Schools react to 'Toma Experience'

By BOB KOGER
SJHS Publicist

A concern expressed by many individuals after David Toma spoke about substance abuse in St. Johns recently was that an adequate follow up program would not be formulated. Since the "Toma Experience," the wheels have been moving to provide assistance to students in need.

Following are some of the areas which are in the process of being addressed.

At the high school level, head counselor Bob Tissot notes the following happenings.

• An abstinence group for students experiencing substance abuse problems with drugs and alcohol began meeting on Nov. 19. Eight students are meeting with teacher Grace Ormston and a professional substance abuse counselor, Sheila Smith. These people meet once a week for an hour in a group therapy session which gives support and help in conquering substance abuse problems.

Students take time off from regular classes to meet in the group, and must be drug or alcohol free to remain in the group. The group will be terminated when the counselor feels the group has reached its saturation point. A referral procedure will be implemented to begin a new group when the initial one is disbanded.

• On Nov. 20, a support group was begun by Nan Barone, a counselor at the Intermediate School District. In this group, eight students also meet once a week for an hour for support discussions. These students have not necessarily become drug or alcohol free, but are working toward that goal. The same termination procedures will be used as in the high school group.

• Nine faculty members have volunteered to receive training to work with follow up groups. Arrangements for training are in the process of being made.

• Students have expressed a concern to establish a peer counseling program. Arrangements are being discussed with Charles Gutierrez, director of the Clinton County Substance Abuse Center, to enable students to be receive training.

• On Jan. 11-15, Franklin Horn, a trained "smoking cessation" therapist will host a workshop for students who have expressed an interest in quitting cigarette smoking.

• SJHS counselors have been in contact with outside agencies in the hope of plugging students with special needs into additional help programs.

• Mr. Koger's debate class is conducting an in-depth analysis of the problems faced by students, with the goal of establishing a plan for the school district to structure a self-help program.

At Rodney B. Wilson Junior High, counselor Bud Delevan notes other plans being implemented.

• Six different kinds of support groups, which divide into 10 to 12 individual groups of six to eight students are meeting weekly for a full class period.

• Alateen is working with Delevan in an effort to structure an after school Alateen program for middle school students.

• The school has referred some middle school students to the regular evening meetings of Alateen.

• A number of middle school teachers took part in the Sis Wenger Workshop, an informational workshop on substance abuse last spring, with plans being made to use them as resource persons working with students.

• A staff training workshop is being planned for information on substance abuse and how to intervene with student problems.

Both high school and middle school personnel are still in a diagnostic process of working on ways to come to grips with the problems which surfaced after Toma's visit. A system-wide counseling staff meeting has also been conducted with parents and members from the Clinton County Counseling Center organizing to work toward solving some of the problems.

SJ model among best

St. Johns Public Schools is 1 of 10 school districts in the Clinton-Eaton-Ingham county region offering a health education curriculum which has been selected as being among the 20 best alcohol and drug prevention programs in the nation.

The Michigan Model for Comprehensive School Health Education received the ranking from a project advisory committee made up of members of the U.S. Office of Substance Abuse Prevention, the National Association of State Alcohol and Drug Abuse Directors, and the National Prevention Network.

The Michigan Model was introduced in 34 state school districts in 1984-85 as part of a five-year drug prevention program. St. Johns Public Schools adopted the program this year, with plans to phase the program into the curriculum over a two-year period.

The model treats substance abuse as part of a larger pattern that also includes school failure, teenage pregnancy, and delinquency.

THANK-YOU — Jim Davis, coordinator of the Job Training Program at Clinton Intermediate School District, presented a special award to Rose Randolph for her efforts in the Hire-A-Youth program at a recognition breakfast last week. The district's program was tops in the tri-county area for the third consecutive year.

Program has best success in region

Organizers of the Job Training Program administered by the Clinton County Intermediate School District met last week to celebrate the successes of this summer's Hire-A-Youth program. The program had the highest placement rate in the tri-county region for the third consecutive year, placing a total of 381 young people into private sector jobs.

"Clinton County employers including banks, fast food restaurants, farms, retail stores, and grocery stores deserve the credit for the success of the 1987 Hire-A-Youth program," says Jim Davis, coordinator of the district's job training programs. "Considering that Clinton County has only about 10 percent of the tri-county population, it is especially noteworthy that our area employed such a large number of youth."

The 381 youth hired by area employers during the four-month period beginning last April accounted for 43 percent of all the jobs filled in the tri-county area in the overall. 896 young people obtained jobs through the program.

All area employers who attended the appreciation breakfast hosted by the district last week received certificates of appreciation. Seven employers who received special certificates for hiring 15 or more youth were Moore Seed Farm, McDonalds of St. Johns, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Little Caesars, Elias Brothers Restaurant, Goff's Food Store, and Cargill Seed Company.

A special achievement award was presented to Rose Randolph, placement counselor in the CCISD's Job Training Programs, for her many hours of work with the 1987 program.

Funding for the program comes from the Lansing Tri-County Employment and Training Partnership, Davis says. Clinton County representatives to the funding agency who attended the breakfast were John Dove (Private Industry Council) and Richard Hawks (Administrative Board).

PILGRIMS AND INDIANS joined together to share a Thanksgiving meal, prepared by Pewamo Elementary School kindergarten teacher Mrs. Marks along with help from students and parent volunteers.

Parents and guests also listened to a special Thanksgiving recital of songs and poems presented by the students.

Grand opening for new gallery slated

The Clinton County Arts Council will host a grand opening celebration at its newly relocated gallery and gift shop located at 1002½ E. State St. (M-21) in St. Johns.

To celebrate the occasion, a special open house will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, Nov. 27, 28, and 29. Free carnations will be given to early shoppers.

Interested persons are invited to visit and browse the "Country House Holidays" exhibit and artists' market of paintings, photographs, baskets, pottery, weavings, and wood carvings. Included are quilted aprons, pillows, handbags, stoneware tree ornaments and figurines, and corn-husk people.

Paintings in oils, acrylics, watercolor and pastels, pen and ink sketches are among the works featured ranging from abstract to finely detailed work.

The CCAC gallery and gift shop is open every day from 1 to 5 p.m. with Friday evening hours throughout the holiday season. For more information call Kaye Pilmore, gallery director, at 224-2429.

Meet your newspaper

By NANCY ZEIMEN
Managing Editor

This is a column about your newspaper, The Clinton County News. It's about who we are, what we do, and why we do it. I hope it will answer questions you have about The News. If it doesn't, feel free to ask me why not.

First of all, who are we? Well, The Clinton County News is one of six area newspapers in a group called Community Newspapers, owned by Suburban Communications Corporation with headquarters in Livonia. Suburban also owns papers in Livingston County, suburban Detroit, and Cincinnati, Ohio. The other newspapers in the Community Newspapers' group are the Grand Ledge Independent, the Delta-Waverly News Herald, the Eaton County News Chronicle, the Portland Review & Observer, and the DeWitt-Bath Review. You probably have friends and relatives who live in these communities. We do.

