same thing, are food sensitivity, food intolerance, or food idiosyncrasy.

A food allergy usually refers to those reactions to food that involve a response from the body's immune system. However, there are also reactions which have symptoms just like a food allergy but do not involve the immune system. These sensitivities may be caused by (1) natural substances in foods; (2) substances that are added to foods; (3) naturally occurring food toxins; (4) food poisoning; or (5) certain genetic enzyme deficiencies.

Any reactions to food can be a problem, but treatment is different depending upon whether the reaction is caused by the immune system or one of the other reasons listed above. Therefore, it is important to find out what type of reaction has actually occurred.

Which foods cause allergies?

Most children or adults with food allergies are only allergic to one or two foods. It is rare for a person to have allergic reactions to numerous foods at one time. The foods most often identified with allergic reactions are milk, nuts, citrus fruits, eggs, wheat, crustaceans (shrimp, crab, and lobster), beans, and fish.

Other foods can produce reactions in some children and adults, but these reactions are probably not caused by an allergy. Some examples are chocolate, strawberries, and corn.

If you think that you or your child has had a reaction to a food, check the foods listed here. If the food you suspect is not one of those shown, you should also consider other possible reasons for the reaction.

What are the symptoms?

About 75 percent of people with food allergies have gastrointestinal distress such as vomiting, nausea, diarrhea, and abdominal pain. The next most common symptoms are skin reactions like eczema, hives, and swelling lips, ears, and face (angioedema). About 25 percent of people with food allergies experience skin reactions. Only about 4 percent of those with food allergies experience respiratory symptoms like a runny nose or asthma.

The least common, but most severe, reaction is anaphylactic shock. In this reaction the person can experience several symptoms at the same time such as difficult breathing, swelling of some part of the body, a warm feeling all over, and a drop in blood pressure. This type of reaction requires immediate hospital emergency treatment.

All of these symptoms have other causes as well. Abdominal distress, vomiting, and diarrhea are symptoms of food poisoning and enzyme deficiency. Viruses, chicken pox, poison oak, heat, and stress can cause rashes and even hives. A runny nose and asthma can be caused by an infection, a virus, or pollen or dust in the air. Thus, a good diagnosis is important.

Food allergies are often blamed for other childhood symptoms, but chronic nasal congestion (stuffy nose), long-term asthma, chronic ear infections, fatigue, and behavior changes such as hyperactivity and irritability have not yet been proven to be caused by food allergy.

A little more needs to be said about hyperactive or disrupting behavior in children and its relationship to the food they eat. Parents want to relieve both their child's discomfort and the stress on the whole family caused by the presence of annoying symptoms in a young child. Unfortunately they may be ready to accept the problem as a food allergy just to feel as if they are doing something to help their child.

If you are a parent, it is important for you to understand that misbehavior by your child is usually not caused by food allergies, eating sugar, food additives, or any of a number of other food-related causes. Before you deny your child any food because you think the food makes them misbehave, check with a knowledgeable doctor about other possible causes. Children need a wide variety of food to help them grow. Taking foods away needlessly will not teach them good nutrition and most likely will not improve their behavior.

Who can diagnose allergies?

It is necessary to determine the difference between a long-term allergy to a food substance and a short-term reaction to something in a food. It is important to find a qualified health professional to properly diagnose a food allergy. Do not put your child's or your health into the hands of just anybody. Unqualified people may have clinics and advertise in the newspapers, but their diagnosis may be very wrong. Be wary of books that attempt to diagnose allergies which may be affecting you. Each diagnosis should be done on an individual basis by a competent professional.

Go to a medical doctor, preferably one who specializes in allergies. The doctor should be a member of a professional society such as the American Academy of Allergy and Immunology. Contact your county medical society for the names of reputable people.

Success story

By the way, our son is now a healthy 8-year-old who has outgrown all the old food allergies. How's that for a success story?

Mona Ellard is a Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service Home Economist.

You can help protect vision with single telephone call

Seventy-nine elderly Michigan residents might have gone blind from undetected glaucoma if they had not called 1-800-222-EYES, a public service which offers medical eye care to the disadvantaged elderly at no out-of-pocket cost.

The National Eye Care Project — which operates nationwide through a toll-free Helpline — opened in Michigan May 5. It has received more than 2,669 calls from seniors in Michigan who may be suffering from glaucoma and other sight-threatening eye diseases.

More than 1,851 of these callers have made appointments with volunteer physicians and have received treatment, including 79 found to have glaucoma. The project is sponsored locally by the Michigan Ophthalmological Society and the Foundation of the American Academy of Ophthalmology.

"The purpose of this outreach is to find elderly citizens who don't have a regular eye physician and who may well have significant, often blinding eye disease," said B. Thomas Hutchinson, MD, Associate Clinical Professor of Ophthalmology at Harvard Medical School, and chairman of the Academy's National Eye Care Project.

Glaucoma, with an increased incidence in those over age 65, is one of the leading causes of blindness in the U.S. today, Dr. Hutchinson said. In its early stages, glaucoma may present no obvious symptoms because initial damage occurs in the peripheral vision. One form of glaucoma, unless detected and treated immediately, can cause blindness in a day or two.

'Real to Reel' shows on channel 56

Real to Reel, the only religious program in the area without a sermon, starts its fifth season on WLNS, Channel Six, every Sunday at 10:30 a.m.

The program, produced by the Catholic Diocese of Lansing with the cooperation of WLNS, focuses on real people doing real things because of their religious commitment, according to Fr. Don Eder, director of the diocese's Office of Communication.

Howard Lancour, well known local TV personality, serves as host of the half-hour show. A highlight of the new season will be Bishop Povish's answers to viewer questions and a biweekly news summary. In addition, once each month Betty Brenner, religion editor of the Flint Journal newspaper, will talk with Bishop Povish about a current, controversial issue. "We have had great response to the show," says Fr. Eder. "People seem to appreciate the fact that we treat them as adults."

Art Festival planned Sept. 13-14

The Clinton County Arts Council has released more information about the outdoor Folk Art Festival planned for Sept. 13 and 14.

The festival will be held from 1-5 p.m. at the Gallery and Gift Shop, located at US-27 and N. Clinton Ave. in St. Johns. Demonstrations, exhibits, entertainment, and food will be available for family fun and participation in the folk arts.

Planned demonstrations include: wooden toy making by Andy McClary; candle dipping by Gene Montague; wood carving by Charles Ruble and Arnold Korte; cutting wood figures with foot-powered tools plus additional tools on exhibit by Bill Carter; basket making from log to splint weaving by Linda and Tom Sutton; Scandinavian Rosemaling by Donna and Bill Buehl; glass blowing by Michael and Carole Evans; cor-nhusk dolls and flowers by Ruth Brooks.

Entertainment will include a marionette show in addition to folk and country music by Bill and Pat Trommator of Muir, and Kitty Donohoe of St. Johns. Donohoe's newly released album will also be available on tapes at the Gallery.

Folk artists from the area will have displays of their work available for purchase, such as tole painting, hard carved and painted figures, painted boxes, quilted items, and wooden games.

