New addition to 'rededicate' DeWitt Memorial Building

DeWITT — The DeWitt Memorial Assn. hopes to break ground before Aug. 28 for a new 50 by 70-foot addition to the existing DeWitt Memorial Building across the street from the high school.

The new addition would add 7,000 square feet and would be a bi-level structure. There would be no connecting doors to the present building, which would be rented to the DeWitt District Library to provide much-needed space.

A COMMON FRONT would be built across the south ends of the buildings, and attractive planters would be added to enhance the appearance of the building.

The Aug. 28 starting date was a target set last Thursday night by the Memorial Assn. board. That's also the date for the annual DeWitt Ox Roast, a fund-raising event put on by the association, and it is hoped the sight of construction on the building will spur community activity in the raising of money for it.

ST. CLAIR PARDEE and C. Douglas Pardee, St. Johns architects, have been commissioned for the planning phase of the work. Blueprints and specifications have been given to a Lansing contractor to give the association an over-all cost estimate. If the cost, in the board's opinion, is too high, the board may act as its own contractors.

"The present board has committed itself to making a start," President Earl Coryell said last week, "believing that there are many people who will get behind us in this endeavor in whatever way they can help. Finances will be the greatest need, and we hope large numbers of people will voluntarily come forward with financial help."

"OUR BOARD has made tentative agreement with the DeWitt District Library Board to lease them the present building when the proposed new one is completed. This will be on a rental basis, which will fully, or nearly so, amortize the building cost of the new building."

The new building will be a bi-level affair, with 3,500 square feet of space on each of the upper and lower floors. The entrance to the new building will be at the same level as the present entrance, and from a foyer inside the door, stair steps will lead up and down.

THE UPPER floor will have a lounge, snack bar and a large dance floor. Downstairs will be a large meeting room for the large number of area organizations that use the present facilities, plus a kitchen and a half-dozen small storage rooms.

The new building will be of solid masonry walls, with windows eliminated to hold in any noise from the dancing or other activities.

THE DeWITT District Library will be a great beneficiary of the new proposal. The small room presently used for the library will be retained by the Memorial Assn. for small group meetings, and the rest of the present building will be turned over to the library.

This will provide about four times as much space as the library has now in its crowded, single room. It will add 2,800 square feet to the library, including the present kitchen space at the front end.

THE DeWITT Library has been operating in very small quarters, considering its circulation. During 1962-63, for instance, the DeWitt District Library had 8,653 volumes on its shelves, an average of 1.1 volumes per capita. Circulation during the same time was 26,198, an average of 3.4 per capita. These figures compared at the same time to St. Johns with 11,082 volumes and 28,851 circulation.

The Ox Roast, set this year for Aug. 28, was born as a means of raising funds for maintaining and finishing payment for the building. See MEMORIAL page 2-A

The DeWitt District Library Board consists of two members from the City of DeWitt and two from DeWitt Township. Mrs. Mamie Archer is president of the board, while Mrs. Fern Wellington is vice president, Mrs. Shirley Keck secretary and Kenneth Weaver treasurer.

THE MEMORIAL Building is located at 206 W. Washington Street, across from the high school. One-half of the site for the building was donated by Mr. and Mrs. William Rodgers for a public library, and they consented to have a memorial building built there as long as it contained a library. The other half of the site was purchased from the Methodist Church.

The DeWitt Memorial Building was erected through the efforts of all the clubs and organizations in the DeWitt area as a memorial to the veterans of all wars from the area. It was a special memorial to Francis Richmond, Lewis Phillips Jr., Russell R. Ribby, Earl Benson, Don D. Ingalls and Vincent Paul Lerg, who gave their lives in World War II, and to Richard Pike, who died in the Korean War.

MR AND MRS Vern Walker opened the building fund campaign by giving $1,000 toward the project. Clubs and organizations followed suit by staging money-making projects for funds. The building was erected in 1947-48 by L. T. Barks, a local contractor.

The Ox Roast, set this year for Aug. 28, was born as a means of raising funds for maintaining and finishing payment for the building. See MEMORIAL page 2-A

Name new Kroger manager

Sam L. Robinson of Grand Rapids has been appointed manager of the Kroger Co. store in St. Johns, replacing Ed Snell, who has been transferred to Grand Rapids and a larger store.

Robinson has been with Kroger since October 1963 when he joined the firm upon completion of military service. He is a native of Edwardsburg, Mich., near Elkhart, Ind., and graduated from Western Michigan University in 1961. He served as an officer in the US Army for two years.

ROBINSON was a grocery buyer in the Kroger division office in Grand Rapids prior to being named manager here. He assumed his duties July 26.

He and his wife, Kay, will be moving into Clinton County this week. Because of a lack of housing here, they have obtained a home in Ovid. Mrs. Robinson, a former home economics teacher, is now serving as one of three 4-H club agents of the Cooperative Extension Service in Kent County. She will come here about Sept. 1 after phasing out her work there.

ROBINSON SAID he was happy to have been assigned to St. Johns and said he hopes to become affiliated with local organizations and clubs.

Indian pow-wow playground event

An Indian pow-wow is this Friday's special event for city playground youngsters, and it will start at 9 a.m. Friday at the city park. Other special events for the summer are a free swim Aug. 20 and a final parade the following week.

Biggest seal coating job completed

The City of St. Johns has completed the biggest street seal coating program in 10 years with approximately $11,000 being spent in the last few weeks to protect pavement in the city.

Forty-three blocks received a single coat of sealing oil, and another 11 blocks plus the city park area received a double seal of oil, pea stone, sand and oil.

THE HICKS CO. of Alma did the work.

City Manager Ken Greer said the $11,000 expenditures compare with $1,300 two years ago. There was no seal coating done last year. Greer said the expenditure was justified because it will help prevent the breaking up of streets for a long time in the future.

Repairs to pavements which have been cut to provide water or sewer service or some other need will be made soon.

STREETS receiving a single seal coat during the current program include the following:

Walker Street, 100 block east and 100 block west; Higham, 100 block east and 100 block west; Lansing from Vauconsant to Lewis; Garfield from Steel to Gibbs, Clinton from Ross to Lewis, North Mead from Steel to Railroad, North Swegles from Steel to stockyards, East Steel from US-27 to east cemetery entrance, East Railroad from Oakland to US-27, East Higham from Mead to Swegles, North Mead from State to Walker.

EAST CASS from Swegles to US-27, South Swegles from Cass to Sturgis, East Baldwin from Oakland to Swegles, East Sturgis from Oakland to Mead, South Wight from Park to Buchanan, South Clinton from Baldwin to Park, West Baldwin from Clinton to Ottawa, South Church from Cass to Baldwin, South Ottawa from McConnell to Park, West Park from Ottawa to Morton, and South Prospect from Cass to McConnell.

Double seal was applied to these streets: North Mead from the 800 block to Oakland, Clinton from Floral to US-27, Lansing from Floral to Walker Road, South Oakland from Elm to Townsend Road, and West Sicksles from Lansing to Morton.

Annual Extension work report featured at Rotary Club meeting

A slide-tape presentation of Clinton County Cooperative Extension activities during the past year was a feature of Tuesday noon's meeting of the St. Johns Rotary Club.

Don Walker, extension agent for 4-H Club and youth activities made the presentation. He was introduced by Alden Livingston, program chairman.

Farm residents invited by the club's rural-urban committee to attend the meeting were Robert Fox, Don Chant, James Becker and Justin Eaton.

28th 4-H Fair opens Monday

More than 3,000 exhibits of the ingenuity, ability and resourcefulness of Clinton County young people will go on display next week as the 28th annual Clinton County 4-H Club Fair opens its biggest show yet.

More than 1,300 4-H Club members around the county will take part in the showing of animals and exhibits. Admission to the fair is free, and events will start this Monday morning with a horse show at 9 a.m.

While the emphasis will be on exhibits, there'll also be entertainment all three days of the fair — Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

There'll be softball games Monday evening between 4-H all-stars, and Tuesday afternoon and evening professional entertainers will hold forth at the city park band shell. Wednesday evening will see a 4-H style revue and variety show.

INDICATIVE OF the increasing size and popularity of the mid-summer event in Clinton County is the growth in the number of exhibits and contests. This year judging will be divided into 63 sections and 282 classes. Last year there were 57 sections and 265 classes.

People of varied interests will find something of their liking at the 4-H Fair. Exhibits range from dairy cattle and general livestock to horses, vegetables, foods and nutrition, clothing, knitting, handicraft, entomology, photography, automotive and dairy and livestock judging.

THE BIGGEST 4-H project this year is, as has been, foods, with more than 500 4-H members enrolled in foods projects. Running a close second is clothing, with 475 members. Other high-enrollment projects in 4-H this year are horticulture with 159 members, flower gardening with 142, dairy with 108 and horse with 95.

"Our kids have a wide variety of projects," 4-H Club Agent Don Walker of the Cooperative Extension Service said, "and they are all ready to show you the best they have and best they can do next week at the fair."

THE HORSE show, inaugurated at the 4-H Fair last summer, proved to be tremendously popular. It will lead off three days of events at the 4-H Fair grounds at the city park. It starts at 9 a.m. Tuesday. At 3 p.m. is the junior livestock judging contest.

From 3 to 5 p.m. there'll be free swimming for all exhibitors at Veterans Memorial Pool at the park. Tickets should be picked up at the 4-H office, Monday evening at 7:30 p.m. will be softball games.

THE ALL-STAR softball games will see four members from each team in the 4-H leagues competing in an east-west fashion. At 7:30, White East (Olive I, Olive II, Country Club Corners, Victor Boys, Victor Girls and Double M) will play White West (Prairie, Yearly Boosters, Stoney Creek, Bengal Community, Greenwood Busy Bodies and Fowler Busy Bees).

Clare Wilson will be manager for the East, with Bernard Jorae and Don Hunt as coaches. The West will be managed by Don Devereaux, with Charles Silm and Harvey Thornton as coaches. Umpires will be Dennis Morrison, George Weber and Dale Haviland.

IN THE SECOND game at 9:30, Green East (Olive, Stoney Creek, Victor and Happy Hustlers) will play Green West (Prairie, French's Corners, Bengal Community and Yearly Boosters). Hewitt VanVelsor is manager for the East, while Brian Waltz and

DON WALKER
... 4-H Club Agent

Bob Fox will be coaches. Jim Hartman is the West's manager, and Floyd Messer and Jim Ernst are coaches. Umpires will be Lyle Halleard, LaVerne Silm and Don Harper.

At 9 a.m. Tuesday, judging begins for all entries except dairy cattle. Flower arrangements will be made at the show between 10 a.m. and noon. Also at 10 is the junior dairy judging contest, and at 10:30 the swine showmanship contest begins. The sheep showmanship contest starts at 11:30.

INDICATIVE OF the busy day it will be, Tuesday's program will continue with judging of beef cattle entries at 1 p.m. and beef showmanship contest at 4 p.m.

Free vaudeville acts will be presented at the bandshell at 2:30

City OKs contract for federal funds for renewal study

A resolution approving the signing of a contract for an urban renewal advance grant of $75,368 was passed by the St. Johns City Commission last Tuesday and the contracts signed by Mayor Jack Smit.

The advance grant, which was announced some weeks ago, will be allocated by the Housing and Home Finance Agency to aid in financing surveys and plans for the St. Johns Downtown Improvement project. It is part of a reservation of $1,400,000 set aside by the government for the project.

THE $75,368 will be used to pay Vilican-Leman and Associates, Inc. of Southfield to conduct a survey of the downtown business district to help in deciding which buildings might be replaced or rehabilitated under the renewal plan.

The survey will include detailed appraisals of all property in the project area (the six downtown blocks on either side of Clinton Avenue), a study of the impact of such a renewal program, the problems of displacing and relocating businesses, etc.

ED HOSTELS of Vilican-Leman estimated earlier this year that such a study would take between seven and nine months to complete. The city commission would then use the material collected in the study as a basis for deciding whether to proceed with the urban renewal program or drop it.

A. Dean Swartzel, regional director of urban renewal for the HFFA, warned that the project capital grant reservation for the $1,400,000 will automatically expire 18 months from the date of his letter July 28 unless a final project report and application for loan and grant are received before that time.

"THE PROJECT capital grant reservation established by the commissioner represents the maximum amount of federal capital grant assistance for which a capital grant contract may ultimately be executed for the project, but is not a commitment that capital grant assistance will actually be provided."

The final decision on making the grant will depend on the city commission's decision and the information contained in the report.

ST. JOHNS CITY Manager Ken Greer told commissioners that, although Vilican-Leman will be assisting the city on the project, "more and more administrative responsibilities will begin to fall upon our personnel. We eventually will reach the stage of where it will take someone full time or at least part time of two persons for this work."

At the present stage of development, Greer is serving officially as the urban renewal coordinator.

Proposed New DeWitt Memorial Building (Dotted Lines on Right Side Show Size of Present Structure)

This is the DeWitt Memorial Building as it looks now. It is located across the street north of the DeWitt High School. Work will start soon on a new addition to the building on its west (left) side.

Memorial

This year's Ox Roast will take on added significance because of the need for donations to help finance the new building.

OVER THE years the DeWitt Memorial Building has housed the DeWitt Public Library and has been a meeting place for the DeWitt Vets' Club, Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, Brownie and Girl Scouts, 4-H Clubs, Tops Club, Royal Neighbors, DeWitt Grange, Rod and Gun Club and many other groups. It is also used for many large banquets and wedding receptions in the area.

The building was re-dedicated July 27, 1960, at which time the Blue Star Mothers presented a bronze plaque with the names of DeWitt's war dead on it. The plaque now hangs over the drinking fountain in the main lobby. The DeWitt Vets' Club also presented a 50-star flag to the building at the re-dedication.

OVER THE YEARS the Vets' Club has made a number of donations to the building, including the flag pole in front, two card tables and the two wardrobe units in the main entranceway. The building also houses the "cancer closet" which gives aid free of charge to all who seek it.

The original building was placed in the hands of a group of incorporators, which included Mrs. Vern Walker, Mrs. Hazel Norris, Mrs. Bertha Lennemann, L. J. Griswold, Leon Blizzard, William Ellwanger, Leo Spade and Mrs. Gerda Rogerson.

THE PRESENT board which operates the building and oversees its activities includes Earl Coryell, president; Ron Mull, vice president; Joe Hennigan, secretary; Armour Knight, treasurer; and Keith Blizzard, D. Farhat, Lee Rummell, Lloyd Ballard, and Ed Tudor.

"Two decades have passed since the present Memorial Building was conceived by grateful DeWitt area people," Coryell observed. "Through the years it has been a source of pride and much work to maintain and keep it in repair. We've done this through many fund-raising projects, the prime one being the annual Ox-Roast.

"DURING THIS period of time, the community has grown with ever-increasing speed until the very small area used by the DeWitt District Library is very over-crowded. During recent years there has been much discussion about adding to the building.

"The present board has committed itself to making a start. We sincerely hope we have the community's support in this project. It will be a source of pride to everyone. Just as 20 years ago when the present building was made a memorial, this will be a rededication."

No word yet on drought aid plea

There was still no word from Washington Tuesday on the status of a request that Clinton County and 21 others in the southern and middle sections of the state be declared drought disaster areas.

William Smith, ASCS office manager, said he had talked with the Lansing office of the ASCS about 10 a.m. Tuesday and no word had been received. Smith said eight new counties had been added to last week's 14 seeking drought assistance.

CLINTON COUNTY got some assistance from the weather man Sunday and Monday, but it seemed to be a case of "too little too late." Showers those two days were widespread over the county, but the amounts of moisture varied considerably — from a scant "trace" to about a half-inch.

"In some instances it would be enough to save a crop, but on many fields it was too late to do any good," the Cooperative Extension Service office said Tuesday afternoon. "The damage has already been done."

ADULTS IN charge at each location include: SMITH HALL — Emily Davis, chairman, and Leonard Koenigsnecht, Anabel Peck, Ethel Flegler, Judy Miller, Callista Reed, Clyde Peck, Floyd Messer, Eleanor Montgomery, Diane Hazle, Cordelia Bashore and Shirley Hazle.

QUONSET, WEST END — E. J. Botton, chairman, and Shirley Mygrants, Mila Spusta, Emily

One of the big beneficiaries of the new Memorial Building will be the DeWitt District Library, which will have available most of the space in the present building. The library board includes Kenneth Weaver (left), Shirley Keck and Mamie Archer, along with Mrs. Fern Wellington, who was absent from the picture. Weaver is treasurer of the board, Mrs. Keck is secretary, Mrs. Archer is president, and Mrs. Wellington vice president.

Acts will include "The Kolozsys," a five-person teeterboard act; "Pork Chop Revue," a trained pig act; "Leslie and Co.," a magic and illusion show; and "The Wheelers," a marimba act.

CONNIE ZIMMERMAN, organist, will play for the two shows and will stay over on Wednesday to provide music for the 4-H show.

Wednesday at 9 a.m. will be the judging of dairy cattle. At 3 p.m. will be the dairy showmanship contest. An exhibit parade by clubs will be held at the handshell at 7:30 p.m., and at 8:30 will be the style revue. The variety show and presentation of awards will start at 8:45 p.m.

THE VARIETY show program will consist of four acts—the top two winners in small group and large group competition at the 4-H Talent Show July 10.

