

Prosecutor Patrick Kelly resigns post

ST. JOHNS—Clinton County Prosecuting Attorney Patrick B. Kelly told News reporters Monday that he has tendered his resignation effective Sept. 30.

PATRICK KELLY

In a letter to the Clinton County Board of Commissioners received by Ernest Carter, county clerk, Kelly said he was resigning for personal reasons. He told reporters that he also told Gerald Shepard, chairman of the board about his resignation. Kelly, 29, who has been the county prosecutor since his election in 1968, still has more than one year remaining in his present term. He said the Circuit Court judge is now empowered to appoint a new prosecutor to fill the vacancy until the next general election in November, 1972.

Kelly said he is leaving Clinton County to form his own law firm in Manistique, a small Upper Peninsula community of about 4,500 people in Schoolcraft County. He said he likes the "outdoor atmosphere" of the community, which is located on the Lake Michigan shore.

Kelly, a native of Sault Ste. Marie, said the Upper Peninsula "is home, since I was brought up there and my family still lives there." Manistique is about 120 miles southwest of the Soo.

"It is really going to be hard to leave Clinton County," Kelly said. "This has been a fantastic county. Everyone has been nice to me and it's going to be hard to leave. These have been fine working conditions."

Kelly is a partner in the law firm of Kelly and Matson which has offices in DeWitt. Daniel Matson, former assistant prosecutor and currently DeWitt city attorney, will continue the law practice there once the partnership is dissolved, Kelly said.

He said he would still be handling some personal cases with the law firm.

Kelly, his wife Gerogiana and their two children Meghan, 4, and Erin, 2, currently reside at 508 E. McConnell in St. Johns. Kelly said they have not yet found a house in Manistique, but they are "in the process of looking."

Kelly said he already has at least one client for his new firm, the City of Manistique.

"If the people up there are half as nice as those in Clinton County, we'll get along fine," Kelly said.

Thus far, there has been no mention of who will become the new county prosecutor after Sept. 30.

Third consecutive sweep

Local FFA wins market program

ST. JOHNS—It must be getting commonplace for the St. Johns chapter of the Future Farmers of America (FFA) to win championships.

The chapter's members made it three straight as they topped all competition in the 37th annual FFA Market Livestock School and Sale program held Tuesday at the Wolverine Stockyards here.

It was the third consecutive win for the St. Johns group, with Don Munger as advisor, this time topping second place Ovid-Elsie by more than 650 points. The final standings found St. Johns first with 880 points, followed by O-E with 218, Corunna with 178, Fremont with 174, and Hastings with 54.

Points were earned by the number and quality of animals produced by the students of vocational agriculture in the program.

In taking the honors, the George A. Brown Memorial Trophy, a traveling plaque, will remain in the St. Johns High School showcase for another year.

St. Johns remained in the spotlight, as Jack Woodhams outdid other contenders in the high beef category. Woodhams consigned four steers, one weighing 1,125 pounds purchased by Peet Packing Company of Bay City for $35.25 per hundredweight. A second steer was also purchased by the Bay City firm at $34.50 per hundredweight. Saginaw IGA purchased a 1,005-pound steer at $34 per hundredweight, while the fourth was purchased by St. Johns IGA for $34 per hundredweight. That steer weighed 1,005 pounds.

THE PREFERENCE of the modern housewife for improved meat-type market livestock was the focus of the program, in which some 250 FFA members, parents and teachers from 37 Michigan school communities participated.

The students assembled 90 beef animals, 539 swine and 46 lambs as the basis for this one day educational event. The gross sale of these animals was $52,253.43.

The standard market grades of commercial livestock were demonstrated by use of examples with the students' animals. Don Woodborn of New Mexico, a graduate student in animal husbandry at Michigan State University, graded and pointed out desirable qualities of beef animals.

Bill Finley, assisted by Bud Dunkle, of the Wolverine Stockyards Company, described the requirements of market grades of lambs. John Brechelsen, Michigan Farm Bureau Livestock Service representative, graded the swine entries, demonstrated U.S. grade requirements and conducted the swine grading contest.

AWARDS IN the beef grading contest were presented by James Prince of the Wolverine firm to Wayne Cook of Okemos and Phil Bartke of Sandusky, who tied for first place, and to Earl Martindale of Corunna, the third place winner.

In the swine grading contest, Chuck Niersel of Hemlock was first with Mel Snowden of Coopersville second and Steve Stutz of Ida third.

Following the FFA "feed-lot-to-market" style of regular marketing procedure, the livestock was sold by market grades. The 90 Beef animals grossed $28,902.20, with a total weight of 91,070 pounds, averaging 1,012 pounds per head. Prices averaged: prime—$31.57, choice—$32.81 and good—$31.08.

The 539 swine totaled 109,605 pounds, averaging $20.01 per hundredweight, and 203 pounds per head, and sold for a gross amount of $21,928.82.

The 46 lambs weighed 4,140 and were sold for $1,422.41, which is an average of 90 pounds per head and $34.36 per hundredweight.

Commission plans waste water plant renovation

ST. JOHNS—The City Commission at their Monday evening meeting heard the report of the engineering firm of Hubbell, Roh, and Park on plans for renovation of the city's waste water treatment plant.

Total cost as specified in the report in order to meet Federal and State standards is to be $1,265,000. Assuming Federal and State grants to pay part of the construction costs can be obtained, cost to the city should be approximately $316,000.

The Commission authorized the city to enter into a stipulation with the Michigan State Water Resources Commission that the city will proceed with the treatment plant renovation.

Two special assessment districts were authorized, one on W. Giles St. for installation of sanitary sewer and water mains and the other on W. Oak St. for installation of curbs and gutters and storm sewers.

Public hearings on the assessments are to be at the Commission meeting of Sept. 13 at 8:00 p.m. for Giles St. and 8:15 for Oak St.

After a public hearing at which no objections were raised, the property owned by the Assembly of God Church at the corner of US-27 and Baldwin St. was rezoned from R-1 residential to MC-1 (municipal center). A vacant lot across the street to be used for parking was also rezoned.

Rollin Huard, Norbert Rehmman, and Harold Gillette of the St. Johns Area Chamber of Commerce appeared before the Commission to request repaving of the Spring Street parking lot and study of street lighting on Clinton Avenue.

The Commission indicated the repaving would be done after engineering studies of drainage problems connected with the repaving were completed. A lighting study for Main St. was requested by the Commission.

Blacktopping of the sealcoat sections on W. McConnell and W. Baldwin west from Morton St. was approved.

The Commission also authorized the city to join the Grand River Watershed Council and okayed the Disabled American Veterans Forget-Me-Not Sale for Sept. 10 and 11 in St. Johns.

ST. JOHNS—John R. Pennell, President of the F. C. Mason Company of St. Johns, announced that E.A. Idzkowski would be joining the organization as executive Vice-President. Idzkowski has been associated with the steel and oil well equipment industries prior to his association with Federal-Mogul in St. Johns.

The F. C. Mason Company has been in business for 73 years and is a major producer of agricultural forgings for original equipment customers and farm replacement industries.

At the present time the company produces 90 per cent of the world's supply of transplanter runners. These runners are an integral part of specialized equipment used in the tobacco, cabbage, celery, and tomato farming industry. This equipment is sold throughout the world.

In addition to their manufacturing facilities, the F. C. Mason Company is a prime distributor for the complete line of farm implement parts and farm supplies.

Also, supplementing this is an expanding line of industrial supplies, basically line power transmission, hydraulics and other related mill supply items. This distributorship covers the states of Michigan, Indiana, and Ohio.

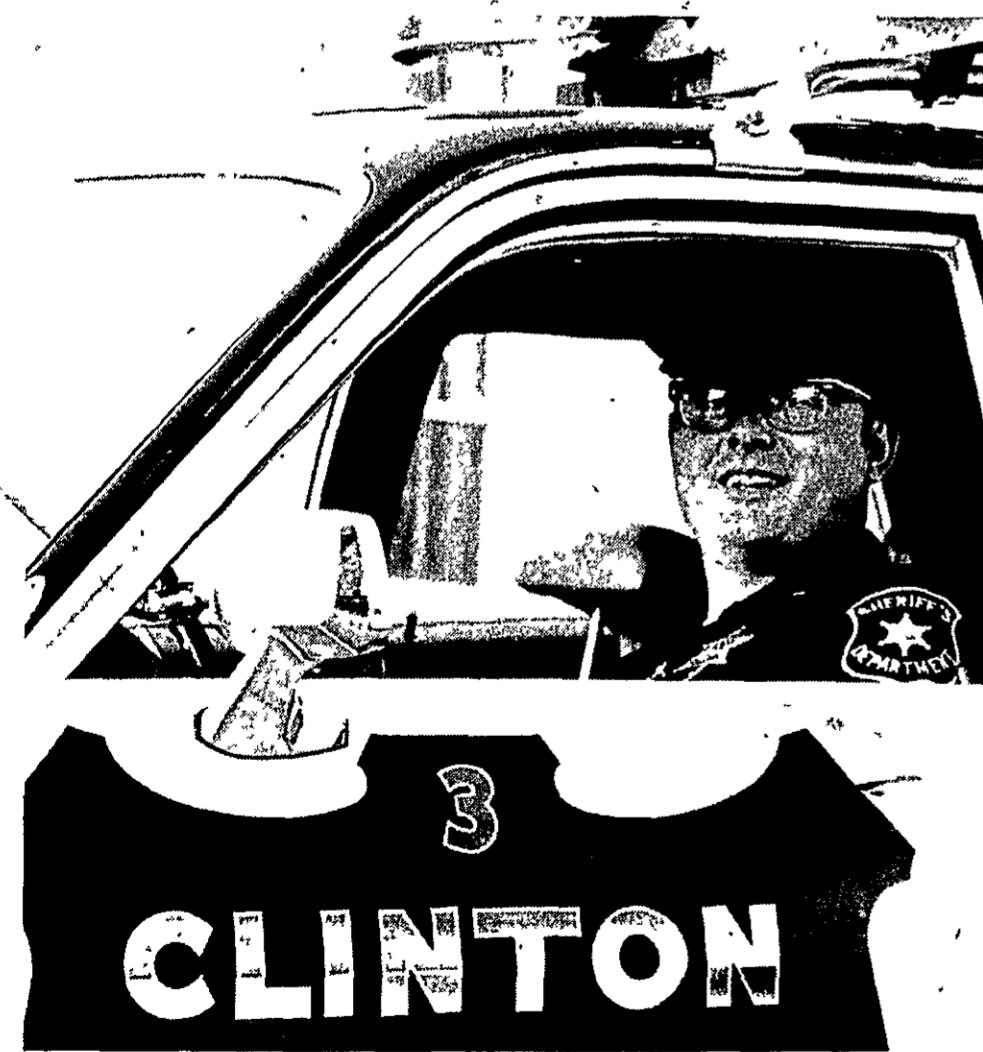

In a recent move towards diversifying its base of operations, the company has established a subsidiary of Maco Tool and Die.

This facility will have complete equipment for the design and manufacture of metal forming dies, stamping dies, and specialized machinery and also will be in a position to do custom machine shop work and low volume contract orders.

Bloodmobile here Aug. 26 Free clinic set Thursday

ST. JOHNS—The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at the St. Joseph Social Hall in St. Johns on Thursday, Aug. 26 from noon until 6 p.m. for persons wishing to donate blood.

Under a new state law that took effect on May 13 of this year, all persons 18 years or over may donate blood without the consent of their parents. The previous minimum age had been 21.

All residents of the 38 counties participating in the Lansing Regional Red Cross Blood Program in need of blood are entitled to receive it without paying for the blood itself. All hospitals do charge a service or administration fee, however, for transfusing blood, part of which goes to the Red Cross to help pay for collection costs.

The needed supply of blood for the program, however, cautions the Lansing Red Cross chapter, depends on whether enough blood is donated on a continuing basis.

Coverage for persons hospitalized within the 38 county region who are in need of blood is automatic. If the person is hospitalized outside the region it is the responsibility of the patient or his family to notify his local Red Cross chapter.

Replacement of blood actually used is effected under the terms of the National Red Cross and American Association of Blood Banks reciprocity agreement, provided the administering hospital accepts.

The automatic coverage for blood applies only as long as the person remains a resident of the region. When he leaves the region blood needs for himself or a member of his family will only be met if he has been a donor. Coverage is good for a year from the date of the last donation.

By so indicating at the time of his giving, a blood donor may give blood specifically for a person outside of the Lansing region. Arrangements may also be made with the blood center to establish blood coverage for retirees who move away from the region.

The monthly free immunization clinic will be held in the basement of the Congregational Church in St. Johns on Thursday, Aug. 12 from 8:30 a.m. to 11 a.m.

The church is located at the corner of State Street (M-21) and Maple Street, west of the courthouse.