Of special interest is an exhibit of Navajo and Southwestern Indian art made available through the Western Michigan Indian Council. Work by nationally recognized artists will be on display, including Joan Brown, who has the reputation of being the "Norman Rockwell" of Indian art; Benjamin Harjo Jr., whose pride in Seminole-Shawnee ancestry is reflected in all of his work; Little Thunders work is in great demand as interest in Indian art grows throughout the country; Jonny Hawk's detailed Indian feather; and wonderfully colored and detailed Navajo sand paintings of tribal symbols by Ernest and Allen Hunt. Authentic hand-woven rugs and baskets and ceremonial dress will also be displayed.

An exhibit of hand-carved cedar fans, done in the traditional folk art of whittling slices of cedar which fan out into intricate and delicate art pieces, by Glen VanAntwerp will be on display.

Pizza, bratswurst, and sauerkraut will be available throughout the festival which will be held rain or shine under the tents.

Manor to celebrate housekeeping and its housekeeping employees

Birthdays this week at H.I.F.C.M. are as follows: Mary Quick—Sept. 10 Marguerite Crampton—Sept. 13 Pauline Stelter—Sept. 13 Birthday greetings would be very much appreciated.

The week of Sept. 7 through Sept. 13 is National Executive Housekeepers Week, and the Manor plans to celebrate in many ways. This year's theme, "Working for a Cleaner Tomorrow," is demonstrated daily by the fresh, clean smelling halls and rooms one finds when walking through this number one nursing home.

The week will be highlighted by a special recognition given by the administration when they publicly express appreciation to employees in the department. An election will also give employees the opportunity to recognize their co-workers. A "Housekeeper of the Year" will be named through ballots by their co-workers. The special week will end Friday with a pot luck lunch which housekeeping employees choose to do yearly.

The retired senior volunteer program officially comes to the Manor on Sept. 10 at 9:30 a.m. The Manor volunteers and residents will be the RSVP volunteers and will be working on projects for local elementary school children. We welcome this program with open arms as it gives our residents a very meaningful and worthwhile activity and project.

Did you know?

- That Ernie and Sylvia Schulz, both residents at Findlay Country Manor, celebrated their 48th wedding anniversary on Sept. 2.
- That 30 residents, family members, employees and volunteers will be heading to Tiger Stadium on Sept. 14 to see the Tigers play ball? Many thanks to all who have made this outing possible.
- That anyone aged 18 or younger can become a junior volunteer at the Manor. For information simply attend this years orientation session on Sept. 15 at 7:00 p.m. in the dining room. Bring your parents, too!

Owosso to hold its annual Heritage Walk & Home Tour

Owosso's annual Historic Home Tour and Heritage Walk will take place on Sept. 27.

The 1986 Heritage walk is in celebration of Owosso's 150th birthday.

The tour is from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and includes Curwood Castle, the Elias Comstock Cabin (built in 1836), the Amos Gould House (built about 1860, owned by the Owosso Historical Commission, which sponsors the tour) seven homes dating from 1856 through 1893, two historic churches and a 1911 machine shop, the owner of which has kept it "as a working historical tribute to the machinists of the past, as well as serving the modern community."

Tickets are $3 in advance, or $4 the day of the tour and may be ordered by sending a check or money order to: Heritage Walk, Jill Enlow, 1239 S. Ruess Rd., Owosso, Mich. 48867. In Owosso they are available at Howe Drugs, Voight's Pharmacy, the Printed Word, the Owosso-Corunna Area Chamber of Commerce and City Hall. The day of the tour they will be sold at Curwood Castle and the Gould House.

Featured artist this year is Owosso native Gordon Graham, whose art will be displayed at the Gould House. He is an interior designer and designer in flowers, furniture, fashions, and his own teddy bears.

Other features include a tea party at the Gould House. The Herb Guild will have a show and sale in the carriage house there and the 1987 Historical Owosso calendars will be sold, with autographs by its creators, historian Helen Harrelson and artist Richard Harsh.

The historic Owosso Public Library will be open, hosted by the Genealogical Society, and visitors are welcome to tour Mulberry House, an example of Owosso's bed and breakfast establishments. Long-time Owosso resident Ivalita Minor is the Shawnee Arts Council's featured artist at Curwood Castle all through September.

Music will include the Shawnee Strings at the Gould House during the tea, dulcimer music and organ music at locations along the route.

Among pioneer crafts will be pottery, weaving, quilting, and other demonstrations. Refreshments will include the "Stone Soup" dining room at the Congregational Church, rolls coffee and a bake sale at the Episcopal Church and an invitation to enjoy Owosso's fine restaurants.

Visitors are invited to park in downtown Owosso in the area of Exchange and Water streets, stroll along the Shawnee River on the James S. Miner Walkway, across the Heritage Footbridge and start the Heritage Walk at the Comstock Cabin and Curwood Castle, where a brief video tape preview of the walk will be shown on the lower level.

The Heritage Walk can be enjoyed at any time of year at no charge, with the cabin and castle open to the public. However, other historic buildings are open for viewing only on the fourth Saturday in September.

Other annual vents in Owosso include the Wildlife At Show during the first weekend in November and the Curwood Festival, a three-day celebration of Owosso's heritage in general and of author James Oliver Curwood (who built the castle) in particular. The Curwood Festival is held the first full weekend in June.

Mobile park developers submit second site plan

Developers of a proposed mobile home park near Park Lake and State roads in Bath Township have gone back to the drawing board, but it's not certain that township officials and residents are pleased with the results.

The planning commission had denied Aug. 25 the required rezoning of the land just south of Park Lake for the proposed trailer park. But before the township board at its meeting last week could act on the recommendation to deny, the developers presented a new site plan that calls for larger lots, fewer units, and more trees in the park.

Trustees moved to send the new plans to the planning commission for review and another recommendation.

If the rezoning is approved, the developers must still obtain a special use permit before the 246-unit mobile home park will become a reality, says Zoning Administrator Jason Cherry. Mobile home parks are not a use by right in any zone in the township, he says.

The 81.2 acres involved is presently zoned low density residential. The minimum lot size allowed in that zone is a little under a half acre, or 20,000 square feet. The lot sizes in the proposed mobile home park (which will include tennis courts, a pool, and a community building), are 6,000 square feet, the minimum lot size required in the village core district. The developers want the land rezoned from low density to village core.

Owners of the land are Carl Kreager, the former owner of the 212-unit Dutch Hills trailer park on Upton Road, and Don Whipp. Other developers involved in the project are Malcomb Bell and Chuck Meehan, both of Flint.

The original plans, which were objected to by the planning commission and residents at a public hearing, called for a much denser 322 units on 5,000 square-foot lots.

Another objection to the project is that the mobile home park will be divided almost in half by the school district boundary: half the children in the park would go to Bath schools, and the other would go to Haslett.

According to Cherry, it might be possible for the two superintendents to negotiate so that the entire mobile home park will be in one district. However, each district would most likely want to keep as much of its area as it could because state aid is granted on the basis of the number of students in the district. The more students, the more monetary aid is received.

