St Johns sets bond election for water, sewers

ST. JOHNS -- A $3,980,000 proposal to construct sanitary sewers, storm sewers and water systems in St. Johns will go to the voters Sept. 11, following action Monday night by the St. Johns City Commission.

The move to take the matters to the voters, after extensive study of the city's systems, passed unanimously. Commr Roy Ebert supported the motion, but said, "In my own conscience, I can't support that type of millage because I don't think that it will pass. But, I'll leave it up to the people."

He labeled his vote as a "qualified yes."

Explaining the need for the 4.42 bond issue election, the St. Johns City Commission has prepared the following informational statement.

"The present St. Johns Wastewater Treatment Plant was constructed and placed in operation in the spring of 1957. The city's population at that time was approximately 5,500.

"The design capacity of the plant was one million gallons per day maximum flow which was projected to serve a population of 10,000. Various phases of the plant, however, were not designed for this capacity, such as the digester which was sized for a population of 6,500, and the communitor, which is the first operation of grinding, has a capacity of only 700,000 gallons per day.

"Unusually heavy flows were recorded early in the life of the plant that were far beyond the capacity of the flow limits.

"In October of 1957, one daily flow surpassed the two million gallon mark. Again in April of 1961 and May of 1962 two million gallon flows were experienced and throughout the life of the plant at various times this double the capacity mark has been nearly reached and sometimes surpassed.

"The average flow has increased over the years from 374 million gallons in 1958 to 978 million gallons in 1972 presumably correlating to our approximate increases in population of: 1957 - 5,500; 1960 - 5,629; 1970 - 6,672 and a conservative estimate of perhaps 350 new homes over the past sixteen years.

"As the average daily flow reaches the capacity mark, the unusually heavy flows become even more critical than in 1957 when the first occurred. The city subsequently has contracted with the engineering firm of Williams and Works to prepare a complete storm and sanitary sewer report in order to track down the infiltration of storm water into the sanitary system which is believed to be the cause of the heavy flow levels experienced over the years.

"To date Williams and Works have located 29 curb side, storm water catch basins connected directly to the sanitary lines such findings support the infiltration theory of the heavy flows which has caused the backup of basement floor drains during heavy rains.

"The 29 catch basins have since been sealed off, which of course causes some street flooding, however this is thought to be the lesser of two evils in comparing flooded streets to sanitary backup in basements.

"This dilemma does however point out the importance of having two separate systems of storm and sanitary sewers which are both adequate and properly placed. Both systems are similar in that they need proper lines for transportation of flows and adequate outlets.

"In the case of the sanitary system the outlet means capacity needed to serve the city and proper treatment as demanded by the State Water Resources Commission and the Federal Environmental Protection Agency. In the case of the storm system the outlet means a route and method for allowing the water to flow its natural course without over taxing the County drainage system.

"The storm system recommended by our engineers involves replacement of undersized sewers, new lateral sewers for areas previously unserved or served incorrectly by sanitary lines and truck sewers for the speedy carrying away of water to new holding ponds and outlet ditches. This project would be locally funded as indicated in the following breakdown:

Truck Sewers	$ 830,126
Lateral Sewers	172,453
Replace Sewers	351,321
Holding Pools	96,000
TOTAL	$1,449,900

"The expansion of the Wastewater

Plant recommended by our plant engineers, Hubbel, Roth & Clark, has three important elements.

"The first is the higher quality of treatment which the State Water Resources Commission has ordered us to do. This method of treatment would include removal of phosphorus and tertiary treatment of solids.

"The second element is the adding of capacity to the plant in general. The new design is formulated to serve at projected population of 13,000. The third element is construction of an equalization basin at the plant to eliminate flooding of the plant and eventual backups during peak periods.

"The city has again applied to the Environmental Protection Agency for a grant to help fund this project. If the city's grant is funded the monetary breakdown most recently furnished to us by our engineers would be as follows:

Local	$ 796,000	20%
State	199,000	5%
Federal	2,980,000	75%
TOTAL	$3,980,000

"The city is presently number 79 on the state priority list of 352 projects for the 1974 funding period.

"Upon the recommendation of our engineers, the city has filed for another EPA grant for a southern sewer system. This project includes a new lift station and force main from the south side of the community to the Wastewater Plant. The purpose of the system would be primarily to alleviate the flooding experienced in the city's southern sections and to service those areas of the city not presently served by municipal utilities. The monetary breakdown, if the grant is funded, would be as follows:

Local	$106,000	20%
State	26,000	5%
Federal	397,500	75%
TOTAL	$530,000

"The southern project is number 97 on the state priority list of 352 projects for the 1974 funding."

School districts elect board members, approve millage

CLINTON COUNTY--Monday was school election day across the county, with voters choosing new school board members and deciding millage proposals.

In DeWitt, 2 candidates were elected out of a field of 4 seeking office. They are Muri Eastman, who received 132 votes; and Kenneth J. Stevens, with 96. Dale Brown, who received 76 votes, and Victor White, with 63, were defeated. One vacancy on the St. Johns school board was awarded to Robert Barbeau, who received 211 votes as compared to challenger Forest Kuenzli's 179 votes. Fowler voters turned out to elect incumbent Linus Pohl and Jane Platte, who ran unopposed for the district's 2 vacancies on the board.

Fowler's proposed renewal of 16 mills passed, with 116 yes votes and 43 nos. Voters in the Ovid-Elsie School District elected incumbent Glenn Webster, who received 420 votes; and Frank Rivest, with 397. Defeated was Susan M. DePond, who received 166 votes.

Their 14 mill operational levy was renewed with a total of 428 yes and 102 no votes cast.

Only 1 position was open in the Bath School District, with Richard Hawks emerging the winner with 162 votes. Defeated were Gail Matthews with 102; Charles Gutzki, 55; and Dean Sweet Jr., 51 votes.

Their 18 mill proposal for operating expenses was renewed with 290 voting yes, and 87, no.

The Pewamo-Westphalia district saw the election of 2 candidates to the school board. Louis Pline, receiving 171 votes, and Charles Hengesbach, with 154, were successful in their attempts, while Duane Blatt was defeated with a total of 55 votes.

Their 14.4 mill proposal passed by a total of 172 yes votes, 30 nos, and 1 spoiled ballot.

Long Long meeting again in DeWitt Twp

BY LAURIE KIPP
County News Writer

DEWITT TWP -- DeWitt Township's Monday night meeting was a long one again, with sewers the main topic of discussion.

Proposed Ordinance #28 was tabled to reword ambiguities, but not without much discussion. The ordinance would allow the township to bill residents in advance an additional $10.50 per quarter for the next 3 quarters to pick up additional revenue. This advance charge would be for the base rate use charge and does not include tap charges, which will stay the same.

Township attorney F. Merrill Wible advised the board that, in his opinion, they can go ahead with the billings even though the ordinance has not been formally adopted since it is the board's intention to adopt it when a few ambiguous phrases are reworded.

Currently, under phase #1, residents are billed $31.50 after 3 months of service. The additional $10.50 will result in a charge of $42 in advance during Phase #2.

When an irate resident questioned the advantages of advance billings, Township Supervisor Dale Emerson defended the board's decision. He stated that his office receives "a lot of complaints" from people who purchase a house and discover that they are charged with the old owner's unpaid bill. (SEE PAGE 11)

Operation Mainstream alive and well

CLINTON COUNTY -- Operation Mainstream, a division of the Office of Economic Opportunity, is still alive in the county. The purpose of Operation Mainstream is to create jobs for and train chronically employed poor adults, mainly in rural areas, who have no reasonable prospects for full-time employment or training assistance under other programs.

The program, according to the US Dept. of Labor, is aimed at the solution of problems related to finding and holding suitable jobs. The emphasis is placed on "meaningful" work experience which may lead to permanent employment. Such employment may occur in areas of management or conservation of parks, highways or recreational areas.

Anyone 22 years of age or older and chronically employed may apply, as long as the family income of the individual is below the poverty line. Priority is given to enrollment of older persons.

Operation Mainstream is clerical, skilled and mechanical areas.

Employers interested in trained personnel should contact Doris Dahke, Vocational Counselor, at the Clinton County Branch Office of the OEO at 106 Maple St, St. John, or call 224-6702.

Besides training in a skilled field, education opportunities exist in cooperation with area schools. Those interested in completing their high school credits may enroll in free classes if they sign up before the September deadline. All available to Clinton residents.

Filing deadline for city office June 19

ST. JOHNS -- The deadline for filing petitions to seek offices on the St. Johns City Commission is June 19.

Two positions on the commission are up for re-election. Petitions may be obtained at the municipal building.

County News changes publication date

ST. JOHNS -- Beginning next week, the County News will be published one day later in the week. Those receiving the paper in the mail

Wednesday will receive the County News Thursday. Newspapers will be available on the newsstands Wednesday evenings.

"We hope to make an effort to eliminate the need for any future equalization factor," he said. "We feel this is the best and most economic way to accomplish those ends."

"It is our thrust," he noted, "to record and update assessments so the ratio is 50% according to state law."

Letter notices are being sent to property owners in order to give them a minimum of a couple of days notice, he added.

DeWitt Council proceedings

Although the entire situation seemed to many to be a lack of communication, Mrs. Coin took the opportunity to take Mayor DeWitt to task for a statement he was reported to have made saying he was "tired of the attitude and lack of cooperation" by city employees.

Both Mrs. Coin and Dorothy Keck, city clerk, indicated they were personally offended by the remark.

It was during the discussion about the city tax rolls that members of the media were first discussed.

Councilman Ronald Mull answered a question of Mrs. Coin's of how the whole situation would appear to those reading the newspapers with the statement, "What's printed in the paper doesn't always agree with what I've said at a meeting."

He later said, "They (newspaper stories) don't help my morale."

IN OTHER LESS controversial action, the council moved to accept a bid of $43,171 by the John Bean Division, FMC, for a new city fire truck.

There were 2 bids slightly lower than the John Bean bid and 1 slightly higher, but the council agreed with the Fire Dept recommendation to accept the bid.

One of the reasons given for the awarding of the bid to John Bean was fire department's training with that firm's fire fighting equipment. If other equipment is purchased it would require extensive training to prepare the department to efficiently use the equipment.

The purchase of the John Bean equipment is also consistent with other pieces of machinery in the department.

The new truck is scheduled to be delivered in August of 1974.

THE COUNCIL also approved, on a 1-year basis, the issuing of a liquor license to the DeWitt Bar, owned by Ray Olger.

Mayor DeWitt told the council they had 3 alternatives when considering the application for the city's 1 liquor license, following approval of liquor by the glass at the polls in November.

DeWitt said the alternatives were to approve or disapprove the issuing of the license, approve it on a 6-month basis, at the end of which the establishment must meet all requirements of the liquor ordinance or to approve it on the 1 year basis.

That approval calls for the establishment to be reviewed at the end of the year when the license comes up for renewal.

It was indicated one of the largest considerations was not enough parking. The establishment also does not now meet the restroom standards called for in the ordinance, but Olger said that would be remedied in 60 days.

THE PARKING situation will be reviewed at the end of the year.

In other business, the council tackled a problem over mowing bills not paid by owners of property in the Lake Geneva area.

Although it was reported that registered letters were sent to property owners that they must mow lots according to the city ordinance it was reported by the treasurer and others that it was evident that some mistakes had been made in billing.

It was pointed out in a couple cases, that owners of homes had been billed for mowing lots after the homes had been built on the property. It was decided Councilman Gary Gillespie would work with the city treasurer to determine such cases and authorized him to eliminate those billings.

In the other cases, where receipts from the registered letters informing the owners lots must be mowed, the owners will be required to pay.

What to do with friendly woodchucks took up a portion of the city council's evening as the mayor reported residents have complained that woodchucks are damaging their property.

Mayor DeWitt said Wendell Myers, police chief, went to the house and was going to shoot the woodchucks, but neighbors said they were pets and would sue the city if the chief shot them.

THE PROBLEM will be investigated, but the matter appears to be a case of a civil disagreement between 2 property owners.

At the end of the meeting, the mayor's question if members of the audience had any comments prompted Margaret Faught to criticize an unnamed city council official for informing the press of police action recently involving a planned arrest of drug sellers. Mrs. Faught said informing the press endangered the lives of those involved in the arrest, but would not say of whom she was speaking or where she obtained the information.

Mayor DeWitt said he was told by law officials to tell the members of the press they could go the courthouse if they wanted a story.

DeWitt said members of the press informed, instead, went to the City of DeWitt.

DeWitt also indicated members of the press revealed they had information about the action and violated the trust of the city and police by talking about the matter.

THE SITUATION centered around calls to the press that suspects would be at the county courthouse following drug arrests in DeWitt.

The caller told the press to be at the courthouse at 4:15 pm of that day, but a subsequent conversation with the prosecutor confirmed that no arrests were planned until at least 2 hours later.

