Lake residents demand apology

By Laurie Klipp
County News Writer

BATH -- Some residents of Park Lake apparently feel that Township Supervisor Roy VanSickle showed "poor competence and judgement" when he made his recent statement to an area newspaper that Park Lake is unfit for swimming because it is polluted. At least that's what petitions currently being circulated in the area state.

The petitions demand that VanSickle make a public apology for his statement, and, if this isn't done, that the township board ask for his resignation.

Park Lake resident Melvin Fisk, who is circulating a petition, claims he has papers that "prove without a shadow of a doubt that there is some clean water here."

HIS PHILOSOPHY is that a few residents may be discharging waste into the lake, but that all residents shouldn't be punished for what a few are doing.

"If one man throws trash on the street, why should the rest be punished?" he questioned.

He said researchers from Michigan State University recently took a sample from 1 location and did not find it to be polluted.

He said he feels "hurt and harmed" by Van Sickle's statement.

"WHEN THEY kick me in the teeth," he stated, "I've gotta fight back."

When asked if the petitions were hinging at a recall, Fisk said he had decided a long time ago never to sign another recall petition. "And this decision stands," he added.

"You don't beat a kid to death because he's done something wrong," Fisk mused, "You try to correct him." VanSickle said apologizing would indicate that he was wrong, and therefore won't do it.

"I DON'T THINK I'm doing as much harm by trying to clean up the area as they are by ignoring the problem," he stated.

"The fact that I said Park Lake isn't fit for swimming doesn't make property values lower," he asserted, and noted that several houses on the lake have been for sale for a couple of years.

"It is one of the nicest areas in the Lansing area," he said. "When cleaned up, it'll be the nicest."

VanSickle said he called the Water Resources Commission Tuesday morning and was told by a Mr Baldwin that, through an oversight, the 1970 report on dye testing was not on file when Fisk made his inquiries. According to VanSickle the reports have now been located and Fisk will receive a letter soon from the commission correcting the 1969 report he was previously given.

THE REPORT, dated Oct 6, 1970, lists 4 separate locations where dye testing was done. At each location fluorescein dye was observed in Park Lake. All 4 stations noted a "sewage odor" and station #4 along the shoreline of a house on Culver Drive showed that "garbage, sewage sludge and a characteristic sewage odor were all evidence of recent discharges of domestic waste."

The survey's conclusion said, "It must be concluded that the built-up areas in and around the Unincorporated Community of Bath and Park Lake in Bath Township, Clinton County, can or could cause the discharge of semi-treated domestic wastes to be discharged to the waters of the state."

The report also stated that, "an individual homeowner's (sewer) system can become inoperative for various lengths of time and can also operate satisfactorily for various periods of time."

THE STATE believes a sewer system for Bath Twp would solve the problem, and a Board of Determination has ordered the township to have an operative sewer by December of this year. However, a circuit judge ruled that the sale of bonds which would finance the bulk of sewer construction violates a law limiting charter townships to debts of 10% or less of their assessed valuation. The matter is still in court.

VanSickle says he wants to "build up the area by cleaning up," not by hiding the truth.

He termed the argument "political" and said local Democrats have "been waiting for a chance to get me." When it was time last year to decide how much in the way of revenue sharing funds Bath Twp would receive, the township was given 8 penalty points, 2 of which were because of "restrictive recreational facilities, including bathing."

Meet the County News Market Place

ST. JOHNS -- Beginning with this week's issue of the County News, area advertisers will be benefiting from a new extended circulation schedule of the paper's newest creation, THE MARKET PLACE. The announcement was made by Harold Schmalz, general manager and advertising director of the paper.

Schmalz said that all subscribers receiving the County News automatically get the Market Place as section C of each week's issue but that extra copies will be printed weekly to saturate other market areas. These areas include all six routes of St Johns, both routes of Fowler and 4 routes of DeWitt. Included also will be the villages of Fowler and Westphalia as well as the city of DeWitt.

Introducing the new advertising service to the public, Schmalz said that advertisers will have the opportunity for spreading their advertising messages over a broader market area than ever before and will reduce costs for merchants wanting to reach these prime market areas.

MARKET PLACE also provides classified advertisers extended coverage to attract top response from throughout the area.

Watertown Township sets informational meeting

An information meeting will be held by the Watertown Township Planning Commission, Wednesday, July 18 at 8 pm to get public opinion on the Township's Comprehensive Development Plan.

The meeting will be held in the Township Hall at the corner of Clark and Francis Roads.

"We would like to give people an opportunity to ask questions about the plan, and look over the land use maps that will be displayed," Vaughan Montgomery, planning commission chairman said.

Members of the planning commission will briefly explain the five-phase work program involved in the plan's development and answer questions he added.

The Tri-County Regional Planning Commission (TCRPC) and the Township Planning Commission worked together on the plan. A TCRPC staff member will also be attending the meeting.

The first information meeting was held June 13. Areas discussed include zoning, future airport expansion, and the highway system. One question raised by citizens was whether the township should promote overall growth or retain its rural atmosphere.

Plan completion is expected in August, 1974, and a public hearing will be held.

DEWITT TWP -- A rather unusual problem confronted members of DeWitt Township's Board at their regular meeting Monday night. It seems that a man was recently buried at Gunnisonville Cemetery on a plot belonging to someone else.

Florence Hartman, representing her parents, Mr and Mrs Louis Fritz, stated her family's position that they want the body moved to a different site. The Fritz' purchased the lot containing 6 gravesites in September of 1971.

An upset Mrs Hartman asked the Board how Twp clerk Donna Syverson could issue 2 titles to the same plot. Ms Syverson responded, saying she did not know that the plot had been purchased since there was no record of it. She noted that the sexton, who also has the authority to issue titles, was in the hospital at the time the 2nd title was issued.

MRS HARTMAN said the sexton knew that all 6 gravesites belonged to her family, and that Ms Syverson could have found this out if she had made a single phone call.

Attorney F. Merrill Wyble told Mrs Hartman that the township cannot disinter the body without a request from the family of deceased, who brought his body from California for burial here. They were residents of the area many years ago.

Trustee Jack Azeski suggested that Supervisor Dale Emerson send a letter to the family of the deceased and inform them of the error. Emerson said he would send the letter on Tuesday, and give Mrs Hartman a copy.

Mrs Hartman informed the Board that, if the family refuses to have the body moved, legal action will be taken.

ALSO SPEAKING for Mr and Mrs Fritz was a granddaughter. She told the Board that she did not like having her grandparents made the "heavies" when the township is at fault.

"They're 75 and 80 years old," she said, "And this means a lot to them."

