Architects unveil plans for building

ST. JOHNS—An attractive two story precast concrete building will grace a 3.74 acre plot located on Elm St. across from Clinton Memorial Hospital by this time next year if all goes according to schedule.

Total cost of the structure which will house district court and other county offices is estimated at $1,200,000. This figure includes site preparation, construction, equipment and fees. Ground breaking is tentatively planned for October with a completion date of July next year.

Details of the project were unveiled last week during the Clinton County Commissioners regular meeting. Presentation of the preliminary design report was made by Herbert Iversen of Manson-Jackson-Kane Incorporated, a Lansing architectural engineering firm. MJK was engaged by the Clinton County Building Authority to prepare initial figures on the building.

Following Iversen's report and a brief question-answer session, the board gave their stamp of approval to preliminary designs while instructing architects to proceed with formulation of working drawings and bid specifications.

Three commissioners opposed approval of the building design. All three men—Robert Dittmer, Maurice Gove and Derrill Shinabery—expressed concern over the project's magnitude. Plans call for the first floor to be used as a district courtroom, offices for the prosecutor's staff and the probation department. On the second floor, the building's design is flexible for interior construction of various offices seeking additional space in the future.

"When we first began talking about a new district court building I didn't envision a million dollar structure," commented Dittmer. Gove called the figures "astronomical" and said "if I went for this my conservative streak would be forever blighted."

Commissioner Roy Andrews cited rising construction costs, crowded conditions now existing at the courthouse and rental income expected from the new building which will be used to retire the bonds as factors in his support of the proposal. "I cannot see where the county can go wrong," said Andrews. Commissioner Duane Chamberlain called it "a real good investment and I think we should get going with it."

Commissioner Walter Nobis moved for approval of the building's preliminary design and authority for architects to prepare bid specifications with working drawings. Andrews voiced support. The motion gained a 7-3 passage with Commissioner Gerald Lankford absent.

Chairman of the Clinton County Building Authority, Probate Judge Timothy Green, then told commissioners a lease must be executed between the county and building authority to outline terms of renting the structure. "Unless we have a firm lease with the county, it's impossible to proceed with working drawings," said Green. He also added the lease must be executed before the entire package is presented to the Municipal Finance Commission for final approval.

A vote by commissioners authorized the board chairman and county clerk to sign the lease when it is prepared.

Other men attending the session where building plans were presented included; Harold Wellman, president of Central National Bank and a member of the Building Authority; Lorenz Tiedt, third member of the building authority; William Kane and George Richards, both from the architectural engineering firm.

Features of the 29,000 square foot structure include fire resistant design, complete air conditioning with mechanical and electrical systems which allow for revisions to office layouts when necessary. Parking for 100 cars on a paved surface is also incorporated in the overall plan.

A breakdown of cost estimates shows: building construction, $894,000; site development (two sites, Elm St. and Maple St.), $119,100; construction contingency, $18,000; furnishings, $90,000; architect-engineer fees, $64,000; printing and publishing cost, $2,500; bonding attorney, $7,000 and financial consultant, $5,400. It should be noted the Maple St. site development allows money for destruction of the Oatley property across from the existing County Courthouse to provide additional parking space.

Eclipse dims sun

ST. JOHNS—Few people may realize that it was more than a passing cloud cover that dimmed the sun about noon on Monday. It was a solar eclipse.

The eclipse began at 2:20 p.m. and lasted about 136 minutes. It was only partially visible from Michigan with the total eclipse path crossing over northern Alaska and southwest toward Canada.

In explaining how the eclipse occurs, University of Michigan astronomer Hazel M. Losh said "the moon first touched the western edge of the sun and then moved easterly to cover about three-fourths of the surface as viewed by Michigan residents."

Professor Losh reports astronomy bugs will get another attraction this month as a lunar eclipse is due over Michigan on July 26. Like the solar eclipse, it will be only partially visible to Michigan residents. It begins at 12:56 a.m. and lasts until 3:37 a.m.

Commission bucks report on railroad crossings

ST. JOHNS—It was a brief but interesting session of the St. Johns City Commission held Monday evening.

The meeting's highlight came when commissioners were informed the U.S. Department of Commerce has ordered extensive modernization of railroad crossings in the city at a cost of about $300,000. The city of St. Johns is expected to share costs with the railroad. Details of the plan came in a 12-page report prepared by inspectors from the Michigan Public Safety Commission.

In presenting the report, St. Johns City Manager Harvey Weatherwax said "we've got to file an answer real fast" while expressing strong objection to the document.

Commissioner James Grost stressed the changes outlined for city railroad crossings don't help that much and said people often drive around gates. "It's just money down a rathole," he said, "and I'll never voluntarily vote in favor of spending that kind of money." The St. Johns physician added that "if we have to spend it, let some judge tell us to."

Other commissioners were in full agreement with Grost's sentiment and City Attorney Paul Maples was instructed to file an objection to the report.

In other action, Commissioner John Hannah made a motion that the city attorney set up an ordinance to comply with Michigan House Bill 4199 which establishes a commission to review salaries of elected city officials. "I'd like to see the city proceed under this new bill," Hannah said. The motion gained unanimous approval.

Also on the Commission's agenda Monday evening was nominations for precinct workers in the August primary. The following persons were selected to work during the election:

PRECINCT ONE — Irene Zeeb, Erica Dean and Linda Howard.

PRECINCT TWO — Jeanette Huard, Louise Fernholz and Helen Fitzpatrick.

PRECINCT THREE — Alberta Cornwell, Doris King and Dawn Sharick.

PRECINCT FOUR — Mary Meyer, Doris Munger and Barbara MacKinnon.

PRECINCT FIVE — Don Britton, Janet Scott and Mary Hutton.

ABSENTEE VOTER BOARD — Jan Hepsinger, Helen Atkinson, Betty Moore, Francis Deibert and Jensen Needham.

A final matter acted upon by the commissioners was a date change in the public hearing on White Street. The new date is August 14 at 7:45 p.m. in the city hall. The hearing was previously set for July 24.

Progress continues on street repairs

ST. JOHNS—Crews from Strasburg and Sons Construction Company began work Monday on a slurry seal coating process of fourteen different sections of street in St. Johns.

The $22,563 contract is designed to improve existing streets and provides a better traveling surface at a cost much less than asphalt resurfacing. City officials advise local residents that a four hour waiting period is required before traffic can move over the newly coated streets.

According to St. Johns City Manager Harvey Weatherwax, Spartan Asphalt Paving Company of Holt will be in the city early next month to begin resurfacing work. Spartan was awarded the $50,777 contract earlier this month and has agreed to also pave private driveways for city residents.

Any St. Johns residents wishing to have a private drive paved should leave their name and address at city hall. Weatherwax said Spartan will then send a representative to each residence and quote a price on the job. He pointed out cost figures vary according to how much hand work is necessary and said the agreement will be made between each individual property owner and the contractor.

Group considers satellite airport

ST. JOHNS—Interest in an airport to serve Clinton County was sampled Monday noon during a luncheon held at the L and L Restaurant attended by members of the St. Johns Manufacturer's Assn. and the St. Johns Area Development Corp.

The gathering was called by Ken Moore of F.C. Mason Co. and was attended by a dozen other businessmen representing the two groups.

Purpose of the gathering was to determine degree of interest in the establishment of a satellite airport facility in Clinton County and to consider the degree of use such activity would receive.

According to Moore, the basic concept of a county airport was accepted and in the coming months feasibility information will be accumulated for evaluation.

DeWitt girl learns politics firsthand during Dem parley

by KEN CORBETT
Editor

Dorene Radke is a 20-year-old DeWitt Township college student who is majoring in child development at Michigan State University. She has long blond hair, freckles and fits the picture of a girl who would work well with little children.

This week Dorene is thrust into an entirely different role as a Democratic Party alternate delegate to Miami representing Michigan's Sixth Congressional District. She is the only Clinton County resident at the convention and will vote if one of the regular Sixth District delegates is absent during balloting.

Dorene is somewhat typical of this year's delegation which offers a striking contrast to Democratic Party members who have made this same decision in past years.

This new breed of delegates which includes students, women, blacks and Spanish-Americans has largely replaced cigar smoking middle-aged white males who have dominated party policy for decades. High pressure tactics and political manipulation will still be common at the convention but the atmosphere is different by virtue of the new look among delegates. Students like Dorene or the black and women delegates are noted as independent thinkers bent on reform by working through the political system. This attitude makes them formidable "customers" to political image makers wishing to "sell" voters on a certain candidate.

It's the very fact she even was selected to attend the convention that impresses Dorene — not her voting power. She calls it "a privilege and real opportunity to see what's going on." In reference to the party's new blood, Dorene says "I'm hoping it'll change things for the party and give it a new start."

The campaign of influencing Dorene began almost immediately after it became public knowledge she was an alternate delegate to Miami. She is committed to McGovern and according to state law must vote for him on the first two ballots. After that, switching to another candidate is allowed. Dorene reports her mailbox has been filled with material from the Wallace and Humphrey people plus numerous men seeking number two spot on the Democratic ticket.

However, the young DeWitt college student says McGovern's her man all the way. "He'll win on the first ballot if he gets his California delegates back," predicts Dorene. She adds that McGovern's chances "go downhill" if voting goes to the second ballot or more.

Another bulky piece of mail Dorene received last week was the Democratic Party platform which she describes as being "so thick" while indicating about a two inch width. Thursday, on the eve of her trip to Miami, she reported being "about halfway through it" and said "so far it's real good" while adding it reflected McGovern's view.

Critics of the political process have zeroed in on the selection of candidates by a few party bosses during past years. This apparently is changing and the Democratic convention now underway in Miami reflects this change. A broad cross section of the American public and many newcomers to the political scene like Dorene Radke are picking a candidate this time.