According to Cherry, a third objection by the planning commission and residents is the effect on wetlands and the loss of mature trees with the development of the mobile home park. Since the proposed site is directly south of Park Lake, it borders the wetlands. Oak and other mature trees cover the site as well. However, the new site plan did call for the retention of more of those trees than in the original plan.

Cherry says he did not know how the planning commission would react to the new site plan when they meet Sept. 22.

"The developers have made a real effort to try and make this conform to what we've objected to and what others have objected to," he says.

Eagles roll to easy win over Maple Valley

The Fowler Eagles opened their 1986 football season last Friday with a 30-6 shellacking of Maple Valley, played before a capacity home crowd.

"The kids played well for their first game," Head Coach Steve Spicer said. "I'd say it was a total team effort."

The Eagles, ranked seventh in the state in Class D in an opening season Detroit News poll, breezed to a 22-0 halftime lead on excellent running by Rex Thelen and Curtis Feldpausch.

Fowler scored early in the first quarter on a 55 yard run by Thelen. The two-point conversion pass from Matt Hufnagel to Kurt Simon was good, and the Eagles were up 8-0.

Another touchdown in the opening period on a four-yard run by Thelen, and two more points on a pass from Hufnagel to Bruce Feldpausch made the score 16-0.

"Curtis was doing the blocking while Rex was doing the running," Coach Spicer said. "They complimented each other well during the whole night."

The 22-0 halftime lead came as a result of a four-yard run by Hufnagel into the end zone. The extra point attempt was no good.

Maple Valley got on the board in the third quarter, making the score 22-6. Thelen came through one more time for the Eagles, breaking a long gainer for 37 yards and six more Fowler points. Feldpausch gave the Eagles their final two points of the game on the conversion attempt, and the score ended at 30-6.

Although passing was slim for the Eagles, with Hufnagel completing 1-1 for six yards, Fowler never needed to put the ball in the air.

"Once we got ahead by 22-0, we just kind of sat on it," Spicer said. "Matt did a nice job for his first time out as quarterback. We controlled the ball the way we wanted to."

Fowler had 345 total yards rushing with Thelen getting 213 of those on 20 carries, and Curtis Feldpausch netted 117 on 21 carries. The Eagles held Maple Valley to just 55 yards on the ground and 32 in the air.

"Our defense was very well balanced," the coach said. "I don't believe anyone had over five tackles — it was totally balanced."

The Eagles will have their work cut out for them when they face Bay City All Saints this Friday in another home contest. "Hopefully we can play with them," Spicer said. "We started 11 new men on defense and nine new men on offense in our opening game. We will need another good team effort to win this Friday."

Redwings defeat Owosso in closing seconds

By RHONDA WESTFALL
Sports Editor

The Redwings brought the fans to their feet last Friday night in their home-opener football clash with Owosso.

St. Johns came from behind to take a 15-14 win with just 59 seconds left on the clock.

In reality, there were 55 seconds on the clock, but that was just one of the mistakes made during the course of the evening.

"Everybody made mistakes — the coaches, the players, the officials. We have lots of room for improvement," said St. Johns head coach Bart Kjolhede. "But — it was nice to win."

The Redwings scored first at the 1:42 mark in the first quarter on a quarterback sneak by Jerry Duwell. That capped a St. Johns drive that saw fullback Bill Keenoy and tailback Dwight Pierson run for tough yardage. The extra point attempt by Tom Bates was good, and the Redwings were ahead 7-0.

The second quarter was pretty much a back-and-forth dual with St. Johns hampered in scoring drives by penalty calls.

"The penalties definitely had an impact on our getting any continuity going offensively," Coach Kjolhede said. "We looked at the book at halftime and had only 101 offensive yards. It didn't seem like that could be right — but it was."

The Redwings were dealt a major blow with 4:11 left in the second quarter when a completed 35 yard touchdown pass from Duwell to Tom Penix was nullified on an ineligible receiver downfield call.

ACCORDING TO Kjolhede, a review of game films showed that Heyer was not lined up on the line of scrimmage, and therefore Penix was eligible to receive the ensuing pass.

"It was a nice pass and a nice throw," Kjolhede said, "and it would have been helpful to have taken a 14-0 lead into halftime. We talked to the officials at halftime and got the disagreement settled on where the proper place to line up was."

The "settling" was done as the Redwing marching band came closer and closer to running both Kjolhede and the officials down at the beginning of their halftime program.

St. Johns opened the second half with Zane Ballard receiving the ball at the Redwing 35 yard line. They secured one first down on a run by Duwell, but were forced to punt to Owosso. A series of first downs on strong running by Owosso ended in a touchdown for the Trojans with 5:45 left in the third quarter. The two point conversion was good, and Owosso took a 8-7 lead.

PUNTING — Redwing players Tim Cleaver, number 82, and 76 Jim Cain attempt to block an Owosso punt in St. Johns' home opener with the Trojans last week. Although the Redwing defense was inconsistent at times, Coach Bart Kjolhede noted that they "came through in the end when they had to."

"Owosso seemed to get stronger and tougher in the second half," Coach Kjolhede said. "They played well, while our defense did not. We didn't hit well."

The Redwings mounted a drive late in the third quarter that ended in a fumble on the Owosso 31 yard line. The Trojans recovered with :02 left in the period, then went on to take a 14-7 lead at the 6:23 mark in the final quarter.

Things looked grim when St. Johns threw an interception on the opening play following Owosso's kickoff. That gave the Trojans the ball on the St. Johns 44, but the Redwing defense held and Owosso was forced to punt.

Gary Zimmerman returned the ball to the St. Johns 16 yard line, and Duwell broke a long gainer which brought the Redwings all the way to the Owosso 45. With just over two minutes left in the game St. Johns came to life via pass plays and a renewed offensive line.

IN A THIRD and six situation, and with :59 seconds on the clock, Duwell completed a pass to Chuck Heyer in the end zone putting the Redwings down by just one, 14-13. Coach Kjolhede elected to go for the two points and got them on a roll-out to the right with Duwell passing again to Heyer in the end zone.

"Their (the teams) poise really came through for us," the coach said. "That's what happens when you have good, intelligent athletes."

Statistic-wise, Duwell was 6-16 passing for 76 yards with one interception, one touchdown, and the conversion pass. Heyer had 49 yards as a receiver on three passes, and Penix netted 18 yards on two receptions. Keenoy was the leading rusher with 65 yards on 16 carries, and Duwell added 59 yards rushing on 11 carries.

Owosso had 195 total rushing yards and 25 passing yards, while St. Johns ended with a 227 total — 151 rushing and 76 passing.

The Redwings face Waverly at home this Friday and Coach Kjolhede figures that will be a tough contest.

"They have strong kids," the coach said, "and run their offense a lot like Corunnas. We will have to be aggressive defensively, and learn from the mistakes we made against Owosso. Hopefully we can do that in practices this week."

SJ golfers split

The Redwing golf team split a pair of matches last week, dropping their opening season confrontation with Holt 159-161, before coming back to defeat Grand Ledge on Friday 341-344.