Wyble then suggested to the Board that there only be 1 person with authority to issue titles for cemetery plots in the future.

5. Special procedures - tests are administered and include eye, ear, blood tests for lead, hemocrit and sickle cell anemia, urine tests for sugar and albumin and tuberculin tests.

6. Findings are discussed with accompanying adult and arrangements made for further diagnosis and treatment if needed.

an appointment schedule, with the schedule arranged so that those attending will have a minimum of delay in seeing the team.

Aurang stressed that appointments should be kept or time would go unused.

OVID-ELSIE

FFA chapter receives two citations

Ovid-Elsie's FFA Chapter has received 2 citations of merit for their participation in the "Building Our American Communities" program.

Involved in the program for 2 years, the Ovid-Elsie chapter was presented the Governor's Citation of Merit and The Citation of Merit from the 2 sponsors of the Building Our American Communities program, Michigan Soil Conservation Society of America and the Michigan Farm Bureau.

The FFA received plaques for such programs as working on the Community Park located on the school grounds, developing a Christmas program to raise funds for the needy in cooperation with the Ovid-Elsie Jaycees helping the Jaycees during their recent Jelly Week drive to provide funds for the Clinton Intermediate School Dist Trainable Center and for beautifying the school grounds.

Members of the chapter were presented the plaques June 28 at a tour of the Michigan Farm Bureau Elevator in Saginaw. The elevator's main purpose is to ship out grain to other cities and foreign countries.

After a tour of the elevator, the chapter attended a luncheon and viewed a slide presentation of the Shiawassee Game Refuge.

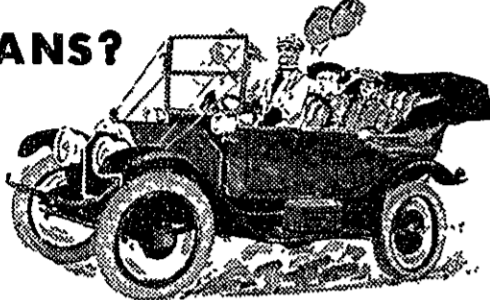

The refuge is an example of how agriculture and natural resources can compliment each other.

The federal government purchased some of the prime agriculture land in the state for the refuge because of its location with 5 rivers, which drain into Saginaw Bay.

The land is rented back to the previous owners on a 1/2-2/3 basis in which 1/3 of the crop land is left as feed for migratory waterfowl and other, wild game species.

Ovid-Elsie FFA advisor, Larry Sprague took 4 students to the program; Jim Galecka, Linda Montague, Jude Tribelmer and Leonard Mitchell.

To the Editor:

In answer to Barry Goldwater's... "What the Hell can we do? I say "we can hope!"

I've read this: "there are sermons in sticks and stones". And this: the mental wizard Albert Einstein said it: "there is every evidence of a plan, and that presupposes a planner."

And I say this: "Hope is the influence of a plan, that existed before this world began, and pleads, complexly, to be understood, by complexly using bad to emphasize good, and I claim, with modest might, hope is related to: "let there be light."

Again I say: "we can hope and hope activities optimism.

State lands for sale

LANSING — Tax-reverted state lands in 28 southern Michigan counties collectively valued at $305,830 will be offered for sale by the Department of Natural Resources during a series of 6 public auctions scheduled for the July 17-26 period.

The sales, set for Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids, Saginaw, Jackson, Pontiac, and Detroit, will cover a total of more than 1100 parcels, which have been screened by the DNR as being unsuitable for its programs and projects. Most of those land units are platted lots.

As in the past, each of the 28 southern counties will get all receipts the DNR collects for selling state-owned units within its area.

On July 19, the new county courthouse in Saginaw will be the scene of a sale, involving state parcels in Clinton, Genesee, Gratiot, Huron, Shiawassee and Saginaw counties. These properties carry a combined minimum price of $74,535. Leading off the DNR's sale schedule will be a July 17 public auction in the County Center Building at the Kalamazoo Fairgrounds where $40,485 worth of tax-reverted lands in Allegan, Berrien, Cass, St Joseph, Muskegon, Ottawa and Kalamazoo counties will be offered for sale.

Going on the auction block July 18 at the County Building in Grand Rapids will be lands in Ionia, Muskegon, Ottawa and Kent counties, appraised at $59,125.

Coming up for bids July 20 in the courthouse in Jackson will be state-owned lands valued at $26,745 in Calhoun, Ingham, Lenawee and Jackson counties. The next stop for DNR land sales specialists will be the Commissioners' Auditorium in Pontiac where, on July 24, they will take bids on $66,105 worth of state units in Lapeer, Macomb, Sanilac, St Clair and Oakland counties.

The DNR's final land sale this month is set for July 26 in the City-County Building, Detroit. It will involve state units appraised at $38,835 in Monroe, Washtenaw and Wayne counties.

Each of this month's 6 land sales will begin at 10 am, EDT.

The Clinton County News staff finds it impossible to attend meetings of all clubs and organizations that take place in busy and active Clinton County. And there are insufficient hours to chase the president or secretary of each group to get the stories that arise out of their meetings.

Club secretaries are requested to drop us a card or give us a call at 224-2261 and fill us in on the highlights of their meetings and especially about special upcoming activities.

If we could financially afford it, we'd employ enough reporters to follow you around and report what you do . . . and take your picture, too. But our bankers insist on our remaining solvent, paying our interest on time and occasionally making a payment on the principal.

Open Letter

from VAN W. HOAG

Dear friends,
It deserves emphasis that the time, the place, the character of the funeral service, the merchandise used, the cemetery selected - these are decisions of the family of the deceased. The funeral director acts only as a representative of the family.
The clergyman should be consulted in matters that concern him before any decisions are made.

Respectfully,
Van W. Hoag

HAVE YOU NOTICED?

...The sign in a Lansing hospital parking lot that says, "Exit, Do Not Enter."

...That some bicyclists, knowing they have a right to use the roadways along with cars and trucks, seem to hold that right above their own safety. If I were riding a bike on a rural road and a car behind me was coming at 50-60 mph and another was coming from the other way, I think I would forget to say "it's my right" and make way for the cars. By the way, how much bicycle money goes to finance roads and highways?

...St. Johns doesn't have a place like a Dairy Queen or Tastee Freeze where you can buy just cones, floats, banana splits etc.

...How difficult it is to see Spring St traffic when you're sitting at the stop sign on Walker in St. Johns.

...The calendar in Fowler that states, "Fowler—the home of 1009 people and 11 goof-offs."

...There seems to be more interest by persons in running for local public offices than there was a few years ago.

