Patrols continue

Thanks to a 50-50 compromise between the sheriff and the county board Tuesday, midnight road patrols will not be ended by the county sheriff July 10.

Working on the theory that half a loaf is better than none, Sheriff Anthony Hufnagel and board members agreed to a plan worked out by commissioner Richard Hawks to grant half of the $29,000 the sheriff had requested.

After a falling-out between the sheriff and the board June 14, Hawks played shuttle diplomat, traveling between the Hufnagel and Finance and Personnel Committee members, who had rejected the sheriff's request.

Hufnagel said he needed $29,000 to pay 20 unionized deputies a 17 percent two-year pay hike granted by binding state arbitration. If the increase was not granted, the sheriff said he would have to lay off four deputies, resulting in elimination of the entire midnight road patrol shift.

Board Chairman Roger Overway said Hufnagel was simply trying to put pressure on the board by angering the public; board members feared the increase would encourage the county's other employees to unionize for similar pay hikes — increases they say the county can't afford without assessing taxpayers another half-mill.

At Tuesday's meeting, commissioners unanimously approved Hawks' plan to grant the sheriff $14,500, enough to fund the pay hikes if the sheriff lays off one deputy. With about 30 people present, Overway and Hufnagel again exchanged arguments, indicating neither was entirely satisfied with the compromise.

"I don't like to be negative," Overway said, "but in 1972 you had 13 regular full-time and part-time employees. Now you have 36 and the population in the county has only increased by 8,000."

Overway has insisted the department is top heavy, with many assigned to command who could have been put on road patrol. He was upset when Hufnagel said that even with the compromise budget hike, "There will still be some mornings when we will not have a car out after 4 a.m."

"Now you're saying you will lay off only one deputy and still can't have midnight patrol sometimes? I can't understand that," Overway protested.

State jail regulations and changes in the way things are done are to blame for budget and staff increases, Hufnagel replied. "What (former sheriff) Percy Patterson did was he lived at that jail to supervise it, although it was in violation of the state code," he said. "Nowadays we have 32 inmates a day, not nine or ten like they had in those days."

Several county officials took sides in the dispute during public comments. Bath Township Supervisor Richard Brook said he was glad for the compromise. A week before, Bath board members sided with the sheriff, asking commissioners to protect the midnight patrols which back up their own one-car night patrols.

Also taking the sheriff's side was Larry Schwartzkopf, superintendent of Clinton Intermediate School District. He said the district depends on the sheriff to protect facilities.

Jack Anderson, of Clinton County Farm Bureau, was neutral, but Friend of the Court Colleen Stienman expressed concern about the lack of midnight patrols. Only sheriff's departments are permitted to arrest those wanted on friend of the court warrants, she explained.

"My concern is no midnight patrol. If someone is not on call, (those wanted for back child support) will be released," she said. "There's a domino effect. If they don't pay child support it will end up costing us all because their children end up on (welfare)."

Hufnagel was asked by one citizen, Howard Hess, about actual increases in complaints. Hess also pointed out there are two State Police posts in the area — Ithaca and Owosso — which might be able to help out.

Hufnagel admitted criminal activity is not up significantly. "Our number one increase in costs has been wages," he said, which have gone "from low to overboard." State Police units have also taken "drastic reductions," he said, and are in no position to help.

Before requesting a vote on the compromise, Overway hinted the budget increase may well result in a tax hike for some or all county residents.

"What we're doing is asking residents in DeWitt, for example, who I represent and who are already paying $54 per person for a police department, to pay a half-mill ... to fund a police department for others in outlying areas."

"What we might be getting to is asking residents of (rural areas without police departments) to pay for the road patrol."

Overway said property tax revenues are up by only $40,000 this year, and county revenues will not likely increase by much more. The only alternative, he said, may be a tax hike.

Hufnagel, meanwhile, indicated he and the board may have to go another round in the fall when the county's new jail is opened. State staffing requirements may force transfer of another road patrol officer to jail duty, he predicted. "You'll have another story then," he said.

It may look like a bomb crater, but the hole which appeared in Spring Street just north of Walker Thursday morning was deliberately created by St. Johns city workers. After a sag in the street was reported, the city crew used a backhoe to break already rotting beams supporting a cover for a water reservoir. City Manager Randy Humphrey speculated the reservoir was used as an emergency source of firefighting water, and guessed it was at least 100 years old. "There were plenty of other explanations from old timers who came by to see it, though," he said. (Photo by Peter Bronson)

Board says no again to pay raise request

County commissioners again balked at raising Friend of the Court Colleen Stienman's salary to $30,000 Tuesday, rejecting a request which revives a four-month-old salary dispute.

The pay hike request was included in an estimate of increased administration costs to implement a new state law which goes into effect tomorrow, reorganizing friend of the court offices.

Mrs. Steinman estimates the new law will cost the county about $40,000 more annually, and asked for $21,156 for the remaining six months of 1983. Included in her increases are about $3,000 in equipment costs, another roughly $4,000 in additional operating costs, and more than $14,000 in extra employee benefits and salaries.

About $7,700 of the employee costs would be for hiring a new mediator/investigator required by the legislation; her own raise accounts for $2,630, and another $1,750 is requested for part-time help.

Commissioners were first ordered by Circuit Judge Timothy Green to raise Mrs. Steinman's salary to $30,000 last March. Commissioners refused, pointing out she had just been given a raise of nearly $3,000 in January, and said they would go to court to fight the order.

The judge temporarily lifted his order during negotiation of a compromise settlement, removing the county clerk and treasurer from threat being forced to defy the county board or face jailing for contempt of court. (Both said they would have obeyed the court order.)

Commissioners again said no Tuesday, and agreed only to fund the office at the 1982 level — which is even lower than this year's budget thanks, in part, to Mrs. Stienman's raise in January to $24,667, and the final compromise settlement with Green which made that raise retroactive to October, 1982.

Under the new legislation, county boards still hold the purse strings for general fund allocations to the friend of the court, and are required only to fund their friend of the court office at 1982 levels.

The law does funnel many fees formerly collected by the county directly into by the friend of the court, however, raising revenues locally by an estimated $10,000 in the next six months. It also increases the administrative control of the county's presiding judge to set salaries and fire and hire friend of the court employees.

