Among the unique displays found at Smith Hall is this replica of the gingerbread house of fairy tale fame.

Sprucing up his pony, Prince, is Wesley Sevanski, 11, of the Riverside Riders 4-H Club of Wacousta.

Floats, contests fill the week

A float parade tonight is among the highlights as the annual Clinton County 4-H Club Fair draws to a close.

Fair activity at St. Johns City Park began early Monday morning as nearly 1,500 4-H members got to work on approximately 3,000 exhibits.

Several of these outstanding exhibits will be selected to represent the county at the State 4-H Show to be held next week at Michigan State University for four days beginning Tuesday.

Preceding tonight's parade set for 7:30, today's activities include judging of dairy cattle at 9:30 a.m., the dairy showmanship contest at 2 p.m. and the market livestock sale at 3 p.m.

Following the parade, a 4-H style review will be at 8:30 p.m. and at 8:45 p.m. is a variety show and the presentation of awards. Except for livestock, all exhibits will be released at 9:30 p.m.

Livestock is to be released Thursday at 5 a.m. and the state show meeting will be at 1 p.m.

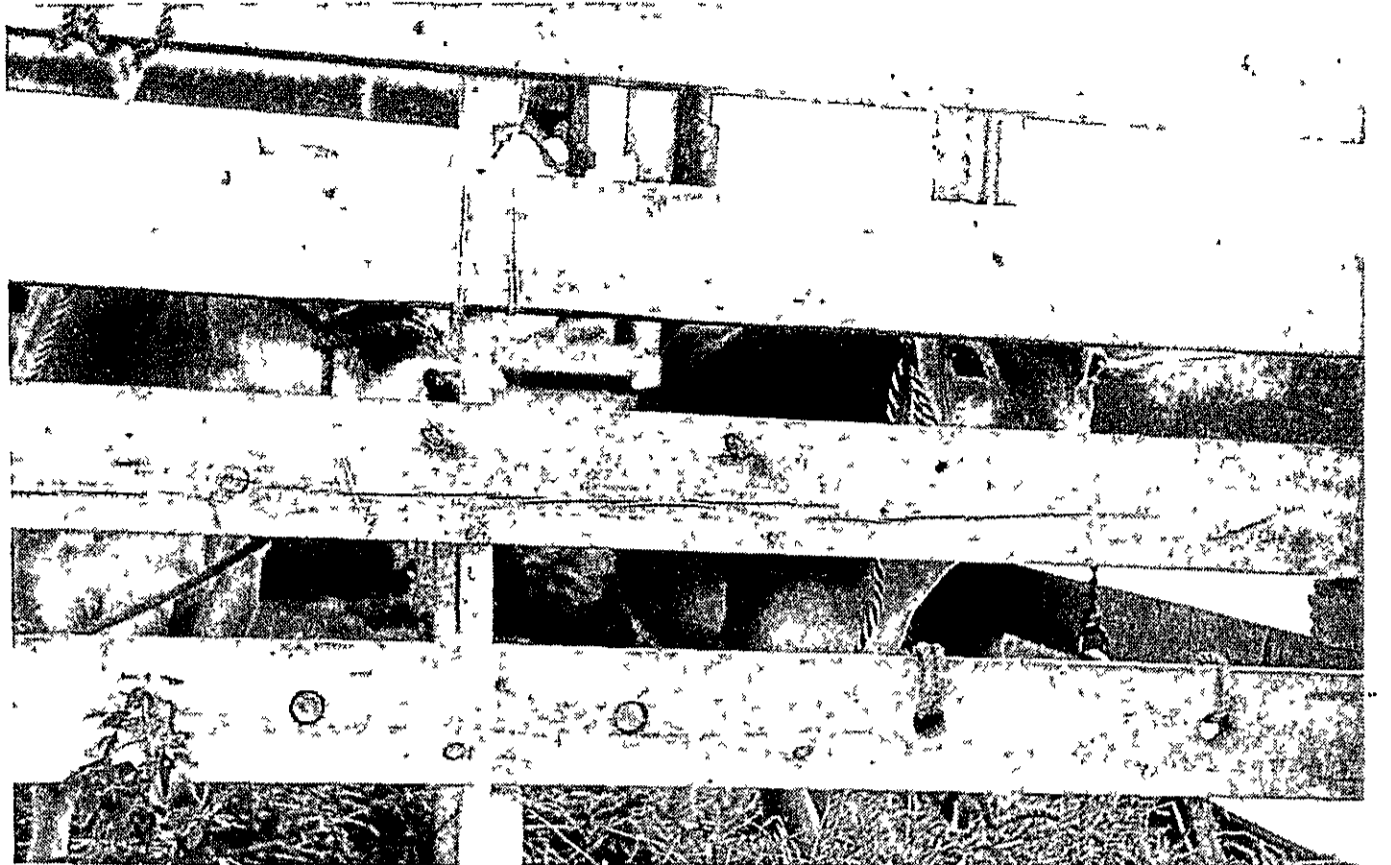

The fair officially opened at 9 a.m. Monday with the receiving of entries and the setting up of exhibits. Later in the morning there was the 4-H western horse show and in the afternoon the tractor operator's contest was held.

Evening activities Monday were highlighted by an all-star softball game.

Tuesday morning vegetable and flower garden exhibits arrived and judging of some exhibits began. In the afternoon flower exhibits made at the show were on display.

Earlier in the day the 4-H horse show was held and also swine and sheep showmanship contests.

Beef cattle entries were also judged in the morning and the beef showmanship contest was held in the afternoon. The day's activities were concluded with an evening horse show.

Cows find various ways to entertain themselves at the 4-H Fair while their young owners roam around. A quick game of hide-and-seek with a cameraman is good for a chuckle.

Tri-County grows 21% since 1960

State officials estimate a population growth of 21 per cent in the Tri-County area over an eight-year span since 1960 with Clinton County showing an increase of 6,231 persons during the period.

The estimate for the three counties—Clinton, Ingham and Eaton—comes from the State Public Health Department's Center for Health Statistics.

Estimates put the 1968 population of Clinton County at 43,000, up 800 from 1967 and compared to the 1960 census figure of 37,696.

Population for the three counties in 1968 was set at 362,700, up 11,400 from the 351,300 residents estimated in the area in 1967 and an increase of 64,060 from the 1960 census figure of 298,640.

Here are figures for the three counties listing the 1968 and 1967 state estimates and the 1960 census figures:

	1968	1967	1966
Clinton	43,000	43,000	37,696
Ingham	257,600	249,300	211,296
Eaton	61,300	59,000	49,684

The estimates, according to Mrs. Ruth Dennis, of the demography section, were determined through the "correlation ratio method" which adjusts population figures according to births, auto registrations, sales taxes and school census figures.

During an election year voter registration is also used, she said. Death statistics have been dropped as an important indicator in Health Department estimates.

Growth in the Tri-County was put well ahead of the total state growth of 11 per cent over the eight-year period. Michigan's population in 1968 was estimated at 8,675,000 compared to the 1967 estimate of 8,608,000 and the 1960 census figure of 7,823,000.

In Washington, D.C., meanwhile, the Bureau of Census recently released figures updated to 1966 for the three counties.

The federal agency estimated the Tri-County area population for 1966 at 350,100 with Clinton County at 45,500, Ingham at 247,800 and Eaton at 56,800.

This report showed that during that six-year period from 1960 to 1966, that Tri-County area experienced in-migration of nearly 20,000 persons, 47,000 births and 15,000 deaths.

Postal changes alter County News delivery

Clinton County News subscribers in several areas of the county began receiving their copies of the paper a day late last month because of changes in the routing schedules of the Lansing Post Office.

St. Johns Postmaster J.D. Robinson is currently making attempts to have the delivery schedules returned to their former times but if this cannot be done special Clinton County News vehicles will transport the papers to insure Wednesday delivery.

Areas affected by the post office change included Fowler, Maple Rapids, Westphalia, Eagle and Perrinton.

Commissioner Rand fires verbal darts

St. Johns City Commissioner Jeanne Rand threw some verbal darts at the engineering firm of Williams and Works Monday night after City Clerk Tom Hundley read a letter from that firm advising the city that additional pumping equipment at the lift station serving the area of the new high school would be of no benefit.

According to the letter, recent findings of information relative to lines serviced by the lift station suggest that increased pumping capacity is not necessary to carry expected loads from the new school for at least a few years.

"What kind of an engineering firm is that," queried Mrs. Rand. She cited earlier advice the commission had accepted indicating approximately $5,000 worth of alterations would be needed to handle the expected influx of sewerage from the school and how that information had caused concern among taxpayers. "Now they come back and tell us we don't need new pumps. To me, it's just plain incompetence."

The lift station in question was part of a general plan being discussed by the city and St. Johns District school board to provide sewer service to the new school and improvement costs of the facility were being considered for a 50-50 split between the two agencies.

After a brief discussion, Commissioner John Hannah suggested the letter be accepted for its present information but consideration be given for possible consulting changes when future engineering advice is needed.

In other business, the commission referred a request for a special zoning use to the planning and zoning commission. The request was submitted verbally by Brandon White, president of the St. Johns Area Chamber of Commerce, for placement of a tourist information booth on the northeast corner of Baldwin and U.S. 27. White explained to the commission that the building, a portable structure, was inadvertently placed on location before receiving official approval.

He was advised by the commission to appear before the zoning board at their next regular meeting, Aug. 21.

Tabled was a request by Bob Sirrine for a telephone communications agreement to handle ambulance information and service calls during nighttime hours.

Tentative approval was given the TACT board for an outdoor dance on the city tennis courts.

Final approval is to be determined by City Manager Harvey Weatherwax and Police Chief Everett Glazier after a traffic study is conducted to determine risks involved.

Firemen to get Blue Cross benefits

After an extended period of negotiations, St. Johns City Commissioners Monday night approved the formation of an escrow account which will handle payment of hospitalization insurance for volunteer firemen.

According to Blue Cross policy, employees of a firm must be full-time to share in benefits. Volunteer firemen are not considered full-time city employees and after several proposals the current escrow system was accepted.

The plan provides for an amount of $250 per man to be accrued in an escrow account and at the end of one year those wishing to purchase Blue Cross coverage will receive such benefits through the city's payment of the premium. Those volunteers desiring no coverage will receive $250 in cash.

City Commissioner John Hannah pointed out the program was one which was a long time in coming but he and his colleagues echoed the merit of such an increased benefit to the firemen's pay arrangements.

According to Fire Chief Clarence Maier there are presently 18 volunteers and one standby. The new program will cost approximately $5,000.

Merignac, Leon fill initial assignments

United Fund President Bill Patton this week made official appointments and work assignments for this year's campaign drive set for Oct. 16 to Nov. 11. Initial assignments went to Lawrence Merignac and Jim Leon. The pair will serve as co-chairmen for Industrial solicitations.

Merignac is production superintendent at Federal-Mogul Corp. and Leon is sales manager for Saylor-Beall Mfg. Co.

According to Patton, industrial contributions for the United Fund have always been highly supportive to the drive. "Our co-chairmen this year have plans to continue that fine record," Patton said.

SAFETY AWARD PRESENTED BY AAA FOR 7TH YEAR

The Pedestrian Safety Citation was presented to Harvey Weatherwax, city manager and Police Chief Everett Glazier Friday by Jerry Basch, safety education consultant with the Automobile Association of America. St. Johns was cited for its record of no pedestrian deaths and meeting AAA standards of program performance. This is the seventh consecutive year the city has received the award.

Bath wars on unsafe buildings

Buildings considered unsafe by Bath authorities may be demolished if owners fail to correct those conditions under a new ordinance which becomes effective in September.

The Bath Charter Township Board approved a dangerous building ordinance Aug. 4 which can condemn buildings deemed as fire hazards, dangerous to public health or in danger of collapsing. Also included are buildings accessible because of a lack of windows or doors.

The ordinance becomes effective 30 days after publication.

Should the building inspector, fire marshal or health officer determine a structure to be dangerous, written statements will be filed with the Township Clerk, who will serve a notice to the owner or occupant.

If the property owner fails to comply within 10 days the building inspector may upon orders of the Bath Township Board remedy the condition or demolish the building.

'Good old days:' were they?

Edward (Ted) Teachout, 37, of 708 Garfield Street has returned to the City Police force after an absence of three years. He served with the department from 1962 to 1964. Teachout will be on duty afternoons and evenings. When asked how it felt to be back, he replied "real good."

By CLAUDIA McLOUGHLIN
Age 20

Today's younger generation has heard about the "good old days". But were the days good by really so good?

Harold Beardslee doesn't think so. He's 76.

"Not They weren't better. I'll always be thankful that I was born and raised in a small town," he says. "Life is good in a close community. But it certainly wasn't better years ago."

"Sure, people had good times, but we have good times now. Living is easier today with all the modern conveniences. It was harder to fully enjoy life then."

Mr Beardslee, a retired Ovid banker had thoughts similar to Mrs Hazel Dietz, 71, owner and operator of the Ovid Convalescent Manor.

"I really wonder," says Mrs Dietz. "Most everybody looks back at the days of their childhood and thinks they were the best times."

"Maybe they were better, but I'm not so sure."

Gerald Abbott, 71, a Maple Rapids funeral director is sure today is much better.

"Not one house had electricity when I moved to Maple Rapids in 1915 and very few had central heating," he says. "The people were good, but there are just as many good people here today."

John Setterington, 86, retired farmer of Maple Rapids, says, "In some ways, it fits." He was born in Canada and tells that a man could set himself up in business with a team of horses and a cow.

Farming was about the only opportunity that a man had. Today he feels that a young man can go to college or find a job for himself in a hundred ways.

"A few cents went a long way," he says. "We traded a lot or grew what we needed. A family would go to town to buy a few staples like salt, pepper or lard, but for the most part, what was on the farm was enough."

One time cook, Agnes Schlarf, 71, of St. Johns feels that they sure were the good old days.

"There is so much going on today," she says. "Wages are so high and people do so much more today. Living was much easier, slower in the old days."

Of the five people discussing the old days only Mrs Schlarf is sure she would like to go back. "We had good time and as much or more money as today. Working conditions were as good or better, too."

Mr Setterington says that the living conditions and the scientific advancements are so much better that he would not go back even if he could. "We can't move in that direction" added Mr Abbott. "Education is so much greater now. My children and grandchildren graduate from high school knowing about more things than I dared to dream of when I graduated from high school."

Mrs Dietz is unsure. She might like to go back. "There was a greater feeling of family togetherness and neighborhood togetherness than there is today. But a woman's work was harder, I guess a man's was too."

"Living conditions are much better now too," Mr Beardslee says that "if I could go back, not that I really would want to, there are a few things I would do differently. I would want to go back, not for the thing I did, but for the things I'd like to change."

The citizens were asked about the change in people. Are parents different today than say your parents were?

Mr Abbott says that people basically stay the same. Mr Setterington feels that parents give in to their children too often. Mrs Schlarf says that parents are not as demanding as they were.

"When I went out with a young man, I had to tell where I was going and was given a special time to be home. Today parents don't seem to know where their kids are," she says.

Mrs Dietz and Mr Beardslee noted that mothers worked in fewer instances than they do today. "The father was head of the house but the mother was most always at home" he says.

Mrs Dietz adds that "if mothers stayed home more often, children might behave better."

All five agree that children are basically the same. "Certainly no better than I was" remarked the gentlemen. But all the adults seem to feel that young people seem to lack respect. "Maybe it's the parents' fault," says Mr Setterington. "Parents quarrel in front of the children and then the children lose respect for their parents. Parents don't work together with the children. Dad will say ok then mom will say no. If kids can't respect their own parents, not much is left to respect."

Money problem are different. As young couples struggle along on $100 a week, the oldsters discussed what was the average wage for them as young people.

Mr Abbott can't remember the wage, but he does remember that his first steady job was on a farm at the age of 17. Mr Setterington recalls that money was not the important factor. "I worked for my dad and often spent time on neighboring farms," he says. "Once I agreed to help a neighbor for a week. Each day I worked for him he fed me and my horse twice. I was worried at the end of the week I might owe him money, but he gave me $1.75 a day for my work which was above the average rate. My first steady job was for $15 a month and room and board. I worked 10 hours a day in the field plus chores each morning and night. I was 17."

"In 1914 I drove a team of horses on an oil wagon for $37.50 every two weeks paid in pure gold coins," says Mr Beardslee. Mrs Dietz was a "printers devil" as a linotype operator was called for $5 per week in Ovid at the age of 18. At 14, Mrs Schlarf was working as a maid for a doctor for $5 a week.

The Apollo 13 moon shot scored favorably with most of the elders. Mrs Schlarf was the exception. "I don't know what they have accomplished. We wanted to be first, and we were, but where did it get us. It seems a waste of money to me."

The others felt it was a tremendous achievement, but had reservations about its importance. "Those men were pretty brave to do something like that," says Mrs Dietz, they surely took their life in their hands and I thanked the Lord for their safe return. There is some bad and some good in everything we do, I just don't understand all of it."

"It proved to me that if the country has the ingenuity to land a man on the moon, we must be clever enough to solve our own problems. I think now we will," added Mr Setterington.

There are memories from the depths of the depression to the antics of their first car. Mrs Schlarf learned to navigate her new Ford in the pasture. Mr Beardslee kept his first car only a few months. "It was customary to put the car on blocks in the winter, instead, I sold mine. I walked for two years before I bought another one."

Westphalia works toward sewage pollution curbs

Although Westphalia Township officials admit to sanitary and pollution problems in the village their trouble areas were further clarified by Lawrence McLarin, director of the Mid-Michigan Health Department and Darwin Root, sanitarian, at the Township Board meeting Aug. 5.

Mid-Michigan has received numerous complaints from Westphalia residents concerning pollution and the department was recently forced to reject a plot of ground in the southeast section of the township as unsuitable for building, because the soil was unable to support a sewer system.

Root said there was a section east of town that "looked like frost in July," from residents spreading lime over the polluted areas.

The Clinton County Supervisors have now approved Westphalia's request for assistance from the Department of Public Works in a proposed sewage treatment plant.

