"We have assurances from the Army that Robert Sloat will not be sent to Vietnam," a spokesman for Sen. Philip A. Hart told the Clinton County News last week.

Thus ended the month-long fight of Mr and Mrs Victor Sloat of 1400 Leland Road, rural Ovid, to keep their son from combat in Vietnam. Another son, Bennie, was killed in the war on March 19 when his armored personnel carrier was destroyed by an enemy land mine.

Since that time, the Sloat family has been waging a personal battle with the Army and the Clinton County draft board to keep Robert, 20, from being assigned to the war zone.

"We had written to Sen. Hart and Sen. (Robert P.) Griffin about the problem," Mrs Sloat said. "But we only received word from Sen. Hart saying that he would look into the problem."

In response to a call from the Clinton County News Friday, Hart's press secretary, Jerry Cable, immediately investigated the matter and responded with "assurances from the Army" that Robert would not be sent into combat.

"The family will get official authorization to that effect in the mail," Cable said. The Sloats must inform the local draft board that this authorization has been made.

Assured that she would get written authorization, Mrs Sloat said she is happy the battle is over. "It's a good feeling and quite a relief," she added.

"I didn't want to go," Robert said, "but I would have gone."

In an interview before word came from Hart's office, the Sloats commented on their reactions to the draft system and the war.

"We are understandably bitter," Mrs Sloat said, "Some of the boys have lied and cheated to keep out of the service, and it's very unfair." Both parents indicated that the present draft deferment system should be abolished.

"I feel that no one boy is better than another," she added. Sloat said that he had visited the draft board in August "while my son Bennie was alive and in combat. I wanted to see if the draft board could delay Robert's enlistment until Bennie was safely home."

The draft board indicated that they could not give any preferential treatment, and ordered Robert to appear for his physical.

"When Bennie was killed we wrote a letter to the draft board in the hope that Robert would be kept out of the war," Sloat said. "It was not asking for a deferment."

The draft board replied: "...

But 5 potentials in wings

After two weeks, Ballenger still lone Senate candidate

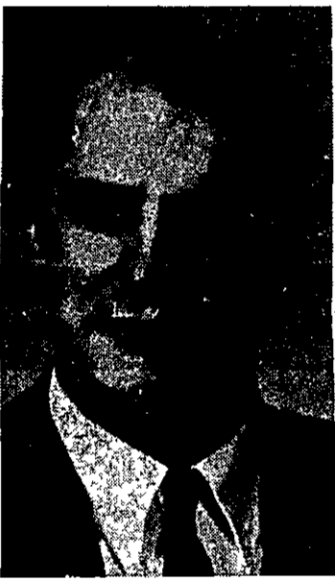

By RON KARLE
Editor

If State Rep. William S. Ballenger is challenged in his bid for the State Senate, he can be sure of one thing at this point—his opponent will be a politician.

Since Ballenger, a first-term Republican representative from rural Ovid, announced his intention two weeks ago to seek the 30th District Senate seat, at least seven other persons have been mentioned as possible contenders.

Of the seven—all Republicans—only two have said they definitely will not run. The other five wouldn't say yes nor would they definitely close the door on such speculation.

The seat is being vacated by Senate Majority Leader Emil Lockwood, R-St. Louis, who has announced his intention to seek the office of Secretary of State. Named as potential candidates were State Rep. Richard Allen, of Ithaca; Andy Cobb, Clinton County commissioner; Ronald Stoltz, Gratiot County commis-

"This is entirely speculation as far as the metropolitan newspaper is concerned," said White when asked if he were considering a race for the Senate. "I've never entertained any notion of running."

The other potential to rule himself out was Stack. Although a spokesman from his office said Stack was too busy to speak with the News, the spokesman conveyed that the message that Stack was not going to run for the office.

"I haven't strongly pursued it," said Allen. "I haven't made a final decision on whether I will run for my present office or if I may run for the Senate."

"I am not strongly pursuing the Senate seat until a decision has been made," he added. "But I would not 100 per cent rule it out."

When Cobb, a state representative from 1950-64, was asked if he would be a candidate for the Senate, he said, "No, I don't think so."

Allen a candidate again, but plans not yet finalized

By NORRIS R. McDOWELL

State Rep. Richard J. Allen, R-Ithaca, hasn't decided whether or not to run for the Michigan Senate.

"I haven't finalized my plans as yet, but I can say that I will be running again for public office," he said.

Allen has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the seat now occupied by State Sen. Emil Lockwood, R-St. Louis, who has said he will seek the office of Secretary of State.

State Rep. William S. Ballenger III, R-Ovid, recently announced his candidacy for Lockwood's 30th District Senate seat.

Allen, 36, a veterinarian, said he chose to pursue a political career because he believes government has suffered in the hands of professional politicians and attorneys.

Professional politicians have an "illusion," he said. "They think they know what's going on in private life but they don't."

"Sure, they make speeches, shake hands at factories and tour the country, but they really don't know what's going on out there because they've spent their time learning the rules of politics rather than learning the problems of the people," he said.

The longer a man remains in political office, the further away from down-to-earth issues he strays, Allen said. This occurs because full-time politicians are in contact only with other government officials, he said.

Because of this, Allen said he would agree with youthful protesters when they claim "the establishment is out of touch."

Some attorneys seek state political office just to learn the intricacies of the law, he said. In some cases they even continue private practice while holding office, he added.

"I guess they think the prestige and experience will help further their careers when they leave office," he said. "But in my mind, they do a great disservice to their constituents."

Allen was also critical of the fact that the legislature convenes year-round. Lawmakers grow

School board petitions must be in Monday

Candidates for the St. Johns Board of Education have until Monday (May 11) to file nominating petitions.

The petitions may be picked up from Henry Enochs, business manager, at the high school.

Two seats on the board are to be filled—those held by William Richards and Wendall Waggoner. Both have filed for re-election June 8.

To be eligible as a candidate, a person must be a qualified and registered voter who has been living in the school district since before May 8. He must also be a property owner and have been a resident of Michigan for the last six months.

People signing petitions must be registered voters in the district but need not be property owners.

Enochs said candidates must have a minimum of 20 signatures but he suggests they obtain a few more just in case some are not valid.

Dogs cannot run loose

In the wake of several dog bites in recent weeks, St. Johns' Police Chief Everett Glazier warns that a summons will be issued without warning to the owner of any dog found running loose.

Dogs must be penned up or on a leash all year round, says Glazier.

Fines generally range from $10 to $25.

Licenses for dogs are available at the Municipal Building.

Tim Younkman joins News editorial staff

Tim Younkman has joined the Clinton County News editorial staff to replace Bob Calverley, who resigned last week to accept a science writing assistantship with the office of public information at Michigan State University.

Younkman, 23, will cover county government, including the board of commissioners, and the southern portion of the county, including DeWitt.

Younkman and his wife, Rosa, are both seniors at Michigan State University where he is about to complete requirements for a degree in journalism and she is majoring in fine arts. They have a daughter, Julia, age 2 1/2. Mrs Younkman did her student teaching at St. Johns High School last fall. When she completes work on her bachelor's degree, she plans to earn a Master of Fine Arts degree.

Before joining the News, Younkman was a technical

DeWitt has a partner for Mayor Exchange

By TIM YOUNKMAN
News Staff Writer

The City of DeWitt finally has secured a partner for the May 18 Mayor Exchange Day. It was disclosed Monday night.

Mayor Lawrence Keek, addressing the City Council, announced that the DeWitt sister city will be Lowell. He indicated that details for the Day's agenda have not been completed.

The Council received a letter two weeks ago from their original partner-city, Armada, Mich., stating that it would not participate with DeWitt in the exchange program.

Since the Exchange Day will fall on a regular meeting night, the Council moved to change the dates of the next three sessions. The City Council will meet next on May 25, June 8, and June 22, before resuming the regular first and third Monday schedule.

I'm sorry there is not much the board can do to correct the unfairness in the draft system which is caused by boys and men telling every possible lie, creating court offenses to disqualify them, hiding behind families and further educational deferments. I can only say our view is much the same as yours.

"The selective service realizes the injustice created by many men in the country not fulfilling their obligation in the service because of illegal action and failure to comply with the law of registration and correct reporting of information. However, these men cannot be located and sentenced until a person in the community takes a stand and reports the individual. Unfortunately this information does not get reported.

"Your family has contributed greatly to the country. I express deep regret for the loss of your son's life. Your bitterness is understandable toward the system and boys who have in some way escaped their obligation. I only wish I had the knowledge and power to correct the wrong. But I can only strive to operate my local board to the most honest and correct procedural law. It is sad to believe but there will always be a minority group of people who are dishonest and disregard the laws."

"Robert has a high draft number, which is the only reason he has not been drafted," Mrs. Sloat said. Both parents feel that he will be drafted soon.

The Sloats had been informed earlier by Lt. Robert Seeley, U.S. Army Advisor in Lansing, that there was nothing he or the Army could do. He indicated that Robert would be sent to Vietnam within 12 months after induction. Seeley was not immediately available for comment.

"We love our country," Mrs. Sloat said, "but we feel that we have sacrificed a great deal and have contributed enough."

They brought out a large box filled with letters from friends and officials in sympathy for Bennie's death. Official letters were received from President Nixon, Michigan Gov. Milliken, Harl, Pennsylvania State Sen. Clarence D. Bell, Army headquarters in Vietnam, the colonel of Bennie's division, and the division chaplain.

The Sloats have another son who served in Vietnam. Ricky was stationed near Pleiku with the Fourth Division during 1968 and part of 1969.

The family of Christina Motz presented a living symbol of longevity among parishioners of St. Joseph Church this past weekend during activities commemorating 100 years since assignment of the first resident priest. weary of the long sessions, especially in the summer, resulting in diminished effectiveness of the legislature in general, he said.

Lawmakers should have summers off to "go home and get their feet back on the ground," he said. "I spend several weeks each summer practicing veterinary medicine, which enables me to get around and see what the people at home are talking about."

Allen said that although he enjoys his legislative duties, he intends to go back to regular veterinary practice eventually. "The thought never leaves my mind," he said.

He said he doesn't believe a person should set personal goals which might never be attained. "Some politicians continue to hang on long after they've outlived their usefulness because of unreasonably high ambitions," he said.

Allen favors the abortion reform bill now before the senate. "I introduced an identical bill to the house, although most of the actual work has been done with the bill presently in the senate," he said.

Abortion should be a personal decision, he said. "I feel very strongly that it is a woman's right to control her destiny."

He said he believes the issue should be decided by the individual rather than the government.

Allen's bill is presently in the House Social Services and Corrections Committee, where "I don't think it's likely to get a hearing at all," he said. Some members of that committee are strongly anti-abortion, he said.

"Actually, I submitted this bill to pave the way for the Senate bill, because I believed it would fare better there," he said. The Senate bill is on the floor and under debate, and Allen said he expects it to come to a vote soon.

Allen said his bill would provide for a legal abortion only through the first three months of pregnancy. The abortion would be performed only by a licensed physician in a registered hospital.

REP. RICHARD ALLEN

throughout the state for non-motorists. Little-used rural roads would serve the purpose, he said.

"I think any individual should be able to bicycle or ride a horse anywhere in Michigan without fear of being run down by a car," he said. Under present conditions this is impossible, he added.

"Too much recreational activity today is influenced by commercial interests," he said. "Because roads are paid for by gasoline tax, some people feel that these roads are to be traveled only by automobiles."

"We are moving too fast, living too fast, we need to slow down," he said. "Some kids today are living in communes to get away from this fast-paced, impersonal life. Perhaps society should take this message to heart."

Allen said a major problem in Clinton County is fiscal in nature. "Property tax is overburdening, not equitable, and retired people and farmers suffer from it the most."

If this county had more industry to help pay the taxes, the property tax would not be so burdensome, he said. "This is one reason school millage proposals have been voted down so often," he said.

He said he became interested in politics through his father, who was also a state representative. Allen received bachelor of science and doctor of veterinary medicine degrees from Michigan State University.

He was a professor of biology at Alma College, a livestock farmer and has authored numerous articles on Asian and African agriculture.

He is a member of the Michigan Veterinary Medical Association and the American Association for the Advancement of Sciences. He was elected to the Michigan House of Representatives in 1968.

Open Letter from VAN W. HOAG

Dear friends,

In our selection room all of our complete funeral prices are marked in plain figures. This is sound business practice. It means that the price is uniform for all.

We believe the public appreciates this policy. No family, completing arrangements, ever leaves our establishment without an accurate estimate of what the total expenses will be.

Gen Tel deadline near Immunization clinic set

General Telephone customers in Alma, Ashley, Breckinridge, Hemlock, Ithaca, Merrill, Pompei, Riverdale, and St. Louis who wish to make corrections or additions to the directory are asked to call the company's business office before Friday, May 15, says William F. Graef, district manager.

Emphasis on firm cutoff dates for entries allows the General Telephone Directory Co., in Des Plaines, Ill., to assemble, print, bind and return the new Alma directory in a relatively short period of time, says Graef.

"Our directory company, which prints millions of telephone books each year, operates on a deadline basis much like a newspaper," he said. "For this reason we cannot accept any changes Friday, May 15, the date the directory is 'locked-up' and sent immediately to the directory company for printing."

The distribution date for the new directory will be announced later, says Graef.

A free immunization clinic will be held by the Mid-Michigan Health Department next week in St. Johns.

The clinic will be Thursday, May 14 from 8:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. in the basement of St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

Dr. J. E. Paver and nurses from the health department will administer shots for DPT, DT, typhoid, smallpox, and measles. The tuberculin skin test will also be administered and oral polio vaccine will be available.

Ballenger

had been mentioned as a possible contender, he replied, "Nobody contacted me."