Immunizations to be given by nurses from the Health Department will be DPT, DT, typhoid, smallpox, red measles, oral polio, rubella (3 day measles), and the tuberculin skin test. All immunizations are free.

Business notes

By MIKE PREVILLE
News Advertising Manager

Phillips Implement Co. is a McColloch dealer and Harold Phillips likes to co-operate with the companies he does business with . . . and so when his McColloch rep told him there was going to be a "Creative Craftsman Contest" among all the McColloch dealers in North America, Harold went along with it.

The idea was to build an in-store display with McColloch chain saws to display the complete line. Harold didn't figure he'd win, what with so many dealers involved, but he went ahead and built a display complete with background painted on the window.

A few weeks later the rep stopped in again and took a picture of the display. Said he hadn't seen any nicer but other salesmen were checking the other 49 States plus the Dominion of Canada so Harold didn't hold his breath.

He should have. Yep, he won it.

A trip to Las Vegas . . . attending the opening of the famous "London Bridge" in Havasu City, Arizona . . . the whole works. That's what it said in the letter that told him he won.

The letter also said something else . . . it said some McColloch brass would be in to take more pictures of the display and get the plans so other dealers could see how to do it . . . right.

That's the rub . . . the display has long since been torn down and burned, the painting washed off the window, and as far as plans go . . . there never were any. The display was planned and put together from scratch.

Now, if you happen to visit the Implement Co. you'll probably notice some confusion there for a while . . . Harold says they're going to rebuild that display if they can figure out what they did and how they did it. (If he does get it built, we'll run a picture for you.)

This is the time when all Clinton County 4-H'ers are getting their displays ready. The 4-H Fair is set for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, August 16, 17 and 18 at the St. Johns City Park. Be sure to attend. There is NO admission charge and an enjoyable time is assured.

I'm going to have to add a quart of Murine and an extra six-pack to the shopping list this week . . . It's football time on the telly again I like football . . . highschool, college, semi-pro and pro. I even watch the reruns.

Breaking language barrier main goal of migrant school

By MIKE ELIASOHN
News Special Writer

ST. JOHNS—The primary goal at the Migrant Workers' Children School, being held at St. Joseph School here this summer, is to enable the students to increase their proficiency in English to communicate in school and elsewhere while still being able to communicate with their families and peer group in their native language.

In its second year of operation, the school will serve approximately 100 children of migrant farm laborers working in the area. Funds for the school come from the state to operate an infant care program and the federal government to support the regular youth program.

Another goal of the school is to try to provide the students with the mental and social ability to be able to choose alternatives for their future life.

The school's objective at the preschool level, ages 2 1/2 to 5, according to a school information release, is to allow the children "to become acquainted with the world through stories, songs, pictures, field trips, and first contacts with a variety of materials and educational toys" in order to provide intellectual stimulation.

Preschoolers are also given the opportunity for exercise, emotional training, by giving each child "recognition and a sense of his individual worth and his relationship to his family and culture," and social growth by encouraging students to stand up for their own rights as well as considering others and giving up "some of their individual rights for the greater good of the group."

At the six to nine year old level, emphasis is on developing and improving speaking and reading ability, spelling and handwriting.

Activities include field trips to various places of interest as a means to stimulate the students' ability to express themselves. They also work on such things as the ability to discriminate between things they see and to develop an awareness of sounds as a means of improving their reading and handwriting abilities.

The students are also given an opportunity for exercise and to engage in activities to add to their emotional maturity and social growth by teaching them such things as responsibility and persistence and appreciation and respect for others.

On the 10 to 13 year-old level, efforts are made to further improve the children's speaking, reading, and writing abilities. They also receive time for exercise, counseling and advice on future academic and vocational opportunities, and to improve their appreciation of their cultural heritage.

Other activities at the school have included dances for the older children, formation of a parent teacher organization to discuss the problems of the school, a game and recreation night, swimming, and Mexican and American style dinners.

County, villages receive funds

LANSING—Second quarter Motor Vehicle Highway Fund collections are currently being distributed to Michigan counties, cities, and villages, the State Highway Commission reports, with Clinton County receiving $252,605.

For the same period last year the county received $234,386.

Clinton County communities and the amounts they are to receive as compared to the period last year are: Dewitt, $6,769 (1971) as compared to $5,585 in 1970; Eagle $777 and $702; Elsie, $4,004 and $3,720; Fowler, $3,227 and $2,884; Maple Rapids, $2,826 and $2,590; Ovid, $5,784 and $5,413; Pewamo, $2,746 and $2,546; and St. Johns, $21,847 and $19,664.

Net receipts for the fund for the months of April, May, and June of 1971, according to State Highway Director Henrik E. Stafseth, were $91,275,495 an increase of 4.7 per cent over the same period last year.

All state gasoline and diesel fuel taxes and license plate fees go into the state Motor Vehicle Highway Fund. The money is distributed after collection costs, 1.5 per cent of gasoline taxes which go to the State Waterways Commission, and other fixed costs are deducted.

The Department of State Highways receives 46 per cent of the net proceeds of the Fund, the 83 counties receive 34 per cent, and the 526 cities and villages receive the remaining 20 per cent.

Heavyweights head for Saginaw Fair

SAGINAW—Saginaw will be the scene of the next National Heavyweight Championship. These heavyweights, though, will outweigh Joe Frazier or Mohammed Ali by more than a ton! On Thursday, Sept. 16, at 7:30 p.m., the Saginaw Fair, largest county fair in America east of the Rockies, will present the National Heavyweight Horse Pulling Contest. The contest, always a standing-room-only attraction, offers grandstand crowds an opportunity to see one of the rarest and most thrilling events on the sports scene today. Massive teams of highly-trained draft horses work together, using their powerful muscles to move a dynamometer-weighted truck the required distance of 27 1/2 feet. Tension mounts as the weights are gradually increased and teams start dropping out of the contest. In an exciting finale, one team is persuaded to give one more ounce of energy than its closest competitor and takes first place, sometimes by as little as a single inch. A total of $2,070 in premiums is offered for the Horse Pulling Contest with a top award of $260. In addition, the first place team will receive the coveted H.L. Moxley Memorial Trophy which is presented by Radio Station WJR, Detroit. The contest is sponsored by the Saginaw Fair in cooperation with the Michigan Dynamometer Association, whose president, Al Vanderloan, will handle the narration. The National Heavyweight Horse Pulling Contest is one of two great Horse Pulling events scheduled for the Saginaw Fair this year. The Championship Lightweight Contest is scheduled for Saturday Sept. 18, at 4:30 p.m. Like the Heavyweights—this contest will also feature teams from around the nation. The Saginaw Fair is scheduled for 8 days, Sept. 11-18.

EXTENSION REPORT

Corn leaf blight

By GEORGE McQUEEN
Extension Agricultural Agent

ST. JOHNS—Southern Corn Leaf Blight and other leaf blights will be shown on corn on Thursday, Aug. 12.

Field stops at 1:30 p.m. on the Marvin Simon farm, one mile south and two and one quarter miles west of Fowler, and Tony Warnke's on the Mrs. Rex Redman farm, three and one quarter miles north of M-21 on Forest Hill Road, will show infections from four common leaf diseases.

Southern Corn Leaf Blight stole most of the headlines last year but Northern, Yellow and Eye Spot have been serious in Clinton county fields. Last year all were present quite extensively early in the season.

Last year a new strain of an old southern disease of corn became widespread and found widespread use of a susceptible host ("T" cytoplasm seed) and very favorable weather conditions. Result—an epidemic.

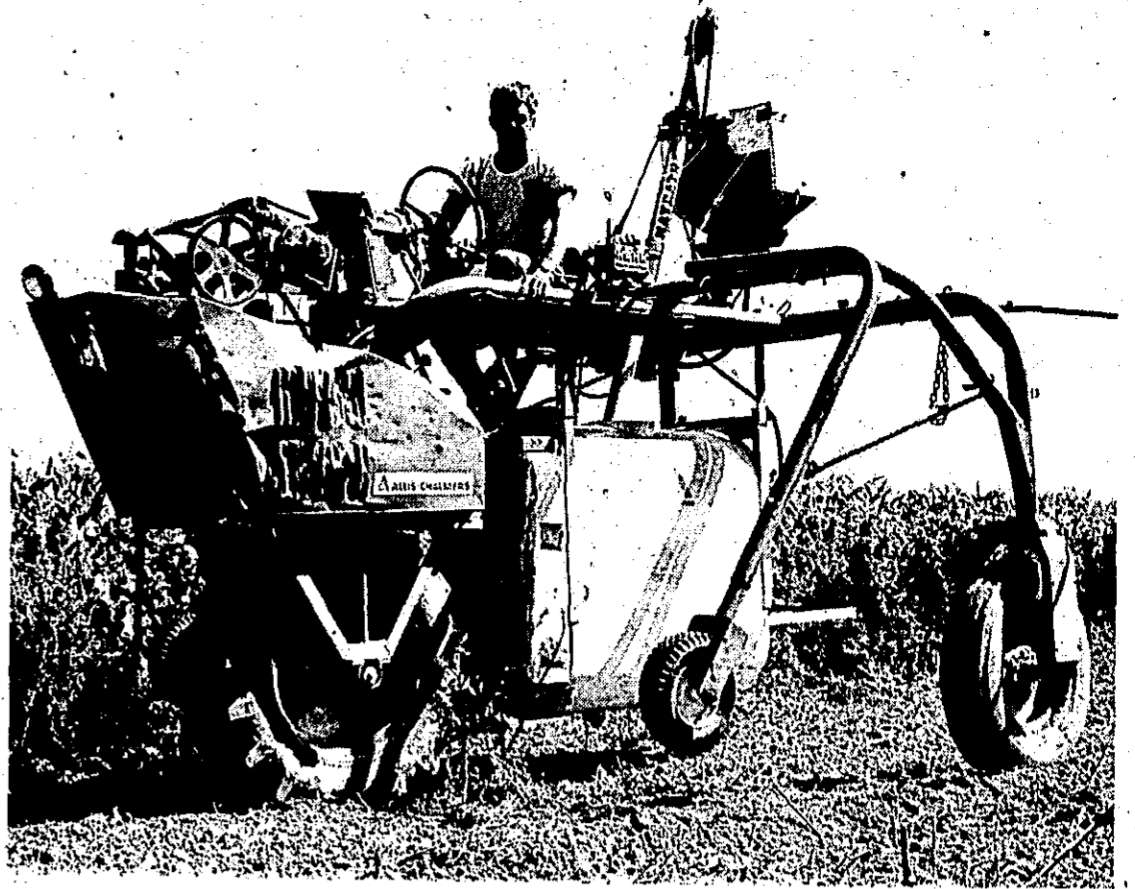

In Clinton county we had wide use of "T" cytoplasm seed and very favorable weather conditions and the "T" strain of Southern Corn Leaf Blight. We also had Northern, Yellow and Eye Spot blights.

All four of these blights are favored by hot, humid conditions. Leaf tissue which stayed wet until late in the forenoon, as last year, provide nearly perfect growing sites for all four of these blights. In the excitement to get "N" cytoplasm seed resistant to "blight" this spring many growers overlooked that it was resistant only to the "T" strain of Southern Corn Leaf Blight. Damaging levels of our more common Northern, Yellow and Eye Spot blights could occur on this seed as they have in the past.

Fortunately, weather conditions have not been favorable for leaf blights this year. Certain growing practices also play an important part in reducing injury possibilities from the blights.

These and other diseases will be topics for discussion Thursday, August 12 at 1:30 p.m. on the Marvin Simon farm and at 3:00 p.m. on the Mrs. Rex Redman farm.

SEEDING

Seeding cover crops adequately is one of the problems faced by Clinton County farmers. Some used this method of seeding with the Atlis-Chalmers Hi-Boy seeder, here being operated on the John Watts farm on Walker Road, St. Johns.

DISEASED

Here's a close-up look at the damage produced by corn borer in Clinton County.

Sealed Power sales, earnings up slightly

MUSKEGON -- Sales and earnings of Sealed Power Corp. for the six months ended June 30 were up slightly over the comparable period a year earlier, although strikes which began March 1 adversely affected second quarter profits.

For the first half, the company earned $1,551,000, or 88 cents per share, on sales of $37,039,000. That compared with earnings of $1,504,000, or 87 cents per share, on sales of $34,483,000 a year earlier. Second quarter earnings totaled $627,000, or 35 cents per share, on sales of $17,629,000. In the second quarter of 1970, earnings were $929,000, or 54 cents per share, on sales of $17,794,000.

"Since the close of the quarter we have reached a contract agreement with the United Auto Workers covering employees at our Muskegon plants and we should be back to normal production by the end of August," Gordon E. Reynolds, president reported.

