

VanSickle wins on luck of draw

ST. JOHNS—The last hurrah is over. And the guy who didn't show up is the winner.
Bath Charter Township will have Roy Van Sickle, also known as David L. Van Sickle, as their supervisor.
Van Sickle won the "luck of the draw" Tuesday morning in Clinton County Clerk Ernest Carter's office. But Van Sickle did not show up.

ACCORDING TO LAW, the drawing was held after the Clinton County Board of Canvassers called the June 14 election a tie between write-in candidate Van Sickle and Democratic candidate Carl Crofts.
Crofts showed up for the Tuesday drawing but Van Sickle did not. County Clerk Carter appointed building custodian R.G. Becher to draw in place of Van Sickle. Becher drew the slip that said "elected". Crofts drew the slip that said "not elected."

Visibly shaken by the outcome, Crofts said, "I feel very, very sad for my entire township over the results of the drawing. I feel I would have done an excellent job."
Van Sickle, in a written statement dated July 8, formally protested the results of the board of canvassers, claiming that misspelled names and the use of wrong names by some voters, indicated their preference and should have been counted.

THE CLINTON BOARD of Canvassers last Wednesday decided the election results from June 12 were actually a tie. The tie verdict came as the result of a recount of the ballots asked for by Democratic candidate Crofts. Crofts made the recount request June 16, charging: there had been a miscount of votes; and that candidate Roy Van Sickle did not run under his legal registered name of David L. Van Sickle; that there was misconduct on the part of the Township Election officials; that Van Sickle's full name was not used for all write-ins; and that there was no list received by the Board of Canvassers stating the various ways the name was written or spelled.

The Board of Canvassers made the following statement concerning the recount: "We observed no irregularities in the signing and sealing of the machines and records used in conducting the election."
However, the board sought an opinion on two questions from Clinton prosecutor Patrick B. Kelly.

THEY WERE: SHOULD the name Van Sickle by itself be counted where no other identification is made. And whether or not write-in votes should be counted if they appear in places other than the specified write-in slot on voting machines; that is, write-ins in the slot opposite the office.

17 mills again — on two ballots

ST. JOHNS—Voters in the St. Johns School District will decide the fate of two ballot proposals Aug. 2 when they go to the polls.

The school board voted 5-2 Monday night to ask for 14.5 mills renewal and a 2.5 mill increase on two separate ballots. However, if the 14.5 proposition does not pass, and the 2.5 mill proposition does succeed, the latter would not be valid.

The board decided to take the action, figuring that with the 14.5 renewal of the millage voted for the past two years, they would have at least enough money to open the fall.

Two board members, Wendell Waggoner and Bill Richards voted against the two ballot proposition. Both board members said they felt the 14.5 mills would not run, in their opinion, an adequate program.

SAID WAGGONER, "When we asked for 17, we really needed an additional eight mills over last year. But we went for 2.5 instead. We need that 17 mills very badly and I feel the way we are going about it is a step backwards. The way we are doing it now, we are telling the people we don't need board members."

Supt. Earl Lancaster told the board that the two state aid proposals now pending in the Legislature could give the district enough to operate on if they were passed.

"But we need that 14.5 we have had for the past two years to exist at all," he said. "The 2.5 mill increase we are asking for over and above the renewal of 14.5 is necessary to run last year's program this coming year, but if the state aid increase they are talking about now in Lansing amounts to $30 to $35 per child, that multiplied by 4,000 would be almost the same as the $125,000 the 2.5 mills would raise."

Lancaster added if the 2.5 mill increase is voted down Aug. 2 and there is no increase in state aid, the board will definitely have to make across the board cuts in the present school program.

"REGARDLESS OF WHAT happens however, I strongly urge the board to operate within the budget we will have for next year," he said.

The board also had to schedule a third election for the district Monday night, without knowing whether or not the Aug. 2 issues would pass. The board voted to hold the third election, if needed, Sep. 14.

Ironically, notices for the Sept. 14 election will have to be posted Aug. 2, the date of the second election. Final day for registration will be Aug. 13.

Lancaster reported there were a large number of requests for absentee ballots for the Aug. 2 election, as many district voters have vacations scheduled during that time.

HE ALSO REPORTED at least 30 new registrations of 18 year old voters recently franchised by Congress. He added the student council expressed an interest in helping get the millage issues passed.

In addition, five public meetings are being planned within district elementary schools the week prior to the election. Four will be held in the rural elementary schools and one in St. Johns. The dates have not been finalized as yet.

The board met Monday night in special session on statutory requirements. They had to elect new officers and establish regular meeting times.

Raymond Parr was re-elected as board president, while Fred Meyer was re-elected secretary and Alden Livingston was re-elected treasurer.

THE BOARD ALSO voted to meet the second Wednesday of each month for the months of May, June, July, August, September, and October beginning at 8 p.m. They will meet on the same date during the other months, only starting at 7:30 p.m.

Sidewalk sales July 29,30

ST. JOHNS—Get out your shopping bags then circle the dates of July 29 and 30. That's when St. Johns merchants will be holding their annual summer retail promotion known as "Sidewalk Days", an attraction which traditionally draws shoppers from throughout the mid-Michigan area.

The event, sponsored by the retail committee of the St. Johns Area Chamber of Commerce, finds merchants hawking their wares along the sidewalks of the city and the activity closely resembles the open-air markets of the old country.

This year's promotion is being directed by Norb Rehmann and Wayne Banner and according to their reports merchants have already begun preparing for the busy two-day sale. In addition to normal retail participation a number of outside groups and organizations will be conducting booths for the sale of merchandise or refreshments.

As in the past, the prospects are good for a two-day event packed with exceptional bargains on quality merchandise. Don't miss the excitement.

The Schmaltz family is purchasing a new home at 800 W. Baldwin Street, while the DeWitts are planning the construction of a new home in St. Johns and hope to be moved in by fall.

Gas restriction modification sought

ST. JOHNS—Modification of its present restrictions on natural gas usage in Michigan is expected to be sought in the next couple of months by Consumers Power Company.

Since last year, the availability of natural gas for new commercial and industrial customers was restricted when a shortage of supply faced Consumers. At that time, the Michigan Public Service Commission authorized the restrictive measures.

But the company has been busy in an effort to alleviate the shortage and as one step to increase the supply, Consumers Power last week broke ground on a $40 million natural gas reforming plant near Marysville. The first in North America and the world's largest, the plant will receive natural gas liquids beginning early in 1973, form it into the same kind of natural gas already being supplied by Consumers to its 860,000 Michigan customers, at a beginning rate of 100 million cubic feet a day. In a year, the production will double.

In commenting on the announcement by the company regarding the modification of present gas sales restrictions, Charles Brown, manager of the Lansing Division which includes most of Clinton County, said, "This could mean that we can take care of most all of the new commercial and industrial customers for at least the next few years." He added, "It looks as though the company may be able to ask the Michigan Public Service Commission to modify the restrictions late this summer or early fall."

HELPING TO RELIEVE the shortage prior to the reforming plant completion will be a new source of supply from a gas transmission pipeline from storage fields in Clare County northward about 50 miles to newly developed gas and oil wells.

Gas supplies in the five-county area of Kalkaska, Otsego, Crawford, Antrim and Grand Traverse will be purchased from Amoco Production Company, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Standard Oil Company (Indiana), and Northern Michigan Exploration Company, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Consumers Power Company, and other producers. Agreement was reached between Consumers Power Company and Amoco for the gas supplies from recently-developed gas and oil fields, as well as for the gas reserves that may be discovered as the result of Amoco's active drilling program on its extensive acreage holdings in this area.

"Consumers Power is making every effort to bring relief to Michigan's severe shortage of natural gas," said the company's senior vice president, John B. Simpson. "This agreement with Amoco is another step in that direction and follows closely our decision to build a natural gas reforming plant in the Marysville area."

Initial production from the new fields in Northern Michigan indicate that approximately 30 million cubic feet of gas may be transported daily by the proposed pipeline.

THE PIPELINE is designed to handle additional capacity as new discoveries are added to the line. To a large extent, the proposed pipeline will follow existing right-of-way near highways and existing pipeline routes.

The new production of the northern fields will nearly double the present natural gas production available to Consumers Power in Michigan.

It is estimated that the initial leg of the pipeline will cost approximately $9.5 million.

When the restrictions for gas sales went into effect in October of 1970, the company promised that "it would exhaust every means possible to bring increased gas supplies to the service area."

IN ADDITION TO the new plant at Marysville and the recent discoveries of new gas supplies in northern Michigan, Consumers Power recently was successful in acquiring interests in 45,000 acres of federal lease tracts in the off-shore Louisiana area.

Athletic program shows profit

DeWITT - Sports can be a money-making activity for a school district. At least that's the view of outgoing athletic director Donald Melvin of DeWitt High School. The athletic program in the DeWitt district finished the 1970-71 school year with a balance of $443.88, according to a budget report submitted to the board of education Monday night by the former athletic director. Melvin, who will assume new duties this fall with Grand Rapids Godwin Heights High School, said the total income for the school year was $8,942.83 and expenses amounted to $8,498.95. "Of course, most of this income was from the football program," Melvin told the board members. His report showed that the football program's income was $4,448.53, or about half of the entire athletic department's income. Barring bad weather in the football season in 1971, Melvin predicted a slight increase in the football income, estimating a purse of about $4,600. He cited the 1970 Homecoming game as an example of what poor weather could do to the gate receipts. Although the weather was threatening, there was little rain until the start of the game driving many fans away with others turning around and going home enroute to the field. "We only made about $500 when we would normally have collected between $1,300 to $1,500."

TOTAL EXPENSES for the football program amounted to $2,490.55 and is expected to decrease for the 1971 season to $2,096.55, Melvin stated. The other large money making sport was basketball, Melvin said. According to the figures, the basketball program made $2,747.92 while expenditures amounted to $1,407.15. Predictions for 1971 indicate the basketball receipts will climb to $2,950 with expenses of $1,387.10. Income from other sports included wrestling, $772.92; baseball, $185; cheerleaders, $300; girls basketball, $187.44; and all-sports, $301.02. The new budget expects these figures to increase with wrestling receipts climbing to $900, baseball to $400, cheerleaders to $400 and girls basketball to $250. Total income for the next year should be $9,500, according to Melvin's figures, with expenses of $9,087.36, which would leave a balance of $412.64 one year from now. Melvin said the largest expense for the football squad this year was the purchase of 66 new game jerseys at $501.38, an expense that will not be needed next fall. Other large expenses were shoulder pads, $119; varsity officials, $280; junior varsity officials, $150; gate help, $100; holding dummies, $197.70; goal posts, $100; washing, $243.25 and field custodian, $50. Figures indicate about the same amount of expenditures, minus the purchase of the jerseys. Large expenses for the basketball squad were basketballs, $235.40 and officials, $280. In other action: -The board approved the purchase of a new wrestling mat for tournaments and matches valued at about $5,000. The money used to purchase the mat will be taken from the building and sites fund.

Fowler to try 16 again

FOWLER - Voters in the Fowler School District will get another chance to vote on 16 mills for operation of the school system for the 1971-72 school year on Aug. 2. The Fowler Board of Education decided to set the millage again at 16 mills for the special election. The Fowler district lost their voted millage of 14.5 and an increase of 1.5 mills June 14 by 36 votes. In other board action Monday night, Gerald Wieber was re-elected school board president and Ellen Spicer was re-elected secretary, Linus Pohl was re-elected to the office of treasurer. The board also set their official meeting date as the second Wednesday of each month at 8 p.m. in the Fowler High School.