It is known, however, that there are people in Clinton who would favor Cobb as a candidate since the county has not been represented in the Senate by someone from the county since 1950.

Ballenger, whose address is listed as rural Ovid where he owns a farm, actually lives across the county line in Shiawassee County.

If he were elected to the 30th District seat, he would represent all of Clinton, Grafton, and Shiawassee Counties, plus portions of Eaton, Montcalm and Ingham Counties.

As a representative from the 87th District, he currently represents all of Shiawassee and a portion of Clinton County which includes approximately one-third of the county's land area and two-thirds of its population.

Allen represents all of Gratiot County and the remainder of Clinton.

When Cobb was asked if he might be considering a race for Ballenger's House seat, he said, "I own a farm in Shiawassee County—it could be done."

He said, however, he "doubts" that he will run for the House, but added, "You never rule anything out."

Should Cobb decide to establish residence in Shiawassee, he would have to give up his seat on the County Board of Commissioners.

When Milliken, whose newspaper is published in Eaton County, was contacted, he said,

After the "three-month period, provisions of present state law would take effect, so technically there would be no change in that law, Allen said. Michigan law now dictates that an abortion may be performed only to save the mother's life.

Allen said he had no argument with those denouncing abortion reform "if, and only if, they view the embryo as a human life," which he does not. "Every

Building costs below estimates

DeWitt schools blessed by 'good fortune': $15,000

By BOB CALVERLEY

"It was a windfall," said Supt. James Ritchie at the DeWitt Board of Education meeting, "it was just good fortune."

"It" was approximately $15,000 which, through a combination of factors was left over from construction of new buildings in the DeWitt School District.

Ritchie explained that the bonds for the projects had been sold at unusually good rates and that "hungry" contractors had made unusually low bids, lower than original estimates. As a result the building and sites fund wound up in the black.

The money is "earmarked" for buildings and sites and cannot be used for operational expenses of the school system, such as salaries etc.

But that doesn't mean no one knows what to do with it. "I'm coming to ask for some of it," said Mary Jo Lott, librarian and audio visual director to the DeWitt board.

She told the board that the library was in good shape and cited the recent expansion of facilities, furnishings and equipment as excellent points, but she was requesting some of the building and site funds "to fill in a few gaps in the collection, both in books and audio-visual equipment."

The recent evaluation by the North Central Association, (NCA), she said, had revealed that while the library was well supplied with books in some areas, large amounts of material were not current (published since 1965). She also said that NCA had pointed to a need for more filmstrips, records and other software to be used in the audio visual department.

She asked the board for $5,000 for books and $2,500 for audio visual equipment, from the fund. Douglas Kostal and Evert Stevens of the science department were also at the meeting to ask for some of the money.

Some of the equipment required by the science department included chemicals and biological lab specimens. Stevens said he had tried to collect biological specimens used by the school from local ponds. "But they're not able to live in the waters around here," he said.

Other equipment included an analytical balance, a PH meter, a plant growing studio, an Impscope, stereo microscopes and equipment for a new physical science course to be offered next year.

"These are things which NCA said we were really lacking," Stevens said.

Total amount of the request for funds of the science department was $2,445.57.

The board told those asking for additional funds that their requests would be taken under consideration.

In other action the board: —Made a formal resolution, as required by state law, to set the annual school election for June 8.

—Accepted resignations from Joan Meisner and Carolyn Bracklin.

—Discussed a request by Ray Unger, industrial arts instructor, to have attendance at an educational conference as professional leave (paid for by the school). The request had already been denied by school administration, but Unger was appealing to the board because he said he had been encouraged to involve himself in professional activities when he was hired, he said.

"There is no such thing as professional leave," said Ritchie. No action was taken on the request, because the decision had already been made by administration officials, Willard Reed president of the school board explained.

—Considered an invitation to merge with the Shiawassee Intermediate School District when Michigan school districts reorganize. No action was taken on this request either.

Fowler wins 'blood' battle with Westphalia

A new rivalry has developed between Westphalia and Fowler but it's not over a sports event. Competition is being spurred by the current American Red Cross bloodmobile drive, offering a prize to the community with the largest blood donation.

Mrs Jeanne Rand, executive secretary of the Red Cross, explained that some of the youth groups in the communities organized the rivalry and it spread to the adult groups.

"Fowler has won the contest this year," Mrs Rand said. "The town that wins two of the three successive years may keep the award." The prize is an engraved plaque from the Red Cross to the community.

In the April competition, Fowler donated 84 pints, while Westphalia trailed closely with 80 pints. "Westphalia" rejected 10 volunteers and Fowler rejected five.

Following is a listing of those who volunteered blood donations from the two communities.

Bath revises burial costs

New arrangements for burying ashes after cremation have been made by township officials in Bath.

Ashes must be placed in a sealed container such as a six-inch clay tile, unless a similar cylinder is provided by the funeral home.

Cost for burial was put at $20, plus the cost of the container.

Officials also set new rates for regular burials—$55 for adult funerals, up from $45; and children's burials, $25 and $37.-

50. Funerals on Sundays, holidays or after normal working hours will cost more because overtime pay is involved.

Mrs. Romney's visit sponsored by Clinton County Republican Committee

Named at 66th annual meeting

Mrs. Erwin McMaster elected president of County Federation

Mrs Erwin McMaster of the Victor Civic Club was named new president of the Clinton County Federation of Women's Clubs which held its 66th annual meeting last week.

Other officers announced were Mrs Lawrence Hess, of the Elsie Literary Club, vice president; Mrs Clarence Semans, of the Ovid Crescent Club, secretary; Mrs Richard Hallead, OvidAcme Society, treasurer and Mrs Kenneth Winsor, chairman of the nominating committee.

Chairing the meeting, which was attended by approximately 80 persons, was last year's president, Mrs Charles Walker.

The meeting was held at the Shepardsville United Methodist Church and was hosted by the Ovid-Duplain Library Club.

After an invocation by Mrs C. W. Lambert, a memorial service was held in honor of seven members who had died during the last year. Service arrangements were under the direction of Mrs John Rumbaugh.

Mrs Harry Manson, district president, told members of activities at the recent state federation meeting and Mrs Leslie McNally, newly elected state treasurer, spoke on "Federation, You and I." She said the federation is an association of refined women sharing a oneness with an open mind.

Several reports were given on recent activities of area clubs.

Mrs Nell Dahby gave a presentation on Loch Rie, a home for troubled girls. She said that the 12-year old institution will hold an open house May 16. In its 12 years, Loch Rie has helped 88 girls.

During the dinner hour, the village maidens entertained the group with some of their very fine music.

After dinner, the group was entertained by the choir of the Ovid-Elsie High School, under the direction of Mr Don Thayer.

The music was divided into three sections, popular sacred, and some instrumental. Some of the numbers they sang were Chim-Chim-Charee from Mary Poppins, What the World Needs Now is Love Sweet Love (this was sung for Ben Sloat who was killed in action. Ben sang with this group last year.) A barber shop quartet composed of Dennis and David Hunt, Greg Palen, and Eric Casler sang Sleep, Kentucky Babe, and Sophomore Philosophy.

Sacred numbers were All Thru the Night, Lord, Make Me An Instrument, the prayer of St. Francis of Assisi, Bless the Lord, O My Soul, and May the Lord Bless You and Keep You. Michael Swender rendered two piano selections with the aid of various types of instruments, the group sang Dry Bones. Other songs were A Time For Us, Jean, Sounds of Silence, Feeling Groovy. Instrumentalist were Michael Swender, Ed Waters, Greg Palen and Steve Simpson. For their closing number they sang An Embarassing Announcement; We're Thru. At the close of their program Mr Thayer and the choir received a standing ovation from the group.

Speaker for the afternoon was Earl J. Hill from Consumers Power Co. He spoke on The Pursuit of Happiness. He said that this was the 1,026th speech he has made in nine years. He said happiness is where you make it. It is a journey. He gave two rules to follow—learn not to react negatively and to follow the Golden Rule properly. Anger is the wind that blows out the lamp of reason. All progress in the world is made by dissenters, the kind who demonstrate peacefully. There is more of a communication gap than a generation gap.

National Music Week being observed here

The period May 3 through May 10 will mark the 47th annual observance of National Music Week.

The theme "Music Brings Understanding" was chosen to help create an understanding and appreciation of the value of music in the home and in the community. To create an understanding of music as a common bond among all people and to use this bond as an instrument of World Peace.

St. Johns and communities all over the nation are celebrating with special musical events that spotlight the talents of local amateur musicians. In the United States, nearly one out of every four people plays a musical instrument; youngsters in school bands and orchestras, adults in community symphonies and jazz combos and people of all ages who play for their own enjoyment.

We are very proud of our own High School Band and Orchestra, our school Vocal Department, our hard working Junior High Musicians and their talented leaders.

During National Music Week St. Johns High School Music Department will be presenting the musical "O, Charley" May 7, 8 and 9 and you are all urged to take advantage of this now annual event.

The St. Johns' Morning Musicales will be observing National Music Week with a 9 a.m. breakfast at Walker's Cafe and a musical program to be presented later at DePeal's Music Center, Friday, May 8.

Especially today with the much publicized "generation gap" let music bring understanding into your family. If you are a musical dropout or if you've never played a note, the St. Johns' Morning Musicales and the National Federation of Music Clubs invite you to give music a try. Why not start to discover or re-discover the rewards of playing an instrument right now during National Music Week.

MEETINGS

The Service Wives Club will hold its regular monthly meeting at the American Red Cross, 1800 East Grand River Avenue, Lansing, Friday, May 8, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Mrs Richard Newport, Center City program director, will demonstrate the art of wood fiber flower making and artificial flower arranging. There will be a chance for all to participate.

We will have a potluck supper, so bring a dish to pass. The beverage will be furnished. You will also need your own dishes and utensils.

All wives or fiancées or any in the Armed Forces—officer, enlisted man, or draftee is cordially invited. Bring your children along too as a baby sitter will be provided after dinner.

Call us at 484-7461, ask for Service to Military Families, and let us know if you plan to attend and especially how many children will attend. If you need transportation, let us know.

Clinton County Senior Citizens enjoyed an interesting program on April 28, given by Rev Brian Sheen, associate pastor of Pilgrim United Methodist Church.

Formerly from England, Rev Sheen spent 18 years in South Africa where English and African are the two languages most commonly spoken. He showed beautiful colored slides with sound on "This Africa of Ours."

In a question and answer period he brought out that many people think of Africa as still wild and primitive and some parts of it are but it has many modern cities and there is much wealth there, so much, in fact, that for two years people didn't pay taxes.

The whites and blacks each develop their own culture and some blacks still live as they did 300 years ago. Intermarriage between blacks and whites is forbidden. There are upper and lower classes among both blacks and whites but the Africans outnumber the whites ten to one. Johannesburg, a beautiful city, has the second best climate in the world. Most enterprises are run by the government and Americans and people from many other countries have investments there. There is considerable mining and farming and many grapes are grown for winemaking.

Rev Sheen has a wife and two children and presently is studying at MSU for his master's degree in Communication Arts. He brought along many posters and curios which were unusual and beautiful. The Africans do a great deal of bead work and the women wear much color and many decorations. The men don't favor all of their ideas of make-up and procedure to straighten their kinky hair.

The next meeting will be held on May 12 and all senior citizens are cordially invited.

The St. Johns Welcome Wagon Newcomers Club will meet May 6, at 8 p.m. in the Central National Bank meeting room.

The highlight of the meeting will be the installation of next year's officers. Those being installed are: president, JoAnn Gentry; first vice-president, Bonnie Worley; second vice-president, Kris Perry; secretary, Bonnie Wellman; treasurer, Nancy Lashaway; and historian, Judy Hunt.

This will be the last evening meeting until fall.

All persons new to the St. Johns area are welcome to attend.

Clinton Memorial observes National Hospital Week

By ANNETTE WHITE
News Society Editor

Clinton Memorial Hospital joins more than 7,000 hospitals across the country in observing National Hospital Week beginning Sunday, May 10.

This year's — "Your Hospital Cares" — emphasizes the efforts hospitals are making to meet increasing health demands for health care in an era of spiraling costs.

"Today every hospital is faced with greater demands for high quality health care for more people than ever," said Harold Reed, administrator. "Hospitals are meeting the challenge with a variety of new methods which also help in planning the future."

In April 1967 the Hospital Auxiliary voted to buy a much needed heart monitor for the hospital.

"Since it was installed in September of 1968 many local persons have used it and the success has been overwhelming," said Mrs. Edward Idzkowski, president of the auxiliary.

The cost of the equipment was to be financed through memorials. In each funeral home, cards were placed which allow people the opportunity of contributing through donations to the heart fund or gifts of money can be sent directly to the hospital's auxiliary, in care of the Heart Fund.

To date less than $3,000 of the $8,000 has been received.

A Hospital Auxiliary membership drive is now being conducted by the Woman's Board. By purchasing a $1 ticket one can become a member of the auxiliary and the dollars are compounded into purchasing needed equipment, furnishings and items that make a hospital stay a more pleasant occasion.

Fowler next week

Mobile TB unit in St. Johns today

A mobile chest x-ray unit will be in St. Johns for three consecutive days this week, beginning today (Wednesday).

The unit from the Michigan Health Department will also be in Fowler for one day next week, Monday, May 11.

While in St. Johns, the unit will be parked on East Walker Street at the corner of Clinton Avenue. Registration will be at Boron's Rug Store.

Test hours are:
Wednesday—1 p.m. to 3 p.m. and from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Thursday—Noon to 2 p.m. and from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Friday—9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m.

In Fowler, the unit will be parked on Main street and hours will be from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. and 4 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Health officials say these tests are not for known diabetics.