Julia Silvestri will play several numbers on the electronic accordion, and Mary Ann Butler will have a couple of vocal solos for the audience. In large group numbers, the Kitchen Krew Kapers, a kitchen band in the direction of Ardis Sibley, will perform. Participants are Beth Ann Greene, David Johnson, Ed Johnson, Larry Johnson, Linda Johnson, Jim Smith, Barbara Smith, Allen Sibley, Carol Sibley, Diane Sibley, Susan Sibley, Shirley Steinhart, Colleen Wood and Lenore Wood.

ALSO PARTICIPATING will be an act called "Country Cousins Dancing 'Round the World," a group supervised by Mrs. Mildred Stoy. Dancers will include Linda Davis, Kathy Nickel, Kathy Davis, Claudia Ritter, Sharon Stoy, Kathi Haviland, Greg Crowley, Ronnie Whitefield, Bill Stoy, Craig Ritter, Mickey Plaza and Randy Davis.

Most of the activity at the fair will center around the barns and other buildings at the 4-H fairgrounds. The locations of exhibits are as follows:

SMITH HALL — Foods, clothing, food preservation, knitting, handicraft and flower garden.

QUONSET, WEST END — Electrical, conservation, photography, personal improvement, home improvement, child care, passport, art, dog care, TV science, vegetable garden, archery, junior leadership, tractor, safety. QUONSET, EAST END — Sheep, swine.

Asks city consider housing plan

A formal request for consideration of a low-cost housing plan for senior citizens was presented to the St. Johns City Commission last week.

Clarence Hill of St. Johns led a delegation of seven members of the Clinton County Senior Citizens to the commission meeting. Hill said he represented that group and also the Aging Commission.

HILL INTRODUCED a plan whereby he said a housing authority could be appointed and the city could get a direct grant from the federal government for construction of apartments for senior citizens.

He said there would be no cost to taxpayers, that the grant could be paid off in 50 years from rental of the apartment units. He said the plan he was introducing was similar to one at St. Joseph with rental of $30 and up for apartments. Residents would provide their own food, he said, since no central dining facilities were provided for.

HILL SAID such a building might well fit into the city's urban renewal project and that such a building "would be a credit to our town." He asked that the city fathers consider such a program.

2nd open house set at store here

RCA Whirlpool and RCA Victor factory representatives will also be present to demonstrate their appliances. A prize to be given away Saturday afternoon will be an RCA Victor portable television set.

2 cars collide at M-21, Francis

Both drivers escaped unhurt Monday afternoon in a rear-end collision on M-21 at Francis Road in Bengal Township. They were Richard D. Smith, 21, of 433 W. Front Street, Grand Ledge, and Keith D. Marlatt, 43, of Lansing.

Both were going west on M-21. Marlatt said he had his turn signal on and was making a left turn onto Francis. Smith's car skidded on wet pavement and hit Marlatt's auto in the rear. Smith was ticketed by Deputy Sheriff Hilary Hafner for failure to stop in assured clear distance.

Special Fulton election Monday

A special election will be held at the Fulton High School Monday for the purpose of having the former primary districts of Ola, Washington Center, Stoddard and Wermuth, which were annexed into the Fulton School District three years ago, assume their share of the bonded indebtedness.

The four districts were accorded a three-year moratorium on bonded indebtedness at the time of annexation to the Fulton School District.

PERSONS voting on this issue must be 21 years of age, reside in the State of Michigan for six months previous to election and in the Fulton School District for 30 days. They must be registered, resident owner of property assessed for real estate taxes in the Fulton District.

Trailer Club to rally here

Approximately 25 trailers will utilize the St. Johns City Park for three days at the end of August, according to the St. Johns Chamber of Commerce, which worked out arrangements for their visit here.

Betty Jane Minsky, Chamber manager, said "The Restless Ones Trailer Club" of Ionia will hold their rally here, utilizing space adjacent to the city park's recreational area.

"WE HAVE BEEN working out arrangements with City Manager Ken Greer to adequately care for their needs and all problems have been ironed out," she said.

The Chamber will work with the group while here so that they will have an enjoyable time.

"We want them to go home and tell their friends. Word of mouth advertising is one of the best when it comes to tourist promotion. In addition, we plan to take 35mm slides of this group so that we can use them later in attempts to get other trailer clubs to rally here," Mrs Minsky said.

The group will be here from Friday, Aug. 20 through Sunday, Aug. 22 and will be comprised of entire families.

St. Johns man hurt in crash

School board, city confer

The St. Johns City Commission and the St. Johns School Board met Tuesday evening for a review of school participation in the city's recreation program.

The city is proposing to spend about $63,300 on its park and recreation programs during the 1965-66 fiscal year. The school has currently been paying about $5,000 toward the expenses.

THE COMMISSIONERS studied the recreation budget at some length last Tuesday at their regular meeting.

In other business last week, they approved a final plat of the Wilkins replat outlet K and tabled the final plat of Prince Estates No. 2 pending posting of an approved bond with the city attorney.

The commission also approved the issuance of a dance license to Bill Karber for the Ranch Roller Rink on North US-27.

F-M parking lot well used, city notes happily

Federal-Mogul Corp. has been complimented by the City of St. Johns on the role the plant's new parking lot has played in clearing the streets and alleys in the plant area of parked vehicles.

City Manager Ken Greer told the city commission last week that two separate checks of cars in the street, alleys, railroad property, etc., that might be attributed to Federal-Mogul employees showed an average of 140 cars before the lot was completed.

"FEDERAL - MOGUL'S new parking lot—which will hold 210 cars—was then completed and opened, and we made two more separate counts and found no cars that we could attribute to Federal-Mogul employees that were not parked on their own property."

Greer said that in a discussion with Plant Manager Ed Idzkowski, it was agreed that there seemed to be no reason to request traffic control parking signs in the area of the plant at this time.

Class D softball tourney near end

The Class D double elimination softball tournament in St. Johns may stretch into this evening before it's determined who will represent this area in the state tournament.

Four games had been played through Monday. Two more were scheduled Tuesday night and the last two games slated for Wednesday night.

TUESDAY NIGHT Pewamo was to play Burton Corners in the upper bracket and South Riley and Benson's was to clash in the lower bracket. The loser of the upper bracket game was slated to meet the winner of the lower bracket game Wednesday at 7 p.m.

The winner of Tuesday night's upper bracket game and the winner of Wednesday's lower bracket game were scheduled to meet Wednesday night at 9 o'clock. Since it's a double elimination tournament, it might be continued over to Thursday night if the upper bracket team loses Wednesday at 9.

THE TOURNAMENT started last Thursday with two games, including a no-hitter by Bud Pontius of South Riley as he defeated Benson's 8-2. Summers had a three-bagger and Cole got a home run to supply South Riley's power.

In the second game Thursday, Pewamo dumped Co-Op 8-7 but had to push across two runs in the last of the seventh inning to do it. Nurenberg opened the seventh with a single to left, Freund got his second hit of the game and Vance then sacrificed the runners along. A single to right scored both runs.

FREUND ALSO had a home run for Pewamo. Lee Hill led Co-Op with three hits.

Saturday night Benson's dropped Co-Op from the tournament with a 4-1 victory. Co-Op got the lead in the first inning when Jim Pope singled home Jim Leonard. Then it turned into a pitcher's duel until the fifth when Benson's cut loose. Dan Bakita walked, Ivan Sperry doubled and Krum singled, scoring one run. Mohnke then singled, scoring Sperry. An infield out moved the runners along, and Dale Knight drove them home with a single.

IN THE second game of the night, fans saw one of the best games of the season. It was an eight-inning affair which saw South Riley's Pontius and Burton Corner's Darling hooked up in a pitching duel. Darling got 13 strikeouts and allowed five hits, while Pontius struck out 12 and allowed five hits.

Burton Corners scored in the first when Martinez and Borton walked. One run scored on Mulder's double to give them a 1-0 lead. They scored again in the third on a walk and a two-base error.

IT WASN'T until the sixth that North Riley scored. Pontius singled and came home on Summer's home run which cleared the 230-foot mark in left field. That tied the score.

Burton Corners won it in the eighth. Kelley led off with a single and moved to second on a single by Darling. The runners advanced on a passed ball and scored on a single by Martinez.

Roadhouse's Crosby hurls no-hit game

Last Friday night Larry Crosby of the Roadhouse CIE softball team hurred himself a no-hitter in defeating Becker's of the CIE League 12-1. Crosby recorded 10 strikeouts in his night's work while his team-mates backed him up with 14 hits. Ev Martins had a double and triple, while Jerry Herblet, Dick Gehrig and Rolly Kloeckner added triples. The Roadhouse found the fence to their liking.

Beckers of Fowler got their lone run in the second when Schneider struck out and the ball got past the catcher to allow him to reach first. A sacrifice bunt and a sacrifice fly moved him to third and he came home on a wild pitch.

Roadhouse will represent St. Johns in the State Class B district tournament which will be played at the local park starting Aug. 19.

ELSE—Stan Galehouse became "Michigan Shotgun Champion" Sunday at the 11th annual shoot held in Davison at the Williams Gun Sight ranges.

This was a combined shoot with full program of skeet, trap and bird field. Galehouse broke the highest score with 74 out of 75.

There were 150 contestants for the two-day match that began Saturday. There were entrants from Ohio and all parts of Michigan. Galehouse has his trophy on display at Gales' Wrecker Service in Elsie.

While the large crowd cheers them on, three junior girls division swimmers splash toward the finish line in one of the races last Thursday at the swim meet. The crowd, estimated at about 800 throughout the evening, lined the pool fence in addition to watching from the bleachers. Girl at left is Anne Davis, the others could not be identified.

JOSEPH THERING

Name new grid coach at Ovid

Joseph Thering, a former teacher and coach at Elsie until 1962, has been hired as head football coach at Ovid High School. The announcement was made last week by the Ovid-Elsie school board.

Thering will replace Larry Essenmacher, who resigned at the end of the past school year to take a coaching job at Caro.

THERING HAS been head football coach at the North Branch Consolidated Schools in the Lapeer area since September 1962. His teams there won 21 games and lost 13. He started his teaching career in the fall of 1958 at the Cherry Knowell School near Traverse City, where he was a junior high teacher and coach. He later held a similar position in the Elsie school system before moving to North Branch.

Thering and his wife and son Michael will move to Ovid in late August following the close of summer school at Central Michigan University, where the coach is completing his work for a master's degree.

THE NEW coach was born on a farm in Isabella County, the oldest of nine children. His father has been employed by the Leonard Refineries for 14 years and also farms. His mother is a teacher in the Nottawa Township school system at Beal City and has been teaching there for 10 years.

Thering is interested in all sports and particularly in football, basketball and track. He participated in softball and bowling team activity in the city league at Mount Pleasant and was a varsity letter winner in football and track while attending CMU.

COACH THERING will be assisted in the football duties by Jerry Merideth, Howard Malitz and Robert Pope, another newcomer to Ovid.

Nice, on the French Riviera, has 250,000 inhabitants.

Lundy, Muckle shine as 21 swim records fall

The swimming feats of Robert Lundy and Jean Muckle highlighted the annual Clinton County Swim Meet at St. Johns last week.

Lundy took first place in every event he entered, and the only event he didn't enter was diving. Jean took first place in every event but one, and that was in diving.

BOB SWAM in eight events and broke eight records. Jean entered nine events, won eight and broke seven records. Of 28 existing records prior to the meet, 21 were broken in all divisions.

For their sterling performances, Bob and Jean were awarded the outstanding swimmer plaques at the conclusion of the meet. An estimated 800 persons were on hand during the evening to watch the meet, which was held on a hot, almost perfect evening.

BOB NOW holds all, or a share of all, except one of the senior boys division records. Scott Bennett's mark of 109.1 points in the diving contest is a record established for the first time this year.

Bob had help and is sharing records in the medley and free style relays. In the medley relay he joined with Jeff White and Jon Berkhausen to break the old record by more than eight seconds. In the free style relay, a new race this year, Lundy, White, Berkhausen and Steve Gregory established the record.

JEAN WASIN on new records in all events but diving and the 100-foot backstroke in the senior girls division. She finished second to Gail Pautke in the diving event, and Gail established a new record in that event. In the backstroke, Jean won the race, but she didn't manage to break Gail's record set back in 1963.

In the medley relay, Jean swam with Cathy Nuser and Cris Glazier to set a new record, and in the free style relay, the new event, those three and Patti Nuser established the record.

City singles net tourney Saturday

St. Johns' annual city singles tennis tournament will be played Saturday on the courts at the city park, with matches to start at 8:30 a.m.

Today (Thursday) is the deadline for entries.

Matches will be played all day Saturday until a champion is determined. If a large number of entries forces the tournament to run long, it may be necessary to play the final rounds Sunday, Recreation Director Ron Dugas said.

BOYS WILL play in two age groups—16 and over as of Jan. 1, and those under 16. Girls will be paired in an open division. Each player in the tournament must furnish two new balls for the competition, with the winner getting the new ones after the game and the loser the used ones.

Dick Cornwell, the recreation department's tennis instructor this summer, and Bill Swears, high school tennis coach, will be in charge of the meet.

The doubles tennis tournament will be played a week from Saturday.

Local bowlers 4th at Flint

A local team proved to be a winner in the Yankee Stores-sponsored bowling tournament at the Town and Country Lanes in Flint. Team members were notified this week they had come in in fourth place in competition between 300 teams.

The Cookies Cuties of St. Johns rolled a 2832 series when they bowled last May 21. The team consists of Margaret Cook, Bea Rodriguez, Carol Cook, Janet Krul and Bea Isbell.

Hole-in-one for Ryon Thursday at Lansing golf club

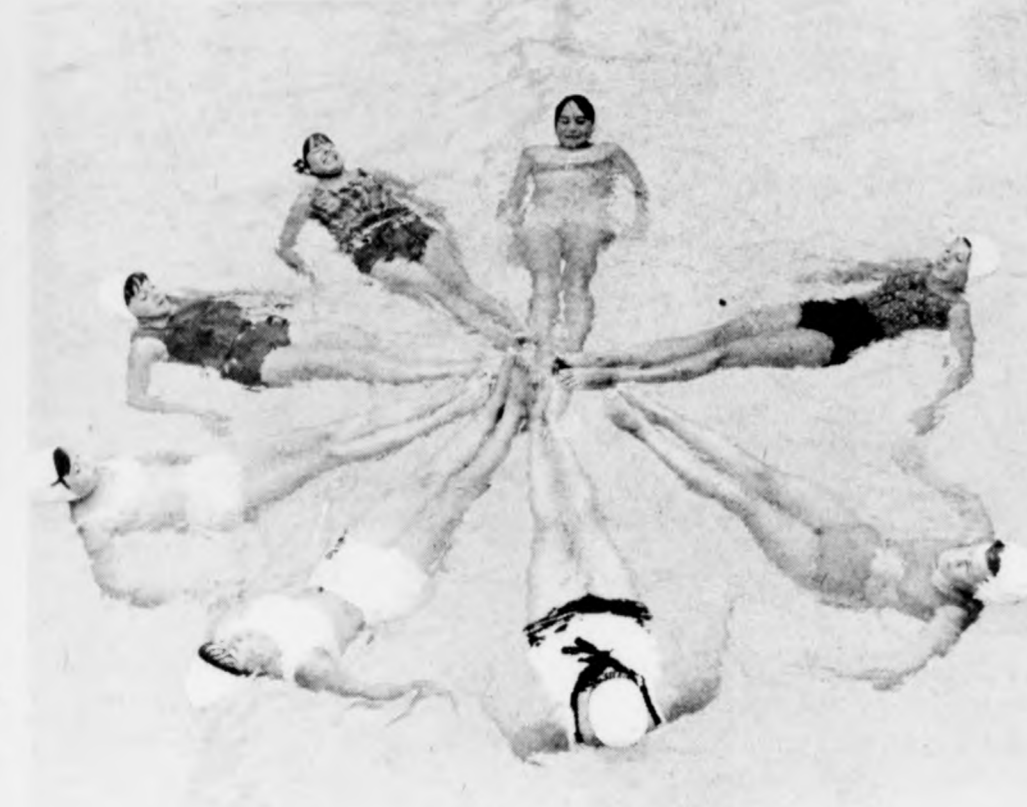

E. C. Ryon, former St. Johns insurance man who now lives near Eagle, scored a hole-in-one at the Lansing Country Club golf course last Thursday afternoon.

Playing with his wife, Ryon sunk his tee shot on the 165-yard No. 4 hole. He was using a 4-iron.

It was Ryon's first hole-in-one. "It excited me so much that I three-putted the next three greens," Ryon reports. He had a 41 for the 9-hole round.

Water show tonight at city pool

For the second consecutive Thursday, St. Johns youngsters will demonstrate to the public some of their aquatic abilities. The St. Johns Recreation Department will sponsor the first of what it hopes will be an annual water show at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the city park pool.

More than 150 youngsters will take part. Included will be five acts by playground children on a small stage built out into the water; three synchronized diving teams; four synchronized swimming teams; diving clowns; a water safety show; and music by a playground band.

The pool and playground staffs have been working many weeks to put the show together. They're hoping for good swimming weather and a good crowd tonight.

Playground team to compete in state tourney

St. Johns will send a team into action Monday afternoon in the state summer playground baseball district tournament at Battle Creek.

Recreation Director Ronald Dugas will take 18 boys to the game. St. Johns will play in the Class E bracket, with all players aged 15 and under. The team will be sponsored by Bee's Chevrolet and Oldsmobile, Inc.

