23 million dollar project

Planners suggest staged re-zoning

ST. JOHNS--The Clinton County Planning Commission has recommended to the Zoning Commission and County Commissioners that staged re-zoning would be the best course of action for a 23 million dollar development project proposed on a 185 acre tract of land near DeWitt High School.

Gordon Long of Lansing, the developer of Hickory Hill Village, has requested the land be re-zoned from agricultural to multiple family residential, medium density residential and local business. He also requests a special use permit in sections of the multiple family residential district to allow the construction of group housing units.

The development is expected to cost 23 million dollars and span a five year construction plan. According to initial figures by the developer, 833 living units would be built and this will add about 2,250 people to the township of DeWitt. The 1970 census listed DeWitt Township's population at 9,946. This population influx is also expected to add another 272 youngsters to the DeWitt Schools.

Details of the development which accompany the re-zoning request reveals a plan to create several buffer areas of housing. On the outside perimeter, 109 single family dwellings would be constructed on 29 acres. Next 12 acres would be utilized for 31 duplex units with a total of 62 living units. Another 92 acres is being planned as the site for two group housing lots which would contain 588 living units. A final nine acres in the development's center has been requested to be re-zoned for local business. The remaining land of 26 acres would be utilized for public roads.

The local building code allows 7.68 living units per acre and according to officials of the proposed Hickory Hill Village their development has 4.77 living units per acre for the overall complex.

The DeWitt Planning Commission held a public hearing on the proposed development earlier this month and recommended approval of the re-zoning requests by a 6-0 vote. According to Jack Kzeski, Jr., a member of both the township and county planning commissions, "we polled about 50 people at the public hearing and most were neutral on it." He added this seemed favorable to the development because "most people came there against it."

Kzeski told the Clinton County Planning Commission last week the Hickory Hill Village Development "would add 40 to 45 per cent to DeWitt Township's assessed property valuation". He would significantly help the township pay for a new waste water treatment plant which presently is operated at only 20 per cent capacity.

In reference to the development's extensive engineering plans presented at the hearing, Kzeski said "a great deal of time, money and effort has already been spent and we were impressed."

Also appearing before the County Planning Commission was Mack Canterbury of Tri-County Regional Planning which had further recommendations on how the development's request can best comply with future land use patterns. Canterbury reported after an analysis of the request and locational factors the Tri-County Regional Planning Commission makes the following recommendations:

--A staged zoning plan be established to allow proper zoning as development progresses.

--Single-family development be allowed in a single-family district.

--Commercial and residential zoning be considered as separate requests.

--The Clinton County Land Use Plan be amended to indicate the desirability of the proposed use prior to the granting of appropriate zoning.

On a motion by Kzeski with support by Almond Cressman, the Clinton County Planning Commission recommended the re-zoning requests by Long be handled in accordance with the Tri-County suggestions.

Long's real test comes July 25 during a public hearing before the Clinton County Zoning Commission. This agency will consider the Planning Commission's recommendations along with Long's presentation and any other comments from the public. They then make a decision which goes to the County Commissioners for final approval.

Murder suspects return to Circuit Court Monday

ST. JOHNS--Two suspects being held in Clinton County Jail on charges stemming from the May 22 shooting death of a Round Lake store owner will appear before Circuit Court Judge Leo Corkin Monday at 1:30 p.m. for arraignment.

An earlier Circuit Court arraignment for the pair, 39-year-old Richard David Collins of Lansing and 30-year-old William Franklin Graves, was adjourned after defense attorneys requested more time to study transcripts of the preliminary examinations. Four separate warrants are issued against each man on charges of first degree murder, assault with intent to murder and two counts of armed robbery.

The pair are charged in connection with the shooting death of 62-year-old Ivan Hempstead and his 53-year-old wife, Marjorie. Hempstead died in a Lansing Hospital several hours after being shot in the head during a holdup at his gift shop on Round Lake west of Laingsburg. His wife was also wounded in the incident but has recovered.

Circuit Court Judge Corkin is expected to ask the suspects for a plea on the charges Monday and a trial date will be set. St. Johns attorney James Moore has been appointed by the court to defend Graves and Fred Lewis, also of St. Johns, is the court-appointed counsel for Collins.

Commission studies the county's future

ST. JOHNS--Rapid population growth and the problems it creates in future years is a major concern of seven men who comprise the Clinton County Planning Commission.

Since the commission's inception during 1969, the group has held meetings twice monthly to discuss such areas as land use and future public service needs based on population growth in Clinton County.

Sidewalk sale set

ST. JOHNS--The retail committee of the St. Johns Area Chamber of Commerce will stage its annual "Sidewalk Days" sale Thursday and Friday July 27 and 28 with Saturday July 29 set aside as a rain-date.

Heading up this year's sale are retail committee board members Norb Rehmman, Barry Dean and Max Field.

As in past years, St. Johns merchants will display their wares and special sales merchandise along the sidewalks and if past events are any type of barometer, a number of surprises may be in the offing for shoppers visiting St. Johns during those days.

According to Rehmman, store hours for the two day event will be the usual times: 9:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Thursday, and 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday.

In addition to the Chamber sponsored activities, a number of groups from throughout the community are planning sales of baked goods and odds and ends in the downtown area.

READERS:

Does the COUNTY NEWS strike you as being different some how this week?

Well, it is. The type face is brighter, blacker and larger. It is set by an electronic "brain" called a photocomposer which has a built-in memory bank programmed to automatically hyphenate words at the end of lines. In the past, this was done manually by our typists Eythel Spitzer and Kathy Koenigsnecht. Now all the girls do is punch perforated tape which is then run through one end of the new machine and justified columns of copy come out the other end.

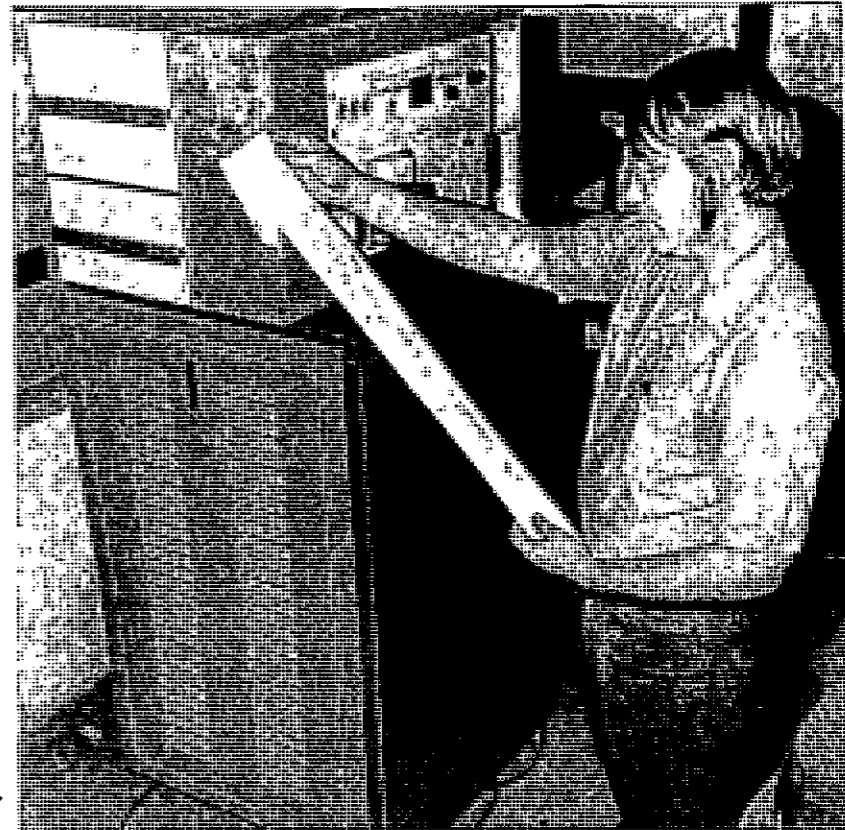

Another different feature of the new process is that the machine produces photographed copy instead of the former strike-on ribbon method of reproduction.

We're impressed with this progressive step toward presenting COUNTY NEWS readers with a better product and trust the change meets your approval.

OLD TYPE

I'm the old type used in the COUNTY NEWS but you'll not see my face much anymore. I've been replaced by a more attractive and brighter "youngster" on the scene which comes from a new machine called a photocomposer.

It wasn't too many years ago I was the biggest thing to hit the newspaper scene since the offset process. Now I've been shelved in the name of progress.

Ditmer answers Powell's charges

ST. JOHNS--Robert Ditmer, a St. Johns radio station owner and Clinton County Commissioner, denies any intentional move to represent himself as the incumbent in his billboard campaign to gain the Republican nomination for 88th District State Representative.

Incumbent State Representative Stanley M. Powell of Ionia, leveled the charges at Ditmer Friday in a formal complaint filed with the Fair Campaign Practices Commission.

In his letter to the commission, Powell said "Ditmer identifies himself as representative and does not use such language as 'elect' or 'vote for.'" The 73-year-old veteran legislator told the commission "the phraseology which he employs definitely conveys the unmistakable impression that he is currently the incumbent representative."

In answering the charges, Ditmer said the four billboards in question were ordered and erected by a Lansing outdoor advertising firm which left out the word "for." He reports the firm has been contacted and will make the correction.

"With the track record of the legislature, I would think it more advantageous to me to make sure I'm not thought of as an incumbent," added Ditmer. The St. Johns radio owner also took exception to Powell's failure to contact him personally on the matter. "He has apparently chosen to attempt to smear my name hoping to enhance his chances of defeating me at the polls on August 8 by making a public issue of this matter," concluded Ditmer.

Ditmer and Powell oppose each other for the Republican nomination as candidate for the 88th District State Representative on the August 8 primary ballot.

Cedar Point trip offered

ST. JOHNS--Hey Kids!

How would you like to win an all expense two-day trip to Cedar Point in Sandusky, Ohio?

Watch for more details in next week's edition.

Local girl in fair condition

ST. JOHNS--A seven-year-old St. Johns girl, Cheryl L. Penix, is listed in fair condition at Sparrow Hospital following injuries she received Friday afternoon after being struck by a car south of Clinton Avenue on US-27.

Hospital officials report that the child is suffering from multiple fractures and lacerations. Following the accident she was taken to Clinton Memorial Hospital for treatment and later transferred to the Lansing hospital.

City police said that the driver of the car, 53-year-old Elmer Leon Brass, of 1541 Knollwood Ave., Lansing was traveling north on US-27 when apparently the child darted in front of his car. The girl was returning home with her sister from a circus which was located near the K of C Hall on US-27.

According to police, a witness to the accident said the child ran out in front of the car and the driver could not stop in time.

The driver is not being held in the accident.

The young girl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Penix of 205 West Railroad Street, St. Johns.

Pouring a new street

A crew from Frank Strausberg and Sons Company of Saginaw apply a coat of slurry seal on the streets of St. Johns. According to Supt. Rolland Wiltse, "it's like rolling out a sheet of sandpaper on the street." He explained fine metal shavings in the mix makes the surface skid resistant. The new process is becoming widely used for coating airport runways and has replaced the old seal coat method which used a mixture of loose gravel and tar. "The slurry seal is cleaner because it has no loose stones," said Wiltse while stressing this is a critical factor on airports.

JULY 23-29 IS NATIONAL FARM SAFETY WEEK

DON'T BE A TARGET FOR CARELESSNESS!

Second in a series

Alternate B outlines middle route for I-69

ST. JOHNS--This is the second in a three-part series the CLINTON COUNTY NEWS will present on the alternate routes for I-69 north of Lansing which will be discussed July 26 at a public hearing in DeWitt High School.

A meeting between the officials from Clinton County and the townships of DeWitt, Bath and Watertown is planned for July 24 in an effort to reach common agreement on which alternate route is best for the areas concerned.

Alternate B as shown above is the middle route of three being considered. It begins west of the intersection of Stoll and Forest Hill Rds. and then swings easterly in a path midway between Stoll and Airport Rds. At a point just west of DeWitt Rd. the route crosses north of Clark Rd. and then continues directly east. Like Alternate A, this proposal maps out interchanges at Francis, Airport and DeWitt Rds. plus one at US-27. Grade separations are planned for other roads in the path of the proposed freeway.

The primary disadvantage of Alternate B is the fact it would have a definite impact on several farms and result in a considerable amount of land being landlocked or without access.

On the positive side, the route is more southerly than proposed under Alternate A and thereby lessens two major concerns under this first proposal. First, Alternate B decreases the concern over urban sprawl resulting in the area by being closer to the Lansing area. Secondly, the impact on Looking Glass River in terms of adverse effects on a desirable natural resource is reduced.

A breakdown of figures on Alternate B reveals it would cover 10.2 miles at an estimated cost of $15,682,000 and require the removal of 11 houses.

See next week's paper for a map on the final proposed route, Alternate B-1.

O-E votes again on bus garage

OVID--Voters in the Ovid-Elsie School District will decide again on the question of one mill for construction of a bus maintenance garage.

During the board of education's organization meeting earlier this month, it was decided to re-submit the one mill for one year request.

The question was defeated at the polls by one vote on June 12.

The new election date is set for Saturday, September 9.

According to Supt. Donald Kenney, the board of education made the decision after it became apparent there was "a gross misunderstanding" among voters on this question during the June election. He said many people were under the impression the garage would be used strictly for winter storage of buses.

Kenney said he and the board of education wish to make it clear the 50 by 120 foot building planned on a site northwest of the high school will be used for bus maintenance NOT storage.

"We are thinking about a relocatable steel building," said Kenney, "and it will also serve as an auto mechanics shop for the high school students." He pointed out the high school does not presently offer an auto mechanics course because of limited facilities. Agricultural mechanics classes will also be moved to the new facility to take advantage of the expanded room.

Therese Pohl wins place on deaf Olympic team

DeWITT--A 19-year-old girl, Therese Pohl, has won a spot in the 1972 Deaf Olympics games in track after her performance in the Morganton tryouts.

The tryouts, which were held in North Carolina, brought a group of 75 to 100 girls from all over the United States together for competition.

Miss Pohl placed second in the 200 meter race, second in the 400 meter race and ran fourth in the 800 meter event.

She was 2.1 seconds off the current world's record among deaf participants in the 200 meter and 5.1 seconds off in the top 400 record. In the American record she was one second behind in the 400 meter race and 1.3 seconds in the 200.

She placed first in the semi-final tryouts in both the 200 and 400 meter events.