Well anyway, Phil Power, an Ann Arbor native, owns Suburban. The president is Dick Agnion and he and his vice presidents — John Reddy, editorial; Skip Wood, manufacturing; Margaret Halava, personnel; and Chuck Paukstis, finance — are our "support" people. And I mean that word "support" in its best possible sense. When we have a question or a problem, they are there to help us. They want us to give you the best possible newspaper, every week.

Nancy Zeimen

Here at home, Pete Cantine is the head honcho. His title is general manager, and he's in charge of everything. He is the sales manager for our sales staff, he's the production manager for our production crew; he's in charge. In short, anything that goes on here should have his fingerprints all over it. Pete's parents, Walt and Georgene Cantine, owned The Grand Ledge Independent for 17 of years; he grew up in "the business."

I'm next in line. I have two titles: managing editor and assistant general manager. I'm in charge of everything, too. Especially when Pete's not here. Most of the time, though, I'm either involved with our editorial staff or our production staff. I didn't grow up in the business, I sort of wandered into it while in college, and decided it was exactly what I wanted to do.

Our other managers are Kay Turner, Cora Sargent, and Jean Yanna. Kay's in charge of the business department; Cora's domain is circulation; and Jean's is the classified.

In Kay's department, there is a computer where her staff keeps track of our revenue (the money people spend with us on advertisements). Cora and her staff get to spend a lot of time with the U.S. Postal Service since we send all our newspapers (over 60,000 each and every week) through the mail.

In addition to being our top advertising rep, Jean heads up the classified advertising department, the people who always know where to get a great used car or apartment or job. Jean is also in charge of our St. Johns office and the advertising sales staff here in St. Johns. We also have offices in Grand Ledge, Portland, and Charlotte.

You don't see Pete's name, or my name, or Kay or Jean or Cora's names in The News very often. Two names you see a lot, though, are Rhonda Westfall and Lora Thom. They share the editorial duties here at The News. They attend the St. Johns City Commission, Clinton County Board of Commissioners, and St. Johns Board of Education meetings. They go to fun things at the local schools. They talk to interesting people who do interesting things. They've got a great job. Rhonda's also the sports editor. She gets to go to all the sports activities in Clinton County. Free. Lora also has the awesome task of typesetting all the submitted news — births, deaths, and everything in between. Sometimes we let Rhonda and Lora go home and be with their families.

Although they don't get their names splattered all over the newspaper each week, our other employees are just as important as Lora and Rhonda (sorry guys, but it is true.) Without them, you wouldn't get The Clinton County News in your mailbox each Tuesday.

Three people are very important to helping Rhonda and Lora do their jobs. Ken Quarterman helps tremendously by being where Rhonda and Lora can't and taking beautiful photographs. Jim McNeilly and Jeff Gardner develop Ken and Rhonda and Lora's film and create the photographs which appear with their stories. And they do their jobs in the dark.

Then there's the advertising department. Without advertising, there is no Clinton County News. Really. Jean Yanna and Sharon Maybik are the mainstays of the advertising department here in Clinton County.

Diann DeClercq and Marcia Phinney man the phones in the classified department; they're the ones you talk to when you want to sell your car, or your bike, or your whatever. Jean and Sharon as well as Nancy Block, Al Kempf, Shirley Bauman, Stacy Baser, Cathy Barnum, Lori Gilbert, Judy Fox, Donna Jenkins, Julie Tice, Fred Cook, Bonnie VanHouten, and Karen Barrett all call on business people in our communities. Their job is to explain why these businesses should advertise their goods and services in the newspaper you read each week. Then, they help the business people design their advertisement and that's where the production staff comes into play.

Ruth Halsted, Libby Brandon, Ellen Baker, Jane Marshall, Jeff Gardner, Norma Zeimen, Lori Gilbert (yes, she works in advertising, too), Judy Holley, and Karen Detgen take the "rough" designs turned in by our advertising reps and make them into the professional advertisements which appear in the paper each week. This involves typesetting the words, correctly sizing the artwork, and putting it all together in the designated space requirements, straight and perfect. These people also "build the pages" which involves following Rhonda and Lora's instructions on how they want their stories and photographs arranged around the ads on the page. They are a patient and understanding bunch. They also wield sharp instruments.

On Monday at noon, after all the advertisements are complete and the pages are all done, circulation steps in and takes The News to the printer. Currently, our sister publication, The Livingston County Press in Howell, is our printer. Circulation's Jody Grass and Lisa Amman have already alerted the press as to how many pages we are running this week, and they whisk the pages away. When they're all printed (about 1:30 a.m. Tuesday), Bob Kerley, our driver, takes them from Howell and delivers them to the St. Johns Post Office.

Well, now you know who we are. And a little bit of what we do. Yes, there are people, a whole bunch of them, who bring you your Clinton County News each week.

Counselors necessary

To the Editor:

I'm still wondering, concerned, and somewhat confused about St. Johns' young people, the schools, and drugs. There was a large amount of money spent to bring David Toma here. He seems to really reach troubled kids, but he only turns up the problems, he doesn't solve them.

The counselors and other professionals who listened to the kids after his talks were nearly overwhelmed with outpourings about drug use, alcoholism in the family, abuse by parents, and on and on.

But now, it is noted that there is only one counselor to respond to the needs of 750 students at Rodney B. Junior High. How can this be acceptable in a modern school where the multitude of problems is now well known? I believe that the North Central School Accreditation group recommends one counselor to 300 to 500 children.

Whatever happened to the very excellent intervention plan adopted by the school system several years ago? This was a plan to survey student actions in order to catch problem behaviors before they became too "set."

If a student's grades suddenly begin to fall, if he/she was repeatedly late, if he/she became involved in fights with other students or rude behavior to teachers, then the students and his/her parents were asked to meet with a counselor and talk about the reasons for his/her problems.

This has worked well in other schools and certainly fits the "stitch in time" idea nicely. But, obviously with

"It's in the Bag"

by Bob Beck

Festive food belongs to the Thanksgiving tradition... curiously enough, the pilgrims were giving thanks for very little. Remember, the first year at Plymouth was a starving time, and there was no harvest to celebrate. It wasn't until William Bradford, assigned to each Plymouth family its own special plot that the stony acres in back of Plymouth Rock produced enough corn and pumpkins to fill the bins against the encroaching winter. The first Thanksgiving followed.

The colonial women had to use their cooking skill to adapt themselves to the unfamiliar food. The fireplace was their stove, and all the cooking had to be done either on a spit or in the large black pot and kettle that hung suspended from the chimney.

Traditional English fare was soon supplemented by local shellfish and things that were easy to catch or gather. The early settlers were from middle-class backgrounds and, as such, had no knowledge of hunting or fishing. However, the Indians taught the settlers these arts as well as how to prepare corn, after their own English wheat failed in the colder climate.

Traditionally... Thanksgiving day is the one day out of the year that we set aside to give thanks for our many blessings of the past year. Thus, we would like to thank you for making Beck's a regular shopping tradition. Happy Thanksgiving to you all!