City seeks funds for Park

DeWITT - The DeWitt City Administrator, Robert Case, has announced that the proposed expansion program for Lions Park here "is in the agreement stage with the state" to finalize approval of a recreation grant. Case said the grant tentatively approved would amount to $4,471, with 15 to 20 per cent of the proposed expansion costs at the park which is adjacent to the Looking Glass River in the city. Total costs are estimated at $5,900. There were three main items mentioned in the proposal including construction of a covered picnic shelter, new tennis courts which could be used for skating in the winter and additional land acquisition. The city is currently considering purchasing about eight acres east of the current park site, with frontage on Dill Road. "We would have about 200 feet of frontage on E. Dill Road and about 100 feet at the rear of the park. The park presently covers two acres along Bridge Street north of Dill Road. Ross renamed board head BATH—Richard Ross, current president of the Bath Community Schools board of education, was re-elected to that post Monday night during the board's annual reorganization meeting. Two others were also re-elected to their posts. They are Paul Stoll, secretary and Robert Zeeb, treasurer. More children could qualify for program

LANSING—Approximately 33 per cent of the estimated needy Michigan children attending schools with a National School Lunch Program are receiving free or reduced price lunches, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reports. In April, 1971, about 73,000 were served lunches for which USDA and the State of Michigan paid all or the major portion of the cost. Estimates of the number of children thought qualified to receive the aid, made in March, placed the sum at over 224,250. This figure was derived from mandatory semi-annual estimates made by local school officials and reported to the Michigan State Department of Education, Administration of all USDA and Food and Nutrition Service child feeding programs, including the National School Lunch Program, is under this agency's jurisdiction in Michigan. The April total was reached despite the fact 1,366 of Michigan's 4,122 schools are still without any form of child feeding whatsoever. Food and Nutrition officials are urging the state agency to increase its efforts so that all schools will join the National School Lunch Program. "IN THIS WAY WE will establish the means so that all eligible needy youngsters get a free or reduced price lunch," said Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng. This goal is one not far from sight if cooperation from local school officials and state agencies continues, Lyng pointed out. Nationally, 94 per cent of the estimated 7.9 million needy children whose schools participate in the National School Lunch Program are getting free and reduced price lunches. These are children from families who are considered to have incomes too low to afford the regular cost of a school lunch. An additional 16.9 million children's families paid the regular price during April.

Kelley seeks injunction

By TOM DEWITT
News Staff Writer

ST. JOHNS—Can a judge of probate serve both as a judge and a lawyer in private or municipal practice?

That is the question that may be resolved when a legal action instigated by Michigan Attorney General Frank Kelley comes up in Circuit Court here in Clinton County.

Kelley has filed an injunction in circuit court asking that Probate Judge Timothy M. Green be permanently enjoined from accepting any professional employment while in the judicial office of probate judge.

Kelley is using a 1971 Michigan Statute that prohibits probate judges in certain parts of the state from having private law practices.

CLINTON COUNTY IS located within the portion of the state where the law applies. Areas where the law does not apply are mostly in the northwestern portion of the lower peninsula and most of the upper peninsula. The specific violation comes under Section 3 of Act 271 of the Public Acts of 1969, which became effective Jan. 1, 1971.

The law does not apply in counties where the salaries of the probate judges are so low that they could not sustain themselves without the benefit of private practice. Generally, these are counties where the population does not total more than 15,000 persons.

Kelley alleges Judge Green has "willfully and knowingly engaged in the private practice of law in clear violation of the statute."

Associates of Kelley's cited at least two cases within the last month in which Judge Green has acted for the City of St. Johns. They involved the signing of complaints and warrants against two St. Johns youths arrested for loitering on the court house lawn. The youths were arrested by St. Johns City Police officers and Green signed the warrants, acting as assistant city attorney for St. Johns. A spokesman for the attorney general said the question of conflict of interest arose in the case whereby Green, as probate judge acted as an "advocate" for prosecutor for the City of St. Johns.

"IT IS A QUESTION of ethics. Can a man who is supposed to be impartial in his job as judge, still be considered impartial in his job as advocate, or does his position influence the verdict in the case?" said the spokesman.

One of the youths, 17-year-old James A. Sweaney, of 907 S. Swegles St., could have been tried under the jurisdiction of the probate court because of his age. He was not, however. He and his brother Dennis, 19, both appeared before District Judge Roland Duguay. They plead guilty and paid fines and costs of $40 each.

The attorney general also cites at least four other instances where Judge Green is listed as a city attorney. In the Michigan Bar Journal Geographic Roster for 1971, Judge Green is listed as "city attorney" for the villages of Ovid, Fowler, Elsie and Westphalia.

In the Attorney General's counterclaim, a judgment is being sought against Judge Green in the "full amount of his unlawful income" or the "excess of net income from professional employment, less the amount of his annual salary as probate judge."

Green's attorney requested action on a motion to strike the judgment from the counterclaim Monday, but no action was taken in Circuit Court.

FIELD BURNS

St. Johns Firemen extinguished a small grass fire Friday on Mead Rd. north of the city. The cause of the blaze was undetermined and firemen remained at the scene for 20 minutes.

Green denies conflict of interest

By TIM YOUNKMAN

ST. JOHNS—Clinton County Probate Judge Timothy Green said in a News interview Tuesday morning that he has never had a conflict of interest of any kind during his 15 years on the bench.

"There are some people who feel there could be a conflict of interest between judicial duties," Green said, "but there is no conflict here of any kind."

Earlier, Green had filed a suit in the Clinton County Circuit Court to eliminate Act 271 which prevents certain probate court judges from holding a private practice while serving as judges.

However, Green pointed out that the law does not cover judges in the Upper Peninsula.

"THIS IS DISCRIMINATION," Green said. "I think it is unconstitutional and I'm testing it out."

If Judge Green wins his court suit against the state court administrator William R. Hart it would effectively eliminate Act 271.

"Of course, the case would be appealed to the Michigan Supreme Court," Green added. When asked if he would appeal the case should he lose it, Green said he would.

He said he wanted a declaratory judgment testing the constitutionality of the Act.

GREEN SAID IT WOULD probably be several months before the case goes to court once a temporary circuit court judge can be picked since Clinton County Circuit Court Judge Leo Corbin has disqualified himself from ruling on the case.

There are several motions pending in the case including one that would entirely dismiss the counter claim filed by the state attorney general's office. "We want to dismiss the counter claim without merit," Green said.

"This is a simple legal issue," Green emphasized. "I was of the understanding that this suit would be conducted on a friendly basis and on a high professional level."

The main issue, according to Green, is that since Clinton County is one of the smaller counties in the state, it doesn't require a full time probate judge. "Although I am available whenever I'm needed on court business," Green said,

HE NOTED THAT he has a "hot line" between his court office and his personal office and any calls can be switched from the courthouse to the other phone immediately. Green added that he didn't think the county should have to pay a high salary for a relatively part-time judge.

The large counties such as Wayne, Oakland, Ingham or Kent, need a full-time judge because the volume is so much greater," he said.

Probate judges have traditionally been paid on a population basis, with salary levels increasing per 10,000 population.

Others, he said, could be paid on a straight salary basis. Green said he recently refused to take a $9,500 raise as a full-time probate judge, which would mean giving up his private practice. Instead he initiated the court suit to have the Act stricken from the law books.

UNDER PRESENT conditions, the state pays 50 per cent of the probate judge's income with the county paying the other half.

However, the court case will be determined, it is certain that there will be a long series of appeals by one side or the other, with the outcome finally being determined in the state supreme court.

Commission refuses re-zoning actions

ST. JOHNS—The City Commission Monday night turned down two re-zoning requests by property owners to change present zoning codes. The requests had been approved by the Planning Commission and sent to the city fathers for final approval.

The requests included the re-zoning of property owned by the Assembly of God Church at Baldwin St. and US-27 and now vacant property across the street from the church to the north.

The request had been made to re-zone the church property from residential I classification to "municipal center" classification. The same request was made for the vacant parcel across the street which the church hoped to use for a parking lot.

The City Commission refused to act on the matter until a public hearing could be held. That hearing has been set for Aug. 9 at 8 p.m. at City Hall.

THE OTHER REQUEST, to re-zone property on Scott Rd. and Sturgis St. from single family dwelling to multiple family dwellings, was ordered returned to the Planning Commission for further study. Four lots were involved.

Action on a request from Fedewa Builders for installation of storm tile on N. Morton St. was tabled. But the commission approved a request to install a fire hydrant on the west end of Park St.

Public hearings on special assessments for curb and gutter on Oak St. west of Oakland and for water on Giles St. were set for July 28 at 8 p.m. at City Hall.

The Commission ordered Zoning Administrator Randy Humphrey to continue enforcing the junk car ordinance and have them removed when necessary.

The council also authorized the removal of a sign on Franklin St. owned by the Aloha Restaurant. The sign is in the street right of way.

City Manager Harvey Weatherwax was named delegate to the Michigan Municipal League convention this fall and commissioner John Hannah as alternate.

ST. JOHNS—Sidewalk Days, Christmas plans and a golf outing will be the main topics of discussion Wednesday July 14 when the St. Johns Chamber of Commerce holds their regular meeting.

President Ron Huard said the chamber members will plan the upcoming activities during the general session scheduled for Daley's.

Representatives of the 4-H Club will be guests of the Chamber for lunch and will give a brief presentation to outline their upcoming membership drive and the annual livestock sale to be held at the Fairgrounds August 18.

The guests will be Richard Woodhams, 4-H Leader, Randy Davis, 4-H Member and Richard Woodhams, 4-H Member.

"There's talk afoot about the possibility of a Chamber Golf outing which will include some kind crazy tournament for golfers and a little card playing along with a serve-yourself steak fry. Bill Patton is assembling the details and we should be in shape to report more on this at Wednesday's meeting," Huard said. "Try and make this meeting and all the other monthly gatherings."

Where do they go from here?

Home, of course. That's first. Home to hugs and handshakes. Home to the family. Home from thousands of anonymous assignments around the world. But—after the uniform's off—what then? Where do they go with their maturity, their abilities, their ambitions? What will they do with the skills they've acquired in service—manual and technical skills, administrative and professional skills? What will become of the $3 billion yearly investment the armed forces spend for training? How will they use the over $1 billion available annually for education and training under the GI Bill? Do they go to work—or do they go to waste? It's up to you. For help in hiring veterans, contact your local office of the State Employment Service; for training information, see your local VA office.

1971 farm payments released

ST. JOHNS—Preliminary payments are now being released to Michigan farmers who participated in the 1971 wheat and feed grain programs. On July 1 over 37,000 payments for almost 16 million dollars had been processed.

This is about fifty percent of the total payments to be issued. This announcement was made by Nick Smith, Chairman of the Michigan State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

These payments, headed, are made to reimburse farmers for the cost of idling productive cropland acres and maintaining that acreage in a satisfactory conserving manner.

The concept of the new set-aside program was devised to assist American farmers in producing for expanded foreign and domestic markets. On the rest of their land farmers in the program can shift their production without acreage restrictions according to market needs.

Such shifts hopefully will enable farmers to cut their production costs and thereby raise their farm income and at the same time make our agricultural products more competitive in foreign markets.

Smith, in closing, stated that the preliminary wheat payments being mailed represent about 76 percent of the total expected payment. Final payments will depend upon the National average wheat market price and will be made after December 1.

St. Johns cow wins excellent rating by H.F.A.

BRATTLEBORO, Vt.—Golden-Knob D S Pontiac Holly 6233545, a Registered Holstein cow owned by Dana Sue and Kathy Hazle, St. Johns, Michigan, has been officially classified "Excellent"—the highest designation attainable in the type classification program of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

This highly select designation is applied only to animals scoring 90 or more of the 100 points representing theoretical perfection in body conformation. Of over 99,350 Registered Holsteins officially classified for type last year, only 1,515 were rated "Excellent".

This animal moved into the "Excellent" bracket at 90 points for the first time during a recent classification of the herd by an official classifier on the staff of the national Holstein organization. Animals scored "Excellent" in previous programs are not included in this listing.

The Classification Program—in continuous operation since 1929—provides a universally-recognized method of comparing the conformation of living animals with that of the True-Type Holstein cow or bull. Participation is currently at an all-time high level.

Mr. and Mrs. Frans Van Eck of St. Janstien, Holland have returned to their home in the Netherlands after spending a month in United States.

Most of the time was spent with the latter's sister, Mrs. Irene Baert of Elsie. While here, they enjoyed a tour of the Oldsmobile plant in Lansing where their niece's husband, Clarence Van Haun is employed.

Another tour provided by Robert Baker was the Reycraft Trailer and Mobile Home Manufacturers at Chesaning. It was a pleasant experience for the Van Ecks as there are only small campers in Holland and they had never seen such a variety of units.

They also made sight-seeing trips across the Mackinac Bridge and the cruise to Mackinac Island and the Indian River Shrine.

The Van Ecks spent a week visiting relatives in Brighton and also a former neighbor from their country, Frank Himbrecht new living in Detroit. They also visited with Mrs. Oscar Robbe of Elsie who formerly lived near their country many years ago.

Before flying home they saw Michigan State University and the University of Michigan and the Niagara Falls and expressed their plans to return again soon.

Emergency message system established

EAST LANSING—Travelers in Michigan or those persons out of touch in camps or elsewhere can be informed of emergency messages they may get through a cooperating system arranged by the State Police with the Michigan Association of Broadcasters.

All they need to do is to have their radios turned on between 12 noon and 1 p.m. If there is an emergency at home, the affected persons will be told to call the nearest State Police post for the contents of the message.