...Many of the same people who insist there's nothing to Nixon's possible involvement in Watergate are the same to sustain groundless rumors about "dirty dealings" in local government.

...It seems more difficult than usual lately to complete a long distance call on the first try.

...That many people who visit area parks are too lazy or too inconsiderate to use litter barrels. One example Sunday was provided by a young man who had the energy to walk a few steps, but not enough to bend over. He took an empty pie box to the litter barrel, tossed it from a couple feet away and left it on the ground after he missed the target.

...The great number of drivers who drive as though the US-27 65 mph speed limit doesn't apply to them. And, if they ignore the 65 during the day, why should they pay attention to the 55 mph at night?

...Motorcycle accidents seem to be occurring more often this summer. Although it never made it as a law, maybe it's time to require motorcycles to be operated with lights on at all times. I have heard of 3 fatal accidents this summer apparently caused because the driver of a vehicle simply did not see the motorcycle.

"If It Fitz . . . Hunting a burial ground

Editor, Lapeer County Press

By Jim Fitzgerald

My closest relatives should clip this column and save it for future reference. I want a classy funeral. Men with shovels need not apply.

I want a fare-thee-well similar to the one recently accorded the late Capt Joseph Serzan of Daytona Beach, Florida. For 40 years he was captain of a 48-foot luxury yacht owned by a railroad tycoon. Serzan lived on the boat and often said he wanted to be buried at sea.

Well, Mrs Matthews didn't slip Serzan's body into a burlap sack and throw it over the side. No way. She got a priest and mourners and set sail into the Atlantic. After a proper ceremony the yacht's deck was opened and the boat sank to the bottom, with Capt Serzan's body aboard. I guess the pallbearers swam home.

THAT YACHT was worth $60,000 which is slightly more than charged by your friendly neighborhood Digger O'Dell for a semi-deep mourning coffin with taped organ music and sing-along cards included.

What I mean, that's class. And that's the type of thing I want—to be buried in a spot that has meant something to me during my lifetime, not in some spooky cemetery I ordinarily wouldn't be caught dead in (I certainly have a way with words, don't I?)

The question is, where? My first thought was Curley Peloso's pool room on Water St in Port Huron. That's where I learned a valuable lesson. I learned that my choking point can be determined by money. I could always make the 9-ball for a 50-cent bet if I had $1 in my pocket. But if I was penniless I always choked and missed the shot. This meant I had to run out the door and across the 7th Street Bridge to school where I put myself in the protective custody of a nun, thus thwarting the brute who was clawing at my heels, threatening to kill me if I didn't pay him 50 cents.

MORAL TO LIVE by: Don't bet more than you have. You can't always find a nun when you need one.

But I just read they are going to tear down that poolroom and build a riverside park. I never met a pigeon I trusted, so I don't want to be buried in a park.

My next thought is just a few blocks away, the Alibi Bar. This is where I spent my last, blessed days of bachelorhood—about 10 years worth. It was here that countless veterans gathered to forget the horrors of World War 2. Most of us never succeeded, also forgetting where we lived and what our names were. But my attachment for the Alibi is not as nostalgic as it is proprietary. I have not enough money sunk in the place to provide care for my grave forever, which may be longer than perpetual care, or whichever comes first.

However. Such a delicate subject demands consultation with the potential survivors. So I asked my family what they thought. And they immediately decided upon a black leather chair upon which I always sit, and no one else is allowed to sit. It is in front of the TV, next to the bookcase, and 2 small luges from the kitchen.

IT WAS AGREED that, after a cheap cremation in the backyard incinerator, my ashes should be sifted down between the cushions of my chair.

"Whenever I sit in it," my wife explained, "it will be a pleasure to think of you down there."

So be it. The pallbearers will be allowed to keep all the coins they find. Onward and Upward.

Thinking out loud It's personal

By Laurie Kipp

You oughta work on a newspaper . . . sometime—at times it can be really strange. Some days are so busy that it seems impossible to keep abreast of everything, and other times watching the ivy grow on a building can be the biggest scoop of the day.

On a particularly dull day recently, our illustrious (at least that's what he calls himself) editor was busily banging away on his typewriter decorated with a cartoon of a roadrunner and a red feather. (Mine has a note that says, "CAPITALIZE every 4th paragraph!") Smoke came pouring out of the poor abused machine, as well as the following editorial:

"It has come to our attention that several, although not too many, government agencies have been dealing in verbose avoidance for so long they couldn't provide a simple, yet complete, answer if their lives depended on it; that is to say, they would die if they did not fulfill the requirements of the preceding statement outlying part of the overall intention of this paragraph, which, at the correct time, will lead to following statements clarifying the issues, although, not completely, but to a point where those with questions will be satisfactorily informed of the current and future status."

Hmmmm, I wonder if Edmonds is considering writing speeches for Governor Milliken.

I understand Martha Mitchell has been politely requested by the Senate Investigating Committee on the Watergate affair to refrain from attending the hearings. It should be interesting to see what she'll do.

The following quote must have been written with her in mind—"Before you begin to give someone a piece of your mind, consider seriously whether you can spare any!"

The State Journal conducted an interesting experiment recently. Two of their reporters asked people on the street to sign a petition in the interest of better government. Reactions ranged from, "Ain't nothing in ther for senior citizens" to a woman who wadded up the paper and said, "there is my answer to your little game."

The petition contained a portion of the Declaration of Independence.

The above incident reminds me of a record of the Fifth Dimension recorded a while ago. It was a beautiful vocal interpretation of the Declaration of Independence, and many radio stations refused to play it, calling the recording "radical."

How sad. It seems that the term "freedom" has been distorted somehow over the years since its inception, and no longer means "the absence of necessity, coercion or constraint in choice or action."

View from the Senate

By SEN. WILLIAM S. BALLENGER

A billion dollars is a lot of money in any man's language - and that's the value placed on the products grown and raised by Michigan farmers last year.

If you add the costs of transportation, processing, and marketing of those farm products, you'll find the value of Michigan's agricultural industry last year was almost $3.5 billion - a right smart sum for a state that is usually thought of as more industrial than agricultural.

That makes agriculture Michigan's second largest industry, next to manufacturing, and it provides about 27 percent of all Michigan residents with some part of their income.

And, needless to say, mid-Michigan farmers in the six counties of Shiawassee, Gratiot, Montcalm, Clinton, Eaton, and Ingham which, wholly or in part, make up my 30th Senatorial District are among the leaders in overall state production.