Busy session for St Johns Commission

BY JIM EDWARDS
County News Editor

ST. JOHNS—St. Johns City Commissioners were busy at their regular meeting Monday night discussing matters ranging from setting a bond election (see story on front page) to dealing with complaints about ice cream trucks.

The beginning of the meeting dealt with a request from a citizen present asking for relief from trash burning. After telling the commission of the complaint, Dr. James Grosz, Commr, went on to discuss a proposal of his he had already added to the agenda concerning a trash ordinance.

Commr Grosz discussed an ordinance adopted by Helhi Township concerning trash and the matter was turned over to the Planning-Commission for further study.

Following the complaint about burning of trash in the city, another resident rose to complain about ice cream trucks soliciting on city streets.

She told the commission, although her child was at fault, she was prompted to run in front of a car by the music from a traveling ice cream truck.

DURING THE discussion about the ice cream trucks in the city, it was also noted they visited neighborhoods in the community during supper hours for many families.

The woman who made the complaint said her child was struck by the car and reported the driver of the truck mentioned that it was the 2nd time it had happened that day.

Commr. Jean Rand reported she had received 3 calls about the ice cream trucks and said a "heart-breaking situation" is created when there are children of parents unable to afford daily purchases from the trucks as they watch other children buy ice cream.

Commr Dr. Grosz moved to have the city clerk contact other cities to obtain information how they might have taken measures to regulate such activity in the city.

In other business the commission took action on several public hearings concerning rezoning and 1 concerning use of Revenue Sharing funds.

IN RESPONSE to a question from Edward (Spud) Heathman, 211 N. Ottawa, a spokesman from Williams and Works explained that storm drain openings on N. Ottawa had been covered temporarily to determine where storm water is getting into the sanitary sewer system.

The week of June 17-23 was proclaimed Job-O-Youth Week in St. Johns. Job-O-Youth is a local organization operated by area youth and provides a variety of jobs for young people throughout the summer. This is the first summer the program has been in operation.

In a matter concerning newly constructed swimming pools in the city, it was determined owners would be allowed to request the first filling to be done from a city hydrant. Subsequent fillings are up to the owner.

The commission declined to accept a deed to the city of the backlot stretch between Lansing and Clinton Ave.

Commissioners expressed the feeling the backlot portion was not wide enough to provide an adequate street and discussed maintenance problems with the existing backlot.

Commr Jeanne Rand moved to ask the city manager to contact the owner of the property and explain, as an alley, the city cannot justify the proposal. The city manager is to inform the owner the city will consider the proposal if enough land can be acquired to provide an adequate street.

THE REPRESENTATIVE from Williams and Works presented the commission with the possibility of assessing a penalty clause to make residents remove lines putting storm water into the sanitary sewer system.

The penalty is currently being reviewed. In other business, Paul Maples, city attorney, will review insurance bids received by the city.

One bid was received a few minutes late and the commission voted to allow the bid to be considered with the others.

Commr Rand, however, said, "I'd like to say something before we vote. In the past city insurance agents complained because they could not bid because of lack of time. This time we gave them 90 days and set a time. I think it's inexcusable if it was not entered in time. I personally don't think we should accept the late bid."

All others voted to allow the bid although Mayor Robert Wood said, "I agree with Jeanne (Rand), but I'll vote 'yes'."

College Opens Center For Continuing Education

John Wesley College Center for Continuing Education

During the past few months, John Wesley College of Continuing Education has developed one of the most progressive and promising adult education programs in the nation.

The program is implemented at the John Wesley College Center for Continuing Education in downtown Owosso and focuses on adults who are "engaged in other primary roles in life." It examines the "educational needs" of housewives, veterans, businessmen, teachers, laborers, and other adults and attempts to develop various processes and experiences to meet those individual needs.

The "educational opportunities" are present for persons who want to continue to broaden their perspective on life or can be coordinated as part of the College's Adult Degree Program (ADP).

The ADP offers qualified adults the chance to earn an undergraduate college degree while continuing to pursue full-time employment or another major activity such as homemaking.

ADP students work closely with a faculty advisor to define a set of educational objectives that are acceptable to both the student and the college.

THE WEEKEND COLLEGE
One unique way of obtaining these goals is through the Weekend College.

Terms for the Weekend College are eight weeks in duration and start with a seminar at the Center for Continuing Education, an attractive, five-story conference facility located at the main intersection of Owosso.

The Center is equipped to offer plush, comfortable rooms as well as a fine food dining area, The London Room, both at very reasonable cost. The facility also houses two meeting places, the Oxford Room and Aldersgate Room - in which classes are held, plus the warm, rich lounge area, The Great Hall, and the John Wesley College Book Shoppe.

The seminar for the Weekend College usually begins with a meal at 6:30 p.m. on Friday and runs through Saturday evening. During this first weekend, students and their faculty advisors plan a specific program to cover the next eight weeks. One month after the first weekend, students return to the Center for Continuing Education for progress evaluation and to review plans for the next four weeks. At the end of the eight-week session, the student returns for a third weekend for the final evaluation. During the two four-week periods when students are away from the College, their study is supervised by their advisor via letters, telephone, tapes and brief visits.

At least four eight-week sessions are held each school year, allowing students from four to seven credits each session or up to 28 credits per year.

INDEPENDENT STUDY PROGRAM
Another method of earning college credit under the ADP is the Independent Study Program (ISP) which is also especially designed for adults who are working or have other major involvements.

The ISP involves a two-week, resident seminar at the Center for Continuing Education during which students plan a twenty-four week program of independent study. During this period students again maintain contact with their advisors. At the end of the 24 weeks, students return to Owosso for two more weeks at which time their independent study work is evaluated. Also, during this time a new program can be designed for the next 24 weeks. Students can earn from 12 to 16 college credits for each 24 weeks of study and the resident seminars or up to a total of 32 credits each year.

SCHEDULES
The pilot program for the Weekend College ended June 2 and proved highly successful. This has provided the impetus for launching into four sessions during the ensuing months. The schedule is as follows:

WEEKEND COLLEGE
Session I - Sept. 7-9; Oct. 5-7; Nov. 2-4; 1973.
Session II - Nov. 16-18; Dec. 14-16, 1973; Jan. 11-13, 1974.
Session III - Feb. 1-3; Mar. 1-3; April 5-7, 1974.

Session IV - April 19-21; May 17-19; June 14-16, 1974.

INDEPENDENT STUDY
Registration will continue to take place throughout the month of June for the first term of the Independent Study Program.
Term I - July 16-27, 1973
Term II - January 14-25, 1974

ADP GRADUATION
• Completion of at least 124 credit units.
• Demonstrated skill in reading, library research, field research, communication skills to solve problems and answer questions.
• Course work in the social sciences, natural sciences, and humanities.

• The meeting of individual performance objectives developed by the student and his advisor.

• The completion of a major product such as a research paper, a report on a field research or a work of art.

• Completion of Graduate Record Exams (no minimal score required).

John Wesley College of Continuing Education recognizes other alternatives for earning degree credit, other than the Weekend College and Independent Study Program. These include: 1) College Level Examination Program (CLEP) and other exams available to measure knowledge obtained outside the classroom. The College is a limited testing center for CLEP. 2) Credits earned at another institution of higher education may be transferred. 3) Educational experiences received in areas other than college - such as in military service - may be converted to college credit if they meet certain basic criteria. 4) Off-Campus Classes offered by the College at various locations throughout Michigan. 5) Encounter With Greatness conferences feature nationally-known resource people. 6) A unique Travel-Study Program provides opportunity to earn credit by doing specific study in a short span of time in another country.

Center Is the Site For Many Conferences

There are three approaches used to bring conferences, seminars, workshops and other events to the John Wesley College Center for Continuing Education.

They are:
1) Administrators of the Center plan various conferences throughout the year as part of the College's "Encounter With Greatness" series. Some of the past conferences have included such people as Dr. D. Elton Trueblood, Dr. Oswald Hoffman, Dr. Kenneth MacFarland, Vonda Kay Van Dyke, and others. There have also been special training seminars planned not only for the general public, but for persons of special interests

2) The Center is open to groups who desire to use the facility. Its private rooms and executive suites come with air conditioning, color television, elegant furnishings and individual baths.

The entire 5-story building is styled in the Old-English motif and boasts a popular fine-foods dining area, The London Room.

3) The staff of the Center will plan a conference for a group, even securing conference speakers. Also, a conference can be planned and held at the site of the group - such as at a business place, school or church.

While the conference center has a great appeal to the public in general, its flexibility allows it to be of great value to businessmen, churches, education and other groups with interest in specific areas for seminars and workshops.

FALL SCHEDULE
Sept. 28-29 - Dr. T. Canby Jones, Quaker Scholar and minister.
Oct. 11-12 - Dr. Bartlett Hess, pastor of Ward United Presbyterian Church of Livonia, and Mel Johnson, of "Tips for Teens" radio program.
Nov. 9-10 - Dr. Elmer Towns, author, minister, administrator of Lynchburg (Va.) Baptist College.
Nov. 14-15 - Kurt Kaiser, pianist, recording artist, in music workshop.

Provost Answers Questions On Education for Adults

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Ed Bunnell, provost of John Wesley College of Continuing Education answers some pointed questions about continuing education.)

Q. Can adults learn?

A. Adults prove throughout life that they can learn... by learning complicated new job skills, by learning to relate to their children at various stages of life; by learning to operate automobiles and complicated machines; by learning new religious and philosophical viewpoints. It is true that the ability to memorize usually begins to decline as a person matures. But the ability to comprehend and assimilate new material increases through the disciplined use of a person's intellectual faculties. The best way to insure that a person's ability to learn will increase is to discipline one's self to a regular systematic study program.

Q. What is continuing education?

A. As the name implies, the rationale of continuing education is that a person's education is not limited to his youth, but continues through his life. At John Wesley College, the term "Continuing Education" refers to the entire field of lifelong learning. The term "Adult Education" refers to the programs that are offered within the field. For an adult educator, an "adult" is one who has another primary role in life other than as a student. For example, a 17-year old high school graduate with a full time job who enrolls in a class is considered an adult student, while a 30-year old graduate student who is enrolled full time at the university with no other employment is not considered an "adult student" in the technical sense. The Adult Degree Program at John Wesley College of Continuing Education is designed upon the premises that the students do 1) have primary roles in life, and 2) their life experience is of educational value. Therefore, although a 17-year-old student would not be accepted into ADP at this age because of his lack of adult experience, he might be an excellent prospect in six to eight years.

Q. Who should be involved in continuing education?

A. The answer is every "adult". And through its wide-ranging programs John Wesley College of Continuing Education offers programs to meet many needs. The extent of a person's involvement should be determined by his life's goals. If the adult is interested in programs that will give immediate useful information and inspiration, he will find a conference at the Center for Continuing Education helpful. If his goals are to grow intellectually, an off-campus class in his community might meet that need. If he wants to complete a college degree, then the Adult Degree Program is ideal. Homemakers who did not finish college, veterans preparing for the future, and successful businessmen who never received a degree are examples of those who find ADP appealing.

Q. Why earn a degree?

A. This is a good question. Three good answers immediately occur. 1) We live in a degree conscious society. Consequently, we personally and individually value degrees very highly. One who works toward a college degree and earns it is bound to improve his self-esteem. 2) For your own self-image, a college degree is a good goal. 2) It is also obvious that earning in the eyes of society. It may lead to a better job. It will likely open avenues of service and leadership which were formerly closed. 3) These are not primary reasons, however, why adults who have not finished college should seek to earn a degree. Individual study and classes randomly chosen will help an individual to grow intellectually, and will move him toward becoming self educated. However, a degree program involves a systematic, balanced approach to education. By design, adults enrolled in the Adult Degree Program, have a great deal of input into planning their own educational experiences. But these experiences, i.e., classes, independent study projects, internships, etc., form a systematic program of study that facilitates intellectual growth, and hopefully, moves the adult student toward becoming the self-educating adult.

Q. What can John Wesley College of Continuing Education offer the veterans?

A. The Adult Degree Program is ideal for the veteran. A person may qualify for full veteran's benefits while also gaining some experience in his profession. The design of ADP is to lead individuals to set life long goals and to plan educational experiences to equip him to achieve them. Many veterans have difficulty in planning for the future, and discovering what they want to do with their life ADP should be of immeasurable help in these areas. Also, many veterans may find that training which they have received while in service can be converted to college level examination program (CLEP).

U of M Consultant Sees Great Potential

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following remarks were quoted from a speech given at the dedication of the John Wesley College Center for Continuing Education by Morton Gordon, professor and chairman of the Adult and Continuing Education, School of Education, University of Michigan. Dr. Gordon serves as consultant to the John Wesley College of Continuing Education.)

There is great potential in the Center for education. We didn't create it. It is simply there. It derives from the existence of needs and from the opportunities that we have to recognize and respond to needs, especially to needs for educational programming.