THE SINGLE elimination tournament at Battle Creek will be played by only three teams. Battle Creek will play Holland at 10 a.m. Monday, and the winner will meet St. Johns at 2 p.m. at Bally Park Diamond No. 6 in Battle Creek.

The winner there—the district champs—will advance to the regionals at Jackson, Dugas said. The Jackson Recreation Department is sponsoring the state tournament.

NFO schedules pair of weekend meetings

The Clinton County chapter of the National Farmers Organization has two meetings scheduled this weekend. The August meeting of the group will be held Saturday at the school house at the corner of Shepardsville and Colony roads. On Sunday the NFO picnic will be held at the St. Johns City Park.

Cow breeding efficiency not inherited

A Michigan State University scientist has found that it's not practical to select dairy cows on the basis of breeding efficiency.

MSU dairyman Dennis Armstrong found little evidence of heritability affecting breeding efficiency in a study of the calving records of 2,090 Guernsey and 1,918 Holstein cows in the same southern California dairy herd. All animals received the same dairy management care.

ARMSTRONG reported his results during the annual meeting of the American Dairy Science Assn. held recently at the University of Kentucky.

The MSU dairy scientist noted no significant breeding efficiency differences between Guernsey and Holstein breeds of dairy cattle. He said that the small changes in southern California summer and winter temperatures had little or no effect on breeding efficiency, although year to year changes and management practices had some influence.

4-H'ers, Leaders Confer on a Conservation Project

Mr and Mrs Vernon Kowalk, who live on East French Road just east of Scott Road, have three youngsters in 4-H work this year. Here they talk over a conservation leaf collecting project with French's Corners 4-H Club Leader Mrs Roy Davis and Don Walker, county Extension agent for 4-H Club work. Steve, 14, and Sharon Kowalk, 13, have conservation projects in the club, and sister Sheila, 12, next to Walker, has cooking and personal appearance projects. Steve also lists horses as a project. Mrs Cynthia Jones is their conservation project leader, and Sheila's project leader is Mrs Adeline Feldpausch. All three Kowalk youngsters have been in 4-H for three years.

DRESS TIPS

Now comes the season when most men get a good suntan—and they'll look their best if they wear light-colored clothes. A light or white jacket, white swim trunks, etc., are highly-flattering. . . . If collar points curl, give them a good stretch. Do the same with the tie that doesn't hang straight, to smooth out the bias lining.

It's a great life being 4-H leader

Being a 4-H leader is a time-consuming job, but it's rewarding, too. All leaders in Clinton County will say that, and so does Mrs Roy Davis, administrative leader of the French's Corners 4-H Club.

There aren't any "typical" 4-H leaders, but Mrs Davis represents them about as well as anybody. Her activities, interests and abilities are similar to those of leaders all over the county.

MRS DAVIS, like the others, has a good knowledge of the strengths and weaknesses, habits and likes and dislikes, of the 30 members in the French's Corners 4-H Club. She uses that knowledge to help guide her charges into the educational projects that will be most beneficial to the youngsters.

She's been a 4-H leader 10 years, and she'll be eligible for a 10-year service pin this year. She started in 4-H work at the same time her oldest daughter, Holly, did in 1955.

AS ALL LEADERS know, you can't do it alone, and Mrs Davis has the assistance of at least four other people in helping with the projects of the club. Cynthia Jones lends special help to 4-H'ers of the club enrolled in flower gardening and conservation. Jim Hartman is the gardening and gun safety project leader, Adeline Feldpausch helps with the personal improvement and foods projects, and Mary Alice Smiley is the horse project leader.

In addition to her administrative duties, Mrs Davis is clothing project leader during the winter months. She's also a member of the Clinton County 4-H Council.

OUTSIDE of 4-H, she is active in church and community activities. She and her husband and three daughters live in a modern brick home on the west side of US-27 three-quarters mile north of French's Corners.

Your interest assures success of 4-H Fair

The enthusiasm of youth and the scores of new faces among the exhibitors are among the most important of the reasons for the continued success of Clinton county's 4-H Club Fair which opens next Monday at the city park here.

There is continuity in dedicated leadership, of course, but interest in the annual show is maintained because of the enthusiasm of new exhibitors and their ambition to do as well eventually as their older brothers, sisters and neighbors.

That's why, in its 28th year, the Clinton fair is truly "bigger and better than ever."

DON'T GO OUT to the fairgrounds next week looking for carnival hoopla and commercial displays. You won't find them.

The Clinton exposition has never lost sight of the true purpose of a fair. It continues to be the show window of the work that 4-H youngsters have done during the past year. As such, it has no equal in any Michigan county and Clinton people can be proud that they have given it unqualified support over the years.

Take time to attend the fair and tour the exhibits next week. Your interest is the encouragement our young people need to help carry on the good work they are doing.

New Jersey tries sound movies of drunk drivers

An experiment is being conducted in New Jersey that has great possibilities.

In one county there, signs are being erected that say, "Drunk drivers will be filmed." The signs mean just that: Every drunken driver who is brought into a police station or sheriff's office in the particular area will become the star of his own movie, as he or she is questioned there.

FAR TOO OFTEN these days, drunken drivers are able to escape punishment. High priced legal talent, specializing in finding flaws in the legal proceedings, has been able to create numerous dismissals of charges. Other silver-tongued orators are able to persuade juries to bring in "not guilty" verdicts.

What chance would such legal talent have against sound movies, showing their clients staggering around as they tried to walk a straight line, slapping on the back or cursing the officer?

The posting of the warning signs takes care of the legal angles concerning the violation of any personal rights, the New Jersey officials believe. We hope they're right, and we hope the idea gets a fair trial.

SUPER HIGHWAY FAULTS

(From Greenville Daily News, Greenville)

More than once we have commented on our pleasure with the manner in which Michigan's superhighways have been constructed. Particularly in Northern Michigan, the layouts give travelers a chance to view our state's lovely scenery.

But from experience in traveling elsewhere, we have learned that this picture isn't the same. It is possible to drive in some states and not see a thing because of the arrangement of superhighways.

THOSE WHO enjoy this type of touring will fill their gas tanks and be happy on their way. For the rest, however, the dullness of superhighway travel can be irritating.

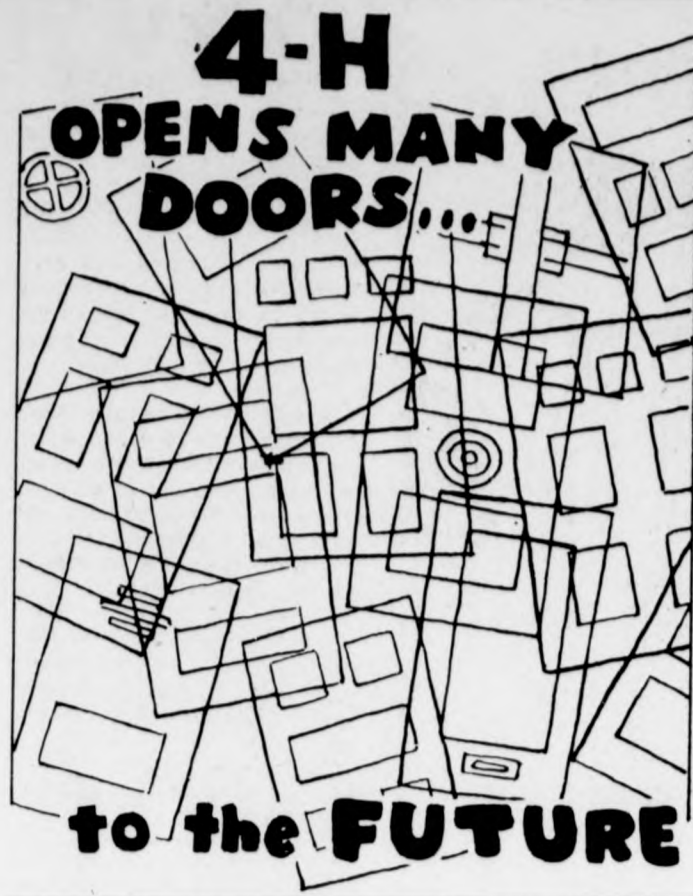

That it is efficient few persons would doubt, but as the family car zooms along at something over the posted speed, one is sometimes tempted to wonder what ever became of America.

The hills have been smoothed out, the trees cut down. There is almost nothing to see. The farm houses characteristic of the area, the small towns leaping in the sun, the "clean looking" service stations formerly sought so eagerly, all have retreated behind limited access fences, with the next exit miles away.

SUPERHIGHWAYS ARE smooth and relaxing and tension-free—and hard to stay awake on. They are effective in speeding traffic around towns, but frustrating when one leaves them at a "Food-Next Exit" sign only to find that the nearby restaurant is either closed or elegant and expensive when what Mom and Dad really wanted was a quick snack at a roadside stand without waking the baby.

Big highways are necessary to handle today's heavy traffic, and they are here to stay. Perhaps their most pleasing virtue, however, is their talent for gathering in most of the traffic so that those who wish can travel the old routes through the small towns and scenic by-ways with a maximum of enjoyment and a minimum of traffic.

Now, that's a trip worth taking.

RAMBLIN' with Rink

BY LOWELL G. RINKER

Having lived all my life in parts of the country that are relatively flat, I have always liked to travel to places where there are hills. And also liking water, I have always enjoyed seeing (even if only on film) waterfalls.

Since my first acquaintance with Tahquamenon Falls over two years ago, I have had almost an obsession to return to the waterfalls part of Michigan and to languish beside the roaring water.

MY RECENT vacation trip to the Upper Peninsula took me into the area of the state which is said to have 150 waterfalls. I saw only five, and I passed by many others because I thought I wouldn't have the time.

At one point on my trip, though, I decided I would TAKE the time. Near Baraga (at the lower end of Keweenaw Bay), said the magazine article on waterfalls, was located Sturgeon Falls. After about 20 minutes in Baraga while eating and pondering whether to take the time, I decided as long as I was here I might as well see Sturgeon Falls.

STOPPING at the state park, I asked directions. Take the gravel road right here at the end of the park, the lady said and just keep right on that road as far as you can go. Then turn left, she said, and you'll see signs.

"Be sure to go as far as you can go before you turn," she emphasized. So I did. I drove and drove until I came to a stop sign. I debated on whether to turn left here, but the road continued straight and so I did, too. After five or six miles it had angled north and come out on M-35, the way I had come in to Baraga.

MAKING A BIG loop, I came back to the road where the stop sign had been and drove south. The further I went the narrower the road seemed to get. But I was heartened by a sign that said "Sturgeon Falls 13 miles." This was hardly "near" Baraga in my book, but I wasn't going to sacrifice 20 miles of driving through the backwoods of Michigan for nothing. I continued on. The road twisted and turned, going up hills and into valleys. Trees came right to the roadside, and there was just room for two cars to pass. Every ninth curve or so there would be a sign that said "Curve."

Finally after what seemed like miles of driving that should have gotten me to the suburbs of Minneapolis-St. Paul, a sign pointed to the right to "Sturgeon Falls, 1 mile." This was a plain sand road, cut through the woods and almost twice the width of the gravel road.

IN A HALF mile, another sign pointed left to "Sturgeon Falls, 1/2 mile." This time it was a two-track road, bumping its way around trees and over tree roots. Then the road ended.

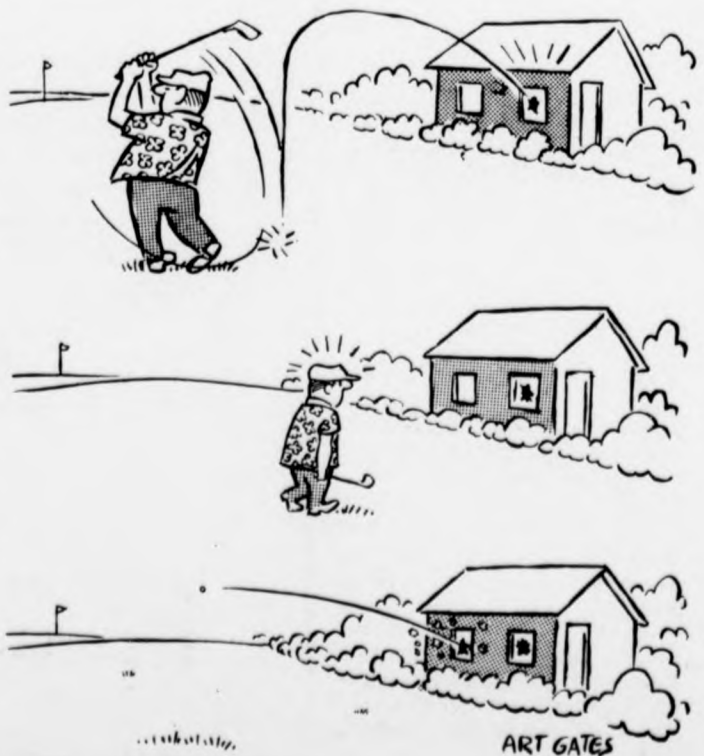

Below was the Sturgeon River, but there were no falls and nothing that sounded like falls. "Take the left trail." The words of the state park woman echoed in my ears, so I set off through the woods with my movie camera.

AFTER ABOUT a quarter-mile of walking, I figured I didn't know just where I was, how far I was from anyplace and I was probably about as far from any place as I could get in Michigan. But I wasn't lost; I still knew which way was up.

Another quarter of a mile brought up Sturgeon Falls, roaring through a narrow point in the gorge and cascading over rocks in a fall of 15 to 20 feet. It reminded me of water pouring out of the flood gates of a dam. It is a beautiful waterfall, even for its location.

FINALLY OUT of film, I retraced my steps to the car, backtracking my route and got back on the narrow gravel road. The shortest way to Marquette was south to Sidnaw. Thirteen miles and several hairpin turns later I was on M-28 and back to civilization.

Dogs play role in police work

ONE OF THE most interesting programs Michigan's State Police provides is a presentation developed by Cpl. Richard H. Abbott, director of their dog program.

Cpl. Abbott has appeared before several area groups in recent months, but I never happened to catch his act until last Tuesday when he told of his work at a meeting of the St. Johns Rotary Club. He spoke on this occasion at the invitation of Jerry Knupp, manager of the local Penney store.

A veteran trooper, Abbott volunteered his services when the State Police began an experiment in the use of dogs for tracking and trailing escaped criminals, lost persons or missing personal property. That was in mid-1960 and the trial period proved so successful that the program has since been greatly expanded.

MICHIGAN WAS no pioneer in the field of dog use in police work, Cpl. Abbott says. There was a feeling for many years that a mobile force, like the State Police, would have no great use for dogs.

But in the five years since the program was started the dogs and their handlers have more than proved their worth in the saving of lives and the tracking down of fugitives and lost persons.

Cpl. Abbott was sent to the St. Louis, Mo., police department school for initial training of himself and his dog, Jocko. "It required eight weeks to train the dog and six weeks to train me," he jokes.

ALL OF THE 15 dogs now in service or in training are male German Shepherds donated to the police by Michigan residents. "When we're about to start a new training program we put an ad in the paper and usually we have a choice from among more than 100 dogs," says Abbott.

The German shepherds appear to be the most adaptable dog for the job. They're powerful and aggressive, yet intelligent and easily trained. "And most people associate them with police work," Abbott adds.

Of interest to Clinton area people is the fact that the training of dogs and handlers is conducted at the Rose Lake conservation experiment station in Bath Township. The variety of terrain there simulates almost any section of Michigan, Cpl. Abbott points out, and also provides an assortment of wild game—even snakes, flies and mosquitoes.

THE DOG handlers are all volunteer personnel from the State Police force. They each make their personal choice of a dog and then participate in a 14-week training hitch. The handler and his dog are seldom separated during that period and become a real working team.

CPL. ABBOTT AND JOCKO

When the training is completed, the dog goes with the State Trooper to his home and becomes a part of the family, like any other pet.

By the end of this summer there will be an approximate 15 dog-handler teams stationed throughout the state. Presently teams are already operating from State Police posts at East Lansing, Jackson, Ionia, Houghton Lake, Marquette, Pontiac, Bay City, Paw Paw, Grand Haven and Cheboygan.

CPL. ABBOTT had his dog, Jocko, with him Tuesday. The dog's approaching seven years of age and must soon be retired from duty, the trooper said. "He's slowing down a little, but so am I," Abbott admitted. Tracking chores involve runs from several hundred yards to as long as 15 miles. The dog's usually on a leash with the handler in tow.

What happens to a retired State Police dog?

"Our policy hasn't been definitely determined as yet," Abbott says, "but I presume we'll first offer him to the handler and his family."

It is my guess that Jocko will become a permanent part of the Abbott household when he's no longer eligible for police service.

Mis-Management

By W. E. DOBSON

There's just all kinds of management,
You hear 'em every day;
The courses that you take to learn
To do things modern way;
I reckon experts know their stuff,
'N how they want things run—
With calendars so full of dates,
There's no time left fer fun.

Efficiency they tell us
Is the key to all you do,
The master key to profits
When the season is all through;
They pack a schedule just so tight,
In spite of all tarnation,
There scarce is time fer rainy days,
'N none fer recreation!

The way I sort of figger things,
From early spring till fall,
The program's all fer hustle
'N no time off at all;
Now any schedule I endorse,
When management I'm wishin'
Takes due 'n timely notice of
Some hours reserved fer fishin'!

We take ourselves too serious,
The way we try to foller,
'N dedicate ourselves to win
More of Almighty dollar;
I'd like to see a little spell
Before I've served my time,
When I could throw the book away—
'N wet a fishing line!

