Election officials feel sheriff race attracts voters

ST. JOHNS--Election officials were predicting a slightly higher than average turnout Tuesday as Clinton County residents visited the ballot boxes to cast their votes in the August primary.

St. Johns City Clerk reported "everything was running pretty smoothly" as polls opened at 7 a.m. Tuesday and noted this was a change from previous August elections. He explained that usually its the first election in the year and it takes time for precinct workers to get organized. "But this year with the May primary, it's only been a few weeks ago we went through the same thing."

Hundley predicted Clinton County would have a larger voter turnout than other areas in the state because the "hot sheriff's race" should draw more people to the polls.

CLINTON COUNTY Clerk Ernest Carter agreed the sheriff's race would create more voter interest than is normally expected in a primary election. "Usually folks just wait and vote in the general election," he said.

Carter also pointed out township proposals on the ballot in Eagle and Watertown should increase voting there. "Eagle is voting on millage for a new bridge and Watertown for roads," he said, "and this should generate a little above average voter turnout in these townships."

There are 21,623 persons registered to vote in Clinton County during the primary and past records indicate only about half of this number will cast ballots. A much higher percentage is expected in November when ballots are cast for President and a Michigan Senator.

A CHECK of the five voting precincts in St. Johns at noon Tuesday revealed 562 ballots had been cast out of a total of 3,182 voters registered for the primary election.

Election officials indicated voters are turning out in larger numbers than anticipated and four Republican candidates seeking the office of Clinton County Sheriff is believed to be the major drawing card. The majority of voters were expected to visit the polls after work.

A breakdown by voting precinct in St. Johns of ballots cast by noon shows: PRECINCT NO. 1 - 134; PRECINCT NO. 2 - 86; PRECINCT NO. 3 - 113; PRECINCT NO. 4 - 134; PRECINCT NO. 5 - 95.

First voter

Mrs. St. Clair Pardee of 400 E. Buchanan in St. Johns was the first voter in line as the polls opened in St. Johns Tuesday morning at 7 a.m. Handing Mrs. Pardee her registration form is Mrs. Frazer MacKinnon of 304 E. Buchanan St. In the background making a final check on the voting machines is St. Johns City Clerk Thomas Hundley.

New US-27 freeway is eight years away

Several Clinton County officials motored to Ithaca last week and learned a fact they have suspected - it'll be at least eight to ten years before a new US27 freeway is constructed between Lansing and Ithaca.

Three representatives from the Michigan Department of Highways were on hand to answer questions about road problems with officials from Clinton and Graftiot County.

Don Rush, state highway programming engineer, said plans for the US27 project are contained in the transportation bill now before the Michigan Senate. It passed the House in February and calls for a two cent hike in the state gas tax.

"If the bill passed today," explained Rush, "the earliest contracts could be let would be seven or eight years away." He cited the time consuming public hearings on environmental impact and highway design as major factors in delaying immediate construction.

A further problem state highway officials encounter in the construction of interstate freeways is the fact funds and rules come from the federal government. "We get our money from the federal government and they also set the rules up," Rush said. About 75 per cent of all funds received from federal sources must be used on interstate systems.

Clinton County Commissioner Roy Andrews asked Rush if "they have anything on the planning boards to relieve the bottleneck in St. Johns".

The highway engineer explained even preliminary studies are being held up because no funds are available but he added that "when the US27 corridor is approved, we'll definitely be pushing to get that south end sooner."

The meeting did result in the announcement by highway officials of two traffic improvements planned for this year but both projects are slated for problem intersections in Graftiot County.

Michael Jones, state safety traffic engineer, reported construction of a left turn lane and a traffic signal will be installed at M46 and Business US27 north of Alma. He said contracts for construction of the left turn lane will be let August 16. "Even if the entire job cannot be completed this year, the signal will be installed," Rush added. He estimated the project would cost about $110,000 but noted this figure is tentative until bidding is completed.

The other project Jones revealed as planned for this year is a four-way stop at the Lincoln and State intersection east of Alma. He reported a recent traffic survey discovered many cars are failing to stop at this corner and the situation is regarded as hazardous. Plans call for large flashing lights to be installed on all four approaches to the corner.

A variety of other highway problems was touched upon and the traffic engineers made several notes of things to investigate further when they return to their offices. Robert Thompson, chairman of the Graftiot County Board of Commissioners, conducted the meeting. He noted a lack of communication between local officials and the state highway department has been a problem in the past but said the flow of information at last week's meeting has helped breach this gap.

Republican ad draws fire from candidates deleted

ST. JOHNS--Charges by local Republican office seekers that the party acted improperly when placing an ad in the COUNTY NEWS will be discussed during a meeting of the executive board of the Clinton County GOP Committee August 16. The discussion is planned immediately after the regular county convention which convenes at 8 p.m.

James Palmiter, county party chairman, placed the ad last week which listed Republican candidates on the primary ballot that were in "good standing" with the party. According to Palmiter, the list was compiled from a check of current memberships.

Eight Republican candidates were deleted from the list and Friday morning Palmiter met with two of these office seekers, Mrs. Jeanne Rand and Larry Floate. Mrs. Rand presently serves as a St. Johns City Commissioner and was running for county commissioner. Floate was a candidate for sheriff.

office holder who refuses to work for the party or contribute to it financially will be denied party support at election time.

Mrs. Rand said as a result of this incident "we've found out this is a bad rule and it has to be changed." In defense of her failure to purchase a ten dollar membership or attend party meetings, she pointed out "when you're on city commission, you're non-partisan and don't flaunt your party around."

The St. Johns City Commissioner went on to say "it's the principle of the thing that gnaws at me" and added an extreme distaste for a monetary value being placed on a person's party affiliation.

"I'm a good Republican and if I have to buy my way into the party, I'll look into how the Democrats operate," Mrs. Rand continued while recalling her mother's previous service as the party's county chairman and GOP woman's club president.

Speaking on behalf of Floate was his campaign manager, Paul Tonella of Fowler who said "all we ask is to be given the right to be Republicans without giving ten dollars." Palmiter responded by stressing the expense of running a political party and said "without funds we just cannot operate."

When Mrs. Rand asked if you can be a Republican in Clinton County without paying anything, Palmiter replied that "you can't belong to any other organization without paying". Mrs. Rand and Floate both told Palmiter they were sure the deletion of their names was not a personal matter but agreed the rule in question was a bad one. Palmiter explained that attendance at party meetings and support for a change in this rule would be their best course of action.

It is expected further discussion on this rule requiring paid party memberships will develop at the August 16 GOP County Convention.

Do campaign signs influence voters?

The four candidate race for Clinton County Sheriff in this week's primary election added much color to the landscape in recent weeks. Signs on cars, stuck in lawns and placed along the roadways all were designed to attract the public eye and then hopefully votes.

In a continuing weekly effort to check the pulse of public opinion in Clinton County, the COUNTY NEWS conducted a random telephone survey to discover what effect campaign signs have on the average voter. We asked people if such efforts influence their decision on election day.

Checking the pulse of public opinion in Clinton County

Here are their comments:
 "We had a sign in our yard," relays Mrs. John M. Ryan, "but it disappeared from our lawn one night." The Ryan woman who lives at 606 S. Maple in Maple Rapids thinks the signs are all right, but extensive campaigning isn't that great.

Political signs around the country are a "bunch of baloney," says Vincent Ackles of 254 E. Main in Elsie. "They get torn down and thrown around," he ventures. Ackles believes the county campaign should be more people to people. "Although it's nice to get your name before the people," the businessman says, "that doesn't answer any questions."

VOICING A SIMILAR opinion was Mrs. August Martin of 101 S. Oakland. "I think it's ridiculous to spend all that money. I guess that's what they have to do to get in," but she hesitated, "I don't think it's necessary at all." Anyway, she injected, the best guy's going to win. The St. Johns woman suggested there should be a limit as to how much is spent on campaigning at the county level.

"If they've got the money - sure - anything that would help them win," said Gary Harris of 109 S. Morton, St. Johns who admitted he had already decided for whom he would cast his ballot. He continued, "all the candidates have a chance, but maybe one guy's got more money, but that's politics. He told the NEWS he made his choice because he felt one candidate was a more active campaigner. "At the Fourth of July celebration, he was giving out yardsticks and balloons. One man came to our door handing out pamphlets," Harris revealed, "but it contained information I already knew."

ALTHOUGH SHE'S not yet old enough to vote, Linda Cole, 17, of 402 S. Emmons said she was up on the situation. They're just a bunch of signs and I don't think people really pay that much attention to them. A St. Johns High School Senior, she stated, "if I was 18 I would vote for the person who I felt was most qualified by studying his record."

"It doesn't influence my vote," spoke out Bob Waltz of Laingsburg, but it does make people more aware." He didn't plan to vote in Tuesday's primary.

"Those signs work on your opinion," believes Mrs. John Daniel of 415 E. Prospect in Ovid. A newcomer to the Clinton area, she feels what you read helps. "I don't know too much about it," she revealed, "but what you see makes you ask questions and talk to other people."

MRS. JAMES NUSER of 902 E. State, St. Johns is tired of looking at those signs. "I'm going to vote, but I'll get my information by word of mouth. It doesn't make any difference to me how much they spend on their campaigns."

"I've got some catching up to do," said Mrs. Claude Moore, 3914 County Farm Rd. "I haven't made up my mind who I'm going to vote for, and I don't pay much attention to signs."

A DeWitt resident, Donald G. Fineis of 4225 Driftwood, spoke out against signs. "I don't especially like 'em," he replied. "I don't care who anybody else is going to vote for," he said referring to posters in yards. When asked if he was going to vote, Fineis replied, "You bet I am... as long as my wife keeps me informed."

"We knew who we were going to vote for already," answered Mrs. John W. Speck, 602 W. State, St. Johns. But, she chipped in, if we hadn't know I think it would have helped. It shows that people are concerned and want to support somebody.

Immunization clinic planned

THEY'RE CANOERS

Maple Rapids men paddle to state lead

by LEE PETERS
 News Staff Writer

MAPLE RAPIDS-You'll never catch Ron Dean and Jim Brunner up a creek without a paddle.

... not while they're members of the Michigan Canoe Racing Association. So far in this season's competition, the Maple Rapids racing team is leading state-wide amateur division.

A VETERAN CANOER, Dean, 31, first caught the racing bug while attending the Maple River Canoe Derby last year. The 18-mile event is staged by the Ashley Boy Scouts between Elsie dam and Blair Road Bridge.

Dean enticed newcomer Brunner, 29, to be his partner and the pair began entering races. Their latest triumph was a 10th place in the AuSable River Race from Grayling to Oscoda. They entered the world's championship race for professionals as amateurs. Of the 29 canoes that set out, only 11 finished the 240 miles.

Paddling straight through, Dean reports it took 18 hours and 46 minutes to reach Oscoda. Brunner, whose hands were raw with blisters quips, "we wanted to take along a motor, but they wouldn't let us." Dressed in lightweight clothing, covered by required life jackets, they carried only liquid nutrient, orange slices and protein pills when they took off July 8. At a victory banquet at Oscoda's AuSable Inn they were presented a plaque.

The golden memento goes along with seven trophies they've already won. Other events they've canoed in include Maple River, Holly, Petoskey, Horton, East Rockwood, Tawas, Milford and Bay City. Races are an average of 20 miles for between 10 and 13 canoes in the amateur division.

The two Clinton County men built their own canoe this spring. It was a lot of "skin power," says Dean, who learned the basics while working in a body shop. They used some of their own ideas to construct the 18 foot long by six inch deep and 32 inch wide craft.

It took 85 man hours and $80, they estimate, to make the canoe to amateur specifications out of redwood strips and fiberglass cloth. After it was finished they launched in on the Maple River for practice sessions.