Dr. John Paver, Director of the Mid-Michigan District Health Department encourages all adults, 21 years of age and older, to take advantage of the two tests which are available at no charge.

These tests screen for possible diseases of the chest and the detection of latent diabetes. The two tests may lead to the detection of possible disease long before there are any outward signs. In both instances, persons may have TB or diabetes and not be aware of it.

Paver stressed the importance of the chest x-ray for older men and for persons in high risk groups, such as those who have been exposed to tuberculosis, or have positive tuberculin skin tests, and persons who have had TB previously.

The program is sponsored by the Mid-Michigan Medical Society, The Michigan Diabetes Association, the Mid-Michigan

Mothers probe activities of hyperactive children

By ANNETTE WHITE
News Society Editor

"In some schools as high as 10 per cent of the children are on medication to control hyperactive tendencies," the director of Lansing hospital's mental department told a group of parents of hyperactive children Thursday.

Since the group was formed early this year it has been meeting to discuss behavior problems of their children and have heard a series of speakers.

In an informal question and answer period, Dr. Donald Weston of St. Lawrence Hospital, discussed the use of drugs and said he believes in most cases a total evaluation should be made before a child is placed on drugs. Parents questioned him on the drug called Ritalin and he said "it is basically a mild stimulant used in treatment of hyperactive children and usually has no side effects."

He again emphasized the fact that a complete evaluation should be made before a child is put on drugs. "In a lot of cases drugs are overused and poorly controlled," he said.

He noted that unfortunately there is a problem because of inadequate facilities to evaluate children. Schools really aren't equipped to do it because of limited facilities. An evaluation includes family interviews, classroom observation, interviews with the child, and neurological tests.

He suggested a reverse in the system such as more counselors, especially on an elementary school level, because often it is easier to control problems in lower grades and generally all the counselors are on the high school level.

A federally funded pilot program under Title III of the Elementary - Secondary Education Act of 1965 has been in existence in the St. Johns School system for three years. The title of the program is Team Approach in the area of Special Services. Ralph Conline and Mrs. Persis Cortwright give counseling services to schools engaged in the program, Central, Perrin - Palmer and East Olive.

The program will be phased out this year, however, but will be evaluated by the school staff and school board to decide its future.

Parents at the meeting expressed a desire to have the program continued.

Drugs and the hyperactive child were discussed by Dr. Donald Weston of St. Lawrence Hospital.

Cornell completes service program

C. Leonard Cornell, mechanic, Hettler Motor Sales in St. Johns, recently completed the two-week factory service school program at the Johnson Motors complex in Waukegan, Illinois.

He was part of a class, drawn from Johnson dealerships throughout the world, which explored the finer points of the famous Sea-Horse line of outboard motors. Not all of the students' classwork was devoted to theory, however. Included in the curriculum was Johnson's famous "trouble-shooting" course, with expert instruction on how to quickly diagnose and repair outboard problems.

Johnson's service school, staffed by a faculty of 15 experienced outboard "doctors," is the largest and most modern of its kind in the world.

'Twas NO JOKE!

"Are you kidding me?" was the reply of Shirley Jean Little, right, upon being advised that she was the winner of $200 in cash as a result of grand opening activities of The Treasure Chest. She was a little more believing when she accepted a treasure chest jewel case with the money from Mrs Roy Bovee. The new card and gift shop is located at 220 N. Clin- ton, former quarters of Kurt's Appliance Center.

No increase seen for 1970-71 operation of DeWitt schools

DeWitt schools hope to operate on approximately the same amount of money next year as this year, Supt. James Ritchie told a PTA citizens committee at last week's DeWitt Board of Education meeting.

Fred Grove was chosen to head the committee which will hold a meeting to explain the tricky millage proposal to the public in the DeWitt high school gym at 8 p.m., May 18.

On June 8, the DeWitt School District will be asking voters for a 10 mill operational renewal plus an additional 2.5 mills for a five year period. Thus it appears that the system is asking for additional funds.

But Ritchie told the commit-tee: "We're not asking for any increase in dollars and cents, in fact, we're asking for less." Next year's proposed school bud- get is half a mill less than last year's.

Ritchie said that the school board was lowering debt retire- ment millage from ten to seven mills, a decrease of three mills. "We're just asking for 2.5 mills of it back," said Ritchie.

Ritchie told the citizen's com- mittee that debt retirement millage was being reduced be- cause of participation of the school system in the state school bond loan program, which en- ables schools to extend payments over a longer period of time.

When questioned about in- creasing property assessments which confront many taxpayers this year, Ritchie explained that schools do not receive any more money when the state equalized valuation (SEV) is raised.

"The state, the county and the city benefit when the SEV is raised," he said, "but not the schools." According to Ritchie the amount of state aid to schools decreases as the SEV goes up.

"You're getting so much lo- cally, you don't need so much from us," is what the state in- essence tells him, Ritchie ex- plained.

Currently, the DeWitt School District, along with other dis- tricts in the county and the state, is hanging in financial limbo.

The Clinton County Allocation Board will meet on May 7 to distribute the 15 mill county levy to various governmental agen- cies. Last year DeWitt and other county schools received 8 mills of this allocation.

The state legislature has not yet passed a school aid bill for next year. The Senate has passed Governor Milliken's school aid formula while the House has ap- proved the controversial Spen- cer plan for aid to schools.

"This thing could go right up to June or July, and that's tragic,"

William Ballenger, state repre- sentative for the 87th District said recently.

But the biggest headache for DeWitt schools is still the June 8 millage election.

St. Johns youth held in fatal cycle crash

A 19-year-old St. Johns youth is being held in Shlawassee County jail on manslaughter charges following last week's triple death auto-cycle accident near Ovid.

Pedro R. Rodriguez, held on $25,000 bond, contends that a second auto was involved pre- cipitating the accident, accord- ing to the Shlawassee Sheriff's Department.

The Sheriff's Department branded as "simply speculation" theories that claim another "hit and run" auto was involved.

"There is simply no evidence to that effect," Sheriff's Depart- ment spokesman said. However, the case is still under investiga- tion and the second car theory "has not been ruled out entirely."

The accident claimed the lives of Frank L. Worden, 22, and his wife, Beverly, 21, both of Owosso, and Mrs Gail Johnson, 21, Ovid. They were killed when their motorcycles allegedly were struck by the Rodriguez vehicle.

One of the cyclists, Gary Luce, 36, Ovid, was injured in the mishap. Sheriff spokesmen indi- cate that a more detailed report will be made when Luce can be questioned. He is hospitalized at Owosso Memorial Hospital where sheriff deputies plan to question him Tuesday (May 5).

Hyde at sales meeting

R. G. Hyde, of St. Johns, re- cently attended a two-day sales meeting sponsored by the Patz Co., a major farm material han- dling equipment manufacturer.

Under the direction of Patz District Representative Mr Gor- don Chapman, the schedule in- cluded a tour of company fac- ilities and an examination of the Patz experimental farms which feature above-ground sys- tems for cattle manure handling.

Also on the agenda were dis- cussions of procedures affecting Dealer sales and service and a comprehensive review of the lat- est engineering improvements in the Patz line of barn cleaners, silo unloaders, cattle feeders, manure stackers and manure spreaders.

St. Johns team enters trouble shoot contest

Russ Hicks and Ed Johnson represented St. Johns High School at this year's autotrouble shooting contest sponsored by the Plymouth Division of Chry- sler Corp.

The team, accompanied by auto mechanics instructor Larry But- ton, participated in the competi- tion with 35 schools last week- end at Western Michigan Uni- versity in Kalamazoo.

Named to an alternate team were Russ Thompson and Steve Balderson.

The St. Johns team was sponsored by Hettler Plymouth.

The winning team from Stur- gis High School will be sent to Indianapolis in June to compete for more than $125,000 worth of scholarships and awards in the national championship finals with schools participating from across the nation.

"Although we didn't win, we got some good experience," said Button.

In the contest, participants take a written exam which counts as 30 per cent of their team's final score and then they race the clock and the other teams to find and fix several malfunctions deliberately placed under the hoods of new cars. This me- chanical challenge counts as 70 per cent of a team's score.

The trouble shooting contest originated in 1949 as a local event in Los Angeles with 50 students from 17 high schools participating. Today, more than 2,000 high schools and colleges representing all 50 states—with a total auto shop enrollment of more than 150,000 students—par- ticipate each year in this na- tionally-famous competition.

Purpose of the contest is to recognize and honor outstanding young auto mechanic students and to encourage them to make a career as automobile me- chanics.

Trouble shooting has placed more than 16,000 young men in full or part-time jobs as auto mechanics. Since the contest be- came a national event in 1962, the Chrysler-Plymouth Division of Chrysler Motors Corp. has made available scholarships for 146 students.

Sealed Power Corp. earnings down, sales up

Sealed Power Corporation reports a decline in first quarter earnings from last year's record level, due primarily to the slumping automobile market and factors related to costs. Sales improved slightly to an all-time high for the quarter.

Sealed Power is a major supplier of piston rings and engine components to automobile manufacturers. "The auto industry experienced the worst March sales in eight years and the worst first quarter sales since 1967," said Reynolds.

costs of labor and materials also imposed a drain on earnings. "Heavy start-up costs related to building expansion programs at our Consolidated Die Cast subsidiary and in Canada were encountered," he said.

Tornado destroys Redwing comeback against Waverly

St. Johns dropped a pair of baseball games last week, including one called in the sixth inning because a tornado appeared to be moving down the third base line.

After dropping a 6-2 decision to Grand Ledge Tuesday, the Redwings traveled to Waverly Thursday where a tornado was sighted and snuffed out a St. Johns rally with the Redwings behind, 7-6.

"We saw some pretty ominous clouds off in the southwest said Coach Doug Japinga. "They kept moving from southwest to northeast then the end of the cloud began to swirl about and then turned into a funnel. "It looked like it was going to be coming down the third base line," he said. The players took cover in a nearby building for about half an hour before attempting to resume play.

"But then the sirens sounded again," said Japinga, and the game was called. Before taking cover, St. Johns had men on first and second with one out.

Although St. Johns will play Waverly again next week, Japinga said the possibility of picking up where play left off is remote. "I suspect it falls into the same category as a rainout," he said. In that case it would be considered a complete game because five innings had been played. Technically, however, no rain fell.

"I'll have to check the rules," said Japinga.

Against Waverly, Roy Pederson singled to drive in a pair of runs in the first inning before the Warriors exploded for seven in their half of the first.

But the Redwings picked up three more in the second when Larry Wakefield singled to drive in Larry Hayes. Wake-

Although it was neck and neck at this point, Waverly's Dave Thrall and Steve Bebiak finally pulled ahead of St. Johns' Roger Davis (center) who finished third in the 120 high hurdles.

Hastings, Waverly snap St. Johns victory string

After breezing along undefeated in its first three track meets, St. Johns suffered a pair of setbacks last week.

Hastings downed the Redwings on Wednesday, 73-45, and Monday Waverly won, 78-40.

"I felt the performances were the best many of our kids have ever run in their lives," said Coach Jeff Smith. "We had some great performances even though we didn't win."

Still undefeated after five dual meets were Bill French in the 880-yard run, Dave Flermoen in the 100-yard dash and Rick Flegel in the two-mile run and the 220-yard dash.

Against Hastings, St. Johns won seven of 14 events while against Waverly the Redwings won five of 14.

St. Johns is 2-2 in West Central Conference competition and 3-2 in the season.

Redwing tennis team wins 5 from Ithaca

St. Johns tennis team split a pair of matches last week, losing to Waverly, 4-1 and defeating Ithaca, 5-2.

In West Central Conference action Thursday against Waverly, Tom Warstler was the only Redwing winner as he beat Don Lilly, 1-6, 6-4, 6-2.

In other matches, St. Johns' Steve Root lost to Marc Gellina, 1-6, 0-6 and Larry Zuker was defeated by David Luginbill, 2-6, 4-6.

In doubles, Bob Rehmann and Mike Grost lost to Stan Slight and Rich Oppenlander, 6-4, 2-6, 0-6 and Jeff Springer and Dave Weed fell to Steve DeWitt and Ron Glass, 3-6, 0-6.

Against Ithaca Friday, Zuker defeated Chuck Wilcox, 6-1, 6-1; Warstler defeated Steve Whaley, 6-4, 6-3; Xavier Millet defeated Dave Watson, 7-5, 6-4 and Spring lost to Larry Brown, 4-6, 3-6.

Grost and Rehmann defeated Mike Blair and Bob Wolfgang, 6-1, 6-2; Weed and Jim Conley defeated Joe Bordon and Mike Bowen, 6-3, 6-3, and Mark Stephen and Jack Henning lost to Kevin Opalet and Chris Kirby, 6-8, 5-7.

By week's end the Redwings were 5-2 on the season and 4-2 in conference play.

"There are very few of these rugged individualists left," he added.

"But the farmer needs education."

The farmer does not realize that he is contributing to the pollution, in many cases, by poor soil management resulting in erosion, he said.

Cosens noted that pesticides in large quantities are responsible for many of the dead fish and crippled wildlife throughout the nation's farmland. He claimed the various county agricultural departments must watch this situation closely and inform the farmers of new methods in controlling pollution.

The county health department should investigate home waste disposal systems, Cosens said, since much of the sanitary sewage flows directly into our counties' rivers and lakes.

"The county drain commissioner has the authority of preventing harmful materials being spread by county drains," Cosens said. He displayed a slide of slick dark-brown water flowing through a county drain depositing oil on the banks.

Adequate road conditions and proper drain facilities for roads must be maintained by the county road commission, Cosens said.

"The county road commissioner plays an important role" in easing pollution problems. He displayed slides of erosion and poor drainage conditions caused by some highway viaduct construction. Another slide cited a gravel washing operation polluting the Grand River.

