They will ask specific questions about ownership, approximate property lines and age of the dwellings. All information will be kept confidential.

Clinton native Leo Burnett leaves advertising legacy

By TIM YOUNKMAN
Editor

ST. JOHNS—Leo Burnett had to be Clinton County's success of the century.

The world-famous advertising executive, born and raised in St. Johns, founded the Leo Burnett Company in 1935 and watched the firm grow from a $600,000 agency into the fifth largest ad company in the world. At the time of his death on June 7, his agency had billings of more than $400 million.

Burnett, born here Oct. 21, 1891, graduated from high school in St. Johns in 1909 and attended the University of Michigan to study journalism. For a time, he worked in his father's dry goods store in town.

He worked as editor of the student newspaper in college and then was hired as a police reporter at the Peoria (Ill.) Journal. He then landed a job as copywriter in the advertising department of Cadillac Motor Company where he rose to advertising manager in 1919.

He subsequently worked with the LaFayette Motors Company, the Homer McKee agency in Indianapolis and the Erwin, Wasey and Company before founding his own agency in 1935. According to Advertising Age magazine, Burnett started his company with eight associates and three accounts. He landed the accounts of Green Gland Company, Hoover Company and Realsilk Hosiery Company. From there he built the firm into a $10 million agency by 1948 and $90 million by 1958.

He stepped down from the chairmanship of the board of directors in 1967 and took the title of "founder-chairman," although he maintained an active interest in the firm right up to the day of his death. He had put in several hours in the office the same day of his apparent heart attack on his farm in Lake Zurich, near Chicago.

Burnett's chief contribution to the advertising industry was his so-called "Chicago School of Advertising," a reference to his ideal of finding inherent drama in the product and writing the ad out of that drama.

Burnett's brand of advertising was most celebrated in the now-famous Marlboro cigarette advertisements. He took a minor product, usually associated with a feminine image, and turned it into a big seller by using closeup photos of ruggedly masculine men—with a tattoo on the forearm that became world famous.

Even after his agency became one of the largest, with more than 3,000 employees, Burnett would rise early in the morning to work on letters and memos in his study at the farm for an hour, starting at 5 a.m., before going to the office.

He said he followed this routine so he could "arrive at the office prepared for the onslaughts and adventures of the day."

Early in his career, Burnett had been accused of running a "one-man shop," but in recent years the agency structure changed to include many committees. When asked about the success of the committee in an advertising organization and its effect on creativity, Burnett replied with questions.

"Could a committee have created the Magna Carta, cornerstone of freedom in the modern world?" he asked. "Could a club have created the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, the Bill of Rights? The answer, of course, is: Yes, a committee could and did."

Burnett stressed that committees were functional in an advertising agency as long as they had a serious purpose, a key element to a good committee.

Among the many honors bestowed on the noted agency founder were election to the Copywriters Hall of Fame, the special merit award of the New York Art Directors Club, the honor award for distinguished service in journalism from the University of Missouri and election as marketing man of the year in 1968 by the American Marketing Association, Chicago.

He was honored for wartime advertising accomplishments in 1945 and for work in the Freedom Foundation in 1949. His book, "Good Citizen," published in 1947 by the American Heritage Foundation, was recognized in the latter award.

He served as a trustee and member of the executive committee of the American Heritage Foundation, a director of the Advertising Council and the former chairman. In 1968, the Leo Burnett Company formed the Leo Burnett Foundation, which benefits his alma mater, the University of Michigan.

After his years of observing and creating advertising techniques, Burnett had definite ideas on the subject. He talked about agency growth.

"The agency which expects to grow must keep in mind that the service it provides is in the thrust of creative ideas... There's nothing with quite the marketing leverage of the brilliant copy idea. It has the power to sweep before it what may have seemed insurmountable sales problems. You can solve a lot of distribution and packaging and inventory problems, at less cost, with a ground swell of consumer demand."

On agency bigness: "Bigness can be measured by dollar signs or numbers. But 'too-bigness' is more elusive. Too-bigness has set in when the old pursuit of profits cuts corners on old-fashioned ethics. Or when cunning wins out over plain dealing."

It was one of the original Horatio Alger stories—this man from St. Johns. But according to his fellow workers and associates, he never lost his touch of humanism. He believed in seeking new and more subtle ways in selling the product through advertising and sincerity.

"Whatever success I have attained in this business," he once said, "has been built on the concept that advertising is a living thing—that a good ad of yesterday may be a very poor ad today—that advertising must constantly seek new, more subtle, more humanly persuasive methods of trying to get the reader to associate his needs and his welfare with the things you are trying to sell."

Another election for Bath Township?

By BOB GAVAN
News Staff Writer

BATH TWP.—Bath voters may not have seen the last of the polls for the summer. Ernest Carter, Clinton County clerk, has received a petition from Carl Crofts, unsuccessful candidate for township supervisor on the Democratic ticket. Crofts maintains that the June 12 election was not valid since the voters for write-in winner David "Roy" Van Sickle did not use his legal name. Crofts claims most voters used "Roy" instead of "David L."

Van Sickle led the field of three running for the position with 334 votes. The election was a special ballot resulting in a recent recall of former supervisor Duane Smith in April.

"I have gone by that name for years, they knew who they were voting for," he said.

Van Sickle said that his main goal is to bring peace to the township. "We have been in an uproar for six months. It's time to settle down and get some work done. There is a lot that could be done to make this a real nice place to live," he said.

In a prepared statement for the press Van Sickle said, "On June 12, 334 people made the special effort to write-in or stick-in the name of Roy Van Sickle for Township Supervisor of Bath Charter Township. I wish to thank each of those people for this special effort. I hope it wasn't wasted."

"I do not believe there is any question in anyone's mind but what every vote which was cast in my name was with the absolute knowledge for whom they were voting."

"However, this does not matter to our petty element if they can find a technicality to disenfranchise the voters."

"For the past many months, a few people have been using every method imaginable to keep our township in a state of confusion. It has been petty bickering and unreasonable arguments for so many months now that our township has become the joke of the area."

"I resent this and I know, from your comments to me, that you do too. We live in a community we could be proud of in many, many ways."

"In any case, it seems to me that there is only one course open to Bath Township citizens and I mean from all parts of the township who care about our township."

"We must get involved in a demand for a return to reasonableness to such an extent that our petty and temperamental elements will know they are overwhelmed. Make a resolution now to get informed and to stay informed. Don't sign petitions unless you know the circulator is telling you the truth. Don't repeat stories unless you have checked them out."

"When there are referendums, get out and vote. If over 800 registered voters hadn't stayed away from the polls last Saturday and if many hundreds more of our eligible citizens, who aren't even registered, had registered and voted there might not be anything in the way of our return to normality today."

Special election Aug. 2

ST. JOHNS—Left with no millage when a 17 mill issue, an increase of 2.5 mills, was defeated June 14, the St. Johns School Board has scheduled a "must" election for August 2. An open meeting has been called for Monday night at 8 p.m. in the school cafeteria for the purpose of deciding on a new millage request.

Board members expressed their concern about the future of the school system. Board President, Raymond Parr, said "It looks like some parents want the school closed even though they have kids in school."

Superintendent Earl Lancaster said, "17 mills is an actual cutback, if we would have got the same state aid that we did last year, we could have made it on the existing mills. The increase isn't all for raises, but for minimum services such as maintenance and basic operation."

Board member Donald Bast expressed himself clearly when he said, "I have been called every name in the book because

Jaycee awards

ST. JOHNS—A joint installation of officers and awards night was held by St. Johns Jaycees and Jayettes Saturday night marking the 24th year of Jaycee activity in the city.

The group heard an address by State Representative Douglas Trezise and awarded him and Bernard Feldpausch special certificates of appreciation for their support of Jaycee and Jayette activities and projects.

In other Jayette awards three members were cited for their activities during the past year. Dee Slade and Sue Bogdan shared honors as outstanding new members of the year while Mary Beth Jarvis was named as the outstanding member of the board of directors. Mrs. Slade was also chosen as Jayette of the Year, the highest honor a local chapter can bestow on one of its members.

Carol Maples was presented a past president's award.

The top recognition was a family affair with the Slades as Larry Slade was selected by the Jaycees as their member of the year. Other Jaycee honors went to Terry Cornwell, outstanding first year member; John Arshart, general chairman for the Soapbox Derby project; Ken Welch, outstanding board member and Slade, chairman of the Detroit Lions benefit basketball game.

The special awards presented Trezise and Feldpausch were given in recognition of their work with the Jaycees and Jayettes as well as their general support of community activities and projects.

of my stand on the 17 mills and if we do not go for the increase, then there should be a drastic cut in services. Eliminate athletics, trips, extra-curricular activities, close the school at six in the evening so that it will hurt everyone. I've had it up to my eyes, all we want is a good program for St. Johns.

A small number of residents attended the meeting. Lancaster is hopeful that the residents of the school district show their concern whether it is pro or con by coming to the public meeting Monday.

Hackett sentenced

MASON—Jack E. Hackett, 60, 207 S. Traver, St. Johns was sentenced Friday to one year in the Ingham County Jail and five years probation. He was found guilty last month in the fatal shooting of Jerome A. Geller of St. Johns, June 7, 1970.