When not on rivers, streams and lakes, Ron works at Bee's in St. Johns and Jim is a Diamond Reo employee in Lansing. They admit they took to canoeing because it's a quick and clean sport. Their wives don't always agree. Bobbi Dean says they come home pretty "grubby and wet," but that the kids, Ronnie, 10, and Deb, 8, like to join in the fun. They and the Brunner family, Mom Chris and Sandra, 11, Tammy, 10, and Tina, 9, follow the races from bridge to bridge.

Commissioners approve funds for new police radio network

ST. JOHNS-Clinton County Commissioners have approved the purchase of a new police radio communications after acceptance of a bid on the second go around.

Two bids - one by Motorola and another by RCA - were both rejected during a June board meeting after RCA officials objected that the specifications are prepared by Motorola. The radio network is tied in with federal grants under the Tri-County Law Enforcement Communications Systems and Motorola drew up the specifications for units throughout the country.

LAST WEEK Clinton commissioners awarded the contract to Motorola who presented a low bid of $119,091. RCA submitted a bid of $119,954.

Purpose of the new radio communications system is to link Clinton police units with those in the nearby counties of Eaton and Ingham. The three counties form a Tri-County setup which frequently works together in fighting crime, fires and natural disaster.

Under the program, Clinton County will pay $21,850 of the cost while six other local governmental units chip in another $8,717. These six include the city of DeWitt, Maple Rapids, Elsie, Victor Township, Ovid and Bath. The remaining cost is covered by federal funds.

They're roasting in DeWitt

DeWITT - The 26th Annual DeWitt Ox Roast, Saturday, Aug. 19 in downtown DeWitt, promises to be an enjoyable day for the whole family.

The day's highlights include a colorful 10 a.m. parade, H.O. Nature light show in predawn sky Friday

Clinton County residents are in for an aerial "light show" during the predawn hours Friday when a annual shower of meteors flash across the skies.

According to University of Michigan astronomer Hazel M. Losh, this cluster of bright "shooting stars" known as the Perseids - will reach a peak of about 70 per hour early Friday morning. The iron or stone meteors, which burn up when they enter the earth's atmosphere at high speeds, grow more numerous with the approaching dawn.

The U-M astronomer says the meteors are believed to be debris spread out along the orbit of a comet and they appear to radiate from a point in the constellation Perseus in the northeast. Although the shooting stars' paths may seem divergent, Professor Losh notes they actually move along parallel lines. The meteors can glow as brightly as the North Star upon hitting our atmosphere, she adds, but they are probably no larger than the head of a pin.

AT THIS point, Frost explained that present equipment often becomes blocked out by larger and more powerful units used by other police units nearby.

Clinton County Sheriff Percy Patterson also appeared at the meeting and he introduced East Lansing Police Chief Charles Pegg who explained the advantages this new equipment offers to law enforcement officers.

Pegg stressed the importance of teamwork between police agencies in effectively fighting crime particularly in the areas of robbery and narcotics which often spill over into a several county area.

Another major issue presented to Clinton commissioners last week was a request from the Mid-Michigan District Health Department for additional funds. Commissioner Roy Andrews reported the agency shows an anticipated deficit of $23,000 for this budget year.

Open Letter from VAN W. HOAG

Dear friends,

It deserves emphasis that the time, the place, the character of the funeral service, the merchandise used, the cemetery selected - these are decisions of the family of the deceased. The funeral director acts only as a representative of the family.

The clergyman should be consulted in matters that concern him before any decisions are made.

Respectfully,

Van W. Hoag

Applications ready for crop insurance

ST. JOHNS - Don Oesterle, sales assistant of the Federal Crop Insurance of Michigan, announced today that applications are being taken for 1973 protection on wheat, corn, and soybeans.

This is the first time that farmers have been offered the government "all-risk" program this early in the season.

THE "ALL-RISK" policy protects farmers' crops from damage by all natural hazards such as hail, drought, excess moisture, flood, frost, all types of bugs, and plant disease.

So far this season there has been no wide areas of loss but some small severe hail storms have totally destroyed the crops of several farmers.

More corn-belt farmers are now insuring their crops under the U.S.D.A. program than any time since 1939.

This participation by top farmers has made it possible to increase the benefits without increasing the costs.

This is a self-help farm program, the premiums paid by farmers pay for the losses of their crops.

For specific information on how this would help your farming operations, please contact the office in Coldwater.

Fowler's peddling pair

Fowler youths peddle to bridge and back

FWLER - Five hundred and fifty miles and a few aching muscles later, Bill Klein and Bob Wesner are back home in Fowler. The two Clinton County youths peddled to the tip of the lower peninsula and back on a trip that took them four days. The veteran bicycle travelers have some tips to offer would-be adventurers. "It's not something you can do by just jumping on a bike and taking off," Bob advises. Bill agrees. "You've got to build up your endurance," he suggests. THE PEDDLING PAIR revealed that they practiced for about three months prior to their takeoff July 7. "We would ride maybe 10 miles a night and then push it to 40 in a weekend," they relate. Fowler High School graduates, they admit they did it for the challenge. "Everybody said we'd get to Maple Rapids and turn around," they smile. So when they were out of work during changeover at Fisher Body in Lansing, they jumped at the chance. On a rainy Friday morning at 11 o'clock, Bob 21, and Bill, 20, took off on their 10-speed Raleighs. It took 10 hours to reach a cabin owned by Bob's uncle at Houghton Lake where they stayed the first night. Continual showers and changing temperatures slowed them down to about 10 miles an hour, reaching the Mackinaw Bridge the second day. They recall riding an average of 10 to 12 hours each day. The longtime friends said they chose old US-27 because it's unlawful to ride a bike on the freeway. "It sure would have been a lot easier on the super highway," Bill mentions, "but tourists are in a hurry and it's too dangerous." Although many motorists showed a genuine interest in the boys' undertaking, others shouted at them with scorn. While on the road, they wore shorts and tee shirts and saddle bagged their provisions. Included were tools for repairs and water. Other standard equipment was a horn and front and back lights.

Surviving are his wife Irene and three sons. Services were Wednesday at Holy Cross Catholic Church. The body reposed at the Palmer-Bush Funeral Home in Lansing.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rock, Bobby Rock, and Sharon Rock returned Thursday after touring the midwest. They visited the Rocky Mountains, a National Park in Colorado, Yellowstone Park and Mt. Rushmore.

Maryellen Saxton receives honor

MARYELLEN SAXTON

Mrs. Jerry (Maryellen) Saxton was notified recently that she has been selected for inclusion in the eighth edition of Marquis Who's Who of American Women. Mrs. Saxton is the daughter of Mrs. Ethel Ellen Bushre of 8000 Welling Rd. in Eureka, and the late Harry Lee Bushre.

Employed at Federal Mogul Corporation in St. Johns from 1952 until 1967, Mrs. Saxton served for four years as secretary of the Federal Mogul Employee's Credit Union, and as president for two years. At present, Mr. and Mrs. Saxton are associate brokers in the firm of Jerry Saxton, Realtor in Harrison, where she is secretary of the Clare-Gladwin Board of Realtors, secretary of the Harrison Chamber of Commerce, and president of the Harrison Chamber of Commerce Auxiliary.

Listing in Who's Who of American Women cannot be obtained by request or purchase, but solely by selection by Who's Who editors and researchers. Published as a reference work, the volume contains about 25,000 biographical sketches of women throughout North America and the world, who have achieved continuing accomplishments.

Checking roll form sections off the new Tishken Roll Forming machine are Central National Bank President Harold Wellman and Hancock Plant Manager Bob Cleary. The product from this operation is a component of the seat adjusters manufactured here in Elsie. This machine was added just this year as part of Hancock's expansion and improvement program.

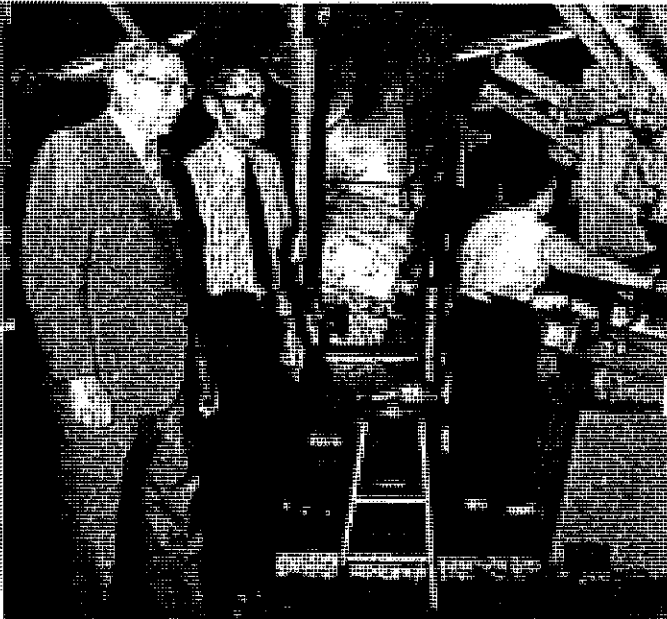

Jerry Siddock, quality control technician, performs a destructive test on a seat adjuster which is a part of the stringent quality control requirements of the firm's customers and the federal government. This enables the company to be sure that all products meet all their safety requirements.

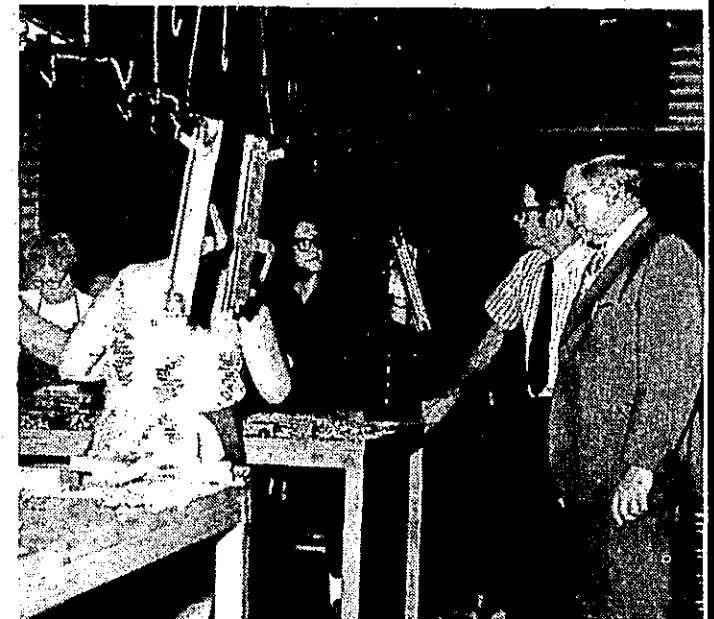

See the Hancock product display in the Lobby of the Central National Bank

Wellman watches as these seat tracks are being automatically conveyed thru the washers and phosphate system and ultimately thru the painting process.

Wellman and Cleary watch Ellen Griffin operate one of the five new secondary presses installed recently at the Elsie facility. This operation is an integral part of manufacturing seat adjusters.

Barbara Sipka, Madge Owen and Constance Ballard are shown in the final assembly of Chrysler seat tracks before the products are conveyed thru the paint system.

Hancock Continues Growth

Hancock Industries, known nationwide for its contribution of design and manufacturing of original equipment and replacement parts for the automotive and trucking industry, is guided in its operations by a distinguished board of directors and officers. Heading the firm as chairman of the board is Robert W. Hancock, son of the founder at its original beginnings at Charlotte, Michigan. And serving as president of the company is Fred C. Janke.

In charge of plant operations on the local scene is Bob Cleary, who with his wife, Mary Kay and their three children, reside at 6005 Lusk Rd., Elsie. Transferring to Elsie seven years ago from Jackson, Cleary and his family are originally from Detroit.