Cosens said that county zoning boards and planning commissions can prevent some future problems by stopping large-scale dumping of industrial waste into county waters. He cited violations by a paper mill at Manistee and a steel mill in Detroit.

The fight against pollution, Cosens said, must be waged through joint efforts of county agencies with financial aids from state and federal sources.

"The future can be very bright if the counties do a good job," Cosens concluded.

Redwing golfers drop first match

The St. Johns golf team remained undefeated in conference play last week defeating Waverly, 175-179. St. Johns' conference record is now 3-0.

However, the Redwing crew dropped its first decision of the year in non-conference action Wednesday, with Lansing Everett winning 161-165.

Chuck Green led the field against Waverly with a 42, one stroke up on teammate Dave Gaffney's 43. Rich Stoddard and Dan Schueller finished the Redwing scoring with twin 45 scores.

The teams were forced to seek shelter after spotting one of last week's many tornadoes, but resumed play a short time later.

Dan Schueller, Dave Gaffney and John Estes posted identical 41 scores against Everett, with Chuck Green one stroke behind at 42.

Experienced men will take no chances on chance acquaintances.

field stole second and scored when Randy Atkinson was safe at first on an error. Atkinson stole second and scored on a single by Brian Ballinger.

In the fifth inning, Doug Brzak was safe at first when the catcher dropped a third strike. He then stole second and Hayes singled to drive him home.

Pitching for St. Johns was Brian Ballinger who gave up nine hits, walked four and struck out five. His record is 1-2.

Against Grand Ledge, the Redwings found themselves on the short end of a 6-0 score going into the fifth.

St. Johns picked up two when Wakefield and Atkinson walked and Ballinger singled them home.

Dan Rademacher was on the mound for St. Johns and he struck out three and walked three before he was relieved in the fifth by Jim Shumaker who struck out two, walked none and allowed no runs.

The defeat went to Rademacher who is now 1-2.

If the Waverly game holds up, St. Johns is 2-4 in West Central Conference play and 2-4-1 on the season.

A double header is scheduled against Hastings Saturday. It will begin at 11 a.m. in the city park.

"I'm considering it, but haven't made up my mind yet one way or another.

"There's still six weeks to file," he added.

Hicks, who has been Eaton County's GOP chairman for the last five years, said, "We have been considering it, but no definite decision has been made as of yet."

He is vice president of radio station WCER in Charlotte and was a delegate to the 1968 Republican National Convention in Miami Beach.

"We're still doing some deliberating on it," said Stoltz. "I've always aspired to some sort of an elective position in Lansing," he added. "I'd certainly like to be considered a candidate."

"We're still working on it, but don't know what the outcome will be," said Stoltz. "I would hate not to be considered, but as of now I am not an active candidate."

Ballenger, who has been on the campaign trail for two weeks already, said, "I have no idea whether I have any primary opponents or not."

"If I do have opponents, I would hope they would be men or women of high caliber who would address themselves to the issues so that all of us could avoid some of the rancor and bitterness which unfortunately often attends primary campaigns," said the 29-year-old lawmaker.

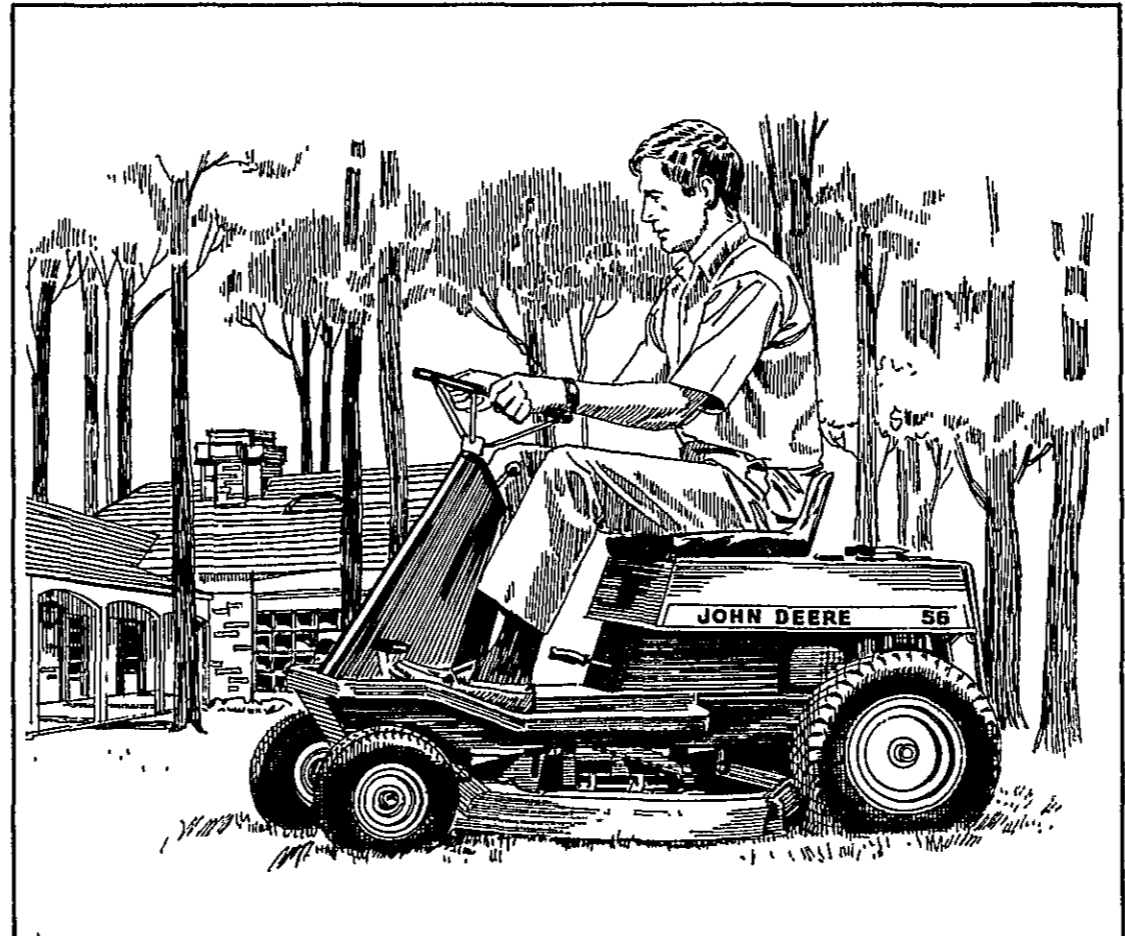

"I would hope the same holds true of the general election, too," he added.

When asked what he considered the major issues are, Ballenger recreational facilities in the area and they're afraid that they would have to pay for them anyway." The project involves six counties including Clinton County.

The Council approved writing a letter in opposition to the new State bill concerning revised annexation procedures. The bill calls for new voting procedures which the Council feels will stunt home-rule city growth.

Before adjournment, Mayor pro-tem Keith Blizzard spoke about the lack of enforcement concerning the burning ordinance in the city. He said the residential areas were the hardest to police.

New (tree) housing development along Maple River

Lynn Warner (bottom) and Wayne Paseka nail up one of the wood duck boxes above the Maple River.

By BOB CALVERLEY
News Staff Writer

There's a new housing development along the Maple River. The entire subdivision of more than 100 homes was built in a few weeks by some entrepreneurs who'll be satisfied if only 50 per cent of the houses are occupied this year.

THE HOUSES are for ducks—wood ducks to be specific—although Bud Jarvis, a game habitat biologist for the Department of Natural Resources isn't discounting the possibility that a few squirrels will integrate the neighborhood.

The project is the work of Don Munger's ninth grade Earth Science class in St. Johns working with the Department of Natural Resources.

It started a few weeks ago when Jarvis showed a film to the class and talked to them about some of the wildlife in the area.

"ANY TIME we can get a group of boys interested in something related to the outdoors, we'll not turn down the chance," says Robert Benson, another biologist, from the Department of Natural Resources.

The class decided to build boxes to be used as homes for wood ducks in the Maple River State Game Area which stretches along the Maple River from US-27 through Maple Rapids, west to Matherston.

"The wood duck seeks out this kind of a flooded river lowland," says Benson.

THE BOXES were built in ninth grade shop class, although some of the members of this class were not in the Earth Science class.

On April 16 Jarvis and Benson started taking groups of boys out to a section of the game area on the river in the southern part of Gratiot county.

"The wood duck is a tree cavity nester," says Jarvis, "but this particular forest is relatively young." He explained that there weren't many suitable nesting cavities for the ducks over the water so they had to go inland to find nests. This meant the baby ducks born late in the spring had further to walk to water, making it harder for them to survive.

"PROBABLY more ducks will be produced because of the boxes," says Jarvis. He felt it reasonable to expect 50 per cent of the boxes would be used by the ducks.

In the winter time the boxes nailed to the trees over the water, will be checked and the wood shavings inside replaced.

Putting up homes for wood ducks benefitted more than just the ducks, according to Jarvis and Benson.

"I THINK it is important to let these kids know that the rivers are really important for wildlife. I think wildlife has a value," says Jarvis.

"It's a good place to go for outdoor education and to learn about ecology," he said about the game area.

"The thing that we're so concerned about with the Maple River," says Benson, "is that if any of the large flood control projects go through this whole area for the wood duck will be destroyed."

"That's the beauty of this area, it's flooded," says Jarvis, "that's where all the broods are raised."

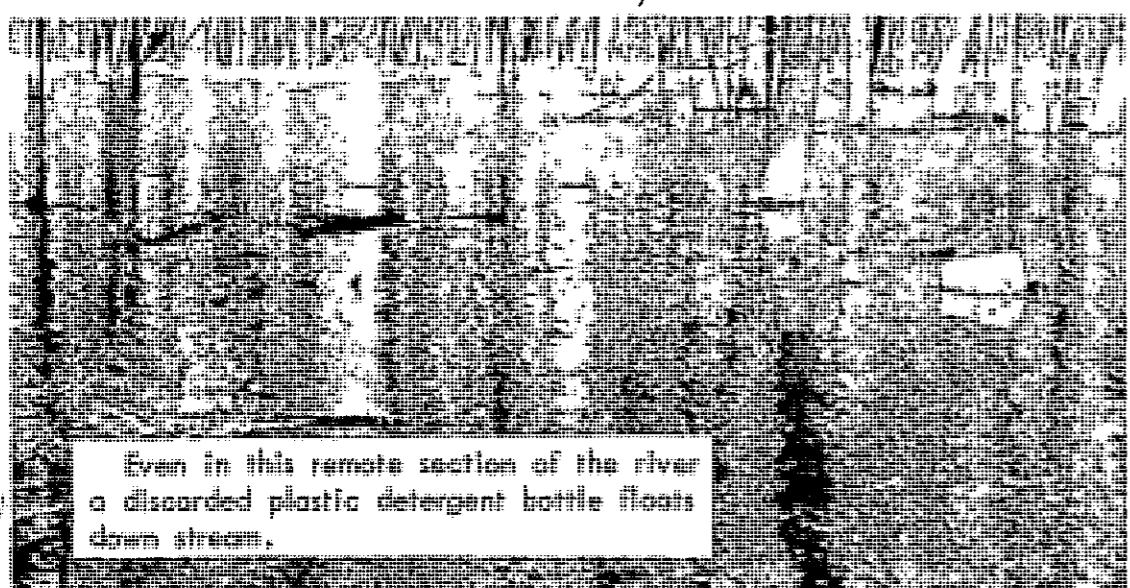

Preparing a box to be nailed up are Lynn Warner, Robert Benson, game habitat biologist from the Department of Natural Resources, Bud Jarvis, another game habitat biologist from the department and Wayne Paseka.

Clinton County News

Wednesday, April 1, 1970

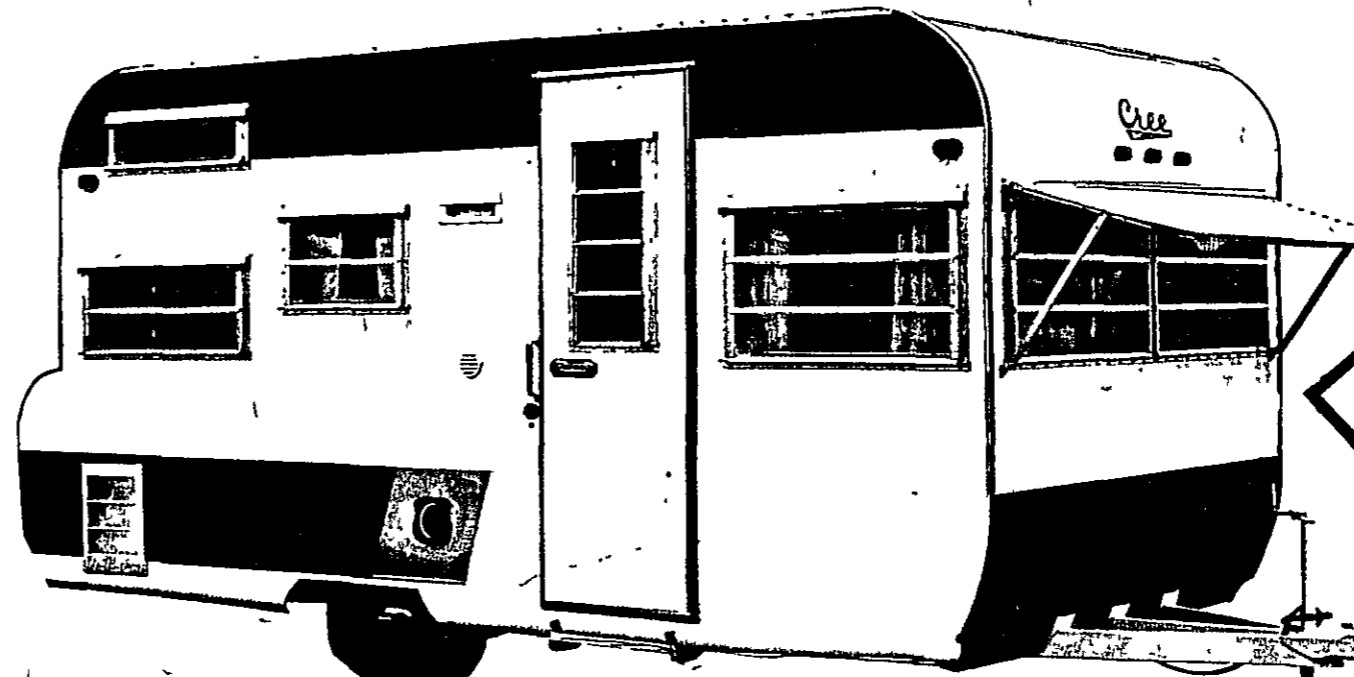

The area where the boxes for the ducks were installed is a relatively young forest which don't have many hollowed out tree trunks that the woods ducks prefer. Here the group slips through the swamp looking for another spot to erect a home for a duck.