Hackett was given credit for 292 days already served in jail. He was ordered to pay $5,000 in court cost at the rate of $100 a month. He was also granted the right to leave the state anytime without notifying authorities as long as he reports to his probation officer at the proper time.

The original charge of first degree murder was reduced to manslaughter after Hackett's attorney Frederick Abood, petitioned Judge San Street Hughes for the reduction.

According to Lansing police reports, Geller had driven Virginia Murray, 27, of Lansing to work at the Roselawn Convalescent Home in Lansing Sunday morning June 7. When they arrived Hackett, according to testimony, was waiting behind a bush outside the home and chased Miss Murray into the building.

Witnesses said she ran in and out of several rooms screaming for help. Police said Geller ran into the building after Hackett and confronted him on the main floor.

Two shots were fired into the ceiling during the struggle between the men and then four bullets struck Geller, fatally wounding him.

Miss Murray escaped from the building where an unidentified woman drove her away. She stopped a patrol car and reported the incident.

After the shooting, Hackett was driven away from the home by his daughter, Lisa, and was stopped by a cruiser on the street.

Police found a German Luger and bullets for the gun in the auto Hackett was riding

Faith in the Lord key to longevity

By BOB GAVAN News Staff Writer

ST. JOHNS—The key to longevity, according to Clinton County's oldest resident, Jesse B. Guernsey, "is faith in the Lord, without that I wouldn't be here."

Guernsey turned 105 Friday and friends had a birthday party for him at Rivard Nursing Home where he has resided since 1964. Guernsey's memory is sharp, remembering the time he left New York State on train to Michigan in 1876, he recalls all the events and occurrences on the trip.

Hayworth topic of talks on watershed

ST. JOHNS—The Hayworth Creek Watershed project will be the topic of discussion at St. Johns High School Auditorium June 28 at 8 p.m.

The meeting was called by the sponsors, Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Clinton County Drain Commissioner and Clinton County Soil Conservation District, to explain the planned works of improvement to manage the water and control flooding in this watershed.

This meeting is to carry out General Eisenhower's policy when signed Public Law 566, these are local projects with federal technical assistance and federal financial aid. The public is invited.

His favorite story is the one about how he met his wife, who passed away in 1966 at age 90. "She saw me in a buggy one day and sent me a letter to come to dinner. Well, I went and in two weeks we were married," he said with a smile on his face.

Besides farming and logging, he and his wife took in children and raised them. His only living relative is his son, Robert Kiltnerman of Hubbardston, who took him to Daley's for dinner and "one or maybe two drinks."

Because of all the publicity in recent years, Guernsey has been receiving letters from distant relatives. This year he received a very special one from William D. Guernsey of New York City, who sent along information from a family tree he is compiling. According to the letter, Guernsey is a descendant of a Countess.

Guernsey ended the interview with a firm handshake and said, "I will see you next year."

Alma man found guilty

ST. JOHNS — James B. Jones, 28, 338 Ely St., Alma, was found guilty of assault and battery in Circuit Court Friday after being charged with the rape of a De-Witt housewife.

The jury deliberated for one hour before finding Jones guilty of the lesser charge of assault and battery. The sentencing date was set for July 12 by Circuit Court Judge Leo Corkin.

County may get option to allow race betting

LANSING—Counties would be given the option to allow pari-mutuel betting on light horse racing at their annual fairs under legislation just introduced by State Rep. Richard J. Allen (R-Ithaca).

The bill contains a structure of checks and balances, designed, said Allen, to assure that race-wagering is not instituted in areas where citizens are strongly opposed.

Establishment of betting on light horse (quarterhorses, etc.) racing at the county fair would be accomplished by passage of the resolution by the county board of commissioners.

If local citizens object to passage of such a resolution, they may petition for a popular vote on the issue. Such a petition drive would have to gain signatures of at least 10 per cent of the number of registered electors in the county who voted in the last Secretary of State election.

Allen's bill provides that the petitions would have to be submitted within 60 days after passage of the pari-mutuel betting resolution. The question could go on any primary, general or special election ballot.

"This is a real local government bill," Allen said. "The decision would be wholly a local matter, and any above-expenses revenues from these races would go to the local government."

"The only stipulation I've added to preserve some of these 'outdoor' revenues for outdoor programs. At least 50 per cent must be devoted to environmental, recreational, or 4-H horse activities."

Allen said, "A good many people in rural areas raise quarter horses and other light horses as a hobby. I think they would welcome the chance to race them in well-financed races at county fairs."

"This program could help to promote the good, healthy rural activity of raising horses, and at the same time raise money for local government."

"Naturally, I don't think such a program should be established if it doesn't meet general local approval," Allen said.

HERE'S PROOF-You Get Quality for Less

TIPS FOR THE PURCHASER

It's unwise to pay too much...but it's worse to pay too little. When you pay too much, you lose a little money...that is all. When you pay too little, you might lose everything because the thing you bought was incapable of doing the thing it was bought to do.

The common law of business balance prohibits paying a little and getting a lot --it can't be done. If you deal with the lowest bidder it is well to add something for the risk you run. If you do that, you will have enough to pay for something better.

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, it is the abiding goal of a civilized society to provide equal justice under the law, and in furtherance of that goal, the people of the State of Michigan in their 1963 Constitution stipulated that the judicial power of the state is vested exclusively in the courts of justice; and

WHEREAS, the present means of financing is sufficient at the present time, on the local level, with equal justice being held at a uniform measure, and

WHEREAS, we believe that with the state finances in the state as they are it would only add to the present trouble and put an additional tax burden on the people; and

WHEREAS, we believe that with the proper administration the problems that are surrounding our metropolitan areas can be resolved;

WHEREAS, courts have traditionally been the responsibility of local and county government and county government should not waive their responsibility in this area, either directly by affirmative actions or indirectly by failure to meet the judicial needs of their county with adequate resources and financial support;

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED by the Clinton County board of Commissioners that the Supreme Court through its Court Administrator set out to correct these practices and procedures which are fouling up our court system instead of having to create more taxes for those who are not responsible for the state; the courts are in;

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Clinton County Board of Commissioners goes on record as pledging to provide adequate financial support for our Courts locally and request other Boards of County Commissioners to adopt a similar pledge and stop this county to remove another essential function from the control of county government;

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Clerk is directed to send copies of this resolution to Governor Milliken, Senator Ballenger, and Representatives Trezise and Allen.

Nobis moved, supported by Lankford, to concur with the following resolution. Voted and carried.

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, there is pending House Bill 4469 in the House of Representatives of the State of Michigan which would provide a tax exemption for raw-in-process and processed farm products, and

WHEREAS, should this Bill be passed by the State Legislature, the local taxing units of Clinton County, Michigan, would recognize a loss of tax revenue, and

WHEREAS, the loss of tax revenue would cause unbearable hardship to the local taxing units of Clinton County and the people of Clinton County,

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the Clinton County Board of Commissioners goes on record as being unalterably opposed to the passage of House Bill 4469.

Commissioner Cobb presented the following Property Management Committee Report:

Private fireworks are still illegal

KNOW YOUR MICHIGAN LAW
By Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley

This is a public service article explaining in general terms a provision of Michigan law. Individuals who wish to determine the effect of any law upon their private legal affairs should consult a private attorney.

With the Fourth of July just around the corner, it is well for everyone to remember that the possession, sale, storage and use of fireworks, as that term is generally understood, is illegal and prohibited by statute in Michigan, excepting only under certain limited conditions as provided by PA 1968 No. 358.

The statute provides specifically that, without a permit, no person, firm, corporation or co-partnership, shall offer for sale, expose for sale, sell at retail, keep with intent to sell at retail, possess, give, furnish, export, use, explode or cause to explode, any blank cartridge, blank cartridge pistol, toy cannon, toy cane, or toy gun in which explosives are used, balloons propelled by fire underneath, firecrackers, torpedoes, skyrockets, roman candles, daygo bombs, or other similar fireworks.

Included, also, are any fireworks containing an explosive or inflammable compound or any device or tablet commonly used and sold as fireworks and containing nitrates, chlorates, oxalates, or other modern explosives.

No permit is required, however, for caps containing less than .25 of a grain of explosives per cap, in packages so labeled, toy pistols, toy cannons, toy canes and toy guns of a type approved by the director of the department of state police; in which said caps are used and which are so constructed that the hand cannot come in contact with the cap when in place for explosion and which are not designed to break apart or be separated so as to form a missile by the explosion.

NOR IS A permit required for sparklers containing not more than .0125 pounds of burning portion per sparkler, filter sparklers in paper tubes not exceeding 1/8 inch in diameter, toy snakes not containing mercury but only if packed in boxes of no more than 12 pieces each for retail sale with the manufacturer's name and quantity in each box printed thereon.

No permit is required for possession, sale or use of signal flares approved by the director of the department of state police, or blank cartridges, pistols, specifically for a show or theater or for the training of dogs, for signal purposes in athletic events or for use by military organizations, and all such items used by railroads, trucks or vehicles for emergency signal purposes.

The council or commission of any city or village, or township board of any township may, upon written application, on forms provided by the director of the state police, grant a permit to use fireworks, in their jurisdiction, for display by organizations or groups of individuals.

A like permit may be granted to a resident dealer to possess and sell fireworks to permit holders.