MIAMI OFFERS REAL EXPERIENCE

Dorene Radke, a 20-year-old DeWitt Township college student, ponders a headline proclaiming turmoil expected during this week's Democratic Party convention in Miami. She is an alternate delegate serving the Sixth Congressional District and will vote if a regular delegate is absent from the convention floor during balloting. Dorene is the only Clinton County resident at the convention and represents an example of the larger role young people are involved in this year.

What is taking place in Miami this week is only the initial step. The real test facing this new breed of politics develops this fall when campaigning begins against President Richard Nixon. That is where the success or failure can best be measured.

Event planned for Little League building

ST. JOHNS—A day of activities is being planned by the St. Johns Jaycee organization on July 22 beginning at 11 a.m. and scheduled to run through the evening.

The event, which will include an adult fast pitch tournament and a pony pull, will be held at the St. Johns Little League field located behind Bee's Chevrolet and Oldsmobile Company.

Topping off the activities will be the final game of the St. Johns Little League world series.

The Jaycees will use funds realized from the event to help pay for a permanent Little League building which will be constructed in the fall.

The 40 by 50 foot building will replace the present concession stand at the field and will include bathroom facilities and a meeting room. Little Leaguers are now selling tickets for prizes to be given away during the evening. First prize to be awarded is a color television set and second prize is a mini-bike. The boy selling the most tickets will be given a bicycle and the next five top salesmen will each receive a baseball glove.

A $50 bonus will be awarded to the lucky ticket holder if he or she is present for the drawing.

This year there are 270 boys involved in the Little League program and 50 boys in the Pony League activities.

Vocational ed payments due for St. Johns

Nearly $90,000 in payments for the added cost of secondary vocational educational programs are finally being made to public schools in all six counties in the 30th Senatorial District.

"During the 1971 session the Michigan Legislature, for the first time in history, appropriated $3 million in state aid for the support of the added cost of vocational programs in various local school districts around the state," explained Ballenger.

"The allocations were based on four factors—the most efficient use of existing training facilities; the training of additional students; the development of new training programs; and the reimbursement of the highest cost training programs, with the major emphasis on new programs implemented during the past year."

The 31-year-old lawmaker said a check for 50 per cent of the total amount due each school district was sent the first week in June and the remainder will be disbursed in late July.

Total payments to be made to the schools in Ballenger's district include: St. Johns, $5,104; Bellevue, $2,960; Charlotte, $54,068; Potterville, $2,040; St. Louis, $1,002; Vestaburg, $2,928; Lainsburg, $4,345; and Ingham Intermediate, $16,962.

"These payments, which supplement the regular state school aid appropriations, should help considerably in beefing up the teaching of vocational subjects in our K-12 schools. There seems to be a growing trend these days away from a four-year college liberal arts education toward technical and industrial careers, many of which don't require degrees in higher education," Ballenger noted.

According to Ballenger, the State Senate has approved a special vocational education appropriation of $6 million, twice the allocation in 1971-72, for added cost programs for the 1972-73 school year beginning this fall. The Senate action is subject to concurrence by the House of Representatives and the Governor.

"The emphasis next year will be on high payoff programs in terms of job placement," explained Ballenger. "Schools with programs that are deemed by the Michigan Employment Security Commission and local planning districts to have great impact on the placement of students in jobs upon graduation will be at the top of the list for added funds for 1972-73. This means that some schools within my 30th Senatorial District which didn't get special vocational education state aid this year might be able to get it during 1972-73."

Commissioners deny request for advisory vote on hospital

ST. JOHNS—A citizens group appearing at the regular meeting of Clinton County Commissioners last week were told their request to place two advisory questions on the November ballot is beyond the realm of statutory authority.

Jesse Jones, secretary of Clinton Concerned Citizens Group, asked the commissioners to approve the placement of two questions on the November ballot. The first question read: "Do you feel that all physicians practicing in the county should be able to use the facilities of Clinton Memorial Hospital?" The second said: "Do you feel a professional study should be made as to whether to build a clinic adjacent to the hospital as a means of attracting new physicians?"

Jones told commissioners his group "has tried from the outset to make it clear we oppose nothing" but added they felt the hospital board should be "more responsive to the needs of people." Also speaking on behalf of the citizens group was Mrs. Sharon Reha who pointed out "people in the county have supported that hospital for years" and she felt they should have some voice in its operation.

Following the request by Jones, Chairman Gerald Shepard asked for an opinion on this matter from the attorney's office. Assistant Prosecutor William Jackson reported talking with state election officials and said they "don't feel it could legally be put on the ballot." He also explained attorney general rulings in this area have cited the absence of statutory words on such a ballot question as making it illegal.

In his report to commissioners, Jackson said it is much like one state election official said: "If everyone wanted to put any advisory question on the ballot, it would look something like a Sears catalog." The assistant prosecutor also pointed out "there's no authority for the county to spend money to put such a question on the ballot."

After a brief discussion between commissioners and the citizens group representatives, Commissioner Robert Dittmer moved the board approve these two questions for placement on the November ballot. This drew strong reaction from other commissioners who stressed such action may be illegal.

Commissioner Roy Andrews voiced support of Dittmer's motion and Commissioner Robert Montgomery called for a roll call vote. The motion lost by an 8-2 margin with Dittmer and Andrews voting in favor of it, Commissioner Gerald Lankford was absent.

Also appearing before the commissioners was John Kennaugh of the Grand River Watershed Council. He presented a progress report on an 11-volume study his agency is preparing on water control projects and recommendations throughout the Grand River Basin.

Kennaugh said "the study incorporates on going state programs that are consistent with overall planning in the region." He described his agency as "a forerunner for local governmental units in getting funds". Slated for publication in a few months, the report will be available for public review for about sixty days. From there, any further recommendations are attached and it goes to the Great Lakes Watershed Council and then on to officials in Washington, D.C.

During Kennaugh's talk, Commissioner Maurice Gove asked if county zoning was a good means of maintaining recreational areas and protecting an area's natural resources. "Zoning isn't a tool for recreational development," responded Kennaugh. "Public acquisition of land gives you maximum control of how it is used," he said in stressing his agency's recommendation on this point.

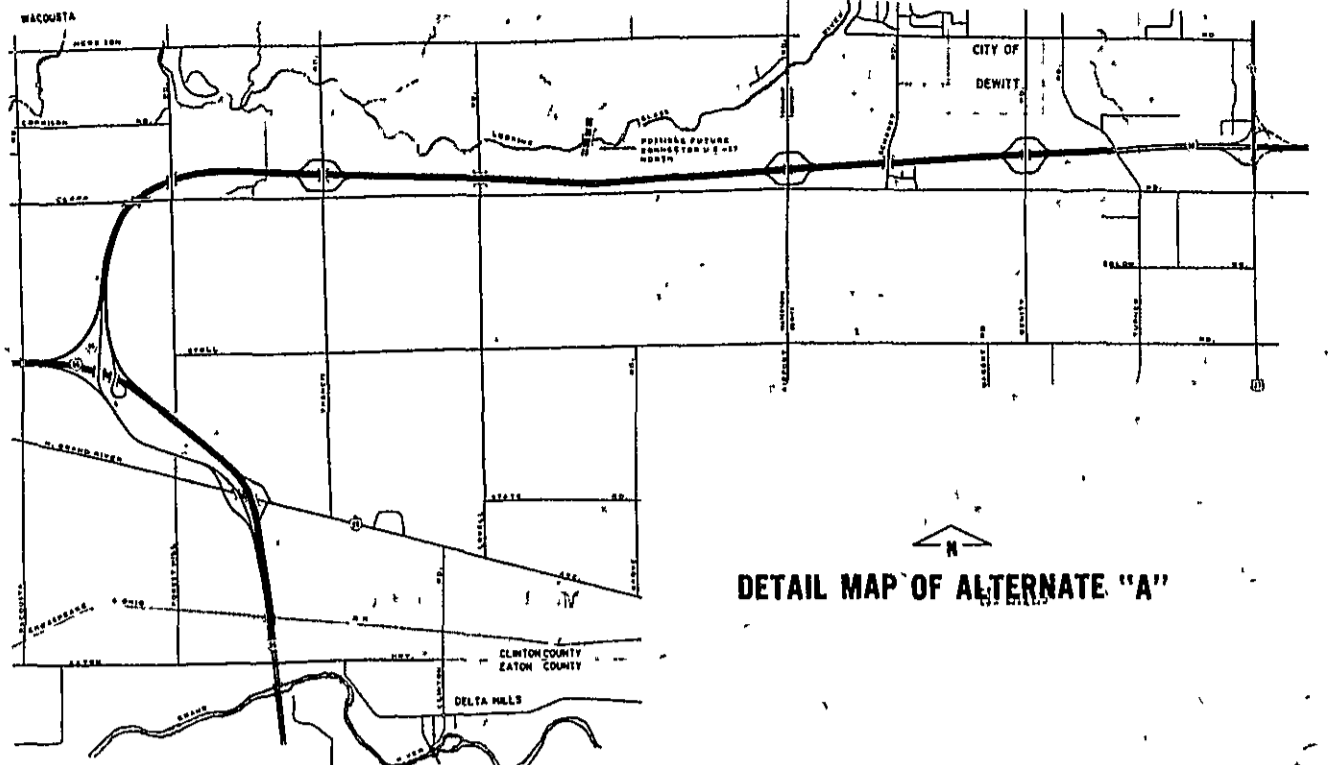

Other action by commissioners included:

—Shepard appointed the board as a committee of the whole to attend a July 24 meeting with township officials to reach agreement on which alternate route of I-69 being planned in the county's southern end is most acceptable.

—Commissioners passed a resolution objecting to the State Department of Corrections Commission's proposals for extensive rule changes in the operation of county jails. The proposals are now before the state legislature and include a broad range of changes such as one-man cells and extensive recreation facilities.