Says it's past time dairymen take stand

ALL DAIRYMEN should realize the serious droughty condition in the dairy states. Farm commentators have been reporting 50 per cent of a hay and corn crop. Many dairymen are feeding on their winter supply of feed, and this is still August.

This surely will result in many dairy cows being sold for beef. As you travel through the dairy areas you will note numerous dairy setups that are being discontinued. According to the USDA our supply of dairy surpluses is growing smaller and smaller.

WE DAIRYMEN have been told in the past that as soon as we get shed of surpluses dairy prices would advance. Well, I ask you, has this happened? We are getting less now than some years ago. Our production costs have continued to rise year after year.

Our product today produced under new sanitary laws and conditions becomes the most wholesome food civilization has ever put to its lips. I think most farmers will agree this is our picture.

continued in most of our commodities most of the time. We have tried numerous easy cooperative solutions, but our problems continue to worsen. Seems everyone likes cheap food and so long as we don't kick it will continue.

I think the farmers of the nation will never get the fair share of the pie until they ask for it and demand it with as much vigor and determination as labor in industry uses.

I THINK farmers should organize all commodities under one head. Should they do this, they could be as effective as any labor union. We produce 100 per cent of the food and have nothing to say about its pricing. Our role at the market place now is little more than the puppets on a string. We produce the most sacred thing on earth, then we lose all our dignity by refusing to take a stand for what is just.

I joined NFO some five or six years ago. Soy Bean price was $1.79 per bushel. Since that time I am sure they have never been below $2.25 a bushel and as high as $3. NFO has had considerable success in the above commodity.

BY ELMER E. WHITE
Michigan Press Ass'n.

Michigan residents waited several years for the legislature to implement its own requirement of photographs on driver's licenses and now some administrators say the law still cannot be fully effective.

An increasing number of local licensing agencies are saying that the funds provided to put colored photos on the documents is not sufficient to cover the cost.

In Jackson and Muskegon counties the police and sheriff's offices have threatened or closed their activities in the driver licensing field in protest to the shortcomings of the law. Since the secretary of state is ultimately responsible for this service, he must fill the gap in these and other locales where similar action is taken.

INDIRECTLY, and whether feasible or not, the secretary of state may get his previous recommendation that driver's licenses be a uniform state-administered function.

He and several others last year recommended this be accomplished as one part of an overall safety program. It was not acted upon by the Legislature.

Secretary of State James M. Hare did not intend, however, for his office to be required by default to establish a whole series of license stations.

SEVERAL OTHER licensing agencies have threatened to push the job back to Hare's office if more funds are not forthcoming to pay for the cost of taking, processing and issuing licenses with the colored photos.

There is good indication any change will be partial unless the legislature relents this fall or next year and enacts legislation to relieve all communities of the licensing service.

In the City of Lansing, Ingham County and a number of other areas the police administrators say they will continue to issue the licenses despite the difference between cost and state reimbursement. They feel this is a public service function which should be continued in their jurisdiction.

"BRING 'EM Back Alive" has earmarks of a most productive traffic safety campaign. In a subject area which is noted for its difficulty in convincing people that they might be killed or injured, it seems to strike home.

Traffic safety experts have long dealt with the problems of people who believe that accidents always happen to the other fellow, but not to them. The Automobile Club of Michigan, which sponsors the program through a committee of civic leaders, admits it is difficult to measure effectiveness of such a campaign, but they point to several facts which indicate it is helping greatly to reduce death and disaster.

ONLY 19 TRAFFIC deaths over Memorial Day and only 21 over the Fourth of July, when traffic was at an all-time peak, compares dramatically with other years. In 1964, for example, 43 were killed on highways over the Fourth.

Observers report that frequent radio announcements are very effective. One driver on I-75 said he saw a half of dozen cars dragging trailers ahead of him get over to the right immediately after a radio suggestion was made that they do so.

Newspapers are carrying stories and ad messages pushing the positive message: Bring 'Em Back Alive. The travel industry likes the angle. It encourages people to use the state's roads and tourist facilities, but to do so carefully . . . not to stay home.

AAA has given out nearly one million bumper stickers, and restaurants, police and trucking companies are cooperating in the campaign.

ON PAPER, state treasurer appears to be the busiest job in the state. The Michigan Manual, a biennial directory of state government, devotes nearly a full page to this post while relating that it lists only the most specific of the treasurer's duties and responsibilities.

Chief of these of course is the general duty to receive, safeguard and distribute all monies, including federal grants, of the state, its departments, boards, institutions and commissions.

Monthly accounting of these primary functions is required to be made to the auditor general and superintendent of public instruction. A similar account is made at least annually to the Legislature and can be demanded at any time as it was weekly during the 1959 and 1960 sessions.

INVESTMENT of surplus funds and special funds which are specified for investment is also entrusted to the treasurer.

What started as a minor part of the treasurer's duties has sizeably increased. The law specifies the treasurer is to act as fiscal and/or paying agent and registrar when designated.

No less than eight expressway bond issue contracts now are in his jurisdiction as fiscal agent. These arrangements require that he keep completely separate records for the receipt, disbursement and accounting of all funds applicable to these transactions.

TWENTY STATE committees, boards or commissions on which he serves actively make the treasurer by far the heaviest loaded of state officers in outside units.

These include several retirement boards and tax appeal units, the Board of State Auditors, Mackinac Bridge Authority, State Office Building Commission and several others.

The "Low Down"
From the Congressional Record

By Joe Crump

Why the UN is not in South Vietnam

Rep. Henry R. Reuss (Wis.) . . . In an article in the current issue of Commonweal magazine, I . . . seek to create a United Nations presence in Vietnam."

(The condensed article follows)

Despite the natural tendency to back the Government's policy in times of foreign difficulty, many Americans are troubled about our role in Vietnam . . .

IN BYPASSING the United Nations, we are not only depriving ourselves of an opportunity to strengthen the moral, political, and military basis of our effort to preserve freedom of choice for the South Vietnamese, we are also exhibiting disrespect for the United Nations and are violating the letter as well as the spirit of its charter, thereby undermining the peace-keeping capacity of the United Nations.

Prior to President Johnson's speech at San Francisco on June 25, spokesmen for the administration consistently deprecated all suggestions that the United Nations should play a major peace-restoring role in southeast Asia. They advanced three major arguments against a United Nations presence.

FIRST, IT was said that the UN could not play a useful role unless North Vietnam and Communist China agreed . . . But the point is that their agreement is unnecessary . . .

The United Nations did not seek the agreement of the North Korean aggressors before it acted in 1950. The existence or lack of North Vietnamese and Chinese acceptance of a UN role affects the manner in which the UN can operate, but it surely does not prevent it from operating . . .

A SECOND argument against bringing the Vietnamese conflict before the United Nations is that to do so might force the Soviet Union into a vigorous defense of North Vietnam and China . . .

The Soviet Union has . . . no desire to become involved in the risk of a mutually disastrous nuclear exchange with the United States over South Vietnam . . .

A third argument is that if the Vietnam issue were brought before the UN, US policy would come in for sweeping and damaging criticism. Too many nations, it is said, regard the Vietnam conflict not as aggression but as a conflict among two segments of the Vietnamese people.

THE EXISTENCE of such sentiments among the countries of the free world is, in fact, an argument for taking the Vietnam conflict before the United Nations. The United States should not and need not fear debate or the exposure of the facts . . .

Happily, President Johnson appears to have rejected the keep-the-UN-out school of thought in his speech, commemorating the 20th anniversary of the United Nations on June 25 at San Francisco . . .

The real barrier to United Nations action in southeast Asia at this time is the financial question which has turned the General Assembly into a mere debating society, incapable of action and one step ahead of bankruptcy . . .

THE UNITED STATES should take the initiative in revitalizing the United Nations, based on the reality that as of today the major sovereign States simply will not be compelled to pay for peace-keeping operations which they consider harmful to their best interests . . .

With the United Nations revived, the way will be open for the Vietnam conflict to be brought before it. President Johnson has already declared our willingness to support any UN action. There remains the question of who will initiate the consideration of such action . . .

A grassroots comment

To state that the average American is uneasy about our becoming involved in a land war in Asia, is putting it mildly. Our support of UN action in Vietnam would seem to be in order.

Our new ambassador to the UN, Arthur J. Goldberg, may be just the man to start the "ball rolling."—J.C.

A new star has risen on the fiction horizon in the South. Jesse Hill Ford with his novel, "The Liberation of Lord Byron Jones," speaks out on the civil rights war as only a southerner can. Born in Alabama in 1928, educated at Vanderbilt University and the University of Florida, Ford decided eight years ago to devote his life to writing. His fiction has appeared in the Atlantic Monthly and Cosmopolitan, and he has produced one television play and a previous novel ("Mountains of Gilead").

The publication of "The Liberation of Lord Byron Jones," and its adoption by the Book-of-the-Month Club as its August choice, Ford appears to have hit his stride. Not since William Faulkner's "Intruder in the Dust" has the voice of the South been heard so strongly on this sinister problem of civil rights. You will not want to miss "The Liberation of Lord Byron Jones."

TWO RECENT non-fiction books on this same subject are in our library. "The Ku Klux Klan" by William Pierce Randel is an explanation of the nature of this controversial organization. A northerner transplanted to Florida State University, Professor Randel maintains that the Klan is not un-American, and brings evidence to try to prove his point.

"The Negro's Civil War" by James M. McPherson, a Princeton University professor, is the first major attempt to show the part played by Negroes in helping to win the war which gave them their freedom. This is a book which will reward both the general reader and the student of history.

Trees have a lesson for Man

HAYDEN PEARSON

You will see them in the woodlands—small saplings of oak, maple and beech with leaves three or four times the normal size of the species. The starting trees are a poignant sight to him who knows the story. The young trees are waging a desperate, losing battle for survival.

Sunlight means life, both to plants and animals. All animals depend on sunlight for the plants that give them food. In plants, the magic of chlorophyll and sun-creates food for growth. In a shaded woodland where streams of golden light filter through the arched branches, starting trees develop oversized leaves in their struggle to capture sufficient light.

GO TO A woodland on a summer day and you will see them. The stems of the little trees are soft and succulent; their large leaves are trying to trap enough sun to nurture growth. Sometimes in an open glade you can read a complete story. Around the edges the small trees are dying; nearer the center are those that are waging ing a losing fight. In the center, where sufficient sun is available, a few young trees are growing normally.

Poignant? Yes. But it is not sad in Nature's complex system. This is the law of life and the great virtues have determined through the ages that sunlight is an essential for growth. Plants must reach for the light to achieve their destiny.

UNCOUNTED millions of nuts and seeds are dropped to Earth's primal humus, but only a fraction are destined for fulfillment. Man also must struggle to reach the light, and if man fought as valiantly as the little trees there would be more men and nations living in the sun.

Widespread 4-H program takes national organization

More than 2,190,700 boys and girls belonging to 94,800 4-H Clubs across the United States will observe National 4-H Club Week in about a month. The special week to show off the activities of the youngsters will be Sept. 25 to Oct. 2.

Sharing with them will be parents, leaders and 4-H friends in all 50 states and Puerto Rico.

About 23,000,000 different young people have participated in the "learn by doing" program since 1914, when the Smith-Lever Act authorized Extension, and federal legislation first helped finance and conduct 4-H club work. Figures show 4-H now extends far beyond rural areas—with 46 per cent of members coming from farm homes, 32 per cent from rural non-farm homes, and 22 per cent from urban homes. All races and creeds, and families of all economic backgrounds, are represented.

PURPOSE OF National 4-H Club Week in 1965 will include:

—To influence more young people to join or form 4-H Clubs.

—To acquaint more parents with 4-H and seek their cooperation.

—To encourage a larger number of capable men and women to become volunteer 4-H leaders.

—To increase public understanding of 4-H aims and methods, and expand support for activities throughout the year.

—TO RECOGNIZE the important part played by friends of 4-H locally and nationally, and express appreciation to them.

Local plans include occasions where club members, 4-H alumni, and volunteer leaders will be guests and speakers. Civic and service clubs, farm organizations, schools, churches, and other groups will arrange for talks by 4-H'ers and former 4-H'ers, and programs shared by parents, leaders, extension agents, and others who help with club work.

Newspapers, and radio and television stations, will carry 4-H news and features. Exhibits illustrating typical activities will be prepared and displayed in store windows and other prominent places.

TEN objectives guide 4-H'ers in their head-heart-hands-health program. They are to:

1. Gain new knowledge, skills, and attitudes through real-life experiences.
2. Realize the satisfactions and dignity of work.
3. Develop leadership talents and abilities.
4. Recognize the value of research and learn decision-making processes.
5. UNDERSTAND how agriculture and home economics contribute to the economy and human welfare.
6. Explore career opportunities and continue needed education.
7. Practice healthful living and constructive use of leisure time.
8. Appreciate nature and apply conservation principles.
9. Strengthen personal standards and citizenship ideals.
10. CULTIVATE desire and ability to cooperate with others.

Popular 4-H projects that are meeting youth needs today in town and country include plant and animal science, health and nutrition, clothing, personality improvement, career exploration, home beautification, horsemanship, automotive care and safety, electrification, entomology, conservation, money management, leadership and citizenship development. Number of projects 4-H'ers may choose from range from 25 in some states to about 95 in others.

4-H IS A PART of the national educational system of Cooperative Extension work in which the US Department of Agriculture, state land-grant colleges, and counties share. The Federal Extension Service gives national leadership and state Extension services give state leadership to the program. About 367,000 men and women are trained to serve as unpaid volunteer local leaders and are aided by about 138,600 older club boys and girls called junior leaders.

Two non-government organizations working together with Extension Service for 4-H are the National 4-H Service Committee, 59 East Van Buren Street, Chicago, Ill. 60605; and the National 4-H Club Foundation, 7100 Connecticut Avenue, Washington, D. C. 20015.

THE NATIONAL 4-H Service Committee offers a broad program for 4-H members, volunteer leaders and professional Extension workers. For 45 years, it has enlisted the aid of business donors and other individuals and groups to provide educational service—for example, recognition and incentive awards—which it coordinates in line with Extension policies and needs.

It also publishes National 4-H News for adult and junior leaders, operates a national 4-H supply service, carries on an all-year 4-H information program, and holds each year's National 4-H Club Congress.

THE NATIONAL 4-H Club Foundation, which is also privately supported, assists through a variety of "Service to Youth" programs. It conducts "IFYE," the International Farm Youth Exchange, 4-H Peace Corps projects in Brazil, Uruguay, and Sarawak; special rural youth leader training and other 4-H international programs and services.

It runs the National 4-H Center as a "working memorial to 4-H," on the edge of the nation's capital. Several thousand persons study at this center each year in 4-H Leader Forums and 4-H Citizenship Short Courses. In addition, the foundation sponsors the National Workshop in Human Development and Human Relations at Colorado State University each summer for professional Extension personnel.

4-H VALUES its many friends in civic groups, business, foundations, education, and other fields. Their public-spirited support benefits every state and county in the United States and helps expand 4-H around the world.

Their resources supplement public funds for 4-H, and finance teaching and technical aid, leader training, youth educational materials, awards to stimulate interest and achievement, and public information services.

The 4-H Club plan now reaches around the world, the idea having been adapted to suit varying needs and conditions in more than 75 countries. One way people elsewhere become acquainted with 4-H is through "IFYE," now 17 years old. In 1964, more than 200 young men and women were "IFYE's," 102 outbound US delegates representing 38 States, and 102 inbound exchangees representing 39 countries.

Research seeking top forests

Better forests for Michigan's $300 million timber industry and an "ideal" Christmas tree are the goals of research projects now under way in Michigan State University's Department of Forestry.

The scientists say it will be easy to breed for these trees, "once we have a better understanding of their growth habits and their genes." With this information, scientists expect to know how to use the greener, faster growing, straighter varieties which can be developed within the next 10 years.

MSU IS already working on the largest Scotch pine research project in the world—about 200,000 different seedlings and many different varieties growing in 40 locations throughout the United States and Canada.

A controlled environment chamber has been installed in the forestry department to help scientists learn more basic information about the physiological make-up and behavior of these trees. The chamber is also being used to uncover data about the relationship between genetics and physiology.

It is hoped that this basic research will help find a pathway from the gene to the tree we see in the forest.

JUST recently MSU Forester Jonathan W. Wright found a variety that is resistant to the European pine sawfly, a pest which virtually destroys pine needles on red, Scotch, mugho, Swiss, mountain and jack pines. But this resistant variety has a tendency to turn yellow.

The next step will be to cross the resistant variety with those of good color to get "ideal" trees that are resistant to the insect.

THIS AND OTHER projects will take time. But they must and will be accomplished in order to help the timber industry undergo a sort of "revival" and to help Michigan regain prominence in timber production.

New technologies cause shifts in ag production

New methods of producing agricultural products are becoming the rule, rather than the exception. This often means drastic shifts in production and marketing centers.

Agricultural Experiment Station researchers at Michigan State University are currently trying to find out how these new technologies will affect Michigan's agriculture.

A CASE IN point is the dehydration of onions. California now dehydrates more onions than the total of all onions produced in Michigan, the third largest onion growing state. The Michigan onion industry, say the MSU scientists, will have to incorporate these new technologies in order to remain competitive and in order to keep its share of the onion market.

The processing of potatoes is another example. MSU researchers report that the per capita consumption of potatoes has increased substantially in the last decade, thanks to the advent of more processed forms of this vegetable.