Another Michigan girl, Julie Olney of Swartz Creek, will be traveling to the 1973 summer event which will be held in Sweden. Miss Olney broke the American deaf javelin record during tryouts.

Thomas Berg, track coach at Gallaudet College in Washington D.C. where Miss Pohl is a freshman, has been named track coach at the Olympic event.

Interested in most sports, the Morganton event was the first time that she had participated in an organized track meet. During the tryouts she was just scheduled to run in the 200 meter race, however, Coach Berg encouraged her to compete in the 400 and 800 meter events.

The young track star is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Pohl of 5605 Cutler Road, DeWitt.

She was a 1971 graduate of the Michigan School for the Blind, Flint, and was awarded a scholastic scholarship to Gallaudet after finishing first in her class.

During her last year in high school, she was named DAR Good Citizen and was active in basketball, being named the most valuable player on the team. She was captain of the school's cheerleaders squad.

Following her education, Miss Pohl has expectations of becoming a high school math teacher with her attentions directed in helping other deaf pupils.

Activities set for Little League Field

ST. JOHNS--The St. Johns Little League Field located behind Bee's Chevrolet and Oldsmobile Company will be the scene of a full slate of activities Saturday.

The day begins at 11 a.m. with a series of adult slow pitch softball games. At 2 p.m., the action shifts to adult fast pitch games which will continue through the afternoon.

From 3-6 p.m., the pony league players will participate in a pony pull contest in an area next to the field.

Highlight of the day comes at 7:30 p.m. with the championship game of the St. Johns Little League.

During the evening, the awarding of prizes in the little league fund raising program will take place. First prize is a color television set and second prize will be a mini-bike. Entertainment will be provided throughout the evening. The concession stand will be open throughout activities.

Proceeds of the fund raising program will be used by the St. Johns Jaycees to build a permanent little league building. Construction of the building will begin this fall and plans include a meeting room, restrooms and a concession facility.

A total of 330 boys took advantage of the little league facilities this season and officials of the program anticipate the new building will enhance further development of this activity in future years.

Government will share cost of ecology

EAST LANSING--Cost-sharing payments are now being made to farmers for carrying out soil, water, woodland, wildlife and pollution abatement practices under the Rural Environmental Assistance Program, according to William Vanderbeek, member of the Michigan ASC Committee.

This Federal program has been in effect since 1936 following the great dust storms of the 1930's. Many of these practices have eliminated the run-off of million of tons of top soil, greatly reducing the pollution of the nation's waterways. Vanderbeek pointed out that this has benefited wildlife, increased hunting, fishing and other recreational purposes for all the people.

Pollution problems associated with agriculture, like those in industry and municipalities, can affect everyone and sometimes be so expensive to solve that an individual citizen cannot afford to undertake the task alone.

Cost-sharing by the Government is only a small part of the overall cost to the farmer. This is because some types of pollution build up slowly, finally requiring expensive remedies for control. Michigan farmers have carried out many pollution abatement practices on farmland and most of these deal with livestock waste.

Vanderbeek pointed out that the Soil Conservation Service and our agency have been helping farmers to carry out conservation practices for many years. REAP cost-sharing practices and Special Projects are tailored to fit local needs and are administered by county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committees.

For additional information farmers should contact their local county ASC Committee

Youngsters learn boating safety

OVID--Youngsters in the Ovid-Elsie area will get a chance to learn boating safety under a class slated to start July 24 at the Ovid-Elsie High School.

The three day course taught by Robert Sterken, a marine safety officer from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, begins at 2 p.m. Each session is two hours long and upon completion youngsters qualify to operate boats of six horsepower or more on state waterways. This qualification course is required by state law for youngsters under 16 years old.

"It's a class primarily aimed at this age group," said Sterken, "but all ages are invited to attend."

A Michigan State University junior majoring in water resources development and a certified scuba diver, Sterken served as an Army medic during a tour of duty in Vietnam. He reports the course includes instruction on mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and cardiac compression.

Sterken has already taught the course at St. Johns and DeWitt and another class is set to begin at Bath High School at 9 a.m. on July 24. Fifteen youngsters completed the course in DeWitt and seven attended the St. Johns session.

August draft affects 1,447

LANSING--All available registrants with lottery numbers 75 and below will be called by Michigan local boards for induction in August it has been announced by Arthur A. Holmes, state director of Selective Service.

The August induction call will affect 1,447 registrants reported as available by local boards. Approximately 800 registrants were ordered for induction under the national call for July with Random Sequence numbers 50 and below.

The August call will be filled primarily with Class 1-A and 1-A-0 registrants born in 1952 plus older registrants who have lost their deferments or whose postponements of induction expire in August. Induction orders must be issued by July 31. Non-volunteers will receive at least a 30 day notice in advance of their induction date.

Under a recent change in regulations registrants ordered for induction are now permitted to enlist in the regular armed forces or in National Guard and reserve units if enlistment action can be completed at least 10 days prior to induction date. Selective Service has authorized this new program in cooperation with the Department of Defense to encourage enlistments in the reserve and National Guard.

An additional 4,380 registrants will be ordered for armed forces physical examination in August to determine their acceptability for military service. Examinees will include registrants born in 1952 with lottery numbers 100 and below, along with registrants born in 1953 with lottery numbers 50 and below.

Commission forms new committees

ST. JOHNS--Roman Koenigsnecht, chairman of the Clinton County Planning Commission, announced several committee appointments during the group's regular meeting last week.

Blair Lentz, principal of Ovid-Elsie High School, was named chairman of the Parks and Open Space Committee.

Two new members appointed to the planning commission May 1 -- Kenneth Munson and Robert Purtil -- were named as co-chairmen of the Land Use Committee. Munson is also a member of the Bath Township Planning Commission and Purtil is a vice-president with Central National Bank in St. Johns. The two men were appointed to the commission following the resignation of Gerry Wilcox and a vacancy created after Jane Smith declined to seek another term of office.

Koenigsnecht, plant supervisor for General Telephone and a Fowler resident, will also serve on the Land Use Committee.

Franks-King say vows in evening

East Lansing--The Michigan State University Alumni Memorial Chapel provided the setting as Judith Ann Franks and Wayne Earle King exchanged wedding vows in a candlelight ceremony at seven o'clock in the evening July 15.

Rev. Carl Staser performed the double ring vice for the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Fred Franks, 811 W. Lapeer St., Lansing, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earle King, 1204 S. Lansing St., St. Johns.

A vase of white gladiolus and pink daisies adorned the altar. Organist Gerry Bateman accompanied soloist Sherry Chittenden as she sang "One Love," and "We've Only Just Begun."

Escorted by her father, Miss Franks chose a floor length gown of silk tulle trimmed with Venetian lace appliques featuring a scalloped lace picture neckline, empire waisted A-line skirt and full Bishop sleeves. The gown was designed with bodice cuffs and a detachable chapel length train outlined in Venetian lace with pink satin accents. Her bouffant tiered illusion veil fell from a Venice lace headpiece of tiny petals sprinkled with seed pearls. She carried a nosegay of white miniature carnations, pink sweetheart roses, baby's breath and stephanitis.

Miss Anne Costigan of Lansing was maid of honor wearing a gown of pink chiffon with a pastel pink and green embroidered Juliet laced vestee. Dressed in an identical miniature gown was the flower girl, Cynthia Franks, the bride's niece from Vassar. Both wore natural floral head-pieces of pink carnation buds and pink daisies. Each held a white wicker basket of miniature carnations, pom pom mums and daisies in shades of pink.

Best man was Lyle J. Leonard, St. Johns. Ushers were Douglas King, the groom's brother, and Robert Ortwein, both of St. Johns. The groom's nephew, Gregory Frost, St. Johns, was ring bearer.

A buffet reception for the 200 guests was held immediately following the ceremony at The Country House in Okemos.

Assisting in serving were Cathi Remenar, Cathy Seagraves, Mary Redman and Linda Ketcheson. Sue Voegl and Helen Johnson, the bride's aunt, served cake and Elizabeth Fryover, the groom's cousin, attended the guest book.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Franks, the bride's grandparents and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Funnell, the groom's grandparents.

The new Mrs. King is a 1968 graduate of O'Rafferty High School, Lansing, and a 1970 Central Michigan University graduate. The groom graduated from Rodney B. Wilson High School, St. Johns, in 1966 and attended Michigan State University.

Following a wedding trip to the Upper Peninsula and Canada, the couple are making their home in Mt. Pleasant.

Married

Owosso--United in marriage at a double wedding ceremony on Saturday, June 24, were Peggy DeGeer, formerly of California, and Daniel Seibert of St. Johns, and Gail Smith and Larry Seibert, both of Owosso.

The wedding took place at 11 a.m. at the First Congregational Church of Owosso with the Rev. Halley Oliver officiating in the presence of the immediate families and close relatives of the couples.

A reception was held at the Smith home near Owosso following the ceremony.

Karen J. Knight was recently on the Dean's List at Northern Michigan University for earning a 4.0 average during the spring semester.

She is the daughter of Herman Pohl, 511 S. Oakland Street, St. Johns.

Both Karen and her husband, Barry, are 1959 graduates of Rodney B. Wilson High School. They reside at 5 E. Nicolet Blvd., Marquette, with their two children, Susan and Michael.

CHURCH NEWS

Vacation Bible School was held recently at the Banister United Methodist Church with an average of 60 children in attendance. Uncle George Presson of the Rural Bible Mission was in charge of the school.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Wickerham

Couple exchange vows in Pewamo

PEWAMO -- St. Joseph's Catholic Church was the setting for the June 9 wedding ceremony which united in marriage Sherry Ann Cummins and Roger William Wickerham.

Msgr. Thomas J. Bolger performed the single ring 7 p.m. ceremony before an altar decorated with daisies and mums.

Organist was Mrs. Ermaline Schafer of Pewamo and guitar selections during the Mass were performed by Gloria, Mary Lou and Jackie Platte.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth W. Cummins of R-1, Pewamo and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred A. Wickerham of 7590 Airport Road, DeWitt.

The bride approached the altar with her father and chose empire-style gown of nylon over taffeta featuring an empire waistline, full sheer sleeves ending in a wide lace cuff and an A-line skirt. A lace bib-effect accented the bodice and the long flowing train was edged with daisy lace. Her full-length illusion veil was edged with matching lace and she carried a bouquet of yellow, pink and blue roses and daisies tied with white streamers.

Karen Pohl, Westphalia, was maid of honor and assisting as bridesmaids were Debra Hildenbrand, Lansing; Susan Blizzard, DeWitt, sister of the groom; Cathy Cummins, Pewamo, sister-in-law of the bride; and Julie Cuernich of Pewamo. Rachel Miller of St. Johns, cousin of the groom, was flower girl.

The attendants wore white nylon gowns with an embossed pattern of flocked daisies in rainbow colors of lavender, melon, rose and blue. The gowns were styled with a ruffled neckline long full sleeves, gathered at the wrists and small colored buttons, in the colors matching the flocking on their gown, trimmed the bodice. A matching ribbon belt, with a bow in the back, highlighted the waistline. They wore flowers in their hair and carried a bouquet of daisies matching the color of their gown.

Best man was Wayne Karber and assisting as groomsmen were Kurt Blizzard, Bruce Blizzard, David Cummins and Dan Csapos. Seating the guests were ushers Mark Armbrustmacher, Daniel Downing, Lark Second and Jim Moots. Ring bearer was Scott Fox of Fowler, cousin of the bride.

A reception was held for 400 guests at the Pewamo 21 Club immediately following the ceremony.

Special guests at the wedding and reception were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Blizzard, Godparents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Downing, Godparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Fix and Mrs. Mary Cummins, grandparents of the bride.

Following a wedding trip to Cedar Point in Sandusky, Ohio and Northern Michigan the couple will make their home at 1016 North Fairview, Lansing.

The bride is a 1971 graduate of Pewamo-Westphalia High School and the groom is a 1971 graduate of St. Johns High School.

Open Letter

from VAN W. HOAG

Dear friends,

It deserves emphasis that the time, the place, the character of the funeral service, the merchandise used, the cemetery selected - these are decisions of the family of the deceased. The funeral director acts only as a representative of the family.

The clergyman should be consulted in matters that concern him before any decisions are made.

Respectfully,

Van W. Hoag

CHURCH NEWS

ST. JOHNS(c)—First Congregational Church of St. Johns, had eight representatives attending National Congregational meetings held recently at Green Bay, Wis. and the nearby city of De Pere.

Paulette Martis, Lori

Springer, Jim Rasmussen and Rick Foster returned home Friday night, June 30, after several days at a National Congregational Youth Conference held on the campus of St. Norbert's College in De Pere, Wis. After staying over night in Grand Rapids, the young people joined others from the state and journeyed to the meeting by bus, returning several days later.

Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Bross also returned Friday night, June 30, from Green Bay, where they attended the 18th annual meeting of the National Association of Congregational Christian Churches, having driven through the Upper Peninsula both ways. Rev. and Mrs. Averill M. Carson also attended the Green Bay meeting, but returned home by air. Mr. Carson and Dr. Bross served as the Church's delegates. Rev. Gerald Churchill, formerly minister of the St. Johns Church, now minister of the Congregational Church of the Northern Light in Anchorage, Alaska, also attended the meeting.

Mrs. Bross completed a three-year term as a member of the Commission on World Christian Relations of the National Association, Managers of the Manatee Trailer Park in Bradenton, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. Andy Anderson, were on hand at the annual summer picnic held at Smith Hall Sunday, July 9. The potluck dinner was attended by 200 Michigan persons who are winter residents of the Park.

Smith Hall scene of Manatee picnic

ST. JOHNS—A gala day for 200 Michigan residents who spend the winter months in Manatee Trailer Park, Bradenton, Fla. took place July 9.

Its the second year "Michiganders" from the Park have met in Smith Hall at the St. Johns City Park for a potluck dinner.

People were present from the four corners of Michigan. Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Foster Williams were hosts for the day. Mrs. Helen Lewis of Litchfield, president of the Michigan Club in Manatee Park and Mrs. Foster Williams, secretary-treasurer, were also present.

Especially pleasing to the crowd was the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Anderson, managers of Manatee Park in Bradenton. It was the Anderson's first visit to Michigan and they were much impressed with the home state of many of their winter residents.

The picnic is now to be an annual July event for the Michigan residents who winter in the Sunshine State at Manatee Trailer Park.

Those present from the St. Johns area were Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Yallup, Mrs. Geraldine Niergarth and Pauline Reed.