It is a fact that people are living longer than they formerly did, and that there are more people than ever before. It is a fact that many people are changing jobs and careers more often than in other times. Occupations become obsolete and skills for new occupations must be developed. People work shorter hours, weeks and years than they did, and when they work, they want more personal satisfaction in their work. One hears a great deal these days about still larger problems: moral, economic, social, political, environmental. Many people clamor for solutions; and even the most optimistic are uneasy about the future.

I have only one simple point to make of all this:

Most of our problems are amenable to solution or at least to study that could lead to solution - and perhaps even more pertinent to our purpose, all are accessible to the cooling effects of education, and especially so to the effects of educational programming and development such as the Wesley College contemplates or in the Center's own words, a Center "where distinguished leaders and personalities will meet adults and youth in encounters that can be life-changing." In other words, all these problems can be and should be seen as opportunities to provide educational programs.

Let me be a bit specific about educational potential.

To begin with, the "nuts and bolts" potential looks very good.

1. The Wesley Center location is central. The Center's size is about right.

2. Certain kinds of education can best be taken in short doses - one day to one month. The Center facility can serve this function.

3. Certain kinds of education can best be taken in residential settings, where learning goes on throughout the day, in formal classroom situations and in less formal seminar formats, but also in lounges, in hallways, at eating times and after hours. The Center is a residential facility and hence ideally situated to develop that kind of program.

4. The Center staff has had some experience and will accumulate more in Center-type program development. They will adapt the facility, which is always available to them full time, in appropriate educational ways that meet community needs. Good programs are developed by a skilled staff; the Center has a head start on that.

5. The Center will soon acquire a reputation for excellence of programming. It will become known as a place to seek out for program assistance and development. It will be sought out.

So I am optimistic about the Wesley Center's potential for education. There are needs which life-changing encounters can help meet. And there are dedicated men and women skilled in the ways of education working hard to meet those needs.

But even that is not quite enough. There are Centers something like this one all over the United States and abroad.

Some of these Centers are much, much better than others.

The best of these Centers - and I predict that Wesley Center will join that small group - share some of the following attributes: They know who they are. They have a coherent point of view, and they have some pretty good ideas about where they are going and about how to get there.

In short, they have a philosophy, a purpose and standards of accomplishments consistent with their goals.

I see the Wesley Center philosophy and staff as strongly grounded in Judeo-Christian traditions - but not as embattled defenders behind a high thick wall. Rather, I see them out in the community. John Wesley College is the only institution of higher education in the Greater Owosso area and it is and should be a community-minded institution.

I see the College and the Center interested in and concerned about social change and community development, not in change for change's sake, but rather in change that will make our communities better places to live in.

I see the College and the Center interested in and concerned about the personal growth and development of adults and youth who come to the College and Center and who are sought out by the College and Center.

So I am very optimistic about the Center's potential for education.

It has intelligent, skillful and hard working leadership. There are educational needs to be met and the Center is ready to meet them. And, perhaps most important of all, the Center has a sense of where it wants to go.

At least four eight-week sessions are held each school year, allowing students from four to seven credits each session or up to 28 credits per year.

People who invest their money with John Wesley College receive 9 per cent annual interest, but they can never fully realize the impact their dollars have today and in years to come.

This invested money is part of a sound financial system used by John Wesley College to establish such important facilities as the Center for Continuing Education.

This Center will be the gathering place for adults to encounter great people who will influence them toward greatness; to enlarge their vision of life; to challenge and develop their intellect to greater depths; to increase their self-esteem, and their usefulness to their families, friends and society.

It's quite unusual! To be able to earn a high rate of interest and have the knowledge that invested dollars are setting off a chain reaction of self-improvement and greatness among a part of the world in which you live.

The bride wore a long lace-edged mantilla and traditional wedding dress. She carried a bouquet of yellow and white daisies veiled with baby's breath and tied with yellow and white satin.

Preceding the bride to the altar was her sister, Mrs Gerald Horak of Elsie as matron of honor and bridesmaids, Margaret Mary Horak of Elsie, niece of the bride; Joni Holmes, a cousin of the bridegroom; and Anna Kusnier, sister of the bride. Flower girl was Theresa Horak, a niece of the bride.

They all wore yellow chiffon over satin gowns and carried baskets of yellow and white daisies accented with baby's breath.

Joining the bridegroom was Gary Holmes, his brother from Mendota, Ill, as best man. The groomsmen were Tim Hawn, Gale Holmes, his brother, and Chris Horak, nephew of the bride.

Ushers were Rick Kusnier, brother of the bride, and Jon Holmes, cousin of the bridegroom, with Mark Horak of Elsie, a nephew of the bride, as ring bearer.

A Nile green chiffon gown was selected by Mrs Kusnier for her daughter's marriage. With this she wore a cymbidium orchid. The same flower was presented to Mrs Caverly who wore it with a soft pink chiffon gown.

During the church ceremony, the bride presented a bouquet of yellow and white daisies to the Blessed Mother.

A reception was held at the Slovak Hall that evening with Mr and Mrs John Kusnier, Jr of Elsie as host and hostess for approximately 400 guests. The wedding cake was made by the bride's sister Margaret Horak.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Speaks up for youth

Letter to the Editor: You can pick up almost any newspaper and read captions such as, "Police quell school violence", "Youths Face pot charges", "Woman beaten up by three teens", and "Teens beat up old man", only to name a few. The sad part of all this commentary is reflected in the fact that more than 4,000,000 (four million) young people are enrolled as members in clubs and organizations nation-wide, who strive to keep themselves respectable, honest, clean, productive citizens, yet very little is written about them or their activities as compared to what is written about the dissident. To test this statement further, pick up a copy of any encyclopedia and compare the amount of print devoted to youth crime as compared to what is written about the 'goody-goody' youth.

membership in our Boys and Girls clubs advantageous to their growth, development and future.

Is it any wonder that our state leaders are trying to bring civic recognition upon our young people by directing all Odd Fellow and Rebekah lodges to observe June 10th through June 16 as Junior Odd Fellows Week and June 17 through June 23rd as Theta Rho Girls Week? In this regard, I would urge all young folks in the community to become members of either of these two groups. They offer the kind of program which attempts to detract young people from the interests of crime by directing their attention toward productive and respectable goals.

In sponsoring and supporting these youth programs, we feel that we are attempting to elevate the character of our young people.

Sincerely,
Vivian R. Sillman

I can't help but feel that those youths committing civil offenses are in a minority and should the amount of print dedicated to their exploits be in a minority. By publishing youth crimes are we encouraging other young folks to try the field, improve on the other offenders flaws, just to have their name appear in print?

"To preserve our society", says our Grand Master, "demands our utmost concern for, interest in, and attention to, todays youth". How we attend to that responsibility will reflect on the history pages of tomorrow.

It is pleasing to know that my fraternity, Odd Fellowship, is headed in the right direction, that of attempting to build a better America by building a better youth. Over a period of 32 years, for example, we have been host to more than 16,500 boys and girls who have been guests at our Odd Fellow-Rebekah Camp at Big Star Lake, Baldwin Michigan; An estimated 25,000 boys and girls have each attended a six week all-expense-paid conference at the United Nations during 24 years under our sponsorship; and boys between 12 and 18 years of age have found their Sewer bills must be 6 months delinquent before they can be added to tax rolls. It was decided to send letters to residents to inform them of the change.

DeWitt Twp meeting

In other action it was noted that Frank Horvath has missed several Planning Commission meetings. Under the commission's by-laws, any member missing 3 meetings may be asked to resign. It would seem likely that his resignation will be sought.

Bruce Angell asked the board to overrule the Park Commissions' recent ruling that baseball diamonds in the park cannot be reserved. He asked that Little League teams, and adult league teams, if formed, be permitted to reserve the diamonds at least 1 night out of the week.

Emerson, who is on the Parks Commission, said they made the decision because they had no way to enforce reservations of any kind, and he had only had 1 call from somebody who wanted to reserve the ball diamond for practice.

After much discussion by board members and residents, it was tentatively decided that sanctioned teams may call in and reserve the fields, but that no one will be "strong armed" away.

Jack Kzeski moved that Emerson be allowed to schedule sanctioned league play, but that no innings may begin later than 9 pm. The proposal should go to the Parks Commission to provide guidelines. No action was taken on the motion.

However, observers would assume that these tentative guidelines are in effect.

Repair of Herbison Rd was again discussed. Attorney Wyble noted that the township can contract with the county for road construction on Herbison Rd, but there was no support for his motion.

The problem dates back to the township's annual meeting where a motion by Bruce Angell that Herbison Rd be repaired when the other roads are ready for asphalt. The motion carried. However, the board decided that Angell's intent did not include omitting the cutting of trees on the road in preparation for its eventual extension.

The board decided, in spite of Wyble's advice, to go ahead and fulfill the contract with the Road Commission to cut timber on Herbison Rd. The property owner who has granted right of way on his property might withdraw his offer. The result of this, Kzeski said, would be that DeWitt Township would eventually have to build a bridge.

"I'm tired of people using Herbison Rd as a political football," he declared.

"We've had less than a dozen people disapprove the extension, but they've raised such opposition that this situation results."

Beginning at a point which is 928 feet South and 633.3 feet West of the North one-quarter (1/4) corner post, thence, Northeast 542.4 feet perpendicular to US-27, thence, Northwest 525 feet parallel to US-27, thence, Southwest 542.4 feet perpendicular to US-27, thence Southeast parallel to US-27 to P.O.B.

without a complete study of the existing water main facilities to determine whether sufficient pressure could be derived.

(d) Necessary easements shall be given the City for two existing drains, one a storm sewer across the Northwest corner and the other a sewer outfall drain.

Open Letter

from VAN W. HOAG

Dear friends,

It deserves emphasis that the time, the place, the character of the funeral service, the merchandise used, the cemetery selected - these are decisions of the family of the deceased. The funeral director acts only as a representative of the family.

The clergyman should be consulted in matters that concern him before any decisions are made.

Respectfully,

Van W. Hoag

Letter from Dale Warner To the editor: The past several weeks have seen the successful conclusion of a three-month long struggle between Clinton County government officials and taxpayers and the State Tax Commission. I know that every Clinton County property owner was pleased with the fact that so much pressure was placed on the State Tax Commission that the Commission backed off from its original 7.2% tentative factor and accepted the valuations set by the Board of Commissioners.

Credit should be given where credit is due, and much of the credit for Clinton County's success in this struggle against the Tax Commission should go to your newspaper for focusing attention, both editorially and through news articles, on the Tax Commission's proposed factor. All too often the property owner does not become aware of Tax Commission actions until his property tax bill arrives in the mail. Your staff did an excellent job of generating citizen awareness and involvement in opposition to the Tax Commission's original proposals.

The County Board members and County Equalization Department personnel also deserve congratulations for not "rolling over and playing dead" when the Tax Commission first announced their tentative factor. These dedicated people are due a word of praise for standing on the side of the average property taxpayer and resisting the arbitrary action of the Tax Commission.

Looking for a place to rent? Good luck

By Laurie Kipp
County News Writer

Finding a place to rent in Clinton County is extremely difficult, if not impossible. And those fortunate enough to locate a suitable house or apartment are going to have to pay dearly for it.

Most persons looking for new living quarters first consult the classified ads in the local newspaper. Unfortunately, these may not help much. On an average, only about 3 units a week are advertised as available for rental.

Although some of these ads are for several apartments in a complex, the price range is still rather narrow. A typical listing might read:

FOR RENT: 1 and 2 bedroom apartments, unfurnished except appliances, $160 and up, deposit required, no children or pets. Lease.

Security deposits usually amount to the equivalent of 1 month's rent, and are required to move in, making the total necessary to set up housekeeping at least $320 in our sample apartment. This does not take into consideration the costs of beginning or transferring utilities, installation of a telephone and actual moving costs.

There are a few lower priced units available, but darn few. Out of 5 weeks worth of "For Rent" ads, only 3 places were listed costing less than $150 per month. One of these was a 1-bedroom apartment in a hotel for $135 plus utilities and a $125 damage deposit.

The other listings were for a 2-bedroom apartment on the southwest edge of the county costing $130 monthly plus a $120 deposit, and a studio apartment (1 room measuring 20' x 20' in a hotel) at a cost of $90 a month plus a $50 deposit.

OTHER LISTINGS ranged in price from $150 to $185 a month, with deposits costing from $140-$185.

An average of just over 3 apartments were listed in the County News each week during the 5 week period, and no houses for rent at all.

In addition to the sometimes prohibitive cost of a move, many phone calls to prospective landlords end up sounding something like: "Hello, I'm calling about your apartment. . . Oh, it is? Thank you anyway." Even the expensive ones seem to fill up quickly.

THE NEXT STEP in hunting for rental housing, especially for strangers to a community, is to consult a realtor. However, a real estate firm had basically the same story—they get a lot of calls from people looking for a place to rent, but handle very few at the agency.