STUDIES SHOW that the 25 per cent of the potato crop now processed has a greater resale sales value than the 75 per cent of the crop which is unprocessed.

Continued evaluation of the impact of new technologies is planned to help growers and processors increase their share of the total US consumer market by meeting changing demands.

Kitten, too, Likes a Flower Garden

Flower gardening is a favorite 4-H project for Lisa Davis, 14, daughter of Mr and Mrs Roy Davis of 5605 N. US-27. Here she holds her kitten, Goldfinger, while showing the photographer the bachelor button flowers in her small flower garden. Gardening is her project in the French's Corners 4-H Club, of which her mother is the club administrative leader.

Expect hog production up only slightly by 1980

Michigan farmers will increase hog production only slightly by 1980. But the way they go about it will change drastically.

A team of Michigan State University scientists estimate that the state's farmers will market approximately 1,272,000 hogs in 1980. That will be an 11 per cent increase over 1963. This number will represent only about 1.2 per cent of the national total.

BUT HOGS will be raised on fewer farms, and the number per farm will increase. Many hog farmers will become more specialized. Some will raise feeder pigs for sale, other will feed out hogs for market. However, the majority will remain on a complete production program of farrowing and finishing.

More hogs will be raised in complete confinement. Fewer will be fattened on pasture.

ARTIFICIAL AND controlled breeding will become a common practice in 1980. Large numbers of hogs will be brought into heat and ready for breeding at a single time to make artificial insemination more practical. Frozen boar semen will be readily available, and many farmers will be trained in the technique of doing their own inseminating.

These projections are part of "Project '80", a futuristic look at Michigan's rural potential by 1980. This study was carried out by a Committee of MSU specialists in animal husbandry, agricultural economics, and agricultural engineering.

PROJECTIONS ARE based on current and expected trends which could be subject to change with unexpected events such as wars, droughts, new product development, etc.

One of the reasons why Michigan's pork production is not expected to rise a great deal during the next 15 years can be attributed to lower per capita consumption. The average American who ate 65 pounds of pork in 1965 will only be eating about 61 pounds in 1980.

In the meantime, pork exports will double. But this will not represent much more than 2 per cent of total production.

ALSO EXPECTED will be less extreme fluctuation in the price of hogs from month to month. A greater percentage of hogs may be sold on a grade and yield basis and moved direct from the farm to the packing plant.

The Project '80 scientists speculate that disease problems will continue to be the major factor affecting efficiency of hog production in Michigan.

Annual picnic featured dad-son game

A father and son baseball game highlighted an afternoon of fun for the entire family at the annual Farm Bureau picnic July 11. A potluck dinner was served to 170 members at Smith Hall at 1:30 p.m.

Mrs Wilbur Brandt led in the singing of the doxology at the beginning of the meal. Following dinner County President E. J. Bottum spoke briefly about several items of importance including the special delegate meeting Aug. 16 and the date of the county annual meeting, which will be Oct. 12.

GAMES AND contests for the children took place during the remainder of the afternoon under leadership of Roger Derשמ and Allan Anderson. Activities also included a father and son baseball game held at the main diamond.

Winning prizes in the drawings and various contests were: Mrs. Romuald Lonier, Bob Reese Jr., Mrs. Andrew Cobb, Roger Derשמ, Philip Knight, Lawrence Maier, Mrs. Reuben Eirschele, Albert Schaefer, Mrs. Gale Boron, Cathy Erickson and Douglas Thurston.

The committee in charge was directed by Mrs. Dorothy Ward and Mrs. Raymond Mayers, executive officers of Farm Bureau Women.

Eldridge Boys Show Off Their Hereford Calves

Some fine Hereford calves, four months and older, are shown here by Kenneth, 14, and Jeff Eldridge, 10, sons of Mr and Mrs Warren Eldridge of 3101 N. Lowell Road, St. Johns. The two animals on the left belong to Ken, and Jeff cares for the other. The boys are members of the Prairie 4-H Club, led by Mr and Mrs E. J. Bottum, and Floyd Messer is their beef project leader. Ken has been in 4-H activities for four years, and this is Jeff's first year.

4-H scope is wide, members benefit

The 4-H program in Clinton County and other parts of the state and nation is a cooperative effort by the young people who take part in and benefit directly, and the local leaders and national leaders who plan it that way.

It started, of course, with Congress. The Smith-Lever act passed by Congress in 1914 provided for cooperative extension work in agriculture and home economics, and it also included boys and girls club work.

CONGRESSMAN Lever, one of the sponsors of the bill, made clear his intent as to the scope of the act by stating: "My effort to secure the passage of the Smith-Lever Act had the most encouragement from the corn, tomato clubs, and I hope sincerely that a large share of the money will be devoted to an expansion of the work with young folks."

Guiding, supporting and enriching the program of the local 4-H Club is a professional staff of county, state and federal Extension workers. They provide the educational framework for 4-H, conduct training meetings for the volunteer leaders, and provide expanded opportunities for 4-H members to participate in county, state and national events.

PROGRAM offerings are geared to meet the interests and needs of different age groups—from the fourth grade through high school.

The success of a 4-H club is dependent, of course, upon the interest and zeal of its members, the backing and encouragement of the parents, the competence and dedication of its leaders, and the understanding and support of the community.

4-H IS FOR young people on farms, in towns and in suburbs and cities. In one state about 43 per cent of the members live on farms, 34 per cent in rural non-farm areas and 23 per cent in urban areas.

4-H work is a growing and going concern. In the US the 4-H movement has grown from less than half a million members in 1923 to nearly 2 1/3 million in 1963. The spirit of 4-H has been adapted to many differing cultures. More than 70 countries now have youth programs similar to 4-H. Many countries use the same symbol—the green four-leaf clover—to designate their educational youth program. Foreign visitors come to the United States to study 4-H methods. Members of the 4-H Peace Corps extend a helping hand in establishing youth programs in other lands.

4-H SUPPLEMENTS the training youth receive in the home, the church and the school. "... the total educational task involved in inducting youth into responsible adulthood is far too great for any one of our social institutions to undertake effectively," one man pointed out. "Only by the fullest utilization of the potential educational efforts of home, church, school, recreational agencies, youth-serving organizations, the library, the press, motion pictures, radio, television, and other formal and informal activities can this nation meet its educational needs."

4-H is tax supported from federal, state and county funds. A substantial contribution comes from private sources - individuals, business and industry, farm and civic organizations who believe in the worth of the program.

MUCH OF this money is used for educational tours, trips, conferences, scholarships and similar types of recognition and incentives for members. Some of it is used in training programs for volunteer leaders. Partners with Extension for 4-H are two national organizations, the National 4-H Service Committee and the National 4-H Foundation.

4-H contributes significantly to adult education, too. Well over 400,000 men and women in the US serve as volunteer leaders of youth.

THESE LEADERS gain practical knowledge from the professional staff in training sessions, then put the learning to use in teaching young people. Parents also learn from their sons and daughters in the program.

Much 4-H work is centered around the home and the family. 4-H members practice at home what they learn at club meetings. They learn to take additional responsibilities in and around the home. Often whole families are involved in 4-H work.

OVER A PERIOD of years 4-H members may take as many as 20 or more different projects. This gives them some insight into their interests and capabilities in these areas.

Older youth have opportunities to attend career exploration conferences, to tour various businesses and industries, take a look at themselves and discover their own potentials and come in contact with successful people in business, industry and the professions.

4-H IS A LABORATORY for learning and practicing democracy. Club members elect their own officers, help to plan and conduct their own meetings and programs, learn to make group decisions and carry out group activities, develop and use the abilities of each club member, share leadership responsibilities and learn to respect the rights of others.

Project work is the heart of the 4-H program. From a wide variety of offerings, 4-H members choose a project which meets their needs and interests. They may choose to select and prepare food for the family, raise and care for an animal, beautify their homes, raise crops and gardens, make and buy attractive clothing for themselves and others, work with tools and machinery, learn scientific methods through such projects as entomology and weeds, practice health and safety activities.

MEMBERS learn to take leadership responsibilities. 4-H members serve as officers of their club, work on committees, assist with activities at county camps and achievement programs, arrange exhibits at county

4 FFA units win awards

Four Clinton County schools received gold or silver awards for outstanding FFA work during the last year.

Elsie and Ovid each received gold awards based on overall activities of the chapters and gold certificate awards for having students who completed outstanding agricultural programs.

BATH AND Pewamo-Westphalia high schools received silver awards in each category. Fulton High School also had a silver award for the supervised agriculture contest.

The awards were made at the annual vocational agricultural teachers' conference at Michigan State University during the week of July 26-30.

Veterans will be admitted free to the Michigan State Fair until 3 p.m. on Veterans' Day, Saturday, Aug. 28. The fair runs from Aug. 27 through Sept. 6.

That's A Very Tempting Smell, Rachel

Fresh from the oven, Rachel Harlow's huckleberry pie brings out some tasty thoughts and happy sniffing from Barbara Bottum, left, and Rachel's brother, Roy. Rachel is enrolled in a 4-H foods project in the Prairie 4-H Club, and her pies are a frequent and welcome contribution to the family menu. Rachel is 13 years old and is the daughter of Mr and Mrs Ivan Harlow of West Colony Road. Donna Smith is her foods project leader. This is Rachel's fourth summer in 4-H activities.

Link moisture content of feed with bloat

Young, fast-growing alfalfa can be a bloat hazard to cattle, as livestock men have known for a long time. But only recently have scientists been able to relate the moisture content of a plant to its "bloatability."

Roy E. Nichols, University of Wisconsin veterinary scientist, now can show that the enzyme which causes bloat definitely goes higher as alfalfa increases in moisture content. He bases this on tests with a Hereford herd in the summer of 1964.

NICHOLS FED the herd under all the conditions that would make bloat likely. They ate alfalfa only, and it was cut from the leafy parts of young plants. On days when the animals bloated, Nichols found that alfalfa plants were not only higher in moisture but were also much higher in pectin methyl esterase (PME), the enzyme that causes bloat.

On days when no animals bloated, the alfalfa was lower in moisture and much lower in PME.

NICHOLS ALSO digested the fresh alfalfa in rumen fluid in the laboratory to see what the rumen does to this enzyme. Digestion raised the amount of enzyme even higher, showing that alfalfa increases in bloatability in the stomach.

When Nichols adjusted the figures to account for the lower intake of dry forage, he found that alfalfa on bloating days was actually about twice as high in PME as alfalfa fed on days when cattle did not bloat.

HE TESTED the bloatability of the forage even further by freezing the samples and then testing them. Freezing raised the bloat enzyme activity even higher in the samples. Nichols thinks this is because freezing ruptures cell walls of the plant and releases even more PME.

Nichols has worked with alfalfa so closely that he can tell by the way it feels whether it is high in moisture and therefore also high in PME that causes bloating. Alfalfa that tends to cause bloat has the crispness of a head of lettuce that has been chilled in cold water, Nichols explains. A farmer could train himself to recognize this condition, too, he thinks.

NICHOLS has been studying the cause and control of bloat for a decade, and he thinks that bloat can be prevented only by control of the enzyme PME that causes the trouble. A large amount of the enzyme in a legume reacts with pectin in the forage to form pectic acid. This acid joins with other elements to form a sticky substance that traps the gases formed during digestion. As the gas builds up, the animal starts to show the typical swelling of bloat.

Numerous bloat preventatives are on the market—most of them oils or detergents—which stop the frothing of the rumen for an hour or two. But this gives only temporary prevention of bloat, says Nichols. Bloat can be prevented only by delaying the activity of the pectin methyl esterase enzyme. His research is working toward this kind of solution.

ACTUALLY, ANY good farmer can prevent bloat by watching his animals and his feed and pasture closely. If a farmer is on hand when bloating starts, he can relieve the pressure with some of the home remedies or by calling a veterinarian.

When feeding any forage that may be bloatable—such as a young legume—a farmer can spray linseed oil on it. Some researchers have, in fact, recommended spraying oil on bloat-dangerous forage in the field.

TODAY'S BUSY farmer probably has no time to give animals this kind of close observation or to treat feeds or pastures this way. What he wants is 100 per cent fool-proof bloat control. The occasional animal that may go off feed or die from bloating is a costly hazard. Nichols figures that bloat today probably costs $50 million in the nation every year.

He feels that the information he is collecting concerning the PME enzyme will eventually give farmers fool-proof bloat prevention.

Henry A. Wallace was the first U.S. vice-president to be assigned administrative duties by a president. The only official duty of the vice-president, according to the Constitution, is to preside over the Senate.

4-H SCOPE

fairs, serve as junior leaders, and assist younger members.

4-H community service projects contribute to the health, safety or beautification of the community or to the happiness and well being of the needy, the ill, or the elderly; or to the betterment of library, recreation or other facilities, or to the wise use of natural resources.

MANY PEOPLE in other countries have learned first-hand about 4-H and American youth through the International Farm Youth Exchange Program started in 1948. "IFYE" gives young people a chance to learn another way of life by living and working with families in other countries. Thus, it develops world-wide friendships and appreciation for people of other lands.

Exchanges from foreign lands bring a new understanding of their countries as they come to live with American families in this two-way exchange. 4-H members extend hospitality to these and other foreign visitors and students. They also share with young people of other countries through an exchange of letters, pictures, etc.

4-H MEMBERS also participate in constructive recreational activities. The creative use of leisure and purposeful recreational activities are an indispensable part of living in our world today and may be even more important in the world of the future.

Young people need to learn early how to use their free time in a creative, constructive way, leaders point out. Music, singing, games, dancing, arts, crafts and camping are a part of the 4-H recreational program.

WASTE AND depletion constitute serious threats to our country and to the well-being of each person. 4-H members learn to appreciate the importance of soil, water, forests, fish, wildlife and plant life and practice the wise use of the nation's natural resources.

In short, 4-H aims to help young people think clearly, act intelligently and serve willingly—and to live happily. Here's where the four H's come in: Head, heart, hands and health.

Paraguay is the only American nation where an Indian tongue is spoken as universally as the official language. Most of the people speak Guarani, although the official language is Spanish.

Tomorrow's water: time to think ahead

The water problems and the water projects we know today are as nothing compared to what we will see in the near future. When population figures projected for 1980 are converted into food needs and the water requirements for producing that food, it's evident that the water shortage could be enormous.

Most of the decisions on water supply we are living with now were made back in the 1920's when—quite unknown to any of the planners—we were just ending a long plentiful natural water cycle. We started out, therefore, by over-estimating our supply and making firm commitments based on this fallacy. We not only over-estimated our supply, we underestimated our use.

THERE IS evidence to show that in most of our arid states, we are pumping water from our underground reserves faster than it is being replenished. In some areas the overdraft of underground water is showing itself in spectacular ways.

At Chandler Heights, southeast of Phoenix, Ariz., rich citrus groves recently sank into the space left when water was pumped out from under them. This heavily irrigated area has dropped some three feet in the past four years and, to the south where the valley floor meets the rock base of the mountains, great fissures 3 to 20 feet deep were opened up. In other spots the water table has been lowered to such a depth that it is no longer economically feasible to pump for irrigation.

ONE OF the newest of the water schemes is one in which water would cross not only many states, but international boundaries. This gigantic plan, called the North American Water and Power Alliance and usually referred to as NAWAPA, envisages the trapping of some 110 million acre-feet of water per year in Alaska; bringing it down through Canada where it will be stored in a 500-mile-long valley known as the Rocky Mountain Trench; feeding it to the arid plains of Canada; pumping it into the western states desert basins, moving it half-way across the continent to replenish the Great Lakes; blowing it through pumps, siphons and canals to connect with the Colorado River, westward into Texas and south into the northern states of Mexico.

THIS huge project is currently priced at an estimated $80 billion. It is believed that power

new milk price

Michigan Milk Producers Assn. (MMPA) announced Thursday a new price to Southern Michigan dairies of $5.10 per hundredweight for Class I (bottling) milk.

This is an increase of 10 cents per cwt in the income farmers have been receiving from milk since February. It follows an average increase of 6.4 cents per cwt which Southern Michigan dairy farmers will receive under area pricing provisions of a new Federal Milk Marketing Order which took effect Aug. 1.

MMPA, THE state's largest milk marketing organization, with more than 11,000 producer-members, established the $5.10 per cwt price after a breakdown in negotiations with dairies.

"In the absence of an agreement, we feel that the price of $5.10 per hundred pounds of milk, established by MMPA, is essential to Michigan dairymen caught in a cost-price squeeze aggravated this year by severe drought conditions," said MMPA President Glenn Lake.

The new price will provide an average premium of 91 cents per cwt over the milk price for Southern Michigan established by federal order.

State 4-H Show

Armed with blue-ribbon projects from their home counties, 4-H Club members from all over Michigan will vie for top honors at the 50th annual State 4-H Club Show at Michigan State University Aug. 30-Sept. 2.

Over 2,000 youths are expected to attend the event to present demonstrations, compete in judging contests and view such exhibit areas as Handicraft Highway, Safety Street and Home Design Drive.

MSU'S INTRAMURAL-Stadium complex will serve as the central exhibit arena.

This year exhibitors will receive certificates of participation and evaluations, rather than the customary blue, red and white ribbons.

Outstanding members, leaders and parents will receive special recognition for leadership achievements during 1965.

In addition to the regular events, educational field trips have been planned for several groups. Those interested in handicraft, the cultural arts and home design will take a special tour to Detroit. Grand Rapids will be the destination for young horticulturists. Entrants in foods and nutrition classes will visit Lansing food stores.