Green, who now has that authority, insisted in March that Mrs. Steinman's salary was too low compared to other counties, and said, because she has a law degree, it should be raised to $30,000. If he wishes to raise her salary now, he must use increased the $10,000 in increased fee revenue. But the increase in fee revenue still is about $11,000 short of covering the estimated $21,000 increase in costs, offering little room for raises unless other areas of the budget are reduced or eliminated.

In a meeting with the board's Criminal Justice Committee, Green suggested taking additional fees from the county clerk's office, where portions of marriage license fees are reserved for divorce mediation.

Commissioners, meanwhile, plan to stick to their 1982 allocation. They are watching closely a lawsuit in another Michigan county where county officials have invoked the Headlee amendment to force the state to pay for state-mandated increases in friend of the court costs.

Pranksters warned

Patriotic pranksters who plan on getting a bang out of the July 4th Celebration at St. Johns City Park may find the long arm of the law tapping them on the shoulder.

St. Johns officers will be mingling with the crowd in an effort to keep visitors from setting off unauthorized fireworks.

Bicyclists beware: Riding on downtown sidewalks in St. Johns can be dangerous.

With school out and warm weather, it's time again to remind bike riders that pedaling along city sidewalks is illegal and hazardous to riders and pedestrians alike.

Board 'terminates relationship' with Ebert

By PETER W. BRONSON

Manager Roy Ebert has been fired by the St. Johns Michigan Federal Credit Union in the wake of a sexual harassment suit filed against Ebert and the credit union's board of directors.

The board voted to "terminate the credit union's relationship" with Ebert during a regular meeting Tuesday, June 21, but did not confirm the decision until a week later. The announcement was made Tuesday in response to repeated questions about Ebert's status.

Four former employees and one present employee of the credit union, all women in their 20s, filed suit in Clinton County Circuit Court June 8, charging Ebert with physical and verbal sexual harassment and charging the board with negligence for failing to remove Ebert after being notified of the harassment.

A group of female employees, including several among those filing suit, first complained to state and federal officials in January. The credit union board was notified of the complaints Jan. 28.

The women have refused to comment on the case, but their attorney, Edith Harsh of Okemos, says they seek unspecified cash damages, not a return to their jobs. The minimum damage request for circuit court judgement is $10,000 per charge, and several charges have been filed.

"What with several insurance companies...there may be as many as nine lawyers initially involved," Schneider said Monday, explaining why board members and others have been reluctant to make a statement. "Until the dust settles, nobody wants to declare themselves spokesman."

In the statement issued Tuesday, the credit union board said: "Prior to the commencement of litigation, the credit union board of directors reviewed and adopted a personnel policy, forbidding the sexual harassment of, or amongst, its employees and staff. This policy was formally adopted by the board, given to, and acknowledged by all present employees."

The statement offered no reason for Ebert's firing, saying "Inasmuch as litigation is pending...no further comment can be made at this time."

Ebert's replacement, Mrs. Michaels, is a Lansing graduate of Michigan State University with 15 years experience in credit unions, the statement said.

A hearing to consider Miss Harsh's request for a change of venue is slated for July 5 at 1:30 p.m. before Circuit Judge Timothy Green. Miss Harsh contends the trial should be moved because Ebert is a former mayor and because most of the credit union's 7,000 members are county residents, hence prospective jurors.

Ebert, who was mayor of St. Johns from 1974-77, was elected to the city commission in 1970. He was an unsuccessful candidate for school board last June. Reached at home Tuesday, Ebert said he had no comment on the case or the board's announcement.

Credit union board members also refused to comment until the board broke silence to announce Ebert's removal. He was replaced by acting manager Mary Michaels shortly after the suit was filed, but no comment as to his status was made until Tuesday.

In the announcement, the board also said it has hired Lansing labor attorney Lawrence Schneider, who will be assisted by co-counsel Paul Maples of St. Johns, the credit union's lawyer.

Hospital toured

One hundred and forty six St. Johns sixth graders recently participated in Clinton Memorial Hospital's Health Careers Day.

The students toured the Medical Records Department, Radiology, Laboratory, Emergency Room and Cardiopulmonary. They also viewed a 15-minute film entitled, "Nursing Today."

A group of second graders also toured the hospital and played roles as doctor, nurse and patient in a simulated patient room. The purpose of the tour was to help dispel fears children may have about hospitals.

Color could be the cure for mismatched and tired attire

By PETER W. BRONSON

Do complete strangers ask you if you dressed in the dark?

Do you sometimes wonder which Hawaiian shirt to wear with your plaid slacks and yellow socks?

Do people's light-sensitive glasses darken when you enter a room?

If so, you need help.

Don't despair, though. You don't need to join the Army just to get a wardrobe that matches — there's help closer to home. It's the latest trend for the apoplectically-apparelled, the chronically indecisive and even normal, sharp dressers who want to get more bang out of their clothes budget buck: get your colors done.

Where? You might try Mary McCardle, one of two women in the Lansing area qualified to drape clients with swatches of colored material and determine which of four seasonal schemes they should wear.

She's been advising Lansing area residents on proper color schemes for about a year, ever since she attended a $2,900 training course in Seattle, Wash., held by "Color Me Beautiful," a system of selecting the right hues to match a person's skin tones, hair color and eyes.

"There are several benefits besides the fact that you look better in the right colors," said Mrs. McCardle, her green eyes and sun-tanned face attractively accented by a white blouse, an off-white skirt, white stockings and off-white shoes.

"Number one, it's economical. You save money in the long run by eliminating mistakes."

Many who at first pale at the $50 color consultation fee soon see the light when Mrs. McCardle points out the cost of choosing the wrong color. "I usually say, 'If you have one blouse you don't wear hanging in your closet...'

and they usually smile. It's usually not one, but several, and several suits, too."

(Although most of Mrs. McCardle's clients have been women, she says her program has been very popular with plenty of red-blooded men, as well: "My husband loved it. 'No more making decisions about what to wear,' he said.")

In addition to keeping the family clothes budget in the black by avoiding costly buying blunders, the "Color Me Beautiful" approach provides a set of 30 matched colors with which to coordinate your closet.

"Once you start buying from your own palette, your wardrobe is automatically coordinated," she explained. "When everything is matched, you need fewer clothes."

Color conscious travelers can leave town on business confident they carry sufficiently coordinated clothes to mix and match a varied set of outfits with just the items needed to fill an overnight bag, Mrs. McCardle says.

She did just that recently, in fact, when she left town to tape a segment of "The Phil Donahue Show," in which Mrs. McCardle and other color experts were featured. The program is due to air July 19.