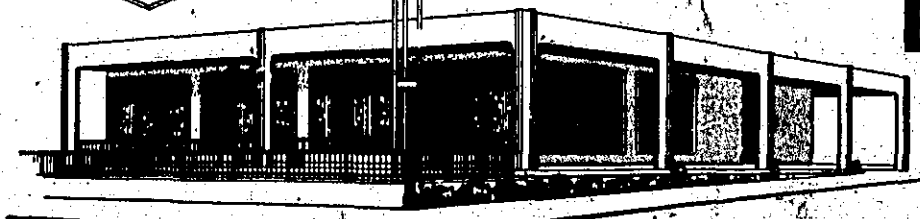

The Elsie division of Hancock Industries operates two shifts, one beginning at 7 a.m. thru 3:30 p.m. and the other from 4 p.m. thru 12:30 a.m. Serving the Elsie plant as day-shift foremen are Butch Blakeslee and Stan Jablowski, both from the Elsie area, while the night-shift foreman is Paul Turner of Crystal.

Innovation, both in parts design and manufacturing techniques, have enabled Hancock to grow and prosper in an industry well known for its demanding standards in quality and price. Reflecting on this, the firm has grown from a $150,000 monthly sales figure in 1967 to over a $450,000 monthly sales figure currently, thus showing a triple gain in sales.

The Village of Elsie, is indeed fortunate, to have Hancock Industries, Inc. as an integral part of the community.

County GOP has "Family feud"

A paid political ad which appeared in last week's COUNTY NEWS has sparked some bad feeling among Republicans in Clinton County.

The ad was placed by James Palmiter, county party chairman, after a list was compiled of all those primary candidates considered in "good standing." He said this status was gained by purchasing a ten dollar membership card.

Eight GOP candidates on Tuesday's ballot were not listed in the ad because Palmiter said there was no record of them purchasing a membership card or attending any party meetings recently.

Friday two of the candidates deleted—Mrs. Jeanne Rand, running for county commissioner, and Larry Floate, a sheriff candidate—met with Palmiter to voice their objection. They told the party chairman this could very well split GOP ranks in Clinton County and expressed extreme displeasure in having their party allegiance based on a monetary contribution. Rand and Floate also said they were unaware failure to contribute to party coffers would exempt them from party support.

It was an unfortunate misunderstanding and we can appreciate how the candidates deleted from the ad must feel. However, we question the wisdom of making what appears to be a "family feud" such a big public issue. Certainly this incident doesn't merit running any risk of splitting the party during a major election year.

You'll find only brief mention of this incident on page one because we don't feel what is basically a "family argument" evolving from a simple misunderstanding should be blown out of proportion.

K.C.

ONE YEAR AGO Aug. 11, 1971

Anthony Hufnagel has been appointed undersheriff in the Clinton County Sheriff's Department to replace Hilary Hafner who recently retired.

John R. Pennell, President of the F. C. Mason Company of St. Johns, announced that E. A. Idzkowski would be joining the organization as executive vice president. Idzkowski has been associated with the steel and oil well equipment industries prior to his association with Federal-Mogul in St. Johns.

The City Commission at their Monday evening meeting heard the report of the engineering firm of Hubbell, Roth and Park on plans for renovation of the city's waste water treatment plant. Total cost as specified in the report in order to meet Federal and State standards is to be $1,265,000.

It must be getting commonplace for the St. Johns chapter of the Future Farmers of America (FFA) to win championships. The chapter's members made it three straight as they topped all competition in the 37th annual FFA Market Livestock School and Sale program.

10 YEARS AGO August 9, 1962

The Clinton County Board of Supervisors passed a resolution recording their disapproval of the abandonment of Camp Smith, a nine-acre county 4-H camp located off Hinman Road, six miles northwest of Fowler in Lebanon Township.

St. Joseph's parish has filed with the St. Johns city zoning appeal board an application for construction of a two-story addition to the north of their present school buildings on East Cass Street.

Corn leaf aphids, a pest not usually found in Michigan, have been found in large concentration in a few cornfields in Clinton County, according to F. Earl Haas, county extension director.

Quick action by the St. Johns fire department averted what could have been a disastrous fire at the St. Johns Co-op feed mill.

The St. Johns city commission approved a request for a license to sell beer and wine submitted by the Kroger store located in the Southgate shopping center.

St. Johns police and state police detectives are investigating a break-in at Walker's Cafe, which occurred sometime after 11 p.m. Saturday night, according to Eldred (Al) Walker, owner.

25 YEARS AGO August 7, 1947

Five men were elected to the new county board of education at a meeting of the directors of all primary school districts. They are E. E. Knight of Duplain Township and Herbert Fizzell of DeWitt Township for six year terms, Hillary Snitgen, Westphalia, and Walter Kyes of Bath, four year terms and Arthur Loudenbeck of Lebanon, two years.

If the weatherman cooperates, the V J Day Homecoming in St. Johns Aug. 14 should bring to the city the largest crowd ever assembled here estimated to be 15,000.

Construction is going ahead rapidly on the Evangelical Lutheran Church at Fowler. The beautiful new structure will replace the old church that burned in February 1945. Seating capacity will be around 180.

Results of the recently completed Clinton County school census show an increase of 390 children between the ages of 5 and 19 in the county. This represents an increase of 354 children throughout the county school district and 37 within the city.

Urgent need for the 20-crib nursery that will be included in the addition to Clinton Memorial Hospital was made clear by the announcement of Superintendent Chester Teske that 62 babies were born at the hospital in July.

Dean Hardware finished the regular city league softball schedule with a record of 14 straight victories to win both halves and the undisputed championship.

Robert Kerns, music instructor in the St. Johns Public Schools for the past four years, has accepted a position as director of bands in the three junior high school at Eugene, Oregon.

New experiences

By LORRAINE SPRAGUE
Extension Home Economist

September brings the beginning of Extension Study Group programs for a year of learning experiences, enjoyment and good fellowship. August is the month to give serious thought to organizing a new study group or re-organizing existing ones. Soon after school starts and youngsters are busy, Mother discovers she wants to learn all she can about keeping her family happy and healthy, her home attractive and well managed and her community a wonderful place in which to live. Extension Study Groups offer these opportunities for learning.

The 1972-73 Family Living Education program, planned by homemakers, Extension Home Economists and Specialists from Michigan State University, includes studies, programs and activities to meet interests and needs of practically every family in Clinton, Gratiot and Shiawassee Counties. For the home sewer there will be several meetings related to technique skills for sewing a variety of fabrics. Emphasis will be on those slightly more difficult fabrics such as leather and imitation leather, vinyl and fake fur. There will be one study on the making of slacks and pants and another dealing with knit fabrics.

Young couples will have an evening dinner-meeting when they'll discuss and practice some communications skills. Parents, with their teen-age youngsters will, spend an evening discovering ways of better understanding each other and resolving some of their problems and misunderstandings. Not to forget the middle-age or older individuals, a series is planned for them. Clothing, Nutrition, Homes and Economics for those thinking about and reaching retirement will be included. Home Furnishings will have a prominent part in the program when furniture fabrics, and furniture refinishing are studied. Additional programs related to foods, the family, and the community will be incorporated into the year's work.

Extension Home Economists will be happy to assist a group of homemakers to organize a new Study Group. Contact them at the County Extension Office. On-going groups are urged to send their officers' names to the Extension Office if they have not yet done so. All of this is in preparation for the first event of the year, an Area Day, scheduled for September 20 when groups will receive their year's supplies and have a fine foods-related program.

The home economist

County Extension Office

Whether or not Mr. Whipple is looking, please don't squeeze the tomatoes, or the bananas, or any other produce items. Squeezing fresh produce doesn't really tell you anything about quality anyway. It just makes food cost more.

Noticed that blueberries are wearing hats this season? That's one way of discouraging sorting and in-store nibbling. Prewrapping, which many shoppers don't particularly like—has helped cut produce losses due to customers from four per cent to one per cent.

The average produce manager must straighten his displays every forty minutes. That adds up to additional labor charges we wouldn't need to have.

Another bad shopping habit that increases during the summer is cart-napping. Shopping carts are provided as a service for customers to do their shopping at the store. Depending on the size, shopping carts cost from thirty-five to seventy-five dollars each.

Most people think of their taking carts in terms of borrowing. Too many times, though, it winds up being a one-way trip. Ever been in a store when they run short of carts? It may just have been that some of the carts were borrowed.

Shoplifting is another practice which increases the cost of food to those of us who pay. Retail food stores estimate that they lose as much in shoplifting as they make in profit. What can you do? If you see a shopper acting suspiciously, report it to the store manager. He will take appropriate steps.

Switching price tags is a kind of shoplifting really. Any checkout girl who's been on the job a few days can spot price switching, so usually this method doesn't succeed. Stamping directly on the containers is another way of eliminating this method of cheating the grocer. . . and the honest shoppers.

Shoppers are concerned about rising food costs, and understandably so. Some things that contribute to higher food costs you can do something about.

Hunger is an important factor in how much you spend when you do the grocery shopping. One survey indicates that women who had not eaten for 5 hours prior to their weekly shopping expedition spend an average of $5.76 more than usual. Those who had eaten something within two hours of shopping spent an average of $7.48 less than usual. The survey confirms what we'd always suspected...that you should never go shopping on an empty stomach if you're trying to stretch food dollars.

The Fight Goes On
Since 1945 the American Cancer Society has spent more than $250-million to support cancer research. Many gains have been made. There are still many leads to follow. "We want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime. Your dollars will help," the ACS says.

There are essentially two groups of fat people, scientists at the University of Wisconsin discovered recently. One group of fatties responds satisfactorily to dieting programs and they lose the extra fat in their system.

The other group ends up frustrated no matter how strict or how long they are dieting, and seem to lose protein rather than fat.

RETAINING WATER

It has been known for some time that a small part of the second type of obese person involves a number of people who, when they diet successfully, lose a lot of fat, but don't necessarily lose weight. What happens is that they tend to accumulate water as the fats disappear.

This water, unfortunately, weighs considerably more than the fats that are lost. Besides failure to lose weight, these persons, in most cases women, show nervous irritability, depression and other signs of emotional discomfort. Some decompensate and go into severe obesity.

The cause for this water retention is not known; some physicians suspect it may relate to the woman's menstrual cycle, but nobody knows for sure.

GENETIC ELEMENT

Dr. Edgar S. Gordon of the University of Wisconsin Medical School, while not denying that the basic cause of overweight is overeating, feels that the genetic make up of the body also plays a part.

He is very emphatic, perhaps to the intense relief of many overweight persons, in saying that "for a number of people, obesity is actually a genetically transmitted disease, because they eat less than those who are of normal weight, and they still gain!"

One has to be careful with statements of this type, because if there is an exception to the rule, all of us then think we are that exception. It reminds me very much of the clippings about recovered alcoholics who supposedly go back to drinking socially, that many of my alcoholic patients bring me whenever they are published.

Let me tell you, there may be alcoholics who can return to social drinking; and overweight people who eat little and yet gain weight, but they must be in somebody else's practice, not in mine.

SENSIBLE IDEA

Nevertheless, Dr. Gordon, as a dedicated researcher, insists on his point. "There are endless variations from individual to individual," he says, "and it seems only reasonable to suspect that people vary widely in their fat content, in much the same way they differ in height, color of eyes, talents, individual traits of behavior, and the like."

QUESTION:

On Michigan Highway 28 in the Upper Peninsula, there used to be a stretch of fairly level, straight highway marked off in a 5-mile segment to allow motorists to check their automobile speedometers for accuracy. Where did it disappear to? R. J., Shingleton

ANSWER:

Has been deteriorated by weather, traffic, etc. If you're good at math, the lines that are marked in some locations around the state for the purpose of determining vehicular speed by air surveillance are one-eighth mile apart and there are some such markings on M28. They are either white or yellow horizontal lines and they do not cover the entire width of a land.