—A request from the Mid-Michigan Health Department for $5,000 was received as the agency explained they anticipate a year end deficit of $15,000. The board decided to get further proof of this deficit. The agency is funded by Clinton, Montcalm and Gratiot County and each has been asked for $5,000.

—Max Loudenberg of Maple Rapids was appointed to another three year term on the Clinton County Zoning Commission.

DETAIL MAP OF ALTERNATE "A"

First in a series

I-69 route may cut into Clinton county

ST. JOHNS—This is the first in a three-part series the COUNTY NEWS will present on the alternate routes for I-69 north of Lansing which will be discussed July 26 at a public hearing in DeWitt High School.

Alternate A is the northernmost route being considered and would more seriously affect Clinton County residents. It begins in the vicinity of Wacousta Rd. and proceeds northerly across Clark Rd., then curves easterly to connect with US-27. Interchanges proposed on this route would be at Francis, Airport and DeWitt Roads plus US-27. Grade separations will be constructed at all the other roads crossed by the new freeway.

This alternative route's basic layout is designed to offer two advantages. The alignment is most consistent with the property ownership pattern in the area and its east-west orientation minimizes the severance damage to existing farm operations. It's also considered by highway engineers to be the best possible interchange design.

However, this route also presents two serious disadvantages. First, the northerly location away from Lansing is inconsistent with state and county planning. This would tend to encourage urban sprawl or a more rapid development over a larger area. Also a disadvantage would be the freeway's proximity to Looking Glass River which could have a negative impact on the area's natural environmental value.

A breakdown of figures on all three proposed alternative routes shows: ALTERNATE A—10.6 miles long at an estimated cost of $17,143,000 and requiring the removal of 12 houses.

ALTERNATE B—10.2 miles long at an estimated cost of $15,682,000 and requiring the removal of 11 houses.

ALTERNATE B-1—8.5 miles long at an estimated cost of $17,213,000 and requiring the removal of 15 houses. See next week's paper for maps of alternate B and B-1.

The special number for this Region is 800-621-0523. The five states from which these toll-free calls may be made are Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Burnett seeking U.S. House seat

MIDLAND—Fel V. Brunett, 30, of rural Midland and a life-long resident of the present tenth Congressional District, is challenging the incumbent Republican, Elford Cederberg, for the party nomination for the U.S. House of Representatives in the August 8th Primary.

Since graduation he has taught school, returned to the University for advanced study and completed two years active duty with the U.S. Army where he served as an ecologist with the Chemical Corps at Dugway, Utah and was given special duty as a military pallbearer in the intermountain region. There, at more than fifty military funerals, he reports that he learned first hand the heavy cost of the Viet Nam War. Fel currently holds the position of Naturalist at the Chippewa Nature Center, Route 9, Midland where he comes in contact with thousands of students annually in an environmental awareness program.

Clinton County is now in the tenth Congressional District under the recent reapportionment.

Assessments up 13%

ST. JOHNS—"An almost grand exodus from Lansing" is what Clinton County Equalization Director Leon Thelen cites as the major factor in boosting property assessments this year.

According to Thelen, property assessments in Clinton County increased by about 13 per cent on the average. He said this figure was closer to 15 per cent for property owners in the city of St. Johns.

"It's the local market that makes assessments go up," Thelen said. "People create the market by their buying and selling habits." The County Equalization Director also cited rising labor and construction costs as major factors in arriving at the higher cash value of a structure.

However, the Michigan Education Association's successful petition drive to place the question of property tax reform on the November ballot may give home owners a break next year. The measure, if passed, would place a 26 mill limit on taxes collected for the operation of schools, county and townships. Thelen said it doesn't cover millage levied in cities or villages.

"It would definitely reduce millage," said Thelen, "especially for the operation of schools."

Hay harvest suffers from heavy rain

ST. JOHNS—Unseasonable heavy rains brought a halt to the hay harvest in Clinton County last week, while other crops are suffering from the near freezing temperatures.

There's heavy hay losses in the area because of poor quality, F. Earl Haas, county agriculture agent, told THE NEWS. "It has been miserable trying to put up hay," he reports, "because it's just not drying out."

The frequent rains have delayed baling of the county's 35,000 acres of hay usually in by the first of June. The value of hay for dairy feed is falling, says Haas. Baling is still the number one way of handling hay, but he adds that a great deal is being put in silos. Clinton county's largest crop by far, corn, just isn't growing. Corn is definitely a hot weather crop, he explains, and right now it's not maturing. Farmers have gotten into the fields to cultivate some 60,000 acres of corn, most of which is earmarked for local use.

Cold weather isn't helping the beans either, Haas inserts. They were planted later than usual to begin with and now their harvest will be delayed. Wheat, said to be around 25,000 acres would normally be coming into the elevators by July 10, but now it won't be rolling in until late July, he estimates.

Despite cold weather and heavy rains, Haas believes the farm situation looks better now than at this time in '71. At least we have more moisture, he concludes. What we need to brighten the picture is good warm weather and occasional rains.

Sheriff candidates to meet

The retirement of Clinton County Sheriff Percy Patterson, presents voters with four choices as a successor to this office.

Candidates include: Anthony A. Hufnagel, Lawrence C. Floate, Ramon Edward Terpening and Bruce Edgar Angell III.

To acquaint the voters with the personalities and qualifications of these candidates, an open meeting will be held on Wednesday evening, July 19, at the Wacousta Community United Methodist Church on Herblison Road. A get-acquainted session will begin at 7:30 p.m. followed by a panel at 8 p.m. A discussion of the duties to be performed and the growing needs of the county and its townships will be covered.

Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting. It is hoped that voters from all parts of the county will attend and participate. All four candidates have agreed to be present.

Logan elephants perform in St. Johns circus Friday

ST. JOHNS—Famous dancing, balancing and performing Logan elephants are conceded to be the fastest working, most versatile and most thrilling herd of trained pachyderms in the circus world. The mighty monarchs of the circus world are presented by beautiful girl trainers. The story of human's might over brute strength is clearly depicted when every command by fair ladies is immediately executed in unison by tons and tons of mammoth, mastodon mammals. During the appearance of the King Bros. Circus in St. Johns on Friday, circus-goers will have an opportunity to witness the tactics of Capt. Hill, rated by animal trainers as the most gentle handler of circus elephants.

In addition to their important parts in the show, the huge animals also are used in work details when the show is setting up and being dismantled. Many times they accomplish what the show's tractors cannot do in the way of pulling equipment out of mud, or moving the big trucks up steep grades on entrances to the circus grounds.

The circus is being sponsored by V.F.W. Post 4113 with performances being scheduled for 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. behind the Knights of Columbus Hall on US-27 in St. Johns.

HAPPY FACES MAKE CHILDREN LAUGH

Bobby and Bills Rawls plus Steve King, clowns with King Bros. Circus talk over their ideas on how to make the children laugh when they give two performances at 4 and 8 p.m. in St. Johns at the U.S. 27 North showgrounds. King Bros. Circus is being sponsored by the VFW Post 4113 Friday.

MRS. DAVID POLLOCK

Couple to make home in Atlanta following trip

At a candlelight ceremony at the First Baptist Church in Donalsonville, Ga., Saturday, June 24, at seven-thirty in the evening Gale Marian Hunter and David King Pollock exchanged their wedding vows. Dr. Leroy Benefield, of Graceville, Fla., performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley William Hunter, Donalsonville, Ga. and formerly of Fernandina Beach, Fla. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Traverse King Pollock of Dublin, Ga. and formerly of Vero Beach, Fla.

The church was decorated with garlands of smilax and two large tree candelabra centered with a massive arrangement of mixed flowers. Smaller trees and branched candelabra cast a soft glow over the setting. Potted palms were placed at vantage points and bouquets of greenery marked the family pews.

As the guests assembled, Mrs. Ellison Dunn and Mrs. E. P. Stapleton rendered a program of nuptial music on the piano and the organ. Traditional wedding marches were used.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a candlelight gown of imported English silk organza. Alencon lace outlined with rocailles and centered with pearl clusters embellished the empire bodice extending into the short sleeves. A deep border of re-embroidered Alencon lace outlined with rocailles and pearl clusters flowed around the hemline of the A-line skirt. The detachable chapel train was enhanced with appliques similar to the skirt. A floor-length mist of imported illusion with appliques of re-embroidered Alencon lace was held in place by a candlelight lace bonnet cap. For something old, blue and borrowed, she wore the garter worn by Mrs. J. B. Clark at her wedding. She carried a large old-fashioned bouquet of mixed summer flowers centered with an orchid.

Mrs. Robert Abb, cousin of the bride of Birmingham, served as matron of honor and Nita Feely of Smyrna, Ga. was maid of honor.

Other attendants were Sharyl Hamilton of Lawrenceville, Ga., Jane Roberts, Mary Moseley, Beverly White and Mrs. Ricky Squires all of Donalsonville, Ga. Luanne Clarke of Donalsonville and Julie Harrison, cousin of the bride of Fernandina Beach, Fla., served as junior bridesmaids.

Each attendant wore a floor-length gown of mint green linen featuring a sweetheart neckline, an empire bodice and short modified bell sleeves trimmed with self covered buttons. A self belt and bow accented the slightly gathered skirt. They wore short white gloves, and carried bouquets of mixed summer flowers similar to the bride's.

The flower girl, Kimberly Brannon of Donalsonville, Ga., wore a mint green linen gown similar to the other attendants and carried a basket of petals with a miniature bouquet like the bridesmaids attached to the handle.

John Pollock, brother of the groom of Charleston, S.C., served as best man. Usher - groomsmen were Thomas Duffy, Smyrna, Ga.; Frank Looze, Atlanta, Ga.; Byron Rogers, Panama City, Fla.; Steve Horton, Lockport, N. Y.; and Douglas Anderson, Athens, Ga. Junior usher - groomsmen were Terry Shamblyn of Donalsonville and Harry Bowman, cousin of the bride of Jacksonville, Fla.