Applications for permits for a pyrotechnical display must furnish proof of financial responsibility in the form of a bond or insurance, with limits as deemed necessary for the protection of the public by the local governing authority to satisfy claims for damages to property or personal injuries arising out of any action or omission on the part of the applicant or any agent or employee thereof.

John Dunham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Dunham is attending Boy's State sponsored by the American Legion. He will be spending a week at Michigan State University in East Lansing. The week is spent in government.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Cook meet Mike Cook of Clinton National

Being head teller gave "Mike" ample opportunity to meet just about every Clinton National Bank customer who visits our St. Johns office, but after you take a look at the number of years he has been around, it's pretty easy to assume "Mike" knows them all anyway.

And after all those years of compiling acquaintances, it seemed only natural for Mike to join our adjustment department staff and that assignment became effective recently when "Mike" made the switch.

When August makes it to the top of the calendar this year, "Mike" will mark his thirtieth year in banking—a stretch of time that has spanned a variety of events in our county and nation. These years have all been spent in St. Johns and his work with the bank has been furthered by his completion of professional courses offered through the American Institute of Banking.

"Mike" spends his leisure hours, in season, on the golf course or producing and viewing home movies. It will be only a little over a year before retirement allows even more time for his hobbies, but in the meantime you'll find "Mike" devoting full time to banking business. After thirty years, there's little sense in trying to rush the last one.

A detachable chapel-length train was edged with lace and accented with Venice lace appliques. A Venice lace headpiece secured her shoulder-length veil and she carried a bouquet of pink roses, white carnations and baby breath, trimmed with pink ribbon.

Mrs. Joseph Kimber of Stockbridge, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and assisting as bridesmaids were Mrs. Rudy Gneiting of Lansing, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Owen Horton of Allegan, friend of the bride. Flower girl was Leah Gneiting of Lansing, niece of the bride. The attendants wore floor-length lavender taffeta gowns with ivory colored embroidered lace accents.

LaVerne Argersinger of St. Johns was his brother's best man and serving as groomsmen were Richard Argersinger and Melvin Argersinger, both brothers of the groom. The bride's nephew, Paul Gneiting of Lansing was ring bearer.

A reception was held for 150 guests at the American Legion Hall in Stockbridge following the ceremony.

Following a wedding trip to Germany to visit relatives of the bride, the couple will make their home at R-3, St. Johns.

The bride is a 1964 graduate of Stockbridge High School and attended Lansing Community College and Western Michigan University.

The groom, a 1964 graduate of Rodney B. Wilson High School, is employed at Oldsmobile.

Clinton bank readies annual flower show

ST. JOHNS—For the second consecutive year, Mrs. Homer Loyster of Saginaw, a graduate judge of the Women's Farm and Garden Assn. will supervise the judging of Clinton National Bank's seventh annual flower show.

In announcing the dates of this year's show, vice-president John Rumbaugh expressed pleasure that Mrs. Loyster could again participate in the July 1 event which will feature two new categories. The expanded program is a result of suggestions by Mrs. Loyster following last year's show.

The new categories are single specimens in pink roses and single specimens for yellow or white roses.

The show has enjoyed a steady growth pattern and last year 140 entries were displayed by 35 participants. Competition is open to anyone wishing to participate in the following categories: single specimens, red roses; single specimens, pink roses; single specimens, yellow or white roses; single specimens, other flowers; informal arrangements, roses; informal arrangements, other flowers; floating specimens, roses or other flowers and miniature arrangements.

There is no charge for participation but all entries must be delivered to the St. Johns office of Clinton National Bank by 4 p.m. Thursday July 1. As in all flower shows, no entries on the conservation list will be considered for an award.

Following judging and selection of winners, all displays will be on public view in the lobby of the bank from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Refreshments will be served and Mrs. Loyster will be available to discuss floral topics.

Motor oils reclassified

ST. JOHNS—Service classifications for motor oils were changed this year. Those most commonly used by farmers are now labeled SC, SE, CC, and CD.

Motor oil bearing the SC service classification will work on most spark ignition automobiles, light trucks and tractors manufactured prior to 1968.

SE is recommended for spark ignition automobiles and light trucks manufactured in 1968, 1969 and 1970 and most 1971 models.

CC will work on most lightly supercharged farm diesels and some heavy duty gasoline tractors.

CD is recommended for a few 1971 models of automobiles and light trucks and all 1972 models and later.

Motor oil bearing the CD classification will be needed for fully supercharged farm diesel tractors in high speed heavy duty operation and some heavy duty gasoline tractors.

The only thing we don't like about snorkling is the something we like about snorkling. Confusing? Not really, just a conflict of interests.

We like to swim with and around fish. Over the weekend we snorkled in schools of bluegills, perch and coppers. We chased two brute bass for a while and a "grandpa bullhead" scared us back into shallow water.

The conflict of interests comes in when we're playing tag with the bluegill. We get to thinking how good they taste... when a dark shadow turns into a 3 or 4 pound bass we think about how they fight.

But once in a while we get the chance to help a fisherman and watch the result. Like Sunday. We were playing around with some hand size bluegills, not paying much attention to anything else. A couple of anglers in a row boat drifted by and one called out as to where the fish were. We told them where, what kind and how deep.

They had been drifting for bass. But they changed baits, lowered the anchors and started to catch bluegill. And we went under to watch.

Now, we won't guarantee anything but from what we saw bet we think we know how to catch a few more bluegill.

The gills' schooled up... directly under the boat, 2 to maybe 8 feet deep but in the boat's shadow. They struck at a little dab of worm more than a big one. They usually hit as the bait was sinking... more so than when it was stationary or being lifted. Jiggling didn't attract or frighten them.

We watched long enough for 15 or 20 to be caught then lost interest and chased a turtle. And don't forget the St. Johns Little League All-Stars will take on the Lansing Sonics Friday night at the Little League Field. The benefit game will start at 8 p.m. The admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. The proceeds are for field lights.

Clinton National Bank is offering framed prints of Clinton County landmarks as a bonus for saving. Six prints by artist Hugh Riker are available for $6 each with a $25 deposit. The scenes are: Clinton County Courthouse at the turn of the century, the Old Mill at Hubbardston, the Old John Hicks' home, the Sugarbush house, the Steel bridge near Elsie and Clinton Avenue at the turn of the century.

Jobless aerospace and defense scientists, engineers and technicians will receive assistance in finding jobs through a $42 million Labor Department program. The money will be used to retrain about 10,000 persons, make relocation grants to persons who find jobs in areas beyond their commuting range, and provide job-search grants to enable about 20,000 applicants to explore specific job opportunities outside their home areas.

Marketing influences price

Farmers were reminded this week by Nick Smith, chairman of the Michigan State ASC Committee, that their action in marketing their crops does influence markets and market prices.

Government stocks are going down, he stated, and markets are increasingly reflecting the more natural supply and demand relationship. Current market prices, he noted, for most crops are well-above the price support rates.

In the case of soybeans, Smith noted, favorable prospects for a strong market demand provided the incentive for the Secretary of Agriculture to remove this important crop from the extended loan group.

Crops eligible for extension of the loan maturity date through 1972, Smith stated, include 1970 crops wheat, oats, and barley under loan stored in approved warehouses.

In the case of farm stored crops he reminded producers that loans on 1968, 1969, and 1970 crops wheat, oats, and barley; and 1969 and 1970 crop corn are eligible for extension through 1972 maturity dates.

Smith pointed out that the extended loan program promotes orderly marketing which in turn assures a steady flow of commodities in surplus to the market and guarantees the consumer an adequate supply at a fairly stable price.

The program, he explained, also provides farmers with a longer period to seek the best possible market for his commodity.

Producers who extend their loans for the 1971-72 program year will receive storage payments for the additional storage period. Storage payments, he added, were recently increased for the 1970 crops that are resealed or extended by $1.48 per 100 bushels per year.

This is in line, Smith stated, with the recent increase in the storage rates for government grain stored by approved warehouses.

Smith emphasized that the sale of CCC-owned storage structures in Michigan throughout June and July will provide many farmers with much needed on-farm storage. The steel bins at various binsites in Michigan are being sold at public auction.

Further details on location and type of bins may be obtained at the local county ASCS office.

Fire blight expected in state

EAST LANSING — Apple and pear growers in Michigan should be on the lookout for fire blight, says a Michigan State University fruit disease expert.

According to Dr. A. L. Jones, fire blight infections are showing up in Michigan orchards due to the hot, muggy weather during the first week of June. "Warm temperature and relative humidity above 60 percent favor fire blight infection and development."

Jones cautions growers whose orchards had hail damage during the storm on Sunday, June 6, to be especially careful in checking their orchards for signs of fire blight. "Fire blight infection usually follows hail storms where leaves, shoots and fruits were damaged," he says.

"Once fire blight is established in an orchard it is difficult to control," says Jones. "Diseased twigs and shoots should be broken out every 7 to 10 days, especially on young trees. This should be done only in dry weather to reduce the hazard of spreading the disease.

"Follow-up sprays of streptomycin may also help," says Jones. "For best results these sprays should be applied every seven days when temperatures are above 65 degrees." He notes, however, that streptomycin is a protective spray and isn't the whole answer. "It's currently impossible to 'burn out' fire blight with chemicals once the bacteria become established in the tree."