Col. John R. Plants, State Police director, said the plan, initiated several years ago, has been updated and includes new stations covering virtually the entire state. Plants said, "We've proved the system works and we're anxious to make the service known to the public." Publicity also has been given the plan in other states for the benefit of Michigan-bound travelers.

The plan embodies a fanout of messages to other stations to fully cover the area where the affected person is believed to be.

BROADCAST TIME CANNOT be simultaneous throughout the state because of the program requirements of each station but it will be sometime during the noon hour.

Emergency messages of extreme urgency, however, generally are broadcast at any time. In addition, no messages will be broadcast or otherwise delivered if regular commercial facilities—telephone or telegram—are available to the persons concerned.

Although the plan does not entirely supplant hand delivered messages, it does facilitate contacting persons not otherwise located and reduces hours spent on hand deliveries.

MSU scientists rate state lawns

EAST LANSING — Variety "blends" are recommended for most Michigan lawns, because no single variety has all the "ideal" characteristics of attractiveness, durability, and resistance to disease and adverse weather.

"A blend of two or three improved Kentucky bluegrasses is definitely preferred to the use of a single variety," contends Dr. James Beard, MSU turfgrass researcher.

"Since all available varieties have certain weaknesses, especially in terms of disease resistance, a blending of several improved varieties will result in a better overall turf."

Beard found no great differences among six different blends that contained Merion bluegrass. Research showed that Merion, Fyking, Pennstar and Nuggett have the best general appearance throughout the season in trials comparing 66 bluegrass varieties.

For droughty, sandy soils and shaded areas, Beard recommends red fescue varieties. He said Pennlaw is generally considered to be the standard for red fescue quality, but Jamestown was equal or superior in appearance in last year's trials. Wintergreen, the new red fescue variety developed by MSU, had excellent color and quality until it and all varieties were attacked by leafspot in July.

Bentgrass varieties—which are best suited to high maintenance, closely mowed lawns or golf greens—were compared by Dr. Paul N. McCloskey Jr., (R-Calif.)

Correction

ST. JOHNS — An accident report concerning the crash of two vehicles at the corner of Walker and Swegles streets which appeared in the June 23 edition was incorrect.

Ellsworth G. Stockwell, 67, R-3 St. Johns was cited for failure to yield the right of way in a collision with Thomas F. Brandell, 22, of Lansing.

Glover named to Eckrich sales post

FT. WAYNE, IND.—The appointment of Don E. Glover, a former St. Johns resident, as Michigan Regional Sales Manager for Peter Eckrich and Sons, Inc., has been announced by Harold L. Stoner, division sales manager for the meat specialty company.

Glover will have overall responsibility for Eckrich sales activities throughout the state of Michigan. His office will be at 26135 Plymouth Road, Detroit. Other Eckrich offices in the State of Michigan are at Jackson, Saginaw, Kalamazoo and Muskegon.

Glover joined Eckrich as a salesman in the Muskegon office in 1957. He was appointed route sales supervisor in the company's Elmhurst (Chicago), Ill., sales office in 1967 and became Elmhurst district sales manager two years later.

Glover and his wife have four children. They will relocate in the Detroit area.

Burnett repeats as champ

EAST LANSING—State Police Cpl. Elwyn Burnett, of the Romeo post, has repeated as individual pistol champion in the 1971 rifle and pistol postal (co) matches conducted by the National Rifle Association.

Burnett, who placed first among 962 entries in the pistol event, scored 288 out of a possible 300, shooting 30 rounds slow fire at 50 feet. Certified targets are sent to the NRA at Washington, D.C., for scoring in this international type indoor match.

Two Grand Rapids shooters, Donald G. Pease and W. W. Davis, and a Livonia man, Frank M. Cowger, placed 21st, 24th and 30th, respectively, in the pistol event, according to the NRA bulletin on the match.

Highest ranking Michigan entry in the rifle event was T. Y. Wu, Ann Arbor, who placed fifth. Four others from the state, David A. Kondor, Milan; T. E. Banks, Ann Arbor; Gary Taylor and John J. McCloy, both of Detroit, ranked 11th, 13th, 14th and 18th, respectively. Rifle winner was George W. Hadley, Lincoln, R.I., with 580/600. Entries numbered 528.

KNEE HIGH???

Corn in Clinton County is supposed to be knee high by the Fourth of July and in most places it is. However, for John Cheeney, it's almost neck high. But then John is only 13. Rainfall in Clinton County has been good to the crops, with the exception of the northern and northwestern portion of the county where the crops are in bad need of water.

House votes to curb obscene mail

By GARRY BROWN, Congressman

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The major action in the House this week was legislation to curtail unsolicited obscene matter being sent through the mails. By a vote of 355-24, the House passed H.R. 8805 to exclude from the mails as a special category of non-mailable matter certain material offered for sale to minors, and to improve the protection of the right of privacy by defining obscene mail matter. The bill establishes two definitions of "obscene" matter—one for minors under age 17 and another for general application.

This legislation further provides for a prohibition on delivery of unsolicited potentially offensive sexual material.

In other action, by a vote of 261-118, the House tabled (and thus killed) a resolution by Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr., (R-Calif.)

directing the Secretary of State to inform the House about covert military operations in Laos.

The House also passed legislation to expand the lending authority of the U.S. Export-Import Bank from $13.5 billion to $20 billion outstanding at any one time, but refused to lift a ban on Eximbank financing of U.S. exports to Communist nations or to countries supporting nations with which we are engaged in armed conflict.

The Senate has voted to end the 1968 ban on Eximbank help for exports to Eastern Europe, and thus the bill will now go to conference to work out the differences between the two measures designed to expand U.S. exports.

Senate Action This Week: The Senate considered and voted (79-1) upon only one bill this week, S. 1828, to amend the Public Health Service Act so as to strengthen the national effort to conquer cancer by creating an independent agency, reporting directly to the President, to direct expanded federal research efforts. This compromise measure sets up the unusual arrangement of establishing an independent Conquest of Cancer agency reporting directly to the President while still being a part of the National Institutes of Health, which comes under the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The existing National Cancer Institute will be incorporated in the new cancer agency.

Next Week in the Senate: The Senate is scheduled next Wednesday to vote on whether or not to override the Presidential veto on the accelerated public works bill. Several appropriations bills are expected to be considered, as well as two health manpower bills, the International Wheat Agreement, and possible consideration of the Atomic Energy Commission authorization bill.

Next Week in the House: The House is expected to vote on a resolution to cite the Columbia Broadcasting System and its president, Dr. Frank Stanton, for contempt of Congress for failing to comply with a subpoena issued by the Subcommittee on Investigations of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee during its hearings on the news documentary, "The Selling of the Pentagon."

Also scheduled for consideration:

H.R. 8699—Administrative Assistant for the Chief Justice, H.J. Res. 3—Joint Committee on the Environment.

H.R. 9667—Department of Transportation Appropriations, FY 72.

H.R. 9020—Egg Products Inspection Act Amendment.

H.R. 9388—Atomic Energy Commission Authorization.

H.R. 9092—Pay System for Government Prevailing Rate Employees.

Strawberries need post harvest care

EAST LANSING, Mich. — If strawberry beds are to be kept another year, they need attention immediately after harvest. Michigan State University horticulturists offer the following tips for strawberry bed care.

—Remove mulch, if necessary, and cut off the leaves of the plants with a hand sickle or mower. If a mower is used, set the blades high enough to prevent injury to the plant crowns.

—Narrow the matted rows with a spade or tiller, leaving the row 10 to 12 inches wide. If the operation is started mid-summer, make the rows slightly wider.

—Thin the remaining plants six to eight inches apart.

—Cultivate to remove all weeds.

—Use a fertilizer, especially if the plants lack vigor or the berries were small. Use a complete fertilizer blend (such as 5-10-5) at the rate of 8 pounds for every 1,000 square feet. Brush fertilizer off the plant leaves and crowns with a broom.

—If it's dry and water is available, water the bed, soaking the ground to a depth of 6 or 8 inches. This after-harvest irrigation may mean the difference between a good or bad crop next year.

—On larger plantings you may wish to use commercial weed controls. Use diphenamid (Dymid or Enida) for grasses, and cloroxuron (Tenoran) for broadleaf weeds. If a problem exists with both grasses and broadleaf weeds use a combination of the two controls. Be sure to read directions and cautions before purchasing and using.

For more information on growing strawberries in Michigan write to: Michigan State University, Bulletin Office, Box 231, East Lansing, Michigan 48823, and ask for Extension Bulletin E-682, "Commercial Strawberry Culture in Michigan." Single copies are available free to Michigan residents.

Shepardsville

By Lucille Spencer

Mrs. Leonore Olson had the misfortune to take a bad fall in her home recently. She didn't break any bones but will have to stay quiet for some time.

People living in the vicinity of Friendship Park enjoyed a community picnic on July 4. There was plenty of good food, games were played by the young people and the older ones enjoyed plenty of conversation. It is hoped that this will become an annual affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Schultz were honored at the Shepardsville United Methodist Church on Sunday morning, July 4, during the worship service. Mr. and Mrs. Schultz were married on July 4, 1908. They were presented two roses from the WSCS FOR THEIR NEW HOME. Their daughter were present.

Several young people from the Shepardsville United Methodist Church were attending youth camps this past week. Sue Alderman was a camp counselor and Ellen Personious, Donna Davis, Wayne Swender, and Roger Sgulers were at the same camp for the Central District Elementary Camp. Diane Waters also attended Junior Camp at Wesley Woods.

The Board of Ministries will meet on July 19 at the church to plan a program for the future of the church.

Fertilize rhubarb for next crop

EAST LANSING, Mich. -- If you had a good crop of rhubarb this year, it's time to fertilize it to insure another good crop next year, according to Michigan State University horticulturists.

The best way to fertilize is a process called "side-dressing." Apply the fertilizer along the row 1 1/2 feet from the rhubarb crowns. Weeds can be kept down by mulching or cultivating.

Use 1 1/2 pounds of a high nitrogen fertilizer for every 100 feet of row. A good fertilizer

Fertilize rhubarb for next crop

EAST LANSING, Mich. -- If you had a good crop of rhubarb this year, it's time to fertilize it to insure another good crop next year, according to Michigan State University horticulturists.

The best way to fertilize is a process called "side-dressing." Apply the fertilizer along the row 1 1/2 feet from the rhubarb crowns. Weeds can be kept down by mulching or cultivating.

Use 1 1/2 pounds of a high nitrogen fertilizer for every 100 feet of row. A good fertilizer ratio is either 33-0-0 or 10-10-10. If the 10-10-10 is used the amount should be increased to 3 to 4 pounds per 100 feet.

After 10 to 12 years in the same spot, rhubarb roots should be divided. Dividing will help prevent thin stalks. However, dividing and transplanting should be done only in the spring.

Fertilizing now will give the rhubarb a helping hand for storing food in its roots for next winter. Fertilizing increases the chance of a good crop of rhubarb next summer.

The Clinton County Republican Party got their first total office commitment of 100 per cent contribution and membership last week from County Clerk Ernest Carter and his staff. GOP Vice Chairman Mrs. Paul Nobis presents the contributing membership cards to Carter, Lora Ripple, Jane Swanchara and Dolores Betz. Missing from the picture, but also a member, is Virgene E. Krebel. The Republicans are seeking more contributing members and if you wish to join, call Mrs. Nobis.

Kelly consulted with Charles Hackney, assistant attorney general who Kelly says also conferred with Bernard Apol, director of elections for Michigan.

"In answer to the first question, Mr. Hackney indicated that the name of Van Sickle appearing by itself with no further identification should not be counted," Kelly said.

"In answer to question number two Mr. Hackney indicated that write-ins appearing in places other than the write-in slot on voting machines should be counted; that is, if the write-in is placed in a write-in slot elsewhere on the voting machine, they should be counted."

The Board of Canvassers.

The differences in the tally gave both Crofts and Van Sickle 309 votes as certified by the Board of Canvassers.

In a statement released last week, Van Sickle had this to say about the impending draw.

"It is certainly ridiculous, to me at least, of Mr. Crofts forcing the citizens of Bath Charter Township into having their supervisor chosen by the luck of the draw.

"IN SPITE OF all the legal technicalities brought up, including poor penmanship, misspelling and lack of a first name, Mr. Crofts knows without a doubt who these people intended to vote for.

"The wishes of the voters, at least those who don't spell good, evidently mean nothing to Mr. Crofts. He intends to be your supervisor whether you want him or not."