Reunion

The Farin-Eldred Family held its annual potluck dinner and reunion at the St. Johns City Park Sunday, July 9.

Marvin Whitford took charge of the business meeting in the absence of Charles Eldred, president.

Edna Eldred was elected president, Milo Smith, vice-president; Dorothy Emmons, secretary; Ursula Emmons, treasurer and Joan Whitford, chaplain.

Four births and one death were reported also two weddings during the past year. Members arrived from Flint, Hemlock, Detroit, Madison Heights, Eureka and St. Johns.

The 1973 reunion will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Whitford on Welling Road, St. Johns with a barbecue dinner.

Jimmy Emmons received a dollar for being the youngest present and Farin Eldred who is 91 was presented with a gift for being the oldest living member of the Eldred family.

Mrs. Milo Smith and Mrs. Clayton Dougherty won the guessing games.

Shepardsville

By Lucille Spencer

Mr. and Mrs. C.H. Green entertained some of the Spencer cousins on Wednesday, July 12 for a potluck dinner. Those present were Father Eugene Spencer, and Mrs. Faye Perkins and son Neal of Williamston, Mrs. Ernest Semans of Freepport, Ill., Mrs. Mildred Comstock of Ovid, Mr. and Mrs. John Spencer of rural Ovid, Mr. Leo Spencer of Detroit, also Ben Green who has a two weeks' leave before he returns to Whidbey Island, Washington.

Mrs. Lucille Pellow, Donna Hettinger, Mrs. Doris Pollard and sons have returned home after spending the past few days in Northern Michigan.

St. Johns

MRS. HILA BROSS

Mrs. Dorothy Powell of Crawfordsville, Ind. and Marcia Powell of Lafayette, Ind. are house guests at the home of their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Aiden Livingston.

Mrs. Doris Daniels of Detroit, visited at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Whitlock, a few days last week. Tuesday Mrs. Daniels and Mrs. Whitlock went to Lake City to spend the day with Mrs. Mike Phillips. Wednesday they called on Mrs. Whitlock's niece, Mrs. Almond Cressman. Mrs. Daniels returned home Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tremaine of Wilmore, Ky., arrived Friday, to visit Mrs. C. C. Tyson. Mr. Tremaine left Monday to attend a conference in Battle Creek, and Mrs. Tremaine remained to spend the rest of the week with her mother, Mrs. Tyson.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parrott of Pontiac, were weekend guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Parrott. Cindy Parrott remained to visit her grandparents, but Chuck and Chad returned home with their parents.

Among those who came from out of town to attend funeral services for Mrs. Lee A DeWitt last Thursday, were: Mr. and Mrs. Donald DeWitt and two of their daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Freeman McClintock, and Frank Jury, all of Lansing; Mrs. David Wilson of Rochester; Mrs. DeWitt's nephew, Ralph Hubbard, of Northville; and Mrs. Charles Dengler, accompanied by three other friends, of Jackson. More than 20 members of the St. Johns Rotary Club attended; in a body. Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jury of Jackson, spent several days last week with Mrs. Jury's father, as did the Jury's daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson, and their son, Jeff Johnson of Birmingham. William Jury came also for his grandmother's funeral, and returned Sunday to San Juan, Puerto Rico, where he is now living.

Helen White and Mrs. Doris Schilling are Wednesday and Thursday house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dick W. DeGroot.

Names four to honor society Who's Who

JANET BARNES

MARY LABRIE

ANNE FOX

KEVIN HAYES

ST. JOHNS—Four recent St. Johns graduates have been accepted into Who's Who in High Schools Honor Society.

The students, all residents of St. Johns, are Mary LaBrie, Kevin Hayes, Anne Fox and Janet Barnes.

While in high school these students demonstrated excellence in scholarship, character, and extra-curricular activities and were among the top one-third of the nation's graduating seniors in public and parochial schools.

The students will be featured in the 1972 edition of Who's Who in High Schools. Mary is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert LaBrie of 303 Wight Street, Kevin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hayes of 904 South Lansing, Anne Fox is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Fox of 310 South Clinton and Janet's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barnes of 427 Meadowview Drive, all of St. Johns.

If work-dodging paid dividends we would have a few hundred millionaires in town.

What does a label mean?

EAST LANSING—Do you know what you're getting when buying a food product labeled "enriched," "fortified" or "restored?"

Iron and three B-vitamins (thiamine, niacin, and riboflavin) have been added to foods labeled "enriched," explains Sheila Morley, Michigan State University consumer marketing specialist. Bread, flour, macaroni products, corn meal and rice are commonly enriched foods.

The term "fortified" indicates that one or more nutrients not normally present in that food have been added. Milk, for example, is commonly fortified with Vitamin D. The body needs Vitamin D, which does not occur naturally in milk, to absorb and use the calcium present in milk, Mrs. Morley explains.

When certain nutrients lost in refining or processing are replaced, the food is labeled "restored."

In most cases, when a food has been enriched, fortified, or restored, the information is on the label, the specialist says. Labels on bread that is manufactured and sold in Michigan, however, are required to list only preservatives.

Letter to the Editor: Does it show poor politics for the present sheriff to back one particular candidate for the position of sheriff?

The Clinton County Sheriff's Department has formed a monopoly with three wrecker agencies in the county and these agencies are helping finance the campaign of one particular candidate. Thus, giving this particular candidate an edge financially over the other candidates.

This type of practice does not present the best qualified man with equal chances for the position of sheriff. This is very poor justice to the people.

New meat products

Food means happiness. It means Mom, picnics, special treats, friends and eating out. But more important, food means healthy bodies. Food consists of essential nutrients needed daily by each and every cell in our body.

Though most of us know that certain foods are better for us than others to help children grow and adults keep healthy, many of us eat only the foods we like, are accustomed to or what we can afford. Sometimes this means we aren't always eating what's best for us.

Modern science has determined there are approximately 57 nutrients necessary for the human body to grow, develop and maintain itself. Nutrients, those necessary chemical compounds, are found in food or made in our bodies while some can be produced synthetically in a laboratory. Our body uses the nutrients, but we EAT the food. It can be something that contains several health-giving nutrients, or it might contain only one - sugar candy for example. Food is whatever Man eats.

Over the years, much has been written and said about Vitamins. Continual research has added to our knowledge about these nutrients. Research has caused us to take a second look at them and revise our thinking. We still know they are essential, however.

For you who are interested in the food you eat, in your health and enjoy learning, I urge you to order a copy of one of the most informative, easy to read and RELIABLE booklets published in quite some time. It is Public Affairs Pamphlet #465, Vitamins, Food and Your Health. Order it from Public Affairs Pamphlets, 381 Park Avenue South, New York, New York 10016 for 25¢.

Five generations of the Leland Baxter family met in the Maple Rapids village park on Sunday, July 16. They were: Mary Baxter, the great-great grandmother, age 87, great granddaughter, Carla Hayes, holding the great-great granddaughter, Misty Hayes. Standing (L) William Kohlmeier of Lansing, grandfather and Mrs. George Kohlmeier, great-grandmother of Dunedin, Fla. Thirty-three persons attended the reunion. The youngest was Misty, 17 months old.

Watertown Charter Township proceedings

July meeting called to order with all Board members present except Rollin Noble. Commissioner Montgomery, Geneva Openlander, Dyle Henning, David Abbott and Mr. Johnson from Fishbeck, Thompson & Carr, were also present.

Minutes of June meeting approved as submitted. Treasurer's report approved as submitted. Bills read and ordered paid. No. 151 thru 168 were drawn on the Contingent Account and No. 19 thru 23 were drawn on the Cemetery Account.

Commissioner Montgomery made a brief report. Mr. Thingstad made a report on progress on Park No. 2.

Mr. Johnson reported on our sewer program to date, and stated we must gather more specific information before DNR will consider our situation. He was instructed to start all reports necessary.

Paul Schaefer reported on the dry hydrant installation and stated he was having trouble finding the proper screens. There will be an information letter drafted and sent out to all taxpayers relative to the road millage vote to go on the August 8th Primary ballot for Township Roads.

The Board approved the limiting of the sale of burial spaces to five instead of the ten burial lots we have had. Board approval will have to be obtained if more than five are required.

The Clerk was instructed to purchase the necessary corner markers for laying out additional burial spaces in the cemetery. Leon Garlock made a report on the CAPACOG

Graves speaks to Clinton Democrats

Bennie Graves, candidate for U.S. House of Representatives, 10th Congressional District spoke to the Clinton County Democratic Committee last night.

The Central Michigan University sociology professor, stated that he was quite happy with the way the National Convention has gone because "I am completely comfortable with Sen. McGovern's positions on issues and I am confident that McGovern's integrity will be as heartening to the nation as the current administration's credibility is alarming to the nation."

Bennie Graves

Graves went on to say that Congress could and should initiate a massive public works program designed both to achieve full employment in the nation and to restore our deteriorating urban and rural surroundings.

Elsie

Tanning! Keep Your Head!

A golden tan can make your hair look dull by comparison. The solution? Make your hair as ravishing as your skin. This coloring kit is like Norel in Easy give you color that becomes part of you and your summer skin, not the other way around. They let you be you, only better. And you can forget those old wives' tales that warned you never to go into the sun without a hat or scarf if you color your hair! Note: Hair colorists believe that hair-headed is better. The perspiration caused by a headcovering can be more harmful to your carefully chosen hair color than sunlight.

Karen Knight accepted at Blue Lake

ST. JOHNS(c)—St. Johns High School Senior, Karen Knight, active in school musical organizations, has been accepted for two weeks of advanced piano study at Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp. Karen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Knight, 6521 W. Walker Road, is the recipient of a partial scholarship from the St. Johns Morning Musicals, the club is affiliated with both the National and the State Federation of Music Clubs. The latter organization is one of the sponsors of the Blue Lake Camp.

In addition to playing flute in the local Symphonic Band and singing with the Choralaires, Karen has frequently played piano accompaniment for various high school musical groups. During the past eight years, she has been the piano pupil of Mrs. Harold Lundy. She will leave for the camp next Monday.

Need any new grill ideas?

Try broiling chuck roast on your charcoal grill this summer, suggests Sheila Morley, Michigan State University consumer marketing specialist.

Choose a low-cost roast well marbled with fat, then marinate it, the specialist says. Blend a little wine and a touch of garlic and tarragon into an acid base such as tomato sauce or french dressing. The marinade will tenderize the roast, suiting it to the outdoor grill. You may also want to use a commercial meat tenderizer.

Look also for specials on pork, turkey and chicken for the grill. Turkey parts and whole turkeys weighing 12 pounds or less are excellent for barbecues, says Mrs. Morley. Or buy a frozen turkey roll to roast on the spit.

Make three-decker hamburgers layered with crumbled blue cheese or seasoned minced vegetables. Or split hot dogs and stuff them with cheese, crumbled french fried onions or seasoned mashed potatoes.

St. Johns earns Pony League title

An All-Star team of St. Johns Pony Leaguers has captured a coveted baseball championship after four straight victories in as many days at a single elimination tournament held in St. Louis.

A total of 13 teams participated in the St. Louis Recreational Council Invitational Pony League Tournament with the 16-member St. Johns squad topping the field through a fine display of heads up baseball.

It was sweet revenge for St. Johns in the championship game as pitchers Jeff Hazle and Dave Devereaux combined for a two-hitter to defeat Merrill, the defending champ, 7-1. Last year Merrill knocked St. Johns out of the tourney in first round play on their way to the title.

A five-run rally in the fourth clinched a victory for St. Johns as Brian Pertler, Jim Moriarty, Jeff Thornton, Keith Haske and Ron Ballinger each banged out a single. Pertler also slammed a solo homer in the sixth while Moriarty and Ballinger each collected another single.

Hazle started on the mound for St. Johns and allowed only two hits while fanning six before Devereaux came on in relief during the fifth inning. Devereaux proceeded to hold Merrill hitless while striking out four of the six batters he faced and St. Johns had the championship.

A rundown of the other three victories St. Johns earned in its championship effort reveals heads up base running, solid hitting and strong pitching were the ingredients for success.

In the first game, St. Johns ran St. Charles right off the field 22-4 in a contest called after six innings under the 10-run ruling. The victors slammed 20 hits and stole 11 bases.

Dave Devereaux worked on the mound for St. Johns and allowed only four hits while fanning 15 of the 18 batters he faced. He also banged out a double and led his team with three stolen bases.

Other "base burglars" for St. Johns were Kevin Bargar and Ron Ballinger with two steals each.

In the hitting department, Moriarty connected for two home runs, a single and a double for five runs batted in. Thornton and Ken Randolph each banged out three singles. Ballinger and Randy Eberhard each hit a double and single while Tim Fox connected for two singles.