The ring bearers were Scott Boman, Jacksonville, Fla. and Eddie Harvey, Seminole, Fla., cousins of the bride.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Clarke.

As guests arrived, they were greeted by Mrs. Joe Miller and Mrs. Jabo King.

Following the reception, the couple left for a wedding trip to the mountains. For traveling, the bride wore a long sleeved ivory knit dress accented with orange and brown trim at the waist and hem of the circular skirt. She wore matching accessories and a corsage of Tropicana roses. After their trip, the couple will reside in Atlanta, Ga.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Wright and Doug, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pollock Sr. of Vero Beach, Fla.; Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Rogers and Byron of Panama City, Fla.; Frank Westmoreland, Griffin, Ga.; William C. Ayres, Colquitt, Ga.; Don Risher, Augusta, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Krueger of Madison Heights, Mich.; Miss Sandi Pollock, Mobile, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Krazit, Breda, Mich. and David, Mrs. Milton Knapp and Mike of Orlando, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Krazit and Charles, Ocala, Fla.; Roger Allen, McLean, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Duffy, Smyrna, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. C. ## The home economist

The 20th century has seen a food revolution. And food additives are a large factor in this revolution, says Anita Dean, foods and nutrition specialist at Michigan State University.

Food additives are substances added to make food tastier, safer, more nutritious, better looking and to improve packaging and storing qualities.

All additives fall into two broad types. Intentional additives perform specific functions such as preserving quality and appearance, adding flavor or enhancing nutritive value. Incidental additives unintentionally find their way into finished food products as a result of some phase of production, processing, packaging or storing.

Any substance added to a food product has survived a rigorous series of tests and evaluations.

The first step is the recognition of a problem or the desire to develop a new product. If a chemical already in existence will not achieve the desired effect, a new one is developed.

Long before the substance comes near a food product, it is tested to determine its physical and chemical properties - melting and boiling points, color, odor, taste, solubility - and its ability to produce the desired effect. Studies with laboratory animals reveal any possible toxic effects.

The next -to-last step is submitting all pertinent information to the Food and Drug Administration, which evaluates the data and issues a regulation detailing the conditions for safe use. This includes the foods on which it may be used, the maximum amount that may remain on or in the food, and directions for labeling the finished product.

What would happen if all food additives were suddenly eliminated? The immediate result would be chaos. Baked goods would go stale overnight, peanut butter would turn rancid and separate, table salt would cake, canned fruits and vegetables would lose their color and shape, and many foods and beverages would lack their customary flavor.

The long-range effect would be a deterioration in nutrition and a subsequent decline in national health. Years of food research would have been undone and the consumer would be the loser.

So the next time someone complains to you about how we are being chemicalized to death, you can explain the facts.

Keys station wins plaque

Jack Keys of the Gulf Service Station in Elsie was recently presented a special award in the 40th Annual Gates Mystery Car Campaign in recognition of "superior service and salesmanship."

The Coin Drive Plaque, bearing two rare silver dollars, two Kennedy half-dollars, and a specially minted commemorative coin set in an automotive engine design, was presented for exceptional customer service by a representative of the Gates Rubber Co., of Denver, Colorado.

While servicing a "Mystery Driver's" automobile, one of a fleet of cars that regularly travel across the country stopping at service stations, Jack spotted a worn V-belt and suggested a new replacement from his stock.

This is not the first award as he was also a winner in 1968 and 1970 while working part time during high school and learned to check for worn or defective parts.

Open Letter

from VAN W. HOAG

Dear friends,
It deserves emphasis that the time, the place, the character of the funeral service, the merchandise used, the cemetery selected - these are decisions of the family of the deceased. The funeral director acts only as a representative of the family. The clergyman should be consulted in matters that concern him before any decisions are made.

Respectfully,

Van W. Hoag

Sealed Power stock to be on NY exchange

Sealed Power Corporation has received approval to list its common shares for trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The authorization was made by the Board of Governors of the Exchange.

The company will list 3,126,563 shares of common stock on August 2, with a ticker symbol yet to be assigned. It is currently traded over-the-counter.

Sealed Power, headquartered in Muskegon, is a manufacturer and distributor of piston rings and precision parts for the automotive and other industries. The company's net income for the year ended December 31, 1971, was $4,912,297, or $1.62 per share, adjusted for a subsequent 3-for-2 stock split, a nine per cent increase over the previous year and the second highest earnings in company history. Sales were $82,214,483, a record high.

Sealed Power, founded in 1911, has a strong position in both the automotive original equipment and replacement markets. Its main thrust is in the production of compression rings, oil rings and cylinder sleeves used in gasoline and diesel engines of all sizes. A diversification program initiated in 1968 resulted in the acquisition of three companies which make castings and precision parts for such non-automotive markets as the appliance, business machine, electrical, mobile home and radio-television industries. It also acquired a manufacturer and re-manufacturer of automotive air conditioner parts and components and another company which manufactures tappets for piston engines.

The company's international outreach has been increasing in recent years and represented 15 per cent of Sealed Power's total volume in 1971. It has two manufacturing plants in Mexico and one in Canada, with another facility planned for Belgium next year. The company also exports its products to countries throughout the free world.

Domestically, the company operates ten production facilities located in Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and Texas, with another under construction in Kentucky. Its computerized distribution center in Indiana supplies replacement parts to a network of about two-dozen branch warehouses located throughout the United States.

The company is a recognized leader in research and development. It is currently working with major automobile manufacturers in the development of engine seals for the Wankel, or rotary, engine.

Bicycle fever bug bites St. Johns young and old

ST. JOHNS—Bicycle fever is spreading in St. Johns with young and old getting the bug.

In fact so many are taking up the sport, local merchants admit they can't keep up with the demand. At last count, some 1,265 bicycles had been registered by the city police department.

"Everybody's out for the exercise," believes Dee Stoner. "I think it has some-think to do with ecology, too," adds Dee, who with husband, Gordon, owns Western Auto. Both are avid bike enthusiasts.

Mrs. Stoner goes on to say, "Our supply just isn't meeting the demand, greatest of which are 10-speeds and tandems. We can't get 5-speeds at all. A good seller is a back or front seat.

The Stoners report the standard two-wheeler is still the best for general use because it takes a minimum amount of care. A 3-speed is fine for around town driving and for long distance and speed travel, Dee recommends the 10-speed.

At Dean True Value Hardware, Alan Dean says his bicycle sales have increased in the last two years. He thinks this is because of the increase in adult participation.

"We aren't selling more this summer because we can't get more," admits Dean. "Whatever we get, we can sell."

Ed Mankey, owner of Gambles, goes along with Dean. "We've had more demand for bikes because of the increased interest by adult riders," he states.

Two adult riders who can testify to the booming popularity of bicycling are the Bennets, Leland, 70, and Gertrude, 65.

Last winter Mrs. Bennett peddled 3,445 miles on her adult tricycle in St. Petersburg, Fla. Leland prefers his 10-speed. The couple is a four-bicycle family, keeping two in Florida and two at their St. Johns home at 511 E. Higham.

Is 2nd floor needed now?

Three commissioners opposed plans to construct a $1,200,000 structure for a new district court and other county offices during a vote taken last week.

That million dollar plus figure also caused this corner to raise an eyebrow skeptically. More specifically, is that second floor feasible at this time.

However, the second floor which represents about one half the cost is designed to meet future expansion needs of county agencies. County budgets operate on a year to year basis and deficit spending is not allowed.

Preliminary construction costs are figured at thirty dollars per square foot. The second floor will be 15,800 square feet or $474,000. That means, without a second floor the construction cost could be almost slashed in half as expenditures like furnishings ($90,000) and architect-engineering fees ($64,000) would also be reduced.

The common rebuttal to this argument is rising costs make it cheaper to build now than wait. This may be true but can often be used as a sales gimmick.

At any rate, the decision has been made. The new building will be constructed. Time now becomes the judge of that decision's wisdom.

Holiday afterthoughts

Independence Day has passed for another year and like any major holiday it brings to mind afterthoughts. Here are a few observations we had about the weekend.

-It remains the only national holiday not celebrated on a Monday and many persons had their 'long weekend' split by a work day.

-Fireworks, drowning and traffic deaths continue to mar the festive mood for many.

-A few Americans are still fighting and dying to gain the independence of a foreign nation but little notice of a tribute to these men was given.

-Thousands of American military personnel spent the Fourth in remote corners of the earth safeguarding the freedom first won almost two hundred years ago.

-The whirlwind pace of present day life has blurred many Americans vision of their proud heritage which began over two centuries ago.

-Baseball retains the top attraction - second only to picnics - and for Tiger fans the weekend was tragic.

-The weatherman reports an unseasonal Arctic air mass was responsible for putting a chill in the water and cramping the style of potential swimmers.

Question: Don't pick-up trucks have to stop at the Department of State Highways weigh stations like those big rigs do? E.K., Gwinn.

Answer: The purpose of the weight restrictions on truck axle loads is to prevent damage to the highways. A normal pick-up truck is not capable of holding a load that would approach that limit—the truck would collapse first.

Question: Those yellow lines marked part way across the highways at intervals—is someone testing paint quality? There wasn't any sign indicating that was the purpose. L.B.R., Wyandotte.

Answer: Could be that you have noticed the yellow stripes put on the roadway to allow air surveillance craft to determine speed of cars they suspect are being driven in excess of the allowed limits. When a vehicle has been determined to be speeding, the "air" crew keeps that vehicle in constant sight and guides the ground patrol by radio until they have stopped that driver, to be absolutely certain the correct driver is apprehended.

Question: Saw a nice cool fishing spot along Interstate 96—right where it crosses the Thornapple River. Any objection to parking my car way off the road there and fishing a spell? R.H.D., Hastings.