According to Coach Paul Sternburgh, a score of 161 on the St. Johns home course would have been good for a win against most Mid-Michigan B teams. But it was not good enough to beat the Holt squad whose low man, Chris Rule, carded a 33 for nine holes.

"He (Rule) was a Class A medalist last year," Sternburgh said. "He shot the 33 having never played the Country Club before. If Holt had shot even par, we would have won."

Low man for the Redwings was junior Jeff Dean who had a 38. He was followed by Tom Lewis with a 40, Tod Keim with a 41, and Scott Hughes who had a 42.

St. Johns won their away 18-hole match at Grand Ledge, mostly due to the fine shooting of Dean and of the Redwings' fifth and sixth men, Paul Schneeberger and Doug Fenby. Dean was overall medalist for the match, carding a 78.

Schneeberger's 85 and Fenby's 88 counted as the teams' second and third low scores and gave St. Johns the win.

"We were down by five strokes before the last four men came in," Sternburgh said. "They really came through and helped us out."

The Redwings will take their 1-1 record into their first MMB match tonight (Sept. 9) at Ionia.

"We should win, but in golf anything can happen," the coach said. "Last weeks' matches were both good learning experiences for the team. We hope we can go from there and improve on our play."

TIPOFF CHAMPIONS — The St. Johns Redwings girls basketball team were repeat champions in the Williamston Tipoff Tournament held last week. Coach Beth Swears' squad won their opening game with DeWitt 71-46 last Thursday, and defeated the host Hornet team in the championship game on Saturday by a close 55-50 score.

Sophomore Anne Brocker, who had a game high 33 points in the opener with DeWitt, and junior forward Kerry Porter were named to the All-Tournament team from St. Johns.

St. Johns girls take crown in Williamston tipoff tourny

The Redwing girls basketball team had better start behaving themselves if they want to go back to the Williamston Tipoff Tournament again next year.

It's not nice to take the tournament championship from the host team — especially for the second consecutive year.

That's just what Coach Beth Swears' St. Johns squad did over the weekend as they won their opening game against DeWitt last Thursday 71-46, and took the championship game by a 55-50 score over Williamston.

"We were definitely pleased with the outcome and happy to get the win," said Swears. "The girls all tried very hard in both games."

Much of the credit for the Redwings' wins goes to the fine shooting of sophomore Anne Brocker and returning varsity member Kerry Porter. Both players were named to the All-Tournament team.

Brocker poured in 33 of St. Johns points in the DeWitt contest, picked up 17 more versus Williamston, and grabbed 16 rebounds off the boards in the final game.

"I told Anne after the DeWitt game, 'I don't think you better count on doing that all the time,'" Coach Swears said.

Porter, a junior forward for the Redwings this season, tallied 15 points against DeWitt and was high scorer for St. Johns in the Williamston game with 18 points. She equaled Brock's 16 rebounds versus Williamston.

In the opener with DeWitt, the Redwings jumped off to a big 34-20 halftime lead and took things easy the rest of the way.

SATURDAY'S CONTEST with Williamston was a different story.

The score at the end of the first quarter stood at 11-7 in favor of St. Johns, and although the Redwings never relinquished the lead during that time, shooting and overall play was not exactly smooth. Both squads appeared tight, with missed baskets and free throws as the norm.

The pace picked up in the second period with Brocker and Porter adding to the Redwings total and dominating the boards. Junior forward Kristin Kloeckner also did a fine job hauling down rebounds and put in some shots for St. Johns.

"She (Kloeckner) really held her own in there on the boards," Coach Swears said.

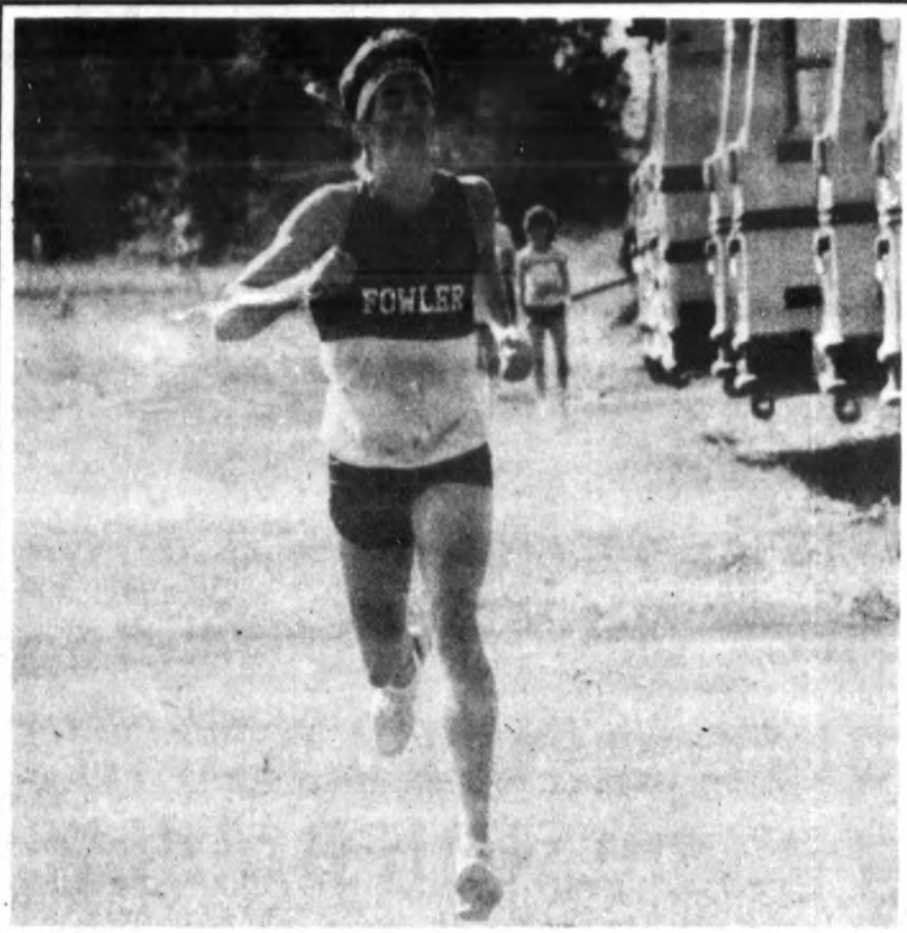

On the shooting of Williamston's sophomore stand-out Andrea Noordman, the Hornets took a 19-18 lead for the first time in the game with 2:03 left in the first half.

Quick baskets by Kloeckner and Monica Vasquez gave the lead back to the Redwings, but a Williamston basket and two free throws gave the Hornets a 23-22 advantage when the halftime buzzer sounded.

"We were not happy with our shooting," Swears said of the Redwings 38 shooting percentage for the night. "The girls weren't really hitting."

An opening second half basket by Kloeckner gave the Redwings another one point lead, 24-23. It was a back ABOVE Steve Bierstetel of Fowler posted the best time for the Eagles in their opening boys cross country meet last week with Ovid-Elsie. Bierstetel completed the course in 16:33.4. Taking second place in the meet was Troy Irrer. The boys took a 15-50 win from the Marauders.