An employee of the Briggs Company in St. Johns reported that they receive at least 2 calls daily, and sometimes 4 or 5, from prospective renters. "We like to have rentals," he stated, "But there aren't many available." He said they handle about 1 rental a month, usually a house.

ANOTHER ST. JOHNS firm doesn't handle rental housing at all simply because they haven't been able to find any. They receive about 10 inquiries a month, mostly from couples seeking small houses or apartments.

An employee of Furman's in St. Johns said they don't have rentals because there isn't much available.

"We certainly have an awful lot of calls though," she added, "about 3 a day."

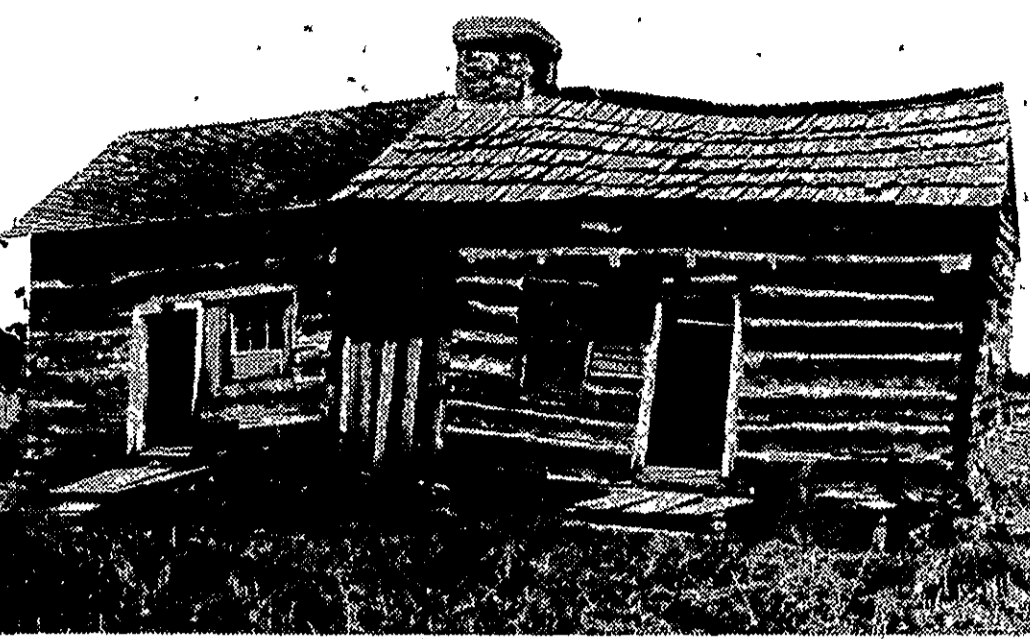

STILL ANOTHER ST Johns firm handles rentals when they can get them. They estimated 3-6 calls per week, mostly from families with children who are looking for 2 and 3-bedroom homes.

An Elsie agency reports handling only 3 or 4 rental units a year. One of their employees told the County News, "Frankly, we don't get many because of the demand for rentals. Clients could probably rent the places 10 times over without us," he said.

This firm receives 4 to 5 inquiries a week, mostly from young couples and people moving into the area who want 2 bedroom apartments or houses in the $100-$135 a month price range.

"That's about impossible," he noted.

ONE DeWITT AGENCY does not handle rentals at all because they don't have time. Another, Courtland Realty, reports at least 2 calls a day, mainly from Lansing residents who want to get out of the city. They, too, have a difficult time finding property to rent.

It's either feast or famine for prospective renters in Clinton County.

Maple Valley Realtors in Maple Rapids say they handle all they can get, and receive approximately 4 calls from prospective renters per week.

"Most," an employee noted, "want 3 bedroom houses or apartments costing $100-$110 a month. They're impossible to get."

ANOTHER OFFICE of the agency in north Lansing, just inside the Clinton County line, reports about 15 inquiries per week.

The best way to locate a new home, then, seems to be word-of-mouth advertising, with friends, relatives and anyone else who will listen assisting in the search.

When a suitable place is found, the interested party would be advised to have money in hand since many units are rented before the last tenants close the door behind them.

PERSONS WITH PETS really have trouble, even when the expense of moving can be surmounted. Most of the newer "luxury" units strictly forbid renters from having any kind of pet except goldfish. A few older (and cheaper) apartments allow cats or dogs, but this is the exception.

It seems that ideal tenants fall into 3 categories: Single, elderly gentlemen who don't smoke, drink or gamble; young married couples with no children or pets; and small families with 1 or 2 children where the father has been employed for a length of time at the same place.

However, many of those searching for rental housing are families where the father has just accepted a new job in the area, or young couples recently married or planning to marry where the husband is not old enough to have held a job for several years.

The prospects of an increasing rental housing shortage in Clinton County are great, according to statistics provided by the Tri-County Regional Planning Commission.

THE POPULATION of Clinton County increased from 37,969 in 1960 to 48,492 in 1970, and is expected to total more than 58,000 residents by 1980. More residents obviously mean more people in search of rental housing.

Only 15% of all housing in the county was rental in 1970. To complicate matters, 7.6% of county residents were earning incomes below the poverty level, according to the TCRPC.

It is unlikely that many of these residents could afford to purchase homes, so those wishing to move may encounter serious problems—prohibitive costs and lack of rental housing. Perhaps some will have to locate in another area, such as Lansing, where the housing may not be plentiful, but at least a larger selection of lower priced units exists. Those who are able to afford more expensive apartments in this county are just going to have to search until luck, or an on-the-lookout mother-in-law, turns up something suitable. Renting a house is almost entirely out of the question. In any case, there will be a lot of renters who find themselves paying more and getting less than they originally planned.

Negotiations avert strike against General Telephone

NORTON SHORES -- The possibility of a strike against General Telephone by System Council T-3, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, AFL-CIO, was averted last week when negotiators reached tentative agreement on the proposals.

The proposals will now be presented to union members for ratification and the results of the vote should be available no later than June 30.

Originally the union had served notice to General Telephone that it intended to terminate its contract with General Telephone at 5 pm, June 6. This contract has now been extended on a day-by-day basis, subject to cancellation by either party giving 48-hour notice to the other.

Negotiations for a new contract began on April 2 and tentative agreement was reached on May 3. The union membership failed to ratify the tentative agreement and so notified the company on May 24.

Negotiations were resumed June 4 with both state and federal mediators in attendance.

Personalized plate deadline June 30

LANSING -- Michigan vehicle owners who want to spice up their license plates for next year were urged to get their orders for personalized plates in before the June 30 deadline.

"The law is quite specific, and the Michigan Department of State must adhere to the June 30 cut-off deadline for ordering these special plates," Secretary of State Richard H. Austin commented.

Applications for personalized license plates are available at any Secretary of State branch office, Austin said.

Personalized plates will be distributed in Michigan for the first time during the 1974 licensing year. Additional cost for the plates is $25 over the regular license plate fee.

Revenue from the sale of these special plates, says Austin, will go for litter pick-up.

Applications for plates are being filled on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Plates will be mailed to applicants on November 15, the first day of the 1974 passenger car license plate sale in Michigan.

State sets resurfacing work for US-27 in St. Johns

LANSING -- Nearly 660 miles of state highways throughout Michigan will be resurfaced in the year beginning July 1, including a $75,000 project in St. Johns, according to the State Highway Commission.

Work scheduled for St. Johns includes re-surfacing of six-tenths of mile or a portion of undivided US-27 at a cost of $40,000 and eight tenths of a mile from the beginning of divided US-27 north to the St. Johns city limits.

That portion of the project will cost $35,000.

Young ambassadors wanted

Twenty young persons are needed to serve as ambassadors to visit Michigan's sister state of Shiga, in Japan, this summer.

The group will comprise the "Second Annual Michigan Youth Mission to Shiga." The 20 youngsters and 2 adult leaders will leave Detroit Metro Airport July 21 and return August 10. Cost is about $1,200. Half the visit will find the young people, ages 18 to 25, living free on "homestays" with Japanese families in the state of Shiga. The remainder of the visit will see the group touring Tokyo, Kyoto, Nara, and other colorful areas of Japan.

"The first Youth Mission in 1972 was a huge success," said Russell McKee, staff member of the Department of Natural Resources and leader of that group. "There's not state money for any of this work, of course, and everyone pays his own way, but as a people to people program there's no better way to meet the wonderful people of Japan and broaden outlooks on both sides."

McKee said the sister state alliance was signed by then-Governor George Romney for Michigan and Governor Kinichiro Nozaki for Shiga. Governor Romney later assigned management of the alliance to the Department of Natural Resources. Since then more than 1000 residents of the two states have exchanged visits.

For information on this year's group, write Shiga Mission, Executive Office, Department of Natural Resources, Lansing, Michigan 48926, or phone Mr. Jack VanDyke, Department of Administration (517) 373-0336. Those interested are asked to respond as soon as possible to allow sufficient time for passport processing.

Tennis anyone?

ST. JOHNS -- Free tennis lessons will be conducted this summer, beginning June 18 at 10 am at the St. Johns city tennis courts.

Participants, of any age, must provide their own racquets.

The June 18 session will be an organizational and participants may sign up then or by calling Al Webber at 224-2248.

Quality schools here

An item in a recent edition of the Lapeer County Press mentions the valediction by the 1973 valedictorian. The item explained the address was unflattering to the school and the editor mentioned that he agreed with many of her statements.

Some of her statements charged the school district citizenry of being unwilling, tax-wise, to support a progressive school system.

Another charged the school board and administration of not keeping up with the times; lumping all types of students from the strictly academic to the vocational in 1 educational program.

We found it interesting to read her statements and the agreeing comment by the editor and to compare it to our situation in Clinton County.

School districts, for the most part, in Clinton County are to be proud of their accomplishments and support from taxpayers.

The charges made about the Lapeer system help to emphasize some of the shortcomings not found in our school districts and we are fortunate to have administrators, educators, board members and the public to sustain an educational program other areas of the state could envy.

An excellent example of quality education at work is the career vocational program.

Courses include automotive service, agriculture, building trades, cosmetology, electronics, food service and health occupations.

These types of courses offer balance to a system of strictly English, history, foreign languages, math etc.

Such a varied educational package for the student provides the knowledge in his mind that his school does have something to offer him.

A strong and successful educational program is an important aspect of any progressive community -- we are fortunate to possess such a commodity.

ONE YEAR AGO

June 14, 1972
State and local fire officials are continuing their investigation as to the cause of a fire which destroyed a large portion of a warehouse located at the northeast of the St Johns business district Tuesday evening.

A suspect being held in the May 22 slaying of a Lansing store owner was bound over to circuit court following conclusion of his preliminary examination July 7.

A St Johns woman received fatal injuries early Monday afternoon in a one car accident on US-27 near Washington Road south of Ithaca. Dead is Mrs Leona Bouche, 62, of 1003 Hampshire Drive, St Johns.

Bids will be taken June 21 in Lansing on highway projects totaling almost a half million dollars in Clinton, Eaton, and Ingham Counties, according to State Senator William S Ballenger (R-Ovid).

An extensive expansion of the park system in St Johns is expected to get underway next week as $100,882 is earmarked for 5 different projects.

TEN YEARS AGO

June 13, 1963
Dr Clyde H Wilcox, pastor of the First Congregational Church of St Johns since 1950, has announced to his congregation that he plans to retire from the active ministry next October. He will be 65 on Sept 29.

The apprehension of St Johns school officials and board of education members regarding the millage proposal on Monday's school ballot proved groundless as district voters approved the request for 4.5 mills for 5 years by a majority of 289 to 67.

Ground breaking ceremonies were held at the Guntisonville Community Methodist Church Sunday, May 26, to start construction of the first addition since the church was built 75 years ago.

A total of 26 Clinton area candidates received degrees from Michigan State University Sunday in the institutions 103rd annual spring commencement exercises. Bachelor's degrees were awarded to 2109 candidates and 649 received advanced degrees.

25 YEARS AGO

June 10, 1948
The Rev Richard Childs Swogger, pastor of the First Methodist Church of St Johns, has accepted an invitation to become associate pastor of the First Methodist Church in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

Ten Clinton county students were included in the 1,258 candidates for bachelor degrees from Michigan State University who were graduated at the college Sunday.

Residents of the St Johns school district who wish to be eligible to vote at the annual school election on July 12 must register at the superintendent's office at the high school not later than 9 pm this Saturday.

Announcement was made this week of the appointment of Floyd L Parmelee of St Johns as secretary-treasurer of the National Farm Loan office here replacing Otto W. Foerster.

Lyle Belknap, county road engineer, suffered a heart attack Tuesday and has been confined to bed at his home. His condition was reported as greatly improved Thursday morning.

"If It Fitz . . ."

JE

By Jim Fitzgerald

You could have knocked me over with a weak backhand.

55-year-old Bobby Riggs whipped Margaret Court, a young Amazon, at tennis. And she promptly alibied that he had played a sneaky game.