QUESTION:

County road 553 in Marquette County has had more than its share of traffic fatalities this year. It's affecting our good upper peninsula record. What's the best procedure to find a solution to the basic causes? E. M. H., Gwinn

ANSWER:

That is a county road, so first inquiry should be made to county road commission, officials, who have maintenance jurisdiction. We note the road has good center line and edge line paint markings. There's a possibility that warning signs could be placed at locations where some of the more pronounced dips are located and also that new "no passing" signs be installed on the left of the roadway, too. Your local newspaper is providing excellent coverage of the situation. In the meantime, all drivers should be especially alert to the many curves and dips in that stretch north of Gwinn.

QUESTION:

When highway design and maintenance engineers are determining what constitutes proper visibility for marking "passing" and "no passing" zones, it seems to me they should give more consideration to the height of the new compact cars and possibly motorcycles. J. P., Negaunee

ANSWER:

The 1971 revision of the National Manual on Uniform Traffic Control Devices provides for a change in specifications for establishing "no passing" zones, utilizing an eye height of 45 inches rather than the previously established 48 inches. (This is based on an individual having 30.5 inch eye level above a firm car seat.) Motorists' traveling speed was one factor in making this determination as well as makes and models of American and foreign made cars.

However, our Michigan Department of State Highways engineers are aiming at a three-inch safer height margin, based on a study made by their own department. Since the height and weight of the driver himself do appreciably affect his own individual "sight height," he must be alert to and compensate for any variances from the average normal upon which these determinations are made. At this time of year vehicles heavily loaded with vacation gear also present a problem, since the total passenger and load weight lowers the car even further and alters the driver's vision level and alignment.

Auto club calls airbag greatest deception ever

Promotion of the car airbag as a lifesaving device by the federal government is "probably the greatest deception in the history of auto safety," according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

An article in the August issue of Triple-A's official publication, Motor News magazine, states the federal government and a national ad campaign are deceiving the public, by saying airbags are ready for immediate installation and by exaggerating the number of lives they can save.

Motor News Editor Len. Barnes writes that Transportation Secretary John Volpe, under whose direction the National Highway Traffic Safety Agency (NHTSA) runs, is responsible to politicians who need instant results in reducing fatalities.

"He can't wait six years," Motor News notes. "Today is what is important. That's why Volpe gambled on getting the airbag into cars by 1972, and now 1976 models; with some misinterpretation of early tests which mistakenly showed the early airbags reliable."

"Toms is quoted in national ads as saying airbags will save 25,000 lives the first year they are in all cars, and 5,000 lives the first year they are in new cars," Motor News says.

"Yet NHTSA's own statistical studies show that a system which meets Standard 208 on passive restraints for 1976 model cars would be 13.2 per cent effective in preventing deaths. That means 577 lives nationally might be saved the first year airbags are used, and when all cars have them, 5,720 lives at most, could be saved. Yet they have no real life testing."

Other statements from national ads which advocate airbags, quoting NHTSA criticized in Motor News for being deceptive read:

"Airbags have been tested and re-tested. They work. They're reliable. There's no time to delay! They're the only time to act and save lives!"

"Panic stops; potholes; the roughest driving—even a crash landing off a ramp—didn't fool the airbag. THE AIRBAG WORKS. BUT ONLY WHEN IT'S NEEDED."

In an article titled "Airbags—Now or Ever?," Motor News states that the reliability of airbags is being promoted by the federal government despite numerous unpublished laboratory setbacks.

"Latest failure was possibly the most embarrassing to the source of the ads quoted above..."

states Motor News. "It was timed to impress hundreds of auto company airbag specialists, engineers and newsmen from around the world assembled at Wayne State University laboratories in Detroit for the SAE Passive Restraint Conference in May."

"In a 30-mile-per-hour crash, the airbag failed to work and a dummy broke the car's steering wheel, slammed into the windshield, cracking it, and seriously 'injuring' or 'killing' itself. At this, the National Motor Vehicle Safety Advisory Committee chairman also cancelled a scheduled news conference trumpeting reliability of airbags and disappeared."

To show other lesser publicized airbag test failures, motor News presents a chronological list of 17 such tests. It begins with the WSU failure May 23 and ends August 27, 1969, by citing the failure at a congressional hearing in Washington, D.C., when a Ford Motor Co. airbag in test demonstrations failed to inflate when triggered repeatedly.

Auto Club says that the public has been kept uninformed or misinformed about the many negative factors airbag tests have shown.

"Advocates say the sound of deflation is nothing to be concerned about, while the auto industry says it's comparable to a shotgun being fired beside one's ear," Motor News reports.

The article adds that while advocates make no mention of damage to the car's interior, the insides of cars have been torn up, steel doors have been bent out and windows shattered.

"In a recent AMF safety-car test, the airbags blew out the left window, but the government did not mention this in its lauding of this device," Motor News states.

Motor News also quotes Ford Motor Company which recently charged the NHTSA with using misleading tactics to defend airbags after test runs with baboons at Hollman Air Force Base.

"The government agency claimed the baboons suffered only minor bruises, but Ford says that one of the eight baboons died the next day, another suffered critical injuries and all had clinically discernible injuries," Motor News states.

It is pointed out that in another recent test situation a gas generator exploded, throwing shrapnel into the dummy and singeing it, but this has not been reported by the government.

Toms, Volpe and other advocates "simply dismiss airbag failures as due to human error. But the airbag is a complicated mechanism, it will probably be built by humans and installed by the same workers who now make occasional assembly errors as cars go by them steadily on a moving line. It may be that the airbag is too complicated for mass production, installation," Motor News states.

Toms is quoted in national ads as saying airbags today are more reliable than brake systems, the article continues.

Motor News then quotes Chrysler Safety Expert Roy Haeusler, who replied, "Toms couldn't defend that statement if his life was at stake."

"We know nothing of the airbag system's reliability. It is not in production. How can you talk about the reliability of a concept? But we have lots of brake experience and brakes are pretty far up there in reliability."

Auto Club points out nationally that 54,800 persons were killed in traffic last year, including 10,400 pedestrians. In addition, farm machine, motorcycle and other type traffic deaths where airbags could not help claimed 9,600 lives. Of the 34,000 remaining deaths, only half died in frontal collisions where an airbag would deploy.

This means that airbags could save 17,400 lives a year at most if they were installed on all cars and worked perfectly, not 25,000 as claimed by Toms. But NHTSA statisticians say airbags would save 13.2 per cent effective in preventing deaths.

The advertised claim that 5,000 lives would be saved the first year airbags are in use also is refuted by Auto Club through use of the NHTSA's own calculations.

A NHTSA study shows that if all cars were equipped with airbags of the 1976 requirement, 5,720 lives would be saved.

"Figuring 10 per cent of cars are new each year, that means that 572 lives could be saved if airbags were put on new cars next year, not the claimed 5,000," Motor News states.

If airbags cost $100 a car, motorists would spend $1 billion in a 10-million unit production year.

Motor News states that if one-fiftieth of this—$20 million—were given to the Michigan State Police, road patrolling by that organization could be doubled.

"...when patrols were increased in 1970 by federal and other grants, Michigan had a 333-person fatality reduction..." Motor News states.

The magazine adds: "It is reasonable to assume that if Michigan's State Police Patrol were doubled with money diverted from airbags, it would save almost 572 lives a year just in Michigan. Why not order this done instead of mandating something that is unproven?"

Motor News speculates that if the government makes airbags mandatory without massive education even with adequate testing, "a sizable number" of motorists will have them disconnected and re-moved. The public is afraid of airbags.

"There is an alternative which would cost hardly anything which would save between 5,000 and 10,000 lives a year—getting those in seven of every eight cars equipped with seat belts today to use them. No waiting 10 years for all cars to be equipped and no raise of $100 or even $1 in car price to motorists," Motor News concludes.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The recent drug arrests of the four St. Johns men and the three men from Wheeler has brought mixed reactions from citizens of St. Johns and the public in general.

It was reported by Chief of Police that he received numerous calls from concerned parents thanking him for his efforts. Evidently Mr. Glazier, Detective May, Sgt. French and the so-called "concerned parents" believe the town has dried up as far as L.S.D. is concerned. When will these ignorant people wake up and realize that they are attacking the wrong side of the problem?

There are two issues as far as drug use is concerned; the supply and the demand. Detective May ridiculously stated that the drug problem in St. Johns reached the point that 1,000 pills were entering the town daily. Therefore, launching an all out campaign against seven men. He has fiendishly deceived the public in believing the "supply" side of the problem is exhausted and thus has assured himself a larger paycheck.

As long as there is a want for a drug, there will be drug producers, drug dealers and drug users. The only practical means of solving, or even investigating the problem would be to study the user himself and find out exactly why he wants to take the drug. The police and their operation have victimized, humiliated and disoriented seven men by making examples out of them and the drug problem hasn't been helped at all.

The "concerned parents" and the naive police officers will learn sooner or later that their efforts are all in vain. The public needs drug education, scientific investigation and a psychological understanding of the user in order to help prevent drug abuse.

Drug arrests will lead us nowhere.

Dear Editor:

I would like to commend the youthful citizens of this vicinity for their interest shown in local and public affairs of government.

Many of these youths have become registered voters in the past year and have expressed their desire to become active in politics, the science of government.

I strongly advocate local governmental control over local conditions and problems.

I am retiring this year from office in Greenbush Twp. and have appreciated the cooperation of my constituents through the 25 years I have served as Clerk. In 1947 township officers were elected at Spring Elections and took office in April. Since 1963 they are elected at fall elections and take office on Nov. 20.

I would like to urge all young voters to keep themselves informed and alert to changing conditions of our day and the needs and interests of their communities.

Respectfully,
GLADYS HANKEY

Snowmobiling--it's a great sport

By JULIE HAVENS
French's Corners 4-H Club

Snowmobiling has become one of Michigan's greatest sports. It's loads of fun, but it can be dangerous if you don't follow the safety rules and know some things about the engine and its components. That's what snowmobile safety is all about.

In the first year of 4-H snowmobile, you learn the safety rules and main parts of the snowmobile. You also learn how to change a spark plug and a drive belt. (Girls too) The proper dress is a very important part of our learning program. If you aren't dressed right (and that's not for a beauty contest) you might as well forget snowmobiling.

MEMBERS THAT have had more than one year of snowmobile safety learn more things about the engine and how to fix cracked hoods, etc.

Each year (weather permitting) we go on a snowmobile safari. We try to go north to someone's cabin and enjoy a weekend of snowmobiling under all types of conditions.

If you don't know much about snowmobiles, other than driving them, you can learn a lot in a snowmobile 4-H club.

Single serving offer convenience

Single-serving snack type fruit and pudding products offer convenience for a price, says a Michigan State University consumer marketing agent.

Because the new products need no refrigeration until opened, are portable and usually unbreakable, they have become favorites of brown baggers and lunch-bucket-carrying workers and school children, explains Maryann Beckman. The single-serving concept has also become popular with single and double person households, outdoor eating fans, and weight watchers who want portion-controlled servings.

Most come in aseptically sealed tear-top cans weighing 4-1/2 to 6 ounces and packed into sets of four. Some are packed into glass jars.

"But you pay for the convenience," cautions Mrs. Beckman. Dry pudding mix, for example, costs 12 to 18 cents for four servings. Single-serve four pack costs 60 to 65 cents. Prices range from 48 cents to 73 cents, depending on the product, brand, etc.

Ag in Action

Pesticides of some kind are used on almost 85 per cent of all farms, but farmers account for only slightly more than half of all the pesticides used in the United States. Urban dwellers have as big a stake in the use of pesticides as do farmers.

With the recent ban placed on the use of DDT, we need to remember some of the comments made by Dr. Norman Borlaug, the 1970 Nobel Peace Prize winner, and the only agriculturalist ever to be so honored.