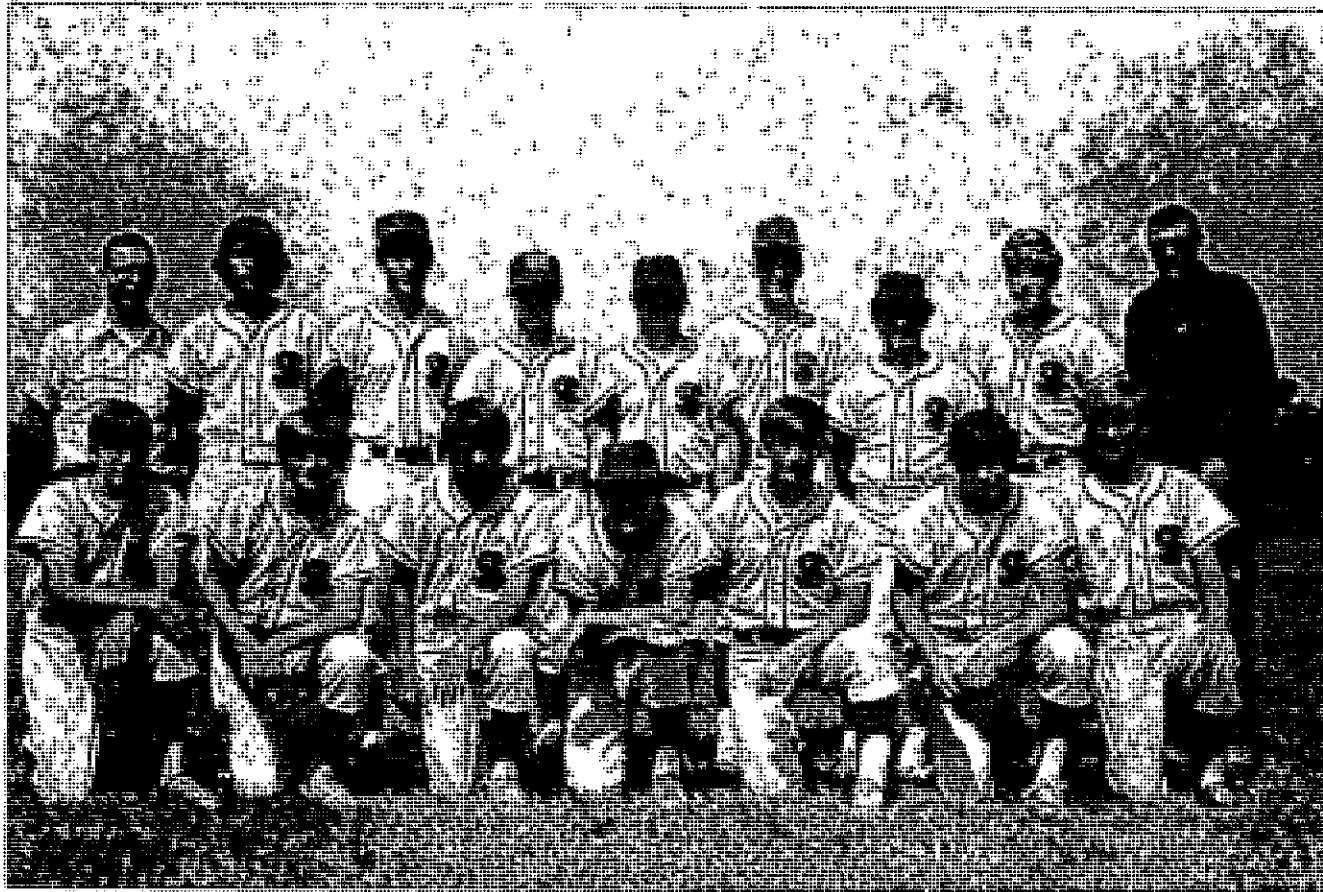

Randy Eberhard then took the mound in a game against Alma and spun a neat one-hitter to hand his team a 7-1 victory. He struck out 16 of the 21 Alma batters who came to the plate.

Again hustle on the base paths paid off as St. Johns stole a total of eight. Fox, Haske and Pertler each stole a pair of bases.

At the plate, Ballinger and Randolph each slammed a solo homer. Randolph also collected a double. Haske also banged out a pair of singles for two of the ten St. Johns hits.

The third game, a 9-4 win over Breckenridge, was the tournament's tightest contest for St. Johns as each squad collected six hits.

Rusty Waggoner provided the margin of victory for St. Johns with a grand slam homer in the sixth inning. His squad held a 4-3 edge at the time but the parade across home plate started by his swing of the bat clinched a victory. Waggoner also hit a single.

The other four St. Johns hits in the game came off the bats of Pertler and Randolph as each banged out two singles. Pitcher Tim Mitchell went the distance for St. Johns and fanned ten batters. On the base paths, Thornton and Moriarty each had two steals.

Ovid native new coach at Hillman

Keith Sheldon, an Ovid native, has accepted the post of head football coach at Hillman Community Schools.

He was born and raised in Ovid where his father operates a meat packing business. Sheldon's mother recently retired as an elementary teacher in the Ovid-Elsie School District.

A graduate of Michigan State University, Sheldon also attended Central Michigan University where he played football for two years. After college, he was a coach and teacher in Alpena for two years and then spent two years each at Elsie and Greenville. He was head basketball coach at both the Elsie and Greenville high schools.

Sheldon and his family then left Michigan for six years. During this time, he taught in San Manuel, Arizona; Duarte, California; and Bonne Terre, Missouri. He now resides at Lake Avalon with his wife, Hilda, and their four children. The children include: Kim, 18; Kurt, 12; Kent, 7; and Kari, 3.

Officer Robert Ott marked his 25th year as a St. Johns City Police Officer last week and was feted at a celebration hosted by the employees at the city offices. The St. Johns officer, who was promoted to the rank of sergeant two years, has headed up the parking meter department for the past year, under the supervision of city manager Harvey Weatherwax. Prior to his work in St. Johns, he was associated with the East Lansing City Police Department. Ott and his wife, Vivian reside at 404 Prospect and are the parents of one son, Randall who is employed as a Lansing Police Officer.

Anderson to attend track coaching clinic

INDIANAPOLIS—Gene V. Anderson, track coach at the St. John Lutheran School has been selected by the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States as an active participant in the first annual track coaching technique clinic, scheduled for July 24 through July 28 at Sacramento State University in California.

Three hundred track and field coaches from throughout the United States were chosen from the more than 23,000 track coaches in the country and will be hosted completely during the four-day clinic.

Sponsored by Chevrolet, the clinic will be directed by two-time Olympian and Sullivan Award winner Fred Wilt, a veteran instructor and track clinic administrator.

"This clinic is based on a learn-by-doing theory," Wilt said. "Therefore, all these coaches—and we think we have tapped some of the best in the nation—will be active participants, gaining actual practice in some of the technique events we're stressing."

Some 20 nationally and internationally famed coaches have been invited to be instructors at the clinic. Among these are internationally famous triple jump coach Tadeusz Starzynski of Poland, the national coach of Nigeria, Awoture Eleyae, former Hungarian national coach George Gerner and Indiana University's head track coach, Sam Bell.

The clinic is being held in conjunction with the first annual Russian-American Junior (19 and under) International Track and Field Meet, July 28-29. Soviet coaches accompanying the squad have been invited as additional instructors.

"Because the Soviets are traditionally strong in technique events, such as the hammer throw, javelin and jumps, we feel they're an invaluable addition to our staff," explained Wilt.

The entire clinic is being held under the auspices of the AAU of the United States, the United States representative to the IAAF (International Amateur Athletic Federation), the international body controlling the sport of track and field.

Hospitals now provide outpatient care to six persons for every one patient admitted to a hospital bed.

Attending gymnastics school

EAST LANSING—Six St. Johns youths are on the Michigan State campus this week participating in the gymnastics session of the MSU Athletic Instructional School.

The youths are being tutored by a staff of gymnastics coaches headed by MSU varsity coach George Szypula. The St. Johns youngsters are John Lynch of 110 E. McConnell, Nancy Durner of 203 S. Oakland St., Stephanie Church of 4611 So. DeWitt Rd., Suzanne Hopko of 509 S. Swegles and Darlene and Dennis Cerney of 308 S. Scott Rd.

The Instructional School will continue through the summer with clinics in eleven sports.

Teachers address chamber

ST. JOHNS—Two members of the St. Johns High School teaching staff addressed the monthly meeting of the St. Johns Area Chamber of Commerce, explaining the purpose and practices of a new business law course being installed in the school curriculum this coming year.

Members of the Chamber heard Dick Kramer and Gus Grieve give a brief description of the new course and how it fits into the current curriculum. In addition a description of the course and its purposes were explained to the group.

Among the intents are the acquaintance of students with elementary law and the introduction to form and content of legal documents. According to the teachers, the course is designed to prepare students with job-entry skills and encourage them toward an awareness of legal rights and responsibilities in the business world.

The course will be one semester in duration and will be open to all interested juniors and seniors.

Tripping with pets

Make traveling easier for your pet this summer with a pretravel physical, a few trial rides, and extra care during the trip, advises a Michigan State University veterinarian.

For some pets, a light meal before riding is advisable. Others travel better on an empty stomach, says Dr. Ralph M. McGovney. A few short rides before the actual trip will give you some idea of your pet's needs.

If your pet is excitable, you might give him a mild tranquilizer. The medication, which can be obtained from your veterinarian, may also have anti-nausea properties.

Before leaving, have your pet examined for minor skin and ear infections, fleas and ticks. Check with your veterinarian about pet ordinances where you plan to visit. Some states require signed health papers. Canadian customs regulations require proof of recent vaccination against rabies.

If you plan on camping, you may want a medication to protect your dog against disease carried by mosquitoes.

If your pet has a chronic illness, make sure you have enough medication. Know the specific drug name and dosage, in case you need a refill.

Check in advance for motels that have kennels or allow pets, McGovney suggests.

Also, pets can tolerate most water but should have their customary food.

Exercise your pet whenever you stop at a rest area or gas station. If you must leave him in the car, park in the shade and leave windows partially open.

For safety and courtesy, keep your dog leashed, the veterinarian suggests.

If your pet becomes ill during the trip, check the local yellow pages for a veterinarian, or call the police. Treat cuts, thorns, and other small injuries with basic first aid, such as a simple antibiotic ointment.

Nitrogen use self-regulated

Michigan farmers can use more nitrogen fertilizer and increase their crop yields without endangering Michigan's waters, say F. Earl Haas, County Extension Director.

Environmentalists fear that excess nitrogen from crop fertilization may be endangering the state's rivers and streams. But in fact use of nitrogen in Michigan is self regulated, Haas says.

"The average farmer will not use an excess of nitrogen simply because he cannot afford to have it lost to the water table or washed from the surface," the agent explains.

The average farmer uses less fertilizer than his crops need. For corn, he uses about 75 pounds of nitrogen per acre. He could use an additional 30 to 40 pounds of nitrogen and increase his yields 20 to 30 bushels per acre.

Fertilization is really indirectly a boon to clean water, the agent points out. The increased plant growth resulting from fertilization reduces water pollution from soil erosion. Furthermore, the increased foliage returns more organic matter to the soil, increasing water absorbency and reducing water runoff.

There is little evidence linking high-nitrogen-containing rivers and streams with fertilization. In Illinois, extensive studies of high-nitrogen waters in areas of fertile soils, extensive drainage systems and fertilized crops turned up no incriminating evidence.

He needs a mind of his own.

In East Europe, there's a whole generation of youngsters like him. To make his own decisions, he needs the facts, news, world opinion. He needs Radio Free Europe.

Card of Thanks

WATAMAKER - We the family of Edna Watamaker wish to thank the many friends and neighbors for their many kindnesses during her past and recent illnesses. We especially thank Drs. Jordan and Smith for their personal attention and kind consideration of our mother. A special thank you to everyone who contributed their time and food in our final hours of grief. A special work of thanks to Rev. Meyers whose understanding message seemed an inspiration to all of us to follow in her Christian footsteps. 12-1p

WARREN-I wish to thank all of the doctors, nurses and nurses aides of The Carson City Hospital who helped in any way with my recent operation and recovery. Also I wish to thank Drs. Smith and Jordan of the Fowler Clinic. I especially wish to thank all of my relatives, neighbors, and friends for their visits, gifts of flowers, cards and their many prayers. - Madelyn Warren. 12-1p-nc

WEBER-I wish to thank my family, relatives, friends and neighbors for their prayers, cards, visits and food brought in during my stay in the hospital and since I came home. They were truly appreciated. -Edna Weber. 12-1p

In Memoriam

Corrected in Memory

We are sorry for any inconvenience this may have caused.

IN loving memory of our dear son and brother Douglas Orweller. who passed away July 16th, 1964. It broke our hearts to lose you, But you did not go alone. A part of us went with you, The day God called you home. You wished no one a last farewell, Nor even said good-bye, You were gone before we knew it, And only God knows why. They say time heals all sorrow, And helps us to forget, But time, so far, has only proved, How much we miss you yet. God gave us strength to face it, And courage to bear the blow, But what it meant to love and lose you, No one will ever know. Gone, but not forgotten. Sadly missed by his Mom and Dad, sisters and their families. 11-1p

IN loving memory of Anthony J. Thelen who passed away

3 years ago July 21, 1969. Memories are treasures no one can steal, Death is a heartache nothing can heal. We won't forget though he is gone, But we will remember no matter how long. Sadly missed by wife, children and grandchildren. 12-1p

Young bowlers have good year

It turned out to be an excellent year for the Peanut League at the Tri-Ami Bowling Lanes in Ovid. The Peanut League is the youngest set of bowlers in the Youth Bowling Association. Nikki Sinicropi, age 10, made the All Star Team. She acclaimed the honor, by accumulating 48 points total over the bowling season. Points were scored for entering tournaments, average, attendance, tournament standing, and winning. She also placed fourth in State Singles. Her average is 105. Kevin Russell placed first in area singles with a 672. He advanced to the finals in Cadillac but didn't place. He has a 112 average.

Richard Ackles placed second in area singles with a 640. He too, advanced to Cadillac but didn't place. He has a 96 average. Second place area Roll-off winners are from left to right: Debbie Bancroft with a 71 average; Nikki Sinicropi a 105 average; Jackie Young, captain, a 97 average; Lisa Wilcox, a 63 average; and Jamie Staley, a 68 average. Lisa Wilcox received the Most Improved Bowler award for raising her average 31 pins going from a 28 to a 63 and high series award for a 255-458 game. Debbie Bancroft and Jamie Staley received perfect attendance awards. They were all honored at Metro Bowl at their bowling banquet in Lansing on July 9. Tri-Ami sent 12 teams to the area roll-off in Ithaca at the Town and Country Lanes. Nine of the teams placed and two teams were trophy winners. In the Junior Major League, one team placed second in the area and were trophy winners. The girls were Gail Woodworth, Roxie Pierce, Patty Bernath, Phyllis Anderson, and Julie Jorae. Jerome Wilbur placed first in the area Prep Division in State Singles. He advanced to Cadillac with a 734.

Far Away "My music teacher says I have a fine voice and should go far." "Splendid! I'll help you pack." Instruction Welcomed Irate Parent-I'll teach you to make love to my daughter, sir. Cool Youth-I wish you would, old boy, I don't seem to be making much headway.

Migrant program begins third year

Nurse Roberta O'Connor gives a TB test to Margarita Castro, student at the St. Johns Migrant education program. The children attending the program are given medical and dental attention when needed.

Staffers at the school prompt conversation with the students during meal time to help develop the child's language skills.

Haviland joins MMPA session

More than 70 4-H members and adult leaders from all parts of the state including David Haviland, DeWitt, learned about milk marketing and the functions of a dairy farmer cooperative during a two-day visit, July 12-13, to Detroit.

The tour was sponsored by Michigan Milk Producers Association, a statewide dairy farmer cooperative, through the Michigan State University extension service.

The 4-H conference participants toured MMPA's Detroit headquarters and visited the large Kroger Dairy in suburban Livonia to see how a modern dairy plant bottles and processes milk and milk products.

During meeting sessions, the 4-H members heard Glenn Lake and Jack Barnes, MMPA president and general manager, respectively, describe MMPA and its purposes and the organization's role in price bargaining.