The residential development and expansion of the village has been held back on several occasions from lack of sewage facilities and Mid-Michigan has further suggested to the board that building permits no longer be issued in the village until the property owner is granted a sewer permit.

Mid-Michigan has already conducted site inspections which include soil borings and perc tests. McLarin assured the board his department would do all they could to help the village with the problems.

Land for a lagoon system was purchased by the township two years ago and sewage disposal plans have been under consideration since 1964. The pollution problems have existed 40 years, but are now reaching the saturation point. Health officials expressed concern for all areas in the county with similar problems and stated epidemics of hepatitis, plague, rats and mosquito vermin as reasons for action by the townships.

Petri and Associates of Benton Harbor is updating plans made by the firm several years ago and will furnish cost estimates. The DPW will also negotiate for federal and state funds for grants, but the village will still be responsible for the total cost.

Westphalia supervisors felt by going with the DPW, "Things are looking up."

DeWitt clerk named

Mrs Lars (Donna) Syverson, 42, has been appointed clerk for DeWitt Township. She will fill the vacancy created when Oliver S. Angell was elected DeWitt supervisor, last July.

Mrs Syverson resides at 3898 Alvin Place in DeWitt Township. Her husband is employed by the Secretary of State, and they have one daughter, Suzan, 13, an 8th grader at DeWitt Junior High School.

Mrs Syverson is an experienced bookkeeper and has sold real estate in the Lansing area for the past three years. She has also been active in the Girl Scouts for the past four years.

Tri-County officials to attend finance courses

Township officials in the Tri-County area will participate in a pilot program sponsored by the Michigan Townships Association offering special workshops in accounting, tax assessing and urban and regional planning.

Watertown Township became one of the first to register its three officials—the supervisor, treasurer and clerk—for the nine weeks of workshops taught under the direction of Michigan State University's Institute for Community Development and Services.

The workshop opens Sept. 16.

If the program proves successful, MTA officials said the same instruction will be offered to township officials in Michigan's other 80 counties.

Cost of the workshops for participating officials will be $20, while remaining expenses covering texts and supplies will come from an MSU grant, says Robert R. Robinson, former Meridian Township supervisor and MTA official.

Membership in each class will be about 20, he said. Other townships, including Lansing, have also applied to the program.

Robinson said the idea for the program began with recognition of the need for trained assessors.

Under the township system, the supervisor must do all the tax assessing, he says. Though new supervisors are often successful businessmen or farmers, they may be inexperienced and untrained in the methods of assessing property, he says.

Robinson says some formal education is needed to prepare supervisors for the day when the state will require certification of tax assessors.

Plans for training supervisors as assessors promptly led to plans for training township treasurers in accounting and for training zoning boards in urban and regional planning, he says.

MSU officials were only quick to see the need for such a program and soon found funds to finance it, says Robinson.

Keith Coates weds Martha Cobb in candlelight service

Miss Martha Elaine Cobb, daughter of Mr and Mrs Andrew Cobb of 9702 Island Road, Elsie, and Keith Merlin Coates, son of Mr and Mrs L. Merlin Coates of 484 Lakeshore Drive, Sarnia, Ontario Canada, were united in marriage Saturday, July 19.

The wedding vows were exchanged in a candlelight ceremony at 7 p.m. in the Elsie United Methodist Church. Rev Gordon Showers officiated for the double ring service.

The church altar was decorated with bouquets of white gladiolus and chrysanthemums with palms. Mrs Donovan Williams sang "Whither Thou Goest," and "Abide With Me," accompanied by Mrs Thomas Jenkins, organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, walked to the altar in a gown of ivory tissue taffeta featuring a bodice of lace over - lay with elbow length sleeves and high neckline. Accents of seed pearls were embroidered on the lace and a deep border of the A-line skirt and chapel train. A camelot cap of matching lace accented with clusters of seed pearls secured an elbow length veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and English ivy centered with a white orchid.

Mrs Glenn Larson, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and bridesmaids were, Miss Sandra Doubrava, Miss Margo Caukin, Mrs Frank Vizard and Mrs David Shaub. They wore identical apricot linen and shantung sleeveless gowns with narrow stand-up necklines and wide scalloped collars. The high waistline was marked by a picot-edged sash of avocado green which formed a bow in back, with the ends falling to the hem line of the A-line skirts. Their head-dresses were small apricot daisies secured to a bow of the same ribbon used on the dresses. They each carried a basket of rainbow colored daisies with apricot and avocado colored ribbons.

Mrs Cobb chose a mint green linen and silk dress appliqued with matching lace for her daughter's wedding. Mrs Coates chose a blue coat dress for the service, with accents of bead embroidery. She wore matching accessories.

Ronald Coates, brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Bruce Baulch, Lawrence Cobb, Robert Steele and Terry Lyon, Brian Baulch and Glen Larson ushered the guests.

A reception was held at the American Legion Hall immediately following the ceremony, where a buffet was served and dancing followed. Music was provided by the Bryon Grinell Trio of Lansing. Mr and Mrs Lawrence Hess and Mr and Mrs Lee Cobb were hosts. Junior hosts were Lisa Eitel and Alan Cobb. Mrs Barbara Hall was in charge of the guest book, Mrs Bruce Baulch served the punch and Mrs Ronald Coates and Mrs Arnold Minarik poured the coffee. Mrs Alfred Eitel and Mrs W. S. Mansfield, aunts of the bride, served the cake. Mrs Bruce Moore, Mrs Jack Wassa and Mrs Marcella Peck assisted at the bridal table.

The reception arrangements repeated the apricot and avocado color scheme and small ever-green trees with star-lites were used as accents.

Special guests present included Mr and Mrs Alfred Eitel of Greenwood, S. C., Mrs Woodford S. Mansfield of Durham, Conn., and Mr and Mrs Stewart Bleckman of Pittsburg, Penn.

For travel the bride selected a mint green, summer flannel, ensemble with beige accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet. The couple will honeymoon in northern Michigan and Canada, and make their first home at Park West Apartments, 301 Parkwood Drive, Lansing.

The bride and groom are both graduates of Michigan State University.

MRS HARRY MCINTOSH

Harry McIntosh-Linda Keener exchange vows

A double ring candlelight service united Linda L. Keener and Harry Austin McIntosh in marriage June 28, at 6 p.m. Rev Robert Prange officiated at the Grove Bible Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs Margaret Keener of R-5, Shepardsville Road and the late Joseph Keener. The groom is the son of, Mr and Mrs Harry McIntosh of 404 W. State Street. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Larry Joe Keener.

The church altar was decorated with white gladiolus and yellow pom poms with additional bouquets placed on the side altars. Mrs Robert Prange, soloist, sang "Where Ever Thou Goest," accompanied by Mrs Busenitz.

The bride chose a bouffant style gown designed with six rows of lace with a long chapel train. The gown was fashioned of Chantilly lace over white satin, and the neckline was trimmed with baby pearls. Her shoulder length veil was attached to a white satin bow trimmed in crystals and pearls. She carried a cascade arrangement of yellow, blue, and white carnations.

Mrs Linda Beachler, served as maid of honor, Kathleen Olange was bridesmaid and Debra Keener served as junior bridesmaid. They each wore gowns in rainbow colors of yellow and blue, designed in chiffon over satin with white lace tops. Each carried a bouquet of carnations.

The mothers wore beige dresses with matching accessories and corsages of yellow and white carnations. Patrick McIntosh was best man and David Beachler was groomsmen, Tom and David Keener ushered the guests.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the IOOF hall in Ovid. Genevive Sills, Carol Duffield, Debra Boose, Cindy Hulwick and Peggy Keener were in charge of the serving. There were 200 guests present and special guests were Mrs Issabelle Daniels, grandmother of the groom, and Mrs Bertha Cornell, grandmother of the bride.

For travel the bride changed to a blue satin dress. The couple honeymooned in upper Michigan.

MRS JACK GUTHRIE

Cynthia Campbell, Jack Guthrie say vows

The Plymouth Congregational Church in Lansing was the setting for the wedding vows of Miss Cynthia Jo Campbell and Jack Owen Guthrie. The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs Wilson E. Campbell Jr. of 4312 Apple-tree Lane, Lansing and the groom is the son of Mr and Mrs Donald Guthrie, of 215 S. Hosmer.

The double ring service was performed Aug. 9 at 7:30 p.m. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Miss Michele Desmond, of Lansing, was maid of honor, and Miss Jan Plenar, Miss Jill Guthrie and Miss Jann Guthrie were attendants.

The bride selected a silk organza gown over white tulle for her wedding. The gown featured a fitted bodice with wide portrait neckline and short sleeves, lavishly trimmed in lace and groups of pearls. A wide chapel train with a band of the patterned lace on the top was also scattered with lace appliques. Her cathedral length mantilla veil of imported French illusion was bordered in the same lace. She carried an arrangement of white glamelias. The attendants were all gowned identically in apricot saki and Venise lace. The gowns were designed with mandarin collars, and a band of Venise lace ran down the front with a large bow in back. They wore matching headpieces and carried bouquets of butter-scotch flowers with moss green ribbons.

Michael Skinner was best man and groomsmen were James Smit, Stephen Guthrie, and James Campbell. Andrew Goldstein and James Smit served as ushers.

A reception was held immediately after the ceremony in the Terrace Room of the Civic Center. Honored guests included, Mr and Mrs James Smit, grandparents of the bride from Dearborn, Mrs Wilson E. Campbell Sr., grandmother of the bride from Lansing, and Mrs Albert Gillette, great-grandmother of the groom, and Mr and Mrs Jack Smit, grandparents of the groom both of Williamsburg, and formerly from St. Johns.

The newlyweds will honeymoon in New York and later reside in Lansing.

St. Peter Lutheran gives $1,200 to for the aged

Sunday afternoon, August 3, Leon Schumaker, Chairman of St. Peter Lutheran Church, Riley, and Rev Marvin Barz, on behalf of the congregation, presented a $1,200 check to Gerald Aibrecht, Administrator of the new Lutheran Home for the Aged in Frankenmuth.

This gift will furnish one semi-private room with carpeting, drapes, and furniture in the new home for Senior Citizens, scheduled to be dedicated Sept. 21 and be occupied this fall.

This money was part of a Centennial Thankoffering by members of St. Peter Lutheran Church, Riley, during this 100th year as a congregation. Remainder of thankofferings will be used to assist the new Hope Lutheran Church, DeWitt, which is scheduled to begin church construction this fall, and for improvements on the church property at Riley.

Those who made the trip to Frankenmuth, and toured the Home Sunday afternoon were Mr and Mrs Leon Schumaker, Mr and Mrs Alfred Mohrke, Mr and Mrs Erwin Kleuckling, Mr and Mrs Lawrence Witt, Jane and Julie, Mr and Mrs John Witt, Mr and Mrs Richard Sehnke, Mrs Lona Silt, Mrs Rosina Mohrke, and Rev and Mrs Marvin Barz and family.

The next special Centennial activity planned at Riley is a pageant "Built On The Rock", which will be presented Aug. 17, at 8 p.m. on the church grounds. The Young People of the congregation will host an ice cream social that evening from 5 to 7:30 p.m. In case of rain, the pageant and social will be held Aug. 24.

Announcements

Residents of the Maple Rapids area are invited to help Mr and Mrs Gerald Abbott celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary. An open house, hosted by children and grandchildren of the couple, will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Congregational Christian Church in Maple Rapids. The couple request no gifts.

ELYSE KREBEL

Engaged

Couple united in Florida

ELSIE (c)-A lavender, pink and white theme was used in the setting of the nuptials of Miss Connie Martha Somers and Paul Maurice Corleard at the Bonita Beach Baptist Church in Bonita Springs, Fla., recently.

The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs Vern Somers, R-2 Elsie and the groom is son of Mr and Mrs Robert M. Corleard of Ft. Myers, Fla.

The Rev R. A. Lane officiated at the candlelight ceremony.

The sanctuary was decorated with white candelabrum, baskets of lavender, pink and white mums and potted palms.

Mrs James McCollum was organist and David Sawtelle, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of white lace over satin with a sweetheart neckline seeded with rhinestones, long pointed sleeves and empire waist with a velvet bow.

The chapel train was attached with velvet bows at the shoulders. Her fingertip silk illusion veil fell from a crown of seed pearls and rhinestones.

She carried a white Bible topped with orchid and white stephanotis.

The bridesmaids, Miss Shirley Cook and Miss Edna Jean Wickes of Bonita Springs, cousins of the bride, wore floor length pink lace over satin gowns with portrait necklines and empire waists.

Pink velvet bows attached their trains at the shoulders. Organza bows topped pouf veils. They carried arrangements of pink mums and white gladiolus.

Jacqueline Harris, flower girl and niece of the bride, from Chesaning, wore a white and pink gown identical to the bridesmaids. Her veil was silk illusion capped with a pink bow. She dropped rose petals from a miniature basket.

The ring bearer was David Lane, son of the pastor. The best man was Whitefield Cook, cousin of the bride and Thomas Pope, groomsmen.

David McCollum and Raymond Lane served as ushers.

The bride's mother chose a baby blue and silver A-line dress with chiffon overlay. She wore a corsage of rosebuds and mums. The groom's mother chose a whipped cream crepe of white and aqua with matching accessories. She wore a corsage of pink rosebuds, fern and white mums.

Special guest Mrs George Wickes, who fashioned the bride's and bridesmaids' gowns, wore an aqua dress with matching lace accessories. Her corsage was of baby pink mums and rosebuds.

A reception was held in the church parlors following the ceremony.

After July the bride and groom will reside in their new mobile home at Tip Top Trailer Park, South U.S. 41, Ft. Myers, Fla., 33901.

Many interior decorators say "size" is the most difficult problem they face much of the time.

Rooms are either too large, or too small, or the ceilings are too high or too low. Or the dimensions are awkward. Short of knocking down walls, there isn't too much one can do to change the physical layout. But delving into their professional-bag-of-tricks they create optical illusions.

You don't need to be a professional to make use of many of these same techniques. Some knowledge of design principles, a bit of study and thought can go to work for you. These basics are a good guide.

Vertical lines carry the eye upward and consequently add height and cut length. This theory works well in a long, narrow room with low ceilings. Vertically striped wallpaper or any other design that carries the eye up and down on one long wall is the trick. Wood panelling does the same thing since the eye follows the vertical seams. Pictures displayed in vertical arrangements carry the eyes upward while arranging them low on the wall makes the ceiling look higher.

Horizontal lines cause the eyes to move sidewise, thus adding length and cutting height. Too high ceilings can be cut by wallpapering one long wall using a horizontal pattern. One's eyes automatically follow such horizontal lines. Long wall-hung shelves for books or other displays, pictures hung in horizontal arrangements or a molding around the top of the walls, about a foot down from the ceiling, all give horizontal emphasis. Any other horizontal lines introduced into the room will help to cut height and add length.

Deep, full colors tend to advance toward the viewer, while pale, pastel tints of the same colors tend to reside. This means deep shades make a large room appear smaller by seeming to bring it in closer to the other end. Paint or paper small dark rooms in pastels for a more cozy and more spacious effect. The darker colors for a more cozy effect for overly large rooms.

Continuous lines produce unity. Furniture pieces need to be scaled and arranged so the eye moves smoothly from one piece or grouping to the next. Large rooms with high ceilings can take large scaled furniture; small rooms require small scaled pieces.

Rough textures absorb light and smooth textures reflect more light. Small rooms with few windows need smooth surfaces in walls, furniture and floor coverings. Large rooms with lots of windows can take the rough, dull textures.

Pleasant surprise for students

by CLAUDIA McLOUGHLIN

St. Johns High School students will be in for a pleasant surprise when they start classes on Sept. 3. The new building is one of the most modern and well equipped schools in the area.

Florian Simmons, construction superintendent, says that "I have built many buildings in my time, but this is one of the best."

The architect, according to Simmons, designed the school with three circular units, thereby eliminating 5,000 square feet of corridor space.

"This means quite a lot to the average taxpayer," he says. "At $20 per square foot plus maintenance, 5,000 square feet less is a great saving."

The auditorium, in the northwest corner of the building, is a feature not to be overlooked. "The architect has gone to great pains to be sure the acoustics

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a three-part series examining the new high school to open in St. Johns this fall. In the first article, writer Claudia McLoughlin, who has been dodging workmen and walking through sawdust for several days, looks into the auditorium and the cafeteria. A related story on the gymnasium is in the sports section.

teria will serve the high school in shifts of 300, but can actually seat more than 450 students. The area will also double for a study hall during school hours and will be the room in which students will attend dances.

The cafeteria has built-in tables that fold into the walls. The tables can easily be pulled out for school hour uses and be put away as easily for extra-curricular activities.