In an address last year, Dr. Borlaug charged environmentalists with a desire to legislate a ban on DDT (to prohibit it for any use in the U.S.A. If this happens, Borlaug warned, they almost certainly will start a worldwide propaganda campaign to have it banned everywhere in the world.

"This must not be permitted to happen until an even more effective and safe insecticide is available," he declared. "As soon as DDT is successfully banned, there will be a push for the banning of all chlorinated hydrocarbons, then, in order, the organic phosphates and carbonate insecticides. Once the task is finished on insecticides, they will attack the weed killers and, eventually, the fungicides.

"If the use of pesticides in the U.S.A. were to be completely banned, crop losses would probably soar to 50 per cent and food prices would increase four to five fold. Who then would provide for the food needs of the low income groups? Certainly not the privileged environmentalists," stated the honored scientist.

All mankind stands to lose if we jump too fast. We need to seek knowledge and understanding of all the insecticides and pesticides to determine their worth as weighed against any detriment they may have before we jump at banning them.

Have you ever had an idea for a skit, or a play, a song, or something original?

If so, you have the potential to be a Share the Fun participant. The Share the Fun Program is just what it says it is. People getting together and having fun.

It is people with different ideas of fun and entertainment getting together and expressing them for each other. It is just whatever you feel you want to do and doing it. There is no great prize for what you do. You don't receive any great monies for performing. All that you get is the satisfaction of knowing that you have participated in something worthwhile.

IN OTHER words you have let yourself go and freely expressed your feelings, energies, and emotions. There is a certain amount of good feeling that you receive from doing something like this.

To get involved all that you have to do is let your organizational leader know, and you are on your way. You will be in the County Share the Fun Contest. And if you are one of the top five acts you will be eligible to go to the district competition. Here each act performs, and then is evaluated by an expert panel of judges. At the conclusion of the competition the top acts are named and awarded blue ribbons. The blue ribbon acts are then listed in Blue Ribbon Share the Fun Book. Why don't you choose to participate in this contest. It's worth doing!

Bicycle Safety is a fun project. There is a book to fill out that goes along with the project. We go on bike rides, and some times we have a cook-out and then go on the ride.

WHEN YOU start working on the book you learn about all of the parts of the Bicycle. You learn signs, and rules of the road. You also learn hand signals.

Some of the things you can try to do at the meetings is do a perfect figure eight, ride your bike through a narrow lane without going over the lanes, and also stay in a line weaving in and out of cones or poles.

Teen leaders: a busy bunch

By VICKIE THELEN
Bengal Community 4-H Club

They are busy all the time, helping at Spring Achievement, the county fair and state wide events. The young people I am talking about are the Clinton County Teen Leaders. The teen leaders are 4-H members 14 years of age and older who are currently enrolled in under the roll of leadership. Our purpose is to assist the leaders by helping and teaching the younger members. We also help on the local, county and state level while we are learning leadership skills and responsibilities.

On the club level the teen leaders not only help younger members but help the leaders plan, organize and carry out many of the club's functions. In many clubs the teen leaders take over the meetings and softball teams to insure the youngsters and leaders they want to help.

IN THE COMMUNITY scene the teen leaders are beautifying the land and town but we're making money. The first Saturday of every month is glass collection day. The teen leaders donate their time by picking up glass around the city, and smashing it. Thanks to some wonderful men we no longer have to crush the glass by hand. It is done by a machine. We still have to take the lids and rings off the bottles we get. We would like to thank the community for helping us by helping themselves.

The Teen Leader Club meets year round, as the usual 4-H club does. We work as superintendents, and food stand workers at the 4-H fair. We also usually get the job of setting up and cleaning up to most of the 4-H functions. To anyone reading this it sounds like a lot of work being an active teen leader. It is, but it's fun because you're working together "to make the best better."

AT 4-H WEEK

Youth gather for fun and learning

By VICKIE ROESCH
Border 4-H Club

From July 18 to July 21 nine Clinton County youth were honored with a trip to Michigan State University for the 54th annual 4-H Youth Week. In this event, youth from all over the state of Michigan meet to participate in a program geared for fun and learning.

During our stay, we had the opportunity to hear the following speakers: Morley Frazier, head coach at Albion College, also president of a state-wide drug education group; John Duff, who works with the volunteer programs; Msgr. Beahan, also known as "Father Mike"; Dr. David Imig, Assistant Professor and Family Life Specialist at MSU; Phillip Tigges, Extension Agent from Lapeer County; and Dale Robertson, each of whom spoke on different ways to "Reach Out and Touch" your fellow man.

AFTER EACH discussion we were put into discussion groups for a short time to relate to each other as to our opinions and ideas, in relations with the others and with the speakers.

That was just the work part. During free time there was everything available from bowling to volleyball and from farm tours to swimming. And if we still were bored we made up our own things to do. Such as, names and slogans for the various groups with football games between our mock rivals. Even mealtime was fun. At night they also provided comfortable dormitories (for those who knew how to sleep). A serious epidemic of insomnia seemed to have spread with all the enthusiasm. Consequently, only a small percentage of the delegates managed to overcome it.

The rewarding part is at the end when you realize how many new friends you've made. Three Clinton County 4-H'ers, Stuart Hazle, Vickie Thelen, of St. Johns and myself were chosen to serve on the 1973 Planning Committee. We are all looking forward to it and would like to encourage anyone eligible to join us. Contact the extension office for eligibility information. It might be you!

Poultry is a project that can deal with almost any kind of bird that can be used for meat, production, or even pleasure. The most common type of poultry in our area are chickens.

I started in the 4-H Poultry project when I turned 10. My brothers and sisters had an egg route and they handed it down to me when they started college.

THIS EGG ROUTE gave me a chance to meet many people and taught me how to handle my money in a business-like manner. My egg route grew from 26 customers when I started to 52 now.

Through my project I learned that different feeds will change their production as well as changes in temperature. I found out that I have to really take care of them if I wanted to have enough eggs that week for my customers.

This year I had something different happen to me. I went out to where we had our chickens last year and I found a mother and her baby chick. That was a first experience for me because I usually buy my chicks and this year I didn't buy any because I was planning to phase it out as this fall I plan to attend college. Well, I guess that chicken didn't want me to stop and so maybe I'll have one chicken to come home to after I sell the rest of my flock this fall.

Horticulture is the art of growing flowers, vegetables and ornamental plants. It's true, horticulture is an art. Anyone from the age of 3 to 93 can be a gardener. All you need is some soil, water, the right temperature and sunlight and you can have your own garden.

Whoever said that because you live in town you can't have a garden was misinformed, because you can even grow a small garden in a pail, set in a sunny place. Your garden in a pail will have just as nice, if not nicer, flowers and vegetables as those grown in a big garden.

GROWING A big garden can be profitable. If you have any flowers or vegetables that you and your family can't use you can sell them at the 4-H stand that will be during the Fair for 4-H Horticulture members only or you can sell them in your own stand.

Often the fruits and vegetables that you buy in the store don't look or taste as good as those you grow in your own garden or orchard, and often cost more than what you pay to buy seeds or all ready started plants to put in your garden.

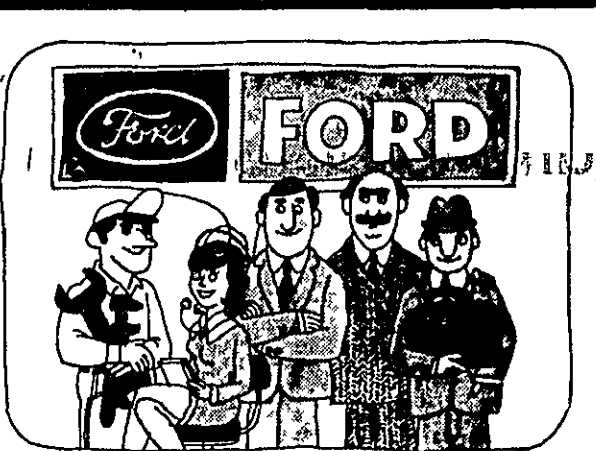

It tends to give you a feeling of satisfaction to be able to say "I grew it in my own garden."

There are contests and trips you can win through Horticulture in 4-H and FFA, and the knowledge you gain is unending and is profitable to you in the future. It also gives you a feeling of accomplishment when you can say, "I know what kind of plant that is." Even after you have finished 4-H and are looking for an interesting occupation you can become a

BUT NOT LEAST

Health is last of the 4-H's

By LORI McQUEEN
Double M 4-H Club

Health is not commonly known as a project by that name, yet it is probably the most important factor to every project and every person in, or not in, 4-H. Health is what keeps everyone in a well state of mind and in good physical shape, as members and projects alike are both happier and better looking when they are healthy. Take, for instance, if you pass a flower or a vegetable quite poor looking, the worst you can say about it is that it sure doesn't look very healthy. The same can be said about livestock, poultry, and any other live project.

However, projects don't have to be live to have something to do with health. Projects such as knitting, handicraft, sewing, arts and crafts, and many others, all have something to do with health, mainly the mental health of the persons involved. Coordination of the mind and body is an important part of these projects, since members work with their hands and minds as one unit. Style review for knitting and clothing projects affect one's posture not only when the member models, but afterwards, too, wherever one goes, whenever one sits, walks or stands.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT aspect to mental health is that in order to enjoy physical health, a peace of mind through mental health must also be achieved. 4-H helps to accomplish this by providing responsibilities to young and older members alike and giving them a sense of accomplishment and pride when their project has been completed.

4-H'ers have been concerned with more than themselves as far as health goes. Teen leaders from all across the county have been collecting glass to improve the environment and take it to be recycled where it can be put to good use instead of getting into someone's tire or foot, causing much discomfort to their health, and safety concerning the car. In the spring, many clubs join together to cover vast areas of the county to pick up litter that other people have carelessly deposited in the beautiful countryside.

with 4-H'ers it does not end there. I have learned, along with other teen leaders, through experiences as camp counselors and teen leaders, that there are many times when one has to set a good example himself so others might follow. This is another responsibility that goes along with 4-H that a member learns to accept as one encounters more and more in the 4-H world. As a member acquires more responsibilities, one grows in many ways, improving their overall health.

4-H may have many different projects to suit everyone's different wants and interests yet every project and activity is related to the 4-H's: hands, heart, head, and last, but definitely not least, health.

GOOD HEALTH may begin with the individual, but

Cooking isn't easy for first-timers

By JOANN WITT
Willing Workers 4-H Club

Beat shortening, sugar, eggs and vanilla until light and fluffy. Sound simple? To many experienced cooks it is, but to 9 and 10 year olds it's very complicated. How do I know? I was there not too long ago.

I'll never forget my first batch of cookies. I was so disappointed! Through my 4-H leader I found out you have to grease the pans, bake at proper temperature and time. I also learned in my first years in 4-H, how to make simple things like cookies, muffins and brownies. Through these products, I learned that eight tablespoons equal a half a cup, "the basic four," plus many more things that didn't seem important then, but I'm sure glad I know now.

THE LEARNING didn't stop there, but went on. During the next years my 4-H leader taught me how to make breads, casseroles and main dishes. Meal planning and nutrients came through in these projects.

Your later years in 4-H cooking you learn about barbecues, foreign foods and meats. You have the opportunity to go places and to see first hand how meats are prepared. You can receive many books about barbecues and foreign foods that will help you now and in the future.

During my five years in 4-H, I have learned so much that will help me when I become a Homemaker with a family to feed. Cooking is just one of the many projects 4-H offers. There are so many experiences, fun, work and pride in 4-H!

Clothing. A major factor in the lives of each person in our America. When you arose this morning wasn't it important to you, how you clothed yourself? Maybe you were thinking of impressing one certain person. That's great! First or second impressions are usually lasting and important.