One day at a time Numb feelings

By Phyllis Roehl

Two weeks ago I talked about identifying feelings and taking ownership and responsibility for them. I also stated at the end that if you "could care less" what your feelings were in a certain matter, that perhaps "if your feelings are so numbed by the hurts you have faced, maybe you need to talk them through with someone who cares."

Dr. Carl (Chuck) Lofy of the Wellness Center in Mankato, Minn., reinforced this idea for me when he spoke recently to people of the Clinton, Gratiot, and Saginaw communities on behalf of the Flood Recovery Teams and Cooperative Extension Services in those counties.

Lofy said when people have too many changes thrown at them so quickly that they haven't had time to work through one before the next one is upon them, they become "numb" to what feelings they actually are feeling.

Rather than there being no feelings, they have a "traffic jam" of feelings — like an intersection with all four directions of traffic full and no space for the cars to move.

When that happens, he suggested, these feelings get pushed down (repressed) into what he called "shadow emotions." We go on carrying them with us everywhere until we bring them up and deal with them. Consciously, we may have no idea at all that those feelings really are or why they are there.

What Lofy is finding, he said, is that many people are grieving. It may be grieving for a lost job, home, or loved one. Or it may be an intangible like losing faith in things we used to think we could rely on — government, the economic picture, ourselves, and our abilities to provide for our families. Or we may feel we are a failure in the eyes of someone we respect.

Any loss, Lofy stated, must be properly mourned before we can truly go on with our life. In America we want to do everything quickly. We expect that people can go directly from farm loss (or other job loss) into a new job situation without going through the grieving process. That only produces new problems for us, according to Lofy.

Suggesting ways that we can mourn the loss, he first cited talking with family, friends, or a professional about the lost person or item. Doing this may help you realize what it is that you are actually mourning.

Lofy cited one case where a farmer thought he was mourning the loss of his century farm. As he talked, however, he realized that it was his grandfather who was the focal point of his memories with the farm.

"I'm afraid I think my grandfather would think I was a failure because I'm losing the farm he homesteaded," the man said. It was the loss of his grandfather's respect that he was mourning, more than the actual farm loss.

"Did you ever think that your grandfather failed in Norway, and that's why he came to America, to make a new start?" Lofy asked him. It isn't the idea that both failed that counted, but that each went on with his life, making a fresh start, Lofy emphasized.

He suggested "ritualizing" the loss to complete the mourning. To do this, the man walked around the farm, taking pictures of each building and writing down in a notebook (or on a tape recorder) the memories he had about each. Then when he had finished, he gave this (the notebook or tape with pictures and memories) as a symbol of his love for his grandfather and the farm to his family. And he knew it was OK to go on now.

Suggested book reading on this topic: Unfinished Business.

Phyllis Roehl is the rural outreach worker for Clinton County.

one counselor per 750 students this can't be done. The junior high age is the one where problems most often begin, especially drug problems.

Perhaps if parents show their concern by questioning the school administrators about their plans for dealing with the already recognized problems of our St. Johns students we can see some positive responses in hiring more counselors and really putting their intervention plan into action.

Reside in St. Johns

Traci Lynn White and Jeff LeRoy Cannon were joined in marriage in a double-ring ceremony on Oct. 10, performed by the Rev. Terbush in the First Congregational Church of St. Johns.

The bride is the daughter of Dave and Pat White of Laingsburg. The bridegroom is the son of LeRoy Cannon of Ovid and Rita Cannon of Owosso.

Special music for the wedding was performed by Dave and Marni Thurston, who sang "That's What Friends Are For" and "You and I."

For her wedding the bride wore a traditional white gown styled with satin bows, white lace, and a cathedral train which was carried by the flowergirl. Her veil was a tiera of white lace and drop seed pearls.

She carried an arrangement of cascading white satin tiger lilies with ferns and peacock feathers. The flowers were designed and created by Loretta Pokorny of Elsie.

As a special memento, the bride wore a Michigan garter which was worn by her mother and a handkerchief of her great-grandmother's.

Attending her as matron of honor was her sister, Dawn Reha of Owosso. She wore a white satin dress with a jacket and held a bouquet of white satin tiger lilies with ferns and peacock feathers with streamers.

The bridesmaids were Teresa Holmes of Grand Rapids, Sue Yoder of Corunna, and Laurie Mandell of Flint.

Brooke Bancroft served as flowergirl. Ringbearer was Phillip Gruber.

Best man was Rick Bancroft of Ovid, cousin of the groom. Groomsmen were Barney Decker, Dave Cannon, and Pete Birchmeyer. Ushers were Eric White and Mark Gruber.

A reception followed the wedding at DeWitt's VFW and entertainment was provided by the Band of Jennifer Lewis for 300 guests. Joanne Decker served the food. Erin White attended the guest book and Mark and Laurie Gruber served as the host and hostess.

Special guests attending the wedding were Curt Rice of New Orleans, La., uncle of the bride, and Cpl. Gregg White, brother of the bride, who is stationed in the Philippines.

The couple took a honeymoon trip to Florida and reside in St. Johns.

Women's Club meets

By EDWINA MCDOWELL

The General Federation Women's Club of St. Johns met Nov. 18 at the Congregational Church with Mae Spousta and Gertrude Elck as co-hostesses.

Janet Holden, director of Raven House in Fowler, brought the club up-to-date about the Crisis Center through a videotape and a question and answer discussion.

The Raven House opened in July; it was a former convent leased by St. Joseph Church in Fowler for $1 a year for as long as needed. It is ideally built for the needs of the families and live-in staff as the kitchen, dining, family, and conference rooms are most adequate.

The video showed the before and after views of the renovation and decoration of the rooms and people who participated. This was done under the supervision of Norbert and Marian Pohl of Fowler. The 16 bedrooms are tastefully furnished by the various groups that gave it a "homey" atmosphere.

This project is funded by a VOCA Front, but mostly by public donations which is depended on to continue this much needed haven for battered women and their children.

The next meeting will include the annual Christmas cookie sampler and sales celebration, along with some Christmas readings and carols at the home of Nola Leenbut on Wednesday, Dec. 2. Guests are welcome to attend. For more information, call 224-2052 or 224-2287.

Stephanie and Eric Smith

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Eaton Sr. of 4747 W. Parks Road. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Smith of 718 S. Lansing.

Special music for the wedding was performed by Charles Green, who sang "Follow Me", "If," and the "Wedding Song."

For her wedding the bride wore a white, satin gown styled with a wedding ring collar of silk venice lace, sheer yoke-fitted bodice of venice lace and pearls, renaissance sleeves, a basque waistline, with a skirt with appliques of schiffle lace, hemline border of scalloped lace, and a chapel train edged with satin ruffles. Her hat was of lace and pearls and featured a fingertip veil of nylon illusion.

She carried an arrangement of cascading blue and white roses, and her mother's prayer book as a special memento.