"However, the downturn in second quarter profits was directly attributable to strikes, which curtailed operations at our Muskegon and Rochester, Ind., plants during the entire three months. While some production activity was carried on at these locations, the lower level of operations was not adequate to fully absorb the fixed costs related to these facilities. This affected particularly our Engine Parts Group, which normally accounts for about a third of the company's volume," he added. Reynolds said sales and earnings of the company's General Products and Replacement Products Groups were much improved during the quarter and that the International Group's performance was excellent.

"With settlement of the strike we believe we can make up some lost ground in the remainder of the third quarter and show improvement over second quarter results through the balance of the year," Reynolds said.

He added that the company has started to construct a 27,000-square-foot plant in an industrial park in Zeeland, Mich. Located about 40 miles south of Muskegon, the new plant will house the company's Accroform Metals Division which is presently located in Palatine, Ill., and produces powdered metal parts.

Sealed Power is a leading manufacturer of piston rings and other precision parts for various industries.

MANISTEE—Trinity Lutheran Church was the setting for the Saturday, July 31 wedding ceremony uniting in marriage Penny Elaine Pennell and Gregory Edwards George. Rev. Paul M. and matching covered buttons accented the bodice. Junior bridesmaid was Robin Holmgren of Lansing, cousin of the bride, and bridesmaids included Mrs. Susan Jacobs of Columbus, Ohio and Cathy Galloway of Manistee. Clinton National Bank meet Mike Everts of Clinton National Bank

Mike is another among the group of young men who have joined our staff in recent years from whom we (and you) can expect the typical Clinton National approach of personal service.

Since coming to CNB&T in October 1967 Mike has worked in most departments and right now he's filling in for Dennis Fiegel as manager of our Elsie office. In addition to his in-bank experience, Mike has completed American Institute of Banking courses in marketing and public relations and personnel management and was graduated from the Michigan School of Banking after completing the second phase of a two-year course at University of Michigan this past spring.

Mike and his wife, the former Dawn Warren of Laingsburg, are graduates of Ovid High School. Following his graduation in 1963, Mike completed a year and a half of study at Lansing Business University, was employed by Universal Electric in Owosso and capped this activity with a two-year tour as a trumpeter in the 98th Army Band at Ft. Rucker, Ala. Upon discharge he and Dawn moved to Ovid where he now participates in community activities as a member of the Lions Club. Mike and Dawn are also members of the Grove Bible Church.

Mike lists his hobbies as fishing, hunting and sporting events and once in a while, when things get quiet, he picks up his horn to do a little tooting.

As you can see, Mike, like all other Clinton National people, has a wide variety of interests and activities, not the least of which is his work at the bank. As an assistant cashier you might encounter Mike making a loan, offering financial advice or filling in on any one of a number of jobs he's become familiar with at CNB&T. But then, as we said earlier, that's the typical Clinton National approach - to offer our customers the personal touch - regardless of what desk it comes from.

Open Letter from VAN W. HOAG

Dear friends,

It deserves emphasis that the time, the place, the character of the funeral service, the merchandise used, the cemetery selected - these are decisions of the family of the deceased. The funeral director acts only as a representative of the family.

The clergyman should be consulted in matters that concern him before any decisions are made.

Respectfully,

Miss Slagell in 14-week Costa Rica college plan

ST. JOHNS—A local student is one of 36 from Goshen College planning to fly to Costa Rica or Haiti for the 14-week trimester overseas this fall.

Barbara Ann Slagell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Slagell, 108 W. Lincoln St., St. Johns, will fly to Costa Rica on Sept. 11 in Goshen College's study-service trimester abroad. She will be a college junior and is a 1969 graduate of Rodney B. Wilson High School.

BARBARA ANN SLAGELL

The trimester abroad includes seven weeks of study plus seven weeks of field work under the leadership of a faculty couple based in the capital city. Students live as guests in the homes of national hosts, take two meals a day with them, and in talking with them, supplement their formal language study with conversational practice. The trimester abroad is a graduation requirement and costs no more than the fall trimester in residence on campus, transportation costs included.

The trimester abroad, launched in the fall of 1968, has been enthusiastically accepted by students. More than 830 GC students will have completed this unique trimester by the end of the year. Host countries have tended to be "developing," and include Nicaragua, Honduras, Jamaica, Guadeloupe, and South Korea. A unit in Germany emphasizes contrasts between the East and the West.

Leaders of the Costa Rica unit, based in San Jose, will be Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Burkholder, Burkholder is associate professor of religion. No strangers to Latin culture, the Burkholders were missionaries to Brazil for three years in the mid-1950's. Twenty students will be in Costa Rica in the fall unit.

Leading the Haiti unit, based in Port-au-Prince, will be Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Shenk. Shenk, who has just completed a sabbatical leave in London, England with several months of study on the Continent, has been on the GC staff 15 years at several administrative posts, including assistant to the president and director of admissions. Sixteen students will be in the unit and will enroll in study of French, the language of the controlling classes.

For field work, students—by couples or trios—are assigned to agencies and jobs supervised by nationals, oftentimes in remote areas of the country. Recently they have assisted at rural clinics and taught in rural schools done manual labor at projects like building a water line to a village or an addition to a one-room school, helped at an agricultural research center, worked at a day care center for youngsters of working mothers. They work without salary.

Goshen College, owned and controlled by the Mennonite Church, is a fully-accredited, coeducational, residential, four-year liberal arts college at Goshen, Indiana. It was founded in 1894 and serves some 1,150 students from 36 states, Canada, and 15 overseas countries.

Ask any farmer... is agriculture changing? It's nearly impossible to farm today with the same practices, acreage and equipment that was used in the 30's.

When we were a nation of 107 million people, we needed 350 million acres of land to grow our food and fiber. Our population has now nearly doubled and we are harvesting less than 300 million acres. If agriculture hadn't changed, we would now need to harvest 500 to 550 million acres—even if we stopped exporting.

What has happened in the past few years in agriculture overshadows the progress of many previous generations. In Christ's time, it was thought that one full-time farmer could produce enough food for himself and less than one other person.

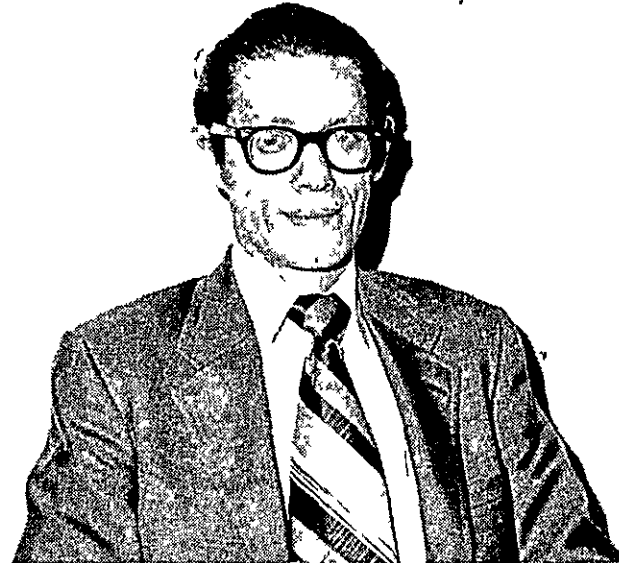

By 1850 the average American farmer was producing enough food and fiber for himself and four other persons. He nearly doubled his production in just 50 years and was able to feed seven persons.

From 1900 to 1940 farmers made tremendous progress and the output of food and fiber by one farmer rose to enough for 11 other people.

In the next 20 years (1940-1960), each farmer more than doubled his production and was able to supply food for 26 people.

Today each farmer is able to produce enough food and fiber to supply 47 persons. This is about four - and - one - half times the amount he was supplying in 1940.

Farmers have made as much change in their ability to produce the needed food and fiber in the past 11 years as was made between the time of Christ and 1960.

County 4-H Fair opens Monday

By JOHN AYLSWORTH
4-H Extension Agent

The Clinton County 4-H Fair opens Monday, August 16 with over 1,400 youth exhibiting nearly 2,800 entries. The Fair runs through Wednesday evening August 18 when projects are released at 9:30 p.m. except livestock.

All entries will be in place by noon on August 16 with some judging to begin on Monday at 1:00 p.m. The rest of the judging will take place on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The County Fair is the climax of the year for the 4-H youth and their projects. Judges will place ribbons as to A, B or C grade on the quality of the project based upon the standard set by the judge.

The most important thing is what did the youngster learn in working with their project and not whether he received an A, B or C grade. Since the youth has decided to exhibit his project for the public to see what he has accomplished, he is quite proud of his work no matter what grade ribbon he may receive.

The public is invited to see what the 1,400 4-H members have done this past year in the areas of Clothing, Knitting, Foods, Horses, Vegetables, Flowers, Handicraft, Livestock, Dairy, Cultural Arts, Ceramics, Rabbits, Conservation, Entomology, and many other project areas.

A person picks up many ideas that they might use at home or do themselves next year.

The Clinton County 4-H Fair is quite different from surrounding county fairs as it has no midway or carnival. This way the youth can concentrate on their project and people have a chance to view the exhibits and talk with their neighbors.

Several new features this year include a baby animal exhibit including cow and calf, horse and foal, young rabbits, and pets. This exhibit includes the mother with her young which has to be less than three months old.

Many times at fairs we see only the adult animal and do not know what the young looks like. People are encouraged to bring their children to see these young animals.

Another new feature includes seeing 4-H members give demonstrations relating to their project and some members will be selling their surplus vegetables. The dry weather has reduced the amount of vegetables that will be available for sale.

The Fair Livestock Sale on Wednesday, August 18 at 2:00 p.m. will provide the public an opportunity to purchase an animal for their freezer. Local processing is available to people wishing to buy a beef for their locker. No experience is necessary to participate in the auction. 33 steers will be available for sale to buyers. Whether you buy or not why not plan to attend the sale.

The County Fair closes on Wednesday evening with a livestock and float parade, talent show acts, a style revue with top clothing and knitting winners and the Outstanding 4-H Boy and Girl award to be presented. Don't miss out on the 1971 Clinton County 4-H Fair here in St. Johns at the City Park.

CLINTON COUNTY 4-H Talent entries in the district Share the Fun contest won 3 out of the 4 blue ribbon awards presented. The three winners were: an instrumental number from the Bengal Community Club - Greg and Jeff Hazle and Lisa Bissell; the 4-H Cheerleaders from Olive 4-H Projects - Roxann Doak, Tammy Hunt, Shelly Wilkes, Luann Hopp, Patty and Delores Plaza; and an acrobatic dance - Dehise Cerny of the Nimble Fingers.

The Polka Dots from the Eagles 4-H Club consisting of Linda and Patricia McCrumb, Jean and Mark Miros was awarded one of the three Honorable Mentions presented. There were a total of 15 acts in the contest.

In the District Public Speaking Contest Charles Tait of the Kountry Cousins placed 2nd in the boys and Vickie Thelen placed 3rd in the girls. A boy from Saginaw County won the boys and a girl from Eaton County won the girls division.

THE CLINTON County 4-H Teen Leaders were treated to a special program by Miss Willemien Gotink, an IPYE from the Netherlands, who showed slides and discussed her country. Miss Gotink left Clinton County Sunday for Iowa where she will spend the next 2 1/2 months living with different families there.

There were 44 youth and 11 adults who participated in the canoe trip weekend activity in the Gaylord area. They covered 64 miles of canoeing in the two days. The Teen Leaders hosted 22 4-H members and 3 leaders from Newago County for an overnight exchange August 2. This trip was part of Newago County's Michigan 4-H Heritage trip.

THE SPATS & Spurs 4-H Club held their 2nd Annual members only horse show Sunday and felt it was quite successful with all members participating. Chris Chant won the high point horse trophy with Janet Davis as runner up and Julie Chant won the high point pony trophy with Jim Thurlow as runner up. Dean Austin served as judge and Frank Knight as ringmaster.

The club plans to hold a fun weekend after the County Fair to include horses, kids and parents.

THE SWINGING Bingham's 4-H Club members have donated $5,000 toward the National 4-H Center Expansion Drive in Washington, D.C. The members are hard at work in preparing their exhibits for the County Fair - August 16-18.

THE KOUNTRY Cousins 4-H Club members will have five members participating in the County Demonstration Contest: Wayne Fedewa, Frank Falvor, Dale Devereaux, Nick Pylowany, and Jane Smith. A committee consisting of Charles Falvor, Jane Smith, Jerry Smith, and Charles Tait was appointed to work out plans for the club hayride. Demonstrations were given by Larry Falvor on "Transplanting Plants" and Jay Miller on "Fertilizing a Garden." Charles Tait showed slides of the 4-H exchange to Minnesota, July 8-16.

THE PRAIRIE 4-H Club members discussed the County Fair to be held on August 16-18, their exhibits, Fair float, and litter barrel exhibit. The club held the club Family Picnic on August 8 at Sleepy Hollow Conservation Park. The members are selling Family Tree hand cream as a money making project.