The tour participants also divided into groups to discuss and solve problems faced by dairy farmers and their cooperatives.

Other program participants included Ray Gillespie of the MSU 4-H department, Bernie Heisner of the MSU dairy department and Norm Peterson of the MMPA staff.

The 4-H group also attended a banquet at the Pick-Fort Shelby Hotel in Detroit and saw a Detroit-Texas Ranger baseball game.

Mike Wardin of Hemlock and Duane Stuever of Capac served as junior leaders at the conference. As such, they chaired the various sessions during the two-day event.

ST. JOHNS—A child's world is especially difficult when they are thrown into an environment where their native language is not commonly used.

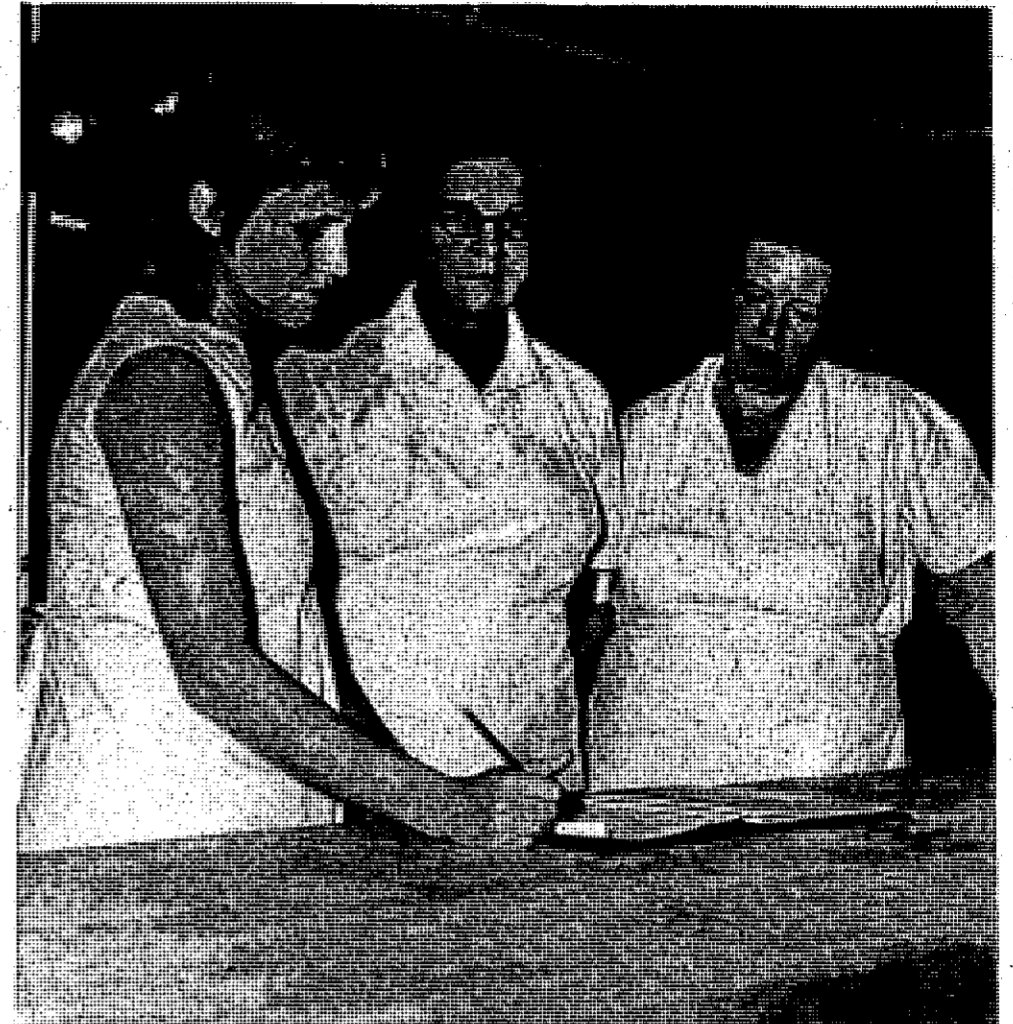

In St. Johns there are people dedicated to the purpose of helping these children overcome this obstacle. The people are the staff at the St. Johns center of the Michigan Migrant education program which began July 3.

Now in its third year here the program is drawing more interest from the migrant working parents of the children attending the classes held at St. Joseph's School.

When the school opened its doors this year ten of the 20 children that arrived the first day were from migrant families in this area for the first time.

Michael O'Connor, center coordinator and principal of Central Elementary School predicts that with the number of new families this year the school's attendance level could

CLINTON NATIONAL BANK and TRUST CO.

Serving The Clinton Area From Eleven Locations

Member FDIC

This is Brandon C. White, Jr. Week

We are again pleased that one of our own has been recognized from outside our ranks. Brandon's work in the community has brought him in contact with numerous groups and it was from one of these that his nomination came. Aside from being active in state-wide professional organizations, Brandon has kept busy on local civic projects through memberships in Rotary, Chamber of Commerce, Development Corp. and Memorial Hospital trustee board. He is presently a Rotary board member and past president of the Chamber of Commerce as well as a past member of the United Fund budget committee. In addition he has worked on numerous committees and groups for community benefit and we are pleased to recognize his nomination as Citizen of the Week.

Cederberg visits

Reapportionment has thrust Clinton County into the Tenth Congressional District of Michigan and last week the incumbent in that seat -- U.S. Representative Elford Cederberg -- paid a visit to St. Johns.

The Bay City legislator has served in the U.S. House since 1953 and won election after four years as mayor of his native city.

Among the places he and his wife stopped during their brief stay in town was the County News. When asked if he was in the area to make any speeches, the Congressman responded negatively.

He indicated his visit was along get acquainted lines and mentioned the upcoming Republican National Convention in August at Miami Beach is his major activity planned right now. However, when the Convention is over, Clinton County residents will certainly see and hear more from this veteran politician who has a lot of get acquainted to do in his re-election bid from a revised district.

Clock that train

Ever wonder what the speed is of the freight trains that pass through St. Johns?

The question came up during the St. Johns City Commission last week. One commissioner suggested the police radar unit be used to clock the train's speed while passing through the city.

The discussion was triggered by a 12-page report which ordered the railroad and city of St. Johns to share a $300,000 cost figure placed on modernization of local railroad crossing signals. Inspectors from the Michigan Public Safety Commission conducted the study as the result of a fatal accident at the Clinton Ave. crossing this spring.

Of course, neither the city or railroad can afford such a tremendous expenditure. Especially, since neither the necessity nor value of these changes can be clearly measured.

However, we feel the suggestion on checking the train speed is a good one. The blur of passing freights has caused some concern in this corner for several weeks. We're also curious about what these trains would clock going through St. Johns. In our mind, a speeding train represents a much greater hazard to public safety than an outdated signal system.

Food means happiness

By LORRAINE SPRAGUE Extension Home Economist

Precooked bacon, brand-name beef, and a prepackaged sausage combination are just a few new products you're likely to find in the meat department, a Michigan State University marketing specialist reports.

One packer is testing precooked bacon, wrapped in a foil pouch to be heated in the toaster, and a dry-cured hickory-smoked bacon in three-pound slabs, says Sheila Morley. Also on the market is a prepackaged outdoor buffet combination of knockwurst, bratwurst and Polish sausage.

Because many shoppers have shown preference for particular brands of bacon, some packers may label beef products with brand name identification, the specialist says.

Another trend may be toward central cutting of meat. Grocery stores will receive counter-ready cuts shipped from a central meat cutting plant rather than whole carcasses or sides. Central cutting will reduce the costs of shipping waste, fat and bone, the specialist explains.

Store it right

Just because we've purchased a package of frozen food, a can, or a package of other food we don't give up our responsibility of storing it properly when we arrive home. Frozen foods must remain frozen if their best quality is preserved. Just about every food - fresh, canned, or in any other state has a limit to the time it will keep. Did you know that most cake mixes, if stored cool and dry, will keep 9 months? Angel food cake mixes, stored cool and dry, will keep 12 months.

Foods kept in the refrigerator are best if used within a specified time. For example, large pieces of hard or wax-coated cheeses such as Cheddar, Edam, Gouda, Swiss, etc. will keep if unopened up to 3 to 6 months; opened 3-4 weeks. Slices of these cheeses keep about 2 weeks.

Freezers don't keep foods indefinitely. Ground beef holds its good quality when frozen up to 2 or 3 months but ground pork loses in flavor and texture if kept longer than 1 to 2 months. Commercially frozen juice concentrates are good for 12 months while home frozen juices should be used within 6 months.

Telephone customers get new directories

One of the most widely used publications in the United States--the telephone directory--is now being delivered to General Telephone customers in Ashley and Pompeii. William F. Graef, district manager for the company, said although there are no major format changes in the new directory, he suggests customers familiarize themselves with the location of important information within the directory.

The alphabetical index and table of contents for the directory appear on the inside front cover and the list for frequently called numbers appears on the inside back cover. A localized exchange area map, printed in conjunction with the Continental U.S. Area Code Map, also appears again in the directory.

"Places for you to write in emergency numbers are conveniently located on Page One," Graef pointed out. "We want the location of these numbers readily available and easy to find."

Instructions for all types of calls - station - to - station, person-to-person, conference, collect, overseas, mobile and marine--and a graphic description of both Freezer, Refrigerator or Cupboard Storage.

Telephone customers get new directories interstate and intrastate long distance rates appear in the introductory pages of the new directory. Included is an explanation of the discounts applicable for dialing intrastate long distance calls direct.

An explanation of the Michigan State Law concerning threatening, obscene, nuisance or harassment calls also appears in the new directory as well as the procedure to follow in cases where this statute is violated.

Graef suggested customers carefully leaf through their old directory before replacing it with the new edition. "Often important papers, letters and even money, are placed in the telephone directory for safekeeping and forgotten," he said. "Remember, also, to transfer that list of frequently called numbers from the old directory to the new one."

Back Through the Years

The Redwings have a new football coach. He's Earnie Becker, formerly with Haslett High School as their head football coach and athletic director.

A 21-year-old St. Johns man, Gary W. Silm of R-4, Riley Township, died at Lansing Sparrow Hospital from injuries he received in an early morning accident.

Expenditure of more than $110,000 from the state recreation bond fund has been authorized for a series of recreation development and improvement projects throughout Clinton County.

Opposition lines have been forming in DeWitt Township during the past two weeks against a proposed $3.5 million low-cost housing project to be located in DeWitt.

The first phase of a four-park recreational construction plan for DeWitt Township has been approved by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Milton J. King, township supervisor, has announced.

The Pawamo 21 Club is busy this week making final preparations for their sixth annual festival scheduled for Sunday.

10 YEARS AGO July 19, 1962

The board of education of the St. Johns public school held its annual reorganization meeting electing Kenneth Munger president.

Clinton County's million-bushel wheat harvest passed its peak last weekend in one of the finest harvest seasons from the standpoint of weather in many a year.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile collected 78 pints of blood at the Municipal building in St. Johns, short of the 100-pint goal, but a commendable turnout for this time of year.

The American Institute of Cooperation in Washington, D.C. announced that the Bath chapter of Future Farmers of America was chosen from among 10,000 chapters as one of the three top FFA chapter in the nation.

St. Johns area telephone numbers will be changed to seven digits with the issuance of General Telephone's new directory, said W. F. Graef, district manager for the company.

An overflow crowd of some 7,000 people applauded heartily when "The Swagmen," a vocal-instrumental trio of Clinton County youths was awarded first prize in the finals of the Chesaning Showboat's amateur contest.

25 YEARS AGO July 17, 1947

A hole-in-one was recorded Saturday by Ken Penix on the 130-yard number seven hole at Clinton Country Club. He was playing with Lee and Wayne Hicks and T. A. Brooke, all of St. Johns.

A five-year plan for public improvements in St. Johns was outlined before members of the St. Johns Rotary Club by Robert T. Palmer, the city's new manager. Palmer said the program was the result of a careful planning by the City Commission and involved the expenditure of at least $83,000 for civic improvements.

Ninety-five posts for street signs are being erected on street corners in St. Johns. The black and white signs will be attached to the posts when they arrive the first part of August.

There are "flying saucers" around St. Johns. At least four women swear that they saw several of them flying in the sky west of St. Johns Tuesday afternoon.

"If It Fitz . . . The crayola caper

Editor, Lapeer County Press

By Jim Fitzgerald

And then I wrote . . . It was the first registered letter I'd ever received and I was naturally excited, gee. Someone had paid 90 cents for a signed guarantee that I had received his message.

Before I was excited, of course, I was worried. I figured it was a dun, probably from that record club whose computer won't believe I resigned in 1952 because I couldn't wash the sugar off their Doris Day records.

But the return address said this letter was from C.W. Montgomery, corporate secretary of Binney and Smith Inc., which is on Madison Avenue in New York City 10017. I didn't owe them any money. This was obviously a really important communication.

Anyway, to make a short story long because this is a slow week, it was with trembling fingers that I tope open Mr. Montgomery's 90-cent letter. It was a 2-pager! 11 paragraphs with one enclosure and the initials CWM:je at the bottom to let the world know that Mr. Montgomery does not type his own letters, je does it for him.

(Leave us pause a moment to ponder upon the anonymous je, a big city secretary, jean eagle? Joan eastway? Perhaps janice enclave, a pouty blond who used to be a Playboy bunny until she was fired for refusing to allow a stapel in her navel. Does Mrs. Montgomery understand Mr. Montgomery? Is je jacob english?)

And (And how come je has no middle initial? Big shot CWM has one. And how does he rate the capital letters while je is lower case? Who types all the lousy letters without any mistakes, anyway? What kind of discrimination is this? The riot begins at noon in front of Binney and Smith's, girls. Don't forget your signs, upper case).

By now, you are doubtless going nuts trying to figure what old CWM had to say in his 8 paragraphs. I hope you are ready for this:

Mr. Montgomery said I have not been coloring with crayolas all these years. I have been coloring with Crayola crayons. CWM reminded me that recently I wrote a terrible thing. I advised children to draw pictures with "red crayola."

"CRAYOLA is our trademark," wrote upper case CWM. "Ordinarily, it is preferable if our trademark is completely capitalized, i.e., CRAYOLA. If this is not feasible, we request that in addition to being followed by the applicable generic term, at least the initial letter "C" of our trademark be capitalized."

How about that? For a guy whose secretary is je, Mr. Montgomery can get pretty stuffy about capital letters.