BELOW Fowler harriers Darrin Feldpausch and Kevin Hafner were Eagle competitors in the O-E/Fowler meet. Eagle girls also were victorious against in the meet, downing the Marauders 20-41. Sherine Rowell took first for Fowler for the girls with a 21:36.0 time.

SJ girls netters bop DeWitt and Everett

The St. Johns girls tennis swept their opening matches of the season last week, defeating DeWitt on Wednesday 6-1, and blanking Lansing Everett on Friday 7-0.

"I'm just tickled to death," said Redwing coach Melanie Humphrey. "The girls are good."

In the Wednesday home meet with DeWitt, number one and two singles players Lisa Ebert and Emily Humphrey, had tough matches with their opponents. Ebert won 3-6, 7-6, 6-2, and Humphrey took a 3-6, 6-3, 4-3 win.

"Ebert's experience took control in the third set," Coach Humphrey said, "and DeWitt defaulted in the close number two singles match."

Number three singles player, Sarah Humphrey, lost 2-6, 2-6, and number four player Wendy Moore picked up a 6-2, 6-3 win.

Redwing double players took all three matches over DeWitt. The number one team of Laura Tetens and Janice Rademacher won 6-2, 6-1; number two team of Karin Tetens and Jennifer Pearsal took a 6-1, 6-2 victory; and number three players Heather Foote and Kelly Daley won 6-1, 6-4.

"The doubles teams played with strength and confidence," the coach said. "The number three team of Daley and Foote played like pros and it was the first time ever on the court for both of them."

"All four reserves, Lisa Garapetian, Kristin Tenant, Stephanie Keyes, and Missy Henning, won handily," Humphrey said.

In Friday's match played at Lansing Everett, number one and two singles players, Ebert and Emily Humphrey, split their sets with Ebert winning 6-0, 4-6, 6-4, and Humphrey taking a 4-6, 6-3, 6-1 decision.

Three and four singles players, Sarah Humphrey and Moore, defeated their opponents easily with scores of 6-4, 6-0, and 7-6, 6-0 respectively.

Doubles set scores were: number one, Rademacher/Laura Tetens, 6-2, 6-1; number two, Pearsal/Karin Tetens, 6-2, 6-2; and number three, Garapetian/Tenant, 6-1, 6-2.

In the exhibition match, the team of Daley/Foote were 7-5, 6-0 winners.

The Redwings were at home last night (Sept. 8) for a match with Waverly, and will travel to Ionia tonight and to Lansing Eastern tomorrow (Sept. 9).

Fowler hoopsters clobber St. Louis

In what was a "nice game to start with," Fowler girls basketball coach Tom O'Rourke and his charges took a 60-28 win over St. Louis last week.

"Everybody got in and had a chance to play," the coach said. "St. Louis had a pretty young team, and we were ahead all the way."

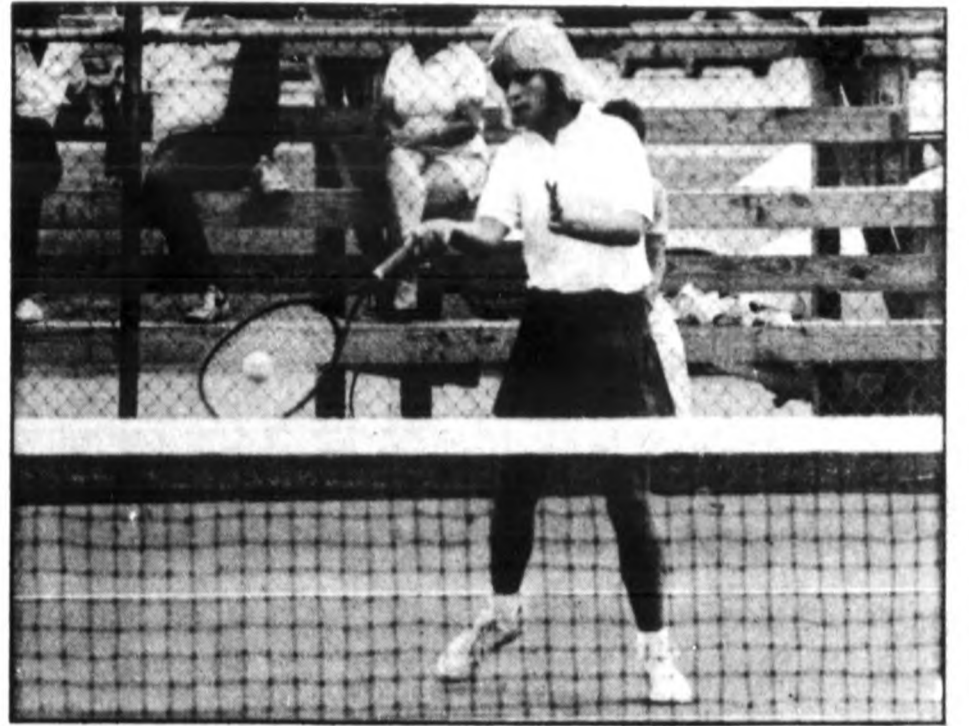

Although O'Rourke said that both teams had opening game jitters, the Eagles jumped out to a 26-12 halftime lead and never looked back.

Amy Witgen was the leading scorer with 12 points and 5 steals, Theresa Feldpausch had 11 points and was the leading rebounder with 11 boards, and Mary Jo Simon and Mary Kay Jandernoa added 10 points each.

Lisa Farley had four assists for Fowler.

Fowler opens their CMAC schedule tonight with a home game versus Portland St. Patrick, and will travel to Portland for a non-conference clash on Thursday.

"St. Pats is traditionally very tough," Coach O'Rourke said. "We were glad that we had the opening game that we did."

TENNIS FORM — Redwing netter, Emily Humphrey, was one member of the St. Johns girls tennis team who helped the team to a win at Lansing Everett last week. The Lady Redwings also defeated DeWitt in their opening season match.

Girl Bear hoopsters come from behind

The Ashley girls basketball team managed to pull out a 53-49 opening game win last week over Portland St. Patrick in what was not one of the prettiest Bear games ever played.

Seventeen fouls were called in the first half alone, with a number of Bears in trouble.

"We were not real pleased," said Head Coach Carl Wayer. "We didn't play with a lot of maturity or intelligence."

The rough and tumble affair forced the Bears to switch from man-to-man defense to a zone in the third period and helped Ashley get back in the game.

"The girls played superb zone defense," Wayer said. "St. Pats didn't try to draw us out, and we forced them into a number of turnovers. We finally got patient and played some good basketball in the last three minutes," the coach said.

Down by 23-28 at halftime, and 37-41 at the end of the third quarter, the Bears rallied to take the win in the closing period.

Lori Haruska popped in 16 points to lead Ashley in scoring, and cleared the boards of 11 rebounds. Theresa Fabus added 11 points, Lisa Wingle had 9 points, and Sherry Kral was good for 8 points.

The Bears take on Breckenridge tonight and face Ithaca this Thursday. Both are Class C schools which does not bother Coach Wayer in the least.

"Girls basketball teams from Class D schools in this area would give anybody a run for their money," Wayer said.