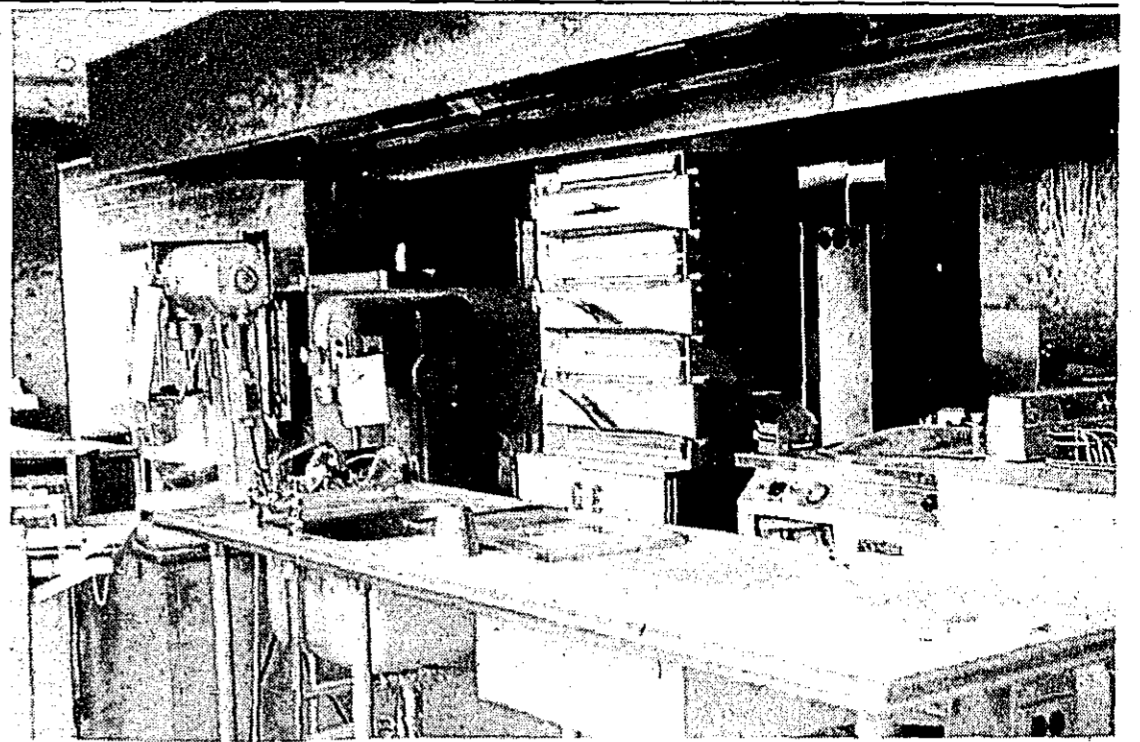

A special attraction found here for the students will be the snack bar which is equipped with a small refrigerator and sink. The snack bar will not be used during the regular school day, but will be open to sell light refreshments during extra-curricular activities at the school.

The room is built with an acoustically designed ceiling so that the lunch hour din can be kept minimal and when special events are held in the area the noise will not be excessive. In-celling lights are another special feature in the cafeteria.

At present the school will accommodate 1,000 students, but it was designed to be expandable to handle 1,400 students.

To expand the buildings, the architect has designed a space where an additional classroom unit can be added. The facilities which all students use, for example, the auditorium, gymnasium, cafeteria, and library, may accommodate 1,400 students.

NEXT: The pool and the library.

The kitchen in the new high school is "one of the most modern" in this area according to construction superintendent, Florian Simmons.

Looking back on 3 years of plans, committees, votes

It all started about three years ago. That was when a citizen's committee of 100 members and the school board voted in favor of a new high school for St. Johns students. And Sept. 3, it will become a reality when students attend classes for the first time.

After the annexation of 43 rural school districts, it was obvious that the school buildings of St. Johns district would have to be altered in some ways.

The citizen's committee was formed to advise how the school situation could be remedied. Before the committee were the alternatives to put an elementary school, large enough for all the elementary children of the district, in St. Johns or locate several in various rural locations. A second major consideration was a decision on the secondary school level.

Either the committee could advise that Rodney B. Wilson High School be used for the high school grades and build a new junior high school facility or turn the old high school into a junior high school and place the high school grades in a new building.

A study was made and the group decided that it would be best to put the elementary schools at various points in the rural area and then turn Rodney B. Wilson into a junior high school. The board drew nearly a unanimous decision in favor of building a new high school complete with swimming pool.

The school board took over at that point and began looking for architects for the projects. St. Clair Pardee was selected for the grade school project and Guido Binda was named architect of the high school.

The school board had interviewed several architects for the high school and also toured other high schools in the state. Binda of Battle Creek won statewide recognition when he designed the high school at Grandville near Grand Rapids which the board had visited.

The people were asked for approval of the project on May 9, 1966. The bond issue was one of the biggest voting proposals ever held in the county with nearly 75 per cent of the registered voters of the community participating. By a margin of only 19 votes bonding of $5.4 million was approved.

Of the five banks that bid for the bonds, the school dealt with the Detroit Bank of Commonwealth at an average rate of interest of 4.30027 per cent. Supt. Earl D. Lancaster said that "for the times, the bid is a good one."

Then Binda began serious work on the plans. With the assistance of the citizen's committee, school board and some faculty, the plans was completed and the school asked contractors for bids. A general contractor, electrical contractor and a heating and plumbing contractor were necessary.

Plans of the school were available for interested contractors on April 10. On May 3 the contractors met with the administrative board and a bid was selected. Clark Construction of Lansing was awarded the contract.

On May 17, 1967 School officials and students council members gathered for the ground breaking ceremonies to begin the construction.

WINNER, AAA TRAFFIC SAFETY POSTER CONTEST

Even if not retired, benefits may be yours

A person does not have to retire completely to be eligible for social security benefits reminds Roger W. Seamon, district manager of the Lansing Social Security office.

Some area residents who could be eligible for monthly cash payments are losing benefits because they are not aware that they can work and still possibly draw Social Security checks.

Under the present law, says Seamon, a beneficiary is allowed to earn up to $1,680 in a year and still draw all of his Social Security checks.

If the beneficiary earns over $1,680 in the year, some of his benefits will be withheld.

The general rule is that $1 in benefits will be withheld for every $2 the beneficiary earns over $1,680 up to $2,880. An additional $1 in benefits will be withheld for each dollar earned over $2,880.

The beneficiary, however is entitled to his monthly checks for any months in which he does not earn more than $140 as an employee, or perform substantial work as a self-employed person.

Once a person reaches age 72, he is entitled to his Social Security checks regardless of his earnings.

Seamon stresses that any beneficiary who expects to earn over $1,680 this year should get in touch with the Social Security office located at 216 Townsend St., to find out how their benefits will be affected.

The office is open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Monday through Friday, and until 8:00 Monday evening for those people unable to come in during regular working hours. The phone number is 372-1910.

Civil Service jobs open

The Michigan Civil Service Department is now accepting applications for jobs in hospital work and drafting, according to State Rep. William S. Ballenger of rural Ovid.

Rep. Ballenger says that applications must be submitted no later than Aug. 25 for such position as architectural draftsman, hospital aide, and hospital children's worker. The positions are available on an open competitive basis.

Architectural draftsmen are being sought for jobs at two employment levels (9 and 10), with salaries ranging from $8,750 to $11,550.

Hospital ward aides and children's workers (employment level 3) receive $5,700 to $6,650 annually.

Applicants will be judged on education and experience, as well as a written examination for the positions scheduled for September 27.

Rep. Ballenger suggests that those interested in more complete information on the qualifications, work responsibilities and salaries of these and other state employment opportunities, should contact their local state employment office or write to the Michigan Civil Service Department in the Lewis Cass Building, Lansing.

'Shop' class to build house

By RON KARLE
Editor

Comedian Bill Cosby, in a series of humorous recordings, does a bit in which he's just left high school shop class and is walking down the corridor decked out in his apron and an impressive assortment of pencils, gauges and nonchalant pride.

Spotting his girlfriend, who inquires about his current project, Cosby rattles off that the class had just completed work on a Boeing 707 and bigger and better plans were in the hopper.

Bigger and better plans of this sort are in the hopper at St. Johns High School under the direction of vocational director Ken Lashaway.

The high school shop class is going to build a $25,000 three-bedroom frame house with a two-car garage in St. Johns.

Actually, it's not called shop class anymore as Lashaway is quick to point out with a slight cringe to the uninitiated.

Specifically, 16 students enrolled in a course called Building Trades I will construct the house. The course is part of the industrial education curriculum which comes under the direction of Lashaway along with business education and homemaking.

The boys will receive the benefit of some professional outside help in the undertaking, says Lashaway.

"Several contractors are donating their time and giving the school the best possible price for their services," he says. "Many have offered to talk to the boys and spend some time with them explaining as they go."

The idea of high school students building a house is not new in Michigan, says Lashaway. At least 31 other school districts across the state have initiated similar projects.

Last September Lashaway was charged with setting up the voational curriculum for the new high school which meant updating and expansion, he says.

"As long as we were building a larger facility, we wanted to expand," he says. "We tried to pick the fields that need workers and fields where there is a local need. One was the building trades."

He says the class, which expects to have the house on the market by June, will do all the wood working, finished carpentry, some plumbing, heating and pour concrete for the garage floor and sidewalks.

The school board has underwritten all costs and has advanced funds to initiate the project, he says. It is expected the sale of the house will pay all expenses and, in addition, provide enough money to pay expenses to begin another house in the fall of 1970.

The lot at 606 S. Lansing Street was purchased for $4,000 and ground was broken July 29 as reported in the Clinton County News.

"We think the appraisal will be at $25,000 which we expect will be the fair market value," says Lashaway.

But at this time there is no speculation on the total cost of the project.

"We have not run a cost analysis, yet," he says. "When you're teaching, you might have to hang a door three times and use two doors to do it right."

He says the 16 boys in the class this fall will begin work with emphasis on carpentry and will work three hours a day.

An advanced course in building trades will be offered next year and will offer specific training in areas of interest for the students.

"Those boys signed up for Building Trades I this fall will receive instruction in all phases, however, rather than concentrating on a single area," says Lashaway.

The purpose of the course is to help the students get a foot in the door, he says.

"To get a job, you've got to know a little bit to get started," says Lashaway. "I don't think they'll come out of this as finished carpenters, but it will help them get a foot in the door—then the students will be more valuable to tradesmen."

Lashaway is high in his praise of a building trades advisory committee set up to guide the project.

An example of their interest and co-operation was exemplified by Mrs Winnie Gill, of Briggs Realtors, who found the building site. There was no charge for this service. Roy Briggs, owner of the firm, is a member of the committee.

Another member of the committee is Jack Down, building trades instructor, who will be at the site every day with the students.

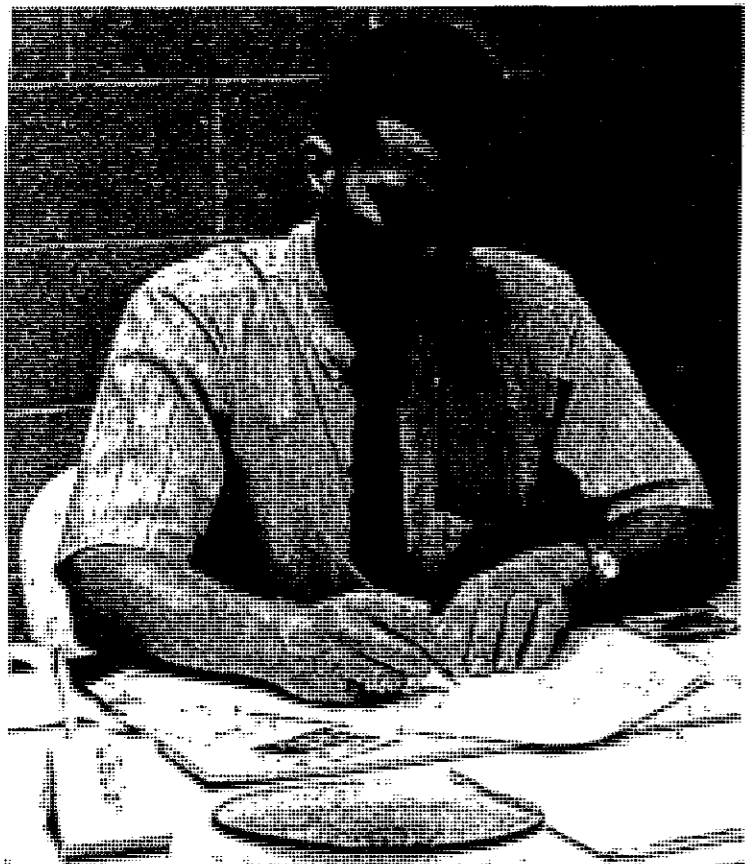

Other members, in addition to Lashaway, are Ken Munger, R. E. Benson Plumbing & Heating; James Moore, attorney, Clinton National Bank; Edward Schmitt, Schmitt Electric; Tom Hundley, city building inspector; Norman Rademacher, Rademacher Construction Co., and Earl Lancaster, superintendent of School.

Also involved in the project are Richard (Sonny) Cornwell, masonry contractor and Oliver Gillespie, excavating contractor.

Paid to learn

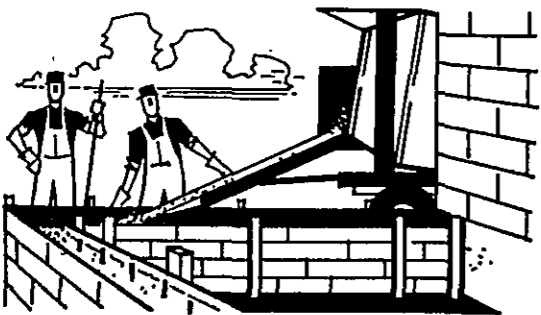

Between 1954 and 1968, 444,479 apprentices completed training programs approved by and registered with the U.S. Department of Labor. Of this number, 259,209 apprentices were in the construction industry trades, 67,230 in the metal working trades, 29,578 in the printing trades, and 88,462 in miscellaneous trades.

★ CALF STARTER

Larro's New Calf Starter Program
DOUBLE your calf's weight in just 70 days or your MONEY BACK.

One 25 lb. bag of Larro Calf Raiser milk replacer mixed with water will make 270 lbs. of milk replacer solution: a solution that contains the same solids as Holstein milk, plus antibiotic, vitamin, mineral and growth stimulant fortification. Costs only $4.45 per bag (enough to raise one calf) AND 100 lbs. of Larro Calf Builder (a ruminant starter that promotes cud chewing by the 12th to 14th day). Costs only $3.00 for 50 lbs. bag Plus hay and water.

Open Letter

from VAN W. HOAG

Dear friends,

It is very important that the vital statistics about the deceased that are entered on the death certificate be as accurate as possible.

This recorded document is of great legal significance in settling death benefits under insurance policies and in other matters dealing with the estate.

Respectfully,

Another fine Litter with Wayne Brood Sow Supplement

For a consistent performer, hog raisers like the results when they feed Wayne Brood Sow Supplement. It balances farm grains and helps sows and gilts farrow big litters of strong, healthy pigs. Feed before breeding, during gestation and through the nursing period.

Sows and gilts fed Brood Sow Supplement at the Wayne Research Farm farrowed an average of 11 pigs per litter... average pig birth weight was 3.03 lbs.

4-H Club Chatter

By JOHN AYLSWORTH
Extension 4-H Youth Agent

Outstanding 4-H Demonstration winners selected before this week's Clinton County 4-H Fair will have the opportunity of participating at the State 4-H Show at MSU. In the Junior Division the winners are Nancy Zuker of Happy Husbands in Horticulture; Gary Bernath of Four Corners of Artistic Arrangements; Dan Washburn of Four Corners in Tractor; Glenn Pung of 4-H Wonders in Conservation and Brian Brook of Bath All Purpose in Entomology. In the Senior Division the winners are: Jane Smith of Kountry Cousins in the Family; Diane Davis and Janet Davis of Stoney Creek in Foods and Nutrition; Kathy Davis and Debbie Locher of Olive 4-H Projects in Food Buying; Faith Borton of Watertown Grove in Home Design; Teri McQueen of Nimble Fingers in Entomology; Kam Washburn and Mary Temple of Four Corners in Teen Leadership; Alan Cobb and Larry Bernath of Four Corners in Tractor Safety and Dan Haviland of Olive 4-H Projects in Conservation. Comments indicated the members felt the demonstration activity this year was the best yet.

The Victor 4-H Club members will hold their annual chicken fry on Sunday, August 24, 1:00 p.m. at the Victor Ball Park. Many float ideas were discussed and the production of the float is in process. Dues were set at 50¢ to help cover the float costs. Final plans for the Fair were drawn together. The club sent a card to Mr Don Strouse who was in the hospital at the meeting time. The Victor Boys in the 4-H Green League won the County Championship and will represent the county at the State 4-H Show at MSU on August 19-22. In the white league the Victor Boys tied for second place while the Victor Girls finished in 9th place.

The Pioneer Trail Riders 4-H members listened to Nina Heath as she discussed the Reining class. David and Mike Ketchum assisted with the class. The members discussed the County Fair judging classes, who would be staying overnight at the Fair and the Fair 4-H Horse Fun Show.

First strike

The earliest authenticated strike of workers in the United States in a single trade occurred in 1786 when Philadelphia printers gained a minimum wage of $6 a week.

In the County 4-H Food Action Exhibits Contest the top five winners were as follows: Barbara Smith of Olive DeWitt, Faith Borton of Watertown Grove, Kathy Hazle and Dana Hazle of Scattered Southeast and Diane Sibley of Olive DeWitt. Alternates include Marie Blakely of Four Corners, Sharon Stoy of Olive 4-H and Colleen Wood of Olive 4-H.

Because of conflicts at State Show, Barbara Smith, Faith Borton, Diane Sibley, Marie Blakely and Colleen Wood will represent the county at a special food session at State 4-H Show called "Eating's My Bag".

Other outstanding 4-H Food Action exhibits participants will represent the county at a special Home Economics Interdisciplinary program on Thursday, August 21 at the State 4-H Show. They are as follows: Kathi Haviland, Susan Striz, Laurie Jones, Debbie Archer, Pat Seas, Jean Diving, Jackie Woodend, Cindy Hawk, Libbie DeVault, Kathleen Spitzley, Tina Shmko, Sharon Stoy and Diann Kanaski.

The top 4-H Insect Identification in Clinton County are Harry Moldenhauer and Karen Goetze of the Nimble Fingers 4-H Club in the 12-14 years division and Joann Kanaski and LuAnn Thelen of the Nimble Fingers 4-H Club in the 14-18 year old division. These 4-H members were selected as the result of scoring the highest in the county contest held last week identifying 60 different insects as to common name, order and whether beneficial, harmful or neither. They will now represent the county at the State 4-H Show Insect contest on Friday, August 22 at MSU.

Charlie's Gang 4-H members will hold their club-picnic on August 24th at Crystal Lake. The club entered a litter barrel in the Fair contest. The members talked about their fair exhibits and when they are to take them to the fair. Ten members attended 4-H Day at Tiger Stadium in Detroit.