Maid of honor was Julie LaBar, cousin of the bride. She wore a tea-length gown featuring puffed sleeves, a fitted bodice with a full skirt, matching cummerbund, and a bow-diamond cut-out back.

Bridesmaids were Kelly Bashore and Karen Eaton, sisters of the bride, Julie White and Brigida Cordova.

Flowergirls were Lindsay and Lisa Bashore, neices of the bride. Ringbearers were Mark and Michael Smith, nephews of the groom.

Best man was Eric Slamka of St. Johns. Groomsmen were Lee Smith, brother of the groom; Steve Eaton, brother of the bride; Chuck Dirsch, and Steve Schneeber.

Ushers were Russ Lowe, Carl Bashore, Roy Hollis, and Russ Rademacher.

A reception for 400 friends and relatives of the couple was held following the service at the St. Joseph gymnasium. Guests were entertained by the Bent Scepters. Marybeth Sharick and Lori Slamka served the wedding cake. Cheryl Lowe attended the guest book. Mr. and Mrs. Dennis LaBar and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Green were the hosts and hostesses.

Findlay Manor news

Happy Nov. 27 Birthday Della Thompson!

"For age is an opportunity no less than youth itself, though in other dress." - Henry Wadsworth Longfellow
 "Old and senile" has become a phrase so familiar to us that we think of the terms as synonymous. This simply is not true. "Senility" is a catchall term used to describe anything from simple forgetfulness to severe disorientation.

There are many causes of this type of behavior ranging from malnutrition to drug complications to congestive heart failure. However, these problems may only produce symptoms of senility. When treated, often these symptoms are reversed. There are other diseases such as Alzheimer's and Pick's which do cause symptoms of senility and are, unfortunately, untreatable.

"They'll never change." In fact, the ability to change and adapt has little to do with one's age. There is no evidence that supports the notion that people become more flexible because of age. The ability to change is more a characteristic of personality and habit than of age.

Disengagement or the withdrawal from active participation in life was thought to be the rule rather than the exception when a person approached retirement age. However, at Findlay Country Manor, the average resident attends 3.5 activities a week, ranging from such programs as outings in the community, Bible study, to an education program - the humanities class.

The staff and residents firmly believe in the old sayings, "use it or lose it" and "rest and you rust."
 "You don't want him; he's too old." It is commonly believed that when we retire from our jobs, we become unproductive and useless members of society. This belief is yet another form of ageism that penalizes not only the individual but also society which loses the benefits of older people's experience and knowledge.

There are indications that although people are retiring at younger ages, they are re-entering the work force to pursue second and even third careers. Some are even being rehired by the companies that retired them. The options available at retirement are rapidly changing and will continue to expand as our population looks to the years ahead.

Family focus

Leftovers

By Dawn Harris

This week is Thanksgiving and soon you'll be sitting down at the table with family members, friends, and good food. What happens when the only thing left is the food. Handling leftover food can be a risky process if certain safety precautions are ignored.

Handling cooked turkey incorrectly can result in food poisoning. Think of the post-cooking stage as a countdown which begins when you take the turkey out of the oven. From that time, you have approximately two hours to serve it and then refrigerate or freeze the leftovers - the turkey, stuffing, and gravy. Why just two hours? Because bacteria that causes food poisoning can multiply to undesirable levels.

It is important to take out all of the stuffing from the turkey as soon as you remove the bird from the oven. Extra stuffing can be kept hot in the oven at 200 degrees F while you eat, or can be refrigerated.

How you store the leftovers is also important in preventing bacterial growth. Large quantities should be divided into smaller portions and stored in several small or shallow covered containers. That's because food in small amounts will get cold more quickly.

Leftover turkey will keep in the refrigerator for three to four days. Stuffing and gravy should be used within one or two days. Bring leftover gravy to a rolling boil before serving.

For longer storage, package items in freezer paper or heavy-duty aluminum foil and freeze them. Proper wrapping will prevent "freezer burn," white dried out patches on the surface of food that makes it tough and tasteless. Don't forget to date your packages and use the oldest ones first. Frozen turkey, stuffing, and gravy should be used within one month.

Every moment matters

Hospice can help in life and in dealing with death

Celebrating life and guided by the belief that "every moment matters," Clinton Memorial Hospice program coordinators want Clinton County residents to know November is National Hospice month.

"We want the community to know about our program and the ways that we can help, both in life and in dealing with death and the grieving process," says Jan Gramlich, R.N., hospice nurse for Clinton Memorial

CMH was heaven-sent

For Vi Treiweiller, the Clinton Memorial Hospital Hospice program was like a gift sent from heaven.

"I don't know what I would have done without those wonderful people, the nurses, volunteers, everyone," Treiweiller says from her DeWitt home. "I was worn out from trying to take care of Leon (her husband), when my son, Mark, said it was time to find a Hospice program."

One phone call to the CMH Hospice office and Mrs. Treiweiller found the help she needed.

Sue Bunge, a registered nurse with the Hospice program, was assigned to the Treiweillers. Mary Woodruff, a Hospice aide, went to the Treiweiller home three times a week in addition to night relief volunteers, Donna Love, Julie Kioski, and Betty Geller. The night relief volunteers took shifts caring for Leon from 10 p.m. until 7 a.m., so that Vi could sleep uninterrupted at night.

"I should have called them sooner," Vi says from her warm, sunny kitchen. "I needed help — physically and emotionally I couldn't deal with Leon's sickness 24 hours a day."

In addition to meeting with the family and helping Vi deal with Leon's illness, Bunge was also in contact with his doctor, keeping everyone apprised of his condition.

LEON TREIWEILLER was a strong man with a big heart, always ready to do something for others with no thought of repayment. However, in the last few weeks of his life, he knew he would need help from others besides his family members.

"Leon knew he was terminally ill and he knew he didn't want to die in the hospital," Bunge says. "Someone had to take care of him constantly, however, and while Vi did so for many months, she was losing weight and physically and emotionally drained. If Vi got sick, what was going to happen to both of them?"

Even after Leon's passing, Hospice volunteers and nurses stop in to see Vi or call on the phone to see how she is doing — coping with the loss of her partner in life for 52 years — who, as she puts it, "went peacefully to be with the Lord."

Bunge says the Treiweiller family has been one of the biggest and best referral systems in the DeWitt area. Everyone knows the Treiweillers and they have nothing but praise for the entire program.

Vi's youngest son, Dale, says he is "constantly amazed of all the services and help Hospice has provided his family."

"I had to rely on someone for help and this turned out to be the perfect answer to a prayer," Mrs. Treiweiller says. "I would recommend it — highly."

And with tears in her eyes, but warmth in her heart, Vi Treiweiller told her story about the caring, loving people she had encountered in the CMH Hospice pro-

Hospital.

Hospice for Clinton County was developed in 1982 as a means of providing the social, psychological, spiritual, and practical supports needed by terminally ill patients and their families. It is part of the hospital's Home Health Services directed by Michelle Wiseman, R.N.