Back home, women green with envy at their friends' new color coordinated wardrobes have been flocking to Mrs. McCardle's classes held at the Lansing area's two Hudson's stores. "Business has been phenomenal. We started out slow, but it's a high visibility business," she says.

"We discourage individual consultations. We'll do them, but we prefer to work in groups. If just one person tells you you should wear a certain color, you're likely to ignore the advice. But when 45 women ohhh and ahhh when you put Navy on, you get the message."

So if your eye-tiring attire turns your friends' faces red, stop singing the blues: Don't be yellow, grab some green and get your colors done.

East Essex principal retires

By AL PALMERI

Parents and children close to East Essex Elementary School have had a hard time accepting Beverly Baker's retirement as principal and kindergarten teacher.

When you see a familiar face like Mrs. Baker's for 37 years, it's easy to assume you will keep seeing it.

"Some of them were quite shocked," said Mrs. Baker, 64, who will retire July 1. "The comment that I always get from parents is, 'I wish you were going to be there to start my little one. Just one more year.'"

Mrs. Baker said she has received about 150-200 cards from people who expressed their regret that she was retiring. One grandmother, whose children had been taught by Mrs. Baker, wanted her to keep teaching until her grandchildren were old enough for East Essex.

"You're just like everybody else," Mrs. Baker has been saying to those who want her to stay. "I've done that for about five years now — stayed one more year. There comes a time when that one year comes up."

"Retiring is something I've never lived for. I think that's one reason I've enjoyed my job so well. There just comes a time when I just can't stay on for the one more."

Mrs. Baker's first teaching job was at Prairie School on Colony Road. One year later, she went to Island School on Island Road, where she received a $5 raise to bring her salary up to $65 a month.

Her next job was at East Essex, where she would go from a one-room school to four rooms before moving in to the modern building. She announced her retirement on the last day of school this year.

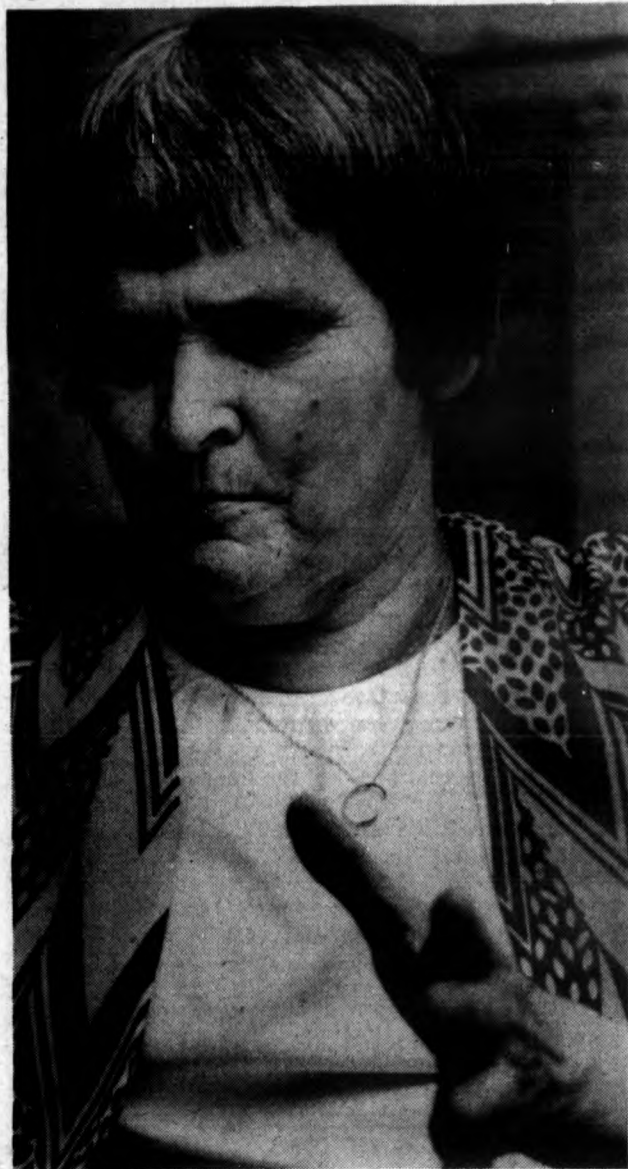

"If parents and children knew it a month in advance, I would have had to go through more grief," she explained. "It was kind of a selfish reason."

Closing East Essex is high on the St. Johns administrators' priority list of cost cutting and has been a topic of much controversy recently. If possible, Mrs. Baker favors keeping East Essex open.

"This is a very close-knit community and they need this school to keep them this way," she said. "I definitely would (keep East Essex open). I still think there may be ways that it could stay open. I think they've got to look at all of those options, and the board will decide. It's a pretty tough question for the board to answer."

Mrs. Baker plans to relax with her husband, Lloyd, on the couple's 235-acre sheep farm between Fowler and Maple Rapids. Weaving wool will occupy much of her time, in addition to church activities with Christian Congregational Church in Maple Rapids and work as Assembly of Michigan chaplain for Oddfellows Rebecca Lodge.

She also plans to read more than ever before. "I like good novels," she said. "I want something that's going to be uplifting. I don't like some of this trash that's on the market now."

Fields muddy

An unusually wet spring has kept Clinton County farmers in their fields for long hours lately as they struggle to catch up and plant their crops.

Farmers from Bath to Maple Rapids have been too busy to reach by phone on pleasant days, because of their heavy workloads. One Pewamo farmer has been working from 5 a.m. to 10 p.m. every day when it isn't raining.

"We're behind right now — you don't say boo," said his wife, explaining why her husband could not come to the phone.

A survey of wives and a few county farmers revealed that farmers are three weeks to a month behind schedule this year because of poor weather. In addition to keeping many indoors away from their fields, heavy rains in May caused extra delay as wet fields threatened to bog tractors down in mud even days after the rains had stopped.

Bob Kissane, who farms 700 acres of corn, soybeans and wheat near DeWitt Road, said the spring rains pushed his planting schedule back about one month. Like many farmers, he is worried about the harvest.

"It'll cut the yields," Kissane said. "If we should get an early frost, we could wind up with a lot of stuff that doesn't get harvested. We're going to need a lot of warm weather and moisture to keep things going."

"It's not going to be a good year, that's for sure."

Phil Summers, owner of a 450-acre farm near Eureka, has had an exceptionally difficult time. By the first week of June, he had planted only five acres of oats and no alfalfa, corn or beans.