THIS INFORMATION comes from an attractive and fascinating little booklet entitled "1973 Michigan Food Facts" put out just recently by the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

If you haven't followed Michigan farming closely, you may be interested to know that Michigan leads the United States in production of six crops, and is fifth or higher in 17 other food crops.

For an industrial state, that's a rather notable accomplishment.

Last year, despite some serious weather problems for some crops, Michigan led the nation in the production of red tart cherries, sweet cherries, dry edible beans, pickling cucumbers (where Montcalm County's in the forefront), fine Eastern white soft winter wheat, and rhubarb.

The cherry crop of more than 130,000 tons was valued at more than $20 million and the 732 million-pound crop of dry edible beans was valued at more than $63 million. The 21.4 million bushels of wheat were worth more than $35 million.

MICHIGAN FINISHED

second in the nation in the production of prune-plums and mushrooms, third in apples, celery, asparagus, blueberries and wines; fourth in grapes, snap beans, spearmint, strawberries, carrots, pears, and sweet corn; and fifth in cauliflower, cottage cheese, and maple syrup.

Although Michigan was only 10th in the production of field corn, our farmers produced $180 million worth of that crop.

While figures were not available for last year, Michigan's milk output in 1971 brought Michigan farmers $238.4 million - the largest return of any product.

Other substantial money producers included: Eggs, $35 million (1971 figure); pork, $35 million; potatoes, $27.8 million; apples, $26.8 million; sugar, $19 million; and onions, $13.3 million.

Other crops and value placed on them included: grapes, $9 million; carrots, $7 million; tomatoes, $6.6 million; turkeys, $5.8 million; asparagus, $5.9 million; and celery, $5.6 million.

Review dairy taxing plans

Michigan dairy farmers living near large cities pay about 25% more in property taxes each year than dairy farmers in rural areas, according to Michigan State University Agricultural Economist C. R. Hoglund.

Several alternative tax plans have been suggested to finance schools and other local services instead of the current property tax system. One alternative plan is to reduce the school operating millage and increase the state income tax.

"The urban-fringe dairy farmer would benefit most from this plan," Hoglund says. "The tax burden would be shifted from property ownership to the ability to pay."

"The urban-fringe dairy farmer owns relatively high-value property but derives only a modest income from it," he says. "This farmer's income is often comparable to a small businessman's in an urban area, but the urban-fringe dairyman may pay 5 times as much property tax under the current system."

Hoglund said the difference in taxes between the urban-fringe dairyman and his rural counterpart is higher property values and higher millage rates in the urban-fringe area.

"Rural area dairy farmers are taxed about 7% per acre while the urban-fringe farmers are paying about $11 per acre," according to Hoglund. "The average assessment per acre is $189 for the rural area and $299 for the urban-fringe area."

A second alternative tax plan is deferred taxation.

"Under this plan a dairyman's land is assessed at its agricultural value rather than its market value," according to MSU Agricultural Economist L. J. Connor. "This plan would also benefit the urban-fringe dairyman more because the assessment amount would drop much more sharply in the urban-fringe area than it would in the rural area."

A third plan, similar to deferred taxation, is now being reviewed in the Michigan House of Representatives.

The bill, No 4244, calls for each farm to be classified as either horticultural or agricultural. Land would be valued between $40 and $200 per acre, for tax purposes, depending on the crop production potential. Crop potential is determined by the type of soil, the slope of the land, the fertility of the soil, etc.

Bill No 4244, like deferred taxation, would increase overall public costs due to higher administrative costs.

All 3 alternative methods would increase net cash income after taxes for dairy farms in the urban-fringe area.

Never dull

REP DOUGLAS TREZISE 87th District

There's one thing you can say about this legislative business. It's never dull and there's always something new coming up.

I found that out again last week when I was appointed by the Speaker of the House to a special committee to investigate the Highway Department's decision to proceed next year with the extension of the Detroit area's Northwestern Highway almost 10 miles farther into Oakland County.

Perhaps you read something about this project in a Detroit Free Press article a week or so ago. That article raised a serious question of whether the proposed highway is being built to meet traffic needs or as the result of pressure from large landowners along its route who stand to make tremendous profits if the highway is built. Naturally, this question raised some concerns on the part of the Legislature and a special committee was hurriedly formed to investigate.

Actually, the new committee is a subcommittee of 2 of the House standing committees. Seven state representatives from the Roads and Bridges Committee and the Towns and Counties Committee -- which I will represent -- make up this new panel which will be conducting hearings in the Detroit area and in Lansing between now and the end of the year.

The construction of this Northwestern Highway has an interesting history, reaching even into Shiawassee County -- so I'm told. Back in the 1930's the planners in the State Highway Department conceived the original project as a state-wide highway extending diagonally across Michigan from the Traverse City area in the northwest to Detroit in the southeast. Parts of several highways built to fit in with this overall plan (and M-71 between Durand and Corunna was part of that system.

Similarly, M-115, which extends northwesterly from Clare to Frankfort was to be part of the new highway.

In the Detroit area, the highway was originally built as a surface street but most of us know it today as the depressed freeway we take from I-696 into downtown Detroit. It becomes the Lodge Expressway as we approach the city. And, it is the fact it is a depressed freeway today that brings up some of the interesting legal aspects of the whole thing which our committee will have to delve into.

Back in 1957, some $25 million in bonds were sold to finance an additional 37-mile extension of Northwestern Highway along the general route of the proposed 1974 freeway. This segment would have extended the highway all the way to Fenton where it would join up with the then existing US 23. But a new administration in the Highway Department spent that money to make the below-surface freeway we know today between Telegraph and Eight Mile Roads. The question of whether this diversion of funds was legal was never settled by the courts so the state may still be legally obligated to build the original highway for which the bonds were sold.

It was apparently this concern about legal action which moved the former State Highway Director to put the construction of this new Northwestern Freeway high on the priority list. At his urging, the Legislature, when it passed the gas tax package last year, included this route in the bill as a high-priority item.

But, be that as it may, I think we have to take a new look at the urgency for this highway and evaluate all its aspects in light of today's situation. It is probably true there are millions of dollars to be made by developers if the highway is built. It is also true that many local units of government -- cities, townships and schools -- will probably pick up tremendous increases in local taxes even though an estimated 380 acres of land will be removed from their tax bases to build the highway.

We should not, however, lose sight of the environmental impact of this new construction and how the stimulation of automobile traffic resulting from the highway fits in with our fuel situation and the ultimate need for some form of mass transit in the metropolitan areas. I guess what I am saying is, we have to be sure the construction of this new freeway is in the overall public interest rather than that of private developers, as is accused by some.

I, for one, look forward to this investigation and the challenge it presents.