OTHER interesting items this year include new programs and competition classes in dairy, dog obedience and photography.

A live electrical theater will serve as a training aid for those interested in electrical exhibits.

Members interested in foods and nutrition will take part in special action exhibits that will show and explain what they have learned during the year. In the evening, talented 4-H'ers will entertain in Share-the Fun programs.

WHILE IN East Lansing the youths will be housed in the Brody dormitory complex. The State 4-H Club Show is conducted as part of the youth program of the Cooperative Extension Service of Michigan State University.

Sterilized milk concentrate seen as boost to milk usage

Recent studies of consumer acceptance and price competitiveness of sterilized milk concentrate indicate that this new dairy product has considerable commercial potential in both domestic and international markets.

This is the conclusion of Truman Graf, University of Wisconsin agricultural economist, who has been studying the market potential of milk concentrate in US markets, Caribbean countries, and Africa's developing nations. Sterilized milk concentrate was developed by the University of Wisconsin department of dairy and food industries.

IF THE product does enjoy success, it should not be viewed as a product that will build up one area of the country or segment of the dairy industry at the expense of another, Graf stresses. Rather, it should be looked upon as a product which could potentially increase overall use of milk, benefiting consumers and producers alike.

Sterilized milk concentrate is manufactured by reducing whole milk to one-third of its original volume by removing water. When water is added back, the product is comparable in taste and flavor to fresh fluid milk. It can also be used in cooking, or as coffee cream without reconstituting. The product holds its initial physical stability for six months or longer and its original flavor for four to six weeks without refrigeration. Refrigeration increases its keeping ability about four times.

THE MILK concentrate therefore has a number of important cost and marketing advantages. Since over two-thirds of the water is removed, it is a much cheaper product to transport than whole fluid milk. Its long shelf-life, reduced volume and lower refrigeration requirements also mean that there are important savings at the wholesale and retail levels of distribution, Graf says.

These savings in transportation and distribution are reflected on the grocery shelf. Graf determined the amount of these savings by estimating retail price for the milk concentrate in 54 US cities, and then comparing these prices with the store selling price for fluid milk in the same cities. Retail prices for the concentrate were determined by adding transportation costs to each of the cities, as well as storage, and wholesale-retail mark-ups to the price of the product in Wisconsin.

GRAF'S ANALYSIS indicated that as an average for the 54 cities, retail prices for sterilized milk concentrate would be about 6 cents per quart equivalent below fresh fluid milk prices in stores, and generally would be in a range of 5 to 8 cents per quart equivalent below fresh fluid milk prices.

If concentrate prices had been compared with home delivery prices rather than store prices for fluid milk, a further price advantage would have resulted for the concentrate.

BUT HE emphasizes that this does not mean only one segment of the dairy industry will benefit. The product can potentially increase overall milk sales, benefiting the entire industry.

The price advantage of sterilized milk concentrate in Caribbean countries studied could be less because of import duties imposed on dairy products, Graf says. But even with the addition of import duties, concentrated milk is generally very competitive with fresh milk, recombined milk and canned sterile whole milk.

IN CARIBBEAN countries selling these products, estimated average retail prices for the milk concentrate would be about 2 cents per quart equivalent below recombined fluid milk prices, 5 cents per quart equivalent below fresh fluid milk prices, and 14 cents per quart equivalent below sterilized whole milk prices. The transportation, distribution and marketing savings associated with sterilized milk concentrate also result in the product being competitive in Caribbean countries, Graf says.

Markets in these Caribbean countries, other Latin American countries and Africa represent an important potential outlet for US milk, he says.

BUT EVEN these price advantages would be little cause for excitement unless the product was favorably accepted. Graf's studies show that Caribbean firms generally react favorably to the milk concentrate. A large majority liked the taste and flavor of the product, with over half of them ranking it equal or superior to fluid milk, Graf says.

In Africa, sterilized milk concentrate was distributed through institutions of Catholic Relief and Church World Service in nine countries. Again the reactions of these institutions toward the concentrated milk were very favorable.

GRAF CONCLUDES by saying that the combination of this favorable reaction to the product and its price competitiveness suggest a considerable potential for the product in many areas of this country and the world.

Old Timers' Day at the Michigan State Fair will be Monday, Aug. 30. In former years it has been scheduled on Wednesdays. The fair opens Friday, Aug. 27, and runs through Monday, Sept. 6.

Congratulations to Clinton County 4-H Club Members

Lots to cluck about in poultry future

Michigan poultrymen are expected to produce 29 per cent more eggs by 1980. And they'll do it with only 6 per cent more laying hens.

The reason: impressive improvements in efficiency.

A team of Michigan State University scientists have made these projections as part of Project '80, a futuristic look at Michigan's rural potential by 1980. Members of this team include C. C. Sheppard, poultry science, Carl Hoyt, MSU district extension marketing agent; Myron Kelsey and Henry Larzelere, agricultural economists; and John Wolford, poultry scientist.

THEY POINT out that egg production is expected to increase in Michigan in the next 15 years, reversing the trend of the post-war period. Michigan's share of the total US output has been declining for a number of years, but state poultrymen are expected to maintain their share of the total US egg production in the years ahead.

This would mean that egg production in Michigan in 1980 would be about 1.8 billion, 29 per cent more than in 1959 through '63.

ANNUAL EGG production per hen is likely to increase from 213 eggs in 1959 through '63 to 265 by 1980. The number of layers on farms will increase from 6.5 million to 6.9 million, a 6 per cent increase.

This number of layers and their replacements is expected to consume about 376,000 tons of feed, 5 per cent less than in 1959 through '63.

The scientists say this will be possible since feed required per dozen will drop from 5 1/2 pounds to 4 pounds. Then, too, growers will make impressive advances in breeding and in solving disease problems, particularly coccidiosis and leucosis.

LOWER POULTRY feed costs are expected too. Processors may find a more effective way to convert soybeans into feed without the expensive operation of extracting oil.

The MSU scientists speculate that size of flocks will continue to increase, from the present average of 2,000 laying hens to about 20,000 by 1980.

THIS INCREASE in flock size will reduce housing and equipment costs from the present $4.50 per bird to $2.50 per bird. These costs are expected to drop from $1.85 to $1.60 per bird for pullets.

One man handling 7,500 birds in '59-'63 should be able to care for 20,000 birds in 1980.

Except for the metropolitan counties, say the scientists, about any place in Lower Michigan would be suitable for expansion in the egg business. Recent expansions have taken place in the Grand Traverse area, Alpena, Hillsdale and Huron counties. These have been the results of one or two persons or companies developing and selling a program.

Bean acreage up, same price foreseen

Michigan bean growers have planted 5 per cent more beans this year than they did in 1964, according to the July report issued by the Michigan Crop Reporting Service. Dry weather in the major bean counties has resulted in poor stands in some of the late-planted fields.

The first yield estimate given by the Crop Reporting Service is 13 cwt. per acre. This would result in a total of 8,138,000 cwt. of all beans from Michigan bean growers this year.

LYLE SHERWOOD, president of the new Michigan Bean Growers Marketing Cooperative, stated Navy beans now make up about 88 per cent of the total Michigan bean crop. Sherwood said that if the early crop estimate holds true, there will be about 7.1 million bags of Navy beans harvested this year from 550,880 acres.

This crop of 7.1 million bags, Sherwood said, is about one million bags more than is normally used for the domestic and export markets. This means, said Sherwood, that growers can expect to see the present price of $5.65 per cwt. continue for the 1965 crop, unless they organize to bargain for better prices.

Sherwood further stated that improved soil moisture and normal growing weather could result in even a larger excess over normal domestic and export needs.

THIS CROP outlook, said Sherwood, emphasizes the need for bean growers to be organized under one, strong grower-controlled marketing association if they want to receive a fair and reasonable price for the Navy beans used in the domestic and export market.

Sherwood pointed out that the goal of the new marketing association is 75 per cent of the past five years' average Navy bean production under contract to the association by September of 1965. This means, Sherwood said, that we will need membership agreements covering about 440,000 acres, which with the estimated yield of 13 cwt. average, would be 5.7 million bags of Navy beans. This, Sherwood said, would leave only about 1.4 million non-member or open market beans which would be enough to supply the market for about 70 days, based on average consumption demands.

Can control calf birth size

"Some Holstein bulls can be used to breed Holstein heifers to obtain smaller than average calves at birth," reports a Michigan State University scientist.

Dr. Louis Boyd pointed to a recent study which showed that testing bulls used in artificial insemination programs for birth size of their offsprings may aid in making specific sire recommendations in breeding dairy heifers.

BOYD reports Holstein calves in the study averaged 14 pounds heavier at birth than Angus-sired calves out of Holstein females in the study. Generally, they were also significantly larger in heart girth and head width than Angus-sired calves.

But some Holstein bulls also sired calves that were only slightly larger at birth than Angus-sired calves out of Holstein dams. This means that farmers who want smaller Holstein calves, for first-calf heifers, for example, can select Holstein bulls that can sire smaller offspring.

THE MICHIGAN study showed that 491 Holstein-sired calves averaged 93 pounds at birth. Some 196 Angus-sired calves averaged 79 pounds. All calves were out of Holstein dams and sired artificially by 10 Holstein and 4 Angus bulls.

Boyd adds that two Holstein bulls sired calves significantly heavier at birth than the other eight bulls within the breed. One Angus bull sired calves significantly smaller than the other Angus bulls. These findings plus other research on sex determination may some day make it possible to predict both the size and sex of dairy calves with reasonable accuracy.

Good Garden Means Hard Work

Barbara Brown, 11, has an extensive vegetable garden on her folks' farm on North DeWitt Road. Tomatoes, cucumbers, watermelons, parsnips, carrots, radishes, lettuce and corn are a few of the items she has planted this year, her second year in 4-H Club work. Jim Hartman is her project leader in the French's Corners 4-H Club. She's found the hoe to be one of the best weapons against weeds, and here she shows how it's used. Barbara is the daughter of Mr and Mrs Edwin (Joe) Brown. Besides her vegetables, she'll also display rabbits at the 4-H Fair next week.

Saving lives job of Rural Defense Office

Education is the watchword of the Rural Defense Office at Michigan State University. And, preparedness can be a "life-saver" in time of disaster.

Although the program has no operational responsibilities in the area of civil defense, its presence is felt whenever disasters strike rural areas.

MANY OF THE Civil Defense measures that were taken after tornadoes and floods struck Michigan and the Midwest this spring resulted from previous educational activities of the Michigan State University program.

The office, part of the MSU agricultural engineering department, is regional headquarters for 13 midwest states, including Michigan. The program operates on a special grant to the Michigan Cooperative Extension Service.

THE EDUCATIONAL effort is directed by Regional Coordinator Vic Stine and state coordinator, Les Bollwahn. They provide leadership in setting up training sessions in disaster preparedness and in distributing information through the Extension Service.

The Federal Extension Service has assigned responsibility for developing and testing educational materials to the Michigan program for use in Rural Defense programs throughout the nation.

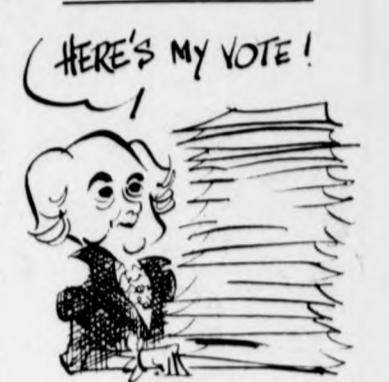

US DEPARTMENT of Agriculture defense board training is part of the MSU group's activities. These boards are composed of USDA personnel at the county and state level. Boards are responsible for assisting areas in food and agricultural problems during disaster periods.

Currently the office is sponsoring county rural defense workshops throughout the state. The workshops have been conducted through extension study clubs, Farm Bureau, Grange and other rural organizations.

THE STAFF has produced a slide-tape story of the disaster that struck Branch County this spring. Nineteen persons were killed when four tornadoes hit the county April 11.

Training for 4-H Club members is provided through Leslie Mack, youth coordinator. He has in production a series of 10 half-hour television programs for a youth audience on emergency preparedness.

Stine and Bollwahn recently conducted a training course at the University of Missouri for Rural Defense and USDA personnel from 27 states to adapt the Michigan training series for national use.

John Adams cast more votes to break a tie in the Senate than any other U.S. vice-president. He cast a deciding vote 29 times.

4-H Clubs show youth ways to become leaders

In 4-H there is a leadership program that last year attracted a record enrollment: 206,000 boys and girls.

These young people are the citizens of tomorrow, and hundreds have already assumed leadership roles in school, church and community, observes Miss Emmie Nelson, a field representative of the National 4-H Service Committee. The next steps will lead to leadership in their chosen careers, she predicts.

At the present time nearly 140,000 junior leaders are working with volunteer adult leaders in 4-H Clubs throughout the nation.

"Leadership consists of numerous components, and is a term not easily defined," explains Miss Nelson, a former assistant state 4-H Club leader, and who in recent years has conducted leadership workshops in many states.

"Becoming a leader is largely up to you," she observes. "You must be ready to assume responsibilities and be a self-starter. Success in small undertakings will prepare you for larger responsibilities."

Among the ingredients for leadership, she notes, are enthusiasm, friendliness, tact, patience and a sense of humor. "Be adaptable," she says. "Be ready for a fishing trip or a formal dance; be able to preside at a meeting or help a younger 4-H'er correct his mistakes."

At the end of this 4-H Club year, county, state and national award winners will be named by the Extension Service.

The awards will again be provided by The Sears-Roebuck Foundation, sponsor of this particular program for the last five years. Altogether, Sears has supported some phase of 4-H work for more than four decades.

Twelve junior leaders will claim $500 scholarships, 50 will receive all-expense paid trips to the National 4-H Club Congress at Chicago, and an estimated 10,000 will earn leadership medals.

A vast salt mine lies beneath the city of Detroit, yielding about 1 million tons of salt every year.

WHO CREATES YOUR PAYCHECK?

Sure, you know who pays you. But who makes your job possible? Could be our nation's farmers. Did you know that 40% of all jobs in America are created by agriculture—more than any other industry. Surprised? Think of the millions employed in processing farm products—food and fibre. Think of the millions more employed in manufacturing and supplying farmers with their many needs—machinery, fertilizers, chemicals and equipment.

Adds up fast doesn't it!

Even in "industrial" Michigan 1/3 of all jobs are created by agriculture and farmers are Michigan's biggest customers.

With so many paychecks at stake it's easy to see why a sound and stable farm economy is important to everyone. Including you and me.

Forage feed value tests described

Dairy scientists were told recently of the reliability of several tests of feed value of forage.

B. R. Baumgardt and H. I. Kon Oh, University of Wisconsin dairy scientists, have been trying to duplicate in the laboratory the cow's digestion of feed. Baumgardt reported their findings to the American Dairy Science Assn. annual meeting at Lexington, Ky., June 20-23.

BAUMGARDT and Oh tested the digestibility of 59 samples of alfalfa, birdsfoot trefoil, broome grass, orchard grass, reed canary grass and timothy using chemical tests and "artificial rumen" digestion. Then they compared the laboratory tests with animal feeding tests.

The "artificial rumen" was the best test of forage digestibility, Baumgardt said, and it works well on the six kinds of forage that were tested. In the "artificial rumen" test forage is digested in flasks using rumen fluid and the stomach enzyme, pepsin.

IN GENERAL, chemical tests were not as satisfactory for any of the forages, but the lignin test scored best of all the chemical tests.

The "artificial rumen" has several benefits to scientists working on animal and plant research, according to Baumgardt. It will speed up research on feed values and reduce the cost of forage testing.

AGRICULTURE in ACTION

By M. L. Woell
MICHIGAN FARM BUREAU

How accurate is the picture of modern farm life received by most Michigan residents today? Not accurate at all, according to majority of Michigan farmers who recently took part in an unusual program of self-examination.

Involved were 1,400 Farm Bureau "Community Groups" made up of a half-dozen or more farm friends and neighbors who meet monthly to brainstorm such problems as the topic, "How best to build a positive farm image."

THAT PRESENT image was not positive, most agreed. That they felt something could and should be done about it, was obvious from the group reports.

Rather than blaming others, the farmers readily admitted that some of the present distorted farm image has been caused by their own attitude and lack of experience. They reviewed the work pressures which cause some farmers to fail to keep up the appearance of their farms and buildings, while at the same time conceded that these less-photogenic operations are often more typical of rural Michigan than the show-place farms featured in many tours and news reports.

THE HELP OF newspapers and the public press in securing accurate on-the-farm stories and pictures was much appreciated and openly solicited by the farmers who felt that agriculture should reciprocate through more advertising in such publications which reach urban people. "Get more farm advertising into publications reaching urban people, rely less on farm publications to tell our story; after all, that amounts to farmers talking to themselves," the group participants reported.

"In general, farmers need to spend less time talking to themselves and more time talking to others." This seemed to be the consensus with the added suggestion that farmers invite city children and their parents to visit farms on the theory that getting to know each other is the best kind of public relations possible.

DAMAGE DONE by farm "politics" and the attitude of the United States Department of Agriculture was mentioned frequently by the groups, with participants making it plain that most federal farm programs have injured the farmer's image more than they have helped his pocket-book.

Michigan is not as prominent a producer of snap beans as dry beans, but it placed sixth among states in production for the processor and twelfth for the fresh market. Their value was $1.8 million. There are more green bean varieties produced than wax varieties.