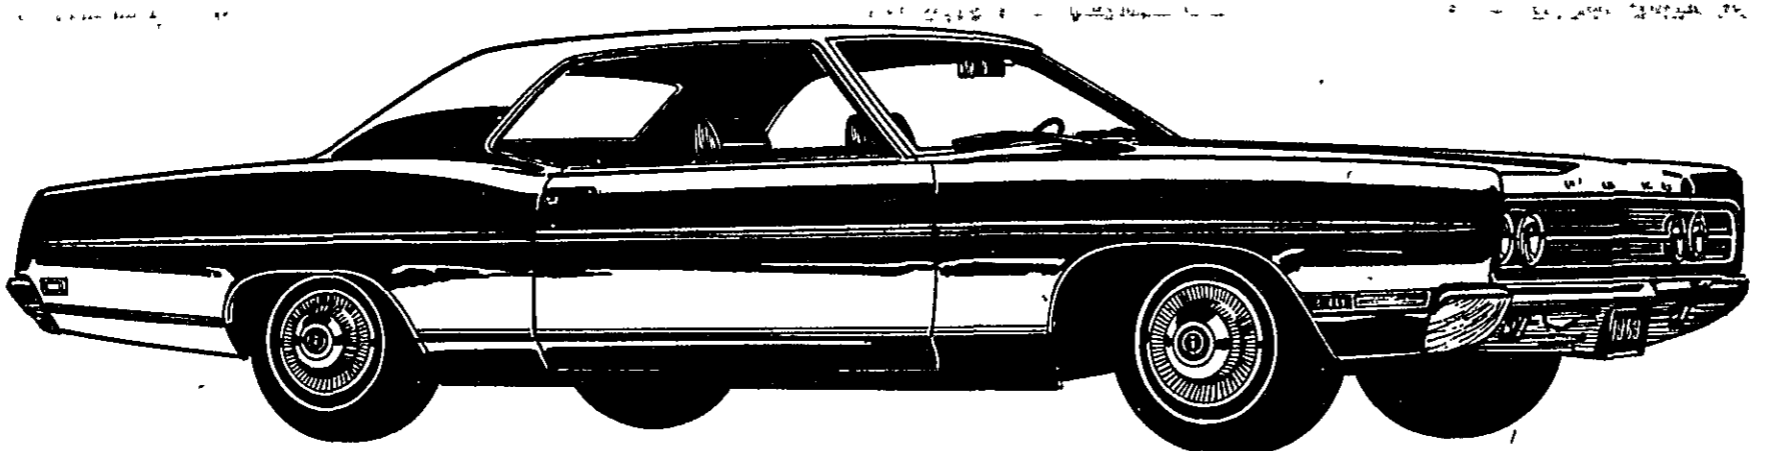

FORMER FARMER CO-OP MILL AT ELSIE, WINTER OF 1968

The Clinton County News received a request last month from Pearl Blank to reprint a picture of the Ovid Farmers Elevator. The elevator was completely destroyed by fire last June 5, and the site is presently being converted to a new park. This winter scene was contributed for reprint by Mrs John Minsky.

St. Johns names new football aide

The appointment of Phil Desper as assistant football coach at St. Johns High School once again brings to gether a working combination after two years of separation.

Desper, who comes to St. Johns after three years as assistant coach at Grass Lake High School, worked as line coach with St. Johns Head Coach Jeff Smith when Smith was head coach at Grass Lake in 1966.

The following year Smith moved on to East Lansing High School before coming to St. Johns where he led the Red Wings to the West Central Conference championship last year.

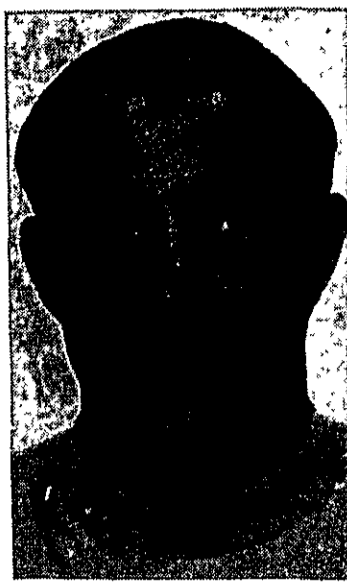

Before his move to Grass Lake, the 27-year-old Desper coached football and basketball for two years at Shelby High School.

Desper, who graduated from Michigan State University in 1964 with majors in psychology and social science, will teach government at St. Johns. He is presently enrolled in graduate school at MSU where he is studying guidance and counseling.

In addition to his duties as varsity offensive and defensive line coach, Desper has also been named track coach, a position he held at Grass Lake.

Recently Desper accompanied Smith and 42 varsity football players on a trip to Chicago where they attended the All-Star football game and visited the aquarium and the Museum of Science and Industry.

He was born in Springfield, Ill. but spent much of his youth in Michigan where he attended high school at Carleton, just northeast of Monroe.

Tigers at fair

Four stars from the Detroit Tigers will be on hand for a baseball clinic at the Michigan State Fair Aug. 27.

Participating in the clinic to give youngsters tips on pitching, catching, fielding and batting are catcher Bill Freehan, pitcher Earl Wilson and outfielders Jim Northrup and Mickey Stanley. Freehan will also make other appearances Aug. 28-29.

Fowler physicals

Physical examinations for Fowler High School football candidates are scheduled for Tuesday from 9 a.m. 'til noon.

Exams will be at the office of Dr. William Jordan.

St. Johns Coach looks ahead

Jeff Smith: 7 years of FB and natural pessimism

By RON KARLE

Football may not be in contention with pollution for dominance of the local air, but it's dominating the thoughts of Jeff Smith, head coach at St. Johns High School.

It's suspected the memories are pleasant. There's a conference championship to recall and but a single defect to mar reflections on last season.

But Smith by his own admission isn't beating the drums. "I've been coaching for seven years," he says, "and I've been pessimistic every one."

While rolling to the West Central Conference championship last year, Smith's charges assembled a perfect league record, 6-0, and finished the campaign at 8-1 overall.

Perhaps Smith's slight attack of pre-season pessimism—uncommon for football coaches in August—stems from the fact that the Red Wings' single defeat, 14-7 was administered by Mason High School, owners of the Capital Circuit crown after running up a 7-1 season record.

And in about a month—Sept. 12—the two rivals will do it all again to kick off the season.

The Red Wings will face the lads from Mason with 19 returning lettermen, all seniors from last season. Eighteen lettermen were lost to St. Johns at graduation.

Preparations for the upcoming season will begin Monday where all candidates are invited to take free physical examinations beginning at 11 a.m. in the locker-room of the old high school. This includes those out for the varsity, junior varsity and freshman squads, says Smith, and in addition, anyone expecting to participate in any sport.

Mouth guards and football shoes may be obtained at the physical exam. Smith says mouthguards should cost about $1 and football shoes from $12 to $20, depending on the quality.

"The coaches have some used shoes available left to the department by graduating seniors," he says.

Wayne State biologist sees return of fisher

If you see a creature that looks like the accompanying photo as you travel through Michigan's northern forests this year, you'll probably be taking your first look at a fisher. He's a returnee to the state, trying to re-establish residence here.

Having populated the area in fair abundance when Michigan was young, he retreated before the settler's ax, partly because he likes to spend a good share of his time in trees, points out Dr. William Prychodko of Wayne State University's Biology Department. Steel traps and rifles also took their toll.

does not enter the water in search of fish. He frequents the areas of streams and lakes, and can swim, but, as both a tree-and-ground dweller, does not wander far beyond the deep forests.

One of the fiercest and fleetest of the tree-climbing bearers, he growls, snarls and spits and occasionally cries mournfully.

AMONG THE MANY wild creatures he is capable of killing and eating is the porcupine. Fishers are noted, in fact, for their ability to catch and eat these spiny creatures with which the northern forests abound.

Conservation officials are not interested in eliminating all porcupines because of their interest in reducing the population in areas of overabundance, so they have encouraged the plan of bringing fishers back.

Official conservationists are not the only people interested in the fisher-repopulation plan. Some Michigan sportsmen look forward to the day when the fisher may again provide valued furs for hunters and trappers as in Michigan's early days. Others are simply glad to see any former mammalian resident of Michigan regain his citizenship after a period of exile.

YOU PROBABLY WON'T get near enough to the fisher to observe this feature, says Dr. Prychodko, but the creature's head, neck and under parts are slightly grizzled and buff in color. The rest of his body (except the black tail) is a bit unpredictable in shade, but a typical specimen is deep mahogany in color, with bluish overtones.

He is a member of the weasel family, so that his trait of ferocity is a family characteristic. Some have described the fisher, as a large edition of the marten.

Tips On Mini-Bike Care

If you are one of the many thousands of Americans enjoying the fun and appreciating the practical value of a modern mini-bike, there are a few simple things you can do to increase your enjoyment and make your fine little vehicle last longer.

First, however, let's review a few safety tips. Sure, you've heard them before. But I doubt if you can be reminded too often. Your life and your bike are at stake.

Just remember you are the operator of a motor vehicle capable of traveling at considerable speed for its size and capable of inflicting serious damage to you and others. Your mini-bike is an off-the-road vehicle and in many states they are prohibited on highways. Check the law.

Like an airplane pilot, make a 'pre-flight check' before you start out. And, naturally, you should keep your engine in top running condition, for safety and for the greatest satisfaction from your bike.

Proper care of your engine isn't difficult or expensive. Start by being sure you use the recommended viscosity (MS-20) and a really good oil. Be sure to change oil at recommended intervals.

Some riders get into the very bad habit of laying their mini-bike down or actually letting them drop. Your engine was built to be kept in its upright operating position. Dropping your bike can loosen gas lines and wiring. Oil and fuel can leak out. But even more serious is the probability that you will operate the engine with a dangerously low oil level and cause serious engine damage. Leaking oil or gas also speeds up the deterioration of wiring and can harm your whole ignition system. Your carburetor fouls more easily, too. And, don't turn your bike upside down to change a tire.

Here's another important tip. Keep your engine clean. The fins on your cylinder block are designed to carry away the great heat generated when your engine is running. They do their job of keeping engine heat below dangerous levels if you keep them free of dirt, grime and grease.

And don't forget the air cleaner, especially if you ride off-the-road in dusty conditions. Cleaning the air filter is a quick, easy job and should be done frequently so your engine won't breathe in dust particles that greatly increase wear on vital engine parts.

Your little engine is a masterpiece of fine workmanship. Its parts fit very closely, it turns over at great speeds. Giving it proper care will pay off in performance and long engine life.

For a "free" booklet on Mini-Bike Maintenance, write to Engine Division, Tecumseh Products Company, Grafton, Wisconsin 53024, builders of fine quality single-cylinder engines.

St. Johns' new gym should inspire team

The Redwings of St. Johns High School may be inspired to an undefeated basketball season by the new gymnasium alone.

Among the many new features of the St. Johns High School, the gym is among the most outstanding.

At the entrance on the west side of the building, the floor is emblazoned with a large emblem bearing the letters SJ with large red wings attached. Also at that entrance of the gym are three large show cases which can be used to display the many athletic trophies won by teams.

The gym has a seating capacity of more than 2,500. There are pull-out folding bleachers on both sides of the floor and a large upper deck on the south side of the floor.

On the north side of the floor there is a press box, which is divided into two sections and can accommodate 12 reporters.

"Of all the schools I have built, I can safely say this is not a common thing among high schools," says construction superintendent, Florian Simmons.

The floor is regulation size and is large enough for two regulation size courts. Competition with other schools will use the floor east and west. Physical education classes can conduct two games, each on a full court by drawing a curtain in the center of the gym and playing games north and south. The gym is equipped with six glass backboards.

Two locker rooms open onto the floor and each room has

Fast feller

Bob Feller struck out 348 batters in 1946, an American League single season record. He also pitched three no-hit games during his career with the Cleveland Indians.

baskets and locker space. Each room is also equipped with large shower facilities. The girls' locker rooms have several private showers. Both locker rooms have office space.

Little League climax

St. Johns Little League tournament action heads for a climax in tonight's championship game which has the Indians battling the Tigers for the trophy.

The Tigers moved into the final game of the single-elimination tournament by defeating the Orioles 11-1 in Monday night's action.

The Indians Thursday night, led by pitcher Norm Grove's 15 strikeouts, nipped the Sox 4-3 to land the other championship game berth. The Indians jumped on the Sox for all four runs in the first inning and held on for the victory.

Last Wednesday night saw a strong performance by pitcher Dave Devereaux as the Tigers stopped the Cougars 7-3 while the hard-hitting Orioles slammed the Twins 15-3.

The night before, Aug. 5, the Sox were kept temporarily alive as they backed fine pitching performance from Randy Eberhard to turn back the Spartans 7-3.

The League champion Cubs earlier were knocked out of the tournament by the Twins 6-5 while the Cougars stopped the Yanks, 8-5.

Groovin' Grover

The record for the most shutouts in one season is held by Grover Cleveland Alexander. He pitched 16 shutouts in 1916.

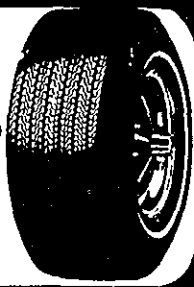

Roger Brook, son of Mr and Mrs William Brook, is instructing members of the club of which he is a junior leader in the use of the life preserver. The swimming was part of a picnic that Roger directed at the end of a project tour his club had. Swimmers are (from left) Tim, Sally and Eric Carlson.

Farmworkers among low-paid

Farmworkers still are among the lowest paid in the nation despite increases over the past several years in rates of hourly and piecework pay, according to findings of the US Department of Labor.

The national average farm wage for 1968 was $1.43 an hour, without room and board, up 10 cents from 1967. This compares with the production worker's average wage for the year in manufacturing of $3.01 an hour, an increase of 18 cents over 1967.

Production workers engaged in processing farm products in off-the-farm plants were better paid, but still were not up to the average pay for manufacturing. Workers in the frozen fruits and vegetables industry averaged $2.23 an hour, up 13 cents from 1967, while those in the canned, cured, and frozen foods industry averaged $2.36, an increase of 15 cents over 1967.

Both hourly and piece rates showed an increase over the year in most of the 172 crop and other on-the-farm activities reported by the In-Season Farm Labor Reports of the State employment security agencies.

Of the 141 activities compensated by the hour, 112 showed an increase, one decreased and 28 were unchanged, while 14 of the 31 activities paid at piece rates increased, 13 were unchanged and 4 declined.

The passage of the Fair Labor Standards Act amendments in 1966 extended minimum wage coverage to a limited number of farmworkers. It provided a $1 an hour minimum to go into effect Feb. 1, 1967, $1.15 a year later, and $1.30 Feb. 1, 1969.

The Act covers approximately 400,000 farmworkers, about one-third of the annual average number of hired-worker farm employment.

The greatest impact of extending minimum wage covering to agricultural workers was felt in the South and Southwest, where wages were lowest. In the Northwest and Northeast, farmworkers generally were being paid at rates above the minimum before the act became effective.

A 1968 Labor Department study of selected areas showed that the Federal minimum wage for farmwork, particularly in those areas with pay scales below the minimum rate, had a significant impact on wage rates paid. In these areas of lower wages, the rate of increase in farm wages was greater than in the country as a whole.

Notwithstanding this trend toward increasing wages, more than half of the areas studied during 1968 still had some workers employed at rates below the minimum rate of $1.15 an hour.

The report was detailed in the latest issue of the Labor Department booklet Farm Labor Developments, available from the Manpower Administration, Washington, D.C., 20210.

Farm income up here

With increased food prices tagged as the most recent proponent of spiraling inflation, Michigan farmers should show concern over "who is getting the money."

Analysis by Michigan State University agricultural economists show the average labor income for 1,500 farmers in its TelFarm record program was improved in 1968. "But an average income of $2.33 for each hour the farm operator worked and a total income of $6,697 can in no way be considered excessive," says Ralph E. Hepp, extension economist.

All farms in the summary had an increase in labor income but input prices were also higher in 1968, Hepp reports.

The five-year average earnings for the operator's labor and management from 1964 through 1968 for all farms was $4,390.

In general, southern Michigan dairy, swine and general farms were the most profitable, followed by poultry, cattle feeding and fruit farms. On the average, lowest earnings were northern Michigan dairy farms and on farms producing grains, beans and sugar beets.

Hepp says data for the business summary came from records of farms in the management educational program which shows participating farmers their financial position and progress. The average investment on these farms was $166,185. The average size of 352 acres is more than double the average sized farm according to census figures.

Milliken praises farmers

GOV. MILLIKEN

In a recent issue of a state Republican party publication, Gov. William G. Milliken reminds citizens that agriculture is Michigan's second most important product.

"Most of the country thinks of Michigan as the capital of the auto industry," writes Milliken in a special country fair issue of "Plain Talk," the official publication of Michigan's State Central Committee. "Few people are aware that agriculture is our second most important product."

Michigan leads the nation in dry edible beans, cucumbers for pickles, hothouse rhubarb, blueberries and red, tart cherries.

"None of you needs to be reminded how important food is," Milliken adds. "Without food, a man dies. Without enough food and food of the right kind, men become weak, their spirit flags, and their judgment and intellectual capacity are impaired. Men can never realize their full potential as human beings and children of their Creator if they are ill-fed or starving."

"As you visit the various (fair) buildings where our food products are on display, I hope you will appreciate the hard work and the care which were necessary to produce them.

"I hope also that you will be thinking about hunger in America—the fact that millions of Americans are not getting enough to eat in a country which produces more food than any other nation in the world.

"This is a crime and a tragedy. For years, we have concerned ourselves with hunger in other lands, shipping millions of tons of food abroad. This was right and proper; our abundance is so great that we can well-afford to share it with others. But in the process of doing this, we seem to have forgotten the blight of hunger in our own land."

4-H Club Chatter

By JOHN AYLESWORTH
Extension 4-H Youth Agent

The County 4-H Gun Safety Contest was held Saturday with the following winners: Junior Division—12-13 year olds Stuart Hazle from St. Johns; Intermediate—14-15 year olds Judy Schwark of Ovid and John Dunham from Elsie and senior 16-18 years of age; David Schwark from Ovid. The contestants were required to shoot 10 shots prone, 10 shots off hand or standing and take a written exam. The winners from the intermediate and Senior divisions will represent the county at the State 4-H Show August 21 and 22 at Michigan State University.