Better beef goal of MOA agreement

LANSING -- Higher quality beef production in Michigan is the goal of an agreement signed by the Michigan Department of Agriculture and USDA, according to B. Dale Ball, MDA director.

"The Michigan beef quality marketing program, in conjunction with USDA's carcass data service (beef), will allow breeders to receive reports on yield and quality of cattle following slaughter," Ball explained.

"This program helps producers and feeders obtain carcass data which can be used in herd improvement. It will also aid in development of an aggressive promotion program by the industry," Ball continued.

"Positive identification of cattle at time of slaughter is provided through special, individually numbered, orange tags in the ear of the animal," said Ball. "The tag number is registered to the purchaser, who is sent a grading report."

Tags are sold by MDA to livestock associations and other groups for 50¢ each. After meat is graded to USDA standards and information is returned on carcass yield and quality, the organization is billed $1.50 which they, in turn, charge to the owner of the animal.

"The value of this program to cattle producers, feeder buyers and packers is evident," Ball concluded. "Product improvement will benefit everyone, particularly the consumer."

Information on the program may be obtained from MDA's Marketing division, Lewis Cass building, Lansing 48913, or livestock associations and county extension agents.

Debt per cow analyzed

By WILLIAM LASHER
Extension Agriculture Agent

Using records from Michigan's computerized record keeping System Telefarm, Michigan State University economists are formulating a system for calculating how much debt per cow a dairy operation can support.

As expected, debt carrying capacity varies with herd size. As economist L. H. Brown of MSU explains it, large farms can support more debt primarily because a smaller percentage of net cash income goes for family living expenses.

According to Brown's figures, family living costs increased so rapidly during the 5-year survey period (1967-1971) that the small dairy operator who housed 30 cows or less can't even support as much debt now as he did in 1967. The 5 year average for family living expenses looks like this on per cow basis.

Family Expenses — Herd Size Under 30 — $344; Herd Size 30-49, $247; Herd Size 50-74, $183; Herd Size 75-100, $151; Herd Size 100 plus $99. Brown's survey indicates that herds of more than 100 cows can carry about 50% more debt per cow than farms with herds smaller than 30 cows.

His figures also indicate that, as a general rule, 25-30% of a dairy farm's income can be committed to capital replacement and new debt — regardless of the size of the operation.

Data for Brown's survey come from about 400 specialized Michigan Dairy farms — those that have no major sources of income other than the dairy operation.

Anhydrous ammonia now will mean more grass for cow-calf herds

EAST LANSING — Michigan farmers who are now applying anhydrous ammonia to corn can use the same application equipment, including the knives used in corn, to boost their yields of "run-out," grassy fields of bromegrass-alfalfa or second-year fields of red clover timothy which have been cut for hay or pastured this June. This is the advice of Milo Tesar, Michigan State University crop scientist.

"Grass pastures which have been grazed can also benefit by the same nitrogen applications," Tesar says.

What will it cost? "One hundred pounds of nitrogen per acre as anhydrous ammonia costs about $6," Tesar explains, "and the total cost is about $8 per acre applied."

This amount of anhydrous ammonia is as effective as dry ammonium nitrate, according to the MSU crop scientist. It will increase grass yields by about one ton per acre in July, August, September and October when grass pasture is often short.

The extra grass can be used for pasture for cow-calf herds in late summer or early fall or for good hay for overwintering brood cows.

Feeder calves will be in short supply this fall because of the high cost of beef, Tesar points out.

Michigan cow-calf operators produce about one-quarter to one-third of the feeder calves fattened with corn in Michigan feed lots. 1973 should be a good year to raise as many calves in Michigan as possible because prices for a 400-pound calf will likely be high — $250 or more — compared to about $100 only 5 years ago.

The regular anhydrous applicator used in fertilizing corn has worked well in MSU demonstrations in fertilizing grass sods in several locations in the state, according to Tesar. The knives, which are normally set at 30- or 36-inch spacings in corn, can be left at these same spacings for fertilizing grass sods. Recent MSU tests show that tall, deep-rooted grasses such as bromegrass, orchard-grass, timothy, or quackgrass produced as well at these wide spaces as at 10- or 20-inch spacings.

MSU tests were made with special knives for applying anhydrous ammonia to grass. The knives had a special covering device welded to the rear of the knife to reduce escaping ammonia to less than 5%.

The MSU grass knives are thinner than regular corn knives. The tests show that well-worn corn knives with a covering device worked almost as well as the MSU grass knife in grassy sod where the ammonia was injected 5 to 6 inches deep.

"A good rule of thumb is that anhydrous ammonia can be applied to grass sods when the soil can be plowed easily," Tesar says. Good rains in Michigan recently should put many acres of grass sod in an ideal condition for fertilization with anhydrous ammonia — and more profits for cow-calf operators.

Farm Bureau Federation files suit against USDA

LANSING — Farmers have followed through on their threat to take legal action against the US Department of Labor, to prevent the enforcement of what they term a "totally unnecessary" emergency re-entry pesticide standard.

Elton R. Smith, president of the Michigan Farm Bureau, announced in Lansing Thursday that the American Farm Bureau Federation has filed a motion in the U.S. Court of Appeals for a temporary stay of the standard due to become effective on July 13.

The original emergency pesticide standard was due to go into effect June 18, but the Farm Bureau waged a successful legal battle to have it delayed. The Secretary of Labor issued an amended version on June 29, and it was then that the farm organization announced that it would oppose the enforcement of any emergency standard.

"Food production should not be stymied and strangled by unnecessary emergency orders," Smith said. "A task group on occupational exposure to pesticides, and the Labor Department subcommittee on pesticides have reported that no emergency exists. Poison control centers, noted scientists, and farmers have not found any evidence that an emergency exists."

Public hearings regarding the pesticide standard, which would affect Michigan producers of apples, grapes and peaches, are scheduled to begin July 31, and the Farm Bureau maintains that no emergency order is needed.

Smith said that farmers will continue to show the same concern they have in the past for the safety and health of their employees. "They will do so without the imposition of costly, unnecessary standards which will only have the effect of reducing the efficiency of agricultural production," he said.

Price freeze forces packing plant shutdown

Michigan's agricultural spokesman Elton R. Smith said Friday the closing of the Crown hog-packing plant in Detroit, and the threatened closing of the Frederick & Herrud Company of Detroit and Grand Rapids, will have a "devastating effect on both farmers and consumers."

Calling the closing of Michigan packing houses a "direct result of the current price freeze," the president of the Michigan Farm Bureau warned that the consequences will be less meat production, less meat on the counter, more unemployment and eventual shortages and rationing of food.