Female tennis players must be all alike. The same thing happened to me, 35 years ago, when I would beat another Amazon, Terrible Jean, on the tennis courts of Pine Grove Park.

YOU REMEMBER Terrible Jean. She was my big sister. Well, she still is, for that matter. But today I call her "big sister" only in reference to the fact that she is much older than I. Likewise it is also for age reasons only that I call my 3 younger sisters "little sisters." The "littles" one, for instance, could pound me into the floor without raising her fists above her hips. And, the next time she sees me, she probably will, Lord have mercy.

But that's another battle named Linda. You'll have to excuse my emotional rambling when the subject is sisters. I grew up with 4 of them, no brothers, a father who traveled a lot, and a mother who volunteered me for the draft when I was 16. The experience left scars on my psyche which still throb today when the right trauma is touched.

Before I became hysterical, I was recalling the bigness of Terrible Jean about 1938, when I was still a puny little boy and she was the tallest thing in town without an elevator. We used to play tennis. She would stand at the net with both arms raised and dare me to hit the ball by her. When the sun was behind her, my side of the court was in darkness. I was trying to hit the ball out of the tunnel with the exit blocked by a giant redwood that snarled.

The first summer we played, Terrible Jean was unbeatable. Her strategy was to smash the ball into my mouth. I was too skinny to swallow it and too weak to spit it back over the net. The pure in heart lost. Might won out.

TERRIBLE JEAN was a marvelous winner. To celebrate each victory she'd do something exciting such as throw me in the St Clair River. I couldn't swim but the tennis ball stuck in my mouth kept me afloat.

The 2nd summer I got cute. I learned how to lob the ball over her head (the ball didn't come down for 5 minutes). I also learned how to put English on the ball so it took weird bounces. Terrible Jean would run and swing and miss. It was glorious. Suddenly I was winning, winning, winning.

But the glory was short-lived. Terrible Jean took the exaltation out of my triumphs by accusing me of being a dirty player. She said it was illegal to make the ball bounce funny. She said it wasn't good for the tennis balls. She threatened to report me to the playground supervisor and she said she'd tell Daddy when he got home.

Everytime I beat Terrible Jean, for gosh sakes, she made me feel like a crook. I used to run hide when the park policeman drove by.

SO CAN IT be any wonder my psyche quivered when big Margaret Court made unfair accusations against little Bobby Riggs? He's lucky she didn't throw him in the river.

Trezise derides anti-auto editorial

LANSING -- State Rep R. Douglas Trezise (R-Owosso) today took issue with an editorial in the Michigan Natural Resources magazine which condemned the automobile as a "screaming marvel of inefficiency."

In a scathing letter to A. Gene Gazlay, director of the Department of Natural Resources, the second term legislator noted that the automobile "contributes significantly to the well-being of the State of Michigan. He acknowledged that cars are responsible for some of the air and noise pollution in metropolitan areas, but added that, "there is no evidence to show that the environment in the rest of Michigan is worse because of its presence."

Rep Trezise pointed out that his voting record on environmental matters is generally acceptable to most environmental groups, but stressed that he tries to "find a balance between environmental pressures and economics."

The editorial scoffs at the nation's "tolerance for this fluberty mechanism" and asks, "What will happen when the petrol is all gone?" It then declares that, "We have developed virtually no alternatives."

of Michigan to assure them a healthy environmental and economic climate."

Attacking state bureaucrats is not typical of Trezise. "By and large, I tend to support administrative officers," he commented, "even though some of my legislative colleagues base their political careers on blasting them. But, I was upset and disappointed that this editorial, especially coming so soon after the DNR assumed broad new powers in the environmental protection field. I have asked Mr Gazlay to outline his philosophy to me in the near future."

"Incidentally I also asked him how he got to work today," Rep Trezise concluded.

Buck Passing

When certain things have come to pass, Of which we are not proud There has to be a scape goat Somewhere, within the crowd; So lest a finger point at me To smear me with the muck, I count myself quite blameless If I can pass the buck.

"Some other folks have done it" I safely can assume Why should I ever take 'The rap' So long I can presume? The onus is on he who fails Why should I then be stuck? By truth or lies I can devise A way to pass the buck.

The folk who rate the highest Have most pigeons they can blame There's worlds of explanations To protect a high-ups name; If all the facts were brought to light It could tend to spoil their luck, So human nature takes its course, Finds ways to pass the buck.

The courage of the commonplace One which we daily need Calls out for true confession Expressed in word and deed; The things that really test a man Cry out for just plain pluck, Quite honestly to own the fault Not stoop to pass the buck!

88th District Report by Stanley Powell State Representative

Taking a cue from the weather which finally seems to be warming up, we got down to some serious legislation last week and managed to clear away a number of bills from our lengthy calendar. We set a record for this session so far by passing 21 bills on one particular day last week, none of them budgetary, however.

With most of the budget bills having already been passed by the chamber in which they were introduced, we've turned to consideration of other legislative matters while our Appropriations committee contemplates Senate passed bills. In fact, our general session was cancelled last Friday to allow Appropriations sub-committee members, the entire day to work, without interruption, on the budget.

AGENCY SHOP BILL GOES TO GOVERNOR

Meanwhile, a number of bills were passed by the House last week and sent either to the Senate or to the Governor for approval. Among them was a bill of significance to thousands of public employees around the state, originally introduced in the Senate (SB 433), permitting public employees to form agency shops. The most important section of the bill allows the employer and union to agree to require non-union members of a bargaining unit to pay a service fee to the union in an amount equal to the regular union dues required of union members in the unit. The bill also proscribes unfair labor practices by allowing a public employer to file charges with the Michigan Employment-Relations Commission in the absence of good faith bargaining on the part of the union in contract disputes or in the event of union coercion of non-union employees.

Under present law, the union may file unfair labor practices charges against the public employer, but the employer may not file such charges against the union. This bill was of concern to thousands of public employees around the state who already belong to local unions. It was passed by a vote of 82-19.

Under terms of the bill, unions now formed by teachers, township, city, or (Continued on page 3B)

View from the Senate

By SEN. WILLIAM S. BALLENGER

With the end of June the target date for a long-summer recess, principal emphasis in the Legislature these days is on the perennial task of putting finishing touches on a budget that will finance state operations until mid-1974.

With the principal exceptions of higher education and capital outlay, most appropriation bills are out of their "house of origin". That is, House bills have been passed and sent to the Senate, and most Senate appropriation measures have cleared the upper chamber and are in the House.

It is at this stage that the real give-and-take feature of legislative procedure begins. Each chamber has certain ideas of what should be in each appropriation bill. Sometimes the House will add money to a Senate-passed bill; other times, the Senate may cut money from a House-passed measure.

When the bills then pass the second chamber, committees of the two get together to iron out the differences before the bills are finally adopted in identical form by both chambers and sent to the Governor for his signature or veto.

At this stage of the game, it can be tricky trying to predict what the final budget will look like.

But those whose job it is to know about those things are predicting that the general fund budget for the next fiscal year will top out somewhere between $2.6 billion and $2.7 billion.

This would be approximately $350 million more than the present year's budget, or fairly close to the total recommended by the Governor back in February.

Remembering that they still have to go through another house, this is the way some of the appropriation bills stand now:

Social Services (otherwise known as welfare) is pegged at slightly less than $746 million, the largest of all appropriation bills. This compares with $642 million for the current fiscal year and $714 million recommended for next year by the Governor.

Second largest appropriation is almost $705 million for school aid, compared with the current $594 million and Governor's recommendation of $661 million.

Mental health, third largest, stands at about $233 million compared with the present $223 million and the Governor's recommended $235 million.

The Senate Appropriations Committee is still working on the higher education bill and no tentative figure has emerged. But it is expected to be more than the current year's appropriation of $402 million and the Governor's recommended $449 million. This figure includes the outlay for community colleges.

The status of other selected appropriation bills includes: Agriculture, $12 million; Natural Resources, $29 million; Corrections, $43 million; Public Health, $28 million; Department of Education, $47 million; General Government, $89 million; and Safety and Defense, $58 million.

Ballenger group vows to take capitol building plan to people

LANSING -- Contending that the people of Michigan, not the Legislature, should determine whether a new capitol should be built in Lansing, State Senator William S. Ballenger (R-Lansing) and 3 fellow Republican Senators today took steps to give that authority to the voters.

Ballenger and Senators Harry A. DeMaso of Battle Creek, Phillip O. Pittenger of Lansing, and Carl D. Pursell of Plymouth are introducing a Constitutional amendment to require that any change from the existing Capitol to a new building must be "authorized by a vote of the people."

"We are prepared to take this issue directly to the people who must pay the estimated cost of more than $100 million," Ballenger said. "If the full Legislature refuses to submit the proposed Constitutional amendment to a vote of the people, we intend to launch a petition drive to force such a public vote."

"Getting the issue to a public vote by the petition method would be an extremely difficult and costly task because it requires the work of hundreds of petition circulators. But we feel strongly enough that we are prepared to go this route, although we hope the Legislature will not block a public vote," he noted.

Ballenger pointed out that at least $5 million already had been spent to renovate and refurbish the present Capitol and that, if additional space is still needed, a new building could be constructed on the old Plymouth Congregational church site west of the existing Capitol for approximately $6-1/2 million.

"This would amount to far less than the cost of erecting a new Capitol," he added. "Those of us who support a public vote feel strongly that there are far greater needs in this state than a new Capitol at this time and that the people themselves, rather than the Legislature, should decide whether to go ahead with this extremely expensive and unnecessary pipe dream," concluded Ballenger.

county workers, or any other public employees' union, would be empowered to negotiate with their employer to assess those employees who do not belong to the union a service charge. This item will undoubtedly become a factor in future contract negotiations between public employees and the employer.

Spenders at it again

REP DOUGLAS TREZISE
87th District

The spenders are at it again!

Just a few weeks ago we were all patting ourselves on the back over passage of the largest tax reduction package ever enacted in Michigan. It seemed to me that at least half the members of the Legislature were gathered in the Governor's office to have their pictures taken on the signing of that bill and to share in the credit.

I wonder how many of them will be back there next year for the ceremony when a TAX INCREASE bill is signed.

Yes, I said tax increase. Because, unless some sensible restraints are placed on spending habits around Lansing, we're going to find ourselves back in financial trouble and darned soon.

At best, you recall, the benefits of the tax reduction program were to stretch over two years. The underlying philosophy of the plan was that the surplus which accumulated belonged to all the people of the state and should be returned to all the people in an equitable manner.

But, the pressures on the Legislature to direct that surplus to special interest areas have been tremendous. More money should put into welfare, local school support, increased retirement benefits, new buildings and many other projects, these voices say.

And, those voices have been effective enough to threaten the fiscal health of the state this soon after the tax reduction program.

In actual figures, the appropriations bills setting forth expenditures for the coming year are already almost $130 million over the recommendations of the Governor. This is at the halfway point in putting the budget together, with practically all bills having cleared their first house.

Of this figure, $95 million alone was added in the Senate to the school-aid package. Of course, not all that money is in direct student aid to the public school systems. A good chunk of it is in increases in Special Education, Vocational Education and transportation costs. There is a $60 million increase in retirement costs included.

The House of Representtatives has contributed a $30 million increase in the social services appropriation to the budget overrun. This reflects increases in maintenance levels in ADC cases and in nursing or adult foster home care.

The impact of this type of budget increase is shocking. And, it is difficult for a single legislator to deal with the problems it presents.

I know a lot of people in the 87th district want more money spent in many areas. I receive letters from people who want Special Education funds increased, retired school and other public employees who want pension increases and many other requests for "additional" spending. Conservation, libraries, welfare -- you name it -- for every item in the budget, there's someone in the district who would like to see the appropriation increased. Voting against them all can incur the wrath of almost everyone at home.

Yet, these same people, whatever their special interests, are all taxpayers of the State of Michigan. And very few, in their capacities as taxpayers, want to see increases in their tax bills.

To me, this is the overriding consideration and I intend to approach each spending bill with control of total spending in mind. In doing so, we must try to come up with a budget which recognizes needs in all areas, distributing the money available as prudently as possible while staying well within the funds which will be available.

Whether you're an old hand at camping or a first-timer, one thing's sure: you won't want to spend a lot of time over the over cook stove.

To cut meal preparation time, take advantage of some of the same time-savers you use at home.

One of these is convenience foods. Canned soups, fruits and vegetables, meat and gravy dishes, potato and bean salad, beef stew, corned beef hash, chili and baked beef hash, chili and baked beans, package mixed for macaroni and cheese, add-the-meat main dishes, instant potatoes, pancake mix and ready-to-eat cereals reduce preparation time, measuring and cooking time and eliminate the need to carry a fully equipped store of basic ingredients and spices.

One-dish meals - chili, chicken and noodles, ham and beans - are great favorites with both cooks and hungry campers.

Whether for meals or nutritious snacks, many fruits and vegetables are good to eat raw. Stock your cooler or ice chest with individual cans of juice for a thirst-quenching and nutritious snack.