Answer: Sorry, you'll have to approach that fishing spot from another entry. No parking on freeways, or within rights of way on freeways—except for emergencies.

"If It Fitz . . . Well, look who's dead today"

Editor, Lapeer County Press By Jim Fitzgerald

And then I wrote . . . The toughest part of being a nutty columnist is keeping ahead of the nuts. It's like this: Reaching for chuckles, I sometimes exaggerate. I say my wife is so emotional she cries when the flag goes up at railroad crossings. She doesn't really. But the other night I caught her crying at a TV commercial. She was worried about a girl who couldn't get married because her father had dandruff. I explained to her that it wasn't that big a deal, all brides are not pregnant, and she said she had not even thought about that. So she thought about it and cried harder.

See what I mean? Those kind of nuts don't need more salt. It is difficult to write facetiously about a world which continually produces and accepts the incredible. I thought I was kidding, a few years ago, when I suggested tweater funerals. But now I'm not so sure.

AT THE TIME, I was bugged by 2 things: 1) Undertakers were getting too much of the blame for the extravagance and general foolishness of many funerals and 2) goofy couples, in search of private passion in public, were wearing tweaters. A tweater is just like an ordinary sweater except 2 people get into it and it isn't so much fun if your name is Ralph and your partner's name is Gordon.

My point was that some people spend more than they can afford on funerals just to impress the neighbors. These phonies will give dead Uncle Harry a send-off worthy of a king. When he was alive, they wouldn't wave goodbye to him. But if that is what the nuts want to buy, why blame the undertaker for selling it? He's in business, the same as the guy who sells you a color TV when what you really need is a hernia operation.

I concluded, tongue in cheek, by suggesting some day the couple that dies together will be buried together - in a tweater.

Now Herschel Thornton has knocked the bulge from my cheek and left my tongue hanging out, aghast. He probably used tweater shrouds 20 years ago.

Thornton is the Georgia undertaker with the drive-in windows. At his place, you can pay your last respects without leaving your car, the same as buying a root beer at the A & W.

Thornton has 5 windows facing a busy street. The coffins are tilted and lighted so you hardly have to slow down to see who's dead today. Instead of telling the survivors you are sorry, you just honk sympathetically.

OR A MOTORIZED mourner could stick his head out and holler: "He looks 'so natural." And maybe Thornton would holler back: "He should, he's my window washer."

Thornton says the main advantages of drive-in condolences are 1) You save time; 2) You don't have to dress up and 3) You can come after midnight. In other words, you can grieve on your way home from bowling, with a buzz on your brain and "Jake's Bar and Grill" on your shirt.

But Thornton didn't answer the most important question: unless the survivors are sitting on the curb, how do they know you were there? You always sign the register when you visit a funeral parlor. You want to be certain the relatives know you cared about poor Uncle Harry. Besides you wear the same size shoes he did.

But how can a drive-in mourner be sure of getting credit for the visit? The widow isn't going to say "Look, John Dimmit was here, I recognize his tire tracks."

It is a problem, to be sure. I could suggest some solutions nutty enough to fit the situation - such as a little boy in the window to jot down license plate numbers. But I am not going to do it. No matter how ridiculous and impossible my idea is, someone like Thornton will top it. And do it.

I CAN'T KEEP AHEAD of the nuts. That's what you call Onward and Upward.

Ask the Governor

By Governor William G. Milliken

State of Michigan

Question: I read that you sometimes make calls to citizens at night from your home. Do you just call people who favor your programs?

Answer: I have often said that I believe the policies of increased economic expansion and environmental preservation and protection are not mutually exclusive. The Legislature demonstrated a strong commitment to both of these by enacting many of my priority bills in these areas during the first half of its session this year.

Question: No. I also call people who by their critical letters to me indicate they don't fully understand my position on major issues. I've been making these calls for several months now. I think it's very important to break down the barriers that some people feel exist between bureaucracy and the public. Personal contacts can help. Sometimes I call to get more information. For example, I have called several people who wrote to complain about rowdyism at state parks. But with 600 to 800 letters coming to my office a day, it obviously is not possible to call everyone.

Question: Now that the Legislature is gone for the summer, what is your reaction to its performance thus far? Did they accomplish your priority changes?

Question: Saw a nice cool fishing spot along Interstate 96—right where it crosses the Thornapple River. Any objection to parking my car way off the road there and fishing a spell? R.H.D., Hastings.

Answer: Sorry, you'll have to approach that fishing spot from another entry. No parking on freeways, or within rights of way on freeways—except for emergencies.

Fishers of men

By REV. HUGH BANNINGA

How many of you readers are in the fishing business? Now that's a strange question to be asking, isn't it? Not really, if you read the 5th chapter of Luke's gospel, verses 1-11.

Jesus got into Simon Peter's boat one day and told him to push out a little way from the shore so he could preach to the crowd that had gathered to hear him. Then, when he was finished, Jesus told Simon to go out to deep water and put down his nets for a catch. Simon told him that it would be useless, because they worked the same area all night and caught nothing. But he threw the net in the water anyway and to his surprise he made a big haul.

Then Simon realized how little faith he had, and he knelt before Jesus and told him to go away because he was such a sinner. And Jesus said to Simon, "Do not be afraid. From now on you will be catching men."

"From now on you will be catching men." I wonder if Simon Peter understood the full impact of Jesus' words that day? I wonder if he had any idea what was in store for him in the days to come? I doubt that Simon could foresee his future. The important thing at that particular moment was Simon's reaction to Jesus' words.

Jesus was really telling Simon and his partners to change their way of fishing. Jesus was saying, "Come on fellows. Forget this ordinary kind of fishing. God wants you for something more important. He wants you to catch men for Him!" And that's exactly what Simon Peter and his partners did. They dropped everything and followed Jesus.

So what does all this have to do with you? You say that Peter was called out especially to bring people to Christ. That was his special job, but it's not mine. That job belongs to the men whose salaries we pay—the clergymen.

Yes, you are right. That is the clergyman's job, but it is also your job as a layman. The Rev. Edward Hill speaks to this in relation to the thousands of Christians who attend their denominational conventions each year. He says, "During the church conventions large amounts of money will be raised; the delegates will hear fine singing and preaching, have fun, rub elbows with great leaders and noted missionaries.

But there will probably be little sharing of the Christian faith with the people they meet. The hotel maids, taxi drivers and restaurant waitresses will more than likely not hear anything about how to be saved, unless they come and sit in the great auditoriums.

"Tragically, in some instances, the work of the Kingdom will suffer because of the convention visitors rather than prosper. Is this true? Indeed it is. Why don't we Christians carry the impact for Christ the way the other forces convey their teachings? Our theology is right, our background is solid, our doctrines are sound. What ails us?" asks the Rev. Mr. Hill.

Yes, "What ails us?" Why don't more Christians follow the call to go out and be fishers of men? Why don't more Christian laymen spend some time inviting the unbaptized, the spiritual drop-out, the skeptic and the agnostic to Jesus' love and God's salvation? What is it? What ails us? Why isn't the Church today full of laymen who are winning souls to Christ?

Next week I'll have an answer.

News reporter baits her hook Female touch hooks a fish

By LEE PETERS News Staff Writer

Something's fishy! This gal's no angler, but there I was—huddled in the back of a fiberglass speedboat with a 60 hp. Evinrude spitting in my face.

The sun was shining and swarms of insects were buzzing. I cradled that left-handed fishing rod like it was my six-week-old son. Considering I'm right handed, I guess they equipped me with the "left" oars.

If Mort Neff could have seen me, he would have quit Michigan Outdoors and come inside.

There we were, decked out like a destroyer with a fish finder to search out the enemy below. But to me, it sounded like a telegraph sending out Morse Code to any and all of our possible victims in the 17,000-acre lake.

My better half announced he had a nibble as I slapped the side of my face. The only bite I had had just came from a starved mosquito. And it looked like they were the only ones wanting a "bite" to eat.

I would have been content to catch a WHALE, even a Minnow or would you believe a guppy. What does Charlie the Tuna have against me anyhow? The male crew told me to set my drag. Personally, the whole thing was getting to be a drag. My nephew said he didn't think there were any big fish in the darned lake. Ridiculous I informed him. Old fish never die—they just sink to the murky depths and read old "Sports Afield."

Because of the lull in the activities, my brother-in-law decided to give me a few pointers. Now there's two things that take the fun out of fishing, he instructed. And that's getting your lines tangled and catching no fish.

Five minutes later my husband and I were untangling our lines, and we'd yet to reel in anything other than a hunk of weed. So far we were fishing 100.

Just then the situation started to take a turn—for the worse. The sun wasn't shining and there were nothing but clouds in the sky (and me with my bottled sultan lotion).

Now my husband is a scientific angler. . . always throwing his pole back and forth, in and out of this way and that. Just got this hunk of metal off my hook and bait it with a fresh, juicy night-crawler, I ordered him.

I was lazily leaning back humming "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head" when the friendliest Rock Bass came to dinner. Fish-struck, I reeled him in.

The guys said it was the biggest and fattest and (need I say more) of its kind they'd ever seen. And the only thing with gills caught that day.

And this is no fish story.

Letters to the Editor

Letter to the Editor: In reply to your Article and Editorial of June 14, 1972, concerning the Concerned Citizens Group and the Clinton Memorial Hospital Trustees, there are a few areas of thought that should be cleared up. Referring to Paul McNamara's (hospital administrator) statement that only "one" Osteopathic Intern had attempted to obtain a position at this hospital and never completed the application is false. In 1970 an Osteopathic physician did apply in answer to an advertisement for a position at the hospital. He never received the courtesy of a reply. As to the latest Osteopathic physician not completing the application form, the fact is, that he never was sent one! He however, did receive a letter from a member of the hospital medical staff informing him that the hospital's 45 year policy does not permit DO's to practice at Clinton Memorial Hospital. Here was a chance to add to our community, but "prejudice" toward a person's professional initials prevented a chance to bring the community together. When referring to DO's in your article you failed to mention if you had asked the Osteopathic Doctors if they would ever accept serving on the local hospital staff if they would be made "welcome" and be allowed to practice as a Doctor instead of being a nurse's aide.