Control of sucking insects is also a must in any fire blight control program, since they help spread the disease to uninfected parts of the tree, or to other trees. Major insect pests in this category include pear psylla, aphids, plant bugs and leaf hoppers.

DeWitt board studies 65-acre addition

DeWITT—The DeWitt Board of Education last week unanimously decided to go ahead with a plan to investigate the purchase of an additional 65-acre tract of land to add to the existing educational complex on Herbison Rd. and Shavey Rd.

The plan was originally discussed last fall when crowded conditions developed during football games at the present stadium in the center of the city. The board members and Supt. James Ritchie discussed adding land for a new football and athletic field, similar to the athletic plant at Ovid-Eleste High School.

However, since the original plans were discussed, Ritchie and Middle School Principal Jack Enderle researched the future growth of the DeWitt school district and presented several alternatives of dealing with the jump in enrollment as far ahead as 1990.

In that time, they said, the district could have as many as three class A high schools, two more junior high schools and nine more elementary schools. The recent quest for land, they add, is part of the overall program of expansion within the district.

The 65 acres being studied now is adjacent to the high school complex at the corner section of Herbison and Shavey Rds. The school district already owns 100 acres in the area which holds the high school and middle school and could accommodate two more elementary buildings, according to Ritchie.

George Moody, president of the Panther Boosters Club, told

Ritchie that his group would not support a move to build a new athletic field unless a complete athletic complex (bleachers, lights and all-weather track) would be included.

Ritchie said the new land could be used for a football field, but that they should study the possibility of using the land for new building sites.

If a new stadium would be considered, he told the board members, the first step in the project would be a millage package, although funds from the building and sites account could help finance a downpayment for land acquisition.

In a related matter, Ritchie told board members that the guarantee period on workmanship of the Middle School runs out on July 16. He said that there was to be a special "walk through" June 15 with board members, school officials and a representative from the architectural firm of Manson - Jackson and Kane of Lansing.

They were to walk through the building pointing out final flaws or errors in workmanship so that they could be repaired before the guarantee deadline.

Board members were also instructed to plan for the upcoming intra-board election in which officers and committees for the 1971-72 school year will be installed. They will take office at the first meeting in July.

LOVE STORY - Story of a young college couple in love. Movie contains obscene language and suggestive sex scenes. Very realistic and sentimental.

M-A-S-H - Beautiful, satirical film on U.S. Army hospital on the front during Korean War. Theme is anti-war. Much blood guts, sex and profanity. Realistic. A good Gould performance. Recommended for broad-minded adults.

MEPHISTO WALTZ - Plotless and pointless film, complete waste of money and time. Film attempts to depict story of love triangle interwoven with witchcraft and devilry. Some sex in very poor taste.

New members on campus during the reunion activities were inducted into the group at a special ceremony. Eligible persons not able to attend the ceremonies will receive their certificates by mail.

Area youngsters winners in essay contest

LANSING—Two Clinton County youngsters were listed as school winners in the fourth annual Freedoms Foundation Eighth Grade Essay Contest sponsored by Farm Bureau Insurance Group.

Gerelyn Thelen, R-1 Colony Road, Fowler, a student at Most Holy Trinity school and Charlene Mead, 2768 N. Ovid Road, Ovid, a student at Ovid Junior High School, were named among the 179 individual winners from throughout the state.

More than 4,000 students participated in this year's contest which was conducted through 52 Farm Bureau Insurance Group offices around the state. Beginning as a Lansing Community project in 1968, the contest, encouraging young people to seriously consider their role in shaping America's future, was expanded to a statewide competition in 1969.

The basis for this mass appeal is the concept of competition—encouraging youth to seriously consider the heritage and future of America through the theme "What I Can Do For My Country."

This year's state-side winner was Cara Bobrowski of Jackson. Karen Crandall of Pittsford was second and Robert Streeter, 16801 DeWitt Road, Lansing was third.

Elsie Chapter No. 69 of the Order of Eastern Star will sponsor a special showing of three films from the American Cancer Society through the General Chapter O.E.S. on Thursday, June 24 at 7:30 p.m. in Knight Elementary School. Everyone is invited.

"Light a Light Against Cancer Through Research" is the project as extended to the Michigan Grand Chapter with Mrs. Blythe Parks of Flint as chairman.

The local committee is composed of Mrs. Ann Praay, Mrs. Lella Wilson, Mrs. Gary Schultz, Mrs. Alex Dunay and Mrs. Archie J. Moore.

Everyone is urged to attend this program of vital importance and there is no charge but donations may be made to Cancer Research.

The members of the Elsie Masonic Lodge F & A.M. and their wives received a special welcome at the Sunday morning worship service in the United Methodist Church from the Rev. David Litchfield.

The Carol Crusader and Chancel Choirs were also given special recognition for their year's service to the United Methodist Church.

The Elsie Methodist Men will hold its monthly breakfast on Sunday morning, June 20 at 8 a.m. in Fellowship Hall.

The ladies of the WSCS of the United Methodist Church are sponsoring a rummage sale at Fellowship Hall June 24 - 25 and 26. Proceeds will aid Mrs. Margaret Grubaugh to attain her goal of becoming a Lay Pastor. The ladies in charge of the sale request that articles be brought to the Fellowship Hall Wednesday, June 23 between one and nine o'clock in the afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Ethel Scanlon, a former resident of Bannister, now living at Cheboygan, visited Mrs. Gladys Coslette Wednesday.

OES RECESS FOR SUMMER

Elsie Chapter No. 69 OES closed its monthly meetings Thursday for the summer recess and will resume regular sessions in September.

Gold certificates for 50 years were received through the Grand Chapter to award Mrs. Olive Messier of Chandler, Ariz., Mrs. Mary Randall of Kalkaska, and Bradenton, Fla. and Mrs. Mary Wilson of Owosso. Later, Mrs. Lella Wilson and Mrs. Anna Dunay drove to Kalkaska and surprised Mrs. Randall when they presented her with an OES pin and the gold certificate. After spending the day visiting, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Randall hosted the matron and Park Watson of St. Johns.

The worthy matron's project included a new light for the podium and a filing cabinet for the Chapter room, but they have not yet been delivered.

Early this year two monthly social card parties were held. Elsie and her "sister chapter" Alma exchanged "Friends Night" activities at each chapter.

Mrs. Patricia White, Grand Committeewoman on the ESTARL Scholarship was a special guest and brought a message from the Grand Family in March.

An ESTARL Vesper Service will be held at the St. Johns Radiant Chapter No. 79 promptly at 4 p.m. Sunday, June 27. The public is invited to attend.

At the close of the Chapter meeting, Mrs. R.D. Martin, Mrs. Karin Lusk and Mr. and Mrs. W.S. Lusk were in charge of a social hour with light refreshments.

Elsie ladies for evening dinner at Vivian's Restaurant.

At the time these three ladies joined the organization in 1921, the local Masonic and Eastern Star meetings were held on the second floor of Dunham's building, now Wooley's Variety Store.

The following year they purchased the brick building known as the Hasty block. After much remodeling, dedication services were held there Sept. 29, 1922 and since then has been the meeting place for both the active groups.

In reviewing the highlights of the past year with Mrs. Sharon Schultz and John Hall as worthy matron and patron, respectively, at the head of the Chapter, there were many notes of interest.

Mrs. Alex Dunay and Mrs. Lella Wilson attended the 33rd Triennial Assembly of General Grand Chapter OES at Milwaukee, Wis. last October and also during the same month both ladies and Mrs. Gary Schultz went to Grand Rapids to the Michigan Grand Chapter session, which is the oldest Grand Chapter in the world, organized in 1867.

David Showers, formerly of Elsie, now attending Asbury College, Ky. was awarded an ESTARL (Easter Star Training Award for Religious Leadership) Scholarship given to those studying for the ministry or other religious fields.

David, the son of Rev. and Mrs. Gordon Showers, was sponsored by the local chapter at the time of his graduation from Ovid - Elsie High School and it was renewed each successive year by the Education Board of the Grand Chapter.

Floral arrangements were presented to Mr. and Mrs. John Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Luman Hall on the occasions of their 50th wedding anniversaries. Feedlot licensing possible

LANSING—Possible regulation and licensing of livestock feedlots will be the subject of a special legislative study if a newly-introduced House resolution is adopted.

The resolution has bipartisan sponsorship of three legislators: Republican Rep. Richard Allen of Ithaca and John Engler of Mt. Pleasant, and Democrat Frank Wierzbicki of Detroit. Allen and Engler come from cattle feeding families, and have first-hand knowledge of the problems involved. Wierzbicki, as Chairman of the House Consumers and Agriculture Committee is viewed as a consumer advocate.

Within the past two years livestock feedlots have come under fire from the general public and also from the water and air pollution control agencies in the Departments of Public Health and Natural Resources.

According to Allen (prime sponsor of the measure) the objective is neither to favor farmers nor those concerned with pollution.

"The situation must be clarified," said Allen. "We must protect our environment, but we also need to assure farmers that the livestock industry can and will survive and prosper in Michigan. Both of these goals are achievable."

"Currently, a farmer may be cited and shut down for pollution, but he is not given adequate advice on how to eliminate the pollution problem," he added.

"We should be able to help feeders design lots in such a way that they can be assured that under proper operation they will meet established standards."