"It's a little hard on the ulcer," he joked.

Summers said most of his neighbors in the northern part of the county are in the same situation. "There's a few starting to get out, but most have to wait because it's too wet," he said during the third week in June.

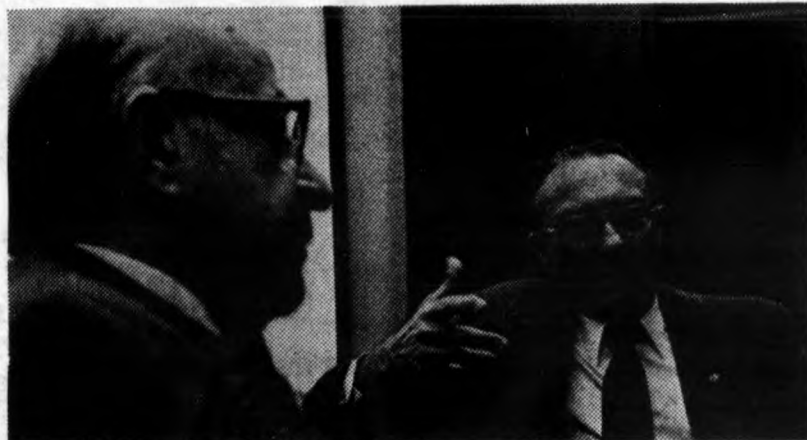

Last week proved much warmer, however, and farmers throughout the county could be seen working their fields from dawn to sunset. And with Daylight Savings Time stretching daylight to nearly 10 p.m., that made for some pretty long days.

Catching up

Rainy spring weather has set back farmers' planting schedules about one month and caused farmers like Bob Kissane of St. Johns to spend long hours in their fields. (Photo by Bob Stern)

New power plants will help Michigan escape energy crisis

Dr. Chauncey Starr and Mr. Harry Reinsch

Within 10 years, Michigan and other Midwestern states may become an energy oasis in a nation desperately short of electricity, according to two experts.

America's generating plants can fulfill America's thirst for electricity without difficulty for the next five or six years, they say. But beyond that, increased use of electricity could outgrow production capabilities in many parts of the country. The result would be regional power shortages, accompanied by large-scale unemployment.

The good news-bad news assessment of America's power future is made by two leading authorities on electricity, Dr. Chauncey Starr and Harry Reinsch. Starr is vice chairman of the highly respected Electric Power Research Institute. Reinsch is president of the Bechtel Power Corporation, which builds electric generating plants worldwide. Their views appear in the current issue of "FOCUS: Views on Energy," a magazine published by Consumers Power Company.

According to Starr and Reinsch, existing demand already uses more than 90 percent of the nation's total electric generating capability. They say enough new plants are not being built to handle growth and replace aging facilities. It will be too late to fix the problem once the shortage occurs, because it takes many years to plan, finance and build a generating plant, Starr says.

The power supply situation is a serious threat to America's economy, according to Starr. He notes that historically, the demand for electricity tracks economic activity. If the nation's economic output increases, consumption of electricity goes up. If there is not enough electricity to handle growth, a stagnant economy and high unemployment result.

"We'll see a big shift of industry," predicts Reinsch. "Many plants will pack up and move away from energy-short areas to other parts of the country. Even to foreign countries. That would mean unemployment. Lots of it."

In the midst of that bleak forecast, Michigan and the rest of the Midwest hold out hope for the future.

"The Midwest has more abundant power, and less expensive power, than most other regions," says Starr. "It is certainly better off than the Sun Belt. The Sun Belt relies chiefly on oil and natural gas for fuel. The Midwest gets its power principally from coal and nuclear energy, which costs much less than oil or natural gas."

Reinsch agrees. "Michigan fits right in the heart of it," he says. Several new power plants, including the Midland Nuclear Cogeneration Plant, will be completed within the next few years. "Once they are completed, Michigan will have an ample supply of dependable, inexpensive electric power and will be in a very good supply position compared to the rest of the county," he says.

"The people of Michigan are really very fortunate," Reinsch says.

First tests results back, no contaminants found

By PETER W. BRONSON

The first results of court-ordered tests for contamination at Granger Landfill show no sign of organic contamination, a state official said Monday.

"We don't see any problem there. There will be more tests, but we have detected nothing as far as organics are concerned," said Terry McNeil, a geologist with the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Hazardous Wastes Division.

Tested were soil samples extracted from the west side of the original landfill by a screen auger. McNeil said the samples were taken about 15 feet deep in an effort to determine if the landfill had been leaking hazardous organic contaminants.

"We'd had some problems with surface water contamination there," he explained. Results of further tests for chemicals and inorganic compounds, like heavy metals, are expected back soon, he said.

The tests, taken May 5, were ordered by Ingham Circuit Judge Carolyn Stell as part of a settlement between the People's Action League (PAL) and Granger Land Development Inc. Results were back from DNR labs Friday, June 24.

In her April 22 edict, the judge also ordered Granger to "immediately stop" leaks of contaminants onto nearby land and into the Looking Glass River, and ruled that Granger could no longer accept any hazardous wastes after May 2.

Plans to encapsulate 50 acres of the landfill in a clay liner, also required, are progressing, and Granger has so far complied satisfactorily with the various court orders, a spokesperson for Attorney General Frank Kelley said. Kelley initiated the court action with a request for an injunction to stop pollution from the landfill.

Members of PAL earlier said they would have their own toxicologist perform tests on samples taken by the DNR, but when the tests were performed, PAL had no expert of their own on the scene so the state will do extra testing requested by PAL, a DNR official said.

DNR officials were quick to point out the results are only the first of many tests to be done at the site for a variety of possible contaminants in several locations.

Service to city deserves thanks

Basking in the warm light of media and public attention, their opinions and time constantly in demand, professional politicians make public service seem glamorous.

There is another kind of public service, however; one which receives about as much attention as the dark side of the moon: local politics.

Granted, there is a modicum of recognition and respect that comes with election to a local school board or city council. But too often, most constituents remember their local leaders only when they have a complaint. Except in times of controversy, meetings at the local level are generally poorly attended and the public is content to ignore the time-consuming, unexciting mechanics of local government.

We try to keep readers informed about the activities of their local units of government, but weekly reports about action on various agenda items, important as they may be, can hardly give readers an appreciation of the amount of hard work done by most local officials before the meetings begin.