"We know we have some things to work on, and hopefully will improve," he said. "We will have to if we're going to be as good as we think we will be."

and forth, one point contest until the close of the third period when Noordman was forced to sit down with an ankle injury.

ST. JOHNS OPENED things up and widened their scoring margin to 10 points during the final quarter. Noordman re-entered the game at the 3 minute mark and Williamston began its final charge. They whittled the score back down to 50-44 with 1:37 left in the game when Brocker picked up her fifth and final foul.

The Hornets managed to narrow the gap to four points, 54-50, with nine seconds left on the clock, but a Karen Simon free throw at the :07 mark clinched the championship for the Redwings.

Besides Porter's 18 and Brocker's 17 points,

Fulton attacks for football victory

The Fulton Pirates mounted a joint aerial/ground attack to shoot down Breckenridge in the opening game of the 1986 football season, 30-14.

Quarterback Tod Walden completed five of nine passes for 136 yards, Tod Koone caught six passes for 102 yards, and Don Price rushed for 62 yards on 19 carries.

Not too shabby for one night's work. "We felt we played pretty well for an opening game," Coach Leo Rosencrants said. "We threw the ball really well."

Fulton scored first on a 30 yard run by Price that capped an eight-play, 57 yard drive. A 15 yard touchdown pass from Walden to Koone made the score 14-0 with 1:01 left in the first quarter.

Breckenridge's only score came in the third quarter on a 63 yard pass interception return. The extra point was not good, making the tally 14-6.

The "key drive" according to Rosencrants followed when the Pirates marched 67 yards and Walden scored on a 14 yard pass from Chip Helms.

Although Breckenridge added another touchdown and conversion, it was not enough. Walden connected for one more score on a 33 yard pass to Koone, Smeltzer caught a two-point conversion, and the Pirates were 30-14 winners.

"We made some typical opening game mistakes, but overall we were happy with the way we played," the coach said.

Fulton will face Unionville Sebewaing this Friday, and according to Rosencrants they have "good speed."

Both their quarterback and tailback were speedsters in track last year — we're certain they will be really fast," he said.

Kloeckner ended the game with 10 baskets and Vasquez had six points.

"There's no doubt that we have some skill things that need to be worked on individually, and team wise we weren't always where we were supposed to be," Coach Swears said. "But we know that we will continue to improve as the season goes on."

The Redwings open their regular season with two home non-conference games this week. They face Lansing Eastern tonight (Sept. 9), and take on Lansing Sexton this Thursday.

"Eastern has an excellent shooter," Swears said. "That should be a tough contest for us."

ANNE BROCKER goes up for a shot over Williamston's Andrea Noordman while St. Johns Redwing, Kristin Kloeckner waits to rebound. St. Johns held off a fourth quarter drive by the Williamston team to take home the championship trophy in the Tipoff Tournament hosted by the Hornets last weekend.

Marauders fall short in bid for an opening football win

"We gave one away." That's the way Ovid-Elsie coach Dennis Baratonso saw the outcome of his football team's opening 28-7 loss to Portland last Friday.

The Marauders lost the ball twice on fumbles, had one pass intercepted, and saw a 98 yard punt return end in a Portland touchdown. That was pretty much the ballgame.

Portland scored first on a drive that was set up by recovery of an O-E fumble. The Marauders came right back on the ensuing kickoff, holding on to the ball for a 10 play, 70 yard drive that ended with Richie Stutzman taking the ball in to score. Rick Cole's extra point tied the game up.

For awhile it looked like Ovid-Elsie had things going their way when they recovered a Portland fumble. However, a penalty set them back and they were forced to punt. That set up the 98 yard punt return and made the score 14-7.

Another Portland touchdown made the score 21-7 at halftime.

"We went into the lockerroom at halftime and knew there was still plenty of time left," Baratonso said. "We just had to come out and be consistent."

As it ended, drives by the Marauders were well run, but costly penalties and fumbles gave the game to Portland.

Ovid-Elsie had 184 yards rushing for the game and 40 yards passing. Bobby Foreback had 57 yards on six carries and completed 1-5 passes. Stutzman gained 49 yards, on 11 carries, and Neil Putnam had 72 yards on 17 carries.

"We'll just have to go back at it this week," the coach said. "We felt our offensive line played well, and when we had the ball we moved it. The bad breaks really cost us, and they certainly took advantage of them."

The Marauders will play at Pewamo-Westphalia this Friday in the second of three road games to open the season.

P-W Pirates take 8-0 win in opening game with Belding

The Pirates from Pewamo-Westphalia eked out a 8-0 win over Belding in their season football opener played last Friday on P-W's home field.

The win was the first opening game victory in four years for the Pirates and was a welcome one for Head Coach Kurt Mable.

"We were pleased overall with the way the kids played," Coach Mable said. "Belding is no slouch. They hit hard and played good football."

Two sophomores, Tim Wieber and Bill Schafer, carried the day for the Pirates with Wieber rushing for 109 yards on 12 carries and Schafer adding 64 yards on 11 carries.

The Pirates winning touchdown came off a 65 yard Wieber run with 7:39 left to play in the game. Schafer added the two point conversion.

The running game of the Pirates was not the only shining spot in the contest. The defensive linebackers thwarted several Belding drives, the key stopper being just prior to halftime.

Belding had driven to the P-W 1 1/2 yard line and had a first and goal situation with seconds remaining. The Pirates held on first and second downs. Time expired on the clock when the ball was snapped on the third down play and a Loren Thelen tackle "helped turn the tide," according to Coach Mable.

"That saved the day for us," the coach said. Dave Stump had three interceptions from his defensive safety position to stall Belding's scoring, adding 3 solo tackles and one assist to his nights' totals.

Linebacker Terry Evans had nine tackles and five assists, and Craig Thelen had five tackles and three assists.

Jeff Wirth added to the Pirates' 222 total yards rushing with 49 yards on 11 carries. Pewamo-Westphalia was 0-3 in the passing department.

Penalties played somewhat of a role in the Pirates game plan with several five yarders eliminating first down gains. They were also hit with a 15 yard penalty to open the second half for not reporting from the locker-room promptly.

Another home game is slated for this Friday when Pewamo-Westphalia will square off against Ovid-Elsie in a non-conference clash.

"We're looking forward to that one," Mable said. "They have a good football program and will bring a good football team into the game."

Berrys are state reps at national bowling tourney

Michigan's representatives to the Avco National Family Bowling Tournament, Mike and Scott Berry of St. Johns, returned home last week, having taken part in the Aug. 29-Sept. 1 event held in Alexandria, Vir.

The father/son team placed 16th out of the 38 states represented in the amateur, handicap doubles competition with a total score plus handicap of 2384 for six games. The duo was Michigan's representative in the Major Division age bracket for 15-18 year olds.

The Berrys qualified at the local level by being house winners at Redwing Lanes and advanced to the state level where they took state championship honors which gave them the chance to compete at the national finals.

At the finals, each family team bowls two three-game blocks against other family teams in a pinfall plus handicap format. Scott had games of 151, 131, 203 in the first round for a 485 total and 165 average. Mike rolled games of 231, 182, and 222 for a 635 total and 205 average. Their total for the first round, where they bowled against the Florida team, was 1192 with handicap.