"Livestock producers and packers are caught in the same economic dilemma," he said. "Costs of production, processing and distribution are rapidly increasing — but the price freeze does not allow recovery of these increased costs. The competitive market system has provided American consumers with an abundant supply of food, and the profit incentive is necessary to bring forth this production of food or any commodity."

Smith explained that the plant closings mean fewer markets for livestock, and that fewer markets and increased transportation costs mean less income to producers. This will result in a further decline in meat production, he said.

"The price freeze is crippling the free enterprise system, and its continuation can only mean less food for the growing number of Americans," he concluded.

88th District Report by Stanley Powell

State Representative

It's becoming more and more difficult to estimate just when final completion of the budget may be achieved. House Republicans were disappointed last week with the passage of a Democratic alternate to the school aid bill passed by the Senate early in April. The House passage resulted in that bill going to a House-Senate conference committee, joining a growing number of budget bills being relegated to such committees for "negotiation".

Republican objections to the Democratic alternate school aid bill centered partially around an amendment which permits 43 high millage districts to lower their taxes with no loss of spending power, and with which Democratic leaders garnered the extra votes necessary to pass their bill. Another amendment will reduce the penalty in state aid to low-millage districts.

This version is completely antagonistic to the Republic backed "equal-yield concept" which insures that all districts will receive a certain minimum amount of revenue for any given number of mills. This proposal was designed to allow local areas to still determine the amount of money they wish to spend on education by voting the number of mills they wish to levy but, at the same time, insuring that state aid would be available to make up the difference in low tax base areas.

Even though the excessive cost of this bill is seriously objectionable, the most frustrating aspect is that it faced certain Senate rejection and assignment to a conference committee at a time when local school districts are running severely short of budget-planning time for the beginning of school, and as yet have no idea what level of operational funds will be available to them in the coming year.

The figure must be brought in much closer to Governor Milliken's proposed expenditures or the bill will face a veto and another lengthy battle to override that veto while Michigan's school children wait for needed educational funds.

GOVERNOR VETOES STATE FAIR BINGO BILL

Governor Milliken vetoed a bill that would have permitted bingo and games of chance and skill at the Michigan State Fair, but the House now has on its calendar a new bill which its sponsors say answers the concerns expressed by the Governor in his veto message.

In his veto message, the Governor said he has consistently opposed the wholesale extension of gambling in Michigan and noted that the earlier bill included vague and ambiguous language that could cause problems in future interpretation.

The later bill would permit the fair authority to enter into contracts with concessionaires to permit games of skill.

This bill establishes four criteria games of skill must meet to be permitted which are:

—the game does not require great skill and the chance of winning is not remote

—the game does not constitute a fraud upon the participants, such as a shell game

—the game is not similar to those games traditionally associated with casino gambling

—the prize shall have a nominal value and shall not be redeemable or convertible into cash directly or indirectly

The new bill, if it passes the Senate and the Governor signs it, would lift the ban on operation of games of skill imposed by the Legislature in 1949.

GAS TAX INCREASE TEMPORARILY STAYS IN EFFECT

Just as the State Board of Canvassers was ready to certify petitions calling for a state-wide referendum on the 2-cent a gallon gasoline tax increase, the State Court of Appeals acted on a suit filed by a Lansing attorney and ordered a 20-day stay on the board's certification.

The court order came only an hour before the Board of Canvassers was ready to announce that sufficient signatures had been obtained on the petitions to put the issue on the November 1974 ballot.

Had the court not stepped in, the decision by the Board of Canvassers would have eliminated the 2-cent gas tax increase that became effective last February, until voters had an opportunity to decide the issue at the polls.

During the 20-day stay the Court of Appeals will hear arguments in the suit filed by supporters of the additional 2-cent tax who claim that rolling back the gas tax revenues to the 7-cents per gallon would severely cut back money available for road construction and urban mass transit systems.

It seems ironic, that when the Board of Canvassers was ready to make a decision, after being criticized for taking so long to certify the petitions, that the courts have imposed an even further delay.

I feel this matter should be resolved soon — one way or the other — instead of being kept in limbo with delay after delay. I consistently voted against the transportation package when it was being considered in the Legislature.

ONE MORE CHANCE TO SAVE MEAT STANDARDS

I'm happy to report that Michigan consumers may have one more chance to help save the state's strict meat standards and rescue hot dogs, sausages and luncheon meats from federal adulteration.

B Dale Ball, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture notified us that a hearing is scheduled in Congress next week, July 17, on a bill to amend the federal meat act and permit states, such as Michigan, to maintain stricter meat standards than the federal minimum.

The bill in Congress was introduced by 16 Michigan Congressmen. Subcommittee chairman, who will chair the hearings on this bill, is Congressman Thomas S. Foley of Washington.

Director Ball is urging everyone who supports Michigan's high meat standards to contact his Congressman and the subcommittee chairman to let them know that Michigan has a right to maintain its high meat standards which have been in effect for the past 21 years.

Modern marketing moods

For most of us, food at home and away from home represents a sizable annual expenditure. In fact, for a family of four (mother, father and two school age children) the outlay for a moderate cost menu is comparable to the cost of a small car. Few of us make car purchases blindly, by walking into just one business firm, and grab the car with most appealing color, then live with the operating costs monthly payments.

With every major purchase decision there are a multiplicity of factors of consider which take comparison shopping, — thought and planning. It is just as important, if not more so, to consider weekly food costs carefully, since our health and well being are at stake. In fact, it is as necessary to be as business-like about food management as it is possible to be.

Most of you reading this column have a concern for curtailing your spending. You have been planning menus, shopping specials, eating less high cost protein foods and the results are still unsatisfactory. In desperation you ask, what recourse remains untapped?

Have you tried various substitutions and price comparisons for your family favorites that you fix or a frequent basis? Sometimes the ingredients in these recipes can be purchased in different forms—canned, frozen, dehydrated or fresh. By changing from one form to another, it is sometimes possible to save money.

The only way to know for sure is to be your own "researcher" and do some nitty gritty cost comparisons. Granted, it may be time consuming, but if keeping your food bill down is your aim, then your time will be well spent.

For example, suppose your family enjoys a macaroni, cheese, tomato, onion and ground beef casserole. Using the cost comparison technique, the cost of ingredients for the casserole can be $2.10, $1.80, $1.70 or a budget price of $1.46.