To keep sugar, flour and other staples from becoming damp, pack them in plastic bags. Put each bag in a large can with a plastic lid to protect it while traveling. At the campsite, use the can as a cooking pot. Make a cover with a couple thicknesses of aluminum foil.

Canned vegetables can be heated in the cans. Open the can and bend the lid back for a handle. After dinner there's no pan to scrub - simply throw the can away.

To transport liquids - milk, distilled water for a baby's formula, juice - keep in mind that plastic containers don't shatter and are much lighter than glass. They will melt, however.

Quick-and-easy may be foremost in your mind, but don't forget about food safety when you're camping. Keep perishable foods hot - above 140 degrees - or cold - below 40 degrees. Eliminate storage problems with leftovers by combining hearty outdoor appetites with careful planning to eliminate leftovers.

One mistake many beginning campers make is trying to take all their food with them. But part of the fun of visiting new towns is prowling through the local grocery store and trying products you might not find at your local store.

Shopping also gives you the chance to get acquainted with the proprietor, who is often a gold mine of information about what there is to see and do in the area. Thanks to Dr. Portia Morris, M.S.U. specialist for this information.

Hub antique car club elects officers

ST JOHNS - The 2d meeting of the new "Hub Antique Car Club" of St Johns was held June 2 at the Sleepy Hollow Conservation Club.

The following officers were elected:

President - Bruce Lanterman; vice-president, Jerry Buggs; treasurer, Mrs Brian Zeeb; secretary, Joan Fox; publicity, chairman, Mrs James Cain.

Anyone interested in becoming a member, should contact 1 of the above officers.

The next meeting will be held June 24 at 4 pm at the Sleepy Hollow Conservation Club. The meeting will be a family picnic. Those attending should take a dish to pass.

Marilyn Rice, 4-H Program Assistant, is visiting as many 4-H Clubs as possible this summer. This gives her an opportunity to become better acquainted with the leaders and members in the county. She is also planning on meeting with the new leaders to help acquaint them with the 4-H program and help them get started.

A man begins to live the moment he learns to live and learn.

resource personnel. In addition to the skills, competition will be held to test the 4-Her's potential. Because of growing concern for natural resources, 5 options in environmental conservation will be offered. Topics will include community action for environmental quality, environmental problems, rock collection and study, wilderness survival and wildlife. Participants in the natural resources options will tour the MSU - East Lansing area and explore sites, situations, and problems. A visit to the MSU Museum is in line for "rock hounds" and a display will be made exhibiting various types of rocks and minerals.

4-Hers interested in wilderness survival will experience a real outdoor situation at the Rose Lake Wildlife Station. Those having a flair for wildlife will spend a full day at the Woldumar Nature Center hiking on nature trails, making plaster animal tracks and touring the nature barn.

Michigan State University 4-H Exploration Days, June 21-23 will feature everything from music to motorcycles. This unique statewide event offers opportunities for members and leaders to select and explore from 116 interest areas.

Included are television and radio productions, sculpture, theatre arts, entomology, caring for kids, water survival, environmental conservation, personal appearance, photography and many more. The "action learning" options will be taught by MSU Extension specialists and professional resource personnel.

Those participating are expected to later transfer what they learn to other club members. That's the purpose of Exploration Days. This also helps strengthen the local 4-H club. Clinton County will have 41 4-H members and 4 leaders attending the event.

In addition to the "action learning" options, several special leader seminars, "leisure learning" options, and recreational activities are planned for the 3-day event.

Options and seminars designed primarily for the leader include "focus on leadership", "family living - what's new", and "a bag of tricks", and option featuring approaches in programming for older youth.

The diversity of this event is evidence of the 4-H program expanding and its realm. A few years ago no one would have thought 4-H members could someday enroll in such areas as motorcycle, ballet, sailing, or weather.

Saturday, June 23, the public is invited to attend "Action Day" in MSU's Spartan Stadium Concourse. Action exhibits, demonstrations, workshops and live performances will depict several of the 116 Exploration Days options.

This will help you see what the 4-H program has to offer now. A large selection of sports activities will be offered at Exploration Days. Included are basketball, bowling, field hockey, fly and bait casting, golf, sailing, judo, soccer, softball officiating, synchronized swimming, tennis, and track and field events. Participants will learn the basic skills necessary for these sports from Extension specialists and professional Cartooning, radio production, and TV production will be among the 116 options offered. The cartooning class features the use of cartoons for poster, exhibits, slides, and other visuals.

Participants in the radio production option will use a modern broadcast studio to produce radio programs and commercials. A visit to a Lansing area radio station is planned.

The TV production class familiarizes students with what goes on behind the scenes of a TV studio. In addition, participants will plan their own TV show to be broadcast to stadium viewers.

There is an orientation meeting of all delegates from Clinton County to Exploration Day, June 13 at 7:30 pm in Smith Hall.

There still are openings in our 4-H camp. It isn't necessary to be a 4-H member to attend the camp. Others can go with a 4-H member. The camp is Algonquin 4-H Youth Center near Hastings. Being a multi-county camp, you have a choice of when to go. The Camp Program starts on Sunday after supper and concludes with supper Thursday on the following dates, July 8-12, July 15-19, July 22-26, July 29-Aug 2 and Aug 5-9. Total cost is $21. Registration forms can be obtained from the Extension Office. We are emphasizing the week of July 29-Aug 2 for Clinton County. There are counselors going from the county that week. Camping is fun. Check fields for Alfalfa Weevil

By WILLIAM LASHER
Extension Agriculture Agent

Now is the time to check your fields for Alfalfa Weevil. In fact, yesterday would have been a better time.

The Alfalfa Weevil over winters as adults in Alfalfa fields, fence rows and wood lots. They become active on the 1st warm days of spring and are most active on warm nights, and cloudy, windless days. These adults lay eggs inside the hollow stems of Alfalfa or other plants. The young grubs that hatch from these eggs move out of the stems and feed on the tips of Alfalfa. As they grow larger, they begin eating the leaf tissue leaving only the veins, which gives damaged leaves a skeletonized appearance. Weevil grubs have a block head and a legless, cylindrical, wrinkled body. They are nearly white just after hatching, but become green with a prominent white stripe down their backs as they grow larger. When full grown, they are about 3/8 of an inch long.

There is considerable variation in the abundance and development of the Weevil in different parts of the state and in different fields, so you must check each of your own fields. After Alfalfa is 6 inches high, check every few days for grub damage during normal weather, and more often when temperatures reach 60 F or higher.

The critical point for the first cutting is reached when about 1/4 of the tips show grub damage. You can determine this damage by cutting a handful of about 20 tips in several parts of the field and counting the number of damaged tips. A tip that shows any feeding should be counted as damaged. The stubble and regrowth following the 1st cutting should also be checked for Weevils, whether the 1st cutting has been sprayed or not.

You can take the 1st cutting without spraying if most of the tips show damage when the field is examined. A lot of damage has already occurred and the costs for insecticides cannot be justified. Also, insecticides do not give good control on tall plants in heavily infested fields and an additional stubble spray is needed in such fields. You should spray the field if: (A) About 1/4 of the tips of the first crop show Weevil damage and the field will not be cut for a least 7 to 10 days. (B) If grubs can be readily found in the stubble following the 1st cutting. This is a common situation when the field was cut late or was heavily infested when cut. Grubs can severely damage the young regrowth. Do not delay in applying an insecticide to the stubble if the grubs are abundant.

Insecticides are poisons. Handle, store, and apply them with great care. READ THE LABEL before buying any insecticide. The label has full instructions for the safe, effective use of that insecticide.

For proper insecticides to use, get a copy of Extension Bulletin E-739, "Management for Alfalfa Weevil Control", free from our office, 1003 S Oakland Street, St Johns, Mich.

Must file certification for grain payments

Before farmers can receive any 1973 feed grain or wheat payment they must file a certification of land use at their local county ASCS office no later than July 2. Dorn Diehl, State Executive Director of the Michigan ASCS Office says that the fact that a farm was enrolled last February does not entitle the producer to payment until all crops are certified. This includes corn, barley, wheat, soybeans and grain sorghum, which are program crops, and other crops including set-aside acreage.

Diehl also says that all farms that have a conserving base must be sure there are enough acres of conserving crops such as hay, rotation pasture and green manure crops to equal the conserving base. Farmers may file a certification before all crops are planted if they are sure of the intended acreage. Farmers who have certified and are in compliance will receive their payment in July.

Rural water districts now may include individual wells

Rural water districts financed by loans from the Farmers Home Administration (U.S.D.A.) can now include individual and cluster wells as part of larger systems due to recent changes in FmHA guidelines.

The previous definition of "project" specified that they could only "include facilities providing central services." This has now been expanded to read "or facilities servicing individual properties or both." The new definition is for the guidance of FmHA state directors - who have the final approval authority for projects planned in their states.

FmHA had recently begun to finance such districts on a selective basis to evaluate their economic feasibility. In several areas of the country, they had worked closely with National Demonstration Water Project (NDWP), which has model projects operating in five states to assist low-income rural residents in developing user-owned water and sewer companies. "THE NEW GUIDELINES are [appropriate and timely," said Stanley Zimmerman, NDWP executive director. "There are many rural residents who live in remote and scattered locations who could not otherwise be served. Now they will be able to have their own well, or perhaps share one with two or three of their neighbors, and still have the benefits of central management and maintenance. We have been working with Farmers Home very closely in implementing such projects and have been impressed with their willingness to evaluate them on their merits."

Those interested in learning more about how rural water districts can include individual and cluster wells can write to the NDWP Information Clearinghouse c/o Ground Water Council, 221 N La Salle St, Chicago, Ill 60601

But her smile, instead of reassuring me, only increased the anxiety and confusion for I saw her teeth, white and even in the gleam of the light. Remaining all the while like themselves, soon they monopolized my entire vision as if the whole room were nothing but teeth and a remorseless light. Ghoulishly fear gripped me."

The world of a schizophrenic also may be filled with hallucinations; a person actually may sense things which in reality do not exist.

For example, he may see his dead mother walking through his bedroom, or he may feel fingers touching his body, or he may hear voices telling him what to do. These visual tactile and auditory hallucinations are very frightening to him.

Living in a world that is distorted and changeable and lacking the reliable landmarks we all use to anchor ourselves to reality, the schizophrenic feels confused and unbearably scared.

Because he has lost his sense of the "usual" reality, he feels at a distance from others, and very much alone. Being alone is what frightens him most; being alone prevents him from easing the confusion; being alone perpetuates his madness. NEXT WEEK: What causes schizophrenia?

Selling woodlot stumpage? Get agreement in writing

Are you considering selling stumpage in your woodlot or have been approached by a timber buyer? Before the first tree is cut, have a written agreement between both the landowner and the logging contractor.

This agreement should state the price of the material to be removed; the manner it is to be scaled, and any special conditions the landowner wants to impress upon the logging contractor. Woodlot stumpage is usually sold in one of two manners: either lump sum or price per thousand board feet. Both have advantages and disadvantages to the landowner and logging contractor.

The lump sum sale is usually the most convenient for both parties and lends to better utilization of the forest resources. Such sales should be for a given number of trees and each tree should be marked both on the trunk of the tree for the logger and on the stump for the landowner before any cutting takes place.

The sale per thousand board feet guarantees the landowner he is being paid for each thousand board feet the logger reports that he removes. However, unless the landowner knows how to scale logs and can be on the job at all times, he must trust the logger to report all the stumpage he removes. The log rule to be used must also be agreed upon and should be stated in the written agreement.

Many timber buyers approach the landowner and offer to buy the trees in a woodlot over a specified diameter. In most cases this is not a preferred management practice for woodlots. Some trees are ready for harvest at sixteen inches diameter and others not until they are thirty inches in diameter at breast height.

Professional advice should be obtained when considering harvesting in your woodlot. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources provides professional foresters to assist landowners in managing their timber resources. There is no charge for his service and he can be contacted through your local SCS office or Cooperative Extension Office.

Regardless whether you obtain professional advice or proceed on your own, have a written agreement between the landowner and logging contractor before you allow activity in your woodlot.

Carland News by Mrs. Pudge Daming

Mrs Beverly Wahlstrom was hostess for the Carland Extension Club in her home this week as new officers were elected for the coming year.

The new chairman of the club is Mrs Elaine Stinson with Mrs Betty Ziola as co-chairman, and Mrs Linda Austin is the new secretary. A great deal of time was spent during the meeting to register each member's talents, things that they have done that pertain to the welfare of human society, and listing each one's involvement in the United Fund drives, as well as other association drives to embetter the community.

Mrs Elaine Stinson had the lesson on the protein of soybeans, and many recipes were exchanged that involved this legume that yields oil, flour and meal.

Mrs Joan Gilbert assisted the hostess in serving the refreshments. The next meeting will pertain to ceramics and possibly the making of ornaments for the trimming of Christmas trees for the first lesson on making articles of baked clay.