Even in this remote section of the river a discarded plastic detergent bottle floats down stream.

Now is time for grass waterways

Spring is one of the best times to establish grass waterways for field drainage, says a Michigan State University expert.

"Spring is an especially important time if the field to be drained is covered with sod," says Russell G. Hill, extension specialist in soil and water conservation at MSU.

Hill points out that excess water will run off a field surface over natural drainage ways. Unless waterways are protected, erosion may be severe and gully-ing will result.

"Gullies spoil the beauty of a farmstead," he says, "but more importantly, they present an accident hazard for farm machinery."

"Gullies can also cut fields into small, unworkable areas. Silt washed from a field and from an unprotected waterway can fill drainage ditches and pollute lakes and streams. Fish habitat will suffer and the aging of lakes will be accelerated."

If a field is in hay or pasture and a good sod is already present, leave the sod in the natural drainage way when the field is plowed, Hill advises. He offers the following additional tips for waterway construction:

- 1) Make waterways wide enough to carry the run-off water, with sides higher than the center. (Narrow waterways cause water to cut around the edges of the channel).
- 2) Grass in waterways can be encouraged by top-dressing with a nitrogen fertilizer. Keep the grass mowed to a height of three to four inches.
- 3) Keep livestock off waterways when ground is wet.
- 4) Reinforce weak spots in the waterway with sod replacements.
- 5) Do not use waterways as farm lanes since wheels will break the sod and cause gullies to develop.

"If a grass waterway is to be established by seeding, it should be done in late summer or early fall," says the MSU soil and water specialist.

Additional information can be obtained by writing to the MSU Bulletin Office in Agriculture Hall for Extension Bulletin E-497 titled "Pave Your Waterways With Grass." The bulletin may also be available at local county extension service offices throughout the state.

Slotted floors save work for swinemen

Pigs do not perform better on slotted floors than on solid floors when environment feed and management are equal. But Edward C. Miller, Michigan State University swine extension specialist, thinks the swine producer "does better."

The seine authority knows it results in less hard and undesirable work in manure disposal. He believes it gives the producer more time to do a more effective job of management and planning of his swine operation. Miller finds that hog farm operators can handle about twice as many animals when they are confined and clean up is eliminated. Pens can also handle a greater number of hogs, and odor, while not eliminated, is controlled.

Slotted floors in hog farrowing or rearing pens cost about $1.75 per sq. ft. more than solid floors when the job is completely contracted, Miller says. However, producers with limited capital who elect to build their own concrete slats, find they can do it at less cost if they have the time.

Concrete slats should be five inches wide at the top, in either farrowing, nursery or finishing facilities, Miller says in farrowing facilities, slats should be laid three-eighths of an inch apart. In nursery facilities (for pits 25 - 40 pounds) three-quarters inch apart, and for finishing, one inch apart.

Information on making concrete slats for swine house floors can be obtained by writing: Edward C. Miller, Extension Swine Specialist, Department of Animal Husbandry, Anthony Hall, Michigan State University, East Lansing, 48823.

Giant Sunflowers and Big Pumpkin Contest

By JOHN AYLSWORTH

Clinton 4-H'ers are trying to see who can raise the biggest pumpkin or sunflower in the county. More than 150 entries are expected in each contest area. The county contests, which end on Oct. 1 with a show at Smith Hall, are being held in conjunction with the National Contest sponsored by the Men's Garden Clubs of America. 4-H members taking the horticulture project can participate in the contest. Leaders who attended the horticulture meeting on April 30 obtained free seeds of the Mammoth Sunflower Variety from the Perry - Morse Seed Company and the King of the Mammoth Pumpkin from the George Parks Seed Co.

The county 4-H program is sponsoring the contest to encourage more interest in youth gardens. Many of the clubs are having contests among their own members as well as competing against others on the county or national level. Lynn and Sharon Price from Marietta, Georgia won the National Pumpkin Contest in 1968 with a pumpkin weighing 235 pounds, while Tod Ribow of West Allis, Wisconsin had the largest sunflower with a seed head measuring 22 1/8 inches. These are several records the members can try to reach. The members have the opportunity to see what different methods can be developed to stimulate faster growth of the pumpkin and sunflower.

By Oct. 1, we will know who has raised the largest sunflower or heaviest pumpkin in Clinton County. The top three entries in the county will be submitted for the National Contest. Every member who enters the contest will receive a certificate from the Men's Garden Club of America. Throughout the summer I will keep you posted on the progress of the member with the largest entries.

Dr. Lee Taylor, Extension Horticultural Specialist from Michigan State University spoke to the horticulture leaders on suggested vegetable varieties to plant, fertilizing the plants, insects and disease control and the use of black plastic mulch. Dr. Taylor discussed the National Junior Horticulture Contest for the state and national level.

Irene Beaman of St. Johns demonstrated dried weed arrangements, types of weeds to use and preparation of the weeds to be used. She answered many questions the leaders had in the use of dried weeds. Weeds can be a nuisance but can be very beautiful in a dried weed arrangement.

The 56 4-H members and leaders who attended the Yankee Springs Trip Award Weekend April 24-26 had a perfect weekend of weather for camping. Throughout the weekend the members visited the Devil's Soup Bowl, took a conservation hike, helped plan and conduct sessions on recreation, vespers, church service and individual development as well as meeting many new friends. It was warm enough that a number of them went swimming. Those members who won the trip and didn't go surely missed out on a wonderful experience.

Entries are coming in for the 4-H Talent Show on Friday May 15, 8 p.m. at the St. Johns High School. There will be entries in vocal, instrumental, dance and dramatic for large or small groups in each of these areas. Five winning acts will be selected to represent the county at the 4-H Youth Exploration Days at Michigan State University in August.

All 4-H clubs planning to have a 4-H softball team in either the green or white league are asked to have their team managers attend a meeting on Wednesday, May 20, 8 p.m. at the Extension Office in St. Johns. Items to be discussed include schedules, changes in the rules and procedures to follow. All clubs should know what diamonds will be available for playing the games.

The Spats and Spurs 4-H Horse Club has 11 members enrolled for the summer program with Janet Bashore, Barbara Palmer and Jean Knight serving as leaders. Officers for the new year include: Lori Nostrand, secretary; Christie Chant, treasurer; Debbie Yursec, news-reporter.

A demonstration on the correct procedure of bridling, saddling, mounting and dismounting a horse was given by Janet and Gary Bashore, Jim Zarkas and Christie Chant. The members discussed the importance of the safety rules to follow while riding and working with horses, the anatomy and diseases of horses plus the care needed in caring for a horse.

Jean Knight showed a movie on the judging program during a horse show narrated by Janet Bashore. The 4-H Youth Agent explained the 4-H program to the group, their responsibilities as a member, the activities open to them, the awards and trip program. Mr. Frank Knight will be the club's guest speaker at their next meeting demonstrating the correct way of tying a horse which is very important on a trail ride.

Restrictions lifted on sugarbeet acreage

Removal of acreage restrictions on 1970 crop sugarbeet plantings has been announced by Nick Smith, chairman of the Michigan Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committee. Producers now can plant as many acres of 1970 crop sugarbeets as they can contract for with the sugar companies.

Restrictions on 1970 sugarbeets were officially announced last October. At that time the 1970 crop was limited to 1,450,000 acres. This limitation was raised to 1,550,000 acres on Feb. 27.

THE REASON for the initial limitation on 1970 crop plantings was the expected production from the record 1,660,000 acres planted to sugarbeets in 1969. It was estimated that 3,820,000 short tons, raw value, of beet sugar would be produced. This production would have resulted in excessive inventories.

The lifting of the restrictions on sugarbeet plantings for 1970 was due to the severe freeze in the Rocky Mountain region last October and the low sugar content of the beets that were harvested and processed. These conditions resulted in a lower estimate of the production from the 1969 crop of about one-half million tons.

Smith added in closing that another reason for lifting the restrictions is that the acreage, allotted to several regions of the country will not be fully planted. After the experience last fall, processors are contracting only for that acreage which they believe can be processed without an extended processing season and the resultant risk of severe freezing damage.

Don't collect DDT Ball tells students

Campaigns to collect DDT and other pesticides by student groups and other citizens should be discouraged, said B. Dale Ball, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

"After the Michigan Department of Agriculture cancelled most DDT registrations in Michigan, disposal was considered by natural resource, agriculture and health agencies, and collection was ruled against as undesirable," Ball said.

Hazards are multiplied when large amounts of pesticides are concentrated through collecting, and there is always the danger of some compound other than DDT doing serious damage to persons involved in the collecting.

Ball said that in a mass collection, many chemicals in addition to DDT would undoubtedly be brought together. While DDT is of very little hazard to human health, other compounds may pose serious hazards, said Ball. Bottles, cans, and other containers may lose their label identity and be crushed or broken to release contents during mass collection, he said. Collectors or others handling them would then be faced with a mass of chemicals, many of unknown origin and possibly very dangerous.

Guidelines for individual disposal of leftover chemicals, a much safer system, have been prepared and are available upon request at the Michigan Department of Agriculture offices, Director Ball said.

"While I sympathize with the organizers of pesticide collection drives in our mutual goal of the wisest use and disposal of pesticides," he added, "I have a deep concern that serious accident may result through mass collection."

SOIL STEWARDSHIP PROCLAMATION

Gov. Milliken last week signed a proclamation for Soil Stewardship Week, May 3-10. Attending the ceremony were, from left, Dwight Spuller, president, Michigan Association of Soil Conservation Districts (Branch); Mrs Wilma Garman, president, Ladies Auxiliary (Mendon); Joseph Garman, association vice president (Mendon); Bruce Ruggles, association treasurer (Kingston); Gov. Milliken; Randel Burson, immediate past president (Schoolcraft); Mrs Bruce Ruggles, chairman, Soil Stewardship Committee (Kingston); Arthur Cratty, state conservationist, U.S. Soil Conservation Service (East Lansing); Russell Hill, executive secretary, State Soil Conservation Committee, Michigan Department of Agriculture and MSU Extension Specialist (East Lansing).

New developments quickly followed. From the 1920's on, design improvements made movement of freight by highway more efficient and economical.

State Crop Report

By MICHIGAN CROP REPORTING SERVICE

WEEK ENDING APRIL 25

Cold wet weather during the first half of April delayed the start of field work and rain early in the week ending the 25th caused further delay.

Although plowing and fitting for and planting of spring crops became active late in the week, field work averaged six days late at the week's end.

Only two days were considered suitable for field work. Most areas of the State reported soil moisture supplies to be either adequate or surplus.

Oat plantings were about 19 per cent complete as of April 25. This compares with 15 per cent a year ago and a normal rate of 30 per cent planted.

Less than five per cent of the sugar beet acreage was planted by the week's end.

This percentage is about the same as planted last year, but is way below the 65 per cent of sugar beet acreage planted by April 25 in 1968. More than 10 per cent of the potato acreage has been planted in Bay County, but less than five per cent is planted in the rest of the state.

Warm weather at the end of the week stimulated growth of pasture, hay and wheat. Winter wheat appears to have suffered less winter damage than usual.

Vegetable growers are preparing for spring planting. Some celery, peas, carrots and onions have been planted.

Pruning of fruit trees, applying dormant sprays and disposing of brush were active during the week. Cold weather has delayed fruit bud development.

across the nation. Although the Depression caused a temporary setback in the growth, by 1938 there were more than four million trucks on the roads.

Dairy foods meeting teaches nutrition

Vickie Thelen, Route 2, St. Johns, was among more than 75 young people from across the state who learned about dairy foods nutrition and the dairy industry at the 1970 Dairy Foods Conference, April 26-28, at Michigan State University.

"The conference was designed to teach young people the nutritive value of dairy products and create appreciation for the Michigan dairy industry through knowledge of career opportunities in marketing of dairy products," said J. Ray Gillespie, state 4-H youth program leader and co-ordinator of the conference.

Specialists from several departments of the university were involved with the conference. Mrs Laurie Sims of the foods-nutrition department discussed "Family Food Habits," Mrs Barbara Pelowski, assistant to dean of students, spoke on "Life Style Patterns," and Mary Zehner, consumer marketing information specialist, commented on "Market Research."

The conference was sponsored by the American Dairy Association of Michigan through the 4-H Club Foundation of Michigan and was conducted by MSU's Cooperative Extension Service.

Output per man-hour on the farm in this country increased 82 per cent between 1957-58 and 1968.