4-H report to the nation

By KATHY JO NICHOLS
Olive 4-H Projects Club

WOULD YOU BELIEVE...
...4-H in the inner city?
...mothers learning about nutrition and proper diets through 4-H?

4-H has been developed in about eighty countries around the world?

...that today there exists an organization with a flexible program which can satisfy anyone's desire to learn?

These are all new and different areas of 4-H which have been developed. Such new projects are not designed to replace the agricultural aspects of 4-H. Their purpose is only to allow the program to expand and reach new audiences and to help all types of people with all kinds of interests to "learn by doing".

"Learning by doing" is one of the primary objectives of the 4-H program and it is the responsibility of the 4-H Report to the Nation

Team to explain to national organizations and leaders in government, business, industry, agriculture, education, and other fields how this is accomplished through 4-H projects and activities.

KATHY NICHOLS

Each year every state has the opportunity to nominate two 4-H members, a girl and a boy, to interview for the 4-H Report to the Nation Team. The interviews are conducted at National 4-H Congress in Chicago, and during one day of eliminations, a new team (generally consisting of six to eight members) is selected.

During the following year these team members serve as representatives of the four million 4-H members in the United States. The team members generally have three or four national appointments besides fulfilling speaking engagements within their own state.

Since the report team is limited in size and 4-H now includes a wide variety of projects and activities, it is essential that each reporter have a general knowledge of all aspects of the 4-H program and be capable of answering any questions which may arise.

Serving as a National Reporter this year has increased my own interest in the 4-H program, enabled me to meet many supporters of 4-H, and provided me with quite a variable travel schedule. I have been able to talk to 4-H leaders from many different states and I have learned about beautification projects in the inner city of Boston, horseback riding lessons being conducted for mentally retarded children in Rhode Island, and Expanded Nutrition Programs being developed on Indian Reservations in Arizona.

I have also been able to help other people expand their beliefs about what 4-H is all about. This is the most rewarding part about being a reporter.

I really feel that the busy, hectic schedule, tired and aching feet, and the queasy feeling of the airplane take-off is worth it when after my presentation is completed someone from the audience comes up to me, shakes my hand and says "never knew 4-H could do so much! It truly is a worthwhile organization."

It is a great feeling to know that someone was listening and that someone does care.

4-H as a parent-leader looks at it Pleasure horse popularity spreading across nation

By DONNA M. SMITH

leader I have mixed emotions. As a parent I feel 4-H is one of the greatest organizations for our youth today. I've had many experiences with my three children in their club work, each has been distinctive in some way.

There are some disappointments as in anything one does, but they are soon overcome when on the next try it all turns out the way you planned it. I feel that most of us parents are guilty of putting too much pressure on the 4-H member, some to the point where, if he or she gets less than an A or blue ribbon they have degraded or failed us.

This may happen unconsciously but it doesn't alter the fact and many are harmed by it. I feel that the member learns and gains valuable lessons and experience from his mistakes. The color of the ribbon or grade isn't the important thing but, what he has learned from it.

The motto of, "LearnByDoing" is the true 4-H way in every project or skill that is tried, and helps to develop a better personality.

On the leader's side is another story. The leader also learns many times with the member and by their mistakes. Since most leaders are either recruited by another leader or a volunteer, we don't always have special training for a given project so we try to learn all we can to help the member, by our own research or attending special workshop sessions set up by the Extension Office.

One thing I've learned in meetings with other leaders from other counties and States is we all have one thing in common, a lack of parent support in many instances. Some drop the kids off or wait for someone else to pick them up and never bother to come in and take part in a meeting or maybe lend a helping hand. Many times a leader would welcome some help—any help. Being a leader has helped me in many ways. I've had the opportunity to work with them in today's fast moving society.

The rewards are the gratification and satisfaction that comes when your members completes his or her projects on time and afterwards says thank you. It makes you feel very good when someone comes up to you at the fair or a special meeting and says your members did a good job.

It makes all the time, effort, and work you put into it worthwhile. Some Times one gets depressed and wonders "Am I doing a good enough job?" We still must keep trying to improve however but now and then thank you gives one encouragement to go on.

Learning the basics of good photography

By KAM WASHBURN
Elsie 4-Corners 4-H Club

Kodak makes me very angry. With their invention of the Instamatic, remember, all you have to do to take a picture is drop in the cartridge, point, and snap. Well to take a picture that is all a person has to do, but to take a "good" picture there are many other factors that should be taken into account.

For instance how about that picture you just got back that has someone's head cut off, or that picture that is so bright it hurts your eyes to look at it, or that one that is so dark you are not sure whether you took it during the day or at night.

Well even though the Instamatic is very prominent among the people of America there are still many who want to learn the basics of taking "good" pictures and because of this Photography is one of the newest but yet fastest growing projects offered by 4-H.

One of the major reasons it is growing so fast is because anyone, no matter where he lives, can participate in the project.

Pictures taken by 4-H photographers range from landscapes, to animals, and from people to anything else that can be photographed.

When a person begins the photography project he can begin by taking black and white or color pictures. Throughout the project, no matter how old a member is he can take only black and white pictures or he can advance into different areas such as color prints, color slides, or single 5"x7".

By taking the photography project the member can begin by learning the basics. From there the project is limitless. The project is always waiting for new and original ideas.

By VIRGINIA CORDES
Trailbreakers 4-H Club

The popularity of the pleasure horse is growing rapidly all over the nation. There are more pleasure horses in the United States today than ever before in history.

The same holds true for Clinton County. In the past few years the 4-H horse project, has grown to be one of our largest and most popular projects.

Why do so many youths join the 4-H horse project? What good does it do them?

First off 4-H is a good place to learn how to properly care for your horse. This is very helpful, especially to the younger members with their first horse. Every different club uses different techniques to teach their members, about feeding, grooming, foot care, etc.

In 4-H learn by doing is stressed. Demonstrations are a great way to learn by doing. In my local club, the Trail Breakers, every member is expected to do two demonstrations a year, the members that have done them say that it really does teach them a lot and gives them good experience.

The extension office gives us some wonderful bulletins to work with also.

Once you know how to take care of your horse and can keep him healthy, you can start having fun with him. Learning to ride properly is very important, for your own safety as well as your horse's comfort. If you ever even hope to win ribbons at horse shows you must know how to ride correctly.

My club teaches the members this by having weekly riding sessions. At these sessions our leader points out our weaknesses and suggests ways to improve them.

TO HAVE FUN is our next objective. Trail rides and other get-togethers on horse back are always enjoyable. But then again you can leave the horse home and go on hayrides or have parties. Sometimes it's good enough just to get together with other "horse" people and share experiences.

We always try to leave some time for this at business meetings.

Horse shows are another type of fun and excitement. 4-H can help you prepare for them.

Although a lot depends on the individual local club, any body can expect to learn something and have fun while learning if they apply themselves. You have to give as much as you take and maybe more, that's just one of the things I've learned through 4-H.

VIRGINIA CORDES

So if you happen to visit the Clinton County Fair, stop by the horse arena on either Monday or Tuesday and see what the 4-H'ers have learned throughout the year. And then come back Tuesday night at 7 p.m. and watch us have fun with our horses.

What's a garden?

By BILL PARKER
Parker's Workers 4-H Club

What is a 4-H garden? Well, it's something a 4-H'er works to carefully plan, plant, cultivate, and harvest a crop of beautiful vegetables. Sounds simple, doesn't it?

But what it really is, is hours of listening to complaints from our parents and leaders about not having all the weeds out of our garden. It's hours of complaining about the weather.

Like this year, for weeks there is no rain so you finally decide to water your garden and the next day it rains two inches and you watch, or try to find your garden under inches of standing water.

A 4-H garden also means a great deal of worrying and hoping that the crop will be in the right condition for the fair.

Then when the fair does come you get up at dawn to pick the vegetables, making sure you have the right number and the very best specimens possible to represent your garden.

After spending several hours selecting, cleaning and preparing the vegetables you have to wait in a seemingly endless line waiting to see the judge.

Then the moment arrives. You're standing directly in front of the seemingly very stern person thinking all sorts of bad things about your vegetable. Wishing then, that you had thinned the carrots so they would have been straighter; wishing you had spent a few more minutes dusting the cabbage so those little holes weren't in the leaves. And a million other I wish I had.

When the judge faces you and says a very fine arrangement but the carrots are not straight and the cabbage leaves have a few holes and . . . etc.

But that's the way we learn as the saying goes. And the learning is where the fun is in 4-H.

Cutting alfalfa

ST. JOHNS—Yes, you can take that third or fourth alfalfa cutting in September or anytime in the fall without hurting the stands. . .

—If the alfalfa is at least as winter hardy as Saranac; —If the alfalfa is topped annually, especially with potassium; —And if the alfalfa is well resistant (not necessary for stands left only two years).

George McQueen, Clinton county extension agricultural agent, says the new recommendation makes alfalfa management for the dairyman much more flexible than when September 1 was the deadline date.

This system permits the alfalfa plant to start blooming in the first cutting, be at about 1/10 bloom in the second, and 1/10th to full bloom in the last "September 1 to October 15, or later if weather permits).

"As long as the plant starts to bloom at each cutting, it will have stored enough food in the roots so that it can be cut in the fall without injuring the stand or reducing next year's yield," says McQueen.

The fall cutting recommendation is a new one. Until a couple years ago, farmers followed a recommendation established in the 1930's. ("Don't cut from four to six weeks before first killing frost or during the period from early September to mid-October.")

Youth Exploration Days Exploring during MSU's

By STEVE THELEN
Bengal Community 4-H Club

I attended State 4-H Exploration Days. It was held at Michigan State University, June 29 through July 1. Exploration Days takes the place of the former State Show. It was considered that State Show captured the competition angle of 4-H.

With the previous State Show you were only getting the older 4-H members who had done their best work on their county level and received recognition. Exploration Days were designed to reach a greater number of 4-H'ers. There was intensive training in 63 different areas.

The training in each of these options was designed to reach more younger members, who would not have been able to attend State Show because of requirements, and give them training to use at their fairs. More people are reached by this new program and knowledge gained can be applied to their project.

After two days of intensive training a 4-H In Action Days was held. Thirty five hundred members, parents, leaders and others were able to observe and participate in all of the 63 optional sessions.

As my option I chose No. 25 — 4-H Awareness Teams. At this option thirty-five of us learned how to present 4-H ideas to three main age groups — children, teenagers, and adults. I was in the teenage group.

In this group we prepared a handout similar to this:
4-H for Everyone
—Urban, City, Rural
—Individuals
—Adults
—Schools
What 4-H Does:
—Personal Development
—Teaches project skills
—Provides opportunities to make friends
—Provides opportunities for careers
—Travel opportunities
—Leadership opportunities
—Fun

Gun safety . . conservation program

JUDY SCHWARK

By JUDY SCHWARK
Spring Valley 4-H Club

Gun safety is a conservation program that teaches proper handling of a gun. The course includes target shooting and proper hunting procedures.

Before ever handling the gun the instructor explains the parts of the gun, demonstrates proper handling, and explains the procedure in which he wants everyone to act while on the range. For target shooting a .22 caliber rifle is used. A beginner usually starts in the prone position which is lying down. In this position the shooter lies with his feet off to one side with the left arm bent straight below the gun. A strap can be used, which goes around the arm and is hooked to the gun, to help steady the aim.

The other position used in 4-H is a standing position or often called "off-hand". In this position a strap is allowed to be used but few people use it because it doesn't help that much when standing. Usually to shoot standing a person stands with his feet apart away for good standing support. Some shooters place their elbow on their hip for better support.

Only two of the four shooting positions "prone" and "off-hand" are used in 4-H, the other two positions "kneeling" and "sitting" are not used. In any of the four shooting positions equipment can be used for more accurate shooting.

A shooting jacket which has pads to protect the elbows from the ground, and the upper part of the arm from the strap and stock is often used. The pads help keep the shooter's heart beat from moving the gun thus making the aim more accurate.

Also a glove can be worn to keep the pulse from moving the gun in the hand. Some shooters wear ear phones so that they will not be disturbed by other shooters. All of this equipment is an aid to a more steady aim.

In the course for proper hunting procedures the instructor demonstrates how to climb through fences and ditches and how to cope with problems a hunter might face. To help improve shooting skills for hunting the hunter can practice shooting skeet. Skeet shooting is having a clay disc thrown in the air and then shoot it before it hits the ground.

The gun safety program helps a person learn responsibility, and most important the art of good sportsmanship.

Bugs are interesting? You bet

HARRY MOLDENHAUER AND FRIENDS

By HARRY MOLDENHAUER

Bugs are interesting, don't you think? Or wouldn't you know or even want to know?

You might say, 4-H is all right with its foods, clothing, crafts, livestock and this type of thing. But bugs? No way. Probably the only time you notice insects is when there is a mosquito on your arm, a fly on your plate or aphids on your prize rose!