Both Allen and Engler believe it would be best if the licensing and regulation of feedlots were to be administered by the Department of Agriculture.

Meeting air and water pollution standards of the Public Health and Natural Resources Department would still be necessary. However, Allen and Engler think the research and design planning necessary to meet these standards could be best accomplished by the Agriculture Department.

A number of states, including Kansas, Colorado and Texas, already license feedlots.

According to the sponsors asking a study of the problem, representatives of the livestock feeding industry would be consulted, as well as the major state departments involved.

Cost shared

EAST LANSING—Nick Smith, chairman of Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee says the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) shares the cost with farmers for carrying out wildlife conservation practices on farmland.

Cost-sharing is also provided for approved pollution control practices as well as other approved soil, water and woodland practices. All of these practices reduce sedimentation, runoff and stop soil erosion which affect the quality of the water in the rivers, streams, and lakes.

All of these practices benefit wildlife. Each year at least 4 billion tons of soil are displaced by erosion and are carried by water to new locations. This includes construction and farming operations. Smith said all of us are concerned about ways and means of improving our environmental resources.

REAP practices such as deep and shallow ponds and wildlife food plots affect the amount of fish and wildlife available. Other practices include tree and shrub plantings, sod waterways, vegetative cover and timber stand improvement. All of these practices benefit wildlife, increase hunting, fishing and other recreational opportunities for all the people.

By voters continue to vote no, June could be the month that will trigger the end of the property taxes that finance public schools.

June is millage election month, with most elections taking place on the 14th. And if school districts throughout Michigan suffer defeats as they have in recent years, action to reform property taxation will receive a big boost.

People generally agree that schools need money, but as voters, they are saying the method is wrong. Property taxes can no longer bear the burden.

Gov. Milliken, in his recommendation for complete elimination of property taxes for school operation, has accurately reflected the mood of the property taxpayer. His request to the legislature would put this issue on a special election ballot in November, 1971.

The proposal would eliminate property taxes as a base for school operating funds, but would permit up to six mills by vote of the people for special programs. It would also cut the total millage limit in the Constitution from the present 50 mills down to 30 mills.

The new base for school operating funds replacing property taxes would come from the state income tax. It provides a sound method of equitable taxation, paid by all citizens instead of just property owners.

A source close to the issue in Lansing said that if the legislature adopts a resolution to put the property tax issue on the ballot in the fall, perhaps voters would ease up and pass operational millage proposals, knowing it could well be the last year it would be necessary.

Of all the issues confronting society that seem helplessly beyond the grasp of the local citizenry, it is comforting to know that on this issue our governmental representatives will be attentively listening to the voter. It will be an interesting twist for tax watchers to witness the predicted defeat of the dreaded rise in property taxes at the polls in a negative vote that eventually will bring positive results in total tax reform.

Clinton IFYE host

By JOHN AYLSWORTH

Clinton County will be hosting a 1971 IFYE Exchanger, Miss Willemina Gotink, from the Netherlands. She will be staying with the Orvest Davis family, 4480 W. Cutler Road, DeWitt, from July 23-August 8. IFYE stands for the International Farm Youth Exchange program.

Miss Gotink is a graduate of Teachers Training College in her country and is presently employed as an Agriculture/Domestic Economy teacher. She can speak Dutch, French, German, and English languages. She was raised on a 20 acre farm where they raised rye, oats, potatoes, sugar beets, and onions for crops and cows, pigs, sheep, and poultry for livestock.

While here in the United States, Miss Gotink wants to learn more about 4-H clubs as to projects, community service activities and problems; agriculture related to wheat production and cattle breeding; and home science related to home management, nutrition and sanitary science.

During her stay in Clinton County, Willemina will be sponsored by the Bruce Lanterman Insurance Agency of St. Johns.

Miss Gotink arrived in the United States on May 12 and will be staying with different Michigan families until August 8 when she will leave for her next host state of Iowa. She will be attending the 4-H Exploration Day program and 4-H Youth Week held at Michigan State University.

The IFYE program is conducted in the United States by the National 4-H Club Foundation in behalf of the Cooperative Extension Service and is financed by Friends of 4-H. The IFYE program with Netherlands is in cooperation with the Foundation for the Exchange of Agricultural Trainees and Study Tours of Farm Lands of Holland.

ORIENTATION was held Tuesday evening for the 4-H members from Clinton, Gratiot, and Shiawassee Counties who will be participating in the National 4-H Citizenship Short Course July 4-10 at Washington, D.C. They will be staying at the National 4-H Center while in Washington. Senator William Ballenger spoke to the group on some of the major issues that faced our state and answered some questions they had on other topics. He explained the difference in issues that were State oriented or Federal oriented.

The members should find this background information helpful as they participate in workshops at Washington. Those attending from Clinton County are Marcia Tait, Lori McQueen, Fred Thelen, and Steve Thelen from St. Johns and John Dunham and Marie Blakely of Elsie.

4-H MEMBERS with rabbit projects are invited to attend a training meeting on Monday, June 21, 8:00 p.m. at Smith Hall in St. Johns.

Topics to be covered include feeding, care of the young, selection, showing rabbits, diseases, etc. This will be an excellent meeting for members, parents and leaders to get their questions answered on this project. Ed Collier of Charlotte, Bob Vitek of St. Johns, and Jerry Flories of Albers Milling Company will be present to answer questions and present the program.

THE 4-H DEMONSTRATION and Action Exhibit Contest scheduled for Wednesday, July 7 has been postponed till Tuesday, August 10. This will allow the members more time to get involved with their projects and give practice sessions in their local club.

The top demonstrations and action exhibits will be asked to give them again at the County 4-H Fair.

4-H FOOD MEMBERS 14 years and older, parents, and leaders are invited to attend the Gala Foods Go Round program July 13. The program will be held at the Consumer Power Company office at Owosso from 1:30-3:30 p.m. The Consumer Power Home Economist, Mrs. Jo Dillon, will prepare several foreign foods, demonstrate the use of the Outdoor Grill and Electronic Oven.

Also she will explain the arrangement of the efficiency Carousel Kitchen followed with a Taste and Tea-Time. Leaders are to contact the Extension Office in St. Johns by July 1 on the number from each club expected to attend.

If enough are interested a second session will be held in the evening on July 13 from 7:30-9:30 p.m.

THE OLIVE 4-H Projects members will have a "Fun Committee" to plan all the club activities. The committee is composed of three members: David Price, Sherolyn Smith, and Cindy Wohlfert plus three mothers: Mrs. Barbara Price, Mrs. Sally McElroy, and Mrs. LaRene Smith.

It was suggested that attendance at the club's business meetings be taken into consideration for trip award recommendations.

The Elsie 4 Corners Club members will be holding their summer meetings at the Friendship Park located at the Colony. The club held their last glass bottle pickup on June 5.

District Award winners were announced from the club which included Alan Cobb in Dairy, Matthew Peck in Field Crops, and Kam Washburn in the Danforth Award. Summer camp was discussed and several members plan to attend.

June dairy month

DETROIT—In addition to being known as the month for matrimony, June also is recognized by the dairy industry as Dairy Month.

In Michigan, Dairy Month is particularly notable because of the importance of the dairy industry to the state's economy and the state's ranking as one of the top milk producing areas in the United States.

Agriculture ranks behind only the automotive industry and tourism as a contributor to the state's economy and dairying accounts for approximately one-third of Michigan's billion-dollar-a-year farm business.

Last year, Michigan dairy farmers produced approximately 4.6 billion pounds of milk, seventh highest of all 50 states and almost 4 percent of the total U.S. milk production. Only Wisconsin, New York, Minnesota, California, Pennsylvania and Iowa, in that order, produced more milk than Michigan.

Put another way, if all the milk produced in Michigan were put in one-quart containers, more than two billion cartons would be required. Set side by side in a continuous row, the line of cartons would extend almost 93,000 miles.

THE STATE'S DAIRY industry has changed drastically in recent years. In the last 13 years alone, the number of dairy farmers selling milk has dropped from 48,650 to approximately 13,800. The latter total includes approximately 8,800 dairy farmers whose milk is eligible for fluid use (Grade A) and about 5,000 dairymen whose milk is used only for manufactured dairy products.

Because the average Grade A farm is considerably larger than the average Grade B operation, about 87 percent of the state's total milk production comes from Grade A farms.

While the number of dairy farms has declined, the average farm has grown tremendously in size. Since 1958, the volume of milk produced on the average Grade A Michigan dairy farm has increased more than two and a half times.

Figures from Michigan Milk Producers Association, a statewide dairy farmer cooperative, show that the average MMPA member farm produced 157,920 pounds or 73,451 quarts of milk in 1958. In the fiscal year ending late last year, the average milk production per member farm stood at 413,839 pounds (or 192,483 quarts).

The trend toward fewer and larger also is prevalent on the processing side of the industry. Today, there are 73 fluid milk bottling plants in the state compared to 572 in 1950. Efficiencies of larger operations, technological developments in processing equipment and improvements in highway networks have contributed to this decline in numbers of small local dairies and the onset of huge regional dairy operations.

Advancements in breeding, feeding and other farm management practices also have resulted in significant improvements in milk production per cow. Last year, the Dairy Herd Improvement Association, a statewide testing service, reported an average milk production of 12,948 pounds per cow in Michigan. Ten years earlier, the figure was 11,178 pounds per cow while in 1950 it was 9,218.