Probably many of you have acquired the skill of constructing your own clothing. I'll bet you're richer! In comparing the cost of constructing your own clothing to that of buying it, do you realize you could save one-third or more by sewing yourself? You can copy each new fashion trend you've seen, in the largest department store or the smallest retail shop. There are enough fashions for you to suit each and every one of your moods, to be a different person everyday, or just to be the individual you are. The advantages of sewing your own clothes are numerous. First of all is the advantage of the expense - you won by 1/3! Then there is the knowledge you gain.

After you begin to sew your own clothes, knowing how they are constructed, you can pick out flaws in clothing you purchase. Many times as clothing comes out of the factory you find it's poorly constructed, you may have to mend it yourself. When you sew your own clothes you can be better assured of a well constructed garment. Last, of course, is the self satisfaction you gain. Other people sometimes find it hard to believe you made it yourself.

Many people would probably love to start constructing their own garments. It is offered through schools by Home Economics but by the time you get to High School you can already have had five years experience by joining a program like 4-H.

AFTER A FEW YEARS you can enter Teen Leadership. A program like this makes it easier for adult leaders in your community. It takes a little bit of the load from them because you volunteered to help out. You learn more about people, and about your project. Each person is very different, they like and do different things, they have different skills and in Teen Leadership you learn to adjust yourself to individuals and their needs. You gain a satisfaction, seeing them proud of what they've accomplished.

In the spring of each year after completing your sewing project, it's possible for you to show your accomplishments in the Style Review. This gives you experience being in front of people, in competing with others, in trying again and again whether you win or lose. And you don't always come out on top! It only shows you to try again and again and fight a little harder. After modeling in March you can show your project further by exhibiting it at the Open House.

Every year as you advance through 4-H you learn so much more and meet so many more great people. You make yourself available for awards by participating and being involved. You can share your ideas and what you've learned with everyone. 4-H makes it possible to share and learn with others, improve yourself, help others and, best of all, have a whole lot of fun.

Don't miss out - join the fun and join 4-H!

David says milk tour 'impressive'

By DAVID HAVILAND
Olive 4-H Projects

If I were to define the Michigan Milk Marketing Tour sponsored by Michigan Milk Producers Association in one word, that word would have to be "impressive".

David Haviland

I, along with 63 other delegates and our Chaperones, arrived at Detroit's M.M.P.A. office at approximately 10 a.m. on July 10.

At first, when I learned of the trip, I thought it would be a big bore. How could I learn any more about the marketing of milk? This thought proved to be a most mistaken one. We learned more in two days about milk marketing than most adult dairy farmers could dream of.

One of the most impressive parts of the tour, I thought, was meeting the Board Members, everyone from the President down to the Secretary. Everyone on the board at one time, or still does, own a farm so they still know what the real problems of selling milk are. The members of the board pointed out some of the benefits of belonging to Michigan Milk Producers Association. One example was that Michigan Milk Producers get a higher milk price than Minnesota or Wisconsin, yet Wisconsin produces three times the amount of Michigan and Minnesota produces twice as much milk.

ALL THE MEMBERS of our group got a first hand experience of some of the problems the board members experience throughout the year. When we split up into different groups to become our own board members to solve some problems that were given to us by the Board Members, each group had a different problem which we were supposed to come up with some ideas of our own that help to solve that particular problem. After about two hours of discussion on our problem, everyone told what ideas we had come up with. It was all very interesting and informational. Some of the ideas were good enough to warrant being presented to the actual Board of Directors.

In all, the trip was very interesting and I would urge any other dairy member to do their best to win this trip for two days. I found it was the most enjoyable trip I have ever been on.

Michigan Milk Producers paid all expenses, plus were a most dedicated host I have ever had. I wish everyone could go on the trip.

Probably most people don't know what Indoor Gardening is so I'll try to explain it to you.

Indoor Gardening is a kind of project where there isn't any specific thing you have to make, such as an article of clothing or a piece of woodworking. In this project you can pick any type of materials you want to work with. You might want to use dried flowers, weeds or seeds, pine cones, teazels, mosses, and small plants, bulbs, cornhusks and straw or hay.

Horses are 'in' for 4-H project

By DEBBIE WEBSTER
Wild Riders 4-H Club

If you haven't noticed, horses are "IN." In the past two years the 4-H horse project has grown to be one of the projects with the largest enrollment.

The competition is getting stiffer and the showmanship is getting better.

Your horse is a daily and yearly project. During fall and winter there are meetings and you learn parts of the horse, bridle, and saddle, while also learning how to show your horse.

THEN COMES spring and summer and you're back to riding and maybe even training that three-year-old you're going to show this year. Also, you've got to be brushed-up on your showmanship and riding. So you attend those very helpful 4-H horse clinics.

If you have a problem you just can't seem to solve yourself, that knowledgeable leader is always around to help.

And then before you know it, it's fair time again. Saddles, bridles, halters, harnesses and your show clothes all have to be washed and polished.

The most work to be done is on the horse. Trimming of the feet, fetlocks, mane, tail, ears, whiskers, and eyelashes, YES eyelashes, all have to be done. And of course, there's always the bath to be given.

That's not all though, you'd better check your own appearance. Required are boots and a hat. It's nice to have a good looking suit to wear, but jeans and a blouse or shirt are fine.

It's not all hard work. After all your work, comes Fun Night. It's a night of speed, fun, and games. The kids, the horses, and the audience all have fun.

After fair you're back to training and re-learning because next year is always there to work harder for and do better at.

materials. As a beginner you might try forcing a tulip or daffodil bulb to grow and bloom for the Fair. Another idea would be to make a terrarium. A terrarium is any kind of a large, glass filled with dirt and mosses or small plants. They can be arranged simply or very complicated giving it a 3 dimensional look. Keeping one of these for a whole year can be a real challenge but also fun.

Other projects could be making plaques out of dried seeds or flowers and weeds, dried flower arrangements, pine cone or cornhusk wreaths or teazel trees. I think it's more fun though to think of an original or semi-original idea.

This year for Indoor Gardening I made a wreath

4-H CHATTER

By JOHN AYLSWORTH

The Clinton County 4-H Fair opens August 14 and ends on August 16 in St. Johns. The Fair provides the opportunity for nearly 1500 4-H boys and girls to display their exhibits demonstrating the different skills they have learned this past year.

Approximately 3,000 exhibits from the traditional livestock, food, clothing and handicraft to the more modern projects such as cultural arts, leader dog, baby animal, snowmobile, vegetables, photography, etc. The judging will be done by adults who are tops in their area.

There is no admission charge or parking fee with all events free. Plan now to bring your family to the 4-H Fair as there is something for both the youngster and the adults. Also it is an excellent time to see and visit your neighbors.

The Monday program contains western horse judging in the morning and afternoon with foods, handicraft, crops, and vegetables judged in the afternoon and cultural arts in the evening. The Monday evening program has the 4-H All Star Softball Game composed of outstanding players from each team and league. The White League plays at 8:30 and Green League at 8:00 p.m. Approximately 40 pony teams will be competing in the Monday evening pony pull to see which team can pull the most weight in each of the lightweight and featherweight class.

Tuesday's program includes judging clothing, knitting, photography, conservation, family tractor, English horses and ponies as well as flowers, beef cattle, sheep and hogs. In the afternoon you will see youngsters trying their skills at flower arrangements, leader dogs and horticultural 1-D contest.

The Tuesday evening 4-H Horse Fun Show has always been the top attraction for the past few years as nearly 200 4-H members want to try their skill in speed and action events. This year the members riding horses will do different events than those on ponies. The horse events include Speed & Action, Ride and Lead, and Spoon and Musical Bag while pony riders include Flag Race, 3 Legged Race, Rescue and Musical Bag. If time permits there will be a balloon race for both pony and horse riders. Don't miss the Tuesday evening 4-H Horse Fun Show starting at 7:00 p.m. on August 14.

The Wednesday program includes the dairy, rabbits and entomology judging with the Fair Livestock Sale starting at 2 p.m. with beef cattle, sheep and swine available for sale. Anyone can buy a market animal with arrangements for processing for your freezer available. If you haven't been to a livestock auction plan to attend and participate in the excitement.

The Wednesday evening program this year is quite different from previous years. The program will include a float parade, a style revue with the top stylists - from Spring Achievement, a livestock showmanship sweepstakes of the top showmen of horses, beef, dairy, sheep and swine pitting their skills in showing each kind of livestock, the awards program and ending with a garden tractor pulling contest open to anyone from 14 to 80 years of age.

Throughout the year you hear each manufacturer claiming how good their equipment is. This will be a test to see which brand of garden tractor equipment can pull the most. I'm sure you will find this new event an exciting activity to attend or participate.

THE 1972 Clinton County 4-H Fair is rated E for excellent for the whole family to attend. The 4-H members have worked hard throughout the winter and summer to learn new skills and complete their projects.

Announce 38th FFA livestock school awards

The preference of the modern housewife for improved meat-type market livestock was the focus of the 38th annual FFA Market Livestock school and sale program at St. Johns, Tuesday, August 1. Some 250 FFA members, parents and teachers from 35 Michigan school communities participated in the demonstration sales which included the grading of student-owned livestock including beef and swine. The sale of the student's livestock completed the lessons to be learned following the regular marketing procedure by which producers sell their animals in commercial facilities. The students assembled 91 beef animals, 221 swine, and 44 lambs as the basis for this one day educational event. The gross sale of those animals was $46,052.22. The standard market grades of commercial livestock were demonstrated by use of examples with the students animals. Amos Fox of the Animal Husbandry Department at Michigan State University graded and pointed out desirable qualities of beef animals. Dr. Harold Henneman of MSU and Bud Dunkle of the Wolverine Stockyards Company assisted in grading beef. Dr. Henneman of MSU's Animal Husbandry Department graded lambs and conducted the educational program and grading contest.

John Brechtstein, Swine producer and livestock grader from Coldwater, graded the swine entries, demonstrated U.S. Grade requirements, and conducted the swine grading contest. The pinnacle award of the FFA Market Livestock Program for 1972, the George A. Brown Memorial Trophy, was won by the St. Johns Chapter, Don Mungler agricultural in the progress. Awards in the beef grading contest were presented by James Prince of the vocational agriculture in the progress. The 44 lambs weighed 3715 pounds and were sold for $1159.60, which is an average of $4 pounds per head and sold by market grades. The 91 beef animals grossed $30,761.65, with a total weight of 90,475 pounds, averaging $341.21 per hundredweight. The high beef animals were a 1030 pound steer consigned by Melvin Goschka of Merrill purchased by Ray Weels & Sons of Richmond, a 1040 pound steer consigned by Richard Kolk of Fremont and purchased by the Michigan State University and a 800 pound steer consigned by Henry Schultz of St. Johns and purchased by the Michigan State University. All three steers sold for $36.50 per hundredweight. The sale of beef animals went as follows: 34 Choice Steers, average weight 988, average price $34.78; 44 Standard Steers, average weight 916, average price $32.30; Totals 91, average weight 954 pounds, average price $34.00.

Erwin of Byron, third place. In the swine grading contest, Mel Snowdin, Cooperville, was first with Randy Miller of Quincy and second and Dave Higgins of Grant third. A new grading contest for lambs was won by Tim Brooks of Corunna. Following the FFA "feed-lot-to-market" style of regular marketing procedure the livestock was sold by market grades. The 91 beef animals grossed $30,761.65, with a total weight of 90,475 pounds, averaging $341.21 per hundredweight. The high beef animals were a 1030 pound steer consigned by Melvin Goschka of Merrill pur-

CLOTHING

A stitch in time saves nine...

By DEBBIE THELEN
Bengal Community 4-H Club

Knitting is a project in 4-H that many people are interested in. Boys and girls of all ages take knitting as a winter project. Knitting is a wonderful way of passing those cold winter days and nights.

In the first year of knitting the member learns the basic steps of this project. Knitting is a fairly difficult project to learn but once you learn the few basic steps it becomes much easier.

In her first few years the member learns many things. She learns how to cast on, knit, purl, and bind off. She learns how to do these stitches better and with more efficiency as she takes more years of this project.