Agriculture in Action

Milk for moon meals

Milk has long played a vital role in the welfare of America's explorers, and in the security of our nation's health and wealth.

The first settlers of Jamestown, Virginia, sought fortunes in gold and found instead the misery of hunger and illness. It wasn't until 1611, when new leaders arrived with cows and with a determination to develop agriculture, that the colony began its climb toward success. The arrival of the Pilgrims' first cows in 1624 brought new hope to the suffering Plymouth citizens and later the cow was a valuable part of the pioneers' trek westward.

In the 20th century, milk went to the moon with explorers. Apollo 11 astronauts carried puddings, cream soups and cocoa in dehydrated form. With added water - milk foods for moon meals!

PERHAPS BECAUSE milk has been recognized for centuries as a vital, life-giving, health-promoting product, consumers have come to take it for granted. That's one of the reasons our nation's dairy farmers designate June as Dairy Month. In Michigan, especially, there is good cause to "celebrate" this month. For many years, milk has been the largest single source of income for the state's farmers. Total 1972 production for Michigan was 4,916 MILLION pounds!

There was a time when nearly every child had a first-hand acquaintance with a cow; today, many city children have never seen the original source of their milk. Throughout the state, Farm Bureau members are taking time during June, Dairy Month, to invite these school children to visit their farms.

It is difficult to determine who gets the biggest thrill out of these experiences - the child who apprehensively meets the productive animal for the first time, and pulls the udder which releases the nutritious liquid... or the proud farmer who sees the look of wonderment on the child's face as he witnesses this "miracle."

One thing is certain - when these children grow up to be the explorers of tomorrow's unknowns, milk will go with them.

Perspective of death - - new course at DeWitt High School

DEWITT -- Thirty-three juniors and seniors at DeWitt High School have chosen to supplement their regular academic classload with a new subject adopted at the school this year. Entitled "Perspective of Death," the class is designed to acquaint students with problems that arise when there is a death in the family, according to instructor Elaine Kutchins.

Ms. Kutchins conducts her class in an easygoing, friendly manner, which is probably responsible for the popularity of the elective subject. This year the class was tried on an experimental basis, and has been so successful that 4 sections are planned for next fall, with at least 90 students signed up for it so far.

Corny jokes and laughter, by both students and teacher, add to the relaxed atmosphere of a class which conceivably could become depressing if given a different treatment.

THE IDEA of having a class dealing with death and its effect on members of society originated in the Midwest. David W. Berg and George G. Daughtery, both educators, put together an anthology of readings and an activity book which are used for the course.

Included in the anthology are topics such as "A Doctor Talks About Death," "Facing Death With the Patient," and "Legal Aspects of Death." Also included are selections from literature by well-known authors and reprints of eulogies from the funerals of Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King, Jr.

A workbook supplements

Elaine Kutchins, teacher of DeWitt High School's new Perspective of Death class, quizzes students on terms such as "necropsy" and "occlusion."

the text, and has room for notes from guest speakers and visits to cemeteries and funeral homes.

LEE R. RUMMELL, a funeral director from DeWitt, heard about the class and brought copies of the texts to DeWitt High School for officials to look at. After their and Board of Education approval were granted, the course was begun. Rummell paid for the books since there is no money available for new textbooks in the middle of the year when the budget has already been allocated.

Ms. Kutchins said they have had approximately 10 guest speakers so far and will have at least 1 more before the school year ends. Among speakers listed on the course outline are a doctor, coroner, minister, rabbi, priest, lawyer, funeral director and soldier. A colonel from the National Guard is expected sometime this week.

An updated form of Bingo was played in class last week. Ms. Kutchins read definitions of words having to do with death and related processes. The students then crossed off the appropriate words on tally sheets, if they knew which word she was defining. Actually sort of a sneaky way to quiz students, it nonetheless was met with enthusiasm by the class.

WHEN ASKED if she had received any unfavorable feedback from the community for teaching about death, Ms. Kutchins replied that she had never had "anything but the most positive reactions from everybody."

"It is a good class," she added.

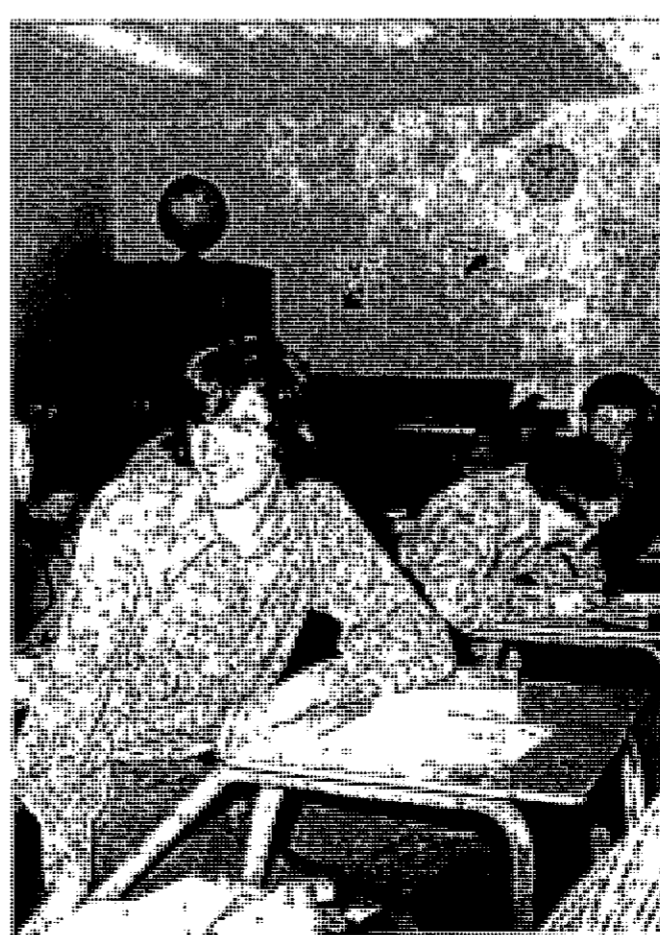

Pewamo

By Mrs Irene Fox

Mr and Mrs Norbert Fox Amy Fox and Russell Fox were visitors of their mother Mrs Irene Fox Sunday.

Relatives and the many friends and neighbors gathered at the 21 Club Pewamo to help celebrate the silver wedding anniversary of Mr and Mrs Jack Miller Sr.

Mrs Ann Cook attended the graduation exercises at St. Patrick's in Portland where her grandson Michael Cook son of Mr and Mrs Gerald Cook was among the graduates.

Students generally seem to enjoy the class, in spite of the strangeness outsiders may associate with a class entitled Perspective of Death.

Michigan leader in boat safety program

Michigan the acknowledged boating capital of the nation - has developed a program of boater safety and convenience along its Great Lakes shoreline that is unparalleled in North America, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

Sailors who venture onto the Great Lakes will find they are seldom more than 15 shoreline miles from any of the 61 protective harbors and public marinas sponsored by the Michigan Waterways Division of the Department of Natural Resources.

Add to this total the more than 500 commercial and special service marinas scattered all along the lakes, and Michigan provides its boating enthusiasts with the country's finest water safety and recreational facilities.

"Despite the shorter Great Lakes boating season, Michigan has more than twice as many boats using its waters and marina facilities as they have in the year-round vacationland of Florida," explains Joseph L. Ratke, Auto Club touring manager.

"In fact, this state ranks first in the number of registered boats with more than 534,000 - 9 percent of the nation's total. California is a distant second with 456,000 registered boats, or 7.7 percent of the country's total," Ratke points out.

And with recreational boating sales expected to increase 12 to 20 percent this year in Michigan compared with 1972, this would hike the sales total in the state to nearly $400 million for the first time. (This total includes sales for boats, engines, marine accessories, fuel, apparel, repair and maintenance.)

The accompanying Auto Club map pinpoints the location of Waterways Commission-sponsored harbors and details the service provided, which runs the gamut of marine repairs and holding tank pump-out to the number of transient wells available.

Lake Michigan heads the harbor parade with 24, followed by Lake Huron with 16 and Lake Superior with 15. The Southeast Michigan area, comprising Lakes Erie and St. Clair plus the St. Clair and Detroit rivers has six harbors.

"Since boating on the Great Lakes is a joy that will always be remembered, it is significant that Michigan has kept pace with this rapidly growing recreational activity by continually updating its facilities for all types of watercraft," state Ratke.

"Michigan has met and often exceeded the needs of boaters with its harbors program," adds Ratke. "This is important since our state is the outdoor playground of not only local citizenry, but for the entire Midwest."

"For it is to Michigan that travelers from Indiana, Illinois and Ohio come for summer vacation enjoyment. And much of this enjoyment is supplied by the Great Lakes," he points out.

"This network of inland seas is dotted with many tiny islands and ports of call, all just waiting to be explored by adventurous and non-adventurous sailors alike. And since many boaters travel great distances along the lakes, it is important their basic needs are met."

This is certainly the case as the 61 "ports of call" on Auto Club's map provide a complete number of services. Twenty-one ports have nearby US Coast Guard stations, 47 have holding tank pump-out, 27 marine repairs, 52 launching ramps, 41 at least 10 transient wells (only three have none), 55 gasoline and oil, 55 electricity, 56 water, 53 telephone, 52 ice and supplies and 54 restroom facilities. Ten render all of the listed services.

Sailors may choose from the urban areas of Southeast Michigan, where the emphasis is one day-sailing, racing, boating clubs and waterside restaurants; the sandy beaches and dunes along Lake Michigan; the many variations of Lake Huron; or the virtually unspoiled beauty of Lake Superior.

"Each of the Great Lakes offers a different and unique experience so that boaters should never run out of new and exciting things to do," Ratke states. "The state's harbor system has helped bringing these experiences within the realm of nearly all sailors."

A relatively new past-time for vacationers is attending popular festivals and tourist attractions by boat because many of these attractions are located near public harbors.

For example, sailors can take in the Big Mac Bridge, Fort Michilimackinac and Mackinac Island simply by boating and Mackinaw City to Mackinac Island. During a stopover at Grand Haven, boaters can see the world's largest musical fountain while Upper Peninsula boaters can dock at Munising to see nearby Pictured Rocks or at Sault

Ste. Marie to see the famed Soo Locks.

For the hundreds of thousands of Michiganians who annually enjoy Great Lakes boating, it comes as no surprise that this state sets the pace in watercraft activity, especially since our Water Wonderland has nearly 3,200 miles of Great Lakes shoreline. This is nearly 800 more miles than the combined ocean coastlines of Florida and California.

A few "specials" aren't much good for saving money if most of the other items on your food order cost more than at Kroger. Sure we have specials at Kroger. We call 'em Bonus Bargains. But we also have Every-day Discount Prices in every department. Together they'll almost certainly save you more on your total food bill. Check our everyday shelf prices and you'll see why this is true.

X What are Bonus Bargains?

When you see an "X" next to any item in Kroger's ads or stores, it means a Bonus Bargain, good for a limited time and made possible by a special purchase or a manufacturer's allowance or a favorable market condition.

ED NOTE: The following is the 1st of a series of food industry articles furnished to County News by MSU agricultural economists.

Are food retailers profiteering? What about farmers? Is there any financial promise in food system technology? Is it really cheaper to prepare meals from scratch than to buy convenience foods? What effect is increased American trade with foreign countries going to have on U.S. food prices? Are consumers overreacting to the current food situation? The US food industry has a good long-term record. Some developments -- such as unfavorable weather -- leading to the 1972-73 price hikes are transitory. Other trends, such as the dollar devaluation, increased foreign trade, rapid growth in consumer demand and changing technology and management practices could mean permanent change, say Michigan State University agricultural economists.

Following is a close look at what's happened and may happen in the food system, as summarized by a task force of MSU ag economists.

WHAT ABOUT THE RED MEAT CRISIS?

Increasing demand for red meats, the devaluation of the US dollar and a limited supply of pork were the chief causes of meat price hikes in 1973, according to Michigan State University Agricultural Economist Marvin Hayenga.

During the past few years, rising incomes have boosted consumer willingness to pay more for high-protein, high-status red meats. And because they're competing for a somewhat limited supply, consumers have been bidding the price up.

But why the sudden price surge in January through March this year?

One reason may be that employment expanded and Social Security payments were increased by 20 percent in the first part of 1973. Each of these boosted demand.

The dollar devaluation in early February meant essentially that US exports could be bought by foreign countries for 10 percent less, and that Americans would pay 10 percent more for imported items.

Immediately, Japanese pork purchases increased. Also, because retail pork prices in Japan have been 15 percent higher this year than last, the Japanese government removed its usual tariff on imported meat products. This even further motivated Japanese pork purchases.

Hayenga also points out that the risk of further dollar devaluation may have prompted Japanese firms with large holdings of dollars to exchange them for other currencies or to buy products -- such as pork -- which could be sold for other currencies.