THUS, IN 20 YEARS, production per cow on Michigan DHIA test has increased 40 percent.

On today's modern dairy farm, it is not at all unusual for a cow to produce 20,000 pounds or more of milk in a single year.

Based on current U.S. consumption figures, a single cow producing 20,000 pounds of milk would provide a year's supply of milk and dairy products for 36 people.

While much of the milk produced in Michigan is sold in fluid form, a sizable quantity also is used in making a variety of other dairy products. For instance, it takes about 22 pounds of whole milk to make a pound of butter. A pound of cheese requires about 10 pounds of whole milk.

About 6.5 pounds of nonfat milk (butterfat removed) is required for a pound of cottage cheese. The heaviest milk producing area in Michigan is Sanilac and Huron Counties, in that order, in Michigan's Thumb. A recent count showed there were almost 800 Grade A dairy farms in Sanilac County and about 470 in Huron County. Other leading dairy counties include Lapeer with 347 Grade A operations, Otsego with 346 and Allegan with 344.

Redecorate

By LORRAINE SPRAGUE Extension Home Economist

If you plan to redecorate your home this fall, start thinking about it now. For most of us redecorating one or several rooms is a major activity that deserves more than spur-of-the-moment decisions.

One question we Extension Home Economists are often asked is "How do I go about selecting a new color scheme?" The easiest way is perhaps to start with something you know that will be a part of the particular room you are planning for. It may be the floor covering, a favorite chair, a special picture, the drapes or even a special vase or piece of other artwork.

Those things that are permanent must be considered as part of the total.

If everything is to be changed—new carpet, new furniture or new drapes, etc.—you can take an entirely different approach. Probably color likes and dislikes are to be considered first of all.

If you don't like yellow, no matter what your friends say, you'll never be happy with yellow as a dominant in any room. If blue is your favorite color, but room lighting is such that blue gives too cold an atmosphere, use it as an accent color.

Most rooms need the life of at least some bright color. True, drab grey, beige or brown won't show soil, but they can be an awful drag on one's spirits. If you want to use a neutral color for the basic room color select a neutral that still carries a hint of color. Did you know there are "rosy beiges", "bluish greys" and "orange browns" that come alive when combined with the proper additional color or colors?

Room exposure needs to be considered also. Rooms that receive little sun can seem cold; warm them with gay reds and yellows. Rooms with too much sun welcome cool touches of blue and green. Modern lighting can do magical things with color. If you aren't too familiar with the effect of artificial light on colors, perhaps you'll want to consult lighting experts.

You can experiment also by placing swatches of fabric, paper or paint under different kinds of light color to see the effect. For instance warm deluxe fluorescent light gives a softer pinkish cast than does a cool deluxe fluorescent light. In general incandescent bulbs are a warm natural light, unless the bulb is coated for a specific use or effect.

Select background color first, then determine accessory color or colors. Keep in mind that warm and texture affect color also. Reducing colors (blue and red especially) give very light tones) make a room look larger while aggressive colors (yellow and reds and darker tones) will make it look smaller. Thus color influences apparent size.

Most important in building a color harmony is to develop something you really like. Per-

First experimental crop in Saginaw valley

The new Saginaw Valley Bean-Beet Research Farm will produce its first experimental crop this summer.

The 120-acre farm, 15 miles southwest of Saginaw, was purchased this past winter by the Michigan Bean Commission, the Michigan Bean Shippers Association and the Farmers and Manufacturers Beet Sugar Association for use by Michigan State University.

"This is a unique joint effort of a public institution and agricultural industries," pointed out Dr. Dale Harpstead, chairman of the MSU Department of Crop and Soil and administrator of research programs on the farm.

"We must recognize that research is a vital part for all we do and especially at this time in the high risk enterprises of bean and beet production," said Harpstead.

"There are no short cuts or quick solutions. We must test, examine and demonstrate the facts."

"MSU, the industries, including producers and growers, are all interdependent in this venture. This appears to be a very healthy arrangement which can be a mutual benefit to all parties."

The farm is one of the best places of land for research in the region, according to Harpstead. More tillage will be installed to provide uniform surface water control.

This year's bean experiments include:

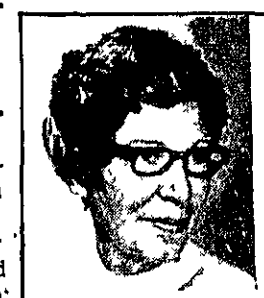

- New types of bean structure,
- Disease resistance and control,
- Fertilizer Response,
- Planting systems,
- Systems of production.

Sugar beet research will not be moved over to this site until 1972 because time is needed to prepare land for research use. Sugar beet research will be continued at the Perden Farm site this year.

It is still too early to know if there will be a field day at the farm this year, but Harpstead emphasizes that visitors are welcome at the farm anytime. He suggests they check with the farm superintendent when visiting the farm.

Dairy month

Paula Gibson is among the Spanish students of St. Johns High on a trip to Mexico this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Brocker were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Piotrowski and children, of Novi. Their granddaughter, Linda, returned home with them on Sunday evening.

Mrs. Clair Wilson spent the weekend with her mother near Potoski; while Clair and her son, Mike, accompanied Clair's father on a fishing trip in Canada for a few days.

June is National Dairy Month, and the dairy industry has certainly earned this annual recognition. If we take a look back into history, we will find that the first dairy cows known to be in this country landed at Jamestown in 1611.

As the country grew and the pioneers moved westward, so did the cow. Walking behind the covered wagon, she represented one of the most dependable food sources for the pioneer family. Today, the milk produced by dairy cows on Michigan farms represents the largest single source of income for agricultural products in Michigan. In 1969 alone, Michigan dairy cows were busy producing 4.6 billion pounds of milk worth over $254 million.

Nationally, Michigan ranks seventh in the production of milk and several milk products including ice cream and butter. This state is fifth in the production of cottage cheese.

The pioneer family had raw milk to drink and the thick cream skimmed off the top. The women in the family churned butter, and sometimes made a version of cheese. Today's family is confronted with a vast array of dairy products from which to choose.

The consumer doesn't "just" buy milk. She chooses from among milks of varying fat contents and process methods. Her purchases are more varied than ever before. She chooses from a wide variety of flavored yogurts, flavored cottage cheeses, and flavored milk products. Words such as "homogenized," "pasteurized," "sterilized," and "enriched" are common in our everyday vocabulary; whereas, these words would have been foreign to the pioneer.

Today's family certainly consumes different assortments of dairy products than the pioneer family however, today's family has also been changing its own pattern of consumption of dairy products during the last decade. Although the average family still consumes more milk than ever, it is not as much as it once was. In fact, the percentage has decreased.

At the same time, the consumption of skim and low-fat milks has increased. As we have become more diet conscious, we have turned to buying these milks with the lower fat content. Some people, in wanting to decrease the daily intake of calories still further, have cut out dairy products entirely. This seems to be one reason that we, as a nation, are showing inadequate amounts of calcium in our daily diets. Milk and milk products are the primary sources of calcium.

Join in the celebration of National Dairy Month. Try a dairy product that is new to you. And watch for specials in your grocer's dairy case, for most stores will be in on the celebrating too.

If you find yourself puzzled by amounts of dairy products needed for a recipe, you might find the following guidelines helpful:

- 1 pound of American (cheddar) cheese, makes 4 cups, grated.
- 1 stick of butter, makes 1/2 cup.
- 1 pound of butter, makes 2 cups.
- 1 pound of cottage cheese, makes 2 cups.
- 1/2 Pint (1 cup) whipping cream, makes 2 cups whipped.
- 1 cup milk plus 1 Tbl. vinegar or lemon juice, makes 1 cup soured milk.
- 1 2/3 cup (4 1/2 oz. can) of evaporated milk, equals 3 1/3 cups milk.

A benefit dance and supper for Frank Cermak will be sponsored by his many friends on Sunday, June 20, at the Slovak Hall in Bannister. The event will begin at 3 p.m. and sponsors say, "If we fill the hall, we'll dance in the street."

Frank Cermak, local businessman who owns and operates Cermak's TV Service in Elsie, seriously injured his leg in an accident with a chain saw several weeks ago. Infection has made amputation necessary. He is at Lansing Sparrow Hospital, Room 528.

Joyce Beebe, a missionary from Chili, was the guest speaker at the Bannister United Methodist Church Sunday morning. Elizabeth Ensign and Lori Miller sang a duet for the special music for the service with Mrs. Walter Miller as the organist. Miss Beebe's talk was "Who Then is a Missionary?" She also played her guitar and sang.

LANSING—Legislation now being drafted to streamline Michigan's depressed commercial fishery under a contract-controlled system of operations was hailed this week as a "milestone measure" by Department of Natural Resources Director Ralph A. MacMullan.

He enthusiastically endorsed the proposed bill, to be introduced by State Representative Warren N. Goemaere of Roseville, as "facing up to the biological limitations of Great Lakes fish stocks" and to the economic realities which they pose for the state's commercial fishermen. MacMullan said he also strongly favors wording in the bill now being prepared which would provide funding for reimbursement to licensed operators, covering their equipment to be phased out by the proposed change. The bill to be sponsored by

Rep. Goemaere would replace Michigan's current commercial fishing program with a system under which commercial operators would bid for contracts to harvest future surplus stocks of food fish from this state's Great Lakes waters.