IN HER FOLLOWING years, the knitting member also gains much more knowledge in this project. She learns what kind of yarn is best. She learns the difference between wool and orlon. She learns the differences between three and four-ply yarn. She learns how to read her pattern and follow the directions. She also learns yarn-over and how to combine her knowledge of stitches to form different patterns in knitting such as a cable. She also learns how to change the color of yarn in her project and make a two toned sweater. The longer she takes the project the more she learns.

After about four years in the club or at the age of fourteen, the 4-H member can join teen leaders. If she chooses knitting for her teen leader project, she can help teach knitting to the younger members.

Knitting is a great project to know. With your knowledge of the stitches combined with yarn you can knit many of the popular knit fashions today. This is a wonderful project to take as you can make knitted things much more cheaply than buying them.

Photography means fun, enjoyment

By STEVE VanFLEET
Kountry Cousins 4-H Klub

Photography is an interesting worthwhile project for 4-H members of all ages. Taking pictures is one of the most interesting things a person can do. Looking through a view finder you will discover things that you might not even notice just in passing by.

BY LEARNING how to take good pictures, photography can be made into a profit making hobby or a full time profession, as well as taking pictures for pleasure and lasting memories.

Taking good pictures can be learned easily. The first thing the beginning photographer will learn is the proper use and care of the camera.

The next step is to learn how to compose a good picture and take action shots. This will come with practice.

After the basic things have been learned, you can try different ideas of your own.

The opportunities in photography are limitless. Anything can be the subject of a good picture.

A good photographer always has his camera ready to take unusual shots and is willing to go to a little inconvenience to get a good picture, such as getting up on a cold winter morning to go back to the creek to get a good winter shot.

Photography is learning while doing. If you are disappointed in your pictures you can see what you did wrong and correct your mistakes the next time you take some pictures.

4-H members can use black and white or color film. If the photography project is taken both summer and winter both black and white and color pictures can be exhibited at the 4-H fair.

Steve VanFleet

YOUNGER MEMBERS might want to start out with black and white film. It is less expensive while learning how to take pictures.

I have taken a photography project both summer and winter for six years.

It has been a valuable learning experience for me. I have met many interesting people through giving demonstrations, taking trips and teen leading.

One experience I learned from is attending Youth Exploration Days at Michigan State University.

Last year I attended in Journalism photography. I learned how to take pictures for a newspaper and how to put a newspaper together.

This year I attended as a volunteer. I helped younger 4-H members in intermediate photography. One of the things I showed them to do, is how to take unusual pictures.

Some of the other areas of photography offered at Youth Exploration Days are the following: basic, advanced, dark room, movie making, and slide tape photography.

If you join the photography project you will learn from it, as well as enjoy it. Any 4-H member who wishes to take photography as a project may get more information from the County Extension office. Books are available for the beginner through advanced photographers.

Dream comes true for dairy 4-H'er

By KATHY HAZLE
Scattered Southeast 4-H Club

I FEEL THAT 4-H Dairying is one of the greatest ways to help a young person grow in mind and body. When you receive that first calf as a 4-H'er of 9 or 10 you feel that there was never anything as beautiful as that heifer calf. You feed her and water and give her all the love you possibly can.

Nine years ago and a small calf. That doesn't seem very long ago, but during those nine years I have met friends and shared experiences that I will never forget.

As a very small girl it seemed like I would never become big enough to go on trips or to do what the "Big Kids" were doing, but every year I grew older and my dreams turned into realities. As a small girl my greatest aim was to become Michigan Holstein girl, and now I am Michigan's 1972 Holstein Girl.

Then comes the first big step, your first show. You wash and brush and lead that calf until you think your arm will break. Then the big moment when the judge pulls you into line. Whether it be first, in the middle or even on the bottom, you still learned something and each year you learn more. This is where responsibility enters into the picture. You know that you must take care of that calf and how much you do will determine how she does. The physical part comes when it is time to clean barn or other things that go into caring for a calf.

Kathy Hazle

In dairy as well as anything else there will be rewards and disappointments but younger members should strive to do better not to quit. As that calf grows so will you, and how the nine years fly.

Lucky 4-H'er goes on Canadian trip

Phyllis Dershem

By PHYLLIS DERSHEM
Prairie 4-H Club

Well, I guess I was one of the luckiest kids last fall to be able to go to Canada. Only six 4-H members from Clinton County were allowed to go on the trip as guest with three other counties which go every year. We six were like scouts for our county to see if it was something we would want for ourselves. On an old rundown bus we ventured forth on a Thursday morning very early, for Toronto, Canada. We found ourselves sitting in a gas station after a few hours repairing the old bus. After many hours of work the bus was repaired and we were on our way, almost. It seemed like we had only gone about a mile and the bus broke down once more. At this time our bus driver and leaders decided we were going to go on Greyhound. Within about an hour we were on our way in a very nice and roomy bus. When we got to Toronto we went to our hotel and then went for a small walk on the streets, to see just what was there.

THE NEXT DAY, Friday was a very full day of fun and learning. We went to the City Hall of Toronto and the Parliament of Ontario in the morning. Then in the afternoon we went to the Winter's Fair. At the fair we saw dairy, beef, horses, candies for sale, car dealers selling cars, flowers and oh so many more things. Then about eight o'clock we went to the horse show. It was so nice, there were horses from all over and of course we all cheered for the U.S.A. teams.

On Thanksgiving Day you know how the whole family sits down to watch the Eaton's Day Parade. Well I saw it out of our bedroom window on Saturday. You see it is taped early and shown on Thanksgiving Day. After the parade was over we were on our own for the rest of the morning. Then in the afternoon we went to a castle. It's the only real castle on the North American Continent. After a walk through the castle we went back to our shopping. Saturday night we had a few parties and a few of the kids stayed awake all night till it was time to go which was six o'clock Sunday morning. We climbed into our bus and we were off to the Niagara Falls. We arrived there several hours later. While some of the kids were at church the rest of us walked around the gift shop then when they returned we went under the falls. Then we were on our way home, tired and penniless.

Here's something new in Design

By PATTY FOX
Happy Hustlers 4-H Club

Home Design is a project for all ages. Whether it is your first year or your last year in this project, there is always something new to learn or do.

Learning to coordinate colors is a big help in any home design project. The color of the floor and walls along with the furniture and accessories should work together to create a mood. For example, bright light colors are gay, fresh and young. Dark colors give a subdued feeling which, when coupled with fine textures, create a rich and elegant atmosphere. The mellow colors are hospitable, homey and as soothing as a warm fire on a chilly night.

After learning how to coordinate colors, many people go on to use their knowledge. For my summer project I painted and wallpapered my bedroom. Instead of having a dull pink in my room, I chose a bright lemon yellow for three of my walls. On the wall at the head of my bed I used black and white wallpaper that had a large modern print. The floor was painted a tile red and accented with deep gold throw rugs. The whole job took about twenty hours, but the final product was worth all the time. The whole room seems so much larger than it did before.

PAINTING, PAPERING, rearranging furniture and coordinating colors aren't the only things to be done in a home design project. Refinishing furniture or any wood object is another part of this project. Learning how to remove an old finish, sanding the wood properly and applying stains and varnishes are all a part of refinishing a piece of wood. This project more or less can evolve into a hobby and the most important part about this is the personal satisfaction gotten from a finished project.

It takes hard work for fat healthy cattle

By VIRGINIA CORDES
Trail Breakers 4-H Club

As you wander through the beef barn at the Clinton County 4-H fair this year; admire the fat healthy cattle, but be sure and give a thought to all the hard work the 4-H members have behind them.

For members raising beef steers the project begins around November or December when the members select a project calf or calves. The calf can come from many sources, such as; feeder sales, beef farms, individual owners, a home herd, or their own 4-H cow. At the time of purchase the calf should weigh about 500 pounds and be a good quality meat animal. It can be any of the different beef breeds or a crossbred and need not be registered.

After purchasing the calf it must be taken home and put on a good feeding program. The ideal is to have it weigh about 1000 pounds or more at fair time next year. If the calf is to be entered in the rate of gain contest it must be weighed and on feed by January 1st. This contest determines how fast the calf gains weight.

The next thing that needs to be done is to get acquainted with the calf and teach him to lead. Obviously this training should be done before the calf weighs 1000 pounds! The calf also have to know how to set his feet up squarely with the use of a show stick. A show stick is a stick that the exhibitor carries while showing that he uses it to place the steer's feed squarely underneath him. GROOMING IS an important part of getting ready to show. Prior to the fair the calf should be brushed daily and given several baths. The heads of angus and some Charolais cattle should be clipped and the tails on most steers are clipped also. Heifers and cows are raised as 4-H projects also. The same applies to them, but they should be selected for their breeding potential. The object of the 4-H beef project clubs is to teach the members how to select good quality animals. It helps the members in getting their calves on a good feeding program also. Beef cattle are judged on Tuesday of the fair and the sale of the beef steers is Wednesday afternoon.

Woodworking: it's got advantages

By CHARLES TAIT
Kountry Kousins 4-H Club

The Woodworking project is a good project for preparation of the future. Woodworking can produce many skills leading up to being a carpenter. From the beginning to the last year, the student of woodworking learns and learns.

of years in this project, the member usually picks a project more challenging.

As the number of years increases, the members learn to use the power tools properly. As the need produces, the member will encounter use with a power saw, a drill, an electric sander, a jigsaw and possibly a beveler.

Also, as the number of years increase and the projects become more complex, the need for a member to think becomes greater. The patterns become more difficult to read, the leader more or less lets the older member go on his own, and at times, the younger members will ask for help on their project.

I, MYSELF, started woodworking at the age of twelve. That first year, I made a milk stool, a knickknack shelf, and a flower box. From there on, I have made a book case, another book case with sliding glass doors, a clothes dresser, and a granddaughter clock.

The woodworking project includes many advantages!

Want some fun? visit 4-H camp

By LORENE TAIT
Jolly Knitters 4-H Club

Are you interested in a week of fun?

If you are, visit the Algonquin 4-H Youth Center, better known as Barry County 4-H Camp. If you are between the ages of nine and eighteen and in 4-H you may attend. If you are in the range of fifteen through eighteen you will probably want to visit as a counselor. If you are in the bracket of nine through fourteen, you will definitely want to visit as a camper.

If you are interested in being a counselor, you must attend a training program. The program is a short period of two days, it's inexpensive, you learn a lot, you meet people in your peers from all over lower Michigan, and it's a lot of fun! The directors of the camp choose the counselors who have shown them good qualities for a counselor. Not everyone will be chosen as a counselor. There aren't enough weeks for everyone to counsel at, even though the directors choose as many people as possible.

IF YOU ARE chosen to be a counselor, the week you counsel will be a week of problems, work, fun, and many memories. The counselors make all kinds of friends. Especially those who like to dip you in the swimming pool, put rocks in your bed, tie your clothes together, etc. All in all it will be a week of adventure and fun.

For all you devilish campers, it will be a week of play for you. You get up about seven-thirty in the morning. You raise the flags, then sit down to a hearty breakfast. After breakfast, as well as the other meals, you sing songs. They don't sing just old boring songs either. At nine o'clock you get together in your assigned group. You plan what you want to do! Of course, the counselors have to say "no" to a few things, but not very many.

There are so very many possibilities the campers can do. There is a volleyball net, softball equipment, candle making equipment, leather to work with, braiding, swimming, canoeing, hiking, etc., etc., etc.

At twelve o'clock you sit down to an inspiring meal. Then a special treat, half the camp visits the candy store. Then, of course, there's a rest period. The state requires it, and some campers are so tired they sleep!

AFTER YOUR rest period you get together with your group again. The activity you do has already been planned by you that morning. From about four to five-thirty the whole camp gets back together for an athletic activity. At five-thirty you sit down to a mouth-watering supper. After you finish singing, half the camp gets together again for a special activity. The special activity and the athletic activity is planned by a group of kids and their counselors. Each group takes its turn.