The basic goals of the local Hospice program are to maintain the unit of care provided by the client and family; to keep the client free of pain, alert, and an active family member in order to reduce loneliness; to let the client make his or her own choices with regard to final lifestyle; and to support the family as they grieve, helping them to go on living.

"Hospice is a concept of caring for the terminally ill and their families, enabling them to live as fully as possible, making the entire family the unit of care and centering the caring process within the home," says Gramlich.

gram. It is a success story of people helping people in need — of dedication to a profession, of giving and receiving, and of tears of joy and sorrow.

Clinton Memorial Hospital's Hospice program — "Healing on the Wings of Love," says it all.

Ebert offers help, support

Offering help and support are synonymous with the name of Ray Ebert in St. Johns. That's why Clinton Memorial Hospital's Hospice program has become one of Ebert's helping projects.

"I know there is a need for this type of program," Ebert says. "I've always been involved with the elderly and people in general, for that matter. I see a need and a benefit for a Hospice program."

And believe in the program, he does. In fact, he is hoping that through his work as a Hospice volunteer, he can get others interested — especially more men.

"There's nothing unmasculine about expressing your feeling and letting others express theirs," he says. "It's natural. I think if more men became involved with the program, they would understand what I'm talking about."

Ebert has had one client, who was a male in need of having another man to talk to about his illness. This gentleman knew he was dying and Ebert gave him the support he needed to deal with everyday situations in addition to handling details and putting his affairs in order.

"The national Hospice organization promotes an awareness of the Hospice concept, defines and maintains the standards of care, addresses the needs and concerns of Hospice programs nationally, and assists them to effectively serve terminally ill patients and their families."

A HOSPICE team is comprised of the family physician, a nurse, social worker, the client's pastor, and trained volunteers. Other professionals are available to meet individual needs. Team members — such as the home care nurse — work closely with the physician to preserve the patient's quality of life.

"One very important member of the Hospice team is the volunteer," Gramlich says. "Hospice volunteers undergo training to better provide the support the patient and family needs. They become an important link for the patient, client, nurse, and physician."

The volunteer can reach out in many ways including that of a companion/friend, helping with household chores, child care, errand-running, transportation, and respite care.

Hospice services are billed through a client's individual health insurance. The Hospice nurse will assist the client in researching insurance matters. According to Gramlich, persons without insurance will not be denied Hospice services.

Marilyn Newman, a licensed social worker and Hospice volunteer coordinator, says that so far this year, 17 Clinton County families have been helped through the CMH Hospice program. To date there are 41 trained volunteers, with another class scheduled to graduate in the next few weeks.

Persons who are interested in finding out more about Hospice, or would like to become Hospice volunteers, should call either Gramlich or Newman at 224-6881, ext. 336 or 332.

Hilda Hufnagel

"Part of what I did was give the family a break from having to deal with the stress of being with the patient around-the-clock," says Ebert. "They were able to get away from a stressful situation for awhile."

Ebert explains that learning communication and listening techniques is a big part of the Hospice training. However, he was quick to add that Hospice volunteers are not supposed to give advice or problem solve, instead they are to give options and support to the client and family members.

"The clients need to be able to trust you," Ebert says. "You get to be very close to that person. It's like you become part of the family. You have to be willing to give of yourself and not be afraid."

Ebert finds the Hospice program a fulfilling and rewarding way to be a volunteer. He'd like to see others take a chance and make a difference in somebody else's life.

Persons interested in becoming a volunteer should call Jan Gramlich or Marilyn Newman at 224-6881, ext. 332 or 336.

Hufnagel does for others

For Hilda Hufnagel learning comes by doing — for others that is.

What she is doing these days is volunteering for Clinton Memorial Hospital's Hospice program.

Mrs. Hufnagel was actually practicing Hospice techniques before she became involved with the program and didn't even realize it. First, she took care of her ailing husband, Jake, for several years at home after he suffered a stroke. She also had a good friend who was dying and who she spent hours with talking, listening, and sharing — all of which are Hospice skills.

Sue Bunge and Vi Treiweiller

"After my husband died, I thought I'd like to go through the Hospice training," she says. "Many people thought it was too soon after Jake's death, but I knew what I needed and I was ready for this."

Hilda's first Hospice client was a woman dying of cancer. She explains how the lady really opened up to her and was able to talk to her much better than even family members at times.

"We became friends," Hufnagel says. "We had some good visits. However, I felt really bad when my son, Tony, called to say he had passed away while I was in Florida. I wished I had been with her."

There are many kinds of ways to deal with death and the grieving process. Another client of Hilda's was a woman whose husband had died.

"I was there for her, so she could talk about it," Hufnagel says. "I sent her cards, but my visits and comfort weren't an everyday thing. I was there for her when she needed me."

A retired school teacher, Hilda has been giving and doing for others all of her life. She doesn't think being a Hospice volunteer is anything out of the ordinary, although her clients tend to disagree.

For Hilda, Hospice is just a natural way of dealing with life and death.

Two classes to be offered

St. Johns Community Education will offer seminars on smoking cessation and weight control through the use of hypnosis. Both programs are scheduled for Monday, Nov. 30, with the no-smoking seminar beginning at 6 p.m. followed by weight control at 8:30 p.m.

The programs will be held at St. Johns High School. Self Psych Clinical Hypnotist Davie Rowe will conduct the seminars which cost $40 each. Participants will be hypnotized four times during the two-hour sessions and receive a cassette tape for reinforcement of the hypnotic suggestions for use in their homes.

The tapes have subliminal suggestions which feature conscious conditioning on one side and hypnotic programming for listening while relaxing on the other side. Rowe says smokers generally need to listen to the tapes for seven days to assimilate a non-smoker's attitude, with weight on the programs should clients having to listen call the St. Johns Community Ed office at 224-9341.

ZCBJ Lodge elects 1988 officers

The ZCBJ Lodge No. 225 of Bannister recently held its November meeting which was called to order by President Robert Ladiski. As members recited the Pledge of Allegiance, young members Sarah Bradley and Teresa Ladiski presented the pledge in sign language.

The secretary's and treasurer's reports were approved as read. Lodge 225 extends a warm fraternal welcome to Justin Palus, Kelly Wassa, Nicole and Amanda Porubsky, and Dr. Ric Chaney.

The following officers were elected to serve in 1988: President Robert Ladiski, Vice President Edward Fornusek Jr., Secretary Mildred Bradley, Treasurer Julia Gavenda, Guide Don Gorte; Guard John Gavenda, New Trustee Tom Bradley, Correspondent Joanne Fornusek, Caretakers Mike and Wilma Stambersky, Program Chairpersons Tom and Diane Bradley, Sunshine Girl Ann Dunay, Historian Tom Bradley, District delegates

Tom Bradley, Helen Wassa, and Alice Gavenda, and Alternates Lillian Luckhardt, Diane Bradley, and Joanne Ladiski.

Committee members remained the same with the addition of Paul Trgina and Don Gorte on the publicity committee.