With few exceptions, local government is honest and effective because the people who contribute their time and get involved are willing to spend hours learning about the issues and then apply their knowledge on behalf of what they believe is best for the community.

The decisions are not always easy and the homework is, for the most part, anything but exciting.

Taking into account the contributions and rewards of public service on the local level, we feel two members of the St. Johns City Commission deserve a big thank you.

John Hannah and Don Roesner have decided not to run for re-election next fall — Hannah for health reasons and Roesner because he would like more time for his family. Both have attended more city meetings than either would probably like to count — Hannah serving for 14 years, Roesner for 10.

Both have been complimented by their peers and city employees as good, solid commissioners who have come to meetings on time and prepared.

They will be replaced next fall by one of four new candidates, but their past contributions cannot be. For service above and beyond the call of civic duty, we express our appreciation to John Hannah and Don Roesner.

Letters

Army clothes upset her

To the editor:

Having worked around children for about 10 years, I have had the opportunity to see the various fads in clothes come and go. Last week I saw a fad come in that scares me — a child was wearing an Army camouflage outfit.

This same type of outfit was worn by many American soldiers during the Vietnam War. Does this mean we are glorifying war by allowing our children to dress as if they were heading for the battlefield in the morning instead of school? Most of these children will be going into some branch of the service soon enough. Then will they think these clothes are so great?

Having had a cousin killed and a brother serve in the Vietnam War, I am not so anxious for my son to go off to war that I will start dressing him for the battlefield while he is still in grade school. I dread to think what might be next if this fad is encouraged by merchants who sell these clothes and condoned by parents who buy them.

Eileen Strickland
St. Johns

A few seconds later, Ben Wieber of St. Johns, who had gone down to mail a letter, came into the police stations and reported, he could see flames inside the building.

When St. Johns firemen arrived on the scene two or three minutes later, most of the windows in the building had been cracked by the intense heat, and smoke was pouring from all openings in the building.

All entrances to the building were locked, so the fire fighters attacked the blaze through the windows. Estes learned of the fire soon after the alarm came in and rushed back to the post office to unlock the rear door. Firemen wearing air tanks and masks then entered the smoke-filled building and turned hoses on the center of the blaze, a dispatch case and canceling machine near the middle of the work room.

Postmaster J.D. Robinson arrived on the scene a few minutes later and helped direct the firemen, considerably reduced in numbers by the holiday, in their efforts to extinguish the blaze.

The actual flames, confined to the area around the dispatch case, were probably extinguished within a short time. But bundles of mail and newspapers and magazines continued to smolder, giving off a dense, choking smoke which limited visibility and smudged the entire interior of the building and everything in it.

The fireproof construction of the post office, which was built in 1934, probably saved it from being a total loss.

Record crowd celebrates July 4, 1940

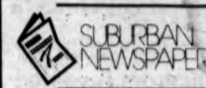

CLINTON COUNTY REPUBLICAN NEWS, JULY 4, 1940 — St. Johns firemen and merchants provide fine entertainment for thousands with Independence Day Event.

Started several years ago with a modest fireworks display on a downtown parking lot, the annual St. Johns Fourth of July celebration, sponsored by the fire department, with the financial assistance of local merchants, reached a new peak this year in an ambitious program of entertainment that continued from early afternoon until late at night and taxed the capacity of the city park. Various estimates at from 8,000 to 12,000 people, the crowd in attendance assembled from every corner of Clinton County and several neighboring counties.

Craig says thanks for win

To the editor:

I wish to take this opportunity to thank the voters of the St. Johns School District for their support in re-electing me to the St. Johns School Board on June 13, 1983. I appreciate your vote of confidence and pledge to maintain and improve the quality of education for our children, within available financial resources.

Despite adversity during the campaign, we must recognize that challenges are actually opportunities and that by working together we have a real opportunity to improve our community and to make the benefits of education accessible to all people.

Thanks again for your support and I look forward to serving the people for a better St. Johns school system during the next four years.

Sincerely,
Robert G. Craig
St. Johns

Correction

In the June 23 edition of this paper, in our story "Husted is sentenced," we incorrectly identified Judge Timothy Green upon second reference as "Lewis." It was Judge Green, not District Judge Fred Lewis, who was critical of Husted's plea bargain agreement.

Investigators fail to find cause of post office fire

CLINTON COUNTY REPUBLICAN NEWS, JULY 12, 1962 — Postal inspectors and fire marshal report $14,250 July 4 blaze here of undetermined origin.

A state police fire marshal and a U.S. Post Office department inspector gave up Monday afternoon after a three-day search for the cause of a fire which swept through the St. Johns Post Office July 4, causing damage estimated at $14,250.

Meanwhile, the local post office has carried out the time-honored edict that "the mail must go through," and a window and delivery service was resumed last Thursday morning with hardly a pause.

The biggest mystery surrounding the fire is how it got so hot so fast. Two post office employees, Harvey Thornton, 30, a new employee who was on duty, and Olney (Sonny) Estes, 37, a seven-year employee who was showing Thornton "the ropes" on his own time, were in the building until 4:05 p.m. Neither smelled smoke or noticed anything amiss.

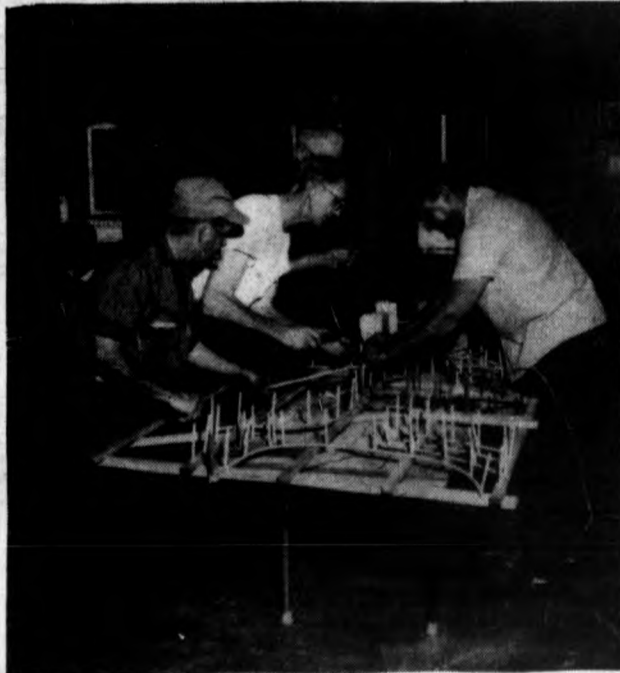

At 4:23 p.m., Merlin Doyen of Morrice rushed into the St. Johns Police Station and reported smoke was pouring from the post office.