Roger Brook of the Bath All Purpose 4-H Club and Kathy Davis of the Olive 4-H projects were selected as winners for the county 4-H Public Speaking Contest held last week. Roger's topic was "You are Needed" and Kathy's was on "Day of Decision." Members were required to give a five to seven minute talk on any subject. They will now represent the county at the State 4-H Show at M.S.U. Debbie Locher of Olive 4-H Projects and Jim McQueen of the Nimble Fingers and Double M Club were selected as alternates.

The Nimble Fingers 4-H members learned about bicycle safety at their last meeting from Tony Hufnagel who was their guest speaker. Committee reports were given by the float and litter barrel projects and slogans were read. The flower garden members have been arranging flower exhibits the past several weeks for the United Methodist Church in St. Johns. Demonstrations were given by Jim McQueen on wiring a bee frame; Marcia Reverts on gelatin salad; Lori Foster on measuring shortening; Cindy Spitzer on measuring cups and spoons.

The Wishful Gardeners 4-H members toured the City Market in Lansing looking over the many fruits and vegetables available for sale. The club members visited the Ingham County Fair last week to view their vegetable exhibits.

Demonstrations were in order for the 4-H Wonder Club members at their last meeting. Demonstrations were given by Cindy Knickerbocker on measuring food ingredients; Shirley Andrews on Relish plates; Glen Pung on gun safety; Debbie Fedewa on yeast breads; Gloria Bond on eggs; Ann Graham on beef cattle and by Larry Schomisch on Archery. The members enjoyed a club picnic the following evening.

The Happy Hustlers 4-H members heard Marian Kurncz tell of her experiences at the Barry County 4-H Award weekend. A demonstration was given by Nancy Zuker on chemical treatment of seed and soil. Patty Fox described the garden tour she participated in. Ribbons were presented to the talent show participants. All new members were initiated at this meeting. The next meeting will be a family picnic on Aug. 4 at St. Johns Park.

The French's Corners 4-H members learned their club treasury was depleted after paying their bills so urged all members to pay their dues right away. The litter barrel committee worked on the barrels at Marcia Motz's home to have them ready for the county fair.

The Spats and Spurs 4-H members worked their horses through the halter class and contest classes available for them at the county fair. Four members signed up for the fair 4-H horse fun show.

The Bath All Purpose 4-H members toured the different members projects on July 31 followed with a lunch and swimming party. The dairy members participated in the County 4-H Dairy tour on July 29 to the E.L.V. Apache Dairy farm at Lapeer and the McDonald Dairy Plant at Flint. At their club meeting the members saw a demonstration on food, then broke up into groups to work on their projects.

In 4-H softball games Friday evening in the Green League; Country Cousins won over Fowler Busy Boys, Victor over Prairie and Olive 4-H projects tied French's Tigers. The Teenleaders won over Country Cousins on Tuesday evening. In the 4-H White League Friday evening Bengal won over Green Clover; Country Cousins over Prairie, Olive 4-H Boys over Victor Girls and Olive 4-H Girls over Jolly Green Giants.

Bath man honored

A Bath man was among 26 teachers honored for contributions to vocational agriculture at a special awards banquet recently at Michigan State University.

Receiving a five-year award was William Vondrasek at the 50th annual conference for teachers of vocational agriculture.

The teachers honored had a combined total of more than 355 years of service.

4-H'ers in Washington for courses

Six area 4-H girls joined nearly 300 other 4-H youths for a Citizen Short Course in Washington, D.C., June 29 through August 5.

John Aylesworth, County Extension Agent, picked Sue Sibley, Marlene Gorman, Debbie Locher and Kathy Davis of DeWitt and Ann Arens of Fowler and Dorthea Beachnau of Eagle to represent Clinton County from a field of 12 youths who applied. The girls were chosen on their leadership, activities in 4-H and maturity.

Aylesworth was transportation co-ordinator for this trip which includes delegates from Clinton, Lenawee, Monroe and Washtenaw Counties. Chartered bus transported 36 delegates and four adults to the campus of the University of Maryland where they met 250 other delegates from Illinois, Iowa, Missouri and New York. Housing was provided by the university at Denton Hall.

Adults accompanying Aylesworth on the trip were Mr and Mrs William Whitney, Alma, and Jan Kemmer of Ann Arbor, junior assistant for Washtenaw County.

Oliver O. Orr was co-ordinator of the program. Aylesworth was co-ordinator last year.

The youths arrived on campus on Sunday, June 29 and began their week long schedule with a "Get-acquainted mixer". Later Orr outlined the purpose of the course. Basically, the group studied the workings of the government in Washington and their part as an American citizen.

During the week, delegates from each county represented met with their respective congressman and also met their respective state senator.

The delegates were subject to several speakers who outlined the responsibilities of citizenship and also various 4-H international programs. They were also able to sit in on governmental committee meetings.

Among activities of the week, 4-H'ers were tourists. They visited the Supreme Court, the Library of Congress and the Federal Bureau of Investigation Building. They also saw the Smithsonian Institute, the White House and monuments of Washington, Lincoln and Jefferson. They had a tour down the Potomac River to Mt. Vernon and visited the Archives. The sight-seeing included other points of interest and was highlighted by a fireworks display on the 4th of July on the Mall in Washington.

After the speeches and tours, the group played the "Game of Democracy", putting into practice some of the things they learned.

They also participated in planning sessions to use what they had learned in the way of informing others. They discussed displays, talks and other devices.

Milk is Michigan's biggest single source of farm income, bringing our farmers more than $242 million a year.

The National 4-H headquarters are in Washington and there was a short course being run there for about 250 more youths. The programs were not run together, but some of the events allowed the two groups to get together. The other program included 4-H'ers from Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Washington and Wisconsin.

4-H offers many opportunities for youth. During the National Citizenship Short Course held in Washington, D.C., six members of Clinton County met with Congressman Garry Brown in his office. From left they are Sue Sibley and Debbie Locher of DeWitt, John Aylesworth, Extension 4-H Youth Agent, Congressman Brown, Dorthea Beachnau of Eagle, Marlene Gorman of DeWitt, Ann Arens of Fowler and Kathy Davis of DeWitt.

U.S. price received index down 2 points

During the month ended July 15, the index of prices received by farmers declined two points or two-thirds of one per cent to 282 per cent of its 1910-14 average, according to the Michigan Crop Reporting Service. Contributing most to the decline were lower prices for beef cattle and new crop apples. Partially offsetting were higher prices for eggs and hogs.

The index was 21 points or eight per cent above July 1968.

The index of prices paid by farmers for commodities and services, interest, taxes and farm wage rates declined one point or one-fourth of one per cent to 374, the first decline in 20 months. The index was 19 points or five per cent above a year earlier.

With prices of farm products and prices paid by farmers both lower, the preliminary adjusted parity ratio remained unchanged at 82, while the parity ratio declined one point to 75.

Michigan price received index up

The index of prices received by Michigan Farmers July 15 was 277 per cent of the 1910-14 average, according to the Michigan Crop Reporting Service. This was an increase of two points or one per cent from the 275 level in mid-June. Primarily responsible for the increase were price increases for eggs, milk and hogs.

4-H'ers: fix that home

Six teenagers who have improved their home surroundings through their own initiative and efforts will wind up the year richer by a $600 scholarship. They will receive their reward early in December during the National 4-H Congress in Chicago.

These young people are 4-H members who will be named 1969 national winners in the 4-H Home Improvement program supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service, and supported by The S & H Foundation, Inc. They are fixing up their own rooms, or decorating and remodeling to add utility and beauty to the family dwelling.

Last year nearly 188,000 rural and urban 4-H'ers participated from coast to coast. The youngsters generally are between 9 and 19 years old. They belong to a club or group having a volunteer adult leader competent to advise and teach them the why's and how's of home improvement. The Extension Service does the overall program planning and project evaluation.

"How-to-do-it" skills taught 4-H'ers should be practical and yet help add beauty to home surroundings which the entire family can appreciate and enjoy," said a 4-H leader. Creativity is encouraged.

Girls put their sewing skills to good use in making curtains, draperies, spreads and wall hangings. Among boys carrying a home improvement project can be found amateur carpenters, painters, and electricians.

Getting the most for the least money, or with no cash outlay at all, are shortcuts to home improvements, the 4-H youths soon learn. Restoring old or discarded items is a favorite hobby that adds value and variety to room furnishings.

Besides county honor medals, The S & H Foundation, Inc. sponsors an expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Congress for one winner per state. From the state champions, six national winners will be selected to receive $600 S & H scholarships. The scholarships may be used at a junior college, vocational school, or 4-year college or university.

Attends ag meet

Lyle Murphy of Pewamo-Westphalia High School, participated in the recent program of the 50th annual Conference for Teachers of Vocational Agriculture at Michigan State University. Theme of this year's event was "Teaching for Agricultural Careers."

Some 200 teachers, principals, superintendents, directors of vocational education and counselors attended the event at MSU's Kellogg Center for Continuing Education.

The conference this year was designed to improve and develop new agricultural experience programs and to acquaint teachers with new instructional aids. It also presented new developments in agri-business and offered the latest information on technical agriculture.

Speakers discussed ways of moving ahead in agricultural education, pest and pesticide problems, the 1968 legislative amendments, expanded nutrition educational programs, safe tractor and farm machinery operation, and training for off-farm occupations.

Other highlights included the presentation of teacher service awards, exchange-of-ideas sessions, meetings of technical agriculture groups and tours of MSU facilities.

STUDENT WORKERS

A number of students have been employed in the St. Johns School District this summer and many of them have been assigned to putting final touches on the new high school in preparation for its opening next month. St. Johns overwhelms competition with 637 points for FAA trophy

The St. Johns chapter of the Future Farmers of America has won one of the organization's highest statewide awards by a whopping margin of 411 points over the nearest contender.

In competition with 32 other chapters from across the state, St. Johns amassed a total of 637 points to win the George A. Brown Memorial Trophy awarded at the FFA Market Livestock Program, Aug. 5.

It was the first time the chapter, advised by Don Munger, had won the high honor.

The revolving plaque will be on display at St. Johns High School for the coming year.

In second place was Ovid-Elsie 228, followed by Corunna 201, Merrill 198, Ithaca 162, Hemlock 142, and Breckenridge 137. Points were earned by the number and quality of animals produced by the students of vocational agriculture in the program.

The St. Johns students had engaged in an extensive swine raising program as a total chapter cooperative project. Chapter president Roger Lerg, described the practices and investments involved in raising 200 feeder pigs.

Awards in the beef grading contest were presented by James Prince, of the Wolverine Stockyards Company to Phil Payment, Benzle Central School, first place winner, Jolene Yarger, Hastings, second, and Doug Allhouse, of Onsted, third.

In the swine grading contest,

Kim Vance, of Merrill, and Floyd Kilmer of Hastings tied for first with Dick Bluemer of Merrill placing third.

Following the FFA "feed-to-market" style of regular marketing procedure the livestock was sold by market grades. The 124 beef animals grossed $36,916.47, with a total weight of 119,860 pounds, averaging 967 pounds per head. Prices averaged: Prime $32.11, Choice $32.06, Good $30.46, and Standard $27.83.

The 325 swine totaled 65,330 pounds, averaging $27.09 per hundredweight, and 201 pounds per head, and sold for a gross amount of $17,697.32. Prices by grade averaged US-1's $26.72, US-2's $27.34, US-3's $26.82, and US-4's $26.54.

The 46 lambs weighed 3,890 pounds and were sold for $1125.63.

The high beef animals included a 1005 pound steer consigned by William and James Stahl of Ithaca which was purchased by Mulder Packing Company of Shepherd at $33.50 per hundredweight; a 995 pound steer consigned by William and James Stahl of Ithaca and purchased by Giant Super Foods at $33.25 per hundredweight; a 915 pound steer consigned by Joe Riley of Owosso and purchased by Lansing Thriftway at $33.25; and a 1015 pound steer consigned by Milton Cottrell of Merrill and purchased by Dick Barnes of Merrill at $33.25.

The sale of animals went as follows: grade-prime, choice steers, choice helpers, good steers, good helpers, and standard and utility, total 124 animals, with an average weight of 967 pounds and average price $30.80.

For the sale of swine, US-1, 2, 3, and 4, with lights, for a total of 325 swine with an average weight of 201 pounds and average price of $27.09.

The preference of the modern housewife for improved meat-type market livestock was the focus of the 35th annual FFA Market Livestock School and Sale program at Wolverine Stockyards St. Johns, Aug. 5. Some 180 FFA members, parents and teachers from 33 Michigan school communities participated in the demonstration sale which included the grading of student-owned livestock including beef and swine. The sale of the students' livestock completed the lessons to be learned following the regular marketing procedure by which producers sell their animals in commercial facilities.

GIRLS TO ATTEND STATE SHOW IN AUGUST

Kathy Davis and Debbie Locher of the Olive 4-H Project Club gave a beef demonstration on July 22, and will attend State Show Aug. 19 to 22nd at MSU. Debbie has other projects in foods and clothing. She's been in 4-H Club work eight years and is now a teen leader. Kathy has also been a member eight years.

Ohio ag educator stresses training

Unless we have trained manpower in agriculture, we cannot advance and remain the No. 1 industry in the nation, says Ohio's supervisor of agricultural education.

"Regardless of research, new products, new machines or improved practices, trained people are needed and must become our primary purpose," James E. Dougan told 175 teachers and administrators at the recent 50th annual Conference for Teachers of Vocational Agriculture at Michigan State University.

"We must develop and conduct programs that will prepare individuals for an entry occupation in agriculture," he added.

To move forward in the '70s with agricultural education programs, Dougan listed a number of top-priority goals, one of them that teachers develop a high degree of competency in educational leadership.

He suggested that students work out occupational experience programs, and that departments plan and conduct continuing education programs to serve people in production agriculture and in nonfarm agricultural occupations.

"We must communicate more closely with our congressmen, state legislators, school administrators, board members, parents and students in regard to our new and improved programs," he continued.

Dougan said the city school systems and area vocational centers offered the greatest opportunity to expand and extend programs in agricultural education.

"Those students that have the aptitude and interest in the specialized areas should be encouraged to attend area vocational centers where these programs are offered," he said.

He urged the adoption of 12-month programs whenever possible, eliminating the "extended service" concept based on nine-month programs.

The speaker also called for teacher in-service education programs concerning the application and use of instructional materials, projecting the good image of agriculture to those not engaged in it and the elimination of local "status quo" programs that are not meeting the needs of the individuals in the various school districts.

Dougan felt a great need for leadership and the redirection and updating of the purposes, objectives and activities of the Future Farmers of America (FFA).

He said there is a very real

Stings can be deadly

Summer means cook-outs at the shore. Picnics in grassy parks. And plenty of pests. Bees, wasps, ants, and yellow jackets. Insects can be a pain, literally. Their bites can cause wheezing, nausea, dizziness, even comas, says the Michigan TB and Respiratory Disease Association. Sometimes their stings are fatal.

Treatment for reactions to insect bites should be prompt. Especially when severe reactions develop hours after the sting. That can spell serious trouble.

At a meeting of the American Academy of Allergy, Dr James H. Barnard said that delayed reactions are more likely to go untreated. In his study of 50 fatalities from insect bites, more than half received no treatment at all. And as many as 14 per cent showed no reaction to the sting until 24 hours later—or more.

Severe reactions to insect stings often involve the respiratory tract. Some obstruction occurs, and breathing is impeded. Fluids—in excessive amounts—fill tissue spaces. And blood vessels can collapse. Severe reactions can hit people who have been stung earlier by the same insects with no ill effects.

If people know they are sensitive to certain insects, they should consult their doctor. Doctors should be called—immediately—when severe reactions do happen.

In some cases, doctors train insect-sensitive patients to give themselves injections, usually epinephrine, in anticipation of emergencies. In the study conducted by Dr Barnard, for example, several persons actually died during the long wait for an ambulance. An immediate injection might have averted the catastrophe.

For information about allergies and many kinds of respiratory disorders, contact the Michigan Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, 403 Seymour Ave., Lansing 48914.

concern in Washington at this time, charging that the Department of Labor and others have misinformed the administration as to the status of vocational and technical education programs.

Dougan urged the teachers to present the true facts to their local legislators and congressmen.

In conclusion, he said he faced the future with confidence and enthusiasm. We cannot work any harder, he contended, but maybe we can work more efficiently and effectively.

"I firmly believe that with a united effort on the part of the state staff, the teachers of vocational agriculture and the leadership we have in agriculture, agricultural education will continue to move forward," he said.

"Now is the time to tell it like it is, but to make vocational agriculture what it should be."

City support

Central cities in large metropolitan areas still account for two-thirds of their area's employment, despite recent increases in employment in suburban areas.

AGRICULTURE in Action

by M. L. Woell
MICHIGAN FARM BUREAU

An announcement that the United States has now joined a number of other countries in pulling away from the controversial International Wheat Agreement, has brought to mind warnings by farm leaders that the treaty was an all-around bad deal for US farmers.

The Agreement called for grain-exporting nations of the free world to accept an agreed-upon "world" price for wheat and to offer their surplus to world markets at this level. US farm leaders protested that this higher pegged price would not necessarily mean more wheat income, as some said, but rather would prevent America's more competitive farmers from benefiting from their greater production at lower costs.

Just before Congressional ratification of the agreement over farmer protest, American Farm Bureau President Charles Shuman testified:

"If the United States attempts to maintain minimum export prices for wheat over world market levels, there is danger of losing competitive advantages and restricting our volume of exports. This is especially true if other exporting countries do not comply with the minimum price as scrupulously as does the United States."

Since then, as the farm leader feared, France, Australia, Canada and other freeworld countries party to the agreement have dropped prices to undersell the United States, which until recently continued to abide by the treaty. Nonmember Soviet Russia and other export countries of the Soviet-bloc, proceeded to compound the issue by also selling their surplus wheat well below levels set by the agreement.