COUNTY CLERK Carter said the decisions affected a total of 33 votes. Twenty votes with just the name "Van Sickle" were not allowed and 13 voted with the name on the wrong line were allowed by

MRS. THOMAS S. BENSON

Florence Ferris bride of Thomas Benson

LANSING — South Baptist Church was the setting for this Friday, June 18 wedding ceremony uniting in marriage Florence Jane Ferris and Thomas Sherwood Benson. Rev. Glenn Blossom performed the double ring service before an altar with two candelabras decorated with pink and white carnations.

Soloist for the service was Sylvia Rodgers and organist was Maureen Tomlinson.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ferris of R-2, Portland and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Benson of R-3, St. Johns.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and chose a floor-length gown of candlelight satin featuring a high neckline edged with re-embroidered lace scallops, long fitted sleeves with a ruffle cuff and a fitted bodice with an empire-style waistline. The entire bodice and sleeves were accented with an overlay of lace and an attached train ended in chapel-length. Her Juliet cap secured a full length mantilla veil trimmed with matching lace and she carried a bouquet of pink rosettes, white stephanotis and cymbidium orchids.

Jane Riker of Ionia was maid of honor and serving as bridesmaids were Karen Gottschalk of Ann Arbor and Maureen Simpson of Madison Heights. The attendants wore identical gowns of light blue chiffon trimmed with ivory

Best man was Gary Durov and assisting groomsmen were Gerald Selzer and James Hunsucker. Seating the guests were ushers Raymond Ferris, Douglas Albright and Russell Benson.

Immediately following the service a reception was held in Fellowship Hall of the church.

For her wedding trip to West Virginia the new Mrs. Benson chose a yellow A-line crepe dress accented with pearl buttons and white accessories for travel.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM ROZEN

Doubling ceremony unite local couple

ST. JOHNS—Baskets of white gladiolus decorated the altar of St. Joseph Catholic Church for the Saturday, June 12 wedding ceremony uniting in marriage Veronica Helen Glowacki and William Joseph Rozen. Rev. Raymond Goehring and Rev. Carl Simon performed the 2 p.m. Nuptial Mass and double ring ceremony.

James Trerweller of Portland rendered "The Lord's Prayer" and "Ave Marie" and organist was Mrs. Herman Smith of St. Johns.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Glowacki Sr. of 809 North Lansing Street, St. Johns and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Rozen of 108 South Prospect Street, St. Johns.

Thinning garden vegetables

EAST LANSING, Mich.—"Most gardeners have weeds in the garden and don't know it," says Dr. J. Lee Taylor, Michigan State University horticulturist.

Taylor explains that this results from the definition of weeds as "any plant that is out of place in your garden." In other words, any plant—crop or otherwise -- that is out of place is a weed.

Good vegetable plants can be just as bad as weeds if they cause over-crowding. Many gardeners fail to see this and the garden suffers.

Thick stands of vegetables should be thinned early, just as the plants are big enough to pull easily. Extra seedlings and regular garden weeds can be removed in one operation.

"Thinning to the right distance apart makes a good garden better," says Taylor.

A good rule of thumb to follow in planting is: Large seeds (like corn) 10-12 inches apart in rows, Small seeds (like carrots and beets) 2-3 inches apart.

For more information contact your local Cooperative Extension Office and ask for Extension Bulletin 529 - Home Vegetable Garden.

Cutting Roses

EAST LANSING—Cutting rose flowers is an important part of any total rose care program, says a Michigan State University horticulturist. Incorrect cutting not only results in poor cut flower quality, but can injure the rose bush and lower its vigor.

According to Dr. William H. Carlson, sharp tools are the most important part of cutting flowers. "By keeping your tools sharp you avoid breaking or twisting off the flowers."

Carlson recommends that flowers be left on the bushes in their first season of blooming. This lets the plant develop into a larger bush. "If flowers are cut during the first season, cut them with very short stems," he says. "Cutting long-stemmed flowers removes foliage that is essential to the plant's ability to make food. This slows growth and future flowering."

Tips on growing geraniums

EAST LANSING, Mich.-- The geranium is one of the most popular plants for flower beds, window boxes, urns and planters, according to W. H. Carlson, Michigan State University horticulturist.

He offers the following hints on growing geraniums. Planting should be done after the danger of frost has past. Rooted cuttings or potted plants should be planted so that the soil level of the plant is equal with the surrounding soil. If planted too deep the stems may rot.

"Immediately after planting, water the plants thoroughly," says Dr. Carlson. "Plant where there is an abundance of sunlight. When geraniums are planted in a shady location they will bloom poorly or not at all."

A good loam-soil is best for flower beds, not too sandy, not all clay or silt. Peat moss will help conditions in soil that is too sandy or too clayish.

In planters, urns and window boxes one part each of soil, sand and peat moss mixed thoroughly works best, says Dr. Carlson. Watering is essential to healthy geraniums, not too little or too much. Care should be taken in watering not to get water on the foliage as many diseases need free water to attack plants.

Fertilizer is much like water in that too much can kill the plant. Fertilizer of the 12-12-12 or 5-10-5 variety can be used up to 2 pounds per 100 square feet in new beds. In planters and window boxes a monthly application of a 12-12-12- or other analysis garden fertilizer can be applied at the rate of 1/4 teaspoon per plant. The more water used the more fertilizer needed. Planter and window boxes need holes in the bottom to allow drainage and to prevent salt buildup.

There are three methods that can be used to hold geraniums over the winter.

Entire plant; bare root: The plants are hung in a cool, moist area, not placed in soil or water. The temperatures should be no higher than 45 degrees with the humidity 80 degrees or higher.

Entire plant; potted: Entire plant is dug from the garden with as many roots and soil as possible. They should then be placed in a pot large enough for the roots and the top of the plant should be cut back to no more than 6 inches in height. Place the plant in a sunny window with fertilizer and water according to its needs.

Dennis Nethaway of Elsie served as best man and groomsmen were Rick Slusser of Twin Lake, David Long of Elsie, Douglas Miller and Barry Miller, brothers of the groom, of St. Johns.

Everett Reynolds of Ovid, cousin of the groom and Mark Goodrich of Lansing, cousin of the bride, served as ushers.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Slavik and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Reynolds served as hosts at a dinner and dance reception for 800 guests in the Bannister Slovak Hall.

Special guests were the bride and groom's grandparents Mrs. Martha Miller of Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rinckey of St. Johns, Rudy Minarik of Elsie, and Mr. and Mrs. Darwin Fett of Houghton Lake.

MRS. ROBERT N. DIVIETRI

Grace your yard

EAST LANSING -- Your yard may be a nice place to visit—perhaps it has a barbecue pit, a swing, aluminum lawn chairs and a basketball court—but would trees and other plants want to live there?

"Plants are vital to our comfort as well as our ecological health," says Joe Cox, extension landscape architecture specialist at Michigan State University. "And it's well worth our time and thought to consider the needs of trees, flowers and shrubs when we landscape."

Trees soak up noise, break the wind and create cool shade. They provide a home for wildlife and food for both man and animals.

Green plants also convert carbon dioxide and sunlight into oxygen and carbohydrates. This helps to reduce the "greenhouse effect" whereby excessive carbon dioxide increases the earth temperature by trapping solar radiation.

OPEN FOR BUSINESS

The new privately-owned sanitary landfill operation in Watertown township, which had received stiff opposition from local residents before the area was rezoned to allow the business, is open and ready for public use. According to a spokesman for Vector Construction Company, owner of the landfill, the fill is right on schedule and should be completed within five years. After the land is leveled and settled, a nine-hole golf course will be constructed on the site.

By MIKE PREVILLE
News Advertising Manager

The following letter we received from our oldest boy, Erik, may explain why.
July 12, 1971
Raco, Michigan

Dear Pluto, Mom and Dad, Grandma said I shouldn't write to you yet. But she and Aunt Barbie are resting. Uncle John says they're stoned. What does that mean?

We had a nice trip up. We made pretty good time. That's what the State Policeman told Grandma. When he caught us. When we got here Jojo found a baby skunk. Uncle John said when they're that small they won't do anything bad. We named him Agnes.

We went swimming Wednesday. We had a real good time. Jojo can do the dead man's float. We haven't gone again. Grandma is waiting for a blue moon.

The people at the hospital remember me from last year. It was real windy Thursday. Jojo climbed the fire tower. Then he wouldn't come down. Aunt Barbie tried to get Grandma down but the Ranger had to get all of them down.

Friday Grandma made Jojo eat outside and sleep in the tent. Aunt Barbie says we should have buried him with his clothes. She's real mad about her house. Jojo is mad, too because he had to let Agnes go.

Saturday we went to the Soo to buy groceries. Some man in a white apron asked Grandma to have Jojo wait outside. I guess we must be used to the way he smells.

Grandma bought a case of pop for us and another case of pop for her and Aunt Barbie. What's Boone Farm?

Yesterday we all went on a picnic. Jojo gave his snake to Aunt Barbie. She had a good time and wants to go again this winter. She said she would go when something freezes over. Jojo got lost.

Uncle Johns says not to worry about Jojo. Today a whole bunch of guys started looking for him and Uncle John says the way he smells nothing would bother him anyway. Grandma said she would give a hundred dollars to the guy who found him. Aunt Barbie said she would double that if they didn't.

We're going to the Soo again tomorrow. My bandages come off then.

Love, Erik

Migrant school: time for fun and learning

By TIM YOUNKMAN

ST. JOHNS—For the professional educator, the summer months usually include a break from the classroom duties of teaching and supervision. It's a time for vacations, summer jobs or college courses.

But for Michael O'Connor, Central School principal in St. Johns, the pace of the school year is continuing.

He is the director of the Migrant Workers' children school being conducted at the St. Joseph School here.

In its second year of operation, the school has received nothing but praise from O'Connor and his staff members.

"It may be hard to believe, but I haven't found too many problems with the school," O'Connor commented. "And the best thing is the growers are interested in it, too."

O'Connor indicated that in this central Michigan farm community, the traditional friction between social service agencies and the growers is not a problem. He said that several local growers have telephoned his office requesting the school to take over all of the services for the migrants.

The school has been designed this year to aid in the education of 100 children, about a 25 per cent increase from the first year of operation in 1970. "We had 77 children last year," he said. "We are expecting more than 100 by Aug. 1 this year."

O'Connor said he wasn't able to pinpoint the exact amount of migrant laborers who will be working in the county and served by the school, but he noted the state-wide average number of children attending the migrant program was about 12 per cent among the 93,000 workers and families.

He added that the program has changed since the first year.

"We have changed from using a language development team to utilizing a single consultant working full days here," he said. Last year, a team of four workers spent only several hours each week working with language problems at the center.

This year, Gary Olsen, a graduate of the University of Michigan with a master of arts degree in linguistics, was added to the staff. He divides his time between the St. Johns school and the Lake Odessa facility.

"He can see the teaching strengths and weaknesses and add to the evaluation of our teachers," O'Connor said. "This also gives us another teacher several days a week," he added.

O'Connor said another feature of this year's program is the addition of an infant day care center, which is funded by the state social service agency.

The infant center, licensed by several county and state service offices, can care for up to 20 children. Although the migrant camps will not reach capacity

When it comes to getting to know people fast, we've got to tip our hat to Tom Nemcik. Tom, who lives in rural Elsie, has acquired many friends in his four years with Clinton National Bank while working as a teller in our County Service Unit ("The Bus"). Tom has spent much time in our locations at Bath, Wacousta, Maple Rapids and Hubbardston and his constant first-hand contact with our customers has helped us greatly in evaluating future needs and desires.

Tom recently was named as an assistant cashier at the bank which is an addition to his assignment as assistant auditor and like all CNB&T employees he welcomes the extra responsibilities as further opportunities to serve our customers.

A graduate of Rodney E. Wilson High School, Tom came to Clinton National June 14, 1967 and while pursuing his banking career he has completed a computer course at Lansing Community College and several American Institute of Banking classes giving him a firm background for his present work.

Being a bachelor allows Tom some measure of freedom to pursue his hobbies of hunting and bowling and if you run into him during his leisure hours chances are good you won't have to speak first. Like all Clinton National Bank people, he's quite friendly - on and off the job.

until August, O'Connor said he believes staff members will have to make a special effort early to bring infants into the program.

"Some mothers are reluctant to bring their infants here because they don't understand the program, O'Connor said. "The staff members will visit the camps next Monday to invite the migrants to view the St. Johns facility."

The infant care program receives $5,160 from state agencies for equipment, formula, food, insurance, room rent, transportation, physical examinations, health supplies, laundry and wages.