You have probably never even stopped in your daily tasks to notice the beautiful monarchs, or striking swallowtails flitting in and around your backyard kingdom, or even watched the bees in their task of pollination.

But there is more to Entomology than just collecting, mounting, and displaying specimens. This project can be related to so many other 4-H projects. Such as crops in which there are many insect pests like the alfalfa weevil or cereal leaf beetle. Control of these insect pests makes an interesting scientific project.

This also applies to common garden insect pests. However, they aren't all bad for there are the good old honey bees and ladybugs, which eat aphids.

Some other projects having a lot to do with insects would be livestock, poultry or rabbits. Flies and their larvae cause a lot of trouble in cattle especially, and fleas and lice are big pests with the birds and bunnies.

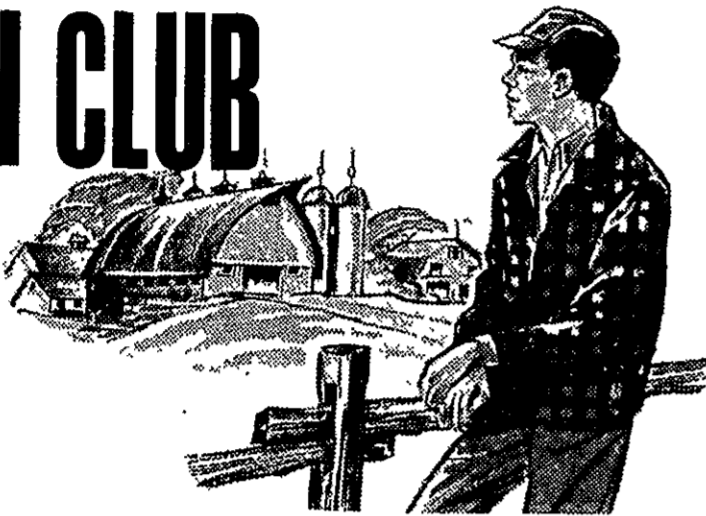

Other related projects could be crafts or photography. Many butterfly replicas are made out of shells and other materials in crafts and some of the huge moths and butterflies make fine photographs.

Actually getting right down to the "nitty gritty", insects can and do affect in some way most if not all of the other projects you may be more interested in.

Now what do you think of Entomology?

Bread offers opportunities in 4-H club

By KATHY HAZLE Scattered Southeast

Bread?

How many of you realize what great opportunities there are with bread making in 4-H. You can start out as a younger member with Quick Bread, then as you become a little older you can start in with Yeast Bread.

When you are old enough to be in Exploring Foods, which is for older girls who work mainly on their own the fun really starts.

There are about as many things to do with bread as you could possibly think of. You can make bread from foreign countries which is a real learning experience, explore with a basic yeast dough, or think up your own concoctions. There is just a world of exploring with bread.

There are also awards you can win with Bread. You can be chosen a district award winner in bread and try for a trip to the National Club Congress in Chicago, and there is also a Bread pin given by Standard Brands.

I feel that many people fail to realize just what you can do with Bread. Many people feel that a loaf of Bread is just a loaf of bread, and fail to realize the many different things you can do with a basic yeast bread dough.

I have worked with bread for 8 years and I have learned that bread is what you want to make it.

Learning about woodworking

By DENNIS BAESE

In woodworking we build things from scratch. For the first project we have to cut a small piece of board off a larger one and then sand it smooth and make sure that it is square. This teaches how to use a saw, a square, and how to sand. Our first year we build small things that are a little more complicated but still not very hard. The first and second year you are an apprentice and have to make three articles.

Then the third year one has a choice of either staying as an apprentice or becoming a handyman. A handyman has to make only two articles but they have to be a little more complicated, such as a small dog house or a bird house, or something such as that.

One can be a handyman the third and fourth year. The fifth year, one can either stay as a handyman or become a craftsman.

A craftsman only has to make one article, but it has to be more complicated such as a piece of furniture—a dresser, a desk, etc. Each year one gets into more complicated things. One has to learn how to learn different tools.

An apprentice is not to use the power tools at all. A handyman can use power tools with the help of the leader, but it is discouraged unless he has something big to cut by hand, such as a sheet of plywood.

A CRAFTSMAN can use power tools because he has something more complicated as a project and he should be more competent.

An apprentice's projects are not usually painted or anything because they have not learned to paint yet.

By the time he is a handyman his projects will have paint on them because he is getting older and should be learning how to paint by this time. When he becomes a craftsman most of his projects will be stained and finished.

I am in my sixth year of woodworking and I built a china cabinet. It was difficult and it took a lot of patience, but I learned a lot.

I learned more about different types of wood, and how they take stain. Last year I built a dresser and got state show from the county and got best of show in the Michigan State University exhibit.

This year I am a teen leader and I have enjoyed helping the younger members to learn more about woodworking.

Safety: an open project

By DEBBIE THELEN
Bengal Community 4-H Club

Safety is one of the most open projects in 4-H. In this project the different kinds of safety are practically unlimited. You can choose any type of safety from farm safety to pet safety.

This is the first year that I've taken this project and I've already learned many things about it. For my 4-H Safety project I chose the subject of Drugs. I did research to find out just how dangerous drugs are. It is amazing to find out the many hazards connected with drugs.

In the winter I did a demonstration called "Safety and Sledding". A whole project could revolve around this one subject.

Safety is an interesting project because you learn so many practical things. The five main types of Safety suggested for study are: Fire Prevention, Safety in the Home, Bicycle Safety, Safety on the Farm, and First Aid.

From the Fire Prevention phase one could learn to develop an awareness of fire hazards. In "Safety in the Home" one could learn to check his home for hazards. In "Bicycle Safety" one could learn the importance of safe bicycling and the traffic laws that apply to bicycle riders.

From "Safety on the Farm" one would learn to recognize and correct farm hazards. Through "First Aid" there are many, many things to learn. Dressing wounds, applying simple bandages, giving artificial respiration, are only a start.

Safety is a good individual project as well as a good group project. In a group you could all compare your homes and find out what others are doing for protecting their homes and themselves.

If you are interested in starting a Safety project in your club, talk to your organization leader or any leader in your club and then get others interested in this project.

If you don't know any leaders contact the Clinton County Extension Office. It is a very worthwhile project and it could save your life.

New opinions, ideas discovered during Washington excursion

By LORI McQUEEN
Double M and Nimble Fingers 4-H Club

When asked to describe this trip to Washington, D.C. and what it meant to me and many others I found that it was difficult to do in a few words. From the moment we entered our bus to leave until the moment we exited when we arrived home, we six delegates from Clinton County were mixed in with at least 30 people in our own age group with new and different ideas and opinions. The whole trip was fascinating.

The bus ride enabled us to get acquainted with some of the people we would be traveling and living with for the next week. The tour through Gettysburg enabled us to really feel the past and help fight for the future. Then, when we arrived in Washington D.C., our real awakening began. I call it an awakening because that is exactly what it was.

Everyone that attended the course was forced to open their eyes and grope for answers. No one could ignore what was going on because everyone was there to learn and gain as much out of the course as possible. We were forced to broaden our minds because they were working continuously through the day.

We held discussions which were focused at current issues and problems as they were viewed by people from different states since there were representatives from Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Arkansas, Minnesota and Virginia attending.

Our Michigan bus, along with the others, took tours through Washington to view the past as all the memorials, plaques, and buildings were dedicated to great men, places and research of our history.

The past and the future go hand in hand there as exhibited in the wax museum where poses and actions of great men and women from Davy Crockett and Clara Barton right up to and including President Nixon today.

At the end of the week, everyone was sorry to see the course end, yet anxious to get back and try to improve the system in our home cities and counties. The whole week was sort of a display of citizenship and each individual was given the chance to form his own ideas and habits about how to display good citizenship.

All of us came back feeling as though we really had learned something and are willing to share it with others.

From tailwaggers to leader dogs

By JEANNINE SEEGER
Tailwaggers 4-H Club

"Buster, sit!"
"Tracie, heel sit!"
"Shadow, stay. Good boy!"
Believe it or not, these are the sounds of a 4-H meeting. It's a meeting of the Tailwaggers Club.

The Tailwaggers is a recently formed 4-H dog club; the first successful leader dog club in Michigan. It is composed of fourteen dedicated members and their families. Everyone in the club agrees that this project has to be a family affair or it wouldn't be successful.

Of great importance in helping the members are Mrs. Wayne Bruin, the club's leader and Mr. Daniel Balog of the Haslett Lion's Club, a representative of Leader Dogs, who helped to organize the club, and now guides the members in their work.

The members of the Tailwaggers Club train puppies that have been donated to Leader Dogs. They teach them basic commands like sit, stay, come, down and heel. The pups are to be friendly to everyone and everything and must take things as they come.

The dogs are kept until they are from one to two years old. Then they are sent to Rochester, Michigan to complete their training as leaders of the blind.

Regular meetings are held once a month. Each dog is weighed, measured and put through his paces to check his progress. Members also compare notes about their dogs.

The Tailwaggers don't just work at home and at meetings. Members take their dogs to town to work on noisy streets and crowded stores. Several of the dogs are television and radio personalities, too.

They also performed at the 4-H style review last spring and the State 4-H Dog Show on July 17.

Under the guidance of the leaders and members, wriggling, untrained, but intelligent puppies have grown up into fairly well-behaved and loving Leader-Dogs

-to-be. And their masters and mistresses have grown with them.

Each member has the goal and satisfaction of helping others through their work. They also learn responsibility as they care for their charges.

Of course, it is not all fun and games. It is hard work, and even a bit discouraging at times, but it is rewarding to note the progress each dog has made from the time he began to work with the Tailwaggers.

Emergency ward for home improvements

By PATTY FOX
Happy Hustlers 4-H Club

Imagine you're visiting the emergency ward of a decorating shop in the back of your mind.

Two big doors fly open and a bedroom comes in on a stretcher.

The bedroom is suffering from an acute case of bright color deficiency and an internal furniture disorder. The intercom is summoning Dr. Redo, a bedroom ailment specialist. The Doctor arrives and she surveys the situation and then decides to operate as soon as possible.

First she must prescribe an antidote for the color deficiency. A change from a dull grey-blue to live healthy pink walls and a fresh white ceiling would help ease the patient's pain. (The prescription was filled at a local paint store.) After the medication was given and had taken effect, the surgery would be carefully planned.

For the first part of surgery, Dr. Redo will concentrate on which pieces of furniture should be removed because they don't coordinate with the style of the other furniture or else they clutter the room.

These unwanted pieces also cause some discomfort to the patient's eyes. The furniture that is left must be rearranged to give the room a feeling of being new. During the last part of surgery, accessories will be added to harmonize and balance the metabolism of the room. Dr. Redo decides she will make white curtains and gild a couple picture frame and a mirror frame to put into the room.

A lamp or two would stimulate the life processes during the night. The operation is a success!

Dr. Redo could only accomplish such a task because she went to the 4-H Home Improvement Decorating School in Clinton County. She isn't like most of her friends, though. While she studied to be a specialist, her friends became general practitioners. The general practitioners have performed minor and major operations ranging from making a bulletin board for a bedroom to remodeling a whole house.

So goes a day in the emergency room of a decorating shop. Everyone at one time or another has dreamed about redoing some part of their house, but they never know where to start. If you're one of those people who need a start, contact the Clinton County Extension Office for information on Home Improvement. It's a great resource center.

4-H offers opportunities for creative expressions

By WENDY SMITH
French's Corner 4-H Club

All people are creative! Self expression is the basic characteristic of creative activity. 4-H offers a chance for many to express their individual creativity in many areas. Three years ago, a cultural arts program was developed in Clinton County that included painting and drawing. It started with 12 members and has grown to 128 members enrolled this year. Exhibits may include oil painting, water colors, pencil, charcoal, pastels and acrylic. At spring achievement our work is evaluated by a qualified person. Each member is told what is good about their picture and what they can do to improve it, which they can do before fair time. In August our pictures are exhibited again, this time they are to be judged and ribbons awarded. The paintings and drawings exhibited, show the individuality created in each picture, and creating leads to greater emotional maturity and new appreciation of human values. Other related activities, open to all members include the litter barrel contest at fair time and a national poster contest. Junior leadership is another activity which enabled me to attend a training session at Camp Kett. There we worked with resource people who introduced us to new materials. Art teachers gave us cram courses in drawing and leaders from other counties exchanged ideas which we brought back with us. My background in 4-H helped me, I feel, to become active in the drama club at school. As co-chairman of the painting committee I designed the sets for our musical "Guys and Dolls" and I spent many hours actually painting the drops and flats for all the plays presented. When a person gets actively interested in drawing and painting, it enriches his or her life as nothing else can. It develops a new awareness of everything around them. Everything has a new and personal meaning. 4-H can do this for you.