In the second qualifying round, the Berrys bowled against the Minnesota team, who went on to finish third in the tournament. Scott had games of 189, 159, 161 for a 509 series, and Mike bowled a 192, 225, 194 for a total of 611. Again, their total with handicap was 1192.

Besides bowling, the group had the opportunity to visit many places in and around Washington D.C. including stops at all of Washington's monuments, the Capitol, White House and Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum. A highlight of the trip was the stop at Arlington National Cemetery where the three youth winners in prep, junior and major divisions helped place a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

All contestants also received a plaque in recognition of their accomplishments at the concluding banquet held on Sunday evening. Scholarships and trophies were also presented to the first through third place champions in each division.

"I hope we can go again next year," was Diane Berry's reaction to the all-expense paid trip. "It was an extremely well-run tournament. We all really enjoyed it."

O-E girl hoopsters drop opener

The Ovid-Elsie girls basketball team dropped their season opener games last week, 35-24 to Midland and 57-34 to Waverly, to what Coach Bob Laney described as "two strong schools."

"We played one good quarter in the first game, and two good quarters in the second game," Laney said. "The girls really hustled and were very aggressive."

Carrie Darling and Cheryl Batora were the Marauders' leading scorers in the Midland contest with 7 points each. Courtney Schneider had 6 points and was tops in rebounds with 8.

Overall, Ovid-Elsie outrebounded Midland 42-35. In the Thursday game with Waverly, O-E played the Warriors close in the opening half. They trailed by just four points, 22-18 at halftime. The third quarter was the telling difference however, as Waverly outscored the Marauders 23-8.

Schneider led her team in scoring with 8 points, Julie Houska and Jami Martin chipped in 6 points each, and Batora and Bonnie Patrick added five each. Patrick was the leading rebounder with 8 boards.

Ovid-Elsie faces Montrose this Thursday in what should be more of an even match-up for Coach Laney's squad.

"We were not disappointed with last week's games," the coach said, "and we are looking forward to this week."

Fulton cagers open season with wins

Coach Ron Merritt's girls basketball team from Fulton opened their 1986 season with two impressive wins last week, 49-25 over Shepherd and a 46-35 victory over Carson City.

The Pirates led from start to finish in their home opener with Shepherd, and were up by a 17-7 score at the end of the first quarter.

With that lead, Coach Merritt was able to get "everybody in to play" during the course of the game.

Janice Kresge was the Pirates' leading scorer with 17 points and 9 rebounds. Joan Gallagher was the leading rebounder with 11.

Lisa Helman added 8 points for the Pirates, while Dee Gardner and Susan Root were good for 7 points apiece.

In the Thursday night contest with Carson City, Gardner was the "big gun" for Fulton, scoring 18 points and grabbing 15 rebounds.

"She (Gardner) is capable of being both a scorer and a rebounder for us," Merritt said.

Kresge had 14 points and 9 rebounds for the Pirate cause. A total of 52 fouls were called in the contest.

"It was not a tremendous game," Merritt said. "We need to do a better job defensively, and balance our scoring more."

Fulton hosts Pottsville tonight in their first CMAC contest of the year and will face Breckenridge this Thursday.

"Pottsville is bringing in their 30 game winning streak from last year," the coach said. "They would like to keep that intact — we are hoping to break it up."

Agricultural news Insemination

Marilyn Loudenslager

Artificial insemination, commonly known as AI, is not a new concept or a new technique in the livestock industry. AI was being used in horses as early as 1322. When we think of AI we typically think of its use in the dairy industry. Dairy owners first used artificial breeding on a large scale in the United States, primarily because confinement of the dairy animals allowed for the ease of detecting cows in heat and inseminating these animals. In fact, the percentage of dairy cows bred by artificial insemination in the U.S. increased from 20 percent in the early 1950's to over 50 percent in the late 1960's.

As swine operations moved their breeding herds to a confinement housing system, AI became a viable option for this industry as well. The technique and equipment necessary for AI in swine are readily available. Two factors that are noteworthy when considering AI in swine are:

- The decreased potential of introducing disease into the swine herd.
- The opportunity to introduce superior genetics into the herd at a reasonable price.

The price a producer pays to have a successful AI program is good management skills. AI in swine is no different than AI in any other livestock, the success is dependent upon the producer's ability to detect heat, properly handle the semen, and inseminate the sow at the appropriate time so that conception and litter size are optimized.

Many of the management skills required to have a successful swine AI program will be discussed in the professional swine artificial insemination school to be held on Oct. 1 at the MSU Swine Research Center. Enrollment is limited to 20, so practical, hands-on labs can be conducted.

Any swine producer, large or small, who is interested in this program should call the Clinton County Cooperative Extension Office to get a registration form and a detailed agenda for this program. Participants are taken on a first come, first serve basis. Marilyn Loudenslager is the agriculture agent for the Clinton County Cooperative Extension Service.

Director's News Grain storage

Giles Roehl

If you haven't marked your calendar yet, now is the time: Thursday, Sept. 11, 7:30 p.m. at Smith Hall on the Clinton County Fairgrounds. We will host MSU Extension Agriculture Engineer Roger Brooks, who will provide information on selecting alternative grain storage.

Brooks will be looking at what might work, how to revamp present facilities for storage, and how to handle the stored grain to maintain grain quality through the year.

Cool your grain: Be careful about how you use your temporary storage. In a recent issue of Successful Farming, Bob Kissane, St. Johns farmer, discusses his "fence storage." Bob indicated the best feature of this type of storage is its protability. However Bob warns, make sure you use adequate ventilation. He agrees completely with Minnesota research that states, "If the pile (on the ground) is properly cooled with aeration, it can be covered with another sheet of plastic to protect it from the elements. However, if a pile of grain is not properly cooled by aeration, a plastic covering sheet can cause severe problems due to condensation underneath the plastic."

If a cover sheet is used, the plastic can be folded up to allow air movement into and through the corn to the aeration duct. This cover sheet must be anchored with throw-over ties or by some other means.

The real key to successful storage is to "make sure you use enough air-put fans and let them run until the crop is cooled," says Kissane.

Another key will be to cool the crop down in the fall and warm the grain in the spring.

The corner garden: Are you trying to figure out where to plant all the new fall planted-spring flowering bulbs? Here are a few suggestions. The very early flowering bulbs may be planted under deciduous trees (ones that lose their leaves) because they'll have flowered and dried back before the trees leaf out to shade them.

Late flowering bulbs should be planted where they'll get a full days sun. There the foliage will be able to make food for the bulbs to store and draw from for next years flowers.

The most important concern should be drainage — bulbs planted in poor drained or low-lying, wet areas, tend to rot.

QUACKGRASS: Should we spray quackgrass now to get the best control? Not in a normal year according to Jim Kells, MSU weed specialist.

Quackgrass control is normally the best if done in mid-September when the plant is growing to put food in its root system for winter and new growth has started.