Once every week at camp the whole camp goes to the "island," have a water carnival, one night have a campfire, and another night go on a camp out. The camp out is an option to all the campers.

There are always chores to do. The kids set the tables, wash the dishes, sweep the floors, and pick up papers. Of course, the counselors supervise. Each group takes their turn at each task.

I have heard people say that camp food is horrible! Clarabell, the camp cook, is one of the best cooks in the world. I gained eight pounds with Clarabell's cooking.

"This camp is run by the kids. The counselors are just here to supervise." The director of the camp said that. Therefore, camp has to be fun.

All rabbits aren't alike

By JANE VITEK
Bengal Community 4-H Club

AT THE 4-H fair those in the rabbit project exhibit their rabbits live. In this way a chance for a first hand view of how well the member did with their rabbits is established. It is a learning experience for the members as well because they get a chance to learn from other members' mistakes and they can see what a difference there really is from one rabbit to another. They learn not to just classify them all together as "RABBITS."

Food, drink, housing, heat (with no air conditioning), likes and dislikes, illness, death, and daily repetition are all things that affect the lives of the many rabbits that live each day with us humans. Though we realize it or not animals (rabbits included) have in their own way a life that is very similar to ours.

Through the rabbit project in 4-H the members are made aware of these similarities, they are also taught how to cope with these problems. The one most important thing that I think they learn is that their animals can't be neglected just as they don't want to be by their parents.

When you think of the many things in your life make sure you find a place for those fuzzy, fluffy, furry cotton-tails.

Anyone who goes anywhere these days spends a vacation.

Leader dogs is a family project

Ann Graham

By ANN GRAHAM
Tail Waggers 4-H Club

Are you the type of person who would help a person less fortunate than yourself? Do you like dogs? Could you raise a dog and then give it up? If you are this type of person then the 4-H Leader Dog Program is for you!

The first item one needs in this club is a dog. The dog is given to you by Daniel Balog a representative from the Leader Dog School for the Blind in Rochester, Mich. You have the choice between German Shepherds, Golden Retrievers and Black Labradors, or a cross between these breeds. Your choice can be either female or male, usually between the ages of eight weeks to five months.

ALL THE TRAINING one has to teach the dog is fairly easy. It's mainly what you would expect of any house dog. The dog is to be house-broke along with being made to mind while in the house. The member would have to teach the dog the basic commands of Sit, Down, Stay and Come. Also the dog is to be taught not to be people shy, to go up open stairs, to be able to ride in a car on the floor without becoming car sick, and to get along with other dogs. The child also is encouraged to teach the dog tricks to break the regular routine of the commands. Of course when the dog is being taught the tricks he knows that it's a time for play and when he has the leash on the dog should know that it's a time for working and no goofing around.

It seems like a lot to have to teach a dog but with love and praise the dog will work for you because of the type of devotion an animal has for its owner.

The Tail Waggers members have found out that this is a family project. The whole family is involved because while the members are in school the dog has to be taken care of and usually the mother is the chosen one to do that. Yet the mothers of our members like doing this type of thing or else they wouldn't have allowed their children to join this type of program. Also we've found out that the family environment effects the dog's upbringing. The dogs are just like little kids, in temperament and actions. Just ask any of our members.

The dog is kept until it is a year old when it is taken to Rochester Leader Dog School. There it is put through a test to see whether it could be a potential Leader Dog. If the dog passes that means all the training and love the child has put into the dog during the time he or she has had him has paid off. From the time the dog enters the school if it should fail any stage of the training it is not considered to be the fault of the child. It is considered to be the dog itself.

If the dog fails training the child can request that the dog is returned to him or else the school will place the dog in a good home.

Along with learning how to train a dog the child is also taught the right ways to handle and carry a dog. Also the member is taught the right grooming methods. Public speaking is also involved in this program because of the many radio and television shows along with public appearances that are done to promote the Leader Dog Program.

THE TAIL WAGGER 4-H Leader Dog for the Blind Club started in December of 1970 with seven members and has now tripled in less than two years to 22 members. Each child has a dog and some have two.

Since we started we have sent 12 dogs to Rochester. They were all accepted. Five dogs went on to become Leader Dogs. Two are still in training at Rochester and the other five after further training at Rochester broke down.

It's not very easy to get a dog that will go all the way through training for if every dog that we have had would have gone on there would have been over 30 dogs.

If anyone is interested in this type of a program, just contact our leader Mrs. Wayne Bruin of St. Johns, or Mrs. Kenneth Robertson the leader of the Bath Ear Floppers Leader Dog Club, and one can always contact the 4-H Youth Agent at the Cooperative Extension Service in St. Johns.

Fish for four

Planning to serve fish, and wondering how much to buy? If you're buying whole fish, about three pounds will serve four people, says Michigan State University Consumer Information Agent Ada Shinabarger.

With fish steaks—the crosswise slices from whole fish such as cod, halibut, swordfish and salmon—you'll need about two pounds for four servings. If you choose fillets (the sides or parts cut lengthwise and boned with all or most of the skin removed), 1-1/2 pounds will serve four.

When you get your fish home, wrap in waxed paper and keep in the coldest part of your refrigerator. Use as soon as possible for the best flavor.

Be careful not to overcook your fish, cautions Miss Shinabarger. Overcooking dries it out and makes it tough. Fish is done when it flakes easily with a fork. You'll also notice a change in appearance, Miss Shinabarger explains. During cooking the juices turn a milky color and cooked fish takes on an opaque white tint.

To keep fish moist and add extra flavor, brush it during baking or broiling with melted butter with a little Tabasco and lemon juice added.

Voted and carried.

A communication from Greenbush Township in which they voiced opposition to the 13,000 pounds per axle imposed upon Clinton, Eaton and Ingham Counties was read. They also recommend special permits be granted for locating trailer homes for aged and dependent persons. Commissioner Chamberlain will discuss the matter with the Road Commission and report back.

A letter from Milton King, DeWitt Township Supervisor, in which he directed attention to what he considers to be unfair assessment practices by the State Tax Commission, was presented. He suggested a May or June determination of ratio and factors for the township as proposed by the County Equalization Department and County Commissioners should not set any factor until the State confirms their tax laws as to what really is "true cash value."

A resolution to designate an agent for the county to handle application for Disaster Relief Funds was presented. Chamberlain moved, supported by Gove, to name Charles Frost as agent for Clinton County. Voted and carried.

The Board recessed at 10:10 a.m. Upon again coming to order, Chamberlain presented and moved, supported by Shinabery, that the following resolution be adopted. Voted and carried unanimously.

Entomology is more than catching bugs

By HARRY MOLDENHAUER
Nimble Fingers 4-H Club

Most people know what we young Entomologists do in the summer. We catch insects, of course. But what happens after the snow starts falling and the temperature gets below freezing? One of the first things we do with the coming of winter is hunt for cocoons while they are still on the trees or before the snow covers them on the ground. These cocoons can then be kept outside all winter or brought inside for early hatching. Just because there is snow on the ground does not mean insects can not be collected. Many insects and spiders along with cocoons can be found under rocks or in the bark of dead trees. These insects may seem lifeless but when they warm up they again become active.

If it is too cold to go outside there are many things that can be done in the warm confines of the house. One chore that I often save for such a day as this is mounting extra insects. I store the unmounted insects in the freezer to keep them fresh and then when I have time I bring them out and mount them. After the insects are mounted they can be stored in the collection or used in other arrangements.

THERE ARE MANY artistic arrangements that insects can be used in. Many moths and butterflies can be displayed as single specimens. They can be used in three-dimensional pictures or in dried flower arrangements. A project that I am currently working on is that of using, dried flowers and insects and arranging them in plastic cubes for permanent beauty. Another project that is usually thought of as a summer project but can be used for winter fun is that of raising insects. These insects can be raised for a hobby, fish bait, pets or other reasons. The only difficulty in raising insects in the winter is obtaining a food supply as many insects feed on green leaves.

4-H Entomologists have a great advantage over non 4-H'ers because of all the great leaders, opportunities, awards, and many other things. 4-H Entomologists can collect insects from all over the world instead of just around his neighborhood. But most important a 4-H Entomologist has a much better chance to learn. He gets the helpful assistance of his leader and the opportunity to go to special learning camps such as Camp Kett which is a concentrated learning session for older members and leaders. Entomology is more than catching insects.

ELSIE (c)—Mrs. Gladys Coslette was guest of honor for her 78th birthday Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Cottingham in Chesaning. They were joined by her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Vernel Davis of Mt. Pleasant for dinner at The Embers in Mt. Pleasant.

Friends of William Tillotson and family will be happy to know that his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Tillotson of Elsie have received another telephone message that the doctor's checkup has revealed the success of operations performed recently on both eyes. The rare operations were performed at the Wall's Eye Hospital in Philadelphia. The Tillotsons are both teachers and will soon be living in their new home at Leesport, Pa. He will reserve his duties as math instructor at Garden City, near Lancaster, Pa.

Earl J. Smith of St. Louis, Mo. spent the weekend here to be with the visitors and families here.

Appendectomy patients now spend only four days in a hospital on the average, a shorter time by far than the 14-day periods of hospitalization typical 25 years ago.

State park officials report "bad press"

LANSING — Michigan's state park system has been seriously hurt by "bad publicity" on people problems this season, and it shows in latest attendance and camping figures, reports an official of the Department of Natural Resources.

Through mid-July, day use at state parks was down 17 per cent from a year ago, while camper turnouts were nearly 5 per cent off the record pace of 1971. At that point, daily attendance for those areas stood at 9.3 million, representing a loss of 1.8 million visitors from last year's count through the middle of July.

Campground registrations at state parks have slipped by about 10,000 this season, totaling 194,825 through the first half of July.

DNR Parks Chief O. J. Scherschligt told the Natural Resources Commission recently that the drop in daily visits and camper use is partly due to periods of cold weather earlier this season and a resistance to this year's fee increases for state park vehicle entrance permits.

However, he said what bothers him most is the impression that many would-be park users are literally being "scared away" from these areas by reports of the mass media which play up parks disturbances.

Scherschligt pointed out that his Lansing office has been receiving many telephone calls from people who ask if it is "safe" to come to state parks. Meanwhile, state parks have also been getting a large number of calls with the same question being posed at the other end of the line.

The DNR official explained that most reports of confrontations at state parks last spring were "greatly exaggerated." He also noted that since then the DNR has beefed up its crowd control program at state parks by placing 46 extra seasonal rangers on duty for the remainder of the peak summer period.

The extra manpower, payrolled from a special $150,000 appropriation of the State Legislature, is enabling state park crews to run these public recreation areas with a firmer hand and a maximum of smooth operations and services, reported Scherschligt.

Although parks problems haven't been as serious as they have been headlined, there have been some cases of youth groups and family groups not seeing "eye to eye," particularly on the point of their campground activities.

Scherschligt stressed that he and his staff recognize that there is a generation gap among some park users, just as there are differences in ideologies and life-styles between age groups in many other areas of today's society.

As a result, he said, the DNR is adjusting its design criteria for state parks as a future move to provide, among other things, more space and departmentalized areas so that campers in general and different age groups in particular do not tend to rub each other the wrong way.

Under this approach, DNR planners will lay out smaller, more manageable campgrounds, and "reduce the normal number of individual campsites in these areas to provide more elbow room.

Scherschligt also indicated that the DNR is studying the possibility and practicality of developing youth campgrounds in some state parks parks to specifically accommodate the activities of the younger set.

On the surface of these studies, such planning would seem to also work in the favor of family groups because it would leave existing state park campgrounds to more suitably serve their particular camping styles, explained Scherschligt.

The nation's hospitals employ nearly three million persons, including close to 100,000 persons in training in the medical and para-