CWM concluded: "In the absence of hearing from you to the contrary, we shall assume that you are in agreement with our position."

I would not dream of being contrary about CWM's position of CRAYOLA. In fact, I have not been so ashamed since I spelled Cellophane with a dinky c, the same c I have too often used when writing Coke. I mention these other transgressions against non-generic terms so CWM will realize I have nothing personal against CRAYOLA. I have been a complete idiot about many words. I even used to call every refrigerator a frigidaire, may God have mercy. And I was a long time learning that all paperlike tape is not Scotch tape.

I am so dumb, in fact, I think a manufacturer should be pleased that his mousetrap is so popular the average consumer thinks there is no other way to catch mice. He should appreciate his good fortune ($$$$$) and forget the silly 90-cent letter about capital letters.

But what do I know? If I worked for Binney and Smith, I would be jf.

But maybe je would understand me.

An ounce of prevention

By Jose J. Llinas, M.D. Director of Community Mental Health for Clinton, Eaton and Ingham

Mental retardation is a handicap that many people find hard to understand. . . . But it is really very simple--A mentally retarded person is somebody whose intelligence, or ability to solve problems, is below average. He tends to be slow and it takes longer than ordinary for him to "catch up".

Some retarded people need much help, because their intelligence may be less than one-third normal; others are indistinguishable from the rest of our population since their abilities are very close to the average.

While frustration is many times an important problem for retarded individuals, and it naturally affects their lives, there is no special reason why people with this problem should tend to get upset any more often than the rest of us. It has nothing to do with mental illness; it is no disgrace, certainly not anybody's fault; and we know today there is much that can be done to help.

LEARNING ABOUT RETARDATION

The staff of the community mental health programs in Michigan, and the state institutions have been working very hard to educate the public; so that we all can understand this condition better.

Some months ago, Mrs. Herbert Tompkins, a lady from Kalamazoo, wrote a letter to Dr. E. Gordon Yudashkin, Director of the State Department of Mental Health, expressing her feelings about the problem. She was so clear, forceful and articulate that the department has published her very touching communication.

"Mental retardation," Mrs. Tompkins says, "is a handicap, and should be on an equal basis with any other handicap".

And she goes on to ask how can we get the community at large, which is made up of human beings, to see and accept the mentally retarded as people who are also human beings.

APPEALING TO THEIR HEART

"Possibly", Mrs. Tompkins answers her own question, "by saying to them: How do you think you would feel if you can imagine yourself as mentally retarded?"

Just how do you think you would feel if everyone around you were talking so fast you couldn't understand what they meant, or even what they were talking about?

How would you feel if every so often someone would say to you: "HUURRY UP! Why do you have to be so slow?"

And then before long you realized that nobody wanted to wait for you, so they were doing the necessary things for you, and they kept doing them until you gave up trying.

THE OUNCE OF PREVENTION

As any handicapped person, the mentally retarded needs to feel an adequate sense of self respect. He needs to have a feeling that he belongs, that he has a home, an occupation, a family--that he is a part of our community.

Only the rest of us can give him that feeling.

If you are interested in getting a copy of Mrs. Tompkins' full letter, write to Mr. Joe McCall, Department of Mental Health, Public Information Division, Lansing, Michigan 48926.

The Safety Valve

Answers your questions about every day traffic-related problems. Write Michigan Traffic Safety Information Council, c/o Michigan State Safety Commission, Department of State Police, East Lansing, Michigan 48823. The Safety Valve will try to answer all inquiries. However, not all will be printed.

Question: A newspaper item I read said that soon new drivers won't be getting their license suspended for traffic violations occurring during their probationary period. Is the state relenting, or did I understand this wrong? B.R.O., Niles

Answer: After July 1, 1972, a person convicted of a traffic violation during the first year probationary term of his original driver license may receive restrictive conditions of driving as an alternative to having his license suspended for a period of time. Which means that if the court finds you guilty of the violation for which you were issued a ticket, the driver license examiner who gets this "news item" from the court may decide that just restricting the hours you may drive, or perhaps extending the period of probation, would constitute a severe enough penalty.

The Sidney J. Keys family received a surprise visit recently from their 12-year-old grandson, Mark Wilson and his grandfather, William D. Wilson of Miami. Mark and his grandfather left Florida the latter part of May to travel through several states on a camping trip.

They plan to arrive in Little Switzerland, North Carolina to join Mark's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wilson, the former Jeanne Keys of Elsie, who will be spending their vacation in that area.

They plan to return by way of the Florida panhandle to Miami after nearly two months camping. The only disappointment in the trip thus far, they reported, was the cold weather and rains in central Michigan which necessitated many changes in their Michigan vacation plans.

Carland News Nancy Kusnier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Kusnier, broke her foot while visiting a girlfriend at Higgins Lake, last weekend. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Munson, of Carland, who were at their cottage at Houghton Lake, brought Nancy home, with what was thought to be a sprained ankle; but when taken to Owosso Memorial Hospital as an outpatient, the x-rays showed a fracture, and her foot was put in a cast, and she was returned to her home.

Question: Is there ever a time when you shouldn't apply your automobile brakes to avoid an accident? R. S. M., Parchment

Answer: In a traffic emergency you must know what to do and have the room to do it. Authorities at Michigan State University's Highway Traffic Safety Center advise that in any emergency there's a point of no return; past which your brakes cannot possible stop you in time.

When you're too close, if you've had the foresight to keep maneuvering room open around your vehicle, it's often best to eliminate brake. Instead, try steering around the hazard.

Fishers of men

By REV. HUGH BANNINGA

Why isn't the Church today full of laymen who are winning souls to Christ? Perhaps the answer is that too many Christians just have religion and religion is not enough. To have mere religion is like the Japanese sense of "kami" or a sense of that which is spiritual.

Dr. Joseph Fletcher tells about his visit to Japan and his talks with some of the Buddhists and their religion. "There was nothing either dangerous or exciting about it. It was a religion, pure and simple. Their sense of "kami" does send them out, once in a while, to climb Mt. Fuji, or to visit a neighborhood "baraku" (temple) to strike the gong for their forebears, and even occasionally to practice some spiritual exercises that might finally win them release from the world's troubles and from their very own existence. But it is never a faith that would drive them deeper into the world, into its pain and struggle and purpose. It is quite simply, otherworldly—or, more exactly non-worldly!"

Dr. Fletcher found the Buddhists very religious, but their mere religion only insulated them from the world. In an interview with a Buddhist priest, Dr. Fletcher tells how meaningless mere religion is. He writes, "In our discussions he expressed the most open heart toward all religions and spiritual practices. Finally, I said, "You are very tolerant of the world's religions and ideologies. You believe them, I gather, to be merely 'worldly', and, therefore, unimportant. Then what of anti-Semitism? What of colonial exploitation and wars of aggression? What of those who segregate their neighbors for racial reasons—the Americans, their Negroes, and the Japanese, their "untouchables"? What, for example, do you think about Hitler's gas chambers? "Ah," he said, "that was very silly of him." "Just silly, not evil?", I persisted. His reply was, "No, no. Not evil. Evil is a Christian idea. Good and evil have no ultimate reality."

Dr. Fletcher writes, "There in a single pregnant phrase, is the elemental difference between religion on the one hand, and the urgent, imperative, ethical posture of the Christian faith."

Why aren't Christian laymen in the fishing business? Why (and I dare to get personal now) don't you get out with the net of Jesus' love and God's salvation to gather others into the Kingdom? What ails you? Is it possible that all you have is mere religion? Is it possible that you have to confess the same feelings as the young man who said, "My reading of the Bible is very infrequent. I can't really understand it when I do read. I read a modern translation once in a while though. Most people would describe my witness as poor, but there are a few who say it is pretty good. The hardest part of my Christian life is telling everyone what has happened to me. Living like Christ would want me to be pretty tough too. I need more determination. I always say, 'Well, I'll tell them when I'm older."

This same young man continues to confess. He says, "My spiritual life isn't very healthy. I go to church on Sunday. I listen, but I never apply what the pastor says to my own life. I read the Bible once in a while and I pray when I need help—I don't really know the Lord very well."

Is this what ails you today? I'll bet it is. You don't know the Lord very well and as a result you are reluctant to admit your ignorance to others. So the Church limps along, unable to heed Jesus' call to be fishers of men. The Church limps along, unable to shift into the high gear of the Holy Spirit and become on fire with Jesus' love and God's salvation.

What the Christian layman today needs to do is to get to know the Lord more intimately. More on this next week.

Letter to the Editor:

I read the article concerning the Little League on the front page of your July 12th issue of the Clinton County News.

In this article it stated Little Leaguers are now selling tickets for prizes to be given away to the lucky ticket holder. This is true. It also stated, "The boy selling the most tickets will be given a bicycle and the next five top salesmen will each receive a baseball glove." This is fine, but it is also unfair. Not all of the boys are given an equal opportunity to participate for these prizes.

Some of the boys have been selling tickets for two weeks prior to the publication of this article. Some boys received their tickets Monday night, July 10th, and still others haven't received their tickets yet.

Some boys were under the impression that they were only to sell the 10 books of tickets given to them and if their name was on the winning ticket they also won a prize.

I felt there was poor judgement used in distributing the tickets and/or a misunderstanding between the St. Johns Jaycee and the Little League coaches.

Now, in my estimation the only "fair" way to give each boy an equal opportunity to win one of the prizes would be to put all their names in a hat and draw six. Then, what about the boy who didn't sell any because he didn't have any to sell in the first place.

We try to teach our boys good sportsmanship through the Little League. But how can they be a "good sport" when they are not given an equal chance to participate.

Migrant program begins third year

reach 100.

When the program started three years ago two children were present on the first day and by the end of the seven week session 73 were in attendance. The second year saw five children showing up the first day and a total of 78 at its close.

Michigan ranks third among the states in the utilization of migrant workers with the peak occurring about July 31.

As the harvest season for various crops reaches a peak, the school's attendance figures reflect the influx of migrant families.

Each child appears to be at a different level of learning placing a real challenge to the staff teacher.

The thrust of the educational program is to develop the child's oral language skills in English. The staffers use three basic primary programs to accomplish this. A popular program is one developed especially for the migrant program through the State Department of Education. The program is called the Mistol Program.

The Peabody Program is another program used and language kits are an added feature to help the child's learning ability.

A third program used is Language Experiences in Reading, designed for first thru third graders and Language Experiences in Early Childhood which is geared to the pre-school and kindergarten child.

O'Connor's staff includes John Arehart, Rodney B. Wilson Junior High teacher, Ann LeBlond, a certified teacher, Linda Friesen, a recent graduate of Alma College and Angelita Gutierrez, a guest teacher from San Juan, Texas. Miss Friesen and Miss Gutierrez both speak Spanish fluently.

Joe Gonzales, St. Johns High School Spanish teacher serves as a liaison man between the school and parents.

Others involved are teacher aides, Sue Bunge, Diane Fox, Barbara Kuhns, Maria Soliz, Carol Doyle, Alan Henning, Mike Sutherland and Beth Zuker.

The children arrive at school at 8 a.m. each morning and are served breakfast followed by a free play period during the first hour.

The teachers and aides sit at the tables and eat with the children and encourage conversations in English so that the students may further develop their use of the English language.

The children also eat lunch in school and Mexican as well as American food is served. At 3 p.m. they are given a snack and at 5 p.m. the day ends and they are placed on the bus to return home to their parents.

The classes are very structured and each teacher has designed a daily routine which is followed.

"The children are provided with as many experiences as possible to develop their language," says O'Connor. Among these are many field trips planned throughout the session. Last year a few of the places they visited were Fenner Arboretum, Potter Park and WJIM Television station.

A registered nurse is on duty throughout the school day and O'Connor said health and dental care is offered.

In its second year is an infant day care center which is funded by the state social service agency. The center, licensed by several county and state service offices, can care for up to 20 children.

A picture page on the school's activities will appear in the next issue of the Clinton County News.

On Sunday, July 2, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eldridge and sons hosted a party in honor of the 92nd birthday of Mrs. Eldridge's mother, Mrs. Ida Tiedt, Members of Mrs. Tiedt's immediate family as well as her brothers and sisters and other relatives were guests at supper. We offer our sincere congratulations and continued good health to Mrs. Tiedt.

Randy Moritz of rural Grand Ledge was a guest of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Moritz and family on Saturday, July 1.

Kay Swanson of Maryland spent the 4th of July weekend with her mother, Mrs. Clare Swanson and family. Guests on Saturday July 1 and Sunday, July 2 of Mr. and Mrs. William Ernst and Maxine were Mr. and Mrs. William S. Ernst and family of Battle Creek, Karl Ernst, Airman in the Air Force, is home on furlough. Other visitors in the Ernst home on Sunday were Mrs. Iva Schaefer of Lansing and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. NOTICE

The Michigan Department of State Highways is calling a public hearing at 8:00 p.m. on Wednesday, July 26, 1972 in the gymnasium of the DeWitt High School, 2957 West Herblson Road, DeWitt, Michigan.

The purpose of this hearing is to provide the opportunity for a public discussion of the alternatives under consideration for the proposed construction of I-69 from I-89 northwest of Lansing, easterly to US-27 at the interchange with US-127, which is now under construction. This project is part of a freeway being planned to extend I-69 from Charlotte, Michigan northeasterly to the existing freeway near Perry, Michigan.

A description of the alternatives, maps, and other pertinent information, including comments from interested federal, state and local governmental units as well as local groups and officials, are available for public inspection and copying. This material is located at the DeWitt Township Office Building, 760 Wieland Road; and at the Watertown Township Hall, on Clark Road at Francis Road.

This meeting is held in accordance with Section 116C of the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1956, Section 128 of Title 23, U.S. Code. Information concerning the relocation assistance program and the tentative schedules for right-of-way acquisition and construction will be provided at the hearing. Testimony will be taken from interested citizens regarding the social, environmental and economic impact of the proposed alternatives. Written statements and exhibits in place of, or in addition to, oral statements made at the public hearing may be submitted to G. Robert Adams, Public Hearings Engineer, Michigan Department of State Highways, State Highways Building, Post Office Drawer K, Lansing, Michigan 48904, at any time up to fifteen days after the date of the public hearing.

To further assist you in understanding the proposals, representatives of the Michigan Department of State Highways will be present from 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m.; in the DeWitt Township Office on Wednesday, July 19, and in the Watertown Township Hall on Thursday, July 20, 1972. 9-1 and 12-1

MIDDLEBURY UNITED METHODIST WOMEN
The Middlebury United Methodist Women held a picnic recently at the church with pupils of the Daily Vacation Church School as guests. About 60 enjoyed the cooperative dinner on the lawn.