When spraying with glyphosate (Roundup), you can use one of the following rates:

Two quarts per acre — do not use any additive. The two quart rate should provide good quack control for up to three years.

One quart per acre in no more than five to 10 gallons of water per acre with 1/2 percent (.5 percent) of a non-ionic additive (same as two quarts per 100 gallons of spray) such as X77 or Triton Agric 90 will give one year control. One quart per year for two years should provide three years of quackgrass control. (You may get good control with a single quart this year, but over the long haul it just is not reliable.)

TAKE-ALL: Several reports were received because it appeared the 1986 wheat crop was worse where nitrogen had been applied. Joe Clayton, crop pathologist, indicates, "Cold, wet soils with high nutrients, especially nitrogen sets up the crop for the disease take all." That definitely does mean to not use nitrogen for 1987.

The second edition of the Agric Newsletter has been sent. It covers emergency storage, building ventilation, sheep breeding and wheat seeding.

30 percent of land in no-till

By EILEEN GILLESPIE
Clinton Soil Conservation District

In 1985, more than 30 percent of all U.S. cropland was farmed using some form of conservation tillage. Because conservation tillage alters soil characteristics and changes root growth patterns, this could affect fertilizer uptake and crop yield. Although little information is available on the topic, results of a field experiment indicate that increasing the amount of crop residues left on the soil surface for no-till corn and soybeans greatly increased the utilization of the native soil nitrogen (N) by both crops. Uptake of fertilizer N applied at planting also improved with increased quantity of residues, as did recovery of residual N.

According to the National Fertilizer Solutions Association (NFSA), higher profits can be realized from including a starter fertilizer in a total fertilization program when:

- Soil pH is low, high or out of the optimum range.

- Soil is compacted and restricts root growth.
- Soil nutrient levels are low to medium in concentration.
- Soil tends to stay cold and inhibit root growth during seedling growth.
- When economics dictate lower fertilizer rates.
- No-till or other reduced tillage systems are used.

Clover Clippings Making a difference

Theresa Silm

* In this week's column I'd like to share the following poem with you. It was written by John Anthony Davis.

I SAW A CHILD

I saw a child who couldn't walk, sit on a horse and laugh and talk, then ride it through a field of daisies and yet he could not walk unaided.

I saw a child, no legs below, sit on a horse and make it go, through wood of green and places he had never been to sit and stare, except from a chair.

I saw a child who could only crawl, mount a horse and sit up tall; then put it through degrees of paces and laugh at the wonder in our faces

I saw a child born into strife, take up and hold the reins of life, and that same child, was heard to say, Thank God for showing me the way.

Plans are all set for the 4-H Horseback Riding for the Handicapped Program this fall but we still need volunteers to help as leaders and sidewalkers. The session will run for two weeks beginning on Sept. 29 and is held from 12:30-2:30 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

If you could volunteer a couple of hours a day to help a child, please call Donna Apostol at 224-8010 or 224-6831, or call me at the Cooperative Extension Office at 224-3288. You'll really make a big difference.

Theresa Silm is the 4-H Youth Agent for the Clinton County Cooperative Extension Service.

'U.S. Govt. shortchanges soybean income' — official

Soybean farmers desperately in need of income support and world competitive prices have been short-changed by the U.S. government, said the president of the American Soybean Association (ASA).

"Congress authorized USDA to maintain the $5.02 support level and keep prices competitive through a marketing loan," said ASA president David Haggard. "Instead, USDA has chosen to reduce U.S. soybean farmers' income while keeping price props under South American producers.

The statement came after a recent USDA announcement of a $4.77 loan level ($4.56 after Gramms-Rudman) for the 1986 soybean crop. The 1985 loan rate was $5.02.

"Our long-standing market orientation doesn't seem to score us any points with USDA bureaucrats and the administration. They want the loan rate to go down enough to cut our incomes, but they won't bite the bullet with a marketing loan or a certificate program that will help expand soybean exports," he said.

Said bonds will be payable primarily from the revenues received from the operation of the water supply and distribution system, will be payable in not more than thirty (30) annual installments, at a rate of interest not to exceed nine per cent (9%), payable semiannually, the actual rate to be determined by negotiated sale of the bonds to the Michigan Municipal Bond Authority or by public sale.

SOURCE OF PAYMENT OF REVENUE BONDS

THE PRINCIPAL OF AND INTEREST ON SAID REVENUE BONDS shall be payable primarily from the net revenue derived from the operation of the Village Water Supply and Distribution System remaining after payment of operation and maintenance expenses. Said revenues consist of rates and charges for services furnished by the system, including capital and connection charges which may, from time to time, be increased in order to provide sufficient revenues to meet expenses for operating and maintaining said system and to pay the principal of an interest on said bonds and to provide reserves therefor. A tentative schedule of said proposed rates and charges is on file in the office of the Village Clerk. PENDING LEGISLATION REGARDING TAX EXEMPTION: On December 17, 1985, the United States House of Representatives passed H.R. 3838, entitled the "Tax Reform Act of 1985" (the "House Bill"). On June 24, 1986, the United States Senate passed an amendment in the nature of a substitute of the House Bill, entitled the "Tax Reform Act of 1986" (the "Senate Bill"). On August 16, 1986, the Joint Committee on Taxation of the House and Senate adopted a compromise to the varying provisions of the House Bill and the Senate Bill (the "Compromise"). The Compromise provides, in the event a compromise bill is enacted into law, that the effective date, as it applies to the Bonds, will be prior to September 1, 1986. In the opinion of Bond Counsel, the Bonds will be subject to the provisions of a compromise bill or the House Bill or the Senate Bill, if enacted. Bond Counsel is further of the opinion, although the text of a compromise bill is not available as of the date of this Notice of Sale, that interest on the Bonds may be subject to a minimum tax imposed upon certain insurance companies and may be included in the alternative minimum tax base for purposes of computing the alternative minimum tax imposed upon corporations. The District has covenanted that it will use its best efforts to the extent permitted by law to comply with any bill that may be adopted which affects the Bonds, unless it shall receive a written opinion of Bond Counsel that failure to comply will not affect the exemption of interest on the Bonds from federal or Michigan taxation. Assuming such compliance by the District, Bond Counsel is of the opinion that the enactment of the House Bill, the Senate Bill or a compromise bill should not impair the tax exemption of the interest on the Bonds from federal income or State of Michigan taxation, unless the Bonds are held by certain insurance companies or included in the alternative minimum tax base of corporations. No assurance can be given, however, that a bill will not be adopted in such a way as to preclude compliance by the District with its provisions or that other changes will not be made or other legislation will not be enacted which could adversely impact such tax exemption. Prospective purchasers of the Bonds should consult with their tax advisor as to the potential consequences of the House Bill, the Senate Bill or a compromise bill on their ownership of the Bonds.

QUALIFICATION: The District, by resolution, has designated the bonds as "qualified tax-exempt obligations" pursuant to H.R. 3838, adopted by the United States House of Representatives on December 17, 1985.

THE RIGHT IS RESERVED TO REJECT ANY OR ALL BIDS. ENVELOPES containing the bids should be plainly marked "Proposal for Cooper Drain Drainage District Bonds."