There will be fewer ewes but more lambs fed in Michigan by 1980.

The number of breeding ewes may drop to 200,000 head—but inshipments of feeder lambs will jump from an average of 34,000 during 1961-63 to 50,000 by 1980.

These estimates are part of Project '80, a future look at Michigan's rural potential by 1980. The study was carried out by a committee of Michigan State University specialists in animal husbandry, agricultural economics and agricultural engineering.

THEY POINT out that there appears to be a definite revival of interest in lamb feeding in Michigan. This is indicated by the larger individual farm operations. And, many lamb feedlots are kept in operation throughout the year. This permits the grower to feed as many as three different groups of lambs annually.

The specialists' projects call for two distinct trends in the sheep industry in Michigan: (1) the trend toward having ewe flocks lamb in early winter, creep feeding the lambs and not turning them to pasture; and (2) the trend for those engaged in lamb feeding to have lambs on feed during all months of the year.

PERHAPS THE most important limiting factor in the expansion of Michigan's sheep business, according to the MSU scientists, is the difficulty in mechanized feeding and management of ewe flocks. This trend, however, is not so limiting in lamb feeding.

Wool production is expected to increase to 8.5 pounds per breeding ewe. But total wool production will drop to 2,500,000 pounds—mainly because ewes will account for a smaller percentage of total sheep numbers than currently.

THE SCIENTISTS also point out that research work is continuing on controlled breeding of sheep. Some hormones have already been developed which will cause ewes to cycle at a predicted time. When approved for sale to farmers, these hormones could greatly help flock owners to control the lamb season over a relatively short period.

However, more research is needed to make this controlled breeding more practical in order to secure more than one crop of lambs per year. Because of the difficulty of freezing and storing semen, artificial insemination of sheep on a practical basis also appears to be some time away.

THESE projections are based on current and expected trends and, say the scientists, should not be considered infallible. Extreme conditions such as wars, droughts, etc., could effect expected consumption and production by 1980.

ASC PROGRAM

No new wheat legislation yet, but it's on the way

W. M. SMITH
County ASC Manager

The middle of July the House Committee on Agriculture reported out an Omnibus Farm Bill by a vote of 21 to 13. While this bill varied some from the original proposal sent to the Congress by the President, it contains many of his recommendations. It is our hope that by the middle of this month or the first of next month we will have a 1966 wheat program.

Due to the dry weather many wheat producers have been unable to plow for wheat in our area. Many of these producers have been contacting our office wanting to know what kind of wheat program we will have this fall. Some would like to divert all their wheat allotment and not plant any wheat.

THE PROPOSED cropland adjustment program would repeal the Soil Bank Act of 1956 except that contracts entered into prior to the repeal would remain in effect. This new section provides for contracts that could run from 5 to 10 years and which could be entered into through 1969. Payments determined by the secretary could be made to farmers converting unneeded cropland to certain conservation uses.

Payments can include part of the cost of establishing authorized practices and annual adjustment payments. A provision prohibits the grazing or harvesting of the conserving crop unless the secretary determines an emergency exists; in this case the payments are adjusted.

TO BE ELIGIBLE a farmer must have owned his farm for five years, inherited it, or purchased it from a farmer already in the cropland adjustment program. We will have full details of the proposed farm bill shortly after it is passed. Wheat allotments and program information will be mailed as soon as possible after it is available.

Wheat producers who plan to plant wheat will be interested in the recommendations regarding price support. This section continues the program of voluntary wheat certificates for four years, or through 1969. The significant change from current operations would provide the price support for wheat with domestic certificates at or near 100 per cent of parity and eliminate the need for export certificates to supplement wheat farmers income.

THE SUPPORT price for wheat for domestic food use would be increased about 50 cents per bushel to around $2.50. This increase would be accomplished by higher value domestic certificates which are issued to producers to supplement their wheat prices and which are subsequently purchased by domestic wheat users in proportion to the amount of wheat used. The new legislation would provide the wheat farmer an additional 7/10 cents for the wheat used in a loaf of bread by domestic bakers. It will be the first time in 15 years that the wheat farmer has had an increase in his share of the returns from a loaf of bread. Since 1949, the cost of wheat in a loaf of bread has been 2.7 cents or less, even though the cost of the loaf has increased from 14 cents to 21 cents currently. I hope to have more information on the new program in the near future.

15 to represent county FB at special meeting

Members of the Clinton County Farm Bureau are invited to attend a special delegate session called by the Michigan Farm Bureau on Aug. 16. The auditorium located on the southeast side of the MSU Campus will open its doors to over 600 regular Farm Bureau members that day, and they will serve as representatives of their respective County Farm Bureau for the special meeting.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss financing and immediate and future program needs.

At a MEETING held July 28 in the Clinton County office, the official slate of delegates was determined. Clinton County is eligible for 15 seats and these are to be filled by members of the county board and by those delegates elected at last year's annual meeting who stated they could be present Aug. 16.

Serving as official delegates will be E. J. Bottum, county president; Robert Zeeb, Lawrence Mater, Romuald Lonier, Lewis Lonier, Levi Blakeslee, Mrs Dorothy Ward, David Conklin, Robert Reese Jr., Paul Seeger, Ronald Spitzley, Ronald Motz, Maurice Gove, William Kissane and Lewis Babbitt.

THE LOCATION of the meeting was selected as such so that as many county Farm Bureau members who might wish to attend as spectators could do so. The County Farm Bureau board urges as many members as could be there for the one-day special session.

The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. Members are asked to refer to information concerning the meeting printed in the July and August copies of the state Farm Bureau paper, The Michigan Farm News, if they desire background information as to the meeting's purpose.

New phone rate cut due Sept. 1

Spivak said these rate reductions stem from a recent agreement reached between General Telephone and the MPSC and will result in the fourth rate reduction in approximately two years.

General Telephone customers will save an additional $300,000 annually beginning Sept. 1, 1965, as a result of reduced rates on certain intrastate long distance calls, Peter Spivak, chairman of the Michigan Public Service Commission, has announced.

miles or less and includes a change in the initial period for all station-to-station long distance calls from 20 miles from four to five minutes, Spivak said. The initial period for long distance calls from 20 to 40 miles will also be increased from three to four minutes and the overtime period on station calls up to 10 miles will be increased from two to three minutes, he said.

In addition, some 1,200 customers having semi-public coin telephones will save $15,000 annually due to a change that permits the total amount of money in the coin box to be applied against the daily guarantee.

THE LATEST reduction in long distance rates is the fourth in a series which began in 1963. Beginning April 1, 1963, customers were able to call any place in the country except Alaska and Hawaii for $1 or less between 9 p.m. and 4:30 a.m.

Then, a year ago, General Telephone cut the cost of long distance calls of 20 miles or less, saving its customers an estimated $613,000 annually. A third reduction, in February this year, occurred when the new night rate schedule was extended from 9 p.m. to 8 a.m. daily and all day Sunday.

THE RATE reduction will apply to long distance calls of 40

Finns hard workers, Cobb children observe on trip

ELSIE— Shirley Cobb, MSU coed, and her 11-year-old brother, Alan, are in the midst of a five-week sojourn in Finland where they are visiting their "sister" Pirrko and her parents, Mr and Mrs Niilo Kukkonen in Helsinki.

Three years ago Pirrko came to live with the A. W. Cobb family and attend her senior year at Elsie High School, graduating with Martha, Cobb's other daughter.

This return visit was arranged between Pirrko and "brother" Alan. At the last moment, Shirley decided to give up the summer school session to accompany him and also do some research on Finnish foods and textiles since she is a home economics major.

THERE HAS been much correspondence since they left for Finland. Among the gifts they presented to their Finnish family were potatoes raised by Alan, maple syrup from their own sugarbush, instant coffee (Finnish price $7), cigarettes, pins for hair rollers and medicine for a friend in Estonia.

Shirley and Alan plan to leave much of their clothing for the Kukkonens to take to their Estonian friends when they visit there once a year.

One day was spent at the Farmers' Market and two lovely old churches, after which Alan went to the library to read more about the Scandinavian countries, while Pirrko and Shirley visited the 4-H office.

BOTH VISITED their parents at work, Mr Kukkonen in the Postal Museum and his wife, Aune, at the Finnish Foreign Trade Assn., where they were very busy at this time.

Other points of interest, related in their letters, were: Seura-saari Island; best art shops; Tapiola Garden City, visited by all foreign architects; Porvoo, an old idyllic town nearby; Olympic pool for swimming and sunbathing; outdoor cafes for sweets and drinks; dance at the HISC

Handy Andy 4-H'ers to meet Thursday

Cookies were baked and games were played at the July 29 meeting of the Handy Andy 4-H Club.

Miss Cindy Pohl and Miss Karen Pohl baked the cookies and Miss Gloria Platte and Miss Cindy Pohl were in charge of the games.

The next meeting will be held Thursday, Aug. 12, from 2 to 5 p.m. at the home of Mrs JoAnn Smith.

New alfalfa meal

An improved dehydrated alfalfa meal, high in protein and low in fiber, has been developed as a feed for hogs and poultry, the US Department of Agriculture reports. The meal contains mostly leaves and small stems, approximately half the alfalfa plant. The remaining half, largely stems, is suitable as a feed for cattle and sheep which utilize roughage well.

Miss Michigan State Fair will be crowned on Thursday evening, Sept. 2, in the Music Shell. The fair runs from Aug. 27 through Sept. 6.

SHIRLEY COBB

(Helsinki International Student Club); Parliament House; and the Great Church at the Senate Square.

THE FAMILY was pleased to meet Professor Trout and Mrs Trout of Michigan State University, friends of the Cobb family, who were traveling in Europe this summer. Coffee and sweets were served the guests in the Kukkonen home before the Trouts left for their first sauna.

Most Finnish children at this time of year are in the country. Pirrko, Shirley and Alan went by bus to Konnevesi, walked a mile carrying their suitcases and rowed across a beautiful lake to their cottage for several days. It was very quiet, they wrote, and a new experience with no people around, no electricity or running water. In fact, Shirley said she wrote her letter by candlelight. Here, Shirley and Alan had their first saunas, which they will always remember.

RETURNING to the city, Alan and his "mother" went to an amusement park, where he enjoyed a ride similar to our ferris wheel, a lottery game, giant "world wheel," alpine rally track with wagons and an Indian magician.

Shirley, who lives on a large dairy farm, wrote: "In Finland, there are only 3.6 cows per farm, no over-production and the women do all of the milking. It's haying time and oh, my sore back, all those hay stacks in a row in the fields and then fork them on to horse-drawn wagons."

SHIRLEY AND Alan purchased their "national dress" to bring home. They were made in the region of Vaasa, homeland of their own grandparents, Grenlund and Cobb. Alan also bought new boots to complete his costume.

Annual FB meet set Oct. 12

The Clinton County Farm Bureau Board of Directors began making some preliminary plans for this year's annual meeting following the July board meeting.

Delegates to the state convention will be approved by the members and many resolutions on policy development which have been submitted by the groups during the year will be considered.

The meeting, to be held at Smith Hall Oct. 12, will feature several interesting highlights other than the regular business at hand. A tribute will be paid to a Farm Bureau member for distinguished service to agriculture in the county and the selection of a Farm Bureau queen to compete in the State Farm Bureau competition has been suggested.

RATHER THAN the usual potluck dinner preceding the business meeting, this year's crowd will be served their meal by an outside group. Tickets will be on sale throughout the county as the date draws nearer.

Drew, ex-area FB rep, writes from new home

Marlie Drew, who served as Michigan Farm Bureau regional representative for the Central Region (Clinton, Montcalm, Ionia and Shlawassee counties) is residing with his wife, Helen, near Three Rivers. The Drews came to St. Johns in the fall of 1960 and resided the last two years on East State Street.

Their daughter Michelle, graduated from high school in June. Soon after graduation the family moved so that Drew would be living nearer to his new region—that of Southwestern Michigan. The Drews were honored guests at Clinton County Farm Bureau Rural - Urban dinner held last May.

THE FOLLOWING letter was received from them soon after they left.

Clinton County Farm Bureau St. Johns, Michigan

Dear Friends:

The last several weeks have been rather hectic, so I hope that you will forgive me for not writing sooner. Helen and I want to thank you for the recognition you gave us at your Rural-Urban dinner. It was an occasion that we will always cherish.

WE FOUND it doubly hard to leave Clinton County, but it also made us realize that you gave us not only your friendship but a new faith in people. I wish to congratulate you on the success of the Rural-Urban dinner and hope that you will continue to be the leaders in building a strong Farm Bureau.

Thank you for the gift. I wear it every chance I get.

Trusting that we will have the pleasure of visiting you soon, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
Marlie.

P.S If any of you are ever down this way, please stop by and see us.

During Drew's service in the area, Clinton County Farm Bureau experienced perhaps the years of its greatest growth, not only in membership but in service to member and member participation programs. With Drew's help the county leaders were able to build a stronger organization serving farmers and helping them gain by joining together the things they could not gain alone.

'To Market, To Market' - A Head Start trip

J. D. Cutting, administrative assistant of the Tri-County Capital Area Economic Opportunity Committee, and Mary Black, director, chat with youngsters during the Head Start noon lunch, while Ethel Huot, coordinator of the county Head Start program, leans over to encourage an answer from a shy girl.

A trip to the Farmers' Market in Lansing was one of the educational tours for boys and girls in the Head Start program at Bath this summer. Here mothers and teachers are shown with the youngsters as they get a little insight into how their food gets from the farm to them.

That's good corn, according to Kevin Hall, left, taking a big bite out of an ear of the golden vegetable. Lauri Barker, right, takes her seat ready to start her noon lunch at the Bath school during the Head Start classes.

By MRS ETHEL HUOT
County Coordinator

Some 229 pre-school kindergarten children in the Head Start program of Clinton County will bid farewell on Friday to an educational experience which began June 28 and continued for six weeks in 15 classrooms in eight locally-centered school areas.

The children attended Head Start classes each day from 9 a.m. to noon.

HEAD START'S main task was to bridge the gap for the pre-kindergarten child so he would become familiar with school routine, teachers and gain some fundamental knowledge that will help him. This was especially beneficial to the child who was shy, slow, immature or who had a limited background of educational experiences.

Teachers and aides who have worked with the children on a relationship of nearly one to one are amazed at the progress the youngsters have made. The method of class instruction in nearly all instances was on the formal school basis—with the emphasis being on the child. Number and color concepts, story telling, rhythms, finger painting and other creative activities were stressed. Much time was spent with library books.

THE CHILDREN were taken on various tours of their school community. They visited the post office, city markets, farms, bakeries, fire stations, police stations, grocery stores and neighborhood building projects. Some children had the experience of walking on the "sky walk" which spans the busy thoroughfares of Lansing. All experiences will aid the child and broaden his horizon.

Science experiments were conducted in the classrooms and the enthusiasm ran high as the various projects progressed.

IN ADDITION to a cultural boost, Head Start aimed to give corrective medical, dental and vision care. Local dentists in each area did dental examinations on all Head Start children. Audiometer and vision tests were also given. Physical examinations were required of all students so each child would be ready for regular kindergarten this fall. Head start offered follow-up medical and dental care for those youngsters found to have defects.

Another phase of the Head Start program is nutritional. All children received milk and a snack during the mid-forenoon. In the St. Johns and Bath areas, meals were provided each day.

PARENTAL involvement was another important part of Head Start activities. Conferences and visitations were scheduled. Many parents acted as chaperons on field trips.

Teachers and aides working in the Head Start project have expressed great enthusiasm and are highly complimentary of the program.

Any child who has experienced the program—the introduction to school, the classroom, group activities, riding the bus, planned learning, the opportunity to participate in field trips—certainly

Select 2 area musicians for Fair honors band

Dan Kusenda of 320 W. High Street, Ovid, and Carla Motz of R-3, St. Johns, will play in the Honors Band at the Michigan State Fair, which opens Friday evening, Aug. 27, and runs through Labor Day, Sept. 6. The Honors Band is composed of the finest high school musicians in Michigan, selected through audition. Kusenda plays the oboe and Miss Motz plays the clarinet.

Lori Valentine and Jeff Laughter listen to a Farmers' Market worker tell them about how sweet corn is grown and harvested and gotten ready for them to eat.

While moms watch and help, the boys and girls in the Head Start classes at Bath have a good time husking the sweet corn they bought at the Farmers' Market. It later was cooked for them to eat.

Statesmen Make Grave Error
A television commentator pointed out in a news cast the grave error in prediction by Secretary of Defense McNamara and Ambassador Cabot Lodge. One year ago both men appeared on television stating quite authoritatively that no increase in ground troops would be needed in Viet Nam. Yet today we are sending thousands of troops over there. It is not my purpose to criticize these men for what was doubtless an honest mistake, but it proves to show us that when it comes to 'foreknowledge' we humans are quite deficient. We cannot tell exactly what will happen in the next five minutes. What a contrast to the predictive scriptures found in the Bible. Not a single prophetic utterance has ever failed. The Old Testament prophecies have been or are still being fulfilled. The New Testament prophecies concerning the end of the age are the topics of front page news. For example, according to Matthew 24, wars shall continue and grow in intensity right down to the return of the Lord. In spite of men's best efforts to effect peace we have no peace and the prospects for the future are no better than the past. This civilization as we know it is doomed and the only bright prospect is that it foreshadows the soon coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

"We invite you to attend"

THE CHURCH FOR ALL • ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

The People Were Out for Sidewalk Sale

The bargains were there, and so were the people last Thursday morning for the opening of Sidewalk Sale Days in St. Johns. The first hour and a half of the sale Thursday morning drew the biggest crowd, but there were plenty of people on hand for the full two days of the sale. The St. Johns Chamber of Commerce Retail Division, which sponsored the two-day sale, termed it a success all the way.