In your Editorial you mentioned that to leave this controversial matter alone is a "cop out". We agree, but when you say the issue might be blown out of proportion by other "News Media" we ask you, "Where was the Clinton County News when a handful of persons gathered over 1700 signatures in 21/2 weeks time indicating the need for changes at "our" local hospital? We informed the County paper several times as to our meetings but they were never attended nor any follow up made to inquire of the proceedings. However, other "News Media" were there and has attempted to, we feel, report fairly on both sides. The County News has written some editorials previously on this same matter, first on one side then jumping the fence. In the last Editorial (not yours) pertaining to this matter the Editor pointed out that the time had come for both sides to get together with a third party to mend the broken fence.

Our group agreed to supply the needed lumber for repairs, but the other side failed to show up with their hammers and nails.

Our group wrote to both the medical staff and Trustees for a meeting and we received no reply, there is no open door here.

Clinton County Cancer Crusade exceeds goal

ST. JOHNS — Announcement was made this week that Clinton County became a goal key award winner in the 1972 American Cancer Society Crusade.

The county goal this year was set at $21,000 and to date $207,26 has been received above the set goal. The highest total recorded in the past was $18,719.

Clinton County was the eighteenth county in the state to reach its goal.

Mrs. Albert Fruchtl, chairman of volunteer activities in Clinton County, credited the county's service program for triggering a greater public response to the Crusade this year.

Also adding to the success were special events, which netted $1,764.91. They were garage sales, buck boards, skillo, a food auction and "Send a Mouse to College."

The following list shows breakdown on the results of the recent crusade:

Talent set for Free Fair stage shows

IONIA—The stage is set for the evening grandstand shows at the Ionia Free Fair, which runs July 28 through August 6.

The fair, breaking with past tradition, has booked three star headline attractions during the six-day evening grandstand show run, July 31 through August 5. In the past, two headliners were booked, with one taking over the spotlight the first three days and the other the final three.

Roy Clark, one of the top country western stars and co-star of the "Hee-Haw" television program, has top billing July through August 2.

Motion picture, television, and recording star, James Darren, will replace Clark as premier attraction on August 3 and 4. His movie credits include "Operation Madball", "The Guns of Navarone", and "Diamond Head". He is well known to television viewers for his starring role in the "Time Tunnel" series, in addition to frequent appearances on top variety shows.

Boots Randolph, the famed saxophonist, will be in for a one day stand on August 5. A quick-witted showman, Randolph is perhaps mostly identified with his rendition of "Yakety Sax". He has appeared on many of the major TV variety shows and has been host of two of his one-hour TV specials.

In addition to the headliners, the shows will include comedian "Harry" "King" Cole, Bobby Beroncini's Monkeys, The Chris Albert Family balancing act, the Sound Generation music group from John Brown University at Siloam Springs, Arkansas, comedian Kenny Milton, and The Christies comedy acrobatic act.

In addition to the standard six-day evening variety shows, Sonny James will star in two evening country and western shows on July 30.

An ounce of prevention

By Jose J. Linas, M.D. Director of Community Mental Health for Clinton, Eaton and Ingham

PARENTS WHO ABUSE THEIR CHILDREN

"There were about 1,500 children injured at the hands of their own parents in Michigan last year," says Dr. Ray E. Helfer, Associate Professor of Human Development at Michigan State University Medical School, "and that was an increase of nearly 400 cases over the previous year."

Dr. Helfer, a pediatrician, is a nationally recognized authority in what physicians describe as "the battered child." He is also the kind of expert who is not content with knowing something about a problem, he likes to help resolve it.

Some months ago, after he became settled in East Lansing, he came to see us, and asked what we were doing about child abuse in the tri-county area. Our mental health centers, the courts, the protective services division of social services, and many other organizations were trying to help youngsters and their families, but we were not having much of an impact.

trator's heart, let alone a taxpayer's, he stated, "We won't need any additional money, because what we need to do is to coordinate and reorganize the programs you already have."

Under the leadership of Dr. Helfer; our director of children's services, psychologist Donald Fuller; and Mrs. Mary Cole, a psychologist at Ingham Medical, the complete program is now in operation.

Staff people from St. Lawrence and Ingham Medical Centers and the Lincoln Program are now working with all the other agencies in the community. There is a case consultation unit, a training group and a therapeutic development component.

There is also a mothers and fathers group for self help and support ("Parents Anonymous"), and an advocacy committee.

Any family with this kind of problem in the tri-county area can now get help, before it is too late. No questions asked, except in the interest of good medical and counseling management.

THE OUNCE OF PREVENTION

According to Dr. Helfer and other experts, most parents who abuse their children, have been themselves abused in their growing up years. In order to break up the vicious cycle which transmits the problem from one generation to the next, both aspects of the situation have to be dealt with. The youngsters have to be protected from further blind violence; the affected parents have to be helped to regain control of themselves, and work out their problems - without taking them out on their offspring.

Most people want to be competent and reliable as parents, but mature parental behavior has to be learned, and it does not come easily.

As we gain experience in the provision of treatment services in this area, we will be able to develop ways of preventing more and more of these tragic events.

SOME SAGE ADVICE

"I'm not surprised to hear that," Dr. Helfer explained, not unkindly. "The problems relating to child abuse and neglect are so complicated that no one service or agency can really do much by themselves."

At the same time, he felt the community mental health program in our area was in a unique position to act as a catalyst in the development of a comprehensive, useful approach.

And he proposed that we develop what he called the SCAN proposal (Suspected Child Abuse and Neglect), by utilizing the staff people who were already involved, and interested enough to expand the services, in words apt to gladden an adminis-

Pewamo man attends class

PEWAMO—Pewamo resident Richard P. Kellen recently attended a workshop at the Mutual Trust Life Home Office in Chicago.

The workshop, sponsored by the Educational Division of the Company, concentrated on effective methods of sales presentation. Topics such as field underwriting, policy service, and the use of settlement options were covered by various Home Office departments.

The Educational Division, headed by John Morrissy, Director, uses discussions and projects combined with techniques such as role-playing to present an interesting and effective learning experience in life insurance.

Bike bug spreads

Mrs. Bennett says she bicycles four times a day in Florida, averaging 20 to 30 miles and in the morning and evening here. "But," she emphasizes, "I ride every day, regardless of the weather."

The Bennetts started bicycling for good health. It helps keep our weight and blood pressure in check, they say. But best of all "it keeps us feeling good."

When you don't have a bicycle built for two... compromise. That's what the Pifer brothers did. Timmy, 7, and Bruce, 8, have a new way to ride piggyback.

Once in awhile you're bound to take a spill as nine-year-old Mark Smaltz found out. Mark, on his way to the park, shyly said he did it on purpose--ouch!

This family's cottage is on four wheels

By LEE PETERS
News Staff Writer

ST. JOHNS—The Donald Sabos have a cottage on four wheels!

It's a Coachmen motor home with all the comforts of home. But there's one exception, the Sabo family of 303 Lindy Lane feels.

"You're not tied down to one place," explains Sabo, a pharmacist at Arnold Drugs in Southgate Shopping Plaza. He reports that on a three-day weekend one can travel a distance of 600 miles comfortably. That can put you in one of five different states, the St. Johns man adds.

Since buying the unit a couple months ago, Don, his wife Maureen and children, Robert and Lisa have visited such places as Charlevoix, St. Ignace, Sleeping Bear Sand Dunes at Traverse City, Detroit's Greenfield Village, Port Huron and Higgins Lake. They try to get away every two weeks and in a recent adventure they searched for Petoskey Stones in Petoskey.

There's no problem finding a place to camp, says Sabo, since the motor home is completely self contained. He advises that if state campgrounds are full or private facilities overcrowded, a rest area or parking lot can fill the bill.

His air-conditioned 25-foot camper sleeps six, has its own generator, stove, oven and refrigerator and bathroom. It has connections for both gas and electricity. Carpeting is just one of the added luxuries.

Under normal conditions, Sabo says the vehicle should not be driven over 60 m.p.h. And he ought to know after motoring 1,500 in only a few weekends. For those thinking about investing in a motor home, Sabo cautions that you have to really like it and to be an engineer, too.

This summer the Sabos have planned a camping trip to the west coast. Their itinerary isn't complete yet, as they like to get off the beaten path and away from crowds. There are many luxury 'campgrounds,' reports Sabo. It seems where one stops there are always a half dozen who follow, he believes. People like to congregate, he thinks, and one of the main reasons is protection.

The large number of campgrounds is due to franchised companies like Kampground of America (KOA) and several motel chains, like Ramada Inn, entering the business. And with more competition, the level of luxury at the campsites also grows.

According to the Wall Street Journal, some campgrounds resemble small towns, and investments run into millions of dollars. A facility near Wildwood, Fla., will open next month with 1,150 campsites, and plans call for 1,900 sites by the end of next year. "On a full day it will have a population upwards of 3,000 people," says George Wayson, president of Continental Camper Resorts Inc. which owns the facility. The company's investment will total nearly $6 million.

Each campsite has a telephone, and the sites are arranged around an 18-hole, 6,500-yard golf course. A $1 million clubhouse has locker rooms, dining rooms, a pro shop and whirlpool and sauna baths. All the campground's restrooms are air-conditioned, and one restroom, which cost $100,000, is especially equipped for the elderly with grab rails, wheelchair ramps and individual shower stalls.

Other companies are developing "condominium" campgrounds where the individual campsites are sold to campers. Outdoor Resorts of America Inc. formed four years ago to build campgrounds, has developed three such facilities in Florida and one in Tennessee, and it plans a dozen more in Michigan, Colorado, California, New York and Missouri. The sites measure 35 feet by 70 feet and sell for $4,200 to $9,000 depending on location. When an owner isn't using his campsite, the company will rent it for him - at $5 to $10 a night - and split the income with the owner.