Beginning at 2 o'clock, several games, contests and races were staged for boys and girls, with prizes for the winners. Balloons and other favors were distributed to the youngsters during the afternoon and evening. The biggest scramble of the day occurred when all the kids under 12 went to work on a pile of sawdust in which was hidden $12 worth of pennies.

A fine concert by the high school band, under the direction of Dale Eyman, followed the sports contest.

Daredevil Joe Winkler of Pewamo thrilled the crowd by crashing his motorcycle through a wall, and later in the day staged a double parachute drop from a balloon ascension.

After the balloon ascension a fine amateur show drew the crowd to the band shell, where 18 contestants from Elsie, Maple Rapids, DeWitt, Laingsburg and East Lansing were seen in action. First prize of $8 went to Joyce and Wanda Sillman of Maple Rapids. A five-year-old singer, Deleta George of Elsie, took the $5 second prize, while Joyce Gifford of St. Johns won third prize of $3 with her ventriloquism.

Firemen Squeak Hyler, Gerald Bunge and Garey Biddinger put together a fireworks display for a July 4, 1965 show in St. Johns.

Patty Wieber, Fowler, pitcher: Finishing with a 9-3 record, Wieber posted a 1.80 earned-run average in the Central Michigan Athletic Conference as the Eagles tied for the league championship. The junior pitched four shutouts, including three one-hitters. On offense, she batted .537, with 24 RBI's and a team-high 21 stolen bases.

Lisa Ives, DeWitt, catcher: An all-Capital Circuit first team pick, Ives batted .547. The junior scored 35 runs and stole 19 bases. She was a team leader throughout DeWitt's march to a district championship and she threw out 14 runners attempting to steal during the year.

Brenda Eiseler, St. Johns, first baseman: A slugging freshman for the Redwings, Eiseler was second on the team in RBI's with 25. She batted .321 and had one of the team's best fielding percentages — .950.

Shawn Thelen, Pewamo-Westphalia, second baseman: A team leader for the Pirates, Thelen batted .580 and led the team in all other offensive categories, according to coach Bonnie Somero. The senior played shortstop most of the year and anchored the Pirate defense.

Sue Pearsall, St. Johns, shortstop: Voted to the Mid-Michigan 'B' League first team for the third consecutive year, Pearsall led the Redwings with 29 RBI's. The senior batted .428, with 13 extra-base hits.

Dar Schmitt, Fowler, third baseman: A first-team all-conference pick, Schmitt led the Eagles in batting average (.556) and RBI's (29). The junior stole 17 bases and made only one error all season.

Janet Wieber, Fowler, outfielder: Another first team all-conference choice, Wieber's forte was defense. The senior played 90 innings of errorless ball as the Eagle centerfielder. She batted .396 and had 13 stolen bases.

Toni Hufnagel, DeWitt, outfielder: A first team all-league player as a sophomore, Hufnagel led the Panthers with 24 RBI's. She batted .371 and emerged as an offensive leader on a team depleted by injuries to top players.

Amy Hartsuff, St. Johns, outfielder: An All-Region and first team all-league player, Hartsuff batted .407 and had 22 RBI's for the Redwings. The sophomore scored 23 runs and contributed six extra-base hits to the Redwing attack.

Jan Szymczak, St. Johns, coach: Despite having only two seniors, Szymczak guided the Redwings to a 14-5 season. Four of those losses were by one run. St. Johns finished second in the Mid-Michigan 'B' league and third in the Lansing State Journal Softball Classic.

The buck stops here with my dream team

I want to set the record straight.

In this issue, we are presenting the Clinton County News-DeWittBath Review All-County softball team. This team was compiled after nominations from county softball coaches. Coaches didn't pick the team — I did.

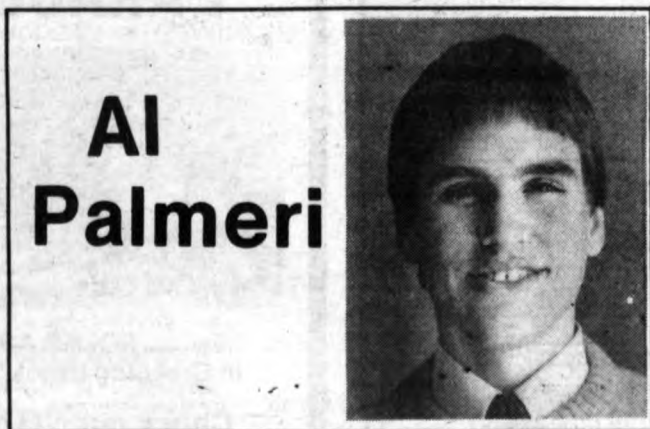

The buck stops at my sports desk. It's my dream team, no one else's.

I hope you don't take this team too seriously. In no way am I telling you that these are the best nine softball players in Clinton County. I would hope that they are, but I don't really know. For that matter, no one really knows.

I've talked to a zillion coaches, sportswriters and athletic directors about all-star teams, and I've heard about a zillion variations on how to select them. From summarizing their thoughts, two opposite opinions have emerged:

- Pick a team which is fair to all of the schools. For example, pick a softball team which includes two players from every county school — a 12-player team.
- Go all out to pick the best players in the county, period. By that reasoning, it would be appropriate to honor the entire DeWitt baseball team if I felt that each player was the best at his position.

I am somewhere in the middle of those philosophies. I would like to be fair to every school in the county, but I lean toward picking the best players, regardless of school, at each position.

Statistics pose problems when selecting all-star teams. Is a .400 hitter in the Central Michigan Athletic Conference better than a .300 hitter in the Mid-Michigan 'B' League? I don't know. Do you?

Many all-star teams include second and third teams. Mine don't. I have enough trouble picking my first team. It was reassuring when St. Johns' Sue Pearsall, who is quite familiar with all-star teams, told me how many of her teammates have been disappointed with second-team selections.

Sue said she enjoys the all-county team more than all-conference teams because it is more objective. Problems arise at all-conference meetings, she said, when coaches argue for players. Coaches who argue more can get more players on all-conference teams, she said.

I've already told you that my team is not perfect. I also believe that there is no such thing as a perfect all-conference team — especially an all-conference second team.