The regular youth program received a budget of $35,000 under the federal Title I fund. The program is budgeted for three teachers, nine teacher aides, state library mobile services, instructional materials, in-service training, doctor-dental appointments, insurance and mileage. There will also be a consultant on preparation of Mexican meals.

The school will feature a number of field trips through the efforts of the communications instructor, John Arehart. Among the planned tours are the post office, a radio station, the telephone company and the Clinton County News offices.

Other field trips in the works are the fire department, sheriff or police departments, a visit to Potter Park Zoo in Lansing, Green Meadows Farm in Elsie, Clinton National Bank, airport facilities, Lansing's Arboretum, a grocery store and the Michigan State University museum. The trips are scheduled for one a week and will utilize the St. Johns Public school buses.

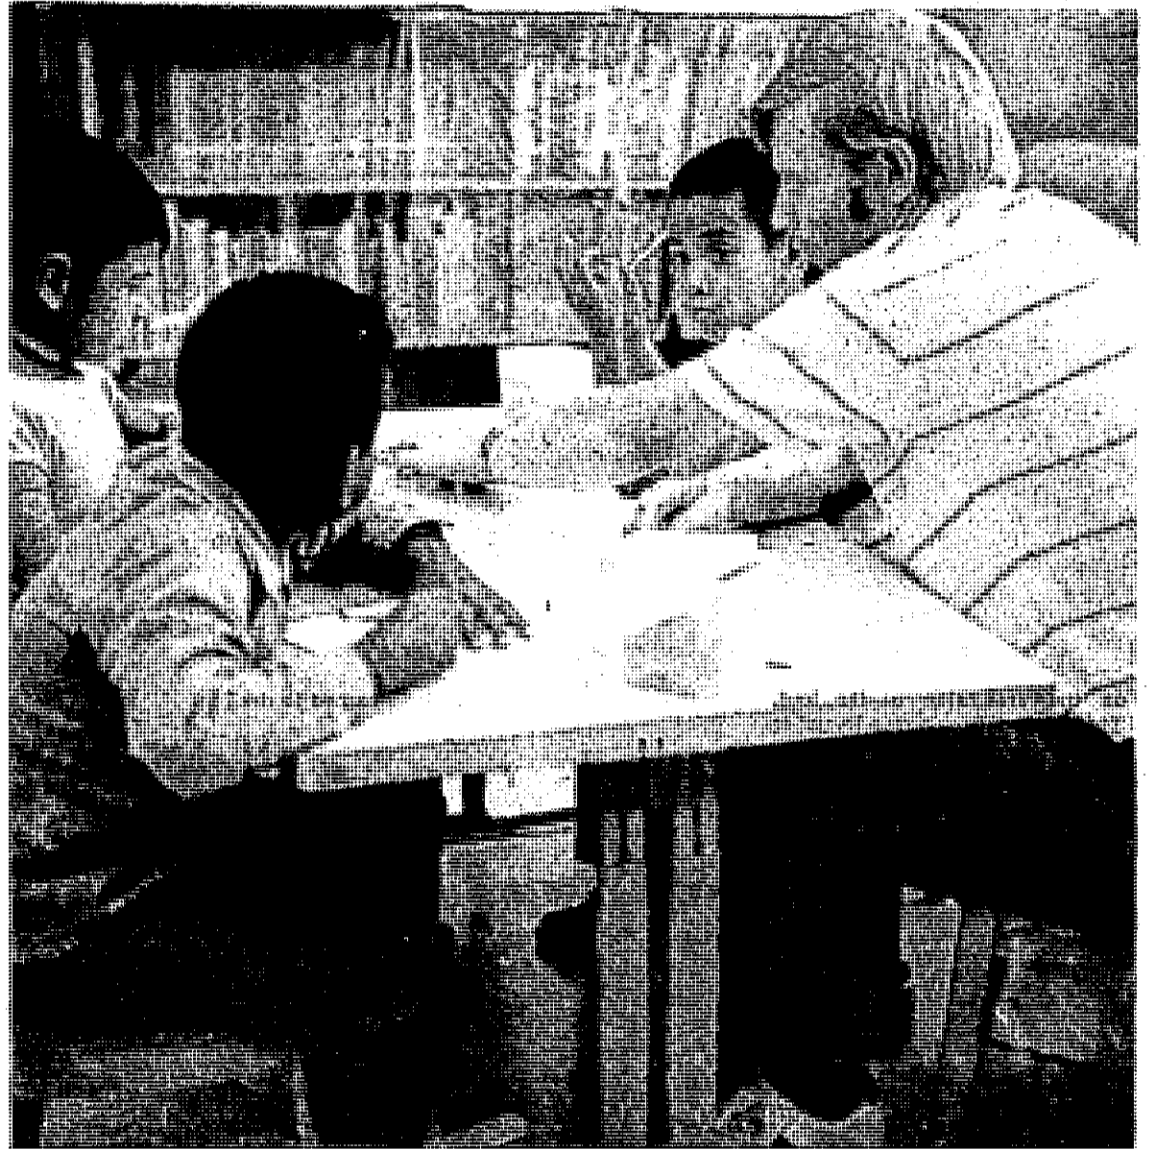

Among other plans this year will be several teen dances for the older children on July 22 and Aug. 5 at the school's social hall. "We've added this because there hasn't been much for children this age to do," O'Connor said.

Also planned is the formation of a parent-teacher organization complete with officers and formal meetings to discuss the problems of the school and the educational process. A game and recreational night has been scheduled for Aug. 12, a Mexican-style dinner on July 29 and an American-style dinner on Aug. 19. There will be weekly swimming at Memorial Pool in St. Johns and at Reed's Landing, north of the city.

Directory circulated at Ashley

ST. JOHNS—One of the most widely used publications in the United States—the telephone directory—is now being delivered to General Telephone customers in Alma, Ashley, Breckenridge, Hemlock, Ithaca, Merrill, Pompei, Riverdale, and St. Louis. William F. Graef, district manager for the company, said although there are no major format changes in the new directory, he suggests customers familiarize themselves with the location of important information within the directory. The alphabetical index and table of contents for the directory appear on the inside front cover and the list for frequently called numbers appears on the inside back cover. A localized exchange area map, printed in conjunction with the Continental U.S. Area Code Map, also appears again in the directory. "Places for you to write in emergency numbers are conveniently located on page one,"

W.F. Graef pointed out. "We want the location of these numbers readily available and easy to find." Instructions for all types of calls—station-to-station, person-to-person, conference, collect, overseas, mobile and marine—and a graphic description of both interstate and intrastate long distance rates appear in the introductory pages of the new directory. Included is an explanation of the discounts applicable for dialing intrastate long distance calls direct. An explanation of the Michigan State Law concerning threatening, obscene, nuisance or harassment calls also appears in the new directory as well as the procedure to follow in cases where this statute is violated. Graef suggested customers carefully leaf through their old directory before replacing it with the new edition. "Often important papers, letters and even money, are placed in the telephone directory for safekeeping and forgotten," he said. "Remember, also, to transfer that list of frequently called numbers from the old directory to the new one."

The directory is larger this year because of expanded listings in both the white and yellow pages, the manager said. He added that General Telephone would distribute more than 19,400 directories in the Alma area this year.

Biography of a bug

EAST LANSING, Mich. -- To keep ahead of garden insect pests, Michigan State University entomologists offer these tips on control.

Black Vine Weevil -- Sometimes called the taxus weevil, this pest feeds at night upon broadleaf evergreens such as the Japanese yew (taxus), rhododendron, azalea, mountain laurel and wisteria. The black adult beetle feeds on the lower leaves of the plant. Leaf edges will appear to have half circles cut out of them. The Black Vine Weevil lays its eggs in July. Eggs hatch into grubs in August and burrow into the soil where they feed upon roots of shrubs until cold weather sets in.

The small white grubs overwinter and begin feeding on roots again in May. They pupate and mature as adults in June.

To control the Black Vine Weevil, it is suggested that two sprays of Sevin (follow directions by manufacturer) be used. Lower portions of the plant and the surrounding soil surface should be sprayed thoroughly before the adults lay their eggs.

Mites -- The mite is nearly invisible to the naked eye, although it is one of the most destructive pests to shrubs, flowers and trees. Mites are not considered insects because they are more closely related to spiders.

Most species of the four-leg adults lay eggs. Under dry, hot conditions, mite populations increase rapidly. Heavy populations may cause leaves or deciduous trees to fall early or conifers to take on a brownish appearance. Mites can be controlled by spraying foliage thoroughly with either Tedion or Kelthane. Applications should be repeated every four days for three weeks for maximum control. Kelthane kills adults and young, while Tedion kills eggs.

Leafhoppers -- These green to dark brown insects suck the juices from a large range of plants such as apples, raspberries, trees and some herbaceous flowers. Honey Locust is especially susceptible to their attack.

During summer and late fall, the foliage attacked by these insects take on a pale color, with specks of greenish-white showing on the underside of the leaf. Their attack may cause locust to completely drop all its foliage during mid to late summer. This is the worst damage the leafhopper causes.

The insect overwinters in the egg stage and the nymphs appear when tree leaves reach full maturity. The nymphs as well as the adults suck the juices to cause damage.

A spray made up of two tablespoons of 60 per cent Sevin wettable powder per gallon of water is used to control the leafhopper. A mixture of two teaspoons of 57 per cent Malathion emulsion per gallon of water can also be used. For best results spray the foliage thoroughly.

For more information on controlling insect pests that attack Michigan trees and shrubs contact your local county cooperative Extension office and ask for Extension Bulletin 534, "Controlling Pests of Trees and Shrubs: A Guide for Home Gardeners." This bulletin can also be obtained by writing to: Michigan State University, Bulletin Office, Box 231, East Lansing, Michigan 48823. Single copies are available free to Michigan residents.

Lawn experts ready story

EAST LANSING -- Home owners who want to establish their own lawns can do so with the help of an informative bulletin written by Michigan State University lawn experts.

Titled Lawn Establishment, the extension bulletin offers do-it-yourself tips to those who want to start their own lawns from scratch. These tips come from specialists in MSU's Department of Crop and Soil Sciences.

A chapter on "Steps to Success" talks about site preparation, soil modification, fertilization and liming, seedbed preparation, seeding, sodding, and post-establishment care. Blends and mixtures of turfgrass varieties and species are discussed in the chapter on "Selecting Adapted Turfgrasses."

The good and bad points of Kentucky Bluegrass, Red Fescue, special purpose turfgrasses, temporary turfgrasses, and grasses not adapted to Michigan are featured in the closing chapter titled "Lawn Grasses."

Single copies of the bulletin (B-673) can be obtained free of charge by writing to: MSU Bulletin Office, Box 231, East Lansing, Michigan 48823.

Bullets are job hazard

LANSING -- Twenty-three per cent of the people who are injured on the job in Michigan are struck by objects, and an increasing number of these objects are bullets, according to the Michigan Department of Labor.

Ballenger praises pesticide bill

LANSING -- State Sen. William S. Ballenger (R-Ovid) Wednesday hailed Senate passage of a bill that he termed "perhaps the most progressive development in pesticide regulation ever proposed in the State of Michigan."

Approved by an overwhelming 96-0 vote in the House earlier this spring, the bill passed the Senate yesterday (July 7) by the strong margin of 28-1.

Bearing the name "The Wierzbicki-Ballenger Pesticide Control Act of 1971", the bill would:

- Require development of a list of "restricted use" pesticides which could only be used "with extreme care to prevent serious hazards to humans or the environment;"
- Provide that these chemicals only be sold through licensed dealers;
- Require dealers handling the restricted use pesticides to demonstrate knowledge of pesticide laws and responsibility in handling the pesticides;
- Provide for suspension of licenses where a violation is proven; and
- Require reporting of the kind and amount of each sale of a material whose use is restricted by the law.

Dr. Gordon Guyer, head of Michigan State University's Pesticide Research Center, says the bill will have "considerable impact." The measure has been strongly praised by environmentalists and agriculture experts alike as a "fair" bill which would tightly govern the sale and use of pesticides without eliminating them.

"There's no question but that the state ought to get a lot tougher than it is right now in restricting the use of economic poisons," said Ballenger. "But at the same time, we can ill afford as a society to totally eliminate use of these pesticides. I think this bill provides a just and even-handed solution to one of our most pressing ecological problems."

FLOWERS NEED A CHANGE OF SCENERY, TOO

Small flowers or few flowers may indicate overcrowding, according to R. A. Mecklenberg, Michigan State University horticulturist. Bulbs can be transplanted but should be dug up in the summer and replanted in the fall. With properly dried bulbs replanted, better blooms can be expected in the spring.