Truck registrations to double by 1980

More than 68 per cent of all fresh fruits and vegetables grown in the United States last year were hauled to market by trucks. What's more, some 97 per cent of frozen foods shipped 600 miles or less were shipped by trucks.

Ninety-five per cent of all livestock and, overall, some 89 per cent of all agricultural products were carried from farm to initial markets by trucks.

IN ALL, the nearly 17 million for-hire and private motor trucks registered in the United States last year traveled more miles (more than 200 billion), moved more tonnage (more than 3.5 billion tons), and paid more in federal and state highway "user" taxes (more than $5 billion) than ever before!

Employment in the industry reached an all-time peak: Between nine and ten million jobs, depending on the source of the estimate. Salaries, too, remained well ahead of the average for all private industry, nearing the $10,000 mark—on the average.

New truck registrations, some 1.7 million in 1967, had jumped again and are expected to double to 3.15 million per year by 1980.

AS AN industry, trucking was and is second in size in the nation only to agriculture.

Yet, this was not always so. About 60 years ago, the nation's truck fleet numbered some 700 vehicles "that could hardly be called reliable," industry experts admit.

But, by the end of the next decade, there already were some one million trucks.

New developments quickly followed. From the 1920's on, design improvements made movement of freight by highway more efficient and economical.

GONE were huge engines housed under eight-foot-long hoods, oversized trailers, and cavernous fuel tanks. Trailers were redesigned to eliminate waste space. Lighter metals were used in all areas of design. Since maximum truck weights and lengths are set by law, this meant reduced operational costs and lower shipping rates.

Farmers are 'in' with tractor cabs

Why a farmer will purchase a cabs tractor when he would never buy a topless automobile is somewhat puzzling, says a Michigan State University safety engineer.

"The average farmer spends more dollars and hours on his tractor than he does in his car," according to Dr. Richard Pfister. "He operates a tractor about 500 to 1,000 hours annually, which would be like driving 25,000 to 50,000 miles a year in his car."

"The objection I hear most often, is cost," Pfister says. Basic cab cost is about $700, but varies depending upon accessories added. "But the advantages of owning a tractor with a cab are so numerous that more and more farmers are justifying the extra investment."

Comfort is perhaps the greatest advantage, Pfister says. "The cab shields the operator from sun, wind, cold, rain, dust and chaff. For the operator with allergies, the pressurized air filtering system and air conditioner are a real boon." Newer models also contain acoustical padding and wall configurations which reduce the level of noise. "This is particularly important since many tractors produce noise at levels which may result in ear damage if operated over long periods of time," Pfister points out.

Moreover, cabs offer an added element of safety from flying objects, broken chains, hydraulic line failure and overhead branches. They are also safer for passengers since they prevent "fall-off."

Many cabs are crush-resistant, Pfister says. Since half of all tractor fatalities occur in overturns, this is a significant safety factor. The MSU safety engineer suggests avoiding cabs that can crush the operator if the tractor turns over. Literature on the cab usually will state whether the model is crush-resistant.

Another advantage of owning a cab is that you don't need a machine shed to keep rain or snow off the seat. Also, Pfister says, a tractor cab is a good selling point in hiring and keeping help.

EARTH DAY AFTERMATH

Students at St. Johns High School put some of the Earth Day preaching into practice last weekend. Led by Michael Gehoski, a science teacher at the school, a group of students went out to the 70-acre city park Saturday for a day of cleaning. They raked leaves, picked up dead branches and debris, painted road posts and play equipment and cleaned several picnic pavilions. The students earlier this month expressed concern that the burning of leaves and rubbish was causing air pollution. The city furnished a truck Saturday and the rubbish was taken to a land fill.

Short, fat, dumpy or slim here's best way to dress

By LORRAINE SPRAGUE Extension Home Economist

There is no question about it, clothes do create illusions—good and bad. Clothes can make a woman look taller or shorter, fatter or slimmer, sharp and attractive or dull and dowdy. Color, lines, and texture all work together to produce the picture. Your choice of each determines what your picture will be.

Recently we discussed basic colors. Let's now, this week, look at colors in general and those lines and textures we just mentioned. We are still considering these as they are useful in building lasting fashionable wardrobes.

Bold strong colors will best be reserved for accent. Two or more bold bright colors will combine in a small print combined in a big way, you'll find them overpowering.

You'll be obscured and that's not what the fashionably dressed woman is after. Keep in mind colors change under light; check them as they'll be worn, daylight or artificial. When you try to match, or coordinate colors, use swatches. Very few people can successfully remember true color. The human mind is fooled for the color tricks it plays on us.

Know yourself and know your wardrobe. Select only those colors that are best for you. Look for colors that harmonize with your total wardrobe. Selecting only one off-color can ruin a total effect. It can be mighty costly too if it means following up with additional accessories. And if it means a different coat, special shoes, etc. It can be disastrous to a clothing budget.

Knowing your own figure problems, or figure variations as some people prefer calling them, allows you to minimize them. It's equally possible to emphasize good qualities, when you know them. Beautiful eyes, lovely skin, or attractive hair can be accentuated through careful color and lines selection. Equally possible is the camouflaging of less attractive features.

The "tall woman usually will select suits and dresses with soft lines. She'll look for medium prints and some contrasting colors to make her appear shorter. Horizontal lines, well spaced, will work to her advantage.

The small short woman will seek simple lines and details. Pencil-slim or slightly flared skirts, one-color ensembles, princess lines or narrow belts will all tend to keep the eye moving in a smooth even line and help give illusion of height. She'll want small prints.

The full figure doesn't have to wear drab black, but the more neutral colors will be her best. She'll use more color for accent. Dull finished fabrics are more slimming than shiny ones. Vertical and lone diagonal lines make her look slimmer. A smooth silhouette with an easy fit and slightly flared skirts will be her best choice.

Thin figures can select fabrics with more body and bulk, the crisp stiff standaways and the shiny taffetas and satins. Plaids, bold checks and patterns as long as they don't overpower her, are fine. She is the one who can afford full cut bodices and shirts, boxy jackets and other details that help to increase apparent size.

If it's heavy arms, thin arms, big hips, thick waistline, round shoulders, narrow shoulders or other variations that cause you design problems, look carefully for colors and lines that conceal. For example heavy arms take nicely to well-cut sleeves, stoles and scarfs worn around the shoulder and arm. Thin arms hide in wide cuffs and loosely fitted sleeves.

Dull fabrics and softly flared skirts conceal large hips. Round shoulders are much less in evidence in a slightly bloused bodice. Set in sleeves offer a "straightening" appearance as opposed to cut-in sleeves.

Thickened waistlines ask for loosely fitted styles, Chanel type jackets or dresses with bloused backs. Too narrow shoulders appear wider with extended shoulder lines, crosswise yokes and even very subtle padding.

Not to be overlooked, when developing your fashionable wardrobe, are the different types of undergarments needed to create the effect for which you are striving. Slips, half or full length, and foundation garments of all types make their individual contribution as to how well dressed you'll look.

Start with a survey of what you have and discard the unusable. Become aware of what true fashion really is and develop an understanding of the differences between "fashion" and "style." Learn to recognize "fads." Take an honest appraisal of your figure variations and determine which colors and lines are best for you. Always think before you buy.

Farmers to use more chemicals in Clinton

By GEORGE McQUEEN Extension Agent

More chemicals will be applied in Clinton county this year. Increased use for control of disease on bean seed, soil insects and diseases on all seeds, weevil on alfalfa, beetle on oats and weeds in all crops means more pounds and more kinds applied on farms.

As more chemicals are used, both on farms and by homeowners chances for misuse increase. Avoid most problems by reading the label and following directions carefully before using—not after.

Problems easily overlooked occur in filling and emptying sprayers. Weed killers dropped, slopped or dripped on lawn, flower beds or garden have made some wives unhappy. When spilled on concrete or other hard surface chemicals or sprays can flush direct into streams or through sewage treatment plants to cause more problems.

In filling a sprayer be careful not to spill the pesticide in opening the container or in putting it into the tank. Do not allow the tank to spill over. Be sure all sprayer valves are closed and nozzles are not leaking.

In dumping left over pesticides haul the sprayer to a trash dump or to some out of the way area where contamination will not be a problem. An old fence row might be appropriate if drainage doesn't go directly into a stream. The same applies to material left after cleaning the sprayer.

Do not fill sprayers near wells or on areas draining directly into ditches, streams or sewers.

In calibrating the sprayer use water rather than spray mixes. Dispose of empty containers by burning or burying. Label directions often list preferred ways.

Properly used pesticides make living easier and more pleasant; careless use can present hazards.

How farmers earn government payments

Farm program participants are urged to check their agreements to determine that there is no excess of the acreage of wheat and feed grains permitted on their farm.

With the enrollment period in the 1970 Wheat and Feed Grain Programs concluded, Nick Smith, Chairman of the Michigan Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committee, today reminded the participants of their obligations to earn the payments provided for under these programs.

Government agreements impose restrictions on farmers requiring them to lay idle income producing cropland. He noted that payments are contingent upon a farmer setting aside acreage equal to their intentions to divert and not utilize this acreage for the production of any crops in 1970. They are also restricted in using this set aside acreage for pasturing through Aug. 31.

The average acreage normally in conserving crops must also be maintained. This restriction is imposed to prevent program participants from limiting their wheat and feed grain production and devoting acreage normally into conserving crops to production of other grains and possibly create a surplus of such crops. One last restriction that is imposed requires a participant to comply with the wheat allotment and feed grain base on any other farm in which he has an interest. To do otherwise would, in effect, be defeating the purpose of the program.

Smith concluded that failure to comply with any of the program requirements could result in the loss of a participant's entire payment. The penalty could be quite extreme, considering the producer's potential income from farm crops would be diminished because of his participation in the program.

Women's wages below men's

A comparison of the median wage or salary incomes of women and men who work full time year round reveals that the women's income is considerably less than that of men and that the gap has widened in recent years. In 1955, women's median income of $2,719 was 64 per cent of the $4,252 received by men. In 1968, women's median earnings of $4,457 were only 58 per cent of the $7,664 received by men.

Farmers are reminded of youth job limits

Farmers are reminded that the U.S. Department of Labor has revised its listing of agricultural jobs classified as being particularly hazardous to youths under 16 years of age.

The number of jobs declared hazardous was reduced from 16 to 11 as of Jan. 1, according to Richard Pfister, Michigan State University extension safety engineer.

JOBS prohibited to youths under 16 include operating most farm machinery; handling chemicals, anhydrous ammonia and explosives; and working at heights above 20 feet or on timber, with over six-inch butt diameter. A complete list may be obtained from the local extension office.

The order does not apply to children working on their parents' farm. Also, any youth 14 years of age or older who has completed the first year of the 4-H Tractor Care and Safety Program and the supplementary requirements can obtain a "Certificate of Training" through the county extension office. This certificate makes him eligible for farm jobs where tractor driving is involved. Vocational agriculture teachers may also issue certificates to students who complete specified training programs.

IN ANY CASE, Pfister says, there are a number of jobs which youths under 16 can legally perform. Among these are: milking cows, repairing fences, mowing lawns, picking fruit (at heights under 20 feet), driving a truck on the farm (without passengers), feeding livestock and poultry, and many others.

"Many youngsters are anxious to work, and they should be hired whenever possible," the MSU safety engineer says. "They are a valuable source of additional labor, but it is important that they be protected from the most hazardous jobs."

The earliest written record of cheese dates back to 4,000 B.C. The first cheese factory in this country was built more than a century ago.

Crabgrass control

In having a healthy lawn free from crabgrass there is no substitute for the basic idea of healthy, well-fed grass.

The lawn should be well fertilized and managed properly as to cutting height and frequency. It should be watered adequately at appropriate times of the year. These practices help to maintain a dense turf which competes successfully with the crabgrass. However, if crabgrass has been a problem in past years it probably will again be a problem this season and now is the time to do something about it.

The best way to control crabgrass is to apply a herbicide pre-emergence so that the seedlings will be killed as or soon after they germinate. Crabgrass seeds germinate about the time Forsythia is in bloom so the herbicide should be applied by that time. The lawn should be free of debris before application is made.

Recommended herbicides include azak, benefin, bensulfide, DCPA, and siduron. These herbicides are sold under several trade names and many of them are combined with fertilizer and sold under a trade name as a "Weed and Feed" treatment.

In fact, it is easier to find a combination than the herbicide alone. Refer to Extension Bulletin E-653, Lawn Weed Control for amounts of herbicides to use and precautions. However, in using the weed and feed combinations one must follow the directions of the manufacturer.

The census of Agriculture will count about 2,979,000 farms this year, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This is nearly 28 per cent less than in 1959 and the lowest number since 1870.

Who were the founders of the Republic?

The signers of the Declaration of Independence, of course. Men like John Hancock, Samuel Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, and Edward Rutledge. Those names that sing out the early history of the Nation.

But there were many others, too. People with names that were often plain, sometimes quaint, and occasionally downright odd. We know their names because they were counted in the first U.S. census—that of 1790. This first count was practically a roster of the families that founded the Republic.

But in 1790, customs were different and so the names of all family heads were recorded and made public. Some of the names included Joseph Scolds, Thomas Simmers, Truelove Sparks, Sermon Coffin, Sarah Simpers, Hannah Cheese, Mercy Pepper, and Wanton Bump.

And Boston Frog, Booze Still, Over Jordan, and William Sorrows.

And such families as the Pockepines, the Drips, the Fryovers, the Hungerpealers, and the Slappys.