Under these conditions it soon became painfully obvious that the U.S. grain trade was largely shut out of the world markets and that a substantial surplus was building at home. Before the announcement that the U.S. would itself break the agreement (by lowering the per-bushel price of wheat 12 cents under the minimum agreed-upon rate) our at-home surplus had glutted the market to the point where it recently reflected a national price of $1.19 per bushel, equal to the 27-year low set in 1942.

The obvious failure of the International Wheat Agreement is another to add to the long list of such failures by government to control and manage world markets for farm products.

Mulch aids new lawns Dairy group adds 36

Mulching a newly seeded lawn will keep it moist, reduce soil erosion and help the lawn get a head start over weeds, according to Dr James Beard, Michigan State University turfgrass researcher.

Straw is the most commonly used mulch, he says, and should be spread over the newly seeded area at the rate of 60 to 80 pounds per 1,000 square feet. The straw should be free of weed seeds, dead grass, quackgrass and nutsedge.

After the straw is in place, it should be stabilized by rolling and watering. About 50 to 65 per cent of the straw mulch should be carefully removed with a rake or fork when the grass is 1 to 1-1/2 inches high. This will permit greater light penetration and insure rapid, uniform establishment, says Beard.

Thirty-six Michigan dairymen were among 1,208 new members recently admitted to Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

Forty-four states were listed in the Holstein report. Largest new member groups came from Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and New York. Total membership in the national breeders' organization now exceeds 44,400.

Members have a voice in Holstein affairs and are entitled to register and transfer Holstein cattle at reduced rates. Association policy is established by the voting membership through its elected convention delegates and board of directors. Members are directly informed of new and changed programs and activities.

While diamonds may be called a girl's best friend, hand-knits are one of her best loves. Knitted garments of both the hand-knit and machine-knit variety are one of the special favorites of this year's fashions.

Knitted garments and fabrics have a greater tendency to change shape during cleaning than woven ones. This is due largely to the fact that knitted materials can stretch in one direction and at the same time shrink in the other. Also, knitted clothes are likely to lose their shape during wear. For this reason they require frequent cleaning and blocking to restore them to their original shape and dimensions. This is true of fabrics and garments knitted of wool, cottons, rayon nylon and combinations of yarns.

With knitted materials, as with all fabrics, your cleaner must analyze the yarn fibers to determine just which cleaning compound to use. Blocking and finishing of knitted clothes takes special skill, too.

You can trust your knitted garments to us, and know that they are in capable, responsible hands... they will be painstakingly handled during cleaning, blocking and finishing... and returned to you impeccably clean and new-looking.

Filled up with taxes

Gasoline taxes have reached a new high, notes the publication Oil Facts. State levies on gasoline now average 7.1 cents a gallon, and the federal tax is four cents a gallon. The combined rate of 11.1 cents a gallon is approximately 46 per cent of the actual retail price without taxes.

Farm leaders hit grape boycott

Two state Farm Bureau presidents said in Detroit Thursday that in the mid-20th-century of human and civil rights, seizure of consumer markets, as is being done on California table grapes, is indefensible by any liberal standards.

Allan Grant, president of the California Farm Bureau, chairman of the California Department of Agriculture, and a trustee of the University of California, was joined by Michigan Farm Bureau President Elton Smith of Calcedonia in a news conference in Detroit's Press Club.

The rights of consumers to buy what they choose in the market place, and the rights of tradesmen to supply their demand without any exercise of fear or intimidation against them is basic to the economic freedom of this nation, they said. "It should properly be the very first concern of responsible trade unionist and social action groups."

Grant who has been a leader in opposition to the boycott for four years, said that under California labor law, workers now have the right to organize a union and to bargain with growers "just as they now can and actually do bargain with growers through their own committees." By the same token, he noted, California law does not compel them to join a union not of their own choosing.

He said, department of labor reports show that 97 per cent of all grape workers have chosen to remain outside the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee of Cesar Chavez, Grant said growers do not oppose, but instead support proposals to set up federally supervised guidelines for worker-elections and are hopeful for Congressional action soon.

Smith said he thought, "the light of day, the light of truth" was beginning to dispel the effects of the boycott in Detroit, and a few other communities where it is still partially effective. "Never has an issue of agriculture been misrepresented," he said, "never have so many good people gone after such bad information."

Grape workers comprise a stable nonmigrant work force, he said, and are the highest paid farm workers in the nation making substantially more than the annual industrial minimum wage in force in such cities as Detroit. "Good and thoughtful people must realize," said Smith, "that only the success of the boycott can impoverish these workers."

Peace Corps test given

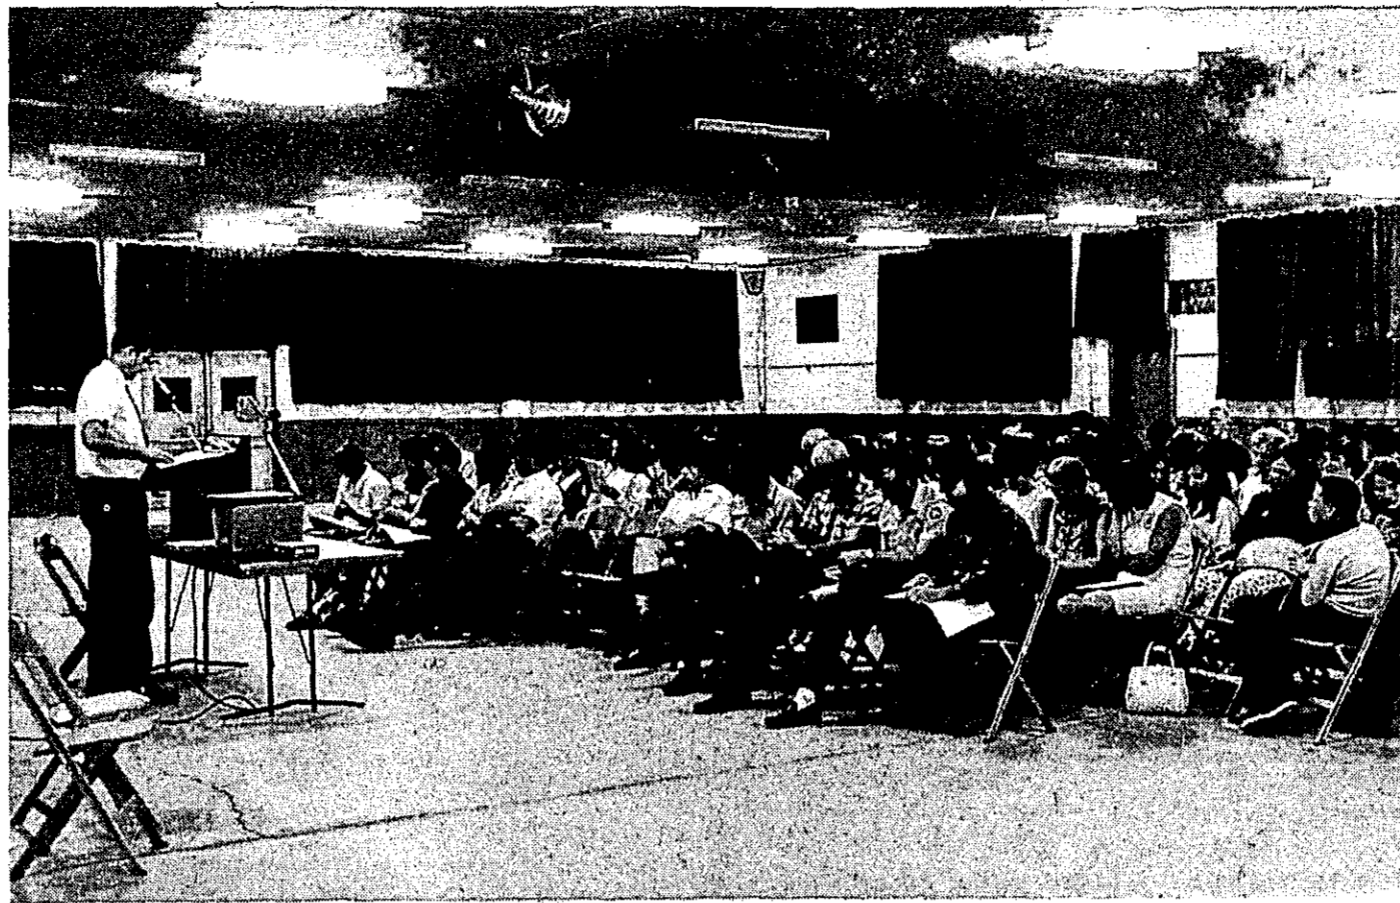

Clinton County residents interested in service with the Peace Corps may take placement tests Saturday in Lansing.

Tests will be at 1:30 p.m. in the Lansing Post Office Building, 315 W. Allegan, Room 217.

The Peace Corps uses the Placement Test to determine how an applicant can best be utilized overseas. The test measures general aptitude and the ability to learn a language, not education or achievement. The test requires no preparation and is non-competitive; an applicant can neither pass nor fail.

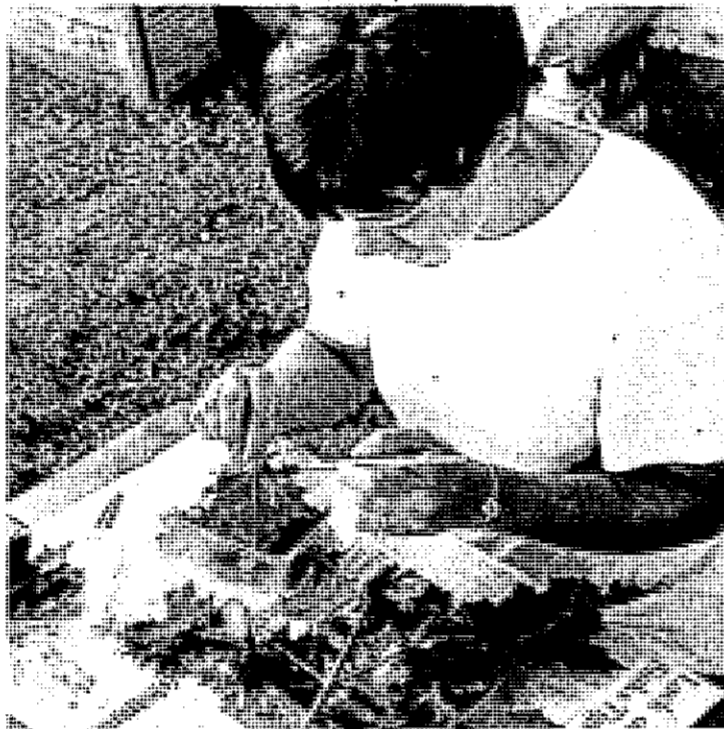

Persons interested in serving with the Peace Corps must fill out an Application, if they have not already done so, and present it to the tester before the test. Application forms are available from local post offices or from the Peace Corps in Washington, D.C. 20525.

Fifteen thousand Volunteers are currently serving in Asia, Africa, Latin America and the Pacific Islands, working with the people of those nations in self-help projects ranging from food production to health education. More Volunteers are needed for programs which will begin training soon.

ADULTS, YOUTHS, AND 4-H SUPERINTENDENTS MEET

John Aylsworth, extension 4-H Youth Agent addressed the adults, youths, and superintendents of the Clinton County 4-H fair July 31. The group met to outline final plans for the fair entries, judging procedures, and displays. The workers will meet again Aug. 8 at the Fair Grounds to set-up the exhibit facilities for projects coming in Aug. 11, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. all of the projects will be released at 9:30 p.m. on Aug. 13, and the livestock will be released Aug. 14, at 5 a.m.

Teri McQueen, 18, daughter of Mr and Mrs George McQueen, is shown preparing her larvae to show at the 4-H Fair. She will enter the larvae of the polyphemus moths that she reared. She has been entering the entomology division for seven years and also has projects of horses, knitting and sewing this year. She is a member of the Double M and the Nimble Fingers clubs.

Farmers may seek loan extensions

Farmers with corn and soybeans stored on-the-farm under Price Support loan were reminded by Nick Smith, Chairman of the Michigan State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, that they may extend their loans for another year by requesting a resale loan at their county ASCS office.

The corn market price in recent weeks has been above support, Smith said, and many producers have taken advantage of the price increase to redeem their loans by paying principal and interest.

Last fall, he noted, corn was well below $1 a bushel at harvest time but in recent weeks it has been up as high as $1.20 per bushel at some local country points.

The Price Support program, Smith said, makes supplies readily available to processors and consumers and at the same time it gives producers an opportunity to hold on to their crops until they find the best time to sell.

In the case of soybeans, Smith said, there have been scattered loan redemptions where local market prices have been high enough for producers to repay their loan plus interest. But generally the market price for soybeans has been below support.

Smith noted that the resale loan program provides producers with an opportunity to retain title to their commodity and afford them a longer period to seek a satisfactory market price.

Then too, he added, producers who resale their 1968 crop corn or soybeans on-the-farm will receive a storage payment of about 13¢ per bushel if they store it through July 31, 1970. If the loans are redeemed or delivered before that date, storage payments will be prorated depending on the time it was in store.

For 1967 and earlier crops under farm-stored resale, the storage payment is about a cent per bushel less.

Smith explained that resale loans are available on 1964, 1965, 1966, 1967, and 1968 crop corn stored on-the-farm. In the case of soybeans, resale loans are available on 1966, 1967, and 1968 crops. Resale loans are available, of course, he noted, only if the commodity is in good condition and in acceptable storage.

Smith emphasized that a result of the price support program assures the American consumer an adequate supply. This may sound trite in this land of plenty, he added, but man does not yet control the weather—the farmer's most critical problem.

People cry for home rule, and then refuse to get out and vote.

Battle of bugs: old fight goes on Insects have inhabited the planet Earth for some 500 billion years, and man's battle to control them is still going on. But the 20th century has supplied some very effective weapons: mainly scientific know-how.

Even grade school children through their natural science studies now boost insect control. Among them are the 4-H youths engaged in entomology projects. They collect and study insects and pests around their home area. They learn how to control or eradicate them, and how to keep pets or livestock insect free. Safe use of insecticides and pesticides is a common practice.

The 4-H Entomology program is nationwide, and has some 70,000 participants according to the Cooperative Extension Service. The program has been sponsored by Hercules Inc. since 1952, when first launched by the Extension Service.

Incentive awards are offered annually to the young 4-H scientists. They are given at three levels of project evaluation: county, state and national.

A review of some of the best 4-H Entomology projects reported last year, revealed that interests among the teenage bug experts ranged from collecting and classifying lepidoptera (butterflies) to helping local authorities with mosquito control.

As one young man stated: "There's always something new to learn." And for those who never stop learning, Hercules offers some fine rewards in the form of scholarships, educational trips and honor medals.

The 1969 award recipients will consist of an estimated 4,000 county medal winners; 50 delegates to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago with the trip expenses paid; six national champions who will each receive a $600 scholarship. In Chicago, the state and national winners will be guests of Hercules.

To be eligible for either the state or national award, the 4-H member must be over 14 years of age, have completed a least three years of club membership, and specialized in entomology. All award winners are named by the Extension Service.

To be named to the Dean's List a student must have a 3.25 average on a four-point scale. Generally, this means their grades must include at least one A and no grade lower than a B.

Ovid plans road chloride

A construction firm contracted for work on a sewer project in Ovid will be asked to chloride village roads for dust control.

The Ovid City Council Aug. 4 instructed George Craig, village president, to contact Reid and Noyce, Lansing contractors for the road project. The firm is installing sewers for a new lagoon project in the village.

In other action, the council planned to open bids for a new curb and sidewalk in front of the village hall.

Also, the council approved building permits for George Maron for construction of a laundromat at the site of his super market on South Main Street; David Stillwell 1349 South Main for an addition to his garage; Harold Reed, North Main, for a utility building, and Lawrence Byrnew, East Clinton Street, for an addition to his home.

Sawdust 'relates' in your garden

Go to a lumber mill when planning your garden? No, you won't find a bloomin' plant. But sawdust from your local sawmill operator can decrease maintenance requirements and give unity to your landscape.

"Inexpensive sawdust can be used as a 'common denominator' to relate individual flowers, shrubs, and trees together for a single pleasing effect," says Joseph Cox, extension specialist in landscape architecture at Michigan State University.

"Spreading sawdust over the soil among your plants forms a unifying background," he says.

"It acts as a guide leading the eye from a focal point to the complementary flora. The focal point may be a single plant or tree or an artificial piece such as a sculpture or bird bath," he explains. "The complementary elements may be massed flowers, groups of shrubs, or any other less dominant arrangement."

Sawdust also provides an aesthetically pleasing contrast.

"The contrast," he explains, "can be between sawdust and foliage or between various planted areas. That is, between sawdust-covered areas and areas exposing darker soil."

"Benefits of sawdust in your garden extend beyond aesthetics," Cox notes.

Sawdust helps to hold more moisture in the soil, thereby decreasing the amount of water the gardener must supply.

"It also inhibits the growth of weeds. And since it is not a food source, it reduces the damage inflicted on plants by rodents," Cox adds. "However, sawdust should be kept several inches from the base of the plants to avoid mold or other fungus activity."

Due to its natural decay and breakup, one application of sawdust won't last a lifetime. Additional sawdust will have to be added every two or three years.

"However, don't try to remove old sawdust," the specialist advises. "Instead, blend it into the earth slowly and it will eventually enrich your soil."

Cox issues a word of precaution though. "When sawdust decays, nitrogen in the soil is consumed. Unless replaced, this will cause a yellow appearance in your plants."

"Lost nitrogen can be replaced readily, however, by blending lawn fertilizer into the soil according to directions on the fertilizer package," he says.

"Your saw mill operator can be a source of other 'common denominators' besides sawdust," Cox notes.

Chopped bark, either a by-product of local operations or commercially packaged, is available for use in the same manner as sawdust. Depending on the tree source of the bark, the bark can have both texture and color variations.

"Chopped bark is packaged and marketed commercially under several trade names. In addition to being inexpensive, it is also specially treated to be fire resistant," he explains.