The meeting was called to order at 1 p.m. by Helen Hubbard, president.

A letter from "Jo's Telephone" was tabled till September. There was a discussion of study material for 1973. The group received a letter regarding the boy, Larry of Brazil, whom they help support, telling of his progress in school.

Announced were a family dinner at church following worship on July with the Churches and Semans as hosts and an open house at the Laingsburg Church on July 12 for the new minister and his wife with Esther Tubbs and her committee assisting.

Leota Gardner thanked all who worked and furnished for the luncheon served to the family of James Warren. A rummage sale will be discussed further at a later meeting.

There was discussion on work needed to be done at the parsonage. The thinking seemed to be that a submitted estimate of costs, before purchases were made, might have been a good idea.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Jordan and daughters entertained Sunday evening to honor their mother, Mrs. Edith Schuknecht on the occasion of her 83rd birthday.

Refreshments of homemade ice cream, cake and ice tea were served.

Those present were Claud Spiess, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Stanton, Mabel Lewis, Florence Garber and Mr. and Mrs. Don Warren and Susan.

Tim Church, Donna Potter and Patti Semans have returned home after spending a week at Camp Barakel near Fairview.

Smoke now, pay now

"I can always give up smoking later, when it starts to be harmful."

If you're counting on that idea as you puff away, better think again. There's a virtual mountain of alarming evidence that demonstrates that every cigarette you smoke does some damage. Consider these effects, described in a July Reader's Digest article by medical authority Walter S. Ross:

"The instant you inhale cigarette smoke, it goes to work - on your heart, your lungs, your whole body. It starts your whole heart pounding an extra 15 to 25 beats per minute, raises your blood pressure by 10 to 20 points. It corrodes the delicate membranes of your lips and palate... chokes the airways and rots the air sacs, leaving a residue of cancer-causing chemicals."

Moreover, the article discloses, cigarettes affect far more than just your heart and lungs. Chemical deposits are dumped in your stomach, kidneys, bladder and other organs. One medical researcher has calculated that 35 per cent of bladder cancers in the United States are caused by cigarettes, resulting in 3100 deaths a year.

Still, this figure fades in importance when compared to lung-cancer deaths: some 55,000 of the 68,000 annual U.S. deaths from lung cancer are caused by cigarettes.

And no wonder. Each cigarette you smoke contains a concentration of carbon monoxide (CO) that is 640 times the level considered safe in industrial plants. CO seeks out red blood cells with an affinity 200 times that of oxygen. Thus a smoker's blood transports five to ten times more lethal CO than is normal. To compensate, the smoker's body is forced to make more red cells. The heart is affected, to the point where one scientist calculates that cigarettes alone are responsible for 188,000 deaths from heart and artery deaths each year in the U.S.

But the most terrifying effect of cigarettes is on the lungs. Unlike some body organs, lung tissue cannot regenerate itself. Once it's destroyed, it's gone forever. The growing rate of emphysema - a disease that destroys the lungs' air sacs - bears witness to smoking's terrible effects.

"Each cigarette does some harm," the Digest declares. "Each additional smoke repeats the insult. Eventually these incessant attacks on the body may turn into disease."

Still, there is hope for smokers. Since smoking is dose-related, cutting down will help to some extent, and smoking cigarettes with efficient filters and less tar and nicotine will reduce the risk of serious illness.

But, says the article, the real payoff comes from quitting. If you stop, the first benefit is that your chronic bronchitis and "smoker's hack" will clear up. "Stay off cigarettes for a year, and your risk of heart attack goes down sharply. Keep it up for two years, and you begin to move out of the lung-cancer danger zone."

"The big thing to remember is that when you stop assaulting your lungs, whatever breathing capacity you have left, you'll keep."

Sixty cents of every hospital dollar must be allocated to wages and salaries.

Conservationists charge federal funds misused

WASHINGTON, D.C.—National park acquisition money should not be used for the development of golf courses and swimming pools, says the National Wildlife Federation.

The Land and Water Conservation Fund, originally intended for the purchase of nearly all Federal and state natural outdoor recreational areas, including national parks, forests, wildlife refuges, wild and scenic rivers, and scenic trails, is being increasingly set upon as a source of funds for development of urban golf courses, swimming pools and tennis courts.

The Fund, set in 1965 at not less than $300 million annually, has not been able to keep pace with the growing demand for public recreation and rising land costs. At present, there is an estimated backlog of nearly 5 million acres to acquire at a projected cost of nearly $2 billion. Many of the proposed areas have already received Congressional authorization.

city dweller's requirements for green space and outdoor recreation." In FY 1973 budget proposal, the Administration requested only half of the funds authorized by Congress for the Open Space Program.

A pending Congressional proposal would open the LWC Fund up even further by allowing indoor recreational facilities to be purchased. "It wouldn't be surprising to see sauna baths and pool halls considered appropriate indoor recreation," noted Hampton.

The LWC Fund, administered by the Interior Department's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, consists of monies derived from Federal recreation fees, sales of Federal surplus real property, and Federal motorboat fuels tax. States are entitled to an even bigger share of the Fund than the Federal government, up to 60 per cent of the revenues on a 50-50 matching basis. Many leading conservation authorities have charged that the Fund has been misused by many states which have directed their portion into central cities.

The Federation is advocating that three major amendments be made in the use of the LWC Fund; an increase to $500 million (sufficient revenues are estimated to be presently available from outer continental shelf oil leases); a 50-50 split of Fund money between the states and Federal agencies, giving the president authority to deviate a certain amount in order to keep demands in balance; and certain strings attached to money flowing to states and subordinate political subdivisions to insure that it is spent properly.

"Unless a major overhaul is made in the way in which the Fund is used," Hampton said, "proposals for future national outdoor areas, such as national parks, might be useless." "The money for purchase of the lands just won't be there."

State police report their May activities

A National Wildlife Federation spokesman charged that money from the already-deficient Fund is being diverted into big city recreational needs. In recent Congressional testimony, Kenneth Hampton, NWF Executive Liaison Officer, said that the Fund should focus on such natural rural and suburban outdoor resources as "trees, flowers, wildlife and streams and lakes—not golf courses, swimming pools, tennis courts, or asphalted playgrounds . . . and certainly not indoor facilities."

Hampton emphasized that conservationists are "in no way opposed to open space and outdoor recreation in the cores of American cities."

"However, there are funds available for that purpose through the Housing and Urban Development Open Space Program," Hampton said. He added that "The Open Space Program should be revitalized and made responsive to the inner EAST LANSING — Michigan State Police officers made 35,592 arrests in May, 32,381 for traffic and motor vehicle offenses and 3,211 on criminal complaints, monthly activity records showed.

In addition, 1,270 juvenile traffic offenders were arrested and 916 delinquent minors apprehended.

Troopers assisted 6,147 motorists, investigated 12,719 cars, issued 41,847 verbal warnings to drivers, and made 22,215 property and 2,482 liquor inspections.

Department vehicles traveled 2,494,468 miles, of which 1,216,005 were on traffic patrol and 1,278,463 while investigating criminal and other complaints.

police agencies to 2,552 drivers. There were 2,342 ratings of intoxication (.10 of a per cent or higher in blood-alcohol level), 66 of impairment, and 144 indicating little or no intoxicant effect. Test refusals numbered 645.

The identification section processed 23,040 sets of fingerprints, of which 13,258 were criminal, and 9,782 noncriminal. Ten wanted persons were identified.

Of 1,991 applicants for permits to carry concealed weapons, 109 were identified with criminal records through fingerprints.

Two unknown dead were identified by the same means.

ATTENDS SEMINAR

Tim Spitzley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Casper Spitzley of St. Johns, Michigan, was among a group of 23 students from Northwood Institute who recently attended a full day's seminar at Walker Manufacturing Company's Engineering and Research Center in Grass Lake, Michigan. Spitzley, second from left, is pictured in Walker's anechoic chamber, where acoustic experiments are performed as part of the Company's sound control research. The students are all participating at Northwood in the Automotive Replacement Management course which provides an Associate Degree in marketing. Upon completion of the two-year curriculum, they will seek careers in the automotive service industry.

To display art work

ANN ARBOR—Gerald G. Johnson of R-2, St. Johns, will be among artists from 43 Michigan communities represented in the 20th annual Michigan Invitational Exhibition which will go on display Thursday, July 20 at the University of Michigan.

Johnson's entry is entitled "The Girl".

The invitational art show at Rackham Galleries will include more than 70 works by outstanding Michigan artists. Many of them have won awards in local and regional shows.

The exhibition and a related art conference Thursday are sponsored by the U-M College of Architecture and Design and the University Extension Service to recognize and encourage the creative ability of Michigan artists.

Richard Muhlberger, recently appointed chairman of education at the Detroit Institute of Arts, will be the featured speaker when the art conference opens at 10 a.m. Thursday in Tackham Lecture Hall.

The Invitational Exhibition will open at 11:30 a.m. The paintings and other art works will remain on display in Rackham Galleries through August 5.

Middlebury News

Sunday, July 16 at 12 noon following the morning worship service there will be a Fellowship dinner at the Middlebury United Methodist Church with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Semans and Mr. and Mrs. Al Church as hosts. Mr. and Mrs. Olson will be guests on the program. Bring own table service and passing dishes.

Wednesday evening, July 12, at 7:30 p.m. a reception will be held at the Laingsburg United Methodist Church to welcome the new pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. Brian Kundering. Both the Middlebury and Laingsburg communities are invited to attend.

MILDEW SEASON IS ALSO HERE!

This fungus is common to the muggy summer weather, especially in closed, damp, poorly aired or poorly lighted areas.

They grow on almost anything that will feed them. Damage ranges from discolored garments to fabric that is so rotted it falls to pieces. They decay wood and discolor leather and paper.

Steps for prevention include keeping likely places as clean as possible. Remove the damp air with proper ventilation or water proofing techniques.

These same instructions hold true for clothing. Clean clothes before storing, even though a fabric is mildew resistant, the soil accumulation will be good feeding grounds. Then store in a dry place.

If you have a mildew problem on leather goods USDA suggests you wipe it with a cloth wrung out of a mixture of:

- 1 cup denatured or rubbing alcohol
- 1 cup water

Dry in a current of air. If mildew remains wash with thick suds, saddle soap, or a soap containing a fungicide or germicide. Air dry then apply a thick coat of wax.

On upholstered articles, mattresses and rugs first remove the mold from outer coverings by brushing with a broom, outside if possible so that spores are not spread. Then vacuum to draw out more. Dry the article as much as possible with electric heaters or fans.

If mildew remains sponge with thick suds or dilute alcohol; use rug shampoo for rugs.

Spray a fungicide to remove mildew and musty odors. Spray frequently. Vapors of paradichlorobenzene or paraformaldehyde used in closed areas will stop mold growth.

Fumigation at a dry cleaners will remove mold on an inner part of a garment, but will not protect against future attacks.

For more information on mildew call the Extension Office for bulletin no. 68 "How to Prevent and Remove Mildew."

AG In ACTION

Agriculture is a growing business in America. The first totals released by the Census Bureau, which conducted a nationwide farm census in 1969, show commercial agriculture making significant gains. A commercial farm is generally figured as having an annual gross sales of at least $2,500.

The nationwide count did show a drop in total farm numbers, but the decline is almost entirely among the part-time, part-retirement and other very small farms that sell less than fifty dollars of farm products per week.

The number of small commercial farms dropped, too, but largely because eighty thousand of them had grown into larger enterprises. Also, the number of farms across our land with gross sales of over ten thousand dollars in a year increased by 79 thousand.

During the five years before the farm census, 1964-1969, the average farm size increased by 38 acres. The amount of irrigated land went up by two million acres. Also, the percentage of tenant farmers fell from 17 per cent of the total to 13 per cent and the percentage of full farm owners rose to 62 per cent.

Family medicine becomes a more specialized field

ANN ARBOR—After years of declining to a relative handful among the multitude of American physicians, the general practitioner has a new title and is enjoying a growing surge of popularity in the medical profession. Once the victim of specialization, the GP has joined them.

Now he's a specialist in family medicine, with new credentials and clout. And he's working effectively with medical schools to bring new persons and new knowledge to his specialty.

The family physician specialty has two major goals, according to Dr. Joseph V. Fisher, M.D., of Chelsea, who is president of the Michigan Academy of Family Physicians and the unofficial chief evangelist for his colleagues in Michigan.

Upgrading the knowledge of all family physicians is the first goal. This is being accomplished through a vast expansion of continuing education courses for family physicians.

For example, at the University of Michigan, the Medical School's department of postgraduate medicine within the past three years has added a new series of courses which span the academic year. Relevant and popular, the topics are picked by the doctors themselves.

The second goal is to attract more medical students into training for family medicine. The success of the recruiting program has amazed the physicians.

At an evening meeting early this spring in an Ann Arbor hotel, some 700 medical students and their present or future spouses jammed the conference rooms just to meet and talk with family practitioners and their spouses about the realities of this medical career. The turnout would have been unheard of five years ago.

The occasion was a joint meeting of the Family Practice Clubs of the Michigan State University and Wayne State University. The first club in the state was organized at U-M under the sponsorship of the academy three years ago.

At the time of the meeting, senior medical students at the U-M indicated only 17 per cent were interested in family medicine. The figure is now near 30 per cent and, Dr. Fisher estimates, when junior classes graduate, the figure climbs to 40 per cent in most medical schools.

He credits much of the resurgent interest to the increased dedication of today's breed of medical students. Physicians call office practice "frontline medicine" and the response has been phenomenal to this new call for volunteers, Dr. Fisher said.

Besides successfully recruiting to fill vacant ranks, family doctors are upgrading their profession by returning to university campuses for regular refresher courses to meet the exacting new standards they have set for their specialty.

For example, at a recent week-long review course, some 180 family doctors from Michigan and other Midwest states heard 41 lectures from the U-M Medical Center faculty and other guest experts in subspecialties. They were among the 2,700 physicians who attend postgraduate courses annually at the U-M Medical School.

For family doctors, who cannot afford the time to get away to a university, the U-M postgraduate department is packaging classes in a brief case and sending them out to small hospitals all over the state.

U-M is now producing 24 self-instruction programs per year which a doctor can put into an inexpensive slide projector and tape player to teach himself innovations in clinical medicine any time he has a few minutes to spare at a local hospital.