Do-it yourself craze alive and active in Clinton 4-H clothing

By PAM PFAFF
Westphalia 4-H

Nothing to wear? Did you ever find yourself going to your closet and finding nothing to wear on that very special occasion, or found an outfit that you just loved until you looked at the price tag that you turned away? Well if you did, join 4-H clothing, get out your needle and thread, and do it yourself to save money and have a larger wardrobe. You can use your own creative ability to sew that outfit that costs too much to buy for that occasion. Clothing can give you many opportunities such as a hobby, saving money, a better wardrobe, and last of all, the satisfaction that you made something yourself. Clothing also lets you use your own ideas to be creative, to make your own creation. My own idea is to be original and different, such as if you buy a dress in a store there is a good chance you'll see someone with the same dress. Whereas if you make your own you won't see the same style and material as your outfit but you will never see both together. After you have put all of your ideas into your new creation the fun comes the big event: the style show. The modeling teaches you poise, personality, and it gives you a chance to see how other members accent their outfit and also meet people to get different ideas. Starting one project in 4-H gives you enthusiasm to go on to other projects such as flowers, foods, family living, home designing, etc. Clothing is to express you, your ideas and save money. So let's everyone get together, get enthusiasm and start to learn through 4-H clothing this fall.

Cattle feeders day Aug. 20

EAST LANSING — Cattle Feeders Day, including reports on beef feeding and housing experiments, has been set for Friday, Aug. 20, at Michigan State University's Beef Cattle Research Center. A tour of the center and feeding equipment demonstrations will begin at 8 a.m., and the research reports will run 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Judd McManigal, of the First National Bank of Chicago, will speak at noon on feedlot financing. One of the research highlights includes a report on an ammonium salt that looks promising as an efficient protein supplement for beef rations. Dr. Hugh Henderson, MSU beef researcher in charge of the project, says research is well under way to inexpensively produce the ammonium salt. MSU RESEARCHERS will also report on comparisons of seven silage-additives, the economics of Holstein steer housing and "Pro-Sil Versus Soybean Oil Meal."

Five attend national conference

By JIM McQUEEN
Nimble Fingers and Double M 4-H Club

The date was April 18, 1971 to April 23, 1971. The place was Washington D.C. The people were some 250 young adults from all fifty states, Puerto Rico and Canada representing all the 4-H youth in the North American Continent. The occasion was the 41st National 4-H Conference. The five of us who made up the Michigan Delegation for this conference arrived on Saturday, April 17th and since the conference wasn't officially opened until Monday morning, we all had lots of time to meet the kids coming in and make a lot of new friends. The conference was officially opened and we were officially welcomed at a special ceremony at the USDA building with a Marine band and all. This was the first of a series of assemblies most of which were conducted at the National 4-H center. On Monday we also started work in our advisory groups. These groups were discussion groups which tried to find how different aspects of our society have affected the 4-H program.

These meetings were held for a total of 15 hours during the week. At the final assembly, the groups all gave reports and recommendations concerned with improving the 4-H program. Among all of our work we also had time for a little sight-seeing and visiting. One day we went to Arlington National Cemetery and presented a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. On Wednesday, the delegation went to the White House and was surprised with a visit by President Nixon. We later presented Mrs. Nixon with a "Partner in 4-H" citation and were her guests for a "tea". We received an exceptional tour of the White House and after the tea we were given freedom to roam at will around the whole bottom floor as long as we didn't get lost. On Thursday we went out to Capitol Hill and visited with our Congressmen. Most of them were very cordial and one even bought us lunch in the House Dining room. The week wasn't all assemblies, meetings and sightseeing though. We had recreation in the form of games and contests as well as dancing and singing. We even had an "Evening with Wayne Newton". Friday night we had a Clover Ball in the Congressional Club to round out our week in Washington. We also had a little bit of unplanned recreation like trying to see if the second floor boys could outdo the first floor boys in a water fight or something else as harmless as that. Well, that is the National 4-H Conference in brief, a great opportunity to meet people and share your ideas to help better the 4-H program in general.

On July 8 at 6:15 a.m. our chartered bus (from Mercury bus lines, Alma) pulled into the Clinton County Extension office parking lot to pick up the Clinton and Shiawassee county delegates.

The bus had already picked up the Gratiot County delegates at Alma. We left at 6:30 sharp amid the sky showering us with raindrops, and crying mothers.

Our trip leader was Mr. John R. Aylsworth, Extension 4-H Youth Agent from Clinton County. The chaperones for the trip were: Mrs. Claude Thelen and Mrs. Noel Smith, Clinton County, Mrs. Shirley Conger and Mrs. Virginia Davis, Shiawassee County, and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Rockefeller, Gratiot County. The purpose of our trip was to participate in the 4-H Interstate Exchange at Fairbault, Minn.

That night we attended a water safety demonstration at the camp given by a Conservation team from Wisconsin. We then traveled to Wisconsin Dells where we saw a beautiful Indian Ceremonial put on by the remaining Winnebago tribes. They sang songs, gave speeches and performed many Indian dances.

Friday morning we arrived at the Wisconsin Dells ready for a scenic 2 1/2 hour boat cruise of the Dells. On the tour there were three places we stopped. These stops were at Cold Water Canon, Standing Rock and at the Witches Gulf. This boat tour was one of the most exciting things on our trip and was enjoyed by everyone.

We arrived in Fairbault, Minn. about 5:30 where we were met by our host families and went to their homes. The time spent with our host families was spent in many different ways. Some of the 4-H activities held while we were there were, The State Black and White Show, The All Star Softball game, Local Club Tours and a County Demonstration Day. We were busy with some type of activity at all times, either with 4-H or family activity with our hosts.

On Thursday, July 15 we boarded our bus for home at 7:00 a.m. again among crying people, but this time by our host families instead of our own families.

On our return trip we traveled across Wisconsin, across the Upper Peninsula of Michigan until we reached Escanaba. We spent the night at an air-conditioned Motel called "Delona".

On Friday morning we visited the Mead Corporation Paper Mill at Escanaba. This was very interesting. Most of us had never seen how paper is made. After the tour our bus headed for home. We reached St. Johns around 7:00.

Dairy foods project generates interest

By FAITH BORTON

Milk, ice cream, cheese and buttermilk are a few of the products you can become acquainted with in the project of Dairy Foods. This project enables a 4-H member to concentrate on learning about and using dairy products.

I have been particularly interested in Dairy Foods because I have been raised on a Holstein Dairy farm. As a dairyman's daughter, I have found that using our product is the best advertising available. The quality of a food that is made with the real dairy product instead of its substitute speaks for itself.

In taking the Dairy Foods project, I have learned about the nutritional value of some of the products and also of the flavor value of the same products. Last year I concentrated on American Cheddar Cheese.

I chose American Cheddar because it was the most widely used cheese in my recipe books. The production of the cheese was the most interesting of all its aspects to me: how a certain milk, or bacteria, or cutting process can make the difference between a cheddar cheese and a bleu cheese. This year I am concentrating on sour cream. I am finding that sour cream can make a hum-drum food take on a new zest of flavor.

An aspect of Dairy foods I recently enjoyed was that of trying new products. At the State 4-H Youth Exploration Days at M.S.U. in June, I attended a meeting on new dairy products being developed. I had the opportunity to taste two new concoctions, a freeze-dried ice cream and a chocolate fudge-type cheese. Both were very unusual, but very good.

I also became acquainted with dried cottage cheese that can be reconstituted, new flavorings for milk and dried-sour-cream. The meeting was interesting and informative.

Besides being interesting and informative Dairy Foods can be fun. This project also can be a project of creativity.

A person can use his or her creative ability in using dairy products in new ways, presenting Dairy Foods in Demonstrations and in Exhibits.

I have enjoyed this project very much. In fact, the more I dig into it the more interesting it becomes!

Knowing techniques of ceramics is a fantastic learning project

By GLEN PUNG
4-H Wonders Club

The art of ceramics can be an interesting and relaxing hobby. I joined the 4-H Wonders Club when I was 13 years old. The following year I started learning about ceramics. During the first year I learned how to mold small pieces such as ashtrays, mugs or bowls.

For this I used a special clay mixed with water to make it pliable. After it was molded into a desired shape I cleaned it with a sharp tool then had it fired in a ceramics kiln for several hours to dry it thoroughly.

Next I painted it with a glaze or stain, and then a finish coat of paint.

Next one learns how to work with greenware. These are pottery-like pieces already molded and can be bought at any ceramics shop. These pieces must be cleaned so no lines show, then painted and finished similar to the hand molded pieces.

There are various types of paints. Glazes, underglazes, stains, bases and translucent are some of them.

Glazes require from three to five coats of paint applied in succession after the first one has dried. These must also be fired once after they have been painted to bring out their true color. When you apply a glaze, the finished product will be a color different from that you might expect. Generally glazes turn out much better than stains, which can be washed and used for dishes such as candy dishes, plates and cups. Mostly ceramic pieces are for knick-knacks.

Stains require one coat and the color you apply stays that way. You can spray stains with a kind of gloss-like finish to add shine to the object.

When using translucent you must first use a base coat. After that has dried you apply a translucent with a brush. Since translucent are very runny one must be careful while painting so as not to splatter paint on another person's project.

Then the translucent is wiped down with a clean cloth which has been dampened with mineral spirits. This gives the wood tone or brass effect.

There are different types of brushes which vary in size. For stains a narrow, hard bristled brush is used. Glazes require a bushy type of brush, and translucent a medium brush. If you use your brush for stain it should not be used for a glaze or translucent.

The right type of brush should be used for each paint to obtain the best results.

Ceramics can be fun. It is relaxing and very rewarding. Last fall I was Junior leader in ceramics and helped some of the new members in our club. I am looking forward to learning more about it in winter 4-H.

Anyone for a rodeo, step right up please

By JACK WOODHAMS
4-H Wonders Club

If you want to lose some weight, or if your place is dull, buy yourself a calf for the beef project in 4-H. The free rodeos start and the work begins. I have had a calf in 4-H for 8 years and our place is never dull!!!

You should buy your calf in November and it should weigh around 500 pounds. When you buy it, you should buy one with a straight back, deep body and one that looks as if he had a good growth potential.

A place for it to stay is the next item. A pen by itself so that you can work with it with out interference from the other cattle you may have, is very good. You will need good bedding such as straw, corn cobs or saw dust. The pen should be kept as clean and dry as possible.

Calves have to have a well balanced diet; hay, corn, corn silage and minerals will do nicely. Plus, you should water him at least twice a day.

Talk to your calf so that he gets used to the sound of your voice. In the spring, you should start working with him more.

First, by tying him up, then, TRY walking him with a choke halter.

THIS, is when the fun starts!! He is apt to do most anything such as hop, skip, jump, kick, lie down, bunt, and just stand there. But, after a little gentle (and not so gentle) persuasion, he will behave himself and walk like a gentleman.

One of your daily chores at this time includes brushing him. A month or so before the fair you should give him a bath. Yes, I said a bath!! The soap and water variety, and scrub, scrub, scrub.

Just like a little boy, he probably will not like it. We use a castile soap. You have to be sure to get all the soap out or else you will find that he has dandruff problems. And don't forget his ears!

You will have to practice setting up his feet so they are set square beneath him. Use a show stick or a cane to help the steer place his feet. He is apt to kick, so watch out, but keep trying and eventually you can show him you're the boss. Trim his toe-nails if they walk trim. This will help him walk straighter, too.

By fair time he should be finished out, which means he should be ready for market, probably weighing 1,000 to 1,100 pounds.

At the fair you will be with the rest of your club. Your calves have to be kept well bedded with straw, kept well fed and watered. You are responsible for keeping the place clean and neat besides just being with him all that you can because he will not be used to the noise and you will be able to calm him down some.

When you are in the show ring you have to keep one eye on the judge and one eye on your steer. You have to be ready to stop your steer at any time and when you stop, you have to set up his feet.

Don't quit showing your calf when the judge has placed you because he is still looking you over and he might change his mind. The only time you are safe is when he picks up the mike and announces the winners.

If you sell your calf at the sale, the check looks good enough to wash away any fears and doubts you may have had for trying it again next year. See you there.

4-H FAMILY

Having all the family interested in 4-H participation helps Mrs. Charles Hazle in her work with the state 4-H council projects. Here she advises family members, from left, Leslie, Brian, Jeff and Greg.

Our youth council's concern

By MRS. CHARLES HAZLE
Area Nine Representative
(Clinton)
State Youth Council

The Michigan State 4-H Youth Council's first concern is youth. It was organized in 1950 so that volunteer 4-H leaders could serve a more active advisory role in 4-H youth programs on a state-wide basis.