The broken down expenses would be:

- 1 (6oz.) package Macaroni .39
- 1 lb. ground beef .99
- 1 lb. fresh tomatoes .45
- 4 Oz. cheese (grated at home) .15
- 1/2 cup chopped onion .12

If you substitute 2 (14-3/4) cans of macaroni and cheese at $.47 and 2 (8 Oz) cans of tomato sauce at $.22, you have reduced the cost of $1.80 or a saving of $.30. The cost can be reduced another $.10 or a total price of $1.70 by using 2 (7-1/2 oz) packages of macaroni and cheese dinners at (2/3¢). Finally if you choose to

Open house will honor 40 years of "Making music"

A life-long Clinton area resident and founder of the popular "Music-Makers" dance group will be honored Sunday, July 22, when fellow musicians and proteges gather for an open house at Club Roma on Round Lake in southern Clinton County.

The event, sponsored by the current members of the "Music Makers" will begin at 3 pm with Arnold Stevens of St. Johns as the guest of honor. Invitations have gone out to many musicians who have played with Arnold through the years and it is anticipated that an impromptu jam-session will be the highlight of the gathering which is open to the public free of charge.

Arnold, who has lived in Clinton County all his life, blended farming and music until 14 years ago when he took employment with the St. Johns Co-Op. Now, in his hours away from work, he no longer plays his saxophone to dancing crowds. His leisure hours are spent at his property at Rainbow Lake in search of "the big ones", a pastime he has always enjoyed. Yet, while fishing is now his great leisure-time love, his interest in music has remained steadfast.

Many of the area's long-time residents can vividly recall dancing to Arnold's mellow saxophone for in his playing days his notes could be heard emanating from dance halls in such nearby places as Maple Rapids, Pompeii, Ovid, Bannister, DeWitt, Vermontville, St. Johns, Park Lake and Merle Beach. Then, every now and again, his groups would be called for dances on the road in Owosso, Lansing, Hastings, Chesaning or Vermontville and sandwiched in between these dates were hundreds of stops at grange halls throughout mid-Michigan.

ARNOLD'S MUSICAL career began as a young boy when he studied the violin under the direction of Janette Emmons. The young lad, to an extent, was following in the footsteps of his father, Clair Stevens, who was a well known fiddler in this area and who, today at 95, could still get the toes to tapping if the occasion presents itself.

During the course of his violin training, Arnold developed a liking for the saxophone and without benefit of any formal lessons whatever played his first dance job at the age of 16. The sax was an entirely different musical path than the violin, but Arnold spent long hours in self study and practice until he developed the style which became so popular throughout the mid-Michigan area and one which led to the founding of the "Music-Makers".

It's been a long time since those first notes sputtered from Arnold's sax and now at 61, with two years elapsed since he last played a job, he can look back on many musician friends, some humorous instances and a few changes.

"When I first started playing the dance jobs," Arnold reminisces, "we got fifty cents a night. Then, during the depression years we used to play in Owosso. We'd drive all the way over there for the job and receive three dollars a night."

As a comparison, in the years approaching his "retirement" he has received over $100 for one evening's work.

IN THE HEYDEY of his popularity, Arnold was in great demand, playing for school dances and proms as well as weddings, grange affairs and fund raising events and he estimates he has driven in excess of 150,000 miles answering the call during his forty-plus years of playing.

During those years, Arnold recalls, over 100 musicians have played for him with many of them scattered today from coast to coast and border to border. Some members of his band have gone on to become college band directors and professional musicians while others played for a short while only to give up the musical portion of their lives for conventional employment.

Throughout the entire "honor roll" of Arnold's bands only one musician who ever worked with the group was related to him and that musician is one of the four who comprise the "Music Desprez, who is a nephew of Arnold's wife, Betty, joined the group in 1959 and has played steadily since that time.

Along with the musicians and the years go many anecdotes that Arnold enjoys recalling. "You know," he says with a wry smile, "many times we've played for three generations of weddings within the same family," and you can tell his smile is one of silent satisfaction for having been so well accepted.

He recalls, also with a touch of humor, a couple of tales evolving from his musical career. One deals with the great amount of travel involved in that line of work and how, on a snowy, sub-zero night, the band became stranded near the Paul-Martis residence. Mrs. (Dr) Fraze, who was the band's pianist, called her husband from the Martis home and a short while later the Clinton County road commission sent out a truck to clear the road to allow the group to proceed.

ANOTHER LIGHT observation on Arnold's past comes from Mrs Goldie

Brooks of St. Johns. Goldie claims she is — at least to some extent — responsible for Arnold's success in music because she instructed his mother on the piano during her pregnancy for Arnold.

Despite the tales and regardless of the responsibility, over 40 years of playing for the public says something for Arnold's ability and acceptance. When the gang begins gathering at Club Roma July 22 there will be a lot of reminiscing going on but there'll also be a lot of music ... and Arnold will be right in the middle of it.

This is Don Bast Week

Don recently "retired" from his position on the board of the St. Johns school district, but we're confident his concern and interest will keep him in close touch with future events. After seven years of service doing otherwise might be difficult. Don has served during this period with much credit and his efforts have been motivated by a deep desire for an effective educational program for your young people. We salute Don Bast for his willingness to participate and thank him for his seven year contribution by naming him as our citizen of the week.

Hams erect 90 foot tower

FOWLER -- Motorists driving along Grange Rd in rural Fowler last weekend may have been surprised to see a 90-foot high tower sticking out of a field. The portable tower was being used by a group of ham radio operators for their weekend drill.

The group, sponsored by the American Radio Relay League, was participating in a nationwide event designed to test their operational ability under simulated emergency conditions. A portable generator was used to allow them to broadcast and receive messages without the use of any commercial power.

Participating in the event were Frank Rademacher, Route 2, Fowler; Al Spitzley, Jr., and his father, Al, Sr., of Fowler; who helped erect the tower.

Spitzley, Jr. noted that the tower was borrowed from Bob Fauser of Leslie, and transported to the Grange Rd site on the back of a pickup truck. The tower disassembles into 4 pieces. Each piece requires 2 men to lift.

Transmitting signals from a pickup camper were Kenneth L. Faiver of Lansing and Richard Strauss of Ann Arbor. Faiver's father, Kenneth E., and Tom Faiver also helped erect the structure.

The tower, Spitzley predicted, may be the tallest used over the weekend by any of the ham groups participating in the drill across the country.

This 90-foot portable antenna was erected in a field north of Westphalia last Friday as a part of a ham radio operators field day over the weekend. The tower, possibly the largest ever used in the field, went up without a hitch.

Bath. The members are raising funds for a trip to either the Detroit Zoo or Greenfield Village later this summer.