A 1909 study of the 1790 census names arranged a portion of the family names into general groups that illustrate how important common events and experience have been in name formation. The general groups in 1790 were as follows:

Household and domestic affairs—Examples of names derived from this source would include Fish, Trout, Lamb, Kidney, Ham, Melon, Silk, Feather, Lace and Bonnet. Others, perhaps less likely to be found today are Soup, Tripe, Hash, Vinegar, Grapeswine, Redsteves, Bodkin, and Mendingall.

Nations and places—Names from this source included Ireland, Germany, Hungary, Canada, Poland, Spain, Athens, Boston, and Paradise. Some of these can still be found.

Human characteristics—A tremendous number of early names belong in this category including Beeman, Councilman, Shortman, Short, Shorter, Pilgrim, Goodfellow, Swindle, Bony, Barefoot, Drinker, Old, Witty, Head, Hand, English, and Irish. More quaint were Weedingham, Pettyfool, Rascal, Cusser, Dunce, Booby, Madsavage, Devotion, Flurry, Neat, Miserly, Underhand, Cold-bath, Gripe, and Howls.

Relationship—This would include names like Cousins, Brother (s), Couples, Sister, Neighbors, and Daughters.

Nature—This was another big group in 1790. In addition to such common names as Brooks, Rivers, and Lake, there were Meadows, Parks, Mountain, Woodland, Fountain, Middlebrook, Marsh, Pool, and Pond. Such names are still commonly found in the U.S. More striking among the 1790 names in the category were Chestnutwood, Maypole, Squirrel, Tanyard, Beavers, Fly, Roach, Toadvine, Winterberry, Flippers, Claws, and Hoofs.

The ocean and maritime subjects—Names like Shoals, Bunks, Mariner, Shipboy, Anchor, Billows, Seas, and Breeze were in this category.

Games, religion, music, and literature — Preacher, Rector, Blessing, Sinner, Chass, Clubs, Singer, Duett, Fife, Cornett, Jingles, Rymes, Ballad, and Parody.

War—In this group were Battle, Cannon, Swords, Banner, Fort but also Treason, Bugle, Boom, Guns, Fightmaster, Pistol, and Shots.

Death and violence—These subjects resulted in names like Hears, Vaults, Tombs, More-graves, Duel, Murder, and Demon.

Time—Inspired such names as Winter, August, Tewday, Friday, Sunday, Goodnight, Clock, and Bells.

Names wear well or poorly depending on the fabric from which they have been cut. Names that are too quaint, frivolous, boastful, or ludicrous—names, in short, that bring ridicule on their owners—soon wear out any popularity they might have briefly enjoyed.

People have an innate need to be dignified and to bear a name that reflects this need. The names that continue to be used generation after generation are those that respect the dignity of the person.

50 pct. jump seen in state population

Michigan's population will increase by more than 50 per cent by the year 2000, the Michigan Department of Commerce (MDC) reported recently.

An estimated 13,500,000 persons will be counted in the first census of the 21st century compared to about 8,900,000 who were tabulated during the 1970 census.

State Commerce Director Richard E. Whitmer said the MDC's office of Economic Expansion has just completed its analysis of the latest projections for the balance of the 20th century.

Michigan's population will pass the 10 million mark in the late 1970's and an estimated 10.2 million persons will be counted in the 1980 census, an estimated 11.8 million in 1990 and approximately 13.5 million in 2000. Whitmer said Michigan's growth during the 1960's fell short of forecasts that were made in the 1950's. One reason was the decline in the birth rate experienced throughout the U.S. in that period.

In 1954, the U.S. Department of Commerce predicted Michigan's 1970 population would be slightly more than nine million.

In 1960, the same agency issued three projections—optimistic, cautiously optimistic and conservative. All three were high.

The optimistic estimate predicted Michigan would have a population of 9.5 million by 1970, a forecast of cautious optimism estimated 9.3 million while the conservative projection predicted 9.1 million.

A population forecast issued by the MDC in 1966 adjusted the projections downward to compensate for new data that was available and predicted Michigan's 1970 population would be 8,645,000—nearly 300,000 less than the state's population is today.

"Population forecasts are extremely important factors in the development of socioeconomic and physical plans for the future," Whitmer said. "Well developed plans for the construction of schools, highways and hospitals to meet future needs must include some prediction of the number of people to be served and knowledge of Michigan's ever-changing population growth is a necessary requirement for accurately assessing the state's future."

"Our forecasts are constantly adjusted as new data becomes available," Whitmer added.

Electrical failure result in auto break downs

Battery, starter and ignition system failures were the reason nearly two million Michigan drivers suffered automobile breakdowns in 1969, placing electrical troubles on top of the list of annual motor vehicle operating difficulties, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"State motorists found their cars disabled 4,084,310 times last year and in 47 per cent of the cases electrical troubles were the reason," says Robert M. Smith, Auto Club's emergency road service manager. "This total is an increase of six per cent over 1968."

FLAT TIRES were the second most frequent cause of breakdowns with 737,000 flats recorded.

Motoring miseries involving 724,000 cars that were stuck in snow, mud or sand, or had mechanical failures serious enough that they had to be towed to a garage for repairs, ranked third. "Severe weather conditions this past winter in much of Michigan are partially reflected in these figures," explains Smith.

MORE THAN 205,000 motorists caused their own inconveniences, as 156,000 allowed their cars to run out of gas and another 49,000 locked themselves out of their cars or lost their keys.

Other items on Auto Club's list of motoring ills include fuel line problems, which occurred 163,000 times, and brake troubles, numbering 18,000 times.

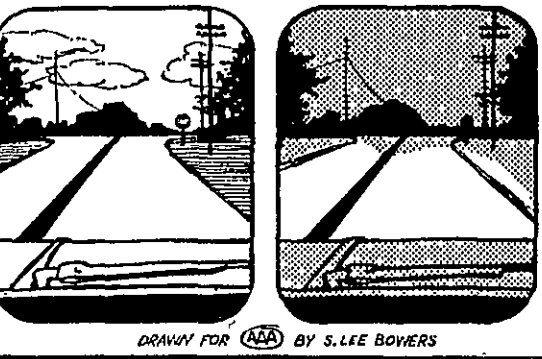

Additionally, there were more than 356,000 breakdowns covering miscellaneous difficulties too varied to categorize, Smith says.

Blackbirds and other problem birds destroy about 15 million tons of food in the world each year. That amounts to the equivalent of one third of the United States' food-grain production last year.

Last winter wasn't exactly normal

Michigan's 1969-1970 winter season is most accurately described by somewhat conflicting statements as follows: colder than normal, drier than normal, above normal seasonal snowfall, notable absence of major storms moving across Michigan and yet record monthly snowfall totals at selected lake shore stations.

Michigan's location in the heart of the Great Lakes is the important factor that makes the diverse weather pattern possible. The variability in weather is also the key to the highly diverse agricultural practices and wide varieties of crops grown throughout Michigan.

For the period, November 1969 through March 1970, temperature averages were three to four degrees below normal in lower Michigan except in the area bordering on Lake Huron where averages were 1.5 to two degrees below normal.

In the Upper Peninsula, temperature averages were one to two degrees below normal along Lake Superior with departures increasing to 3.5 degrees in the Sault Ste. Marie area.

Lower Michigan experienced below normal monthly temperature averages during the entire five-month period.

Above normal averages in the U.P. during November and December helped to offset the large deficit departures experienced after the first of January. Temperature extremes for the winter were 35 degrees below zero on Feb. 14 at Stambaugh and 67 degrees at Ontonagon on Nov. 7. Since the first of January, the warmest Michigan temperature, 56 degrees, was recorded on March 21 at Stambaugh and Detroit.

The total precipitation deficit for the winter varied from 3.5 inches in south central Michigan to four inches in northern lower Michigan and over 5.5 inches in the western U.P. Departures from normal were smaller in areas bordering the Great Lakes, particularly near Lake Michigan. The colder than normal temperatures resulted in a high frequency of lake snow-shower activity.

In January, with average temperature departures more than ten degrees below normal in portions of lower Michigan, Ontonagon and Hart with 56.8 and 63.5 inches of snowfall, respectively, established new records for their greatest monthly snowfall.

Contrasted with the above normal seasonal snowfall totals near the Great Lakes are the interior areas of the southwestern U.P. and south central Lower Peninsula where total snowfall received through the end of March was slightly below normal.

Because meat takes the largest share of the food dollar, shoppers in search of savings should pay particular attention at the meat counter. For example, if you are selecting a cut for pot roast or other long, slow, moist heat cooking method, save 10¢ a pound by choosing a less tender lower grade of beef.

Eggs before the first week of May are the best thing to circle about for the homemaker. They are the best they have been in years.

Undue concern

It is ironic that a bill limiting income tax exemptions to only the first two children of a family has been introduced into the U.S. Senate. Ironic because of the fact that President Nixon's cabinet averages 4.4 children per member.

Such legislation not only penalizes large families but it does so with sledgehammer impact over a planning matter which should be determined by the family situation. In addition, there is little chance that supporters of this type of legislation would provide for military exemptions for these "unwanted" children.

Numerous studies have been made in recent times because of population increases but a fact determined by the Greenwich College Research Center of Greenwich Conn. probably offers a most basic observation. Their research proved that an American college student is more likely to be happy if he is from a big family and believes in God.

The combination seems to be one which was fairly acceptable at the time of our country's founding and one which can be found deeply woven into our history. Nathan Hale and Ben Franklin are only two great persons of our past who came from families of twelve or more and the large and closely knit family is synonymous with the development of our country.

The important characteristics of a large family, including members with experiences of social contacts and respect for others may certainly contribute something to the strength of moral fibre that brought us to the forefront as a nation. As this loss is more and more evident it's most pronounced manifestation is in the form of undue concern over population.

There must be a message somewhere in the fact that man has developed a capacity for standing on planets other than his own.

Action louder than words

The time is rapidly approaching when people will become weary of the purely negative business of spreading alarm about the environment. They will be more interested in hearing about the positive actions taking place to cure some of the problems. When that day arrives, the industries and the individuals, the legislators and the scientists, the businessmen who have tackled a national clean up job with all the resources at their command, may become the real leaders and the progressors of tomorrow.

As the head of one nationwide concern acidly comments, "An activist is the guy that cleans up the river, not the guy that concludes it's dirty. We need a generation that won't be content to hold seminars. They've got to go out and clean up the rivers and clean up the sky. That takes leadership."

MOVILLE, Iowa, RECORD: "According to Gallup Polls for 1969 President Richard Nixon was acclaimed first on the 'most admired man' list. Billy Graham and Spiro Agnew were second and third. People are free with their advice about how the president should or should not handle the problems of the United States, but there are very few persons who would want his job at any price. The majority of the people feel he is doing all he can to help end the war in Vietnam, but the U.S. didn't get into it overnight and likewise it will take time to get out of this situation, that no one really likes!"

BOGALUSA, La., NEWS: "Did you know there are 80 million people in the United States over 35 years of age and people over 35 have the largest earning and spending power. Just thought we'd throw that in to go along with flower power."

EVERETT, Wash., HERALD: "J. Edgar Hoover . . . sets the record straight as follows: 'For the past several years our citizens have been barraged with unbridled vulgarity, obscenity, blasphemy, perversion and public desecration of our cherished ideals and symbols. Although strong protests have been made from portions of our concerned citizenry, for the most part these degrading and debasing activities are increasing. Immorality is becoming more of the rule than the exception . . .'"

50 YEARS AGO May 13, 1920

Officials of the Grand Trunk Railroad promised a new depot for St. Johns "before the snow flies." The new depot was to replace the old facility which had been destroyed in the March tornado.

"Because he felt sorry for the girl who was obliged to work to support herself and because they liked each other," Lynn Dickerson is now in the Clinton County jail," read the lead on a Page One story. When Dickerson applied for a marriage license to wed Bernice Lyons, he gave his age as 21 instead of 19 and she gave her age as 18 instead of 14. The arrest was made at the request of the girl's mother who later said she had reconsidered and wanted the couple to live together.

In baseball, St. Johns defeated Ovid, 26-10 "and at no time during the game did the visitors approach even the margin of victory. With the score at the end of the eighth, 26 to 5, Frank, who hitherto had seemed to the Ovid fans to possess a magical power over the apple, began tossing the sphere to the unhappy visitors, and they circled the diamond for five more times."

Page one "news item": Eugene B. Parr of the Square Deal Store is back from Cuba and that means that the Square Deal Store is back on the Market Basket Page, which is good news to all. There is economy in patronizing the store which is not afraid to quote prices in print.

And on the Market Basket Page, The Square Deal Store advertised a 24 1/2-pound sack of Moss Rose Flour for $1.50, three pounds of "good bulk coffee" for $1.15, and a 10-pound keg of white fish for $2, among many other specials.

The Law of Diminishing Returns

Ode To A Potato Bug

By WARREN E. DOBSON

You, with the striped coat so gay I would wish you on your way, But I fear you're here to stay, The season through.

Too soon you will find a mate, And proceed to propagate, Bug populations to inflate, So woe is me.

Each year I hasten to dispel, From fields I've tended long and well, But ever do your numbers swell, To spread defeat.

Each season I have tried to hide, In secret places far and wide, But ever thou art still inside, My new spud patch;

So annually new ways I seek, To curb thy greedy little beak— As foe-man, thou art far from weak, Potato Beetle.

So now I wage a war anew, And struggle all the season thru, And all because of little you— Potato Bug!

From the state house

By DICK ALLEN 88th District Representative

Earth, Environment, Ecology. These are the big E's of the seventies. And behind them is Enthusiasm, Energy, Excitement and Exuberance.

Public involvement and enthusiasm is often necessary to achieve legislation in the public interest. In between the peaks of public concern about the legislative process lethargy and special interest groups take hold.

While public pressure often results in beneficial legislation, it at times results in passage of bills designed more for publicity purposes than for a logical solution to the problem.