Drafting the measure was spurred by the recent DDT-forced closure of Lake Michigan's commercial chub fishery which dramatized another serious setback under the steady decline of commercial fishing in the Great Lakes over the last half century.

In announcing his move to establish the new contract system, Rep. Goemaere explained "there is nothing else left to do" in wake of the recent loss of Michigan's $800,000-a-year commercial chub fishery in Lake Michigan. The chub industry accounted for about one-third of this state's already marginal commercial fishery in the Great Lakes.

"This latest turn of events," said Rep. Goemaere, "shows that the contract system of commercial fishing represents the last hope for bringing economic stability and improvement to the industry."

MacMullan and DNR Fisheries Chief Wayne H. Tody fully share that viewpoint with the Roseville lawmaker. "As Tody put it recently: "We've run out of fishing options to save our state's present fleet of commercial operators. Fish stocks in our Great Lakes waters are still largely in a state of restoration and none of them are re-established strongly enough to provide a decent livelihood for all of the 170 operators now licensed."

As Rep. Goemaere, MacMullan, and Tody also see it, Michigan's Great Lakes fishery should be given the same status as state timber, minerals, and other public-owned resources which are produced and bring revenues to the State under a controlled system of bid-awarded contracts.

On that point, the Roseville legislator drew solid support from DNR officials when he said: "Our present program is not only unsatisfactory for commercial fishermen. It also is hurting sport fishermen who, after all, have paid the main shot for fish restoration efforts in our Great Lakes."

Under the contract system, explained Rep. Goemaere, commercial fishing will supplement—not compete against—sport fishing in the Great Lakes. "Commercial harvest will be realigned to fish surpluses in those waters to meet the industry's market demands without undermining sport fishing interests."

Michigan's inland lakes and streams are being stocked with nearly 3 million young trout under the Department of Natural Resources' 1971 planting program which is expected to be rounded out by mid-June.

The DNR's current planting effort is sending about 300,000 more trout into the state's inland waters than a year ago. That increase reflects substantially larger releases of brown trout fingerlings in a number of southern Michigan streams chemically treated to weed out rough fish.

Statewide, some 290 inland lakes and 90 inland streams have been singled out for this spring's trout releases because they offer the best conditions for gaining maximum growth and survival from the planted fish.

Of this year's planting total, about 1,700,000 are yearling trout averaging 6 inches. Most of them should reach legal size by this fall. Also going into Michigan's inland waters this spring are 1,275,000 fingerling fish which run 2 to 3 inches. Those fish should grow to the keeper class by the 1972 trout opener, reports David P. Borgeson, supervisor of inland fisheries for the DNR.

This spring's regional breakdown of plantings shows Upper Peninsula lakes and streams receiving 300,000 yearling and fingerling brook trout, 125,000 young brown trout, 275,000 rainbows, 125,000 splake, and 20,000 lake trout.

In the northern Lower Peninsula, the DNR is stocking inland waters with 40,000 brook trout, 250,000 brown trout, 500,000 rainbow trout, 245,000 splake, and 258,000 yearling lake trout.

The DNR's latest planting totals for southern Michigan include 450,000 brown trout, 325,000 rainbows, 52,000 splake, and 12,000 lake trout.

The brown trout figure for that part of the state is more than tripled over last year with most of the fish going into these streams which have been, or soon will be, chemically reclaimed.

Coldwater River in Kent and Barry counties; Crocker Creek in Muskegon County; Tamarack Creek in Montcalm County; Rabbit River in Allegan and Barry counties; St. Joseph River (tributary to the Maumee River) in Hillsdale County; Dowagiac Creek in Cass County; Sandstone Creek in Jackson County; Paint Creek in Washtenaw County; and the North Branch of the Clinton River in Macomb County.

Borgeson reports that chemical treatments in those streams have wiped out heavy populations of suckers, carp, and other rough work has set the stage under which planted brown trout fingerlings will grow to beat the band," notes the DNR's inland fisheries supervisor.

He predicts that the stocked fish will reach legal size by this fall, and start giving anglers some fine action next season. Borgeson points out that southern Michigan streams being stocked with brown trout following their treatment have provided "darn little" fishing of any kind during recent seasons because they have been overrun with trash species.

"Our two-pronged program of treatment and plantings this year marks a big step in bringing high quality trout fishing to streams in the southern Michigan area," concludes Borgeson.

Through the channels

There has been a lot of talk lately by the "older" generation about the necessity of due process and working within the system regarding the impatience of our youth in realizing change.

However, the time is coming when, through one form or another, the youngsters will try out the suggestions to see how sincere their elders are.

An incident during last week's city council meeting in St. Johns indicates we may have quite a way to go to prove to the youth that they can rely on "the system."

Several young people sat in on the council meeting and, at the appropriate time, questioned the council members on the use of the courthouse lawn.

The youngsters pointed out that if they did not leave the area they were threatened with arrest for loitering. However, they added, whenever there is a function such as the soap box derby or, most recently, the antique auto tour, people by the hundreds are allowed to swarm over the lawn, without fear of being arrested or ticketed.

The young people requested that the commission change its policy and allow the people to use the courthouse yard. They were quickly told that the area in question was county property and that the county commissioners would have to rule on the request, even though city police enforced the law.

It appears to be the start of a red-tape run-around in which the people making the request will be discouraged from pursuing the problem any further. It is only a minor question to begin with—sitting on the courthouse lawn.

But it points out the fact that some of those in responsible positions may only be giving lip service to the young. When people cannot get simple matters corrected "through channels," then it seems obvious that they won't even attempt to straighten out more complex problems.

We would applaud any efforts made locally to respond to the requests of all the citizens—that would include the city commission or the county commission acting on this recent request by some of our younger residents to enjoy the courthouse grounds.

The Times was right

By TIM YOUNKMAN

The Vietnam War has taken its toll again.

Ever since the Geneva Accords in 1954, the foundation of our involvement in Indochina, our growing military commitments have forced one crisis after another on the American people.

At first glance, there should be no controversy at all. On the surface, the latest crisis deals with the publication of top secret documents on American involvement in Vietnam printed in a series last week by the New York Times.

To most Americans, it was an obvious case of treason.

However, once the people began reading the series, it was immediately understood that there was much more to the story than a case of treason.

The first point that comes to mind is the threatening of freedom of the press by the Administration. For the first time ever, a U.S. District Court judge barred a newspaper from printing a story.

Now the federal government, with an injunction against printing the last two installments of the series, is demanding the return of the information.

documents with reporters' notations on them, which, they claim, are what government officials want to see.

Another interesting point to consider is the ease in which reporters from the Times received the "secret" documents. While the government is worried about the publication of the material, it ought to worry about how much more information is being received by enemy espionage agents operating around the Pentagon.

Then we hear of the semantic war being waged by so-called government spokesmen, usually considered to be in responsible positions. For example, Vice-President Spiro Agnew decided that the best way to win the public sympathy was to slam the credibility of the Times by questioning editorial judgment.

Presidential spokesman Herbert Klein said censorship wasn't the issue, but enforcing federal security laws was the issue. However, the latter is obtained by pursuing the former.

George Romney, former Michigan governor and current Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, said his famous statement on being "brain-washed," was proven true by the release of the documents. He pointed out that Americans were deliberately misled and deceived by their own leaders, in the nation's pursuit of a foreign policy.

In other words, the document reveal that our leaders decide along the way that we could not be told the truth. They felt that the truth would jeopardize our national security.

When the truth becomes secondary to the whims of national leaders, then this country is no longer the product envisioned by the founding fathers.

Probably the most damning evidence against the Administration's stand came from former Ambassador to Saigon and former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Maxwell Taylor.

In a CBS television interview, Taylor said the publication of the documents was "laying a foundation for bad history." He added that the people do not have a right to know the truth.

"I don't believe in that as a general principle," Taylor said. "A citizen should know those things he needs to know to be a good citizen and discharge his functions..."

That statement leads us to believe that the leaders of our country should only tell us what they want us to know. In which case, our Republic ceases to be a government of the people and by the people—it turns into an oligarchy of bureaucrats leading the people through grandiose misconceptions into mental servitude.

'IF IT FITZ . . . ' Vroom! That's Grandpa

By JIM FITZGERALD

There's supposed to be a little boy inside every old man, screaming to get out. Lately, a lot of these dumb kids are getting out and buying motorcycles.

The result is grandfathers in crash helmets, completely enveloping both Harley and Davidson in middle-aged spread.

I see an old crock roaring down the road. I am reminded of a refugee fleeing a bombed city in whatever vehicle was available in the emergency.

I keep expecting to see his wife trailing along behind, wheeling the family possessions in an old baby carriage.

I know a guy who sells Hondas and one night he took advantage of my bent elbow. He said he'd be over to my house that weekend to give me a ride on a 747 or whatever 2-wheeled monster he was pushing at the moment.

A 60-year-old friend recently told me how he had his Honda going 90 mph on the freeway the day before. His nose was still touching both his ears and his teeth were bent in.

"You own a 1971 Cadillac with air conditioning and a roof. Why would you want to ride a motorcycle?" I asked him.