The Michigan Academy of Family Physicians is involved in both innovating and planning new instruction programs at the U-M, according to Dr. Neal A. Vanselow, M.D., new chairman of the Department of Postgraduate Medicine and Health Professions Education.

About 3,200 physicians in the United States have passed the examinations of the American Board of Family Practice after preparation through these varied courses.

The specialty is the 20th to be recognized by the American Medical Association. Its members have to pass an exam every six years to remain qualified.

Although interest in family medicine is growing, there remain some major drawbacks in the minds of medical students. The heavy responsibility and long hours of the lone physician have caused many to shy away into more comfortable circumstances of other specialties.

However, group practice and its many variations, in which several doctors share an office and the responsibilities for patients, have gone a long way to alleviating this concern, according to Dr. Cecelia Hissong, M.D., of Dearborn, a member of the commission on education of the Michigan Academy of Family Physicians.

Another fear of future physicians is that they never will be able to master all the knowledge required of a family physician, she said.

"After four years in medical school in which students go for instruction from specialist to specialist, some become convinced they'll never know enough to enter family medicine," she said.

"We want them to know they can handle it and that they themselves can take care of 90 per cent of the medical problems they find."

But to give the necessary experience before entering private practice, she said, the Academy is promoting the establishment of more family practice residencies in hospitals and medical schools.

These are three-year graduate programs which, among other things, have the resident spend progressively more of his time in a model family practice care unit which closely simulates a practicing physician's office.

The resident is given increasing responsibility for a growing case load of families to which he gives total health care, with advice and some supervision by faculty.

He also learns how to care for himself, pacing his work load, how to supervise the technicians, nurses and clerks he will need in private practice, and how to administer bookkeeping and a myriad of other paperwork chores which will make demands on his time.

There are nearly 80 of these residency programs established across the nation. Five are in Michigan at Flint, Saginaw, Dearborn, Lansing and Midland, where the program is affiliated with the U-M Medical School. Another U-M affiliate residency is being set up in Ann Arbor and surrounding Washtenaw County.

On the undergraduate medical school level, there now are senior year preceptorships in which medical students leave the campus to continue part of their education in the office of a family practitioner. They gain valuable experience in the spectrum of disease not generally seen in a university hospital.

All three medical schools in Michigan have set up four to 12-week preceptorships with the cooperation of 200 private physicians.

A further taste of family medicine is offered by the medical students themselves who have organized with the Michigan State Medical Society, a summer orientation program for freshmen and sophomores.

The students are paid $80 per week, plus board and room, for eight to ten weeks during the summer to train with family physicians at small community hospitals.

Nature trails attract thousands each year

Michigan offers almost countless trails with opportunities varying from hiking to short strolls just to observe nature, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

With the help of leading conservationists, Auto Club has listed some of the more outstanding trails, gardens, nature centers and arboretums which attract thousands of visitors each year.

With few exceptions, admission is free to these outdoor attractions.

Nature trails are found at five parks operated by the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority, a regional park serving residents of Livingston, Macomb, Oakland, Washtenaw and Wayne Counties. They are Stony Creek Metropolitan Park near Utica, Kensington Metropolitan Park near Mt. Pleasant, Lower Huron Metropolitan Park near Belleville, Metropolitan Beach near Mt. Clemens and Hudson Mills Metropolitan Park near Dexter.

The first three also have nature centers. The trails at Stony Creek, located in a wooded valley and hills, explore woods, meadows, stream banks and small ponds. Kensington's self-guiding trails start near the nature center building while wildflowers are a specialty at Lower Huron Park.

Other nature centers are located at historic Nankin Mills, once owned by the late auto pioneer Henry Ford, in Wayne County's William P. Holliday Park near Carl G. Fenner Arboretum in Lansing; and Drayton Plains Nature Center. All contain permanent exhibits which include rocks and minerals, wood samples, trees, seasonal plants, and Great Lakes birds and fish.

The William P. Holliday Park, a 500-acre forest and wildlife preserve, located between Joy and Warren Roads in Westland and Livonia, extends westward from the Middle Rouge Parkway along Tongah Creek, a distance of three miles.

Twelve miles of walking trails, some only a half mile long, wind through secluded natural areas. The park is operated by the Wayne County Road Commission.

Michigan's longest hiking trail extends 200 miles, from Empire on Lake Michigan to Tawas City on Lake Huron. Established by the state legislature in 1944, it was planned to accommodate both hikers and horseback riders.

Another long back-packing hiking trail is on Isle Royal National Park, in northwest Lake Superior off the Keweenaw Peninsula. It extends the length of the island, about 45 miles. The park is also a shorter trail on the island-five miles round-trip—for those who just want a taste of wilderness.

The Sney National Wildlife Refuge also is in the Upper Peninsula. It adjoins Germantown on M-77. The refuge extends 20 miles, from a planned to accommodate both hikers and horseback riders.

Onaway State Park, in Presque Isle County, six miles north of Onaway on M-211, has 158 acres, most of it situated on the western shore of Lake Huron. It has many nature trails, a few of which are open to the public. Others have nature study and interpretive services.

The Matthaei Botanical Gardens at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, has several nature trails. Outstanding gardens throughout the state include:

The Cranbrook House Gardens which surround the home of the late Mr. and Mrs. George C. Booth, on Lone Pine Road in Bloomfield Hills north of Detroit.

The Hidden Lake Gardens at Tipton, is comprised of 620 acres of rolling countryside in the scenic Irish Hills of southeastern Michigan. The original owner, Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Fee, of Adrian, gave Hidden Lake Gardens to Michigan State University in 1945 and set up trust funds to insure future maintenance and development. The Hidden Lake Gardens Center Building and a new plant Conservatory, both given by the Herrick family of Tecumseh, were opened in 1966 and 1968.

A showplace in Midland is the Dow Gardens on West Main Street. Guide service to this 30-acre area is available by appointment daily during the summer.

The Upper Peninsula also has outstanding Italian-style flower gardens at Marquette French Prison, south of Marquette, maintained entirely by inmates.

In addition to Lansing, arboretums are located in Battle Creek; Hillsdale and Ann Arbor. An arboretum, trees and shrubs are cultivated for scientific or educational purposes. Lella, at Battle Creek, contains 505 acres of rare plantings.

At Hillsdale, the Slayton Arboretum is an 80-acre outdoor laboratory for the botany and zoology department of Hillsdale College, containing 1,200 varieties of plants and trees and many animals.

Ann Arbor's Nichols Arboretum, connected with the university, has some 3,000 species of trees, shrubs and herbaceous plants, a collection of 140 varieties of hybrid lilacs and a formal garden with 360 kinds of peonies.

IS ANYONE interested in participating in a meats judging team? Michigan State University Professor Robert Merkel is willing to work with six counties interested in having a meats judging team. Members must be over 14 years of age as of January 1, 1972. The counties would have a one day training session and a state contest to see who would represent Michigan at the National 4-H Meat Identification Contest, October 12 at Kansas City, Missouri.

The members would judge one class of beef carcasses, one class of pork carcasses, two classes of beef cuts, one class of pork cuts and identify 25 retail cuts of beef, pork, lamb and veal. This contest is open to both boys and girls. If any youth or club is interested in this program they should contact the Extension Office right away.

4-H LEADERS are reminded that Fair Books are available at the Extension Office as well as entry blanks. The deadline for entry blanks is Wednesday, July 26. If your leader has not completed an entry slip for your project yet please check with them right away.

PRESIDENT Richard Nixon has proclaimed the week of July 25-31 as National Farm Safety Week. The theme is "Protective Equipment - Your Defense Against Injury." Agriculture continues as the nation's third most dangerous occupation and in 1971 work connected accidental deaths and disabling injuries numbered an estimated 2300 and 190,000 respectively. In addition many more thousands of farm and ranch residents were injured or killed in traffic, home and recreation accidents. Let's make Farm Safety Week a year round program.

It's cherry picking time at Clinton orchards

By Lee Peters
News Staff Writer

CLINTON COUNTY - It's cherry picking time in Clinton County.

And this year's fruit is a bumper crop helping to make Clinton area the cherry capitol of central Michigan.

Three growers have opened their orchards to folks who want to pick their own sweet and tart cherries. They're Beck Orchards, North US-27; Cowles Orchard, 8400 N. Grove Rd., and Phillip's Orchards, 1174

S. Gratiot County Line Rd. "We've got a real good crop this year and especially in the tarts," report Farmer and Mary Phillips. They admit they don't sell like they used to because of today's modern freezing techniques.

"People don't like to take the time to pit 'em," smiles Mrs. Phillips. "These days they want things done up in neat little packages." She guesses they'll weigh in four tons of cherries this season - if the birds leave them that long.

That's one of the biggest problems a cherry grower has according to Phillips. Black birds, robins, starlings, orioles, blue jays and even woodpeckers... any bird, he says.

Mrs. Phillips grins. "We laugh. People think the spray kills the birds, but it doesn't. They thrive out there and aren't scared at all. They just blink their eyes, settle down in their nests and wait for us to finish."

Trees are sprayed five times a year for the cherry fruit fly, Phillips explains that the fly stings the cherry and lays an egg that eventually leads to another fly. Their three acres are also sprayed after picking. "If the leaves get diseased," he says, "they'll fall off and that will make a weaker tree that won't stand the winter so good."

To insure a good crop, trees must be fertilized and trimmed early in the spring. "We trim to get out dead limbs," he tells, "so that light can get in. And then after picking we fertilize with straight nitrogen."

Phillips continues, "People don't realize that the buds are on right now for

It's a family affair at Cowles Orchard. Weighing the newly-picked crop are grandchildren, Melanie and Abraham Nemcik. Looking on is their mom, Marcia Cowles Nemcik, with, at left, Bertha Simon, Pewamo and her daughter, Marie Smith, Portland.

This is the way it looks at cherry orchards throughout the Clinton County area. Elaine Kuchar of Henderson shows son Michael how to pick the juicy red fruit while grandmother, Mary Fabus of Elsie helps Sharon.

It's cherry picking time

next year's crop. That's why you fertilize - to produce stronger and more buds. Then around May 1 the tree blossoms and by the latter part of the month you can begin to see the cherries." The Phillips have raised cherries 50 years. Parmer's father, Austin was in the business as was his father, James.

Another family operation is just a couple miles from the Phillips place. The two-acre cherry orchard of Coyne and Elizabeth Cowles has been on North Grove Rd. since 1903.

Helping out during the three-week harvest are their daughter, Marcia and her husband, Larry, along with their kids, Melanie and Abraham.

A third orchard found on the gravel soil and hilly land of northern Clinton County is Beck's. John and Carolyn Beck bought the orchard including six acres of cherries, from his father in 1963.

All three are taking advantage of this year's bumper crop with customers arriving as early as 5:30 in the morning and others leaving at dusk. Cherries are still ripening and the season will continue this week or longer if good weather persists.

Fruit growers, Parmer and Mary Phillips, left, check cherries picked by the Davises of Portland, Pungs of Pewamo-Westphalia and Thelens of Fowler.

Bits and Pieces

It was nice

By HAROLD SCHMALTZ

Well, so much for "Vacation '72". The last couple weeks presented memorable events as most vacations do but it's hard to believe that as much happened as did.

Starting out with a 5-state tour with my three older sons done in the finest tradition of "roughin' it", we ended up with what was supposed to be a relaxing week at our Mullet Lake retreat at Cheboygan.

A couple of the kids gave ole Mom and Dad a fright last Friday afternoon while going on a little boating excursion of their own. Usually most planned boat trips are announced in advance for parental approval. This particular one wasn't. After getting the fine help from our own family fleet plus the expedient assistance from the Cheboygan County Sheriff's Patrol, two drenched and courageous youngsters were found quite safe aboard their little rowboat, about five miles away from home port. What the kids had done was row their way along the lake shore not realizing how much distance they were racking up. And they didn't even have blisters on their hands, that was the unbelievable thing.

One might wonder how two kids could go undetected for three hours but with five others plus family relation numbering no less than 25, I'm sure it would be understandable. The comment that topped everything was from Rebecca, my twelve-year-old, "Gosh, Dad, I don't know why everyone was worried. We knew where we were all the time." Doesn't that just sound like raw courage? Anyway, we were all thankful for their safe return.

Some of the rest of the time was spent reminiscing over our trip south. Our real purpose of the trip was to pay a visit to my birthplace in Owensboro, Kentucky and to visit historical spots throughout the state. We started with Gentryville, Indiana where we saw Abe Lincoln's boyhood homestead plus Nancy Hanks' grave then crossed over into Kentucky where Hodgenville, Fort Harrod at Harrodsburg, Mammoth Cave, Bowling Green, the site of Western Kentucky University all became stopping points.

Being a real "bug" on the Civil War, I took the boys to Perryville, Kentucky where an actual North and South battle took place. As I stood looking over the grassy terrain I found it hard to understand why 22,000 Union soldiers and 16,000 Confederates had to meet, leaving over 7,000 dead after the encounter.

We headed on eastward to Lexington where the Bluegrass Country in all its splendor delivered pictures of beautiful white fences, immaculate barns as well as homes plus the breathless sight of thoroughbreds grazing by the winding hillsides. I needn't mention that the boys were impressed with my homeland.

On our way back northward we headed up through Ohio to get a look at Cincinnati and Dayton and spent the night at Piqua. I selected this spot purposely because a former associate, Logan Cox, advertising manager at the Gratiot County Herald, came from there. Besides, Piqua had some historical interest to me as it used to be quite a gathering place for Indians in times gone past.

All in all, I'd say the tour for the boys and myself was truly beneficial and already we're thinking ahead to next year with names in mind such as Shiloh, Chattanooga, Chickamauga and Lookout Mountain.

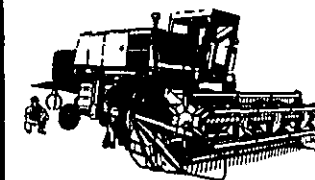

Now it's back to the drawing boards until that time rolls around again.

Carland News

by Mrs. Pudge Deming
The Carland United Methodist Women's Society of Christian Service served approximately 200 people at the sloppy-joe supper and ice-cream social Wednesday evening at the Carland church-house.

The nominating committee is to bring a meeting about this month to prepare a slate of officers for the coming year to vote upon at the August meeting which is to be a picnic dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Deming hosted a birthday party, Tuesday evening, for their daughter, Mrs. Richard (Diane) Mead of St. Johns. The dinner table was centered with a decorated cake with candles in salmon-pink colors.