Stones and gravel have also been used by many gardeners. "But," Cox warns, "they can be dangerous if they are thrown by children or are hit by the lawnmower."

ACCIDENT PREVENTION

The National 4-H Safety program is sponsored by General Motors.

"Safety starts with you!" That is the assumption of 4-H youths throughout the state. Regardless of where they live, who they are or what they do, they soon learn that safety pays big dividends.

These young citizens participate in the national 4-H Safety program sponsored for 25 years by General Motors. Scores of adults work with the 4-Hers as volunteer leaders under the supervision of the Cooperative Extension Service. For boys and girls to become safety conscious early in life is the aim of the 4-H Safety program, says a 4-H spokesman.

The program is beamed to youngsters in the 9 to 19 age bracket. A checklist of hazards encountered in everyday activities becomes the focal point of many projects.

Right now during vacation time 4-Hers, and their families as well, strive to stay safe while they enjoy swimming, boating, hiking, camping, hunting, fishing, bike or horse-back riding.

Teenage drivers are urged to take extra precautions around town and on the highways because of the many visitors who are unfamiliar with the area. Older teens serve as extra eyes and ears for the elderly and the very young at parks, beaches, street crossings and the like.

In recognition of noteworthy safety projects, General Motors annually provides county, state and national 4-H awards. In the order named they are: safety medals, expense-paid trips (one per state) to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago; eight $1,000 scholarships.

BEET SUGAR INDUSTRY OF MICHIGAN

AGRI-BUSINESS IN ACTION...

Sugarbeet growers in Michigan's Saginaw Valley have played a vital role in the agri-business economy of our state since the turn of the century. Their progressive efforts combined with those of the state's two processing companies have boosted the dollar value of the sugarbeet crop to nearly $35 million dollars annually. In 1968 farmers in 17 Michigan counties harvested over 84,000 acres of beets. A crop that will produce nearly 350 million pounds of sugar for the Michigan market.

If you live in the Saginaw Valley-Thumb area of Michigan, you no doubt know someone that helps fill Michigan's "sugar bowl" each year. It makes good sense to buy a Michigan grown product. Help yourself to Michigan Made Pure Sugar the next time you shop. Ask for it by name—Pioneer or Big Chief. These brands in the red, white and blue bags represent the finest that Michigan agri-business has to offer.

Learn to know good, bad guys

By Helen B. Meach Extension Home Economist

"Summertime and the Living is East"—for man and bacteria. One way to survive is to know the good guys from the bad—bacteria, that is.
 All bacteria are not harmful. In fact according to Robert Ross of USDA, most bacteria are beneficial.
 To quote Mr. Ross—"Even in earliest times, bacteria and other microorganisms were used to benefit mankind. Before food was preserved by refrigeration and before the canning process was developed, men learned to ferment shredded cabbage to sauerkraut, milk to yogurt, milk curd to cheese, cucumbers to pickles and fruits to wine or vinegar. The cheese industry depends entirely on the activity of microorganisms in the production of its products. In the ripening or aging of cheese, the bacteria bring about those changes which give the finished product its particular flavor and aroma. These changes are very complex and many of them not well understood. Bacteria are also responsible for cultured buttermilk and cultured butter... that is, butter made from cultured cream instead of sweet cream. In meats, too, bacteria play a vital part. The 'tang' so characteristic of many varieties of dry sausage (Genoa, salami, thuringer, Lebanon bologna) is a direct result of bacterial growth.

 "Nowhere, however, are bacteria more important to man than in the land itself. Any soil which is suited to the production of agricultural crops is the home of innumerable living organisms. Every ounce of fertile soil normally contains more living organisms than the human population of the entire world. In terms of weight, it is usually estimated that there are about 20-25 pounds of bacteria per acre of soil.
 "These bacteria, along with other microorganisms, perform the major portion of the work of building and maintaining soil fertility. Bacteria help decompose dead cells and other organic matter, which release mineral nutrients and make it possible for green plants to live in the soil. Green plants in turn serve as food for animal and human life.
 "Sauerkraut, cheese, pickles, vinegar, sausage, yogurt, cultured buttermilk, sour cream, salami... all of these foods require bacteria to make them what they are. The soil without bacteria could never grow crops. And because science is struggling to put away the dangers of bacteria-caused illnesses of man, bacteria may one day... instead of being feared for what they can do TO man... be more appreciated for what they can do FOR man."

1040 U.S. Individual Income Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q—I want to buy my son a shotgun so he can go hunting with me this fall. Is it against the law to give him the gun since he's 16?
 A—Since your son is under 18, he is not old enough to buy a rifle or shotgun under the Federal gun statutes. However, you can buy the gun for him.
 Q—When I sold my house I had to pay a penalty on my mortgage because it was paid off early. Is there any deduction for that?
 A—The penalty for paying off a mortgage before the due date is considered an interest charge. Include it with your other interest payments if you itemize deductions.
 Q—Why did you raise the rate on the highway use tax?
 A—The rate on this tax has not been raised, it is still $3 per 1,000 pounds for trucks with a taxable gross weight of over 26,000 pounds.
 The weight schedule, however, was revised effective July 1, 1969, to reflect the fact that trucks are now larger and carry heavier loads than previously.
 September 1 is the filing deadline for trucks being used public highways during July. Form 2290 is used to file and pay the tax.

 Q—I want to get rid of some old checks and bills. What ones should I keep for tax purposes?
 A—Records that support items on an income tax return should be kept at least until the statute of limitations expires. Ordinarily this is 3 years from the date the return was due.
 Other records such as those on property acquisitions, capital improvements and the like should be kept much longer. For example, if you sell a house you bought in the 1940's, you should have the records to establish what it cost when you acquired it, and the cost of any improvements you made.
 Q—Is it too late to take a credit for retirement income? I didn't know until recently that I was entitled to it.
 A—You may claim a refund for retirement income credit by filing a Form 1040X within three years from the date the return was due or two years from date the tax was paid, whichever is later. You will also have to fill out the information required to

Pewamo

By MRS. IBENE FOX, Correspondent—Phone 824-2021

Sister Stella Marie of Minnesota and Rosalyn Spitzley of Westphalia were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Spitzley Sr. on Monday, July 28. Afternoon callers were Mrs. John Fedewa and daughters and Mrs. Oscar Cook both of rural Pewamo.

Mrs. Theresa Simon recently spent four days in Lansing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Simon while they went to Washington D.C. for a four day trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thelen, Bryan, Craig, and Gina of Mt. Pleasant spent the past weekend with their mother Mrs. Theresa Simon.

Mrs. Ethel Wood of Lansing and Mrs. Myrtle Wood of Pewamo spent the weekend at her cottage at Clifford Lake.

Guests of Mrs. Myrtle Wood July 30 were William Greenwalt of Florida and Mrs. Mary Greenwalt of Toledo, Ohio, who is 94 years young.

Recent visitors of Mrs. Mary Fedewa were Mrs. Pauline Schafer and daughter, Sister De Paul who is a nurse at Wausau, Wis.

Mrs. Pauline Schafer and friend of Portland were Sunday visitors of Mrs. Mary Fedewa Aug. 3.

Brother Leon of Hingham, Mass will be spending the month of August with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cook of Portland.

Mrs. Walter Fedewa will attend summer school at Mt. Pleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Heckmann and family vacationed at Houghton Lake.

Tom Jandernoa, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Jandernoa received the State Fair award for the second year in a row at Jr. 4-H.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jandernoa and family spent four days at Higgins Lake then visited the Soo Locks returning Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Fox and Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Fox spent a week in northern Michigan at their cottage.

Mrs. Rex Calkins and her sister Maude Doane and Ralph Doane were visitors of their mother Mrs. Bertha Doane at the medical center in Carson City. Mrs. Calkins returned with the Doanes for an over Sunday visit. Mrs. Bertha Doane's condition is about the same.

Sister Donna Jean of Muskegon recently visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Thelen.

Sewer project deadlines

Here are deadlines assigned by the Michigan Water Resources Commission for communities wishing to apply for assistance funds from the state in final construction projects:

Sept. 15—Applications for calendar year 1970.

Jan. 1—Assignment of a point total to each application for 1970.

Jan. 15—Commission submits list of eligible projects to the Legislature for 1970. The Legislature then has 45 days from this date to take action on these projects.

Oct. 11, 1970 — Awarding of construction contracts.

The above dates were sent from the Water Resources Commission in a letter dated July 23 to Dale Chapman, Clinton County drain commissioner and chairman of the county department of public works.

The Legislature July 16 approved a measure allocating $50 million in funds to assist communities fight water pollution.

SERVISS SCHOOL - 1925

While the faces may have changed to some extent, many readers will recognize the names of these students who attended Serviss School in 1925. Front row: Louis Vitek, Betty Acker, Norris Steavens, Helen Vitek and Dale Brewer. Second row: Arleita Armstrong, Elma Plumstead, Julia Vitek, Albert Waidelich, Elizabeth Vitek, Mabel Waidelich and Rose Vitek. Back row: Lawrence Jumper, teacher, Gertrude Bishop and Mary Vitek.

'Takealongs' make trip planning easy

The day may be coming, but right now we can't all be moon-walking astronauts.

That doesn't mean we can't take part in a few adventures of our own. In fact, the warm weather season's right for weekend trips, lake visits and mini-vacations.

It's the time of year to get out and go.

WHEN A TRIP'S in the works—whether it be to the park around the corner or the beach across the state—it's easiest and most fun if the planning is simple. Just gather up the necessary "takealongs" and you're set.

So, what is a "takealong?" It's suntan lotion, . . . and insect repellent, . . . and a transistor radio. In the food line, it's your favorite varieties of ready to eat Eckrich cold cuts, bread, buns, mustard, catsup and other delicious accessories.

Modern convenience products make getaway day easier than ever. And, they make your trip more enjoyable because they allow you more time for doing the things you like to do most.

Before your next trip, make a list of "takealongs," get them together and be ready in an instant's notice. Here are some suggestions:

TWO FROM ST. JOHNS AT OLIVET WORKSHOP

Two residents of St. Johns are among more than 50 persons attending the tenth annual Economic Education Workshop this week at Olivet College. Dr. Myrtle Beinbauer, associate professor of economics at Western Michigan University is flanked on the left by John P. Briganti, 209 Wight Street and to the right by John A. Minsky, Route 3.

Soaring property taxes

By ELMER E. WHITE

Anyone wondering why Michigan property owners have been complaining about their property taxes? The questions are answered by figures which came out of the state Treasurer's office.

The records show property tax payments for 1969 reached the $1.5 billion mark this year. That's a jump of 14.46 per cent over last year alone.

And the department says property tax collections have risen 99 per cent over the past 10 years.

The figures also show schools, which are receiving more and more state money every year, also taking a bigger bite of the property tax revenues.

In 1967, 56.34 per cent of all property tax collections in the state went for schools. That figure jumped to 58.23 per cent last year and to 60.94 per cent this year. The percentages of the tax received by cities, counties, townships and villages was down slightly at the same time.

SOARING PROPERTY TAXES received a great deal of attention in the hearings held earlier this year by the Governor's Commission on Educational Reform.

Witness after witness said the state must come up with a different source for school finances. The source most often mentioned was the state income tax.

The Governor himself has said the state role in education "must be stronger and much more vital" than it is now. This presumably would include more state support for schools than ever before.

Michigan already leads most states in the percentage of school money which comes from the state.

A recent survey by the National Education Association showed that only 52.6 percent of school funding in Michigan comes from local sources. This compares with 69.2 per cent in Wisconsin, 66.7 per cent in Illinois and 64.9 per cent in Ohio.

The Secretary of State's office is suspending drivers licenses at a rate nearly double that of a year ago.

Secretary of State James M. Hare says the hike is the result of a new law which requires suspensions of drivers licenses belonging to persons who do not take care of tickets they receive for driving offenses.

In all of 1968, Hare's office suspended or revoked a total of 60,520 drivers licenses for various periods of time. By the end of the first six months of this year, his office already had lifted 51,000 licenses for varying times.

Hare said the new law is responsible for 17,000 of the suspensions and added, "The pace is picking up."

4-H teen: Japan stay is varied

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of letters Miss Nichols will send to John Aylesworth, Extension 4-H Agent, while she is in Japan with the 4-H Teen Caravan in Japan.

KATHY NICHOLS

"My stay in Japan is now half over, which seems hard to believe. During this time I have met many people, made many new friends and seen quite a lot of Japan.

Thus far I have helped in the rice paddies worked at a vegetable greenhouse, attended some 4-H meetings, visited Hiroshima, gone bowling, attended a school baseball game, talked to some high school students and tried to learn more Japanese.

The first weeks of my stay were during the rainy season, rain every day. However, now each day promises beautiful weather. On a bright, clear day the area in which I am living is fabulous. The ocean is a deep blue, the mountains green with foliage, and always the scattered small Japanese villages as the center of attraction.

These villages are by no means like American ones. The streets are always narrow, the houses crowded together, and always an open fish market. Shoes are never allowed beyond the doorway—even the youngest child knows this rule well. Many times there may be one room which has a davenport and several chairs.

This is used to entertain company. The remainder of the house consists of mats covering most of the floors, walls which are really sliding doors, very low tables, usually a TV, a small refrigerator and a stove. As yet I have not seen an oven in any home I have visited. The entire meal for a large or small family is prepared on only two burners. Japanese food is by no means like home. Rice is actually eaten three times a day. Breakfast may consist of rice, goat's milk, maybe an egg with some meat or soup. Lunch will be rice, tea, a raw fish salad and cooked fish. Dinner is usually rice (possibly rice curry or sushi), tea, fish, fried eggplant, or onions, and soup. Usually with each of the meals is served tomatoes and cucumbers. These meals are also always eaten with chopsticks. Can you imagine eating soamen (this is something like noodles, it must be taken from the dish dipped in sauce and then eaten) with chopsticks? Believe me it was a struggle. The little four year old boy in my family is having an equal amount of trouble learning how to use a knife and fork. However he is determined to be successful.

Japan has beauty—both in its land and people. It is a beauty of color, fishy smells, rice, rice, . . . and friendliness. A beauty which Japan alone possesses.

Good-by for now, Kathy Nichols

Buzzing as usual

There were 120,000 colonies of bees in Michigan as of July 1—the same number as last year, statisticians report.

The condition of the colonies was reported as "87 per cent of Normal" by the State Crop Reporting Service, compared to 83 per cent last year.

The condition of nectar plants, which the bees need to produce honey, was reported 90 per cent of normal, up three percentage points from last year.

It took 48 years to accomplish it, but North Carolina has finally imposed a cigarette tax, making it the 50th state to do so.

Iowa was the first state to impose such a tax back in 1921. The other states have fallen in line one by one until North Carolina was the lone holdout.

But rising expenses finally forced the lawmakers there to turn to tobacco for money, and they levied a two cents per pack tax.

Michigan levies a tax of seven cents per pack.

"Unsolicited Goods" Michiganders who have been unsure of how to handle unsolicited goods they receive by mail now have some guidance in the matter from the state's lawbooks.

Gov. William G. Milliken recently signed into law a measure providing that unsolicited goods which come in the mail will be considered unconditional gifts from now on. The law says the recipient may either refuse to accept delivery, may refuse to accept an obligation for returning them or may dispose of them any way he wants to.

Ladies Everywhere SEAM, The Society for the Emancipation of the American Male, is a new organization in Ann Arbor. According to a story in the New York Times, the group has as its purpose "to restore the American patriarchy" and return men to their positions as heads of their families.

Guess what the organization picked up already? A ladies' auxiliary.

Mr. Nixon returns

(Livingston County News)

President Nixon returned to Washington Sunday from his 12-day trip to Europe and Asia and was greeted by about 1,000 persons at Andrews Air force base.

His journey was one of peace. His discussion with foreign powers have brought out some discussion from congressmen as to just what the President meant in some instances. In one instance he said that America would keep its commitments to protect Thailand from aggression by another power while in other places he called for peace with independence but made no commitments by the United States, other than to supply arms if necessary but no manpower.

He left on his trip 12 days ago in the rain and returned in the rain Sunday night. He said in brief remarks at the airport that now "I probably will be known as Nixon, the rainmaker."

His reception in Bucharest, Romania, was tremendous. Just how that will set with the Russians, we must wait and see.

Anyway he made a hit with the Romanians from a group of folk singers to Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu. Nixon put his arm around the little Romanian leader and they danced a Romanian dance together. Whether all this will have any effect upon American foreign policy or domestic politics remains to be seen.

Mr Nixon appears to have shattered the old myth that Americans cannot do business with the communists.

All in all, his journey was one in which peace—world peace—played a prominent role.

He seemed to be mapping a course for world peace when the guns of Vietnam have been silenced and calm settles over that troubled land.

If he can accomplish that Vietnam peace, he will have gone a long way to settling troubles in Southeast Asia and possibly the world.

A relative term

(Tuscola County Advertiser)

Poverty is a relative term. What one person calls poverty, another would consider abundance. U.S. Representative Olin E. Teague of Texas calls attention to some interesting figures. A survey of one of the poorest regions of the U.S., where eight out of ten families live on less than $3,000 a year, showed that 37% owned washing machines, 48% owned cars and 52% had television sets.

Representative Teague points out that a major portion of the so-called poverty-stricken class of America enjoys fruits of affluence which the middle classes of Europe cannot afford—not to mention the rest of the world.

Teague believes: "The core of the poverty problem is psychological, not physical. We should be fighting human attitudes that cause poverty. We should replace the ethics of slavery, the brazen demands that somebody do something and the slogans that the government owes it to us with the ethics of self reliance."

Money alone will not teach people that a balanced diet is more important than a shiny new car.

His remarks are well taken. They harken back to the fate of the "poverty-stricken" Indian tribes of long ago who sank into oblivion, not from poverty, but from the misuse of the tools and luxuries of the white man.