The state is divided into 31 areas consisting of from two to four counties. Most of the areas have a representative plus an alternate, however, at this time, three areas lack representatives. We are in area 9; Clinton, Shiawassee, and Gratiot counties. Representation is rotated among these three counties. The last one was from Gratiot, the next one should be from Shiawassee, and I am currently serving from Clinton. We serve on a three year term.

The representative should be a leader and have had experience on the county council.

Regular business meetings are held twice a year; once in the fall and once at the beginning of the year, usually at M.S.U. or Camp Keet.

A reunion for all past and present members and spouses is held in July at different parts of the state for fun and relaxation, no business. 4-H leaders are an outstanding group of adults that are interested in young people and their development and never tire of discussions with others leaders. This year we were at a 4-H camp near Channing in the upper peninsula. Next year we will be at Camp Keet.

The council helps develop, strengthen, and coordinate the work of county and area 4-H Youth programs and advises in the development of state-wide 4-H Youth program policies. Advice or complaints of the local leaders may be given directly to the state council member or through the county council. Better communication between the county and state levels is a concern of both county and state councils.

The state council also promotes a better understanding of the Cooperative Extension Service throughout the state. The state-wide leader meet in March at M.S.U. is planned and conducted by the state council. Other areas covered by the council at the last business meeting were; adult involvement, 4-H programs in disadvantaged areas, Youth Exploration Days, developmental committees, exchange trips and campouts, environmental aspects of 4-H, crafts in 4-H, outdoor recreation, relations of state staff on local programs, older youth programs in counties, leadership training programs at all levels, awards, trips, Tel-Awards.

Over 100,000 Michigan youth benefit through the efforts of volunteer leaders through 4-H Youth programs. Emphasis is on leadership and citizenship fulfillment and the overall development of young people.

The State 4-H Youth Council seeks to contribute to this end.

The fun with food

By DIANE DAVIS

There's more fun in food than just eating it, and that's cooking it yourself. The only way to learn how to cook is by cooking. Once you discover how easy and fun it is you'll want to cook as often as you can.

When you take a good project in 4-H, you not only learn how to cook, but you learn how important nutrition is for good health, physical fitness, and appearance. You also learn how to plan different meals and how to purchase foods.

There are many opportunities involved with foods like Demonstration and Action Exhibit Day. The top demonstrations and action exhibits that are selected will be given during the 4-H Fair and can receive premiums depending upon the presentation they give and how it's rated A, B, or C. Every year there are also food tours and workshops.

This summer the 4-H food members 14 years and older went to Consumers Power Company in Owosso to hear the Consumers Power Home Economists. For the members 10-13 years old there was an International Day where different clubs took different countries and showed the costumes and customs of the country. They also made food samples of the country's food and showed some of the games played in that country.

All of these tours and workshops are not only educational but they are fun, too.

There are different food groups for the different ages. The first group is Food For Fun which is for members of the 9-12 age group. In this group the members learn about the Basic 4 food groups.

FOOD FOR fitness-for a prettier, peppier you is what Today's Girl-Tomorrow's Homemaker is about. This group is for members in the age group of 12-14.

If you're inquisitive and adventurous, Exploring Foods and Nutrition is the project for you. Exploring Foods and Nutrition is divided into 5 different groups, they are:

- Consumer Education and Marketing
- Experimental Foods
- Food Preparation and Management
- Food Travels (Include Foreign Food Customs)
- Nutrition

In Exploring Foods and Nutrition you can plan your own project and develop a greater understanding of foods of other countries and the problems dealing with food. Exploring Foods and Nutrition is for members in the age group of 14-18.

Not all boys are interested in becoming star athletes, but what guy wouldn't like to be handsome, happy, and healthy? Yes, food for fitness and your physique is what the Young Chef is all about, and it's for boys only of the ages 12-14.

There is also the food group called Outdoor Meals Away From Home. You learn how to plan nutritious outdoor meals, besides how to use outdoor equipment and how to prevent food spoilage when eating outside.

THROUGH MY years in foods I've had the experience of taking an Action Exhibit and Demonstration to Michigan State for what we used to call State Show. Over there I gave them to the judges and people visiting. Giving Action Exhibits and Demonstrations is one of the best ways to learn how to speak in public and really enjoy it.

I've also had the honor of winning one of the highest awards in foods which is the Rosette. Besides going to different food tours and learning about food I was able to attend a poster-making workshop. I learned all the different recommended color combinations besides the different sizes and shapes of posters.

All of this information helps you to make a better looking poster that adds to your foods exhibit.

There is plenty to learn about foods and a great deal you can do with foods and the best way to do it is through 4-H.

JACK WOODHAMS, WORKING WITH CATTLE ENTRY

Turkey heads list

EAST LANSING—Turkey leads the U.S. Department of Agriculture's list of plentiful foods for July, and many Michigan markets are taking advantage of large stocks of frozen birds to offer specials or features.

For the homemaker this can mean a variety of inexpensive cook-now eat-later summer dishes, says Maryann Meldrum, Michigan State University consumer marketing agent.

"A few minutes of preparation during the cool of the day and an occasional peek in the oven can produce a bird yielding a whole range of main dishes, snacks, salads, and stock for hot or cold soups," says Miss Meldrum.

Turkey meat output during the first two months of 1971 was 39 percent greater than a year ago and economists predict it will remain at a high level through the summer.

"Another reason for the bargain pricing is the desire of producers to break the American habit of serving turkey only at Thanksgiving and Christmas," Miss Meldrum explains.

Even though turkey meat is selling today for approximately the same as 20 years ago, producers feel they could make it even more economical if consumers would just level out use, instead of concentrating more than half of the year's total consumption in November and December.

For smaller families, Miss Meldrum recommends buying a frozen turkey roll (of all white, all dark or a combination) or a turkey quarter. "Check the markets too for turkey parts," she says. "Many offer tremendous values on drumsticks, for example."

Whatever the form, however, turkey can be regarded as an excellent source of protein and two important B vitamins. It's also rich in iron and low in fat.

Encourage the slobs

We Americans must certainly be among the greatest litterbugs in the world. Intelligent human beings for the most part, and generally not oblivious to neat surroundings in our own backyard yet we'll indiscriminately litter streets, parks, and public places.

It truly burns us when we watch some character parked in his car, with nothing much to do, empty a month's accumulation of cigarette butts and miscellaneous wrappers, onto the ground.

The same slob will also toss various items out the window of his vehicle as he travels merrily down our highways.

It probably wouldn't make any difference to this type of person if a trash container was within reaching distance. However, we believe that all communities should provide as many receptacles as possible for the convenience—and the encouragement factor—of us all, including the slobs.

Too much fuss about hair styles

Adult attitudes towards length and style of a boy's hair may go down in history as the most ridiculous . . . and hypocritical . . . situation ever.

In short, haven't we all made too much of a fuss about hair?

Before our own sons begin thinking their father has flipped his lid as he heads down the back side of the century hill, let's get a couple of things straight.

WE DO NOT understand why a boy would want to look like a girl and long hair shakes we old boys up. We're World War II vintage, young folks, and for we up-country lads, at least, the first boys we'd ever seen in our lives with shoulder-length hair were in New York. We were told they didn't need things like propellers and wings to go aloft, and we were scared silly to get near 'em, and that impression of flowing locks never left us.

So we'll never like shoulder length hair. We'll never condone filth. But we wish the style and length hadn't become such an issue. And we want to apologize to youth for making it such an issue.

NOR DO WE mean adults must accept youthful attitudes on hair. If an applicant's hair is distasteful to me, I will continue to refuse him employment. If I think hair must be within certain limits to work for me, I will require haircuts to suit my taste. Mine will be more liberal than most, but not as liberal as some. And that is my right.

Remember, we'll grant youth the same right, once it gains control, to demand we wear our hair long if they are in control of the purse and think long hair better serves the business they are running.

THESE ARE personal rights, and that's the way personal rights should be honored.

We're just sorry our generation let this hair thing become so important because we've made hypocrites of ourselves . . . just like we have so many times.

How many of your adult male acquaintances are wearing sideburns? And where did sideburns come from? Kids, of course, kids and long hair.

ALL HAIR is being worn longer; following styles set by the kids, modified to suit the adults.

So the youngsters say . . . it's not what we do that is wrong . . . it's only that we don't let adults set the limits within which we function. We come up with the innovation; they take of it what they wish, and tell us how much of what we believe and do is acceptable.

Unfortunately most radical style innovations come from the fringe areas . . . hair and wild dress from the hippies that mean "love" to some but mean filth and drugs and false ideals to much of the adult world . . . pegged pants, you remember, and "zoot suits" from the gangland, thug area of society. All of this was eventually accepted, to a degree, by the middleground of American society.

SO HERE'S one old fogey who has criticized hair styles for the last time. We'll ask you to stay clean. We'll ask you to stay off drugs. We'll ask you to work on improving the world, not just talk about improving it on possibly, your elders' money.

Do these things and wear your hair as you like. Just don't ask me to like it when I can't tell a boy from a girl. That image from the subways leading to Greenwich Village is imbedded too deeply to ever disappear.

Recipe for wealth

Aug. 1971 W. E. Dobson

We sort of take for granted As we move on through the years, To forget our sweetest blessings, And magnify our fears; It's a bull in form of ego That's just naturally hard to kill, Unless our fears we liquidate And capitalize Good Will.

There are lots of "frozen assets" In this old world of ours, And stubborn weeds bear tempting blooms— Along with fairest flowers; The biggest optimist of all Sometimes must take a spill, But he never lets it cancel Balanced assets of Good Will.

The things we glorify as wealth And padlock for our own, Too oft destroy our visions, Leave us doomed to walk alone; So liquidate your phony fears, And in their place instill, The greatest asset of them all— A surplus of Good Will.

Who's to blame?

By TIM YOUNKMAN

Another of the countless ironies of American life popped up again this week in the midst of all the furor of the Apollo flight. The news item went unnoticed in many newspapers and television news broadcasts.

Detroit, or more correctly Hazel Park, was the scene of this bit of Americana that has become too commonplace to upset most of our citizens.

Jack W. Tocco, an "alleged" Mafia leader, was reinstated as executive vice-president of Hazel Park Racing Association, after federal charges of bankruptcy fraud were dismissed in Detroit last week. However, the "alleged" in front of his association with the underworld is a journalistic courtesy since the Justice Department named him, and two associates, as Mafia leaders.

According to reports, Tocco was one of five directors of the racing association ordered last March by State Racing Commissioner Leo C. Shirley to resign their posts.

The four others were Clarence "Babe" Krappenke, Anthony J. Zerilli, Peter J. Bellanca and Dominic P. "Fats" Corrado. They were asked to resign (with the exception of Krappenke who quit voluntarily) after being indicted on federal felony charges. However, an agreement was reached June 1 which allowed the four to be reinstated as board members if they would not become officers of the association.

Tocco, Corrado and Zerilli were named as Mafia leaders by the Justice Department before a U.S. Senate subcommittee two years ago. Zerilli and Bellanca face federal charges of concealing ownership of a Las Vegas gambling casino.

The irony of all this is that the gangsters and organized criminals do not have to work underground any longer to carry out their schemes. They are now "legitimate" businessmen, free from the dirt of organized "crime". What could be a better set up for a gambling operation, for example, than to be in control of the very sport that nets the bookies millions of dollars annually?

Indeed, race tracks and their operators have always been watched by the law enforcement agencies since it could easily become a fringe benefit of organized crime if not handled carefully by licensing officials.

However, who can say how many legitimate businesses have been controlled for years by organized crime? What areas do they fall into? Who operates them? What links can they tie to organized crime?

There has never been a huge public outcry against organized crime since the days of Prohibition and the more-or-less glorified criminals such as Al Capone, Bugs Moran and Lucky Luciano.

As the organized crime network has grown and branched into legitimate businesses, the federal and local agencies have fallen far behind in their peace-keeping roles. The public is more concerned about a few college buildings that may-or-may-not go up in smoke someday, than the millions of lives that are being squeezed and choked of money, pride and decency right at this moment.

Organized crime has ruined lives through gambling debts, loan sharking, numbers, prostitution and narcotics traffic.

Where will it end? Probably your living room or your business, or your children's lives. The buck passing stops with you—if you don't write your congressmen and legislators to put the pressure on in order to rid ourselves of these parasites—then the fault lies with you. If nothing is done, (and soon) don't point any fingers, just look in the mirror, because you'll have become one of THEM.

Hypocrisy is allowed

By JIM FITZGERALD

In historic Yankee Stadium, where Babe Ruth smacked all those home runs, there is an unusually graphic display of hypocrisy. It boggled my small town mind and I didn't know whether to laugh or cry.

So I simply stifled my emotions with another beer. There was no sense making an ass of myself in front of all those blasé New Yorkers who obviously weren't even aware of the 3 signs that had prompted me to grab my son and say: "God God, look at that!"