Although no specific statistics are available, gun inflicted injuries are appearing in the records with greater frequency. Included are such incidents as the cab driver who shot at a hold-up man but wounded himself in the forearm instead. However, the cabbie hit the bandit with a second shot.

A service station attendant dropped a revolver and it discharged and shot him in the toe.

A SLAUGHTER HOUSE employee shot himself in the hand when his aim was ruined by an uncooperative hog.

A number of employees are shot by gunmen in hold-ups, but the Department of Labor points out that the overall injury picture would improve if accidental shootings were decreased through proper training and supervision of employees who handle weapons.

EAST LANSING -- The following tips on first aid for cut flowers are offered by Michigan State University horticulturists.

To revive cut flowers that begin to wilt prematurely, make a slanting cut an inch or so from the base of the stem and then place the stem in very hot water for a few minutes (boiling water removed from the stove for several minutes is ideal).

After the hot water treatment, quickly plunge the stems into cold water.

"We're still in Lansing" - Allen

FROM THE STATE HOUSE
DICK ALLEN

The Detroit Free Press recently called Bill Ryan 'the second most powerful man in State Government'.

This is being proven by the fact that midway through July the Legislature is still in session, not having passed the budget supposed to go into effect July 1st.

Ryan is the Democrat's leader in the House and the Democrats hold the majority. As Speaker of the House, he holds control of floor procedures and all committee assignments. As their chosen leader, he generally controls enough of the Democrats' votes to hold complete House control.

BILL RYAN appears to be a more powerful leader than any Senate Democrat. Probably only the one Senate seat by which Democrats lack control stands between Ryan and success in his legislative programs.

But he now lacks control, albeit by an eyelash, and that is why the Legislature is still in session. Bill Ryan is tenacious and he is patient. He does not give in. He does not give up. He wants a number of things from this session and he intends to get them all.

He may succeed because the Republicans also want one item very badly. Early in the session, the Governor proposed we submit to the people a Constitutional Amendment to eliminate or nearly eliminate property taxes for school operation. If passed, we would then use income taxes and a new Value Added Tax on business to operate local schools.

THE GOVERNOR'S PROPOSAL met with immediate enthusiastic response from almost all Republican legislators and from a few Democrats. But it takes a two-thirds vote to put a Constitutional Amendment on the ballot, so we need support from Bill Ryan.

And here's what he expects to get in return.

A graduated income tax in Michigan. He wants this tied to the property tax amendment so that to vote for one, you must vote for both. Republicans have been against this for a couple of reasons. Some are philosophically opposed to a graduated income tax and have taken strong stands on it through the years.

Others of us simply fear that tying the two together will cause failure of both. Last time graduated income tax was on the ballot, it lost two to one. We feel it would badly jeopardize the passage of the property tax amendment.

SECONDLY, Ryan wants about 250 million more dollars in welfare. The Speaker has been the steady champion of this area for years and is largely responsible for the current near billion dollar outlay. He recently said publicly that our expenditures should be doubled in the next three years.

Ryan also would like about 22 million dollars in direct State aid to cities. While us outstaters generally recognize the needs of the cities, we feel our local governments are also suffering and should be cut in for a piece of the action.

Is all this too high a price to pay for property tax relief? Some of us think so. That's why we're still in Lansing two weeks after the budget deadline.

LANSING -- Department of Natural Resources wildlife officials are calling for a halt to feeding northern Michigan deer with surplus federal corn during winter emergencies, explaining that such releases of grain lead to "a senseless waste of deer, more extensively damaged winter range, and lowering of the vitality and productivity of the total deer herd."

Their recommendation, going before the Natural Resources Commission at its July 8-9 meeting at the Higgins Lake Conservation School, stresses that the DNR shares the public's concern for doing everything possible to relieve all forms of wildlife from harsh and inhumane conditions.

However, notes KNR Wildlife Chief Merrill L. "Pete" Petoskey:

"In spite of maximum efforts by the Department, coupled with outstanding public cooperation, the number of deer reached and helped by a corn feeding program is insignificant."

He points out that at least 9,000 deer and possibly as many as 15,000 whitetails were lost to starvation in the Upper Peninsula's major yarding areas last winter even though an all-out effort was made to distribute corn in that part of the state.

"Even in the northern Lower Peninsula where four times more corn was fed than in the Upper Peninsula, the direct losses and poor physical condition of the herd both demonstrate the futility of using corn," Petoskey adds.

Paradoxically, deer losses have been the highest and fawn production and survival the lowest in those areas of the northern Lower Peninsula where the most corn was fed to the animals.

Another serious drawback of the artificial feeding program is that hungry northern deer are frequently killed from eating corn. The animals are often victimized when the abrupt shift from natural forage to corn causes fatal digestive upsets, reports Petoskey.

THIS PROBLEM generally hits older and larger deer the hardest because these animals out-complete with younger whitetails for most of the corn which is put out. Ironically, these same older deer usually have the best chance of surviving without artificial feedings because they usually have greater body energy reserves.

Petoskey reports that a number of corn-killed deer were found in the Escanaba and Newberry districts last winter, and he is convinced that "many more deer" died from eating corn but were not discovered by field men.

The DNR's Wildlife Chief says it is more than a coincidence that high deer losses have resulted directly or indirectly from malnutrition when and where corn feedings have been carried out. That toll ran heavy in the corn-feeding winters of 1962, 1965, 1968, and 1971.

Petoskey, reflecting further on the poor returns of last winter's maximum corn-feeding effort above the Straits, says it is fairly certain that upwards of 75 percent of the Upper Peninsula's newborn fawns have already died this spring because of carrying them suffered from malnutrition.

Another point which disturbs DNR wildlife men is the fact that artificial corn feedings amply damage to the deer range by concentrating the animals in smaller areas than normal. Deer then severely overbrowsed most of the plants in those areas.

"When deer harvests are too conservative, the animals that should have been taken by hunters place excessive browsing pressure on their range and it's pure folly to think that corn feedings will keep deer from making an increased drain on their natural food supplies," explains Petoskey.

He observes that it cost the DNR's Wildlife, Forest Fire, and Law programs nearly $100,000 to carry the logistical load for last winter's distribution of 105,000 bushels of corn. The cost figure nearly equals the DNR's total current budget for deer habitat management.

PETOSKEY AND other DNR officials agree that the manpower and money tied up in that effort could have been better used for more effective programs to help deer, such as generating timber cuttings and plowing roads to strategically located logging sites.

The DNR's Wildlife Chief reports that timber cuttings and other range improvements, combined with an adequate annual take of deer by hunters, are the bonafide management approaches to healthy deer populations and high sustained harvests.

The DNR's recommendation coming before the Commission next week lists these other disadvantages of emergency corn feedings for deer:

--Artificial feeding often concentrates deer near highways where they are more vulnerable to automobile collisions, poachers, and dogs.

--Trails made into deer concentration areas by persons distributing corn are frequently used by deer-running dogs which created a serious problem among whitetails in some parts of northern Michigan last winter.

--Those deer most in need of being fed--fawns--are usually kept away from supplies of artificial food by larger animals.

APPROXIMATELY 1.1 million coho salmon fingerlings were lost this week when a pump delivering fresh water into their tanks broke down at the Department of Natural Resources' Platte River Fish Hatchery near Honor.

The young fish, measuring about 3 inches, represented about one-quarter of the coho being raised by the DNR for planting in Great Lakes waters next spring.

DNR hatchery operations specialist John Robertson reports that their loss will be offset by releasing an additional 1 million steelhead and brown trout next spring from the surplus of those fish now on hand at the hatchery.

He points out that about 900,000 coho fingerlings being raised in outside raceways at the hatchery escaped the mortality. Also unaffected by the pump's failure were about 700,000 young brown trout and some 2.3 million steelhead from which the DNR will boost its output for 1972 plantings.

Another 2.2 million coho fingerlings are being grown for next spring's releases at the DNR's Wolverine rearing station.

This week's coho loss occurred in three inside tanks at the Platte River Hatchery, which the problem pump fed with fresh water from Brundage Creek.

An electrical engineer is investigating the reason for the pump's failure which cut off that flow of water and led to the oxygen depletion that killed the fish.

DNR fisheries specialists who rushed to the scene of the accident this week suspect that the pump's stoppage was caused by an overload which might have been brought on by intense heat.

Among those immediately making a thorough review of the problem at the hatchery and looking into ways of preventing its recurrence were DNR Fisheries Chief Wayne Tody; Troy Yoder, DNR regional manager for the northern Lower Peninsula; John MacGregor, the Department's regional fisheries biologist for that area; Robertson; and Jack Hammond, supervisor of hatchery management for the DNR.

At this point, no decision has been reached as to how the DNR will adjust next spring's coho planting totals for various areas of the Great Lakes to absorb the loss of young salmon.

MICHIGAN FISHERIES recently contracted to harvest an estimated 2 million pounds of surplus salmon this fall at the Department of Natural Resources' capture weirs on the Platte and Little Manistee rivers.

The firm, offering to pay 6.7 cents a pound for the coho and chinook it will process, was signed to handle the operation by the Purchasing Division for the Michigan Department of Administration.

Its winning bid, highest of 4 submitted, will bring the State about $130,000 if the company's harvest reaches the projected poundage total.

Of that total, Michigan Fisheries, Inc., has been contracted to take about 1.5 million pounds of surplus coho and 500,000 pounds of excess chinook for commercial marketing this fall.

The firm's contract also calls for it to handle and process about 30,000 coho and chinook for free distribution to Michigan's licensed salmon fishermen this fall. Those fish, to be dressed out and iced, will be given away to licensed anglers at the DNR's Platte River harvest weir near Honor and at the recreational harbor facility in Manistee.

Distribution of salmon at those two pick-up points will be made on weekends, starting in late September and running through October.

Contrary to a current rumor, there is no system in Michigan for making state park camping reservations through the Department of Natural Resources.

With a large number of requests for such reservations now flowing into their Lansing office, DNR Parks Division officials report that campsite vacancies at state parks are available only on a "first-come, first-served" basis.

They term that system as the fairest one for all campers who seek sites at state parks.

DNR parks officials say it would create a nightmare in paperwork and significantly jump their division's clerical costs to set up an operation for handling camping reservations. More importantly, they fear such a system would lead to a waste of state park camping space.

Intervention

by Congressman Garry Brown

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Action in both Houses of Congress last week focused on the question of congressional intervention to terminate U.S. involvement in South Vietnam.

Action in the House:
Nedzi-Whalen Amendment: The amendment to the Military Procurement Act for Fiscal 1972 was widely thought to set a date, December 31, 1971, for ending the war. But, as Congressman Whalen made clear on the House floor during the debate, "... there has been a misunderstanding to the effect that the passage of this amendment would remove troops from South Vietnam after Dec. 31 of this year. This it will not do."

Congressman Paul McCloskey (R., Calif.) moved to have Congress adjourn until the Executive Branch had fully informed the Congress of its knowledge of the facts surrounding our initial involvement, making reference to the series of articles in the New York Times allegedly based on a secret Pentagon report.

The articles have been widely reported to document government deception of the American people during the years of this nation's initial involvement in Vietnam. This motion was defeated by 30-368.

The House then defeated the Nedzi-Whalen amendment by a vote of 254-158, most members apparently thinking that regardless of the issue of deception during the Johnson Administration, there is substantial evidence that President Nixon is keeping his pledge to end the war and that it would be irresponsible for the Congress itself to accept an amendment which itself was a deception, raising hopes of a final end to the war sooner than is realistically expected.

Public Works and Education: The House gave its final approval to the Conference Report on the bill to provide for reactivation of the Public Works Acceleration Act to aid areas of substantial and persistent unemployment. The bill now goes to the President for signature, but there is speculation that he may veto it as highly inflationary.

In other action, the House rejected the Senate-passed version of the Office of Education Appropriations bill for Fiscal 1972 and sent the bill to Conference to iron out the differences between the House and Senate versions.

Action in the Senate:
McGovern-Hatfield Amendment: The amendment to the Selective Service Act would have required withdrawal of all U.S. military forces from Vietnam by December 31, 1971. It was defeated, 55-42.

A substitute amendment providing a June 1, 1972, deadline for withdrawal on the condition that all U.S. POW's had been returned by April 1, 1972, also was rejected, 52-44.

Scheduled Action in the House This Week:

HR 1 - The Social Security Amendments for 1971: In addition to providing for increased benefits for Social Security recipients, this bill also includes the Family Assistance Act.

The bill is being brought to the floor under a "modified rule" to allow a separate vote on the Family Assistance Act.