Time will tell what the long-lasting impact of changing export patterns will be on US pork prices, Hayenga says.

Beef was not as quickly affected by the devaluation. During the first post-devaluation weeks, normal import supplies continued at pre-devaluation prices. But with new orders for imports, beef exporting countries asked for the increased price in dollars.

Consumer red meat demand was nearly as great as before the devaluation, so retail prices had to reflect part of this import cost increase.

Another factor in the pork price hike is less hog supplies. A year or two earlier, many producers had reduced their hog business, and wholesale red meats production, entirely due to low hog prices and high corn costs. Even when they chose to increase production to meet demand, built-in delays in the hog production cycle leave us with small supplies and slightly higher prices for a time.

Beef supplies have been slightly larger than a year ago, but prices nevertheless increased. Severe weather caused some cattle deaths, but that impact is probably small and spread over time.

WHAT ABOUT THE BOYCOTT?

It's hard to determine if there was a large drop in meat consumption during the week of the consumer boycott in early April, Hayenga says.

One major impact of the red meat boycott was larger purchases of chicken and fish. The result: short-run higher prices for those two items. Consumers may still have paid a high grocery bill, but it was for food other than red meat, Hayenga points out. The boycott did cause market uncertainty. Cattle and hog prices fluctuated greatly each day, and reduced supplies were sent to market as a result.

Although many retail stores and meat packers reported substantially reduced red meat sales during the boycott, consumers may have been eating from freezers and refrigerators and restocked them sometime later.

If consumers actually went without meat during the boycott week, their stored meat supplies are probably lasting into later weeks and larger meat supplies are also left available on the market. This could mean a slight reduction in red meat prices, Hayenga says.

If the boycott forewarns a longer-run reduction in consumer demand, prices could be even lower. Hayenga cautions that careful study is needed before definite aftereffects of the boycott can be noticed.

WHAT ABOUT PRICE CEILINGS?

Does the price ceiling placed in March on retail and wholesale red meats have an effect? Larger beef supplies are anticipated during the next several months, so Hayenga feels prices will slacken on their own -- unless consumer demand continues to increase at unusual rates.

There may be limited periods in 1973 when retail or wholesale prices for beef and pork "bump the ceiling," the ag economist says. Pork production is seasonally low during the summer, but greater supplies shortly after should ease prices. Beef prices may reach the ceiling in late fall or early winter, if consumer demand increases at its usual rate. If ceilings are reached, black markets or rationing could occur.

Will price ceilings cause supply shortages in the future? Probably not, Hayenga projects. Ceiling prices are set high enough so meat producers won't stop expanding production, he feels. They may hesitate and thereby slow the rate of increase, however.

THE LONG-TERM CAUSES

More mouths to feed and higher consumer incomes have influenced long-run beef and pork price hikes, Hayenga reports.

Greater employment, more federal spending and food stamp and school lunch programs also bring about more red meat purchases. Red meat prices also include increased packaging, processing and other service costs. Wages are fast increasing while labor efficiency is improving slowly. This increased cost results in higher consumer prices.

During the past few decades, beef and pork production has increased by about 3 percent each year, with normal fluctuation due to natural production cycles. But in the late 1960's and early 1970's, this rate was inadequate to meet demand.

Government policy has also assured that grain prices will not drop below certain levels. Consequently, feed costs may have held down livestock production, according to Hayenga.

Import controls on beef were removed this year to encourage imports primarily from Australia, New Zealand and Argentina. But since supplies in those countries are currently low and demand great in other importing countries, this quota lift probably won't change US prices much this year.

ARE HOG AND CATTLE PRODUCERS PROFITEERING?

A five percent return on investment by hog and cattle feeders is typical in Michigan, with occasional "gold mine" years and "bust" years, Hayenga reports.

When retail prices go up, prices paid by feedlot operators to calf producers may also increase. But for the most part, feedlot and calf producers' profits are low and fluctuating, Hayenga says.

IS THE GOVERNMENT TO BLAME?

The net impact of government action must be left to the judgment of the individual, Hayenga advises. He cites the following as considerations: The US government has in the past limited imports, devalued the dollar, operated deficit budgets and supplemented incomes to expand demand. It has also kept feed grain prices high and grain acreage lower than it might have been. At the same time, it has imposed price ceilings and margin and profit controls on some firms. The government, then, has both helped and hindered the price situation.

WHAT ARE THE ALTERNATIVES?

Switching to other meats or nonmeat protein such as soybean products is one alternative, Hayenga says. But consumers are slow to change eating patterns.

Expanded beef and pork production may also help. Increased pork supplies will hit the market during the last half of 1973. Expanding beef is more gradual. Substantial beef increases of 6 to 10 percent a year are not likely before 1975, Hayenga says.

Tax incentives, cost subsidies and new technical and management efficiencies may reduce costs, but some proposals may not be politically or economically desirable.

Caution urged when considering acupuncture

EAST LANSING -- A warning to the public against potential dangers of acupuncture was issued today by a leader of the Michigan State Medical Society.

In a statement issued from the medical society's East Lansing headquarters, Robert M. Leitch, MD, of Battle Creek, chairman of the MSMS Board of Directors, expressed concern that the public might look upon acupuncture, still a highly experimental procedure here, as a panacea because of widespread publicity given to its use, particularly by celebrities. Gov George Wallace of Alabama reportedly has undergone acupuncture treatments and several Hollywood personalities have discussed such treatments on widely viewed television talk shows.

"Despite reports of patients who feel that they have been helped by acupuncture, our scientific knowledge of the procedure within the American medical community is too limited at this point to accept this as a standard of professional medical care," the physician said.

"Many statements on diverse results and conflicting reports about acupuncture have circulated widely and it is clear that acupuncture at present must be regarded as highly experimental."

Last December the Michigan attorney general ruled that only a physician and surgeon may practice acupuncture in Michigan, and, in a clarifying statement, the State Board of Registration in Michigan said that "because acupuncture is considered at this time as strictly an investigational medical technique, it should be performed only in medical centers and in teaching and other hospitals having committees on human research which will provide necessary peer review of protocol and appropriate monitoring of such studies."

Doctor Leitch's statement also stressed the concern of the medical profession and public health officials about the attempted use of acupuncture by unlicensed practitioners, non-medical care, the physician, chiropractors, and the

This poses a danger for 2 reasons, he said:

"Competent emergency medical care is not available immediately if needed and such treatment might cause a patient to fail to seek the kind of medical care that his condition requires."

Local Jehovahs' witnesses to attend Detroit confab

ST JOHNS -- The Watchtower Bible & Tract Society of New York has revealed completion of plans for a series of international conventions of Jehovah's Witnesses in 1973.

Spokesman George L. Eberhard, presiding minister of the St Johns Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, said 40 local members would attend the convention scheduled for Detroit's Tiger Stadium June 20-24. Eberhard said 10 Conventions are scheduled for the United States, 5 in Canada, 12 in Europe, 5 in Asia, 17 in South and Central America, 3 in the South Pacific and 7 in Africa.

In commenting on the conventions of the Witnesses Eberhard made it clear that the meets are not associated with any other religious movements. "The objective of these meetings and the purpose of convening is not remotely connected to any other campaign planned for 1973."

He singled out "Key 73" in his discussion. "The slogan for Key 73 is 'Calling our continent to Christ.' However, divergent groups associated with this campaign disagree among themselves regarding its overall objectives."

Quoting CHRISTIANITY TODAY, Eberhard cited Key 73's goal as being "to try and give every person in the United States and Canada a real chance to say yes to Jesus Christ and to become a dependable member of his church." Some religious writers see the campaign as a "publicity stunt" for the "unchurched and inactive in the so-called Christian community."

Eberhard said he felt Christendom's problems of apathy, division and declining membership are caused by a lack of genuine knowledge of the Bible by its members and disagreement over its multitude of doctrinal differences.

"For example," he said, "consider the issues of abortion, separation and divorce, changing moral standards, war and peace, authenticity of the Bible, family responsibility and religious teaching. People point to religious leaders and their divergent viewpoints of such questions. They don't agree among themselves so how could the general membership be at unity in its viewpoint? It's impossible."

He pointed to the Witnesses' conventions as an illustration of a world-wide group of Christian people unified both organizationally and doctrinally. "These people are neither 'unchurched or inactive' he said. "They are active, not passive, Christians."

He said the conventions will provide Jehovah's Witnesses with a comprehensive program to build upon an already existing faith. "It will also provide us with an opportunity to travel to other parts of the country to see this unity of purpose in action. It is responsible for helping us accomplish the work we are committed to do—declare the good news of God's Kingdom by Jesus Christ as mankind's only hope.

"It is not merely a matter of 'calling people to Christ.' Rather, it is helping people see Christ in his proper position today as the enthroned King of God's Kingdom soon to exercise his rulership toward this earth.

"That action by Jesus Christ will accomplish what the theme of these international conventions denotes: 'Divine Victory.' It will bring man what he sorely needs—peace and unity."

Other subjects will be offered in the fall of 1973. Interested parties should contact the school.

Many stories about POW Major Glendon W. Perkins, his wife, Kay and their family of four children in Orlando, Florida have been appearing during the past year in the newspapers, television and radio.

Mrs Perkins will be remembered as the former Kay Kinney who was born in Elsie, the daughter of Charles and Francis Kinney. Mr Kinney was a barber at that time and while a young girl the family moved to Orlando where the parents passed away and Kay married Glendon Perkins. There have been other stories concerning former POW's who gave bitter accounts of their attempts and failure to re-establish marital ties and in some cases decided to seek a divorce.

Major Perkins said that many POW's he knew were having the same problems when returning to family and friends as to how they would be accepted.

However, he found his return easier because the entire family was sharing joys, responsibilities and problems together. When he flew off for Vietnam in 1968, leaving Kay and their four children, little did he know if he would ever see them again.

His plane was shot down by a surface-to-air missile over Hanoi. During the years in solitary in a North Vietnamese camp, he was subjected to abusive, humiliating treatment as a prisoner.

After a few months, when two housewives, who were members of a peace group assessing bomb damage in Hanoi, visited 21 men who had been listed as missing, they brought back the word "Glendon W. Perkins was Alive!"

Then there were three or four letters a year, no more than seven lines and a few pictures in Life-1967, TV at Christmas - 1968-69-70 and sometimes he was playing an old pump organ for the other prisoners.

Then came the release of the POW's and Major Perkins was one of the first three to be sent back to the United States. "You learn to tolerate and accept things", Perkins said, "and with love on our side we will move ahead, happily".

This month he will complete his convalescent leave and start a two-week school at Maxwell AFB in Alabama to learn about changes in the Air Force. In September, he plans to begin three or four years' study at Florida Technological University in Orlando, Florida toward bachelor's degrees in history and business.

When Kay Perkins was left with the task of rearing their four children Ed, now 18, Paul 17, Cindy 15 and Steve 13, new experiences, responsibilities and decisions faced her. She knew she should be accountable for the monthly allotments, decisions on purchases and expenses and savings, and most of all, the proper up-bringing of four lively youngsters from age six through eleven.

At the time of her marriage to Perkins, Kay had not completed high school, so she returned to classes to receive her diploma at night school. She has now completed her freshman year at a Community College and is eager to earn an associate's degree and work in Project Head Start which helps disadvantaged children succeed in school.

In 1968 Kay Perkins attended one of the first military briefings for next of kin of the missing and imprisoned. A few months later she heard a prisoner freed by the North Vietnamese reaffirm that unless there was a real outcry, a protest from the American people the treatment of the prisoners would get worse.

When Mrs Perkins learned that millionaire Texan H. Ross Perot planned to send 150 women and children to Paris to seek information about captives, she and a friend, Shirley Morgan and their children signed on. "You wives should do something about it", Perot told them. "Go out and make speeches. Make it known".

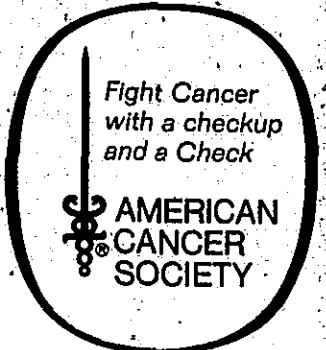

Upon return to Orlando, Kay and Shirley set up a booth in a local mall. They made speeches before any group that would listen. Kay made 140 speeches.

McCoy AFB located near Orlando named her Air Force Wife of the Year 1971. In talking to another POW, Lt. Markham Gartley, released last fall, Kay learned there has been a drastic change in the treatment of prisoners in 1970. It couldn't have been a coincidence, he said.

Kay Perkins admits that her toughest adjustment when her husband returned after nearly seven years as prisoner of war to relinquish control of the family. Her husband had been a strong father figure of staunch convictions who made all the decisions and he came back to his home to find his seat at the head of the table still waiting.

He praised his wife's adjustment. "I am proud of how hard she worked with the children and at keeping things together". Both agree the years apart forced maturity and strengthened them and their marriage.