Members thanked, Bro. Eddy Fornusek Sr. for building a display case for the historical memorabilia.

Sis. Mildred Bradley reported that over 2,800 cookbooks have been sold. Also, gifts of cookbooks have been given to Diane Nolan, Tony Cech, Carol Stewart, the Fraternal Congress and the Gabagouache River travelers who placed theirs in the State of Michigan archives.

Sis. Helen Wassa gave the financial report on the very successful harvest dinner. Sis. Wilma Stambersky read a long list of food and monetary donations which helped make the success possible.

Sisters Alice Fornusek, Wilma Stambersky, and Shawn Wassa reported on the excellent profit realized from the holiday bazaar held Oct. 31. Again, donations from members made the day a success. Lodge 225 is proud of its members who gladly make donations and spend long hours working together to put on dinners, festivals, and bazaars.

Members voted to accept the price recommendations of the rental committee as presented by Marcella Doubrava. Sis. Wassa reported on the state meeting held in Bannister on Nov. 1. Lodge 225 was honored to have newly elected WFLA President Ray Miller as guest speaker.

Members decided to insulate the outside doors of the new addition, to get estimates on insulating the ceiling, and to make a larger opening between the main hall and the pavilion.

As a community project, members collected toys, games, and clothing for Charlie Brown of St. Louis. Brown repairs these items and then distributes them to needy children.

Members decided to donate $225 to the Salvation Army.

Get well wishes were sent to Joe Pospisil, Paul Trgina, Ann Mikulka, and Tim Bush.

Best wishes for a Happy Birthday were extended to Sis. Lillian Luckhardt, Bro. Ed Fornusek Jr., and especially to Sis. Johanna Houska who is celebrating her 95th birthday.

New members join chamber

St. Johns Area Chamber of Commerce members and guests heard Robert Sieghart, Consumers Power representative and Economic Development Service director, speak on the importance of community development programs at the chamber luncheon last week.

Sieghart noted that the location of M&M Distribution in St. Johns came as a result of community development efforts and urged area business people present at the meeting to support continued development.

"Get involved in your community with CANDO and the RED Team," Sieghart said. "Work within the framework that is already established for you."

Also at the meeting, five new members were received. They are Mid-Michigan Chiropractic Center, Sharn's Remodeling, Wallpaper on the Go, Redwing Lanes, and Beltone Hearing.

Past chamber president Diane Edwards received a plaque for her service to the chamber and current President Dan Redman reported on the relocation of the chamber offices to the Willingham, Cote building on the corner on Spring and State streets in St. Johns. The new location will provide much needed office space for the chamber. The move will be completed in the near future.

Mint Festival committee prepares first brochure

The fourth St. Johns Mint Festival is only nine months away. Do you have your club or organization's event or activity submitted to the Mint Festival Steering Committee? All events approved by the committee by Dec. 15 will be included in the first brochure that is distributed statewide.

The 1988 Mint Festival steering committee needs sponsors, organizers, and volunteers who will put their ideas to work and join in the fun for a successful event.

Individuals, businesses, and organizations who would like to volunteer their services should call the St. Johns Area Chamber of Commerce at 224-7248 or any member of the steering committee.

The 1988 committee members are Chairman Dale Abraham, Vice Chairperson Annette White, Treasurer Jim Ostrowski, and support members Ken Baese, Dennis LaForest, Ken Kralik, Chester Schwerin, and Joann Martis.

These members are busy reviewing events of the past three years and addressing suggestions for further improvements of the festival.

The following suggestions have been made as possible return or new events: Mint Twin and Little Miss Mint Contest, Lust for Rust contest (the most rusted vehicle in running order), clown and band competition, antique auto show, street dance, quilt show, all year class reunion, puppet show, and the barbershop quartet competition.

All of these events would be suitable and could enhance the schedule of activities set for the 1988 festival.

TWO POINTS — St. Johns' Anne Brocker (55) puts up two of her team-leading 30 points in the Redwings' opening Class A district 60-39 win over Owosso last week. The Redwings face Swartz Creek in the championship game on Nov. 24, following a second-round 49-13 victory over Flint Carman-Ainsworth last Saturday afternoon.

SJ rambles into 'A' final

It turned out to be a pretty fair week for the St. Johns girls basketball team.

A MMB title clinching 51-26 victory over Ionia, followed by steamrolling Class A district wins versus Owosso, 60-39, and Flint Carman-Ainsworth, 49-13, gave Redwing fans high hopes for a Class A district crown again this year.

Coach Beth Swears will see her team take the court tonight (Nov. 24) in the championship game with Swartz Creek. The Class A contest begins at 7:30 p.m. at Owosso High School.

In the second-round district game with Carman-Ainsworth on Saturday, Nov. 21, St. Johns scored at will against the hapless Flint squad. The Redwings opened up a 12-4 first quarter lead and allowed Flint to score just 3 points in the second period, to take a 26-7 advantage into halftime.

The remaining two periods proved to go no better for Carman-Ainsworth, as the group netted just 6 total points in the combined quarters.

Redwing teammates Anne Brocker and Kerry Porter paved the way for St. Johns' success, both scoring 14 points apiece in the game. Brocker also had 5 rebounds and 4 assists, while Porter grabbed 10 rebounds to lead the team and had 5 assists.

Gina Schneider had 6 points, and Carey Darnell and Gina Manas netted 4 points each.

IN THEIR OPENING district game versus Owosso last Thursday, Owosso played even with the Redwings for the first quarter with the score knotted at 15-15 at the end of the period. Despite their 15 points, St. Johns had a hard time getting in gear.

The Redwings outscored their opponent in each of the remaining stanzas, opening a 28-23 lead by the half, and winning the game going away in the final periods.

Brocker, playing on a sprained ankle, still managed to pour in 30 points and cleared the boards of 15 rebounds to pace the Redwings' attack. Porter had 10 points and 13 rebounds, Krista Schrauben added 8 points, and Darnell had 5 points.

St. Johns' Mid-Michigan B league championship clincher at Ionia last Tuesday came without the aid of Brocker whose ankle kept her on the bench.

Porter, along with help from a number of Redwings, handled the Bulldogs with ease, however, leading 14-6 at the end of the first quarter and never allowing Ionia back into the game. The standout senior center netted 17 points in the contest.

Helping St. Johns in the scoring department were Schneider with 9 points, Mindy Martinez with 6 points, Jennifer Rositas and Darnell with 5 points, and Manas with 4 points.

The win gave St. Johns a 9-1 conference record at the end of the regular season.

Terrell and Korieneck run on Grand Valley cross country team

Former St. Johns High School cross country runners Sandra Terrell and Kim Korieneck were members of the Grand Valley State cross country team this fall. They helped the team finish third out of 18 teams in the NCAA division II regional — the best finish ever posted by the Lakers.

At the meet, Terrell finished 13th in a field of 96 runners with a time of 19:20 for the 5,000 meter course. Her finish qualified her for All-Regional honors. Terrell's finish was just four places back of qualifying for the NCAA division II nationals.