Monday Consent Calendar (requires 2/3 vote for approval)
—American Revolution Bicentennial Commission Amendments

—State and Local Law Enforcement in National Forests

—Extension of Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for Spanish Speaking People

—Natural Gas Pipeline Safety Act Amendments

—Child Nutrition Act Amendments

—Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Act Extension.

Also to be considered:

Agriculture and Environmental Protection Agency Appropriations, Fiscal 1972, Treasury and Postal Service Appropriations, Fiscal 1972

Rep. Douglas Trezise
87th District

Lost round

House Republicans last week lost the first round in the continuing battle over placing property tax relief before the voters of the state; but, I predict this is just the beginning.

As you recall, Governor Milliken proposed that Michigan's constitution be amended to remove all property taxes as a basis for support of our local school systems. Accomplishing this requires that a resolution outlining the proposal pass both houses of the Legislature by a two-thirds vote and then be approved by the voters in a statewide election.

Resolutions to accomplish this have been introduced in both houses of the Legislature but have not been acted on. An effort was made in the Senate to get action on the floor; but, when it failed, the resolution was sent back to committee. In the House, the proposal has never been considered by the committee.

IT HAS BEEN the position of the Republicans in the House of Representatives that this property tax reform proposal is equal in importance to the adoption of a new budget. We have tried to insist—from our minority position—that this question be approved and be ready for the ballot at a special election this fall before we will vote for any appropriation or tax bill which would raise the level of spending for the coming year beyond the expected level of revenue from the present tax structure.

So, last week, in an effort to bring this issue to a head, a move to bring the subject of school property tax reform to the floor of the House was initiated by several Republican representatives. Throughout this discussion, it should be remembered that a group of leaders of both parties from both houses have been meeting daily to try and work out taxing and spending programs in this budgeting process. To an extent, these negotiations have been productive since they have brought out some areas of agreement and others of disagreement.

So, I feel it is the time for legislation—not negotiation. This question should now be put before the House to be handled through the legislative process. While we failed in our attempt on a party line vote—to accomplish this, we did serve notice that the Republicans are united in their desire to get the question of property tax reform settled before being asked to vote for an increase of any amount in income taxes.

In the coming days, you will hear more about this question. You will probably read that we are "obstructionists", standing in the way of progress in approving the 1971-72 budget.

accomplished.

THE SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE, Representative William Ryan of Detroit is determined to tie a constitutional provision which will permit a graduated income tax directly to the school property tax proposal. On our side, we are willing to submit the graduated income tax proposal to the voters but do not feel the two questions should be phased as one proposition so that both would either pass or fall together.

So, I feel it is the time for legislation—not negotiation. This question should now be put before the House to be handled through the legislative process.

While we failed in our attempt on a party line vote—to accomplish this, we did serve notice that the Republicans are united in their desire to get the question of property tax reform settled before being asked to vote for an increase of any amount in income taxes.

In the coming days, you will hear more about this question. You will probably read that we are "obstructionists", standing in the way of progress in approving the 1971-72 budget.

BUT, as you read this, bear two things in mind:

1) It is not the minority party which has controlled the timing of the budget and tax bills which finally put them before us two weeks after the start of the new fiscal year, and,
2) What some may call "obstructionism" is just a determination to get the question of property tax reform before the voters of this state, and to get it there as soon as possible. I believe the people of the 87th District subscribe completely to this philosophy and I intend to support it wholeheartedly.

Meeting the demands

An encouraging event took place last week, but it was preceded by long study and planning. Consumers Power Company broke ground Thursday at Marysville, near Port Huron, for the world's largest natural gas reforming plant.

Louisiana, the power company hopes to be able to lift most of the restrictions it asked for and received last year from the Public Service Commission when the gas supply became very critical as it related to adding new commercial and industrial customers.

Poor forecasting

It comes as nothing new that the teacher market is flooded. Our institutions of higher learning have produced far more graduates with teaching ambitions than the present demand can consume.

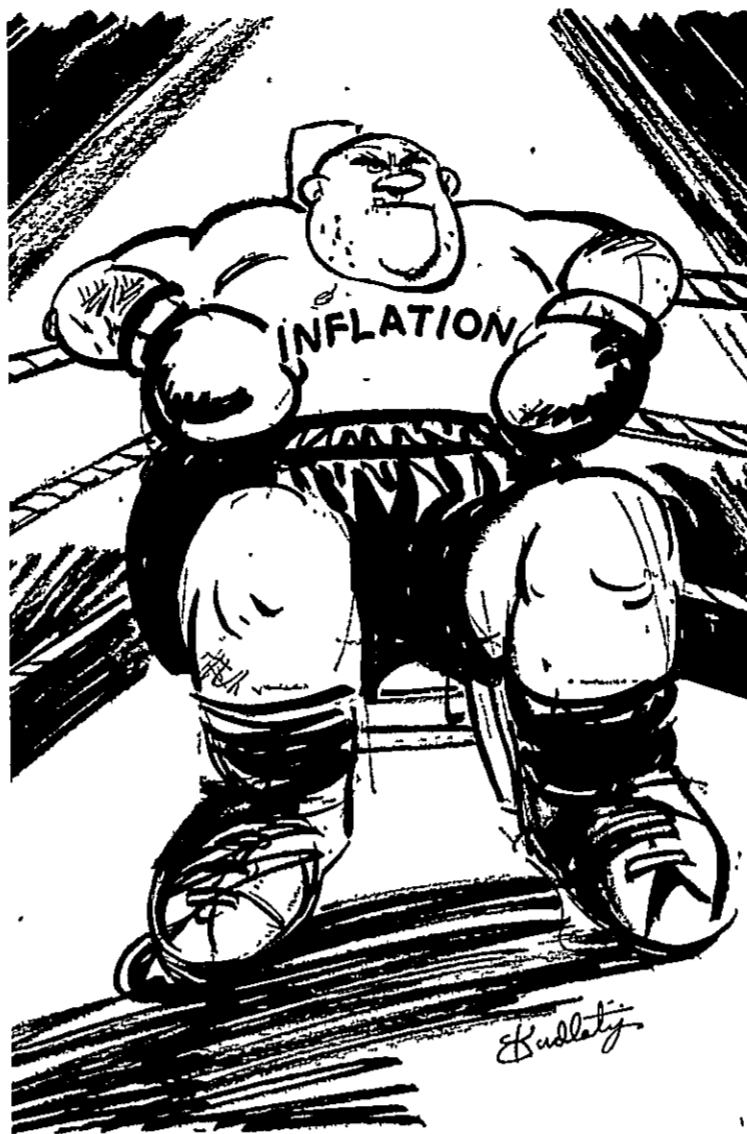

It seems that with all our modern technology and access to factual data, our present poor situation would never have been allowed to occur. What a waste of time and talent. We would hope that the employment picture for trained persons will soon become illuminated by job opportunities.

Dedicated to service

The ownership of this newspaper has announced this week some major steps in its sincere endeavor to provide this area with a better, more interesting weekly newspaper.

Too often a newspaper can forget its primary functions for being in business, and included in this area dedication would be service to its community, to its readers, and to its customers.

'IF IT FITZ...' How to keep a clean kitchen

By JIM FITZGERALD

And then I wrote... It was freezing out the other day, but my wife cooked steaks on the outdoor grill and then rushed them inside to eat. "I don't want to get the oven dirty," she explained.

I ate the steak with my fingers, so as to not dirty silverware, and that night I suggested we sleep on the floor, so as to not mess up the bed. And I was thinking how neat the hospital would be if the patients would just go somewhere else to be sick.

A week later I noticed something new spinning slowly on the outdoor barbecue spit (and isn't "spit" a lovely word for a cooking utensil?). It was a sort of wire cage, cylinder shaped.

"I bought that at Yankee's," my wife explained proudly. "You just fill it with chicken thighs and legs and then attach it to the spit and it revolves slowly over the fire. It's better than splitting a whole chicken."

"Gee," I said. A few minutes later I heard a terrible scream, followed by sobs. The door on the revolving cage had flipped open and all the thighs and legs fell into the charcoal fire.

"As a chicken cooker," I told my distraught wife, "you do not remind me of that white bearded Kentucky colonel who always smiles as he produces delicious chicken on TV. But this is probably because you shaved this morning."

"I will wash this chicken and then put it back in the cage," she said. "No one will taste the difference."

"Certainly," I said. "And scrub it good. There is nothing I like better than Rinsco chicken with a charcoal flavor. It's like taking a bath in the fireplace."

"You are a riot," my wife said. "It doesn't even occur to you that this is your fault. In other families, the husbands do the outdoor cooking. If you had been out here watching, the chicken wouldn't have fallen in the fire."

"That's right, Daddy," said 2 little brats. "Other dads do the outdoor cooking. How come you don't?"

"IT'S BECAUSE I'm afraid of the wild outdoors," I explained. "I might get attacked by a bear or something. Gee, the last time I went alone to our outdoor cooking spot I almost got lost. I had to follow the extension cord back home."

Which brings us to the incredible part of this open air cooking mania which is swiftly burying our nation in charcoal dust. I wouldn't mind if all these nuts wanted me to go to an old-fashioned picnic in the woods. I would simply refuse, explaining I have still not recovered from World War 2 battle fatigue. I got my fatigue while battling to keep the peas out of my peaches, and the rain out of my coffee.

mess sergeant who splotted a whopping spoonful of creamed crud into my pocket containing a scented letter from my girl friend.

Any patriotic American must understand my refusal to risk opening old wounds with a rusty can opener, around a campfire, swatting bumblebees, sitting on burrs, 80 feet downwind from a newly dug john.

During blizzards, some families cook in the living room fireplace. The important thing is to NOT cook in the kitchen. A sane man might well wonder why an electric civilization is returning to the open flame of the cave men. The most often heard reason is that charcoaled food tastes better. This is hokey. Most outdoor-cooked meat is either burned or raw. The only way you can stomach it is to drench it in sauce made from hot peppers and brimstone. And the only way you can sleep that night is in an Alka Seltzer bottle.

The one big reason for the popularity of outdoor cooking is the cunning of the female. Mabel wants to move the mess out of her kitchen and into the yard, so she doesn't have to "get the oven dirty." With the aid of Sears Roebuck and national advertising, she has convinced her husband there is something rugged about preparing meals in the fresh air.

It feeds his ego to don a corny apron and play Mrs. Tarzan of the patio. He thinks it's man's work, so the big clown does it. It is really Mabel's work but she has escaped it by moving the pots and pans outside.

Mabel is no dope. But her husband is.

Backward and downward.

From the State House

Small progress

By REP. DICK ALLEN

Last week I wrote pessimistically about school tax "reform" and large scale property tax relief.

This week I'd like to give a little more encouragement to those who are particularly concerned about property taxes. We WILL continue to make small scale, gradual gains in the fight against the injustices of property tax.

Some will say, "What do you mean, continue? No gains have been made up to now."

Not true. While I certainly agree that in certain cases the situation is near desperate, we should honestly recognize the following recent small gains.

Farmers no longer pay personal property taxes on such things as machinery, fertilizer, and livestock. Those over sixty-five have an exemption on the first $2500 of equalized valuation.

There is a credit towards the State Income Tax for those paying property taxes.

Local governments share in the State Income Tax, reducing their reliance on local property tax. The following figures for last year disbursements show the importance of this feature. Local governments in Grafton County, $251,263; Clinton, $340,790; Midland, $426,684.

Still all these are small gains and we need more. The exemption for personal property should be extended to other groups, especially retail merchants. Or it should be eliminated. Homestead tax exemption should be increased.

Property tax credits, reduced last year, should be fully reinstated, and in future years, extended.

The local units' share of the State Income Tax should be maintained at the original 17 per cent. If we increase the State rate, they should share in the increase.

These last areas involve my most important legislative objectives of the year.

It appears the income tax proposal will come to the floor without reinstatement of property tax credits and without extending the 17 per cent share to local governments.

I hope to lead a floor fight to correct these injustices. We should continue these programs as originally promised. Honesty in government, I call it.

It will be a difficult fight. We are talking about changes in a tax bill that would shift about $150 million.

So far I feel my most important legislative accomplishment was to sponsor an amendment to the 1970 bill that saved $8 million to our State's property taxpayers.

Even with success I would have to admit that $150 million is less than 10 per cent of the State's property tax. Probably no individuals will much notice the effect. It would be small progress. But it would make me doggone proud!