"It is exciting," my friend explained. "I like the wind in my face and I like the feeling of risk."

"You can get the same feeling by sticking your nose too close to an electric fan," I said.

I have a 50-year-old Honda-friend who likes to hit the road and the trails at 5 o'clock every morning. He hits them often because he enjoys skidding and slipping and bumping on the roughest terrain he can find.

"The trouble with you is you have no sense of adventure," my friend snorted, kicking sand in my face. We weren't at the beach but this guy has carried his own sand in an autographed Charles Atlas bag for 35 years.

He is right. My idea of adventure is to sit with my family and pretend to read the newspaper while I am actually watching Raquel Welch on TV.

Working together

Through the efforts of many civic organizations and many local citizens who have unselfishly given of their time and talents we now have a lighted Little League Field.

Many projects have been undertaken to acquire funds to make this possible which involved a lot of people all working together for a goal.

Not only will the light benefit the Little League Program it will allow for an expansion of the City's parks and recreation programs such as men's softball and other adult functions.

It also creates summer evening activities for the youths of St. Johns, spectators as well as participants.

It proves that people working together rather than pulling apart can accomplish a civic improvement and at the same time support the needs of our young citizens.

Disneyland

Rep. Douglas Trezise 87th District

If anyone had told me last January that in the middle of June—less than two weeks before the start of the new fiscal year—we would be spending our time in session considering the types of legislation we did last week, I would have thought him out of touch with reality.

But today, it is I who feels as if he is in Disneyland. The only problem is figuring out whether it's Frontierland, Adventureland, Fantasyland or Tomorrowland. Maybe it is a little of each.

While certain committees and negotiating groups are devoting full time to working out budgets and taxes, the majority of us have been spending our time on the floor debating such weighty legislation as:

—a bill to authorize issuance of food stamps to all persons over age 65;

—a change in the cosmetology act to authorize persons who have 3 years cosmetology teaching experience to operate beauty schools rather than requiring 3 years of actual work in a beauty shop;

—bills to force all gas, electric and telephone companies to provide service to persons over 62 years of age at one-half rate and forbid deposits for service from these same people;

—bills to allow for mailing of food stamps and unemployment compensation checks to applicants;

—a bill to move the state primary election to May to provide a six-month general election campaign;

—a bill to control the operation, design and construction of railroad cabooses.

These bills are representative of some of those we are considering while marking time waiting for some action on the budget bills.

IT'S NOT that all these bills are not worthy of consideration and important to their sponsors and others; it's just that their importance seems to pale along side the responsibilities of trying to solve the problems of a $2 billion budget.

The most significant item considered by the House of Representatives during the week was the motion to discharge the Social Services Committee from further consideration of Senate Bill 3, the abortion law reform bill.

This is a rarely-used parliamentary move to bring a bill to the floor for consideration by the entire body when a majority feels the committee has not done its job.

I should emphasize that the vote on this motion does not indicate necessarily the sentiment on the bill itself. Many of those who voted against discharge of the committee have indicated their support of the idea of changing laws concerning abortion.

Similarly, some who are unalterably opposed to the bill itself voted to discharge the committee in an effort to get an early vote on the matter.

I was among those who voted to discharge the committee. My feeling is that the committee has spent several thousand dollars to hold 15 hearings in all areas of the State and since that time has not taken any serious action. After commitments to bring the bill to the floor by May 1, and later revised to June 1, the chairman of the committee made no apparent effort to consider it.

What the future of the bill is, I hesitate to guess. The Speaker of the House, Representative William Ryan, indicated during debate on the motion that the bill would be reported from the committee some time this fall. In the meantime, the proponents of change have indicated they intend to start a petition drive to force a public referendum on the subject.

Similar action has been threatened by opponents of abortion law reform if the bill becomes law.

Frankly, I don't think this State needs another emotional, divisive referendum campaign such as we had last fall; but, in one form or another, it looks as if the subject will be around a long time.

The wine miracle

By REV. HUGH BANNINGA

Back in 30 A.D. the following item appeared in the Society Page of the Jerusalem Globe. "In Cana six days ago, a marriage took place between David Jacobson and Naomi Abram. The reports from the guests during the week-long celebration are that David and Naomi are very happy.

"However, something interesting happened there yesterday. That roving teacher, Jesus, and his band of followers were there. This fact alone might not be newsworthy, but rumor has it that the wine ran out and that fellow, Jesus, somehow turned water into high quality wine and saved the day.

"The man in charge of the food and wine was amazed to see such good wine being served toward the end of the week. The wine-taster told the bridegroom 'Everyone serves the best wine first, and waits until the guests have drunk freely before serving the poorer sort; but you have kept the best wine till now.'

"Your reporter is a little sceptical about this. If that upstart preacher from Nazareth really did turn water into wine, it's a great miracle, and he is a man to be reckoned with. But if he didn't really turn water into wine, then David Jacobson has pulled off one of the best publicity stunts this writer has ever seen. Not every wedding reception can claim to have produced instant wine!

"If you haven't guessed by now, I'll tell you. This story comes from the second chapter of John's gospel. We have here a miracle performed by Jesus. The question today is, 'What should we think about this miracle? Should we take it literally as a creative act of God?'

C. S. Lewis wrote about this miracle. He took it literally. He said, 'Every year, as part of the natural order, God makes wine. He does so by creating a vegetable organism that can turn water, soil, and sunshine into a new way to God. The water of Judaism was not fulfilling God's plan for mankind, and so Jesus was saying, 'My way is completely fulfilling.

My way is the vintage wine. My way is the way to God.'

Yes, Jesus' way is the way of joyful human fellowship. He was invited to a wedding reception and He accepted. He went, anticipating having a good time. He enjoyed the fellowship of being with other people and talking with them over a cup of good wine.

Yes, the way of Christ is joyful human fellowship. This is why there is the Church. This is why congregations of Christians all over the world get together.

They get together as Christians, as human beings, as miserable sinners to experience the joy of their faith and life in Christ Jesus.

View from the 30th Blacks in the legislature

By SEN. WILLIAM S. BALLENGER

Negroes have been serving in the Michigan Legislature for more than a quarter of a century. At present, there are 16 black legislators—three in the State Senate and 13 in the State House of Representatives. Furthermore, no state has a Congressional delegation with a larger number of blacks than Michigan's. Two of our 19 U.S. Representatives in Washington, D.C., are Negroes.

Here in Lansing, blacks are chairmen of eight standing committees in the State House of Representatives.

Of all the states in the union, only Illinois— with 20— has more blacks in its Legislature than Michigan.

And according to a survey by the Joint Center for Political Studies in Washington, D.C., released last week, Michigan leads all other states in the number of elected black officials with 155 holding federal, state, county, and city positions.

New York, with 142, is second; Alabama, with 105, is third; Illinois, with 104, is fourth; and Ohio, with an even 100, is fifth.

The survey shows that seven states— Idaho, Maine, Montana, New Hampshire, North Dakota, South Dakota and Utah— have no elected black officials at all.

Currently, Sec. of State Richard B. Austin is Michigan's highest elected black official. But several others hold high public office.

Matthew McNeely is Associate Speaker Pro Tempore of the State House of Representatives. Dr. John W. Porter is Superintendent of Public Instruction. Dr. Clinton Wharton, Jr., is President of Michigan State University.

State Senator Coleman Young of Detroit is Senate Minority

Floor Leader as well as Michigan's Democratic Party National Committeeman.

Anyone who has seen these men in action knows they're outstanding individuals—a definite cut above the run-of-the-mill legislator or state official.

Several others are currently serving on important boards and commissions, attesting to the fact that more and more blacks are being recognized in Michigan for their ability—rather than being held down because of their color.

Washington Reports

Reorganization

WASHINGTON, D. C. --Following is a summary of floor action in the House and Senate last week and scheduled action this week. Major action in the House included approval of President Nixon's reorganization plan creating a single Federal agency for volunteer programs.

Action in the House Last Week: Reorganization Plan Number One: By a 224-131 vote, the House gave its approval to President Nixon's plan to create a new agency called ACTION, reorganizing and consolidating volunteer programs currently spread among a number of different agencies. Program to be transferred to ACTION would include Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA), auxiliary and special volunteer programs now in the Office of Economic Opportunity, Foster Grandparents; now in the Department of Health Education and Welfare (HEW), retired senior volunteer program, also now in HEW, and the Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE) and the Active Corps of Executives, both now in the Small Business Administration.

Once the plan is approved, the President intends by executive order to transfer the Peace Corps and the Office of Volunteer Action to ACTION. The Senate will consider the plan this week.

Creation of Select House Committee on Energy Resources: By a vote of 128-218 the House rejected a motion to create a select committee to conduct a full and complete investigation of all aspects of the energy resources of the U.S. Floor arguments against acceptance of the proposal raised the question whether such a committee would be duplicating efforts already the responsibility of existing committees.

President's special revenue sharing proposal for manpower training. It is more comprehensive in approach than the Emergency Act; it provides initially for greater funding of public service type employment. It would allow local governments to decide what its own particular manpower training needs are and give them the freedom to decide how Federal funds are to be spent to meet them.

Also to be considered: --NASA Authorization --National Science Foundation Authorization --Legislative Appropriations, FY 1972.