Basically, as many coaches have told me, it comes down to politics. If you lobby well, and if the other coaches like you, you'll probably get your players on the team. If you are new to the league or if you make enemies easily, you probably won't be as fortunate in the all-conference derby. Because of those factors, good players who deserve first-team recognition are sometimes not honored.

I seriously considered not picking all-county teams. But coaches kept telling me that the all-county teams are important to the athletes who are chosen. The advantages, in their opinion, outweigh the disadvantages.

That's swell with me. It's fun to pick a dream team. I only hope we can keep all-star teams in their proper perspective.

Bath Cardinals slip past Jets

By AL PALMERI

Eyebrows will undoubtedly start to raise around the Michigan Charity Football League if the 2-0 Bath Cardinals knock off the 3-0 Cadillac Northmen this week.

The Northmen throw the ball often behind former Ferris State College quarterback Bill Costner and will enjoy the home-field advantage. Cadillac is also coming off a season in which it finished second in the league, while Bath is coming off a 1-7 year.

"We suspect they might be looking by us a little bit," said Bath coach Phil Bailey. "We think we've got some surprises for them. We're looking forward to Cadillac as a good test."

One element that may take the Northmen by surprise is the presence of Cardinal place-kicker Rich Schario. The former Michigan State University kicker will be making his Cardinal debut after missing the first two games because of personal reasons.

In last week's 6-0 overtime victory over the Detroit Jets, Bath running back Jeff Oberlin misfired on field goals of 28 and 37 yards in regulation.

"We felt Schario would have won the game for us in regulation," Bailey said. "We're very glad to have Rich back."

The Cardinals had all they could handle with the Jets, who average 270 pounds along both the offensive and defensive lines.

"Our kids were outweighed 30 to 40 pounds a man, and we just slugged it out from 20 to 20," Bailey said. "Our conditioning really paid off for us. I think perhaps Detroit just wore out. It was 94 degrees at gametime."

One Jet mistake in the extra quarter proved fatal. After a bad snap, the Cardinals tackled the Detroit punter on his own 7-yard line.

On the next play, Bath running back Jim Heldemeyer faked a sweep around right end. When the linebacker and cornerback both played the run, Heldemeyer lobbed a pass to Oberlin for a touchdown.

"We practiced it two or three times during the week under conditions just like it," Bailey said. "We were hoping they would come up on him and they did. It's a play that we just put in. As a matter of fact, (Heldemeyer) had never run the play before."

Cardinal chirps: The Cardinals managed to gain only 140 yards, but they also held the Jets to 127 yards total offense. Chuck Beckman's punting (eight times for a 37-yard average) was a big factor. "We just told him we're not so concerned about the long kick, we just want you to get the punt off," Bailey said.

The Cardinal passing game was quiet for the second consecutive week. Beckman completed four of seven for 36 yards.

Sports briefs

Miller wins Sports Stock feature

Elsie's Larry Miller outdueled another Elsie racer, John Forsythe, to win the 25-lap feature for Sports Stocks at Owosso Speedway Sunday.

Forsythe earlier won the fast-car dash at the 1/4-mile, asphalt oval.

In the 25-lap feature for Late Models, Ovid's Al Taft was leading on the seventh lap before being sidelined with a blown engine. Ovid's Dave Mulder won the first heat.

Former track owner Ed Jones, who died in 1975, was inducted into the Michigan Racing Hall of Fame. His daughter, Judy Morris, came up from San Antonio to accept the award.

Deak, Rajala named to all-state

Catcher Tom Deak and outfielder Ken Rajala of state Class C champion DeWitt were named to the first-team all-state Class C baseball team. Steve Sontich, DeWitt's top pitcher with a 10-1 record, was named to the second team.

First team honors to 3 Redwings

Three players from St. Johns headline the Mid-Michigan 'B' League all-star softball team.

Making the first team were senior infielder Sue Pearsall, junior pitcher Janine Scott and sophomore outfielder Amy Hartsuff. Ovid-Elsie was represented on the first team by sophomore infielder Mary Perrien.

Seniors Sara Tetens of St. Johns and Vicki Foreback of Ovid-Elsie were named to the second team.

Bath selects basketball coaches

Richard Wilt and Tom Campbell will be the new boys and girls head varsity basketball coaches at Bath, according to principal Reginald Dickson.

Wilt will replace Gary McCauley as boys coach and Campbell will take over the girls from Patty Terres. McCauley's contract was not renewed and Terres resigned, Dickson said.

Another new coach was added when Roger Courser was picked as junior varsity girls coach. Wilt, Campbell and Courser are teachers in Bath.

Goerge gets LCC MVP award

Fowler graduate Jane Goerge earned the Lansing Community College softball team's Most Valuable Player award for the 1983 season.

Goerge only batted .219, but her play at third base was outstanding, according to coach Barb Froh. She finished with a .905 fielding average and the most assists on the team — 89.

Goerge, who also led the team in walks (12) and stolen bases (9), was named to the all-state and all-region team in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association.

10 Tips for a Successful Garage Sale:

1. Advertise your garage sale in the Green Sheet Classified. Call by Monday noon.
2. Be sure to have plenty of small change on hand for customers paying with large bills.
3. Be sure all merchandise is clean and neat. An old dusty item will not sell as well as it would if you have cleaned it.
4. Have an extension cord available so appliances can be tested. Play radios, old TV sets. Appliances sell faster when working.
5. Don't forget the children. They love small inexpensive items.
6. Presentation is very important in any sale. Display your merchandise in an interesting manner.
7. Offer free coffee, iced tea or other beverage. Your hospitality may make them more inclined to buy.
8. Sort clothing and mark with size tickets.
9. Have paper bags, boxes, and newspapers handy for packing items when they are sold.
10. Get 2 Free garage sale signs when you place your ad in the Green Sheet Classified.

STRAWBERRIES ARE RIPE and will be featured at the St. Johns Farmers Market this Saturday. Other crops are slow coming in, due to the wet spring. The market will be held from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. one block west of Clinton Ave., and two blocks north of M-21, at the corner of Higham and Brush, Saturdays only, from June 25 to October. Space rates are $4 daily, $25 seasonal ($20 for second space). Fees will be used for advertising. For more information, call the St. Johns Area Chamber of Commerce.