Only the expected problems pop up in new water billing

Water bills are out to St. Johns water customers. It happens every three months, but this month it was different—the bills were prepared by data processing methods.

The bills themselves were different in appearance, and the process in preparing them was also different. As a result, there were problems—and complaints.

"SURE, WE MADE errors," City Manager Ken Greer said. "We knew we would. We're working with new procedures and new people. But those will be worked out."

The major complaint so far on the new bills has not been in the dollar figures charged customers; those figures would have been the same if the bills had been prepared by hand as they used to be.

INSTEAD, there seems to be many complaints from renters and landlords because bills are not being sent to the place they had been before. Under the new system, water bills are being sent to the address of the water meter. Under the old system several bills may have been sent to a landlord who paid for the water used by tenants at several addresses.

"We lose the ability to hand-tailor our mailing for customers," Greer admitted, "but we have had to sacrifice this to come up with a more accurate and easier handling of the water bills."

HE SAID THE city was "toying" with the idea of putting two addresses on the cards—one the address of the receiver and the other the address of the meter. But since there are only about 30 such customers in the city, this would be too expensive to set up the computers for this small number.

FOR THE April-May-June quarter, meters were read in July and bills sent out in August. A total of 1,826 meters were in service in the city during the three months, computed figures show, and bills were sent out for a total water consumption during the three months of 96,701,600 gallons.

OF THAT TOTAL water use, 50,334,000 gallons were used by Federal-Mogul Corp.

Water consumption by the 1,826 customers will bring in a net amount of $25,215.47. Sewer charges will bring the city an additional $15,408.71, and there is $3,164 in delinquent accounts yet to be collected.

THUS, THE NET amount the city will receive for the current billing is $43,788.18. Undoubtedly there will be some customers who will be late in paying, and those people will pay a greater "gross" amount, which is printed on their water bill.

There were also some errors in figures on the new computer-prepared bills, City Manager Greer said, but they were few and amounted to only a few cents. They came in the figuring of the sewer charges.

"OUR PROBLEM is being as fair as possible in trying to live up to the portion of our ordinance pertaining to sewer bills," Greer said. The ordinance says that the sewer charge for the summer months shall be the average of the charge for the two winter months, but in no case shall they be greater than the water charge.

(The theory is that water customers water their lawns and wash their cars in the summer, so not as much of the water they use goes into the sewer system, percentage-wise, as it does in the winter.)

BECAUSE the ordinance and the data processing system don't seem to be compatible on this score, an ordinance amendment is in the works. City Manager Greer and City Atty. Harold Reed were authorized by the city commission last Tuesday to draw up an amendment to take care of the problem.

The aim will be to come up with a percentage that will be used across the board throughout the year in figuring the sewer charge. The percentage hasn't yet been figured out. If, for example, it was 90, it would mean the sewer charge would be 90 per cent of the water charge for each quarter.

Road Commission Weekly Report

The Board of Clinton County Road Commissioners made an extensive inspection trip on their regular meeting day last week. Accompanying the Board were two members of the road and bridge committee, Supervisors Claude Underhill of Victor Township and Willard Kreble of Riley Township.

THEY ALSO looked at a drain on Jason Road and some of the posted curves on Round Lake Road. The group then went to the west side of the county and watched the blacktopping operation on Clintonia Road near Westphalia.

In response to some questions that have or may come up, let me clarify this project. The division of maintenance between Ionia and Clinton counties is half-way between Centerline on Taft Road. North of this point is Ionia County and south to Howe Road is Clinton County.

THE CLINTON County project was for one and one-half miles of 22 ft. blacktop from Price Road north to the maintenance division line. The surfacing was advertised and let to the low bidder, who was Williams Bros. Paving Co. of Ionia. The job was completed by the contractor for Clinton County last week.

Wednesday, Aug. 11, is a busy day. Les Drago, road engineer, is attending a discussion meeting in Corunna on the State Maintenance contract. Don Ewing, clerk, and Bernard Zeeb, commissioner, are attending the Southern Michigan Road Clerks' Assn. meeting in Allegan County.

Scalloped potatoes in cookout kettle

Cookout recipes don't have to be complicated to be elegant and tasteful. Using a covered barbecue kettle lets the backyard chef prepare just about anything—including casseroles. For this menu, rings of pineapple have been added to give the cookout a Hawaiian touch. The menu includes ham, acorn squash and a casserole and serves six.

SCALLOPED POTATO CASSEROLE

6 to 7 raw potatoes
1 small onion
1 can consommé
1 Tbsp. Accent
1 Tbsp. parsley flakes

Butter the casserole dish, then slice the potatoes thin. Add remaining ingredients. Bake in covered barbecue about two hours.

HAM SLICES
Use slices of ham about 3/4 to 1-inch thick. Spread mustard on ham add pineapple rings and bake on barbecue grille about 15 to 20 minutes. Not necessary to turn. Two large slices will serve six.

ACORN SQUASH
Select two good size squash, cut in half lengthwise and clean out seeds carefully. Pierce the inside about 10 times with a fork, then add pat of butter and teaspoon of honey to each half. Piercing allows butter and honey to penetrate squash. Season with salt and pepper. Wrap outside (but not top) with aluminum foil. Cooking time: About one hour.

Place the casserole in the covered barbecue, let bake for about one hour, then add squash. Last 20 minutes, add ham slices.

Cancer Society chairman retiring after 18 years

Seventeen years ago, the American Cancer Society was practically unknown to residents of Clinton County. Today, the County rates first in Michigan for its organization and service to the Cancer Society.

Also known to Clinton residents in 1948 was a young woman from the East who has since become as familiar to persons across the county as the Cancer Society itself.

She is Miss Hazel Williams, chairman of volunteer activities for the past 17 years, American Cancer Society of Clinton County.

MISS WILLIAMS will retire from her chairmanship with the Society next month, to a less responsible, though equally active, position. She couldn't care less if her name or face were ever again recalled. Her only concern is that the Cancer Society continue to flourish locally, maintaining its top position in Michigan and its high position in the nation.

Having lost the last member of her immediate family, Miss Williams came to St. Johns on a Sunday, 25 years ago, from Rochester, N. Y., a city of 500,000. She said she looked down the main street and thought it was the end of the world, most surprised over the fact that there was only one theater. Miss Williams, who had been a secretary for a large Rochester firm, wondered what she would do here.

SHE MADE her home with some friends of hers, the James Postlethwaites, at 102 South Whittemore, and has resided with them at the same address ever since.

Her first, and only, job in Clinton County before going with the Cancer Society in 1948 was with the Ration Office.

She describes her first year of work with the Society as disheartening.

"I had to go up and down the county roads, up to the hubcaps in mud, to get chairmen for the various townships," she said. "I didn't know a soul as I knocked on the many doors, only to be turned down."

MISS WILLIAMS' problem was that people were not cancer conscious.

After she solicited her chairmen, many of which are still with her today, she had to obtain workers. There was no program set up and the burden of organization fell on her back. She said she obtained her first officers by "asking them up."

Other counties in Michigan were also organizing at this time, but Clinton's outstanding management began to show. It was the first to make its quota on the cancer drive and went over it for several years.

IN 1953, Miss Williams gave a speech in Grand Rapids, Flint and other places, telling how Clinton County was organized. The national office of the American Cancer Society in New York requested permission to print the speech. Permission was granted and a copy was sent to every cancer unit in the United States.

Clinton was also the first County to give part of the money returned to the unit after the drive to the cancer research program at the University of Michigan and the first to have 8 loan closets in the community instead of one. It has received award after award for outstanding service in the Society.

Continuously attempting to draw attention away from herself, Miss Williams is quick to credit Clinton's accomplishments to the volunteer workers and the people of the county.

"EVEN THE best leader is ineffective without followers," she said. "In fact, people often call and ask if they can make them."

"I have no difficulty getting persons to make dressings," she said. "In fact, people often call and ask if they can make them."

Mrs Postlethwaite, service chairman for Clinton County, credits the unit's success under Miss Williams' leadership to a principle to which she has adhered.

"MISS WILLIAMS would never ask anyone to do anything which she wouldn't do herself," Mrs Postlethwaite said.

As a good friend and almost constant companion, Mrs Postlethwaite has come to know Miss Williams' many interests.

"Although Hazel enjoys good music and likes to travel and read," she said, "she's happiest when she's doing something for someone else."

Miss Hazel Williams, chairman of volunteer activities, American Cancer Society of Clinton County, since its inception 17 years ago, will retire next month. She is credited with making Clinton's unit first in Michigan.

Miss Diane Thelen, Larry Thisis marry

The marriage of Miss Diane Elaine Thelen, daughter of Mrs Bernita S. Thelen of Westphalia and the late Frank P. Thelen, and Larry John Thisis, son of Mr and Mrs Herman Thisis, Fowler, were married Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 4, at St. Mary's Catholic Church, Westphalia, with Rev Allen J. Thisis, brother of the bridegroom, officiating.

Escorted to the altar by her godfather, Henry Mueller, the bride wore a silk organza gown which featured an empire waistline and full skirt. Her veil was held by a crystal and pearl headpiece and her bouquet was a cascade arrangement of white baby carnations and yellow rosebuds atop her First Communion prayerbook.

The flower girls were attired in floor length white dresses and crown headpieces and carried baskets of yellow rosebuds and white gladioli blooms. They were Miss Rhonda Jo Van Heck and Miss Sheri Lynne Halfmann.

JOHN C. Rademacher of St. Johns was best man and ushers were Roy M. Thelen and Larry L. Thelen, brothers of the bride, and Stanley Thisis and Donald J. Thisis, brothers of the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride wore a white dress with light blue accessories, the mother of the bridegroom, a blue dress with white accessories. Each mother wore a yellow rosebud corsage.

FOUR HUNDRED persons, among which were Mr and Mrs Fred Geller, grandparents of the bridegroom, gathered at St. Mary's Parish Hall that evening for a reception, after which the newlyweds left on a wedding trip to Washington, D. C. For traveling, the bride chose an aqua dress with aqua and white accessories. Her going-away corsage was of yellow rosebuds.

They will make their home in Fowler.

"If the shoe fits" foot pains lessen

BY BETTY KETCHAM
County Extension Agent
Home Economics

It will soon be time to start looking for school clothes and shoes are an important item on the list.

Miss Bernetta Kahabka, clothing specialist for the Michigan State Cooperative Extension Service, says many of today's deformed and ailing feet are the result of yesterday's misfitted shoes.

"The US Public Health Service has found that at some time in their lives, 80 per cent of the American people complain of foot disorders," she says.

"ACCORDING to some figures, 8 out of 10 adults have foot troubles that slow them up, reduce their efficiency, may cause poor posture and produce all over body discomfort," she continues.

A great deal of the trouble—some doctors claim most of it—starts in childhood and a big cause is shoes that don't fit.

When you're selecting shoes for your child, go to a reliable store and take the child with you.

MEASURE both of your child's feet and fit the longest foot. The length should be 1/2 to 3/4-inch longer than his longest toe when he is standing. The correct width, at the widest part of the foot and widest part of the shoe, should be enough to allow some pinch-up of leather.

The heel should be snug enough to grip the foot. The top should fit close to the foot and not gape at the sides.

Be sure the toe end is soft and rounded enough to give the toes plenty of room. An absorbent lining will add to the child's comfort.

Lastly, have the child walk around in the shoes.

CHECKING old shoes can give you some idea if they are fitting properly or are outgrown.

If the child has a habit of taking his shoes off every chance he gets, or is unwilling to walk or run, this also could be a sign that they don't fit. Pink spots on the toes, blisters and calluses are good indications of poor fit. Also check for red spots on the feet from pressure of too tight or narrow shoes or rough spots in the lining.

Runover heels and heavy wear on the inner borders of heels and soles are other indications, Miss Kahabka says.

'Melerdrammer' at Ledges during next week

Hissing the villain and cheering the hero will be in order next week as the Ledges Playhouse presents an old time "melerdrammer." Lane Bateman, remembered for his work in "Enter Laughing" and "Lute Song," will star with other audience favorites of the Ledges company.

This year's play, "The Drunkard, or the Fallen Saved," will be done in the tradition of last year's "Lucy, the Forsaken," which met with substantial success. It will again include the handsome and true-blue hero; the sweet, innocent, and pure heroine; the dastardly, cowardly villain; as well as a series of imaginative comedy characters. This play was made famous by the famous P. T. Barnum and has enjoyed production almost continuously for fifty years.

Continuing this week until Saturday, is the delightful comic fantasy, "Mrs McThing."

Obtaining property market value takes many reappraisal steps

(Editor's Note: Later this year the H. L. Yo Co. will conduct a series of public hearings at which time they'll go over with homeowners the market value they've assigned each property in their reappraisal of Clinton County real estate property. This is the third in a series of articles by the company explaining how and why they arrive at those values.)

The basic objectives of a professional appraisal company performing tax equalization appraisals can be stated very simply—to appraise every parcel of real estate at its current fair market value, using recognized professional standards and practices.

Of course, along with this basic objective, the appraisal company is obligated by contract specifications to furnish certain other data to the assessor. Essentially, these data consist of the following:

1. A COMPLETE set of property record and identification cards which contain all of the data used to arrive at the fair market value.

2. A complete set of tax maps marked showing the land value (per front foot, per square foot, or per acre) for each parcel of real estate.

3. A manual for the assessor which gives instructions and describes the uniform methods used to arrive at market value for all types of property. This manual also contains all cost figures used by the appraisal company to compute building replacement costs.

4. IN SOME cases, other alternative data is furnished, such as a photograph of each building, a set of cross-reference, index cards, file cabinets, etc.

The need for performing each appraisal on a uniform basis is many-fold. Primarily, the resulting values are equitable for all properties, and secondly, it provides the assessor with procedures that permit him to maintain the program after the initial project is completed.

MAINTENANCE means that as new buildings are constructed, they must be appraised by the same methods used during the tax equalization program; otherwise the appraised value will not be equitable with similar buildings.

The methods used by an appraisal company are not especially complicated, but rather exacting in their application. First of all, the market value of a piece of property is not determined in one fell swoop by a mere physical inspection of the property. There are a number of prescribed steps and procedures that must be followed to arrive at the value. These steps are:

1) PREPARE A property record card showing ownership and location of every parcel of real estate shown on the tax maps and/or tax list. This, in effect, is a 100 per cent inventory of all property and establishes the geography of the project.

2) Analyze the local labor market and construction activity to determine the replacement cost of the various kinds of buildings being built. This analysis is one of the essential tools needed to develop unit costs for construction.

3) ANALYZE the local real estate market activity for at least the past three years. The results here indicate such things as current land values, shifting economic trends, kinds of depreciation affecting certain locations, land with an imminent potential value, and a combination of other data indicative to market values. 4) Using a trained crew of field personnel, measure and sketch the ground plan of every building and list all pertinent data concerning the physical make-up of the building. This data is recorded in the property record card designed especially for this purpose. These men carry full credentials which will identify them.

5) DEVELOP REALISTIC land values for each tract of land, based on its usefulness, location, topography, demand, and other pertinent data.

6) Based on uniform building replacement costs, compute the replacement value of each building according to its physical make-up. This value is then depreciated by a percentage, which is indicative of the elements that have been deteriorating it. The value remaining, then, is the sound physical value of the building.

7) The land value which has been depreciated by a percentage, which is indicative of the elements that have been deteriorating it. The value remaining, then, is the sound physical value of the building. See REAPPRAISAL page 10-C

Girls complete home ec class

GUNNISONVILLE— Last week was the last of 6 weeks of teaching home economics to fifth and sixth grade girls by Margaret Stampfly, under the Economic Opportunity Act. and the Anti-poverty Bill, in two Lansing schools.

The classes were limited to 15 girls and met for two hours each day. The work included basic nutrition, grooming and clothing.

A simple shift dress was made by each girl. Foods were prepared and field trips taken.

The work ended with refreshments served to the mothers who came to see the completed dresses and a final picnic to which the boy's class in manual arts were invited.

REAPPRAISAL

been established is then added to the sound physical value of the building. This figure represents the first estimate of fair market value. All data and computations are recorded on the property record card.

8) THESE VALUES are then checked by taking the record cards out into field and reviewing the values by comparing them with the property itself, with similar properties, and with the values the real estate market have indicated. Any necessary changes are made at this time.

9) By means of an informal interview, each property owner is given a chance to discuss his value with a qualified appraiser of the company. If new facts are presented by the owner, the property is reviewed again and any necessary changes are made.

THE ABOVE nine steps are very basic and apply generally to all properties. These are procedures involving value based on rental income, utility values and other methods which will be discussed in later articles.

This approach, however, has been time-proven as the most accepted and most accurate way of determined fair market value for tax equalization purposes, excepting special problems that are handled by special prescribed methods.

A POINT MADE obvious by this article is a very important one. That is, the man who visits your property is not there to determine the value of the property before he leaves. His main jobs to measure, sketch and inspect the building.

Any queries by the owner to this man concerning value cannot be answered because he just doesn't know the answers. If everyone cooperates by permitting the man's entrance to the property, answering his questions and letting him go about his business, the job can be done much more quickly and accurately.