She had the second fastest time for a freshman. The Lakers also placed third in the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Ashley Bears roar in Class D district play

The Ashley girls basketball team will be looking to earn their third win of the season from Fowler when the two clubs meet tonight in the championship game of their Class D district — and the Eagles will definitely be hoping that the third time will be the charm for their cause.

The rematch between the two clubs was set up when Ashley claimed a 56-34 second-round district win over Mt. Pleasant Sacred Heart on Saturday, Nov. 21. Fowler defeated Fulton by a 50-46 score.

The two teams have enjoyed a fierce rivalry over the years, with Coach Carl Woyers' club earning a 42-36 win when they faced one another the first time this season, then pulling out a 38-32 overtime win the second time around.

Tip-off time is set for 7:30 p.m. at Mt. Pleasant Sacred Heart.

Balanced scoring was the key to the Bears district win over Sacred Heart, with Sheila Keck, Angie Felton, Chanda Shaw, and Lisa Wingle among Ashley's leading scorers. The outcome of the contest was never in doubt as the Bears led from start to finish.

In their Mid State Athletic Association season finale last Tuesday, Ashley routed Genesee 53-22. The Bears applied continual pressure during the game, building on an early 12-2 lead.

Wingle netted a career-high 22 points in the game to pace the Bears. Felton had 8 points and 6 rebounds. Shaw added 7 points, and Jamie Plesko had 6 points.

The Bears enter tonight's championship game with a 17-4 overall record.

That tempo saw Fowler take a 13-6 first quarter lead and build on it throughout the game.

Marcy Sillman led the Eagles with 17 points and 6 steals in the game. Simon added 11 points, Donna Feldpausch had 7 rebounds and 4 points, and Sherrine Rowell had 7 steals and 4 points.

The Eagles closed out the regular portion of their schedule last Tuesday with a loss to Potterville, 52-41. That game saw Fowler "not awake," according to the coach during Potterville's 10-2 first quarter scoring barrage. However, the Eagles came back in the second period to play "probably the best quarter we've had all year," enroute to taking a 23-22 lead into the lockerroom at the half.

Potterville controlled the game after halftime, with much of the scoring coming off from their premier player Tammy Cairi who scored 22 total points.

Leading scorer for Fowler was Jandernoa with 12 points, while Simon added 8 points, and Sillman had 8 points and 7 rebounds.

The Eagles take an overall 14-8 record into tonight's title game with Ashley whose record stands at 17-4.

fourth period points and earn the win. A major factor in Fowler's rally was Renee Ruhl who came off the bench to score all of her 6 points in the final stanza and clear the boards of 8 rebounds.

Mary Jo Simon led all scorers for Fowler with 16 points and 7 steals, Marcy Sillman had 8 points, and Mary Kay Jandernoa had 7 points and 9 rebounds.

FOR FULTON, Gardner paced her teammates with 15 points, while Lynch had 12 points and Helman netted 11 points.

The Pirates drew a bye in the first round of district play. They ended their regular season with a CMAC win over Laingsburg, 46-33, last Tuesday night. In that contest, Gardner poured in 22 points and hauled down 19 rebounds, with Helman adding 15 points to the winning effort.

In Fowler's opening district win over Beal City on Nov. 19, the Eagles employed a devastating press to the much bigger Beal City team.

"Our press was a real thorn in Beal's side," O'Rourke said. "We really controlled the tempo of the game."

Fulton, Fowler battle in Class D district

He said from the beginning the one team he didn't want to play in the basketball districts was Fulton — he was right — almost.

The "he" is Fowler girls basketball coach Tom O'Rourke, and the fear was in facing the big front line of Fulton's team — Dee Gardner and Lori Helman.

The duo almost pulled off a Class D semifinal win at Mt. Pleasant Sacred Heart High School on Saturday, Nov. 21, before Fowler rallied in the final period to claim a 30-46 win.

The victory, paired with a 50-34 Eagle win over Beal City in first round district action, puts Fowler into the championship game tonight (Nov. 24) with Ashley. Game time is set for 7:30 p.m. at Sacred Heart.

Fowler roared out to an early 10-2 lead in the game with Coach Ron Merritt's Pirates. The sure-handedness of Gardner and Helman, plus help from Linda Lynch, put Fulton back into the game in the second quarter as they outscored Fowler 16-10.

The Pirates claimed the lead in the third stanza, 33-30, before the Eagles' gathered their forces to score 20-

Pewamo-Westphalia rules the roost in CMAC; hopes for Class C district crown at Breckenridge

Not too many teams have found the right combination to stop the Pewamo-Westphalia girls basketball team from winning this year — just two, to be exact.

Certainly neither Portland St. Patrick nor Breckenridge had the key to victory over the Pirates last week.

Coach Carol Rademacher took her team into the famed "pit" at St. Patrick last Tuesday, Nov. 17, and came away with a CMAC 50-39 win to wrap up the league title for the Pirates, then travelled to Breckenridge for Class C district competition on Saturday where a 87-35 rout was the end result.

Did the Shamrocks or Breckenridge know what hit them? Probably, the names Thelen, Simon, Marten, Nurenberg, and Hengesbach are ones neither squad will want to hear for a few days.

As they have done throughout the year, P-W relied on balanced scoring and tough defense to wipe their opposition off the court.

In the Class C contest with Breckenridge, the Pirates built an insurmountable 23-2 first quarter lead and virtually put the game completely out of reach with another scoring barrage (31-8) in the third period.

Sandy Simon paced the Pirate attack with 23 points and 8 rebounds. Teammate help included Shirley Thelen with 16 points and 9 assists, Sandy Martin with 11 points and 10 rebounds, Sharon Barker with 9 points, Amy Hengesbach with 8 points, and Kerri Nurenberg with 7 points.

The Pirates did have a somewhat harder time in their CMAC finale at the "pit," as they were ahead by a slim 13-10 score at the end of the first quarter and up by 25-19 at the half. The Shamrocks pulled back to within striking distance in the third quarter, but P-W earned the championship in the final stanza when they outscored St. Pats 16-8.

Thelen was the leading scorer in the contest, netting 22 points, while Sandy Simon had 10 points and 9 rebounds in the game. Nurenberg added 7 points to the winning cause.

Pewamo-Westphalia will take their 19-2 record into the district championship game tonight (Nov. 24) where they play the winner of the Ithaca/St. Louis semifinal contest. Game time is set for 7 p.m. at Breckenridge High School.

In last year's Class C district finale, the Pirates were easy 77-33 winners over Ithaca in a game played at Shepard High School.

Salute to the Fowler football team

The 1987 Fowler football team ended the season with a 9-2 record, was CMAC champs, and regional playoff finalists COACH STEVE SPICER is surrounded by Whitmore Lake players after the Eagles opening playoff victory on Nov. 7. Spicer's career record at Fowler High School stands at 131-31-1.

JEFF MILLER proved to be a valuable ground-gainer for Fowler in 1987, ending the season as the teams' leading rusher.