In my opinion, that was the case with the Environment Bill passed in the House by a large vote the day before "Earth Day" observances in our schools. This bill makes it appropriate for any citizen to sue another individual, corporation or municipality for pollution of the environment. The courts would decide the issue, without necessarily any regard for existing rules or regulations of the Departments of Natural Resources, Agriculture or Public Health.

I have three rather strong reservations about the bill. First, I think tolerances for such things as automobile emissions, sewage discharges and fertilizer application should be set by professionals in the departments with concurrence of the Legislature rather than by courts.

I also feel individuals, corporations and municipalities should have firm guidelines so they are fully aware whether or not they are committing an act for which they may be later brought to court. Court decisions would determine that you had polluted in the past rather than set a guideline you must meet in the future.

My most serious reservation is that this bill offers false hope to the public. Imagine private citizen Joe Doakes taking on Chrysler, Dow or the Oil Industry in a court suit! The expense would be prohibitive and with current court dockets and delay tactics, a case might last years.

So I think the Legislature copped out passing, at no expense to us, a dramatic bill offering false hope. What we need is better funding of the regulatory agencies for better testing and more surveillance.

And we need more vigorous pursuit and prosecution of those violating existing statutes.

We may move on to these real battles for our environment. So far we have just thrown up a smokescreen.

STRICTLY FRESH

The fellow who gets a kick out of his work should be more careful. You don't have to be an etiquette nut to know that some things just aren't done in restaurants — very often, the food. Teachers agree that it's not right when parents do the kids' homework.

'IF IT FITZ . . .'

The wrong kind of father

By JIM FITZGERALD

The right kind of a father spends his weekends doing jobs around the house and playing with his odd kids.

Or something like that. Sometimes it is difficult to understand exactly what my wife is saying, especially when she talks at the same time she is doing something else, such as hitting my ears.

Anyway, it was Saturday and the sun was shining and the air was warm. Perfect weather for outdoor athletics. And that's what I was doing — watching some outdoor athletes on TV.

"Come out and play basketball with me," my son Eddie asked.

"I'm too old for that game," I answered.

"Gee," he said. "What kind of a father are you?" my wife asked. "Your only son asks for your companionship but you'd rather watch TV."

"Speaking of TV," I said cleverly, "I keep seeing these commercials where the mother and daughter are frolicking together and they are both so well-stacked no one can tell which one is the mother until she opens her mouth and you see it is full of Grape Nuts. But you never see commercials where no one can tell the son from the father. The reason is that Dad works too hard to stay young and trim, with soft hands. He is too busy making money to buy jeweled identification bracelets for his wife and daughters so they can tell each other apart. I think I'm going to cry . . ."

"If you don't play basketball with Eddie, you will have something to cry about," my wife said (or was it my daughter?).

Anyway, I played. And in only 5 minutes my weary legs buckled and I fell hard to the ground. I heard a rib crack. Every kid in the neighborhood was watching. I wanted to bounce right up to show them what a great sport the old man was. Except I couldn't move.

"Are you ok, Dad?" Eddie asked after he'd picked up the ball and made 2 points while standing on my hand.

"I assured him I'd live." The only question was whether I'd ever get on my feet again. I kept hoping my moaning and screaming would bring my wife to the door, tears in her eyes. But she never showed. I finally staggered into the house and collapsed at her feet.

"The bulb over the sink in the bathroom just burned out," she said. "Change it."

"Don't you care that I have been mortally wounded while making my son my buddy?" I asked.

"Do you want to shave in the dark?" she answered.

I had to stand on the sink. A huge globe enclosed the bulb. It stuck. I jerked. The globe fell, breaking into millions of pieces and smashing a hole in the side of the sink.

I do not make these things up. Just stop by and ask to see our purple rest room. Move the soap dish a few inches and you'll see the hole which shall remain in our family forever as a reminder that the man of the house is not the right kind of father.

Onward and Upward and my ribs still ache.

TAKING FIVE

Lead earmuffs

By RON HUARD

Somebody once coined a phrase about music having a quality for soothing the human breast. Maybe we should tell our young people about this phenomenon.

For the second time in little over two months my wife and I had occasion to chaperone a teen dance and for the first time in my life I could, literally, feel the music. The vibrations from what seemed like forty guitars and twice as many amplifiers actually caused my insides to quiver. And the strange part is, one of the player's speakers was on the blink and wasn't used all evening long. Too bad!

Our first chaperone assignment was a few weeks back at Rodney B. Wilson and we were spared to some extent when one of the musicians in the rock group was delayed because of a wrestling match. He arrived only fifteen minutes before the dance was over but his brief appearance quickly showed he hated ear drums.

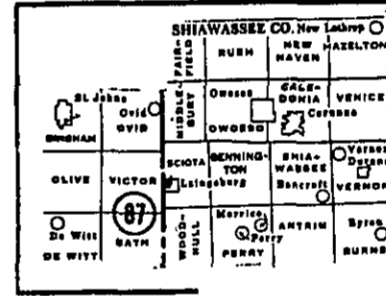

Our most current duty was completed at the St. Joseph Centennial Teen-Dance. I hope it's our last, for some time. I can take squirt guns, which seem to be in rage now, and I get a chuckle out of most of the gyrations that mark the "in" dances among the teen set. But when I have to clamp my jaws together to keep the fillings in my teeth from falling out things get to be a bit too much.

I can recall when hi-fi was coming into its own and the gourmets of that musical dish would have it no way but full volume, which, by comparison, was a whisper in a nurse's ear. There's little wonder why I can't get to our kids these days. They don't hear anything below a yell and the only way they really understand is to be wiggling their joints loose at the time of listening. God love 'em.

Despite the fact I'm on the kids' side in most of their endeavors, I gotta surrender to their musical tastes. I alerted my wife to my desire for not chaperoning another teen blast for at least six months then went to the basement and fashioned a pair of lead earmuffs.

My breast has had all the soothing it can take for some time.

View from the 87th

By WILLIAM S. BALENGER State Representative

I would have to label as utterly preposterous a resolution introduced in the Michigan House of Representatives some time ago which would provide for the licensing and regulation of reporters and editorial writers in the newspaper and broadcasting field.

Such an idea, while radical, is not all that new. It's been broached before, and that's why it needs immediate attention and publicity to alert the public to the hideous aspects of it.

The resolution (HR399) I'm referring to is a dangerous proposal at best. We are really talking here about state licensing and regulation of ideas and opinions. Censorship, if you will.

It's my observation, after several years in the political arena, that some politicians could not be satisfied with the role of the press unless every paragraph of every article was a floral bouquet. All successful politicians know the importance of a good public image, but few of them appreciate "poor press."

It is interesting to note that the State Representative from Detroit who is the main sponsor of the press censorship proposal has never denied the facts expressed in recent news articles and editorials concerning his own conduct. He only objects to the press being allowed to publicize his actions.

I BELIEVE IT is a very fundamental advantage for the people to have an insight into the conduct of their government, and while the press has unquestionably upon occasion abused its job of informing the public, certainly the abuse of public trust in the absence of the so-called Fourth Estate (newspapers, radio and television) would be monumental by comparison.

I do not want to engage in personalities with the people who have sponsored this idea. I only question their motives through the idea itself. And I would point out that persons who desire such direct government control of the news media are probably aiming at something beyond their stated objectives. While they may say they only seek guarantees of fair and accurate reporting, they would establish a dangerous mechanism which would destroy any possibility of balanced coverage and would actually guarantee reporting slanted in favor of incumbent officeholders.

When the press really does its job, it only stands to reason that those politicians who are out of line will be resentful. And there is every indication that the news media in Michigan is, on the whole, performing well. There is more to being the public watchdog than tossing flowers to politicians. Those who would gag the press would tend to push for the bouquets and while the floral tributes might aid re-election, they might not necessarily be in the public interest.

The thing that bothers me most about this resolution is that we now have methods for protection against malicious actions by persons with access to the news media. We have libel and slander laws. And we have the Federal Communications Commission as a watchdog over broadcasting.

One of the most threatening provisions of the proposal is the inclusion of editorial writers. An editorial, by definition, is a statement of bias — a statement of belief, if you will. To attempt to impose impartiality on editorials would be to destroy the editorial function.

I WOULD LIKE to hear the details from proponents of press censorship of how they intend to enforce their licensing regulations. It would be easy to pick out the obvious newspapers, radio and TV stations and identify and license those reporters and editors. But what about reporters and editors of student publications? What about those who want to start their own newspaper? Will the government want to license church bulletin editors? And what about the FTA newsletters or the government agency public relations staff? The Trade Union newspaper staff? The high school newspaper reporters and editors?

Now, there is no doubt about the fact that the news media frequently blunders — not just in the mechanics of reporting but in broader editorial policy as well. Too often supposedly responsible newspapers and TV stations have been so busy cranking out exciting copy that in several cases they have more or less manufactured news and in the process have managed to create Frankensteins out of otherwise obscure crackpots who thrive on publicity. We've seen examples of this during the past year with The Detroit News and The Detroit Free Press. While these publications generally realize belatedly that they have allowed themselves to be used by men or groups who are clearly warped in outlook, they seldom admit their mistakes. The most that can be hoped for is that the offending journal will backtrack like crazy.

But the other side of the — government control of the news media — is even more terrifying. Anyone who has seen Costa-Gavras' political thriller, "Z", which won an Academy Award last month as the "Best Foreign Film" of 1969, knows what the danger of government supervision or manipulation of the press can mean.

In short, if every person who reports any human event, or every institution that wants to publish anything, has to be approved by the State of Michigan, we will have accomplished what dictators have only dared dream about. The occasional bungling of a free press is one of the prices of a democracy which we should always be willing to pay.

Individual Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q—I thought Congress lowered the surtax to 5 per cent but the 1040 tax form still shows it as 10 per cent. What is it?
 A—For 1969, the Income tax surcharge rate is 10 per cent. For the first six months of 1970, the rate is 5 per cent before expiring June 30, 1970.

Q—Taxpayers filing returns for 1969 will, depending on the amount of income tax, use the surcharge tables or percentage method shown on page T-1 in their 1040 tax packages to figure the surcharge. In figuring estimated declarations for 1970, the effective surcharge rate is 2 1/2 per cent since the surcharge expires at mid-year.

Q—The address shown on the label in my tax package is wrong. Should I still use it?
 A—Yes, correct the address right on the label and send it back on the form you file. By using the label you can avoid any processing delay due to a missing or inaccurate Social Security number. This has been a major cause of delayed refunds this year.

Q—I had my 65th birthday last month. Can I take an extra exemption for age on my 1969 return?
 A—No, your age for exemption purposes is what it was on the last day of the tax year for which the return is filed.

Q—What schedules do I have to send in with my tax return?
 A—Attach to your Form 1040 any schedules on which you are required to make entries to file a complete return. However, if you figured your tax on Schedule T you do not have to send this schedule in with your return unless you claim retirement income, investment or foreign tax credit or owe self-employment tax.

Q—When is the next payment on my maid's social security tax due?

A—The deadline is April 30 for the January, February and March quarter of 1970.

Q—How should I make out my check?
 A—Make checks payable to the Internal Revenue Service. Put your Social Security number on the check so that it can be identified should it become separated from your return during processing.

Q—If you are making two payments at the same time, it is advisable to make separate checks. Note on your check or money order what the payment is for as well as giving your Social Security number.

Q—I owe $65 on my 1969 return. Do I have to file an estimated return for 1970?
 A—If you expect to owe $40 or more when you file your 1970 tax return, then you may have to file an estimated tax declaration and pay estimated tax. Read the Form 1040-ES instructions, which can be obtained from your local IRS office, to see if you have to file.

Q—My bank sent me a statement showing how much I received in interest on my savings account. Do I send this in with my return?
 A—No, this statement should not be sent in with your tax return. Enter the total amount of interest you received in 1969 on line 13 of your Form 1040. If the amount is over $100, list the amounts you received in interest from all sources on Schedule B and send it in with your tax return.

Q—Why must a wife sign a joint return when she has no income of her own?
 A—A tax return is a legal document and must be signed to be complete. On joint returns, husband and wife both must sign.

Q—My father never took out his citizenship papers. Does that mean I won't be able to claim him as a dependent?
 A) If he is a resident of the United States and the other dependency tests are met, you may claim him as a dependent.

Here's points on the blind

One of the great myths about blindness is that it somehow triggers a physical change in the other senses, that it somehow makes them more perceptive. The sighted person misled by the myth usually starts "sighing, "Well, blindness has its compensations. They've got a sixth sense, you know."

THERE is no sixth sense. And blindness does not make the other senses sharper, stated Budd R. Goodwin, Lions state secretary. More than 400 Lions-Club members throughout Michigan last week joined during White Canes Week, to acquaint the public with State Laws adopted for the protection of the blind and programs sponsored by the Lions to aid the blind.

WHAT does happen has been experienced by anyone who's ever been blindman's buff. Deprived of the sense of sight, the blind rely more heavily on the

GRASSROOTS OPINION

SELMA, Ala., TIMES-JOURNAL: "Normally, citations accompanying the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal refer to outstanding performance of duty under fire or during aerial combat with a hostile enemy. Today, these medals are being worn by 16 Air Force hurricane hunters... By repeatedly flying a WC-130 Hercules aircraft into the eye of Hurricane Camille, these men obtained data that made possible advance warning of the storm's path and intensity, thereby saving an unknown number of lives."

MOUNT AIRY, Md., COMMUNITY REPORTER: "Let's have more emphasis upon the preservation of the 'personal liberty' and freedom of law-abiding citizens, so that the self-respect of our nation may once more be established and we do not have to continue to hang our heads in shame because of the continued toleration of this rabid radicalism which has been sweeping the country."