The Bath All Purpose 4-H Club Members learned about safety at their July 2nd meeting. Their speaker was Mrs. Coye who is a registered nurse. Demonstrations were given by Barry Brown in "How to Select Vegetables for Fair" and Debbie Burnham on "How to give a Demonstration". The members will have a family picnic after the fair at the William Brooks Farm, August 25 from 12:00 noon until 5:00 pm. The club plans an educational tour to Lansing Board of Water and Light with the date to be announced later.

XTRA LOW DISCOUNT

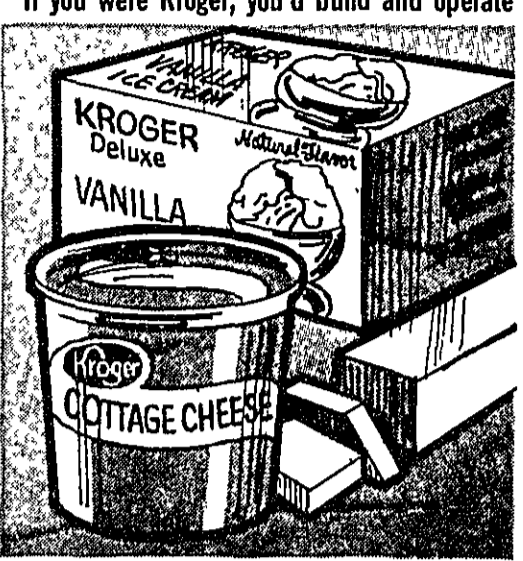

KROGER'S OWN GOOD NAME GUARANTEES THE PURITY FRESHNESS AND FLAVOR.

If you had to supply about 7 million customers each week with pure, wholesome dairy products, how would YOU do it?

If you were Kroger, you'd build and operate your own ultra-modern dairies . . . five of them. You'd put each one under the supervision of a specialist with a degree in Dairy Technology. You'd set your own quality standards even higher than most federal and state requirements.

You'd install sophisticated laboratory equipment for maintaining continuous quality control. And, to make sure it met your flavor standards, you'd taste-test every single batch. Then, and only then, would you put your name on it.

That's what we did. And that's why you can depend on dairy products bearing the Kroger name and prepared in Kroger's own dairy.

X What are Bonus Bargains?

When you see an "X" next to an item in Kroger's ads or stores, it means a Bonus Bargain, good for a limited time and made possible by a special purchase or a manufacturer's allowance or a favorable market condition.

Middlebury News

The Middlebury United Methodist Church observed its 100th anniversary Sunday, June 24 with special services. About 160, many attired in centennial garb, were present for the Centennial observance which used the theme "Touch The New Century With Renewed Faith". One member, Dr Boggs, arrived in a horse and buggy to add color to the day. The Flint District Superintendent, Rev Paul F Blomquist brought the message challenging us with the theme. Members of the Laingsburg United Methodist Church presented to Middlebury Church a lovely picture of the "Last Supper". Clarence Semans accepted it and thanked them very much for it. Charles Warren provided special music and the choir sang "We Have An Anchor."

The cooperative ham dinner featured a tiered, decorated cake with a church and the letters "100" on it. The tables and dining room were decorated with red and white streamers, red geraniums and napkins with praying hands. On the wall hung a colorful banner with the theme "Touch The New Century With Renewed Faith" made by the pastor and wife, Rev and Mrs Brian Kunding. The sanctuary was also decorated with red geraniums and other flowers. During the dinner hour, Rev Kunding and members of the UMYF presented a kaleidoscopic effect of past events and people with slides and movies accompanied with the songs, "Day by Day" and "Jesus, Won't You Come By Here?" with guitar accompaniment, a very effective service.

After dinner, the UMYF conducted the beard contest with winners as follows; Best beard, John Shaw; most unusual, Bruce Pierce; best groomed, Richard Semans, and best mustache, James Van-Dyne. Prizes were awarded each one. A time of remiscing followed with letters and chat from former pastors. The afternoon session began with group singing led by Gladys Warren on the organ, Orson Hubbard on the trombone and Rev Kunding on the cornet. Tom Semans gave a resume of the Church History. He said the Putnam family is a seven generation family to attend the Middlebury Church. There are others that are five and four generations. Charles Warren had been a member the longest of those present. Rev Kunding challenged the church with a look into the future. The History Committee had prepared a display table which held many interesting old pictures, articles, books, lamps and other items of the past.

Middlebury United Methodist Church is a typical little white, rural church surrounded by beautiful shade trees. It is located south and east of Ovid on West Hibbard Road. It has stood as the pulse and heart of this community for 100 years, a constant reminder of the "Faith of our Fathers", and the work too!

The church was started in 1872 as a result of religious classes which had met in homes in the area for 35 years. Farmers with oxen and horses drew the lumber from Potter's Mill, a distance of 20 miles. It was dedicated on June 29, 1873; total cost of construction was $2,564.27.

On July 18, 1883 the church bell was ordered. The bell was completely mounted as a swing bell with 40 feet of rope. The price was $225. Today the same bell would cost $1,880 or more. It weighed 900 lbs. was 34 inches in diameter and was composed of all virgin copper and tin. Due to the weight of the bell the wagon had to be reinforced with heavy timbers and raising it to the belfry was a dangerous task; but with scaffolding, ropes and the help of many men, the bell was put in place and its beautiful tones can still be heard for miles around. In 1925 lightning struck and destroyed the church steeple, and it was never replaced.

Through the years many improvements have been made to the church including digging the basement for a kitchen and a dining room, which doubles as Sunday School room, in 1948, and building an annex for modern rest rooms and new front doors in 1963; In 1968 the sanctuary was remodeled, including extending the platform, dry wall, painting, refinishing the woodwork, new lights, a new window, new pews, new carpeting and a new piano. The choir also acquired new robes. Since then the dining room has undergone some remodeling; a new ceiling was installed, new furnaces, new lights, paint and two folding doors to divide the classroom were added. The dining room floor and the back entry have just been carpeted. Much of this has been made possible by the generous gifts and memorials to loved ones. Many of the members have given of their time and talents to get the jobs done. One of the members is always on hand with his lawn mower to keep the lawn neat. Others are there with tractors when there is snow to move.

The Women's groups, Youth groups and Sunday School groups have all been very active through the years and added much to the church's effectiveness. It would be impossible to name all the acts of love and labor that have gone into this first century of the Middlebury United Methodist Church, surely those who follow have been left a challenge to "Touch The New Century With Renewed Faith".

Rev Brian Kunding serves the church as its minister. We wish to thank all the committees and everyone who worked so hard to make this Centennial a success.