LEARN TO SWIM at St. Johns Municipal Pool. The second session of classes is being held through July 8, including classes for Tiny Tots, Tadpoles, St. Johns Swim Lessons and Junior and Advanced Lifesaving. The classes are held from 10:15 to 2:15 Monday through Friday, and private and semi-private lessons are available on a weekly basis. For more information, call 224-6950.

A DEWITT OX ROAST FUNDRAISER to benefit the DeWitt Memorial Building will be held Aug. 20. Tickets for the raffle of $50 to $1,000 will be distributed to local residents by high school students during the first two weeks in July. The tickets will also be picked up. Organizers are requesting each household to try and sell 15 $1 tickets. For more information, call Terry Gartside, 669-3272.

THE FOURTH ANNUAL FIREFIGHTERS' FIELD DAY, sponsored by DeWitt Township Firefighters Association, will be held Saturday, July 16, from noon to 6 p.m. at DeWitt Township Fire Department, 780 E. Wieland Road, north of Lansing off US-27. Featured will be firefighting and first aid demonstrations, blood pressure screening, a dunk tank, children's games, a beer tent, good food and raffles. The King Arthur's Court Lions Club will offer vision screening and DeWitt Cooperative Preschool will sell popcorn. A flea market will be held by the township's parks and recreation commission, and the Miss Sesquicentennial Pageant finals will be held at the township hall. "Party Down" from Nashville will entertain during a street dance from 7-11 p.m.

Friend of Court reorganized

Law takes effect tomorrow

BY PETER W. BRONSON

Beginning tomorrow, there will be some pretty big changes at the county's friend of the court office. And considering that divorces are at an all-time high, the changes could end up affecting a lot of people in many ways.

Child custody, visitation, child support levels, and public rights all will be affected by the law, which goes into effect July 1.

Sponsored by Rep. Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing, the law is intended to standardize methods of dealing with the most emotional aspect of divorce: children.

The State Court Administrator's office is working on a booklet of rights which will explain the changes to the public. It will soon be available from local friends of the court.

Meanwhile, a legislative aide and two area friends of the court were asked to explain the major changes in the new statute.

MEDIATION: For the first time, all county friend of the court offices will be required to provide neutral, third-party mediation of child custody disputes.

"This is one of the most important aspects of the bill," said Catherine Davis of the Democratic House research staff. "California has mandatory mediation. Here it is not required, but it is hoped mediation will direct couples away from the costly adversary process of court action to resolve their disputes."

Eaton County Friend of the Court Fred Conley pointed out mediation is not binding, and both he and Clinton County Friend of the Court Colleen Steinman said they will provide mediators upon request.

ENFORCEMENT: Tougher and more standardized enforcement of visitation rights and child-support payments is another major area of change, all three agreed.

"The law sets a standard enforcement schedule under which the friends of the court will automatically enforce the law once a certain amount of (support payments are missed)," said Ms. Davis.

"One of the new tools is an order of income withholding," Conley said. To make sure payments are made, friends of the court can now directly withhold income — following a hearing — from parents who fail to pay. On the other hand, the jail term for failure to pay support and other violations of the statute has been reduced from a maximum of one year to 45 days for a first-offense.

Visitation rights are also to be standardized according to a statewide schedule. Although there is room for local discretion in unusual cases, payments and visitation should be much more uniform, Conley said.

"It's my feeling that this is a step in the right direction," he said. "When you have a fellow from Clinton County working at Oldsmobile and another one from Eaton County, they usually do compare (child support and visitation) and sometimes wonder why one pays more and the other pays less."

Regular review of support levels is also required upon demand. "The new statutes mandate that the friend of the court review child support levels upon written request of either party every two years," Mrs. Steinman said. "The friend of the court is required to conduct an investigation and issue a written report and recommendation ... within 60 days."

PUBLIC RIGHTS: Under the new act, the public now has a grievance process to protest office methods or treatment by court employees. Forms for grievances will be available in local friend of the court offices.

Also, the law requires an annual public review of the performance of the friend of the court and report on grievances filed.

ADMINISTRATION: Under previous law, friends of the court were recommended by presiding judges and appointed by the governor. Under the new law, the governor's approval is no longer needed and more responsibility for administration of the office is put in the hands of the local presiding judge.

That's a minor change in most areas, according to Conley. But in Clinton County, where Circuit Judge Timothy Green ordered county commissioners to give Mrs. Steinman a raise, the change could be important.

Board members will still hold the purse strings for general fund allocations — which make up the bulk of the friend of the court budget — but Green has responsibility for hiring and salary. Commissioners could refuse to give Green more money for Mrs. Steinman's salary, as they refused to grant the raise he requested.

COST: Although the introduction of mediation is intended to save the time and expense of court action in the long run, the bill's overall cost to taxpayers is expected to be much higher than the old law at first.

"It's a massive change which calls for a change in all forms, computer software changes, manual changes ... and it may mean re-assigning of responsibilities within the office," Conley said.

Mrs. Steinman offered no estimates of cost increase, but Conley speculated his first-year costs will rise by nearly 20 percent, from $271,000 to over $330,000.

"Certainly the first year is the heaviest because of the cost of reproduction, forms and changes in computer software," he said. "Any guess now is purely an estimate."

COMMISSION ORDER

CFI-104.82A
(Under authority of Act 165, P.A. 1929 and Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended)
STATEWIDE TROUT AND SALMON REGULATIONS

The Natural Resources Commission, at its meeting on December 4, 1981, under the authority of Act 165, P.A. 1929, as amended, and Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended, ordered that for the period beginning April 1, 1982, and ending March 31, 1984, no person shall take, or attempt to take, any species of trout or salmon from any of the waters of this state except by hook and line during the open seasons prescribed, and within the minimum size limits and maximum possession limits indicated below.

Statewide open seasons on all streams and designated trout lakes shall be from the last Saturday in April through September 30 (longer on waters designated by the Director for extended fishing under Act 165) on all trout and salmon. Statewide open seasons on all other inland lakes and the Great Lakes shall be any time for all trout and salmon. Size limits shall be 8 inches on Lower Peninsula streams, 7 inches on Upper Peninsula streams, and 10 inches on lakes. The daily POSSESSION limit for trout and salmon shall be 5 fish singly or in combination but no more than 3 lake trout or splake, except that an additional 5 brook or brown trout may be taken from streams from the last Saturday in April through September 30 only and no more than 2 lake trout or splake may be taken from Lake Michigan or its tributary streams.

This order amends and supersedes Natural Resources Commission Order CFI-104.82 dated December 4, 1981.