GRASSROOTS OPINION

COMMENTS FROM OTHER PAPERS

According to "The Montana Citizen", a publication of the Montana Chamber of Commerce, "The cost of living continues to climb upward for most Americans, and the retailer is too often wrongly accused as villain. Actually, he is the least to blame, for no retailer forces the kinds of purchases that are pushing total expenditures skyward. Does the grocer insist that food baskets be filled with household items such as dustpans, garden fertilizer, and plastic dishes... cigarettes, beer, paper plates and cups, bubble bath and magazines... Certainly, increased labor costs, taxes and insurance have all contributed to the higher prices we pay for necessities. However, the biggest cause of great expenditures probably comes from our voluntary decisions to buy objects and services we could actually do without. The Main Street businessman merely makes those goods and services available which his customers demand. If he doesn't, his competitor will—and therein lies the foundation of our free enterprise system."

Pursuit of happiness

By REV. HUGH BANNINGA

Continuing with last week's theme concerning the pursuit of happiness, let's see how the New Testament builds on the Old Testament prescription.

In John's gospel we read about Jesus washing his disciples' feet (chap. 13). When he had finished this symbolic act, He said, "Do you know what I have done to you? You call me Teacher and Lord; and you are right, for so I am. If I then, your Lord and Teacher have washed your feet, you also ought to wash one another's feet."

For I have given you an example, that you should do as I have done to you. Truly, I say to you, a servant is not greater than his master; nor is he who is sent greater than he who sent him. If you know these things, happy are you if you do them."

So the New Testament tells us that the right way to pursue happiness is to be a servant to others. If we will accept this way and do the work of a servant then we will be happy.

To coin a phrase or rather to use someone else's coined phrase, we can say that happiness is "redemptive usefulness." To put it another way this means that the way to find happiness is to lose yourself in service to others--to do something for somebody without any thought of reward.

This idea is illustrated by the man who said, "When I become restless and wish I had more real happiness in my life, I do something for somebody; something that takes time or brings inconvenience. Then I feel as Santa Claus must feel. And I get that flash of happiness."

One of the most vivid experiences I have had with this "redemptive usefulness" was at a welfare camp where my wife and I worked as counselors for two summers while I was still in school.

This was a camp for underprivileged kids who lived in the ghettos of Youngstown, Ohio, my home town. Every summer about 80 boys and girls, ranging in age from five years to 12 years would come to Christ Mission Camp. They came from neighborhoods where their only toys were the trash that littered the back alleys, and their playgrounds were the busy streets. They lived in a city where the air was polluted by the reddish smoke from the steel mills. These children lived in a constant environment of poverty, disease and broken homes. There was almost no parental care and nurture, so these boys and girls were very undisciplined.

BUT EVERY summer they came to this camp 7 miles out in the country. Naturally, we had many discipline problems with the older boys and girls, so camp life was never dull. We were chasing down someone who thought it would be nice to take a hike back into town. We were constantly refereeing individual and group fights.

Well, during the last two weeks of camp, we would have about 12 to 15 mentally retarded children come to stay. These children required constant attention to prevent their wandering off in the woods and getting lost and also to prevent their hurting themselves.

We needed extra help for these two weeks, so we assigned a mentally retarded child to each of our older discipline problems. We told them that they had the responsibility of caring for these children. They were to be a big brother or sister to their charge for the entire time they were at camp.

Well, talk about "redemptive usefulness!" For two weeks we had virtually no discipline problem at camp. Instead, we had very capable, loving and happy young people who rose to the responsibility of caring for someone else who was in need.

I'm certain that, of all the experiences those young people had or ever will have, the days of their caring for those needy children will be remembered as the happiest days of their lives. Yes, happiness came to those undisciplined young people because someone trusted them to do a job, and because in doing that job, they experienced the joy of being a servant.

Our Declaration of Independence states that we have been endowed by our Creator with certain inalienable rights, and among them are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. But please remember that the right way to pursue your happiness is not the pleasure-seeking way. The right way to happiness is to be "redemptively useful." Lose yourself in service to others without any thought of reward.

This is the symbolism of washing one another's feet. Pursue your happiness this way and I guarantee that you will experience real, lasting happiness.

Washington Reports Family assistance acts

Rep. U.S. Garry Brown
3rd. Congressional Dist.

WASHINGTON, D.C.—In Congress last week, the House passed the Social Security and Family Assistance Act amendments, and the Senate approved a two-year extension of the Selective Service Act.

Action in the House:
Social Security/Family Assistance: By a vote of 288 to 132, the House passed H.R. 1 to amend the Social Security Act to provide increased benefits and authorize a family assistance plan providing basic benefits to low-income families with children with incentives for employment.

The legislation provides that social security benefits will be automatically increased in the future commensurate with increases in the cost of living. These automatic increases would be financed through automatic adjustments in the wage base to reflect increased earning levels.

The family assistance plan would divide welfare families into two groups: those with at least one employable member and those with no employable members. The aim here is to identify those individuals who are employable and place them within the jurisdiction of the Department of Labor, so that through a variety of manpower services, training and employment, they can become self-supporting, productive members of society.

For those for whom no other work or training is available, public service jobs would be provided, 200,000 positions being planned for the first year. These jobs would seek to offer work experience and on-the-job training designed to facilitate movement into competitive employment. Work requirements would be matched by strong work incentives.

Recipients would be able to retain a portion of their benefits until their earnings reach a certain level, thus always making it more profitable to work than to accept benefits as sole support. Moreover, vastly expanded child care and employability services would enable mothers to enter training or accept employment.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare would administer the program for those families with no employable members and would provide vocational rehabilitation and other services for them.

In addition, H.R. 1 would provide state and local governments with sorely needed fiscal relief (over 1.6 billion dollars in the first year). It also sets uniform standards of eligibility, a federally financed benefit floor of $2,400 for a family of four, and uniform administrative practices throughout the nation.

The bill must now obtain Senate approval.

Action in the Senate:
Military Draft: By a vote of 72 to 16, the Senate extended for two years the military draft and provided pay increases for military personnel. Before final passage, the Senate approved an amendment declaring it U.S. policy to terminate at the earliest practicable date all U.S. military operations in Indochina and providing for the withdrawal of all such forces therefrom not later than 9 months after the date of enactment (of the legislation), subject to the release of all American prisoners of war.

Since the Senate version of the bill differs from that passed by the House, this legislation now goes to a conference committee of House and Senate members.

Both the House and the Senate will have an opportunity to vote on the compromise legislation worked out by the conference committee.

Scheduled Action in the House This Week:

A number of appropriations bills are up before the House this week, the vote on appropriations for the Veterans Administration for fiscal year 1972 being of particular interest to third district vets.

View from the 30th

No-fault insurance

By SEN. WILLIAM S. BALLENGER

This week let's take a look at one of the most fascinating, controversial, and widely misunderstood ideas to pop up in Lansing in years--the concept of "no fault" auto insurance.

First, let's sketch in the background: During the last 30 years, auto registrations in the United States have increased 300 percent while the population increased 60 percent.

The average distance a car is driven yearly has risen from 9,000 to 12,500 miles and is still rising. Doubling the number of cars on the road doesn't double the number of collisions; it quadruples them. Increasing the number of miles driven does the same thing.

While the number of cars was rising 40 per cent in the last 10 years in Michigan, accidents rose 82 per cent, fatalities 69 per cent and injuries 162 per cent. And while the number of accidents rose 62 per cent since 1960, the cost of repairing cars involved in those accidents rose 145 per cent. The average property damage accident cost rose from $181 to $332 in the last 10 years.

Because of the greater number of accidents and the higher cost of fixing fragile cars, the portion of the claim dollar which goes to repairing cars has risen to 70 per cent. Meanwhile, the cost of "repairing" people hurt in accidents is rising at the rate of 15 per cent a year.

Hospital room rates have risen 150 per cent since 1960. Exclusive of medicine and doctor bills, the average stay in a semi-private room in a Detroit area hospital is now $55 a day.

Another important factor in the rising cost of insurance is the trend of higher liability awards by juries in recent years. The dollar amount of jury verdicts is rising by 13.5 per cent a year. Often accident victims, even though at fault themselves, are given big awards.

To all this, a lot of people are asking: What's the answer? Some say "no-fault" insurance, which is now before legislative committees in at least 10 different bill forms.

But is "no-fault" insurance the complete answer? From testimony already presented to legislative committees, there are indications that it may be a partial answer but, if adopted, it may prove disappointing to some people.

PROponents of "no-fault" insurance contend it would: Lower the cost of insurance by reducing certain benefits in some situations; provide payments for all accident victims; unclog some of the jammed court dockets in big cities; eliminate much of the present system in which lawyers for accident victims, working for contingency fees, can collect from one-third to one-half of a settlement; forbid accident victims from suing for "pain and suffering" except in cases involving enormous and hideous injuries; reduce overhead for insurance companies that now is considered by many to be excessive; and reduce the number of "dissatisfied" insured drivers, now estimated at more than 26 million persons on the basis of findings in the Department of Transportation study in Washington, D.C.

As is invariably the case with any proposed major change in the status quo, there are serious objections to "no-fault" insurance. Opponents contend that: There is no assurance that premiums will decrease under the proposed "no-fault" plan; there is no provision for payment of property damage--only personal injuries; motorists will still have to take their chances with the insurance companies or go to court to get property damage settlements; the plan won't work unless all drivers have insurance.

If all bad drivers must be insured, all other drivers will help pay through higher premiums; under the "no-fault" plan, wealthy persons may be able to collect more for "pain and suffering" while others would receive less because the wealthy person's medical bills usually are higher; the average driver will have to carry more insurance, instead of less, because he will have to obtain additional coverage for out-of-state accidents; every driver would have to carry collision insurance and other forms of special insurance, at an additional cost; and the reckless driver would be relieved of penalties for his own driving because of the assurance that he will always have insurance coverage no matter how many accidents he has.

Essentially, under "no-fault" insurance, each driver in an accident and his passengers are protected by the insurance company covering the car in which riders were injured.

The company insuring Car A takes care of medical expenses of those riding in that car and the company insuring Car B does the same for those riding in Car B.

This is supposed to eliminate high costs of investigating the cause of accidents and the high cost of court litigation.

Theoretically, this would leave more money for persons insured or savings for the policy holder in reduced premium costs.

Probably the biggest objection to "no-fault" plans submitted thus far is that they provide only for taking care of personal injuries and resulting medical expenses. They do not provide for property damage costs. Most motorists are concerned about the cost of having their cars repaired after collisions.

But the "no-fault" plans ignore this part of accidents. Testimony so far has shown that, if the "no-fault" plan is adopted, motorists will still have to carry property damage insurance and go through the usual procedure to be reimbursed for their costs.

There are indications, too, that Michigan residents would have to carry normal liability insurance for personal injuries that result when driving in other states or other countries. There is a move in Washington to make "no-fault" insurance a national law. But, until it is, there will be a need for duplicate insurance to cover accidents that happen outside of Michigan.

Backers of "no-fault" insurance are watching to see how it works out in trailblazing Massachusetts, where it went into effect on January 1 of this year. Reports so far are favorable, with personal injury claims dropping drastically.

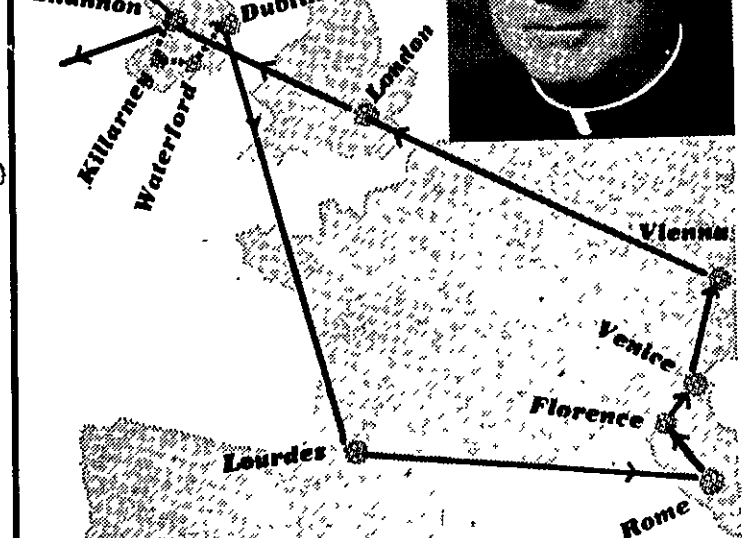

The Wall Street Journal recently reported that, after 17 months of operation, "no-fault" insurance has been a big success in Puerto Rico.

The "no-fault" bills are still in committee in both houses of the Michigan Legislature and further hearings are scheduled so it will be some time before action, if any, will be taken.

In the meantime, careful study will be given to the proposals to be certain that they'll do what they're touted to do.