ANDY THELEN did not see as much playing time as expected due to an early season injury. Despite that, he helped the Eagles during playoff action. Also pictured is Tony Bertram (82), a prime target for many Fowler long yardage and touchdown passes.

SCOTT KOENIGSKNECHT provided Eagle fans with several breathtaking pass receptions during Fowler's playoff games. A junior on the Fowler team, Koenigsknecht should be a key member of the 1988 squad.

Roehl lines Household dollars

By Giles Roehl

Christmas time is right around the corner. You need to buy presents, but you're short of funds. You don't want it to happen again next year. Here is an alternative for those of us with large areas that can be used for fruits or vegetables for the farmer's market, pick-your-own, or a roadside stand.

If you like gardening, but are not sure of the way to gain the needed expertise to start one of these enterprises, we have just the program for you. On Dec. 3, from 1 to 3 p.m., at Smith Hall, James Lincoln, area small fruits and vegetable specialist, will provide an inservice to current and prospective vegetable and small fruit growers.

Lincoln will be prepared to cover such items as sources of commercial seed, scouting for disease and insect problems, selecting and grading produce for maximum effect, and pricing in the market place.

Lincoln will also discuss liability of the farmer market, U-pick, roadside stand seller, and what to do to protect both the buyer and producer. You are requested to come prepared to ask questions and express your concerns. Pre-registration is required. For more information, call 224-5240.

Giles Roehl is the director of the Clinton County Cooperative Extension Service.

Conservation corner Windbreaks

By Eileen Gillespie

Windbreaks have been planted since settlers first moved into the plains. Tree windbreaks are good investments. They protect people, farmsteads, orchards, soils, field crops, livestock, wildlife, and public facilities. Trees are nature's outdoor air conditioner; they protect us from hot summer winds and raw wintery blasts.

Windbreaks also prevent erosion. Strong winds damage soil structure and remove fertility, uncover freshly sown seeds, cause dislodging of grain and corn, damage fruit and vegetables, and drift snow and soil across roads and ditches. Wind damage reduces crop yields.

Plants wilt under extreme moisture stress, especially when accompanied by high winds and high temperatures. Plants grow more rapidly when their cells are full of water. The physical and chemical processes of growth are slowed when plant cell water drops below full capacity, from transpiration, unavailable soil moisture, or both.

On field crops, windbreaks improve climate conditions and crop production by reducing wind velocity and soil erosion, modifying air and soil temperatures, reducing evaporation, improving distribution of irrigation water, reducing windburn and crop wilt, and protecting newly seeded crops from blowout.

The amount and extent of wind reduction depends upon the characteristics of the tree barriers. Height, density, shape, width, length, and characteristics of barriers all have important bearing on the degree of protection. Windbreaks are an effective soil conservation measure, especially when used to supplement conservation tillage.

Another benefit of windbreaks is that they provide valuable nesting area for birds and small animals. Regardless of the windbreak size, which can consist of various kinds of tree or shrubs, these "woodland islands" provide a useful habitat for wildlife.

Wildlife benefits in windbreaks can be strengthened by considering fruiting characteristics, the density and height of the planted species, for the types of birds you plan to attract. Fruit producing shrubs such as autumn olive, dogwood, or crabapple, planted with appropriate hardwood and conifer trees, will provide food as well as shelter, and escape cover for various species of wildlife.

To enhance the beauty and value of your home and farm, consider what windbreaks can do for you. The Clinton Soil Conservation District will be able to provide you with a number of different species of trees and shrubs when it holds its annual tree seedling sale beginning in mid-January 1988.

Eileen Gillespie is the administrative assistant for the Clinton Soil Conservation District.

Agricultural news Pasture profits

By Marilyn Loudenslager

Why in a world of high technology where animals are fed computer formulated rations on electronically controlled feeding devices, would someone be talking about increased pasture utilization?

This question can be answered in one word ... profit!

Some land in Michigan is just suitable for production of row crops and some livestock enterprises are not suitable for intensive feeding programs. You put these two together and you have all the support you need for offering a pasture utilization seminar.

A great deal of interest in pastures has come up over the past several years. On Wednesday, Dec. 16, the Cooperative Extension Service and Michigan State University will address this topic in a seminar entitled "Making your Pastures More Productive and Profitable." This seminar will be held in Clare, at the Town and Country, 1401 N. McEwan, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

During the seminar we will look at pasture

Attend national convention

By THERESA SILM
4-H Youth Agent

Anne Huhn, Julie Wilson, and Anabel Peck have a special interest in horticulture. They joined over 20 youth and adult leaders from Michigan who attended the 53rd annual National Junior Horticulture Association Convention in Indianapolis, Ind.

Anne Huhn of DeWitt was the Grand National Award winner in the demonstration contest. Her demonstration was titled "Apples - Nature's Most Perfect Food." Anne is a member of the Wooden Nichols 4-H Club.

Julie Wilson, member of the Elsie 4-Corners Club, competed in the Horticulture I.D. contest. She earned the right to represent Michigan by winning the state contest held during Exploration Days at MSU in June.

Anabel Peck, 4-H volunteer leader from Elsie, traveled with the group as a chaperone.

establishment, and how to determine if re-establishment is warranted. Ron Marrow from the Department of Animal Science, University of Missouri, will compare the continuous, rotational, and short interval grazing systems. He will also cover the management required for a short interval grazing system including the number of paddocks, grazing intervals, fencing, water, and animal behavior.

To keep a pasture producing under such an extensive grazing schedule requires a good maintenance program. Fertilization, PH, weed control, grazing management, and cutting management will also be covered at the seminar.

Now, how much performance can you expect from animals on this pasture program? That question will be addressed by individual specialists. Dr. Steve Rust and Dr. Harlan Richie, MSU beef specialists, will discuss the management required to get optimum production from beef in a pasture program. Bob Patton and Ben Bartlett, MSU dairy specialists, will cover the techniques required to put this technology to work on a dairy farm. And, Margaret Benson, MSU sheep specialist, will show how sheep and pasture management equals profits.

To attend the program, call Pat or Marilyn at the Cooperative Extension Service office at 224-5240 by Nov. 30. We are coordinating transportation. You must pre-register by Dec. 1 for this program by sending your name, address, number of people attending, and $15 per person to: Lynn Gould, Clare County Extension, County Building, Harrison, MI 48625.

Marilyn Loudenslager is the agricultural agent for the Clinton County Cooperative Extension Service.

Local artists preparing book

"Bunyan and Banjos" is the title of a soon-to-be released children's song and story book written by Kitty Donohoe and illustrated by Pasqua Warstler, local artists and Clinton County Arts Council members.

Based on their art and music workshops for children throughout the Clinton County area over the past couple of years, these artists will present Michigan's history through songs and stories in a form that encourages family participation.

The book is accompanied by a record and tape, all of which will be available at the Clinton County Arts Council Gallery, 1002 E. State St., M-21. A special reception honoring these artists will be held at the gallery on Sunday, Dec. 6, from 1 to 5 p.m.