The concept is being well received, company officials claim. Campers like the idea of always being assured a place to camp, and owning a campsite also appeals to investors looking for appreciation in land values, the officials say. At the company's Orlando, Fla., facility, where sites cost up to $9,000, more than half of the 980 spaces are sold.

Some camping experts are critical of the concept. They contend that campers who buy a site with an eye partly toward appreciation in land values may be disappointed, at least in the short run. Few of the campgrounds are sold out, and the unsold sites are a drag on the market, they explain.

Also, some consultants wonder about the long-term attractiveness of such campgrounds. Says one: "The reason people buy camping vehicles is to travel, not be tied down to one campsite." Outdoor Resorts attempts to satisfy its customers' wanderlust by offering owners of sites in one campground the right to rent sites in its other facilities at half price.

But increasing campground costs and services are showing up in higher overnight rates. The average at KOA facilities now is around $3.50 a night, compared with $2.25 three years ago, said Darrell Booth, KOA president. Sites at Wildwood will be priced at $7 for those farthest from the clubhouse and not on the golf course; those best situated will rent for $12.

Also, there are a few indications of growing camper unhappiness over accommodations. "Our studies show a definite pattern of dissatisfaction is arising," says Wilbur Lapage, a campground researcher. "When we started surveying campers eight years ago we got no gripes at all, but lately we get complaints about high prices, noise, crowded facilities and campgrounds being too-commercial and too much like a resort. We may see a surge back toward more simplistic camping in reaction to all this commercialism."

Clinton County 4-H Horticulture members took top honors at the State 4-H Horticulture Identification Contest June 23 at Michigan State University during the 1972 Youth Exploration Day Program. The contest consisted of a written exam, judging 4 classes of fruit and vegetables, identifying 64 basic vegetables, flowers, fruits and nuts and ornaments plus identifying a specialty group.

Helen Blakely, Elsie 4 Corners Club, placed first in the Senior division and Brian VanVleet, Kountry Cousins, placed 3rd in the Senior Division. They, along with the 2nd and 4th place winners, will receive partially sponsored trips to the National Junior Horticultural Association Annual Convention at Columbus, Ohio, December 3-7, 1972. Helen scored 165.5 and Brian scored 147.6 out of a possible 200.

In the Junior division for members under 14 years of age Clinton County 4-H'ers placed 4 out of the top 6 places. Rose Oberlin, Elsie 4 Corners, placed 2nd with a score of 137.4; Annette Irish, Jolly Green Glants, placed 4th with 133.5; Sheri Harte, Kountry Cousins, placed 5th with 132.7 and Gerilyn Favor, Kountry Cousins, placed 6th with 130.5 points out of a possible 200. Each of these 4 girls will receive a $5.00 gift certificate from the Joseph Harris Seed Company. Rose Miller, Kountry Cousins, placed 8th with a score of 125.5.

The Counselors Camp Training Workshop was held June 26-28 at the Algonquin 4-H Youth Center at Hastings. Clinton County was represented by Lorene Tait, Brian VanVleet, and Debbie Butler of St. Johns and Vicki Roesch of Eagle. Following the training sessions these 4-H'ers will be asked to serve as camp counselors throughout the summer for a week of camp at the Algonquin 4-H Youth Center. The 4-H Camp is open for four more weeks - July 16-20, July 23-27, July 30 - August 3, and August 6-10. The cost of camp is $21.00 for each week any youth wish to attend. For more information about camp the youth should contact the County Extension Office in St. Johns.

David Haviland, Olive 4-H Projects, will represent Clinton County at the 1972 Michigan 4-H Milk Marketing Tour, July 12-13 in Detroit. Approximately 50 4-H young men from throughout Michigan interested in dairy will be participating in this program. Following a brief program at Michigan Milk Producers Association Office, the group will tour the Kroger Dairy plant, attend a Detroit Tiger Baseball game, participate in discussions on cooperatives and milk marketing situations and problems involved. The conference is sponsored by the Michigan Milk Producers Association.

Following the program a written exam will be given and 15 of the boys with the highest scores will be invited to attend an interview during the State 4-H Dairy Show on August 23 at MSU. Seven of the 15 boys will be selected to have the opportunity to attend the Annual 4-H Dairy Conference, October 1-3 in Madison, Wis. Thirty seven 4-H youth and eight chaperones participated in the 4-H Teen Leaders canoe weekend July 8 and 9. The group canoed the 55 miles from Grayling to Mio on the Ausable River. The group reported they had an excellent weekend of fun. I doubt if anyone didn't upset once either by accident or with a little help.

4-H softball results for last week's games reported include: Green League -

Kountry Cousins I over Victor; Bengal Community over Kountry Cousins II; Olive 4-H Projects over Fowler Busy Bees; Charlie's Gang over Green Clover Community; Teen Leaders I over Charlie's Gang and Teen Leaders II over Fowler Busy Bees; White League - Bengal Community over Kountry Cousins and Charlie's Gang over Green Clover Community.

Caution against food poisoning

Prevent food poisoning this summer by special care in preparing and handling the top offenders—cream pie fillings, potato salad, chopped ham and egg salad sandwiches and poultry stuffings—a Michigan State University marketing specialist advises.

Food can be hazardous without giving any off-flavors or odors, Maryann Beckman cautions. Most food poisoning results from improperly prepared or handled foods.

Keep hot food hot and cold food cold, the specialist says. Never let foods stand at temperatures between 50 and 120 degrees F when bacteria is most likely to grow.

If you're transporting hot foods, make sure they're hot through to the center. Then keep them in thermos-type containers or wrap them in thick layers of newspaper. Plan to eat hot foods soon Mrs. Beckman says.

Keep cold foods at temperatures below 50 degrees F. Cold won't kill harmful bacteria, but it curbs growth. Chill foods thoroughly before putting them into an insulated cooler. Tuck plastic bags filled with ice around foods, or use plastic milk cartons filled with water and frozen. Cans of special liquid that can be frozen and used over and over also may be used.

For safe sandwiches, carry ingredients separately and put them together at the picnic site, just before serving.

Prepare foods under extremely clean conditions. Wash hands thoroughly and keep insects and animals away from foods during preparation.

Most acid foods—such as pickled products, fruit and fruit products—are safe without refrigeration.

Refrigerate all leftovers as soon as possible after eating, Mrs. Beckman says. A final suggestion: "If in doubt, throw it out."

AG In ACTION

One of the tragedies of an age in which fewer and fewer people produce what we eat is the lack of understanding of what is involved in food production.

Our modern food production system has experienced many changes in recent years, and is made up of all kinds of farms and farmers. Some farmers work at the occupation full time and have no other source of income. Others are part-time or even weekend hobby farmers, but they all help supply our food needs.

Most farmers are still the traditional proprietor using mainly family labor and buying and selling in the market. At the other extreme, we have some huge farm operations which require wage laborers and even sales and bookkeeping personnel.

Many people still think of the farmer as mainly putting seeds into the ground, or feed into animals' mouths to turn out food and fiber for consumers, who will reward him according to its worth or their means.

Food production is much more complex than that today. Profit and loss is the governor over the modern farm. What pays is produced; what does not, is not.

Farmers today are a part of a big and complicated market mechanism that does more than sack potatoes and package bacon. They must compete for markets and prices for their products. They are influenced by merchandising practices. Whole sectors of farming are at the mercy of nutritionists' debates on the dangers of fats.

Farmers are also affected by a maze of laws and regulations. Their future is subject to local tax assessments; to rules on feeding steers diethylstilbestrol; to a number of price classes for raw milk; to the exchange rate between dollars and yen in selling farm products to Japan and to the success of the Secretary of Agriculture in negotiating foreign trade agreements.

Yes, today's farming is part of a big and complicated private and public bureaucracy whether we like it or not.

Youth Music Concerts will also be held Wednesday and Friday, July 5 and 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the Music Auditorium. Outstanding soloists, selected by audition, will be heard.

At 3 p.m. Saturday, July 8, the first two-week session will be concluded with a concert by the orchestra, band, chorus and chamber choir. Included will be works by Mendelssohn, Kabalevsky, Coates, Kallinikov and Bach.

Miss Schafer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Schafer of 557 E. Wobb Rd., DeWitt, is an honor student at Bath High School.

Hit the trail -- Try backpacking

By CLIFF FRENCH

Backpacking — or bush-walking as we call it down under — has taken me to worlds far beyond the glossy pictures in books and magazines or the confinements of government-designated camping grounds. It has brought me face-to-face on a sun-soaked day in the bush with a kangaroo. Now books will stress how timid and skittish roos are, but, in a mutual state of shock, we simply stood and stared at each other for what seemed like minutes. Finally, he turned, ever so casually, and hopped slowly away. And backpacking has taken me to the shelter of a cave during a spring thunderstorm. There my senses were jolted with the experience of seeing the heavy moss which hung from the ceiling alive with thousands of glowworms. In the midst of their flickering lights, the dimness of the cave and the fresh smell of rain, I knew I would never experience anything quite like it again.

Today, outdoor lovers are finding America's campgrounds overcrowded, the lakes and streams overfished and the game areas overhunted. These unattractive conditions have most likely forced many people into the initial steps of backpacking. . . but its real popularity has come not out of necessity but out of enjoyment. A hiker can take established trails or trails through unbroken country to numerous areas still untouched and unmarred.

However, nobody will ever accuse me of leading novice backpackers down the trail to Utopia. As in all human endeavors there are pitfalls — backpacking is not all sunny days, mild nights, and cool, clear streams from which to quench your thirst. I have nursed more than my share of aching shoulders, tired muscles and blistered feet. And I have been nipped by the cold and drenched by storms now and then. But I have never hesitated to encounter a few discomforts, knowing that around the bend lie unexpected and breathtaking pleasures.