CLAREMONT, Minn., NEWS: "Anonymous verse that somehow seems appropriate for this time of year with schools closing down for summer vacation: When I was a student I was quiet, I didn't protest, I didn't riot, I wasn't unwashed, I wasn't obscene, I made no demands of prey or dean, I sat in no sit-in, I heckled no speaker, I broke not a window, Few students were meeker, I'm forced to admit with some hesitation, all I got out of school was an education!"

'IF IT FITZ . . .

It's about space

By JIM FITZGERALD

Now that we've reached the moon, it is fashionable to insist it is time to cut the space program and apply the same dollars and ingenuity to solving the earth's many problems.

Where to dispose of disposable bottles, for instance, or how to put on loafers at the golf course when your shoe horn is back home.

Important stuff like that.

Of course, not everyone wants to switch the Apollo commitment to earthly problems. There are those who claim the farther we soar into space, the greater things are going to be on earth. The idea, somehow, is that Man will learn up there what he couldn't get through his meathard down here. Marvelous. I knew that someday someone would shoot down that old bromide which warns that you can't solve your problems by running away from them. You just have to know how far to run. Please pass my space suit.

But seriously, folks, other than that I thought Vaughn Monroe should have been there, I wouldn't knock the moon walk.

It was a fantastic, incredible achievement which left me completely awed—by the genius of the men who dream up the hardware and by the bravery and fortitude of the men who ride it. I cannot comprehend how much money is the $24 billion it cost. But I suspect if you broke it into $1 bills and piled one atop the other, the top dollar would be looking down on the Sea of Tranquility.

It doesn't surprise me that Man would soil the moon before cleaning up the earth. The critics say the $24 billion should have been spent seeking ends to war, hunger, racism, urban violence, pollution and so on. But it's not that simple, Charlie. If the $24 billion hadn't been shot to the moon, there would still be Vietnam and starving kids and bigots and snarling slums and stinking lakes.

It is the nature of Man to follow the yellow brick road to wherever it leads. He wants to discover new rest stops. He doesn't much care about the litter he drops along the way, or about the people who can't climb out of the gutter to join him on the freeway to the cover of Time magazine. The important thing to Man is to get over the rainbow—first—and see what's in the pot.

That's the nature of Man and that's why, some day soon, there'll be a Holiday Inn on Mars. And things on earth will still be in a lousy mess.

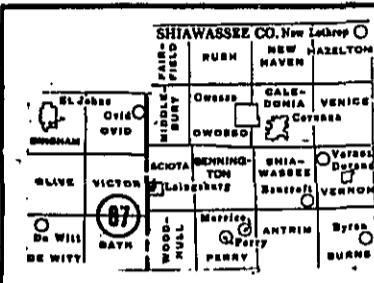

Until the nature of Man changes, it will do little good to say forget space and spend the money and manpower eliminating earth's miseries. Hell, if the $24 billion hadn't been blown into space, the government probably would have divided it evenly between the cancer fighters and the tobacco growers.

I wish I could join the dreamers who believe a walk on the moon will somehow prompt Man into caring more about his brothers who have trouble walking on earth. But there's no way.

So Onward and Upward into space, Man. The moon colonists should be ready to fight for their independence from the United States by the time Caroline Kennedy is President.

View from the 87th

By WILLIAM S. BALLENGER State Representative

One of the very few bills of any substance which the House Labor Committee reported out this year was Senate Bill 270, a measure which might be classified as being in the great tradition of "noble experiments."

Having passed the Senate on June 10 and the House on July 18, it is now on Governor William G. Milliken's desk. If he signs it, the new law will take effect on October 1.

S. B. 270 consists of a 33-month experiment (lasting through June 30, 1972) aimed at curing recent epidemics of "blue flu" and related illnesses often afflicting both police and firemen.

The bill requires compulsory arbitration in any deadlocked contract negotiations between cities, counties, villages, or townships, on the one hand, and police and fire departments, on the other. All such disputes during this 33-month period—if they cannot be settled through normal negotiations, mediation, and fact-finding—may be settled by compulsory arbitration.

S. B. 270 FOLLOWS the findings of an advisory committee which recommended to ex-Governor George Romney that compulsory arbitration be tried on a temporary, experimental basis. Most police and firemen's organizations supported the bill.

But first House Republicans had to beat back an attempt by majority Democrats (whose ranks were crippled in the dying days of the session by the absence of two members due to illness, meaning that neither party had the votes to pass a bill alone and thus had to bargain for bipartisan support) to pass what I feel would have been a rash, irresponsible measure calling for compulsory arbitration in public employee strikes on a permanent basis and with not even a modest enforcement provision. This bill was strongly opposed by the Michigan Municipal League.

I PERSONALLY OPPOSED this "irresponsible" measure but supported S. B. 270, which passed with strong bipartisan support, including all five Republicans of the House Labor Committee, of which I am a member.

According to Robert G. Howlett of Grand Rapids, chairman of the State Employment Relations Commission (formerly the State Labor Mediation Board): "We are very much in favor of this experimental approach. We feel the trial period is very wise, because nobody knows whether compulsory arbitration is good or bad or even whether it will work."

"When you tell a group of public employees: 'You can't strike,' they reply, 'OK, what's the alternative?' This is it, says Howlett.

Opponents argue that compulsory arbitration in the public sector damages a basic democratic precept: namely, the control of the local legislative body over certain policy matters.

THIS CHARGE may or may not be true, but what is most pertinent is the fact that the State of Michigan feels it must test a new idea in order to combat a mounting problem unforeseen only a short time ago. This is something we've often done in this country.

Opponents also contend that the bill will damage collective bargaining—that neither side will bargain but will merely jockey for position with the arbitrator. This may well happen, but if it does, chances for the statute to be renewed when its tenure is up in 1972 will be remote.

IF MEDIATION AND fact-finding fail to settle the dispute, either side can petition the State Employment Relations Commission for binding arbitration.

Following what amounts to a "show cause" hearing, the arbitration panel (which will consist of a representative of the municipality, a representative of the police or firemen, and an impartial third party agreeable to both sides) will make its award. The award can be appealed to the courts, but the court can only decide whether it was based on proper evidence. It cannot change the award.

Arbitration can indeed be costly. During legislation debate over the bill, one of the big hang-ups was the question of who would foot the expense. The final compromise calls for the cost to be split equally between the local governmental unit, the public employees union, and the state. This way, everyone has a stake in rapid settlement.

IF EITHER SIDE refuses to go along with the arbitration panel's decision (which can be enforced by Circuit Court injunction) it can be fined $250 a day.

"In a sense, it is a bill that pleases no one," says Labor Department Director Barry Brown.

But, in another sense, it's equally true that when there is repeated breakdown of a function vital to the public welfare, the government is often reluctantly forced to step in. And I'm sure most citizens of the 87th House District would much rather have the state involve itself with this problem on a short-term, experimental basis than have the federal government charge into the breach in a permanent, vastly more heavy-handed manner.

DEMING, N. M., HEADLIGHT: "Friend and foe alike heap a great deal of abuse upon Uncle Sam's expenditures of money and manpower to aid and protect nations quickly which wish to remain free. We wish that more of the critics would reflect. . . on what the alternative would be if Uncle Sam did not stand as a deterrent to Communist encroachment."

TAKING FIVE

No changes here . . .

By RON HUARD

We had ours last weekend.

Our twentieth anniversary high school class reunion, that is, and it's remarkable how, after all those years, no one has changed a bit. At least that's what everyone told everyone else about everyone else.

"Jim, you old son-of-a-gun, you haven't changed a bit." (Except for the gray hair, bulging mid-section and the bags under the eyes.) "Jim, Remember the time you and —oh, what's his name?—uh, aw, you know, The guy with the blond hair and freckles. Sure, you know who I mean. . . I'll never forget old, Whatshisname, Well, anyway, remember. . . ."

"Oh, hi, there, Mary Ann." (Is it Mary Ann? Was there even a Mary Ann in our class?) "You're as beautiful as the day we graduated." (Except for the thick glasses and dish-pan hands.) "Where's your husband?"

"Hey, look over there. There's Joe. I've gotta talk to Joe. Haven't seen him in fifteen years. Hey, Joel Joel Joe, boy, remember me? Oh, you're Mary Ann's husband and you graduated from San Antonio High School. I see. I thought you were Joe. Well, let's have a drink and get acquainted."

"My goodness. That large lady over there must be the wife of one of our classmates. I don't know her at all. Hmmm. She's looking our way and waving." (Here she comes and getting larger all the while.) "Well, for crying out loud. It's Barbara. Barbara, you haven't changed a bit. Well, maybe a pound here and there, yes, but I'd have recognized you anywhere." (Even with the hearing aid.)

(Wonder where old Calm Clyde is. Now there's one I'd never forget. Such an easy going, carefree guy you'll never meet. Really a top cat.)

"Oh, hi, Mel. You and Ray still playing with model airplanes? Yeh? You guys will never grow up, eh? Lotsa fun, though, I'll bet. Dja ever have one hi-jacked to Cuba? Ha, ha."

"You're an engineer now, eh, Dick. Just what you always wanted, eh, boy? That's fine. Who you with? Penn Central? Well, I'll be darned. Gave up the books but not the title, eh? Well, that's fine."

"Hey, aren't you Jack. . . a, Jack. . . Yeh, that's right. How the devil are you? Me? Oh, fine, just fine. Certainly a fine crowd here, isn't there? Most of them showed up, didn't they. Oh, you're not with this group? You just stuck your head in to see what the occasion was? Well, hang around a bit. These people haven't changed at all. You'll like 'em."

"Oh, there's Joe. Hey, Joe. Joel! You owe me a drink from the last reunion. Oh, Clyde. I thought you were Joe. Glad to see you made it. How's she goin'?" (He's nervous as a cat. . . a top cat and smoking like a pipe machine.) . . . yes, those were good times, Clyde. We used to call you Calm Clyde, remember? Ya don't? Well, life seems to be gettin' busier all the time."

"Oh, Mary Margaret, you're really a card, I'll tell ya. After all these years and you're still the same. Say, whatever happened to Joe? Do you know?"

"You mean he's here? Right here in this room? Well, I'll be darned. I've been looking all night for him. Where is he? That's him? That's Joe? Well, by golly you're right. I do recognize him now. Sure, that's Joe. He hasn't changed a bit."

So they say. . . .

120th Michigan State Fair Aug. 22-Sept. 1

Bald-headed men and pie-eating kids, horseshoe pitchers and beautiful girls. There are contests for all of them—and for that matter, contests for almost anyone—at the 120th Michigan State Fair, which runs from Aug. 22 through Sept. 1.

"You don't have to own a prize steer or be a champion horseman to compete at the fair," E. J. (Jeff) Keirns, the State Fair's general manager noted. "We have competition for all."

The livestock and community arts deadlines have passed, but there is still plenty of time for other entries. In many cases, all the contestant has to do is show up at the right time.

FOR THE KIDS, contests will run from Monday through Friday, Aug. 25-29. They'll include pony-tail, football throw, blueberry pie-eating, balloon race, look-alike twins, most freckles, and egg and spoon race. Registration is 9 a.m. the day of the contest. And there'll be an essay contest for the children on Children's Day, Tuesday, August 26 with $50 US Savings Bonds for first place.

Luther Cleveland, manager of Strouse Citgo Service in St. Johns, has won a special service award.

prizes for six age groups and other prizes. They'll tell what they learned at the State Fair on blanks to be given out on Children's Day.

At the other end of the age scale, senior citizens will compete on Old Timers' Day, Monday, Aug. 25, in such categories as prettiest hat, baldest head, most grandchildren, longest married couple, and oldest man and woman.

"Senior Citizen of the Year Awards" also will be given on that day. There's an Aug. 8 deadline for entering this competition.

THE DAY FOR those with big families and/or loud voices to attend the fair is Friday, Aug. 29, Family Day. The largest family in attendance will be honored and received a raft of gifts. The wives will get a shot at husband-calling, and the men will exercise their lungs in the hog-calling.

The contests for veterans will center around drill teams, color guards, and drum-and-bugle corps from veterans' organization posts. Deadline for entering this competition is Aug. 9.

Beauty queens will compete in the "fairest of the fair" contest for the title of Miss Michigan State Fair. The winner will be crowned Wednesday evening, Aug. 27. There's still time for reigning beauty queens to beat the Aug. 15 deadline.

Baton twirling and strutting contests always draw big entry lists and big crowds of spectators, and this year promises to be no exception.

For those who can't throw a baton but can pitch ringers, the daily horseshoe pitching contests are attractive. There will be daily winners plus a championship trophy for the top pitcher on the final day of the fair.

Information on the many contests can be had from the Michigan State Fair, Detroit 48203, or by calling the fair offices in Detroit at 368-1000.

Behind the offices of Drs Russell and Grost on Walker Street, a new parking lot is being constructed. Dr Russell estimates that the lot will comfortably accommodate ten cars. Work was started about July 28 and will be ready for use on Aug. 11. Black topping will not be completed until next spring. A house next to the office on Oakland Street has been torn down to make room for the new lot.

Israel expands ag effort

Today, more than ever before, people all over the world are demanding better quality food and are experimenting with new tastes and flavors.

The Israeli food industry is very much aware of this and has expanded and diversified so that it may take an ever-increasing share in this trade.

Israel exports range from fresh agricultural produce to high-quality processed foods.

The success of Israeli food exports is based on the high standards of the local agriculture and food processing industry backed by continuous research and development.

Constant research has resulted in the introduction of specially selected and improved new strains suited to industrial processing.

All food plants in Israel operate their own fully staffed laboratories for purposes of quality control and the development of new products.

Teams of chemists and food technologists supervise production processes and are responsible for ensuring that the local product conforms to international specifications.

A final check before loading is made by the government quality control department.

Consumer markets throughout the world have become familiar with the great range of Israeli food products.

Agricultural products include sub-tropical fruits and out-of-season fresh fruits and vegetables such as strawberries and early tomatoes.

Industry too is continuously widening its range of products and today Israel's factories can supply products as diverse as citric acid, liquorice extracts and oriental delicacies. In fact, the local industry has now reached such an advanced stage of know-how in food manufacturing techniques, that it has been able to supply and install in developing countries, complete food factories according to Israeli design and specifications.

The tested quality, and latest in know-how and technical inventiveness ensure that Israeli food products are their own best advertisement, and an exciting addition to the international food market.

St. Peter's Lutheran Church to present 'Built on The Rock'

"Built On The Rock", a centennial pageant depicting some of the history of St. Peter Lutheran Church, Riley, will be presented Sunday evening, Aug. 17, at 8 p.m. on the church grounds, located at 9050 Church Road.

The dramatization will include some of the struggles and hardships, laughter and accomplishments in the past 100 years of St. Peter congregation, unveiled through records and verbal recollections.

The Young People of the congregation will host an ice cream social that evening with serving from 5 to 7:30 p.m., but no serving during the pageant.

If rain necessitates a change in date, both events will be held Aug. 24.

THAT'S A FACT

THE WHITE HOUSE
BECAUSE GEORGE WASHINGTON REMEMBERED WITH FONDNESS "THE WHITE HOUSE", A VIRGINIA PLANTATION OWNED BY HIS WIFE, HE SUGGESTED THE NEW EXECUTIVE MANSION BE CALLED BY THE SAME NAME.

MANHATTAN
MANHATTAN (OR MANNA-HA-TA) MEANS "PLACE OF DRUNKENNESS" WHEN THE ITALIAN EXPLORER, VERRAZANO LANDED ON THE ISLAND HE ENTERTAINED THE INDIANS WITH AN ABUNDANT SUPPLY OF "FIREWATER". THE RESULTS WERE AS EXPECTED!

News About Clinton County - Service Personnel -

The parents of MYRON L. GRUBAUGH have been informed that their son was recently promoted from Specialist 4 to Sergeant. Mr and Mrs Glenn Grubaugh of R-1, St. Johns, report that their son is serving in Vietnam. He is stationed with the 1st Air Cavalry Division and has been in Vietnam since December of 1968.

The new address for Pfc. Daniel Ketchum is: RA 68078252, Bed 23, Irwin Army Hospital Ward 2A, Fort Riley, Kansas 66442.

Pfc. KURT S. BANCROFT, 20, son of Mr and Mrs Wilbur D. Bancroft of 201 N. Garfield, Maple Rapids was assigned July 16 to the 1st Infantry Division in Vietnam as a mortarman. His wife, Adele, lives at 302 S. Arnold, Perrinton.

Airman WILLIAM J. BARTHOLOMEW of St. Johns, has completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex., and been assigned to Lowry AFB, Colo., for training in the supply field. Airman Bartholomew is a 1968 graduate of Rodney B. Wilson High School.

Seaman Apprentice DALE L. FOSTER, USN, son of Mr and Mrs Frederick E. Foster of 315 Wilson Street, DeWitt, is serving aboard the USS Point Defiance currently in Seattle for the 1969 Seattle Seafair.

The Point Defiance, along with other Navy ships, will allow visitors to tour the ship during Seattle's twentieth annual Seafair. The fair is managed by Greater Seattle, Inc., and is actively supported by the Navy League, local civic and business organizations and state officials. The Navy's participation in the Seafair provides an excellent opportunity to develop and foster local civilian relationships and to publicize the Naval service.

Army Pvt. DENNIS L. HALSTED, 20, son of Mr and Mrs Virgil C. Halsted, R-1, Mead Road, St. Johns, was assigned to the 2nd Infantry Division in Vietnam, July 10.

Red Arrow division to meet

Veterans of the famous 32nd Infantry (Red Arrow) Division will meet in Detroit Aug. 29-31 for their golden anniversary convention. Organized 50 years ago as the 32nd Division Veterans Association, the outfit is one of the oldest of its type in existence.

The 32nd, as a fighting division, was one of the top outfits in both World War I and World War II.

It also saw active service during the Berlin Crisis. The division consisted mostly of men from Michigan and Wisconsin, but included troops from all over the United States.

Red Arrow men established a record for continuous days in combat in both world wars and closed World War II with their capture of General Yamashita in the Philippines. Convention Headquarters will be the Detroit Hilton and all activities will be held there. Speaker at the Convention Banquet the evening of Aug. 31, will be General Winston P. Wilson, Chief of the National Guard Bureau.