The first sign, and the biggest, extols the virtues of OTB—Off Track Betting. In New York, you don't have to go to the racetrack or patronize the corner bookie to get a bed down. You can march right up to one of the caged windows at Grand Central Station, among other public places, and pin your money on the horse's nose.

The second sign, almost as big, urges you to buy a ticket on the New York State Lottery. You can win $1,000 a week for 6 zillion weeks, or something like that. The tickets are sold at every cigar counter and in every church vestibule.

The third sign is small and rather weather-beaten. It advises the baseball fans: "No Gambling Allowed."

This is similar to putting up a "No Eating" sign in a restaurant. The New York government is bombarding citizens with neon pleas to "please place your bets with us, your state needs the money."

But if you bet the guy next to you $1 that the Yankees don't score in the 5th inning, you can go to jail, you dirty gambler.

The important thing to remember is that nothing is wrong unless your government says it is wrong. But keep your eye on the atlas. Be sure you know where every freeway exit is splitting you out.

It is illegal to bet with a bookie in Michigan. You can't even play bingo there without risking arrest. But in Las Vegas you can shoot crap in the wedding chapels. In New York, Governor Rockefeller will bet you 10 to 1 that Mayor Lindsay won't collect your garbage before it can be smelled in Florida.

The day after the Yankee game we went to NBC to watch the taping of the game show, "Concentration," and we did the usual mugging when the camera swung our way.

We were back home a month before that show appeared on the tube. It was the same day Apollo 15 took off for the moon. My son Eddie was terribly concerned that "Concentration" might be pre-empted by coverage of the space launch. Thus he would be sipped out of seeing himself on TV.

His values were obviously out of whack. A moon shot is certainly more important than a silly game show, even if it does star Red Ed and His Waving Hands.

After all, it's been months since anyone brought back a bag of rocks from the moon and the supply must be running low.

But anyway, moon trips are becoming ho-hum things, restricted to the regular news shows.

"Concentration" appeared as scheduled and, if you looked closely for 1 second, there was the Fitz family, waving at the world and wondering how long it would be before Ed Sullivan phoned. So there was no immediate need to talk to Eddie about the warp in his values.

Besides, it would have been a hypocritical thing to do. I didn't want Apollo 15 knocking us off-TV either. I'm against moon trips anyway, even if they pre-empt Doris Day. The fare is way too high for a lot of people who can't afford to go downtown.

No Father wants to be a hypocrite to his son, so I was glad to escape the sham. If I did want to be a phony, I'd aspire to much higher things than plous lies about moon trips. I'd want to work for the New York government, painting signs. I just thought of 3 pluses:

1. "This Is A Library." 2. "The Books Are Free." 3. "No Reading Allowed In This State."

Everyone is questioning Milliken's turn about support of including graduated income tax as part of the ballot proposal for tax reform.

Many Republicans view it as a "capitulation" to Democratic House Speaker Ryan. But there are other possibilities. The following is directly from a House floor speech by myself during the debate on the issue.

Mr. Speaker and members, Some inside information has been made available to me that I think should come to the attention of this body. It is not exactly in the nature of the Ellsberg papers printed in the New York Times, that is, authentic secret documents.

It is more in the nature of the Buckley papers as printed in the National Review. A complete fabrication but one so plausible as to make one suspect its complete authenticity.

The information in total indicates that the Democrats have been cleverly duped by a devious and brilliant Republican Governor.

The first records are of a Governor's conference with top level financial advisors early last fall.

Gov: I have a bold and dramatic plan for educational and taxation reform. We will completely eliminate property taxation for school operation! Now I want you men to go to work and develop a plan for new sources of revenue to replace property tax.

Advisors: Yes, sir! Two weeks later another conference.

Advisors: Mr. Governor, the only possible source of sufficient revenue to replace property tax is the Graduated Personal Income Tax.

Gov: My Gosh! I can't possibly propose that! Republicans have traditionally been against graduated taxes! Republicans in the legislature would crucify me!

Two weeks later. Advisors: No other way, Governor.

Gov: (sadly) Then property tax relief is dead.

Two weeks later. Phones ring at 3 a.m. in the homes of the top inside financial advisors.

Gov: Meet in my office right away. A brilliant plan has come to me in my sleep!

Gov: (meeting one hour later) We are going to devise a constitutional amendment to put on the ballot to eliminate property tax for school operation!

1st Advisor: (puzzled) But Governor, it's not necessary to amend the constitution to achieve property tax relief.

2nd Advisor: (puzzled) Certainly, Mr. Governor, before Speaker Ryan and the Democrats agree to give the necessary two-thirds vote to a Republican Property Tax Relief Amendment they will demand something in return.

Gov: And what will they demand?

Advisors: Well, uh, it's hard to tell, maybe no, certainly, a Graduated Personal Income Tax Amendment!

Gov: Exactly.

Advisors: Brilliant! But in the meantime what will we propose to replace the money?

Gov: Something new and exotic. How about a Value Added Tax?

Advisors: Fine, Shall we work out all the details?

Gov: Never mind the details. The Democrats are going to give

Public outraged on hike

By SEN. WILLIAM S. BALLENGER

Nobody likes a tax hike, so now that the rate of the four-year-old state levy on personal income has been boosted, it's not particularly surprising to find that the initial public reaction is one of outrage.

But such a response ignores the indisputable fact that thousands of Michigan students, teachers, the handicapped, indigents, and elderly persons on Medicaid will benefit from the income tax increase approved a few days ago.

A breakdown of the $250 million expected to be raised shows that about $78 million will be used toward paying salary increases for elementary, high school and college teachers.

In addition, public schools will get $28 million more to help meet the cost of higher enrollments and $5.2 million more will go to the state-supported colleges and universities.

Welfare recipients are expected to get $77 million of the increase, largely because caseloads have been increasing at the rate of 2,000 a month.

There were, for instance, 115,100 Aid-to-Dependent-Children (ADC) cases on the rolls in June. As I've pointed out before, the only way we're going to stop increasing state welfare costs is to have the U.S. Congress pass President Nixon's Welfare Reform Program.

The state's 48,000 employees will share in $24 million of the increased income, and $10 million will provide the state's share of water pollution clean-up projects.

The remaining $17 million will be spread throughout the general budget.

Through restored rebates on property and city income taxes, Michigan taxpayers will get back about $80 million of the increase—meaning that, in reality, the state tax on individuals has increased only about one unit (from 2.6% to 3.6%) rather than 1.3 units (from 2.6% to 3.9%).

But on paper, at least, the new tax law does indeed raise the personal income tax rate from 2.6 per cent to 3.9 per cent; the corporation income tax from 5.6 per cent to 7.8 per cent; and the income tax on financial institutions from 7 per cent to 9.7 per cent.

The rebate calls for tax credits of 20 per cent of the city income tax that is under $100; $20 plus 10 per cent on taxes between $100 and $150; $25 and 5 per cent on taxes between $150 and $500 and $27.50 plus 5 per cent of taxes over $200 up to a $10,000 limit.

The tax rebate rate in effect from 1967-69 will also be restored for property owners and renters.

This rebate is designed to give most relief to persons in the lower income brackets and large property holders, such as farmers.

Already signed into law by Governor William Milliken, the new tax schedule went into effect Sunday, August 1.

Any of you interested in figuring out how it will affect you can calculate that the amount presently taken out of your income through withholding will increase by about one half.

In other words, if $10 has been taken out of your check for income tax withholding in the past, you can expect the amount in your next paycheck will be $15.

In an interesting footnote to show how fast new taxes move, some 48,000 state employees had been scheduled to receive pay raises starting July 1. But there wasn't enough money in the treasury to pay for them, so they have been postponed.

But, even though the new taxes go into effect August 1, the state employees will have to wait at least another month to receive their raises retroactively—the raises they were supposed to get a month before the tax increase went into effect.

A look at graduated tax

Rep. Douglas Trezise 87th District

Frequently, during the past few weeks, reference has been made here and in the news columns to a proposal to authorize a graduated income tax in Michigan. With the legislature in recess and things a little quieter in Lansing, maybe this would be a good time to go over these proposals in more detail.

To begin with, the Constitution of the State of Michigan contains the following language in Article IX, Section 7:

"No income tax graduated as to rate or base shall be imposed by the state or any of its subdivisions."

Thus, before any graduated tax can be enacted, the Constitution must be amended to revise or eliminate this language.

Just what is a graduated income tax and how does it differ from the present state income tax? Today's state income tax is what is called a "flat rate tax."

This means that everyone, regardless of taxable income, pays the same rate of tax, which as of August 1 is 3.9 percent. With a graduated tax, the rate changes upward with higher taxable income. In the low income brackets the rate might be as low as 1 or 2 percent and in the upper brackets it could reach 10 to 15 percent.

The federal income tax system is a graduated plan and you know that the rate in that case varies from a basic 22 percent to a maximum in the 70-80 percent range.

Graduation in taxation can be achieved in basically two ways; the rate (percentage) can be adjusted or a flat percentage can be applied to taxable income base which is first adjusted through exemptions, deductions etc. In effect, the federal tax is graduated in both base and rate.

One of the proposals discussed at great length in Lansing would be a state income tax to the federal income tax by just saying that a person's Michigan tax bill would be a flat percentage of his federal income tax. This would have some merit in its ease of computation but it obviously would graduate as to base and thus, contrary to the provisions of the Michigan Constitution, this is the "piggy-back" tax you may have read about.

Before anything further can be done with the graduated tax, the voters of the State will have to express their opinions by approving or rejecting an amendment to the Constitution. Twice in the past decade and as recently as 1968, this issue has been before the voters and both times it was soundly defeated.

But this year when Governor Milliken proposed his constitutional reduction in property taxes for school purposes, the Democratic leadership, which has long advocated the graduated tax, seized the opportunity to resurrect this proposal. Sensing the popularity of the property tax relief plan, they insisted that the graduated tax question be tied in the same ballot proposal as the Governor's plan so that the people could not approve one without also giving their approval to the other.

At the time of this writing, it is not clear whether that combined question will be placed on the ballot for a special election this fall. It was approved in the House of Representatives but now needs clearance by a two-thirds vote in the Senate. One thing should be pointed

Washington Reports

Clearing the house

Rep. U.S. Garry Brown 3rd. Congressional Dist.

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Last week Congress gave its final approval to public works legislation and a number of appropriations bills and cleared the way for final action on a loan guarantee for Lockheed Aircraft Corporation and a two year extension of the draft.

Public Works: Congress sent to the President last week public works legislation which would provide $500 million over the next two years for public works projects in areas of high unemployment. Both Barry and Calhoun counties in the Third District would qualify for such assistance.

The authorization is part of a larger legislative package which provides for extension of the Appalachian Regional Development program and the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965.

These measures are supported by the President but were subject to his veto four weeks ago when they were coupled with the Public Works Acceleration Act, a bill unacceptable to the administration.

It was argued at the time that the acceleration act would primarily reach the construction and allied industries and while the administration was not opposed to these workers receiving assistance, it thought that it should not be provided at the expense of failing to help effectively and selectively the areas of highest unemployment.

It was further contended that the bill would not reach the neediest among the minority groups.

In its place, the Congress passed and the President signed into law on July 12, 1971, the Emergency Employment Act of 1971, which according to the best estimates will provide 150,000 jobs in the first year and 200,000 in the second.

Appropriations for this act are scheduled to be voted on in the House this week.

Loan Guarantee: By a 192-189 vote, the House gave its approval to a $250 million loan guarantee to Lockheed Aircraft Corporation. Over the weekend, the White House shifted its support from legislation which would have established a $2 billion fund to guarantee loans to faltering businesses to the loan guarantee specifically for Lockheed, thus setting the stage for this week's final vote on the issue in the Senate.

Draft Extension: After weeks of deliberation, a House-Senate conference committee last week reported the draft extension legislation. The problem: a Senate amendment to the act setting a nine month limit on U.S. troop withdrawal from Vietnam dependent upon release of all U.S. prisoners of war. The House conferees would not agree to such a provision. The compromise, while urging Presidential action to accomplish a withdrawal, does not set a specific nine month limit.

Opposition to the compromise wording is expected in the Senate. While action on the extension legislation is possible this week, opponents may prevent the measure being brought up. If brought up, some have said they will filibuster to prevent a vote.

Appropriations for Fiscal Year 1972: Both houses of Congress gave their final approval to legislation appropriating funds for fiscal year 1972 for agriculture, environment and consumer protection programs. Approval of appropriations for the Department of Transportation included endorsement of the final payment of $58.5 million to 10 airlines on the cancelled supersonic transport.

The House also approved and sent to the Senate a $20.3 billion Labor-Health Education and Welfare appropriation bill. The Senate is expected to act on this measure this week.

These appropriations measures have been discussed in greater detail in preceding columns.

Besides the legislation mentioned above as being scheduled for floor action this week, the House will also consider passage of the Foreign Assistance Act and the Marine Protection Research Sanctuaries Act.