There are three basic secrets to enjoying backpacking to its fullest. One—that you are physically fit. Two—that you know where to go. And three—that you are going fully prepared.

You must rely on common sense to determine whether or not you are in condition for hiking. If in doubt, consult your doctor. But it is always advisable to play it safe and never plan a trip that will obviously overextend you. Start out with a day trip or two. Then try an overnight trip, followed by a long weekend trip. The ultimate time and distance are strictly personal preference.

As for where to go, backpackers do most of their hiking close to home. Occasionally the dyed-in-the-wool finds a long weekend or more that he can explore new territories some distance away. Good areas for hiking and backpacking are easily located in any part of the country through local chambers of commerce, national or state park systems, and the U.S. Forest Service. In forest service wilderness areas alone there are close to 200 million acres with over 100,000 miles of trails, all restricted to hiking.

A good camping equipment retailer can also guide you to the best backpacking trails. Sales people at our Campfitters stores in Elmhurst and Evanston, Illinois, Ann Arbor, Farmington, Kalamazoo and Lansing, Michigan and Kansas City, Missouri will be pleased to provide you with "where to go" information.

The third backpacking must—being fully prepared—deserves some study by a beginning packer. As with a lot of outdoor activities, equipment can make a big difference. If you want to enjoy backpacking to its utmost, choose your equipment with care. Try to stay to the better designed, better made equipment. Its reliability and lasting factors will pay off in the long run. Remember, the equipment you carry on your back has to substitute for the bedroom and kitchen. In fact, the entire home.

A note of caution: too many backpackers invest in the wrong equipment too soon. To avoid this, rent or borrow equipment until you can choose the styles that suit your needs and budget the best.

Make an early decision to go light and comfortable. When you consider the availability of lightweight equipment today, it is foolish to go out overloaded. Remember, overweight causes early fatigue and discomfort. A woman can comfortably carry 20 to 30 pounds, and a man 30 to 40 pounds. Teenagers can tote 20 pounds and up with no difficulty. Some experienced backpackers keep their basic gear load under 20 pounds and can spend a week in the wilderness with less than 25 pounds on their backs.

The choice of proper footwear is critical and should be determined by the type of hiking to be done. Rubber soled canvas topped sneakers are preferred by many young hikers for short trips. They are lightweight, inexpensive and dry out quickly. But they wear out rapidly, wet through quickly and provide little or no ankle support. Hiking boots are an essential part of the serious backpacker's gear. There are various types, ranging from the extremely light, supple type to the heavier, stiffer boot.

Personally, I have tried all types and found the medium weight boot is easy to break in, easy to pick up and lay down hour after hour and it offers good ankle support. Well worth checking into is the wide range of boots offered by Vasque. Designed in Italy, they are manufactured by Red Wing in the U.S. Strange as it may seem, American's heels are narrower than European's. Vasque takes this into consideration. In fitting boots remember that feet swell on the trail and under a pack load. When trying on boots wear hiking socks, then allow for feet swelling. Never start out on the trail wearing new boots for the first time. Break them in well in advance.

I would also advise wearing two pair of socks on the trail. The outer of good quality wool, the inner of lightweight orlon, nylon or cotton. Your feet take more than their share of punishment while hiking. To overcome foot fatigue remove boots, change socks, apply foot powder and if possible, bathe feet in stream or lake at rest stops.

For the camper who plans to carry a camera, a sweater, a lunch and other odds and ends on short day hikes, a small frameless day pack is sufficient. But, for the hiker who plans to be out longer than three days at a time and hiking a minimum of three times a year, a quality frame and pack are worth the investment.

Modern pack frames allow you to distribute weight evenly on the shoulders and the hips. Properly adjusted and packed, the backpack is most carryable. A pack frame must be fitted to the wearer. . . and avoid the pack frame that does not come in varying sizes.

Never load your pack like a grocery bag with the heavy gear at the bottom. It will tend to pull you downward. Place the heavier items at the top, close to the shoulders. This allows you to walk more erect with the weight directly over your spine.

A good way to don a frame pack is to rest it on a big rock or tree stump at hip level and sort of back up into the straps.

The packer should take frequent rest stops, perhaps one an hour. Remove the pack, prop it against a rock or tree, sit back against it and relax.

For the overnight camper a tent or some kind of shelter is a must in most parts of the country. In the fall, winter and spring a tent provides warmth as well as protection against rain and snow. Hikers in areas that get heavy summer showers also carry a tent. Backpackers' tents come in three basic types: the pup or wedge design, the explorer style and the mountain variety.

These tents range in weight from less than four pounds to eight pounds. All are engineered for lightness, compactness and efficiency. An ideal tent for two is the Gerry Yeararound. Like most backpacking tents it is made of nylon. It has a separate fly that fits over the tent for eliminating condensation inside and features a vestibule for the storing of gear. The Yeararound is a lightweight 5 pounds 2 ounces and is especially good for light snow conditions.

Until you decide on a particular tent, buy a lightweight plastic tube tent for temporary use. It costs only two dollars and with care should hold up for a half a dozen outings.

When camping choose your tent site with care. Select a level area. If in hilly or mountainous country, especially in bad weather, choose the leeward side of the hill out of the wind. If, however, insects are a problem, the windward side may be preferred.

Backpackers need a sleeping bag along with an air mattress or sleeping pad. Half body air mattresses and foam pads support only your torso, not your legs, and can be rolled up with your sleeping bag. The type of sleeping bag needed is governed by the temperatures one would expect to encounter. For most hiking a two or three pound bag (insulation weight) is sufficient. For mountain climbing and cold weather camping a heavier bag is suggested.

There are rectangular, wedge and mummy styles of bags. The mummy bag is popular because of its greater warmth, lighter weight and smaller roll size. The rectangular bag allows more freedom of movement but lacks the lightness of weight, greater warmth and more compactness. The wedge type is a good compromise between the other two.

Goose or duck-down filled bags are the best. Good bag design provides maximum loft with minimum weight of down. The more expensive goose-down is the best of these as it maintains a greater loft; duck-down maintains a good loft when used with a heavier shell. With nylon covers, Dacron 88, a synthetic insulation, provides a good warm weather bag. For all-around backpacking my favorite bag is the Superlight made by North Face. It compacts into a 7x 18" roll, weighs just 3 1/4 pounds and is good to 10 degrees above zero.

Once you are beyond the basics of the sleeping bag, tent, boots and backpack there are the many small items so essential to on-the-trail living. Things like the canteen, first-aid kit, cook kit, flashlight, among others. The subject of small basic equipment items is, in fact, important enough for an article all its own. For now, however, I cannot stress enough the importance of seeking out the advice of experts in selecting camping and backpacking equipment. There are many quality camping equipment retailers throughout the country that are only too eager to furnish advice. Like us at Campfitters, they too are outdoorsmen who can speak from experience.

If you care to bone up on backpacking, I suggest reading these two books: The "Complete Walker" by Colin Fletcher and Backpacking by R. C. RETHME. Both contain a wealth of information and ideas. Keep in mind, although backpacking is indeed a personal thing, you should not hesitate to use the ideas and advice of others by adapting them to your own needs.

Contact with the wilderness is the main concern in backpacking. Your thing may be photography, bird watching, animal life, geology, or the study of trees and vegetation. Involve yourself in one or more of these subjects and your backpacking experiences will be even more rewarding. The point is to enjoy the outdoors, nature and yourself.

35th intern class starts at CCH

CARSON CITY—July first marked the beginning of the 35th consecutive Intern Class at the Carson City Hospital, a program that was initiated in 1937 by Dr. Emmett Binkert, hospital founder. The late Dr. Ed Zyzewski of Middleton was the first intern.

In the years to follow 70 Doctors have engaged in a full year of post doctoral training at the hospital approved for the training of Interns and Residents by its National accrediting body.

One direct result of this teaching program is that twenty-three former Interns of the Carson City Hospital are now engaged in active practice in twelve different communities in this area of Central Michigan.

The Interns of the 1972-73 class are Dr. Michael Rosenberg of Philadelphia, Pa. and Dr. Alan Boucher of Mansfield, Ohio.

In addition, this year, the Carson City Hospital is approved for the teaching of senior students. This program allows a senior student who has already served a clinical clerkship in a hospital in his junior year, to spend up to five months of his senior year in an elective teaching or training program.

A senior student may elect to engage in a research program, serve a preceptorship or serve in a selected hospital program.

Presently the hospital is participating in this elective program with Frank Chacon who will complete his elective July 29, and John Osborn who will remain until September 15.

Dr. William Jordan of Fowler, director of medical education of the Carson City Hospital is programming a continuing schedule of senior students throughout the year.

Stylemaster plans major expansion

Stylemaster Manufacturing Corporation's St. Johns plant will be expanded in the late fall or early spring according to general manager Ralph Lebrato.

The expansion will enable Stylemaster to manufacture larger numbers of the firm's modular homes.

Lebrato said the modular homes can be manufactured at a rate of one home every three weeks. The expansion will allow Stylemaster to complete up to three homes per week.

Stylemaster offers modular homes in five floor plans and eight elevations and offers the consumer numerous options.

The plant employs 23 people and production is now held to one shift.

The construction of a modular home begins with (upper left) the cutting of lumber to exact specifications and (lower left) the assembly of panels to be used.

The floor is constructed (upper right) and depending on the home, carpeting is laid. Panels (lower right) are added and rooms take shape. The homes are delivered to the site in two or three sections.

Explaining that panels are manufactured for both modular and custom built homes, Lebrato shows Hicks how the panels are constructed.

While Lebrato and Hicks talk in the background, Larry Childress constructs trusses for use in Stylemaster homes. Stylemaster plans to expand the St. Johns plant in the near future to produce more modular homes.
